View Full Version: The Unhived Mind Ii

The Unhived Mind Ii

WORLD CONTROL

- The Ptolemaic Papal Nobility Bloodlines
- The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)
- The Brotherhood of Zeus & Kronos
- The New World Order (Temporal Power)
- Knights of Malta Intelligence network false flags
- Knights of Malta Intelligence network dope trade
- Zionist Sabbatean Talmudic Masonic Labor Court Apostate Jews
- Surveillance network
- Knights of Malta World commerce system
- Knights of Malta economic Depression
- Knights of Malta Temporal Power Crusade
- The Crusade on Iran and it's Caliph
- Gun control and the 2nd Amendment of America
- Global Police state post democratic society
- Agents of Deception
- Precious metal investment & true wealth
- The Lower Races
- The Homosexuality Agenda
- Mass civil unrest, disobedience, protest and strikes

DEPOPULATION

- Vaccination Inquisition
- AIDS and the non-existent hiv fraud
- The Aerosol Programme
- The Fraud Called Bird Flu
- Chemical/synthetic poisons and toxins
- Fluoride
- Cell phones, Microwaves, EMF and Wifi
- The profiting off Cholesterol
- Abortion and sustainable development

- Pandemic Flu & Pneumonic Plague
- Poliomyelitis and the truth

WEATHER

- Earth Changes and Scalar biowarfare
- The famine agenda
- The Ice Age

MYSTERY

- Unidentified Flying Objects
- Holographic Universe

HEALTH

- Latest health news updates
- The Liver cleansing flush
- Hydration and Salt
- Ozone and Oxygenation
- Electro-healing
- Urine Therapy
- Fasting
- Herbal medicine
- Cancer
- Iodine therapy
- Dr John Ray Christopher
- Edgar Cayce
- Ask The Unhived Mind
- Medical Quackery & Death
- The destruction of the National Health Service
- Traditional Chinese Medicine
- Quack Pharmaceutical Complex Profits from Death

GENERAL

- General information
- True-Christianity

TRUTHSAYERS

- Joseph Vialls
- Phil Schneider

- William Cooper
- Sherman Skolnick
- Fritz Springmeier
- Christopher Story

ENERGY

- Orgone

VIDEO

- Conspiracy video footage
- Health video footage

AUDIO

- Conspiracy audio files
- Health audio files
- Eric Jon Phelps
- The Unhived Mind

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

22ecd

PLEASE MOVE OVER TO THE NEW SITE:

http://z15.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mind_III/

18 JULY 2011 .. GOLD HITS NEW HIGH OF $1604 AS SILVER RAISES TO $40.38 PER OUNCE. THE OVERT DEPRESSION IS ON, ALL READY FOR THE COMING COLLAPSE BETWEEN OCT 2011 - OCT 2012! THE LIKES OF WHICH HAS NEVER BEEN WITNESSED BEFORE WORLDWIDE, ARE YOU READY? MENTALLY? YOU SURE? GET HARDENED NOW AND PREPARE ASAP.....

Old UHM archive site Past UHM Truth Banners Past UHM Scrolltexts Vote for the UHM

KING 'FARNESE' CARLOS
World War III
The Unhived Mind

THE KNIGHTS OF MALTA
DEUTSCHE VERTEIDIGUNGS DIENST
HOMELAND
DEPARTMENT
AGENCY
CARPATHIA HOSTINGS INC CYBERNAZIS

CARDINAL RATZINGER
And his Oslo Accords
UHM

C.I.A (D.V.D) PREPARE TO
TESLA ATTACK U.K
EXERCISE ORION
SEPTEMBER 2010
UHM

WTC nuclear demolition
Dimitri Khalezov

WATCH OUT MIDDLE EAST
KING JUAN CARLOS IS
IN RUSSIA 24/25 FEB

LATEST INFO

The Unhived Mind Ii

The Unhived Mind Ii latest news: EXPECT TROUBLE IN BAHRAIN, THE HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR

Welcome back; your last visit was on Jul 24 2011, 09:52 AM

WORLD CONTROL

	Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info
	The Ptolemaic Papal Nobility Bloodlines Now we come to the real omega point of control over this global conspiracy as we find the Papal Nobility bloodlines of old going back to the Ptolemaic dynasty era of Egypt. Notice who commissioned the Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS as the Society of Jesus and this was Alessandro Farnese. These are most powerful bloodlines in existence such as the House of Aldobrandini along with the House of Orsini. The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS are merely a gatekeeper for this level of hidden power. The Borgia family also came within this level along with the Medici. Note how the Medici were bred into the Orsini bloodline for status. Now the connection of the Borghese to the Aldobrandini bloodline. These are what you may wish to term the Grey Knights or the Supèrieur Inconnu.	46	522	Jul 9 2011, 11:37 AM In: THE ULTRA POWERFUL MAXIMUS ... By: Eboard10

	The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars) These Knights originate from Spain who were once known as the Los Alumbrados. These are the revived Knights Templar of old who've reclaimed their powers and extended them over their enemy the Vatican and once fellow Crusaders. The Knights of Malta fell to their power in 1798 and the Vatican between 1814-1870. I suggest you study their origins in the Kingdom of Aragon controlled by the Borgia family. Please note their founder under the name of the Society of Jesus and he was Francis Borgia tied to the Grandmaster of the Order of Montesa. The Pope did not kill off all the Knights Templar. A small band of these were allowed to stay in Aragon but under a different name. The Society of Jesus as they're now called were the first religious order to be allowed to deal commercially since the Knights Templar of old. May I remind everyone that Loyola was a Gentile from Spain and not a crypto-Judiac. He lived in the castle Casa-Solar in the Biscayan Provinces. The Order's old war rooms were in Villa Caprarola in Lazio, Italy! The Order now rules from the Curia Generalizia in the sovereign, Borgo Santo Spirito next door to the Vatican. Their control is via the spiritual power of the sovereign Vatican City, the military power of the sovereign Washington D.C. and finally the financial power of the Sovereign City of London home of The Crown and its Crown Agents and Livery power of the old British Empire controlled since 1215 by the Knights Templar and since the 14th Century by the Knights of Malta. Adolfo Nicolas; Vicious Basque BLACK POPE	1,987	6,132	Jul 21 2011, 04:08 AM In: EXPECT TROUBLE IN BAHRAIN, ... By: TheUnhivedMind
	The Brotherhood of Zeus & Kronos The core of the control over Planet Earth's populace lies in the ancient cults of Zeus and Kronos. These cults are still in existence to this very day. Following the most ancient religions mixed with sexual worship. The main cults are the worship of the Planet Jupiter (Zeus) and his father Saturn (Kronos). Israel is located on the land formerly known as Canaan. Canaan was the most advanced post deluvian civilization on Earth. Outstripping both Egypt and Sumer in all areas. Now the center of trade, Holy land and soon the Divine Dragon's open 'Latin Kingdom', when the Luciferian Vatican moves from Rome to Canaan.	110	3,615	Jul 18 2011, 12:19 AM In: THE SUN & MOON EYES OF ... By: TheUnhivedMind
	The New World Order (Temporal Power) The New World Order is a fascist system of control over the global populace as one within the aeon of Aquarius. Where by a whole new culture, lifestyle and society must be formed almost completely different to the old one of the past. This is why we see such extensive mind reframing and social engineering going on in front of our very eyes on the populaces and their belief systems being erased by new belief systems handed to them by the likes of Common Purpose (UK) and also Common Cause (US). Pedro Arrupe SJ was preparing his Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS for the coming New World Order a long time before his Knight of Malta, George H.W. Bush of the Deutsche Verteidigungs Dienst came out with the term in the 90s. People of the U.S. should beware of The Crown's use of the Senior Executive Service.	9,437	3,969	Jul 21 2011, 04:37 AM In: Prostitution ring for Wall ... By: TheUnhivedMind

	Knights of Malta Intelligence network false flags The Knights of Malta need to advance their agenda amongst the public. They know the public will not accept their agenda so they create a crisis. This crisis utilizes `fear' as the weapon which makes the public buckle up and follow the agenda. This is known as `Ordo Ab Chao' amongst the hierarchy leadership secret societies, meaning `Order out of Chaos.' Its also known as problem-reaction-solution and the solution is always the hidden agenda. Try to check out `Operation Northwoods' for more information. 9-11 was carried out by the DVD, The Crown, and utilising elements of Israeli intelligence.	1,382	2,731	Jul 21 2011, 04:33 AM In: The New 9/11 Bait and Switch? By: TheUnhivedMind
	Knights of Malta Intelligence network dope trade The true role of these Intelligence networks is the protection of the commerce system its that simple. British SIS control all the agencies from the Pakistani ISI, MOSSAD to the CIA. Remember on they created them all. British SIS are the leaders of the Global Drugs Trade which is simply a method of dumbing the people down whilst using cleaned up drug money laundered through the Stock Market companies to keep the economy going. Right now the Economy is in trouble and has been for a while. Notice the increase in drugs on the street at cut prices? Pioneer researchers in this field were Brain Downing Quig & Gary Webb, guess where they are now? In a wooden box, DEAD! Mike Ruppert has some excellent information on this subject. Whilst Oil is only $110 a barrel, the Heroin trade is worth $20 million a barrel and when cut it brings in $60-80 million. Welcome to the Knights of Malta and their The Crown's dirtiest dealings. Remember the connection of Sicily to the heroin trade and note how King Juan Carlos controls this region via his House of Bourbon power. The very house which is the Farnese continuum today. Also study the role of The Worshipful Company of Apothecaries controlling Dope Inc. Protector of the Holy Sites of Jerusalem Head of World Mafiosis Don Juan Carlos of Spain runs all the ILLEGAL DRUGS game.	255	97	Jul 18 2011, 12:01 AM In: Ten Years After Decriminali... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Zionist Sabbatean Talmudic Masonic Labor Court Apostate Jews We hear all day long from when we were children that the Jews run everything. This is totally incorrect and it gets installed in the populations so the real shadowy ELders are smokescreened and the Jews take the blame. The Zionist jews of Israel are simply Freemasons and therefore subservant to the Superior General of the Jesuit Order. The U. S is controlled by The Jesuit Vatican and their Mafiosi. If Jews ruled the world then why does Israel need U.S permission to activate their nukes? Why will the Vatican own 60%+ of Jerusalem including Temple Mount, thanks to Jesuit trained Shimon Peres? What gives the impression that Israel rules the U.S is simply because they are both ruled by the Council on Foreign Relations. This of course is controlled by the SMOM and ultimately the Archbishop of New York, Cardinal Egan. Why is it that when Sharon thought he'd annoy the Vatican that he simply gets ELiminated by `The Cup of Borgia' by Vatican spys Peres & Beilin? Then Vatican lackies Olmert, Peres win the ELection and do as the Pope wishes. Peres was straight on a plane for the Vatican after winning!	759	254	Jul 21 2011, 02:21 AM In: 5.8 million Israelis Get 10... By: TheUnhivedMind

	Surveillance network The Knights of Malta wish to lock the people into the biggest enslavement known, far exceeding the Dark Ages when we were all once overtly controlled by the Vatican. This time though they wish to know everything about you and your exact location 24/7 utilizing microchip implants and computer systems such as the BEAST in Brussels. You'll see more and more ID card systems being brought in, along with fingerprinting and Iris scanning. Chips will be made fashionable and forced by certain employers and to be able to purchase goods and foods. Its coming folks and once in you wont be able to hide. If you don't accept the mark then you'll simply not be able to buy/sell etc. When the Knights of Malta have full control over everything on this Planet you certainly will not eat if you oppose them. Make note of The Worshipful Company of Spectacle Makers.	5,547	547	Jul 21 2011, 04:36 AM In: Pentagon Seeks to Manipulat... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Knights of Malta World commerce system The Sovereign Military of Malta control all finance & banking and they're known as 'the greatest merchants on Earth'. All commerce along with yourself is controlled by the Universal Postal Union in Berne, Switzerland for The Crown controlling the likes of the Worshipful Company of International Bankers along with the Guild of International Bankers all controlled by the Knights of Malta. This is the Oleron system of Code and Rule over the populace removing your rights as a sovereign being of the Divine who's blood flows and flesh lives. They've trapped you within a system known as the Uniform Commercial Code based on Vatican Canon Law. You're simply a Maritime Admiralty product due to being born of your mother's water from her birth canal. The ancient symbolism of Venus rules over business, the five pointed star. International Banking was created by the Vatican's Knights Templars known as The Crown today which was taken over in the 14th Century by the Knights of Malta now commanded by Grandmaster, Matthew Festing who's also a Cardinal in the College of Cardinals. You'll find that both the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem along with Opus Dei are active in the financial World. The Sepulchre are the masters of the Knights of Malta and the leading Crusading order today other than the revived Spanish Templars ruling the roost known as the Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS.	15,436	-776	Jul 21 2011, 04:41 AM In: Six Ways to Liberate Americ... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Knights of Malta economic Depression Full economic collapse is about to occur at any second. The Knights of Malta controlling The Crown and the Worshipful Company of International Bankers, Guild of International Bankers and The Bankers Club desire a complete collapse of their current economic system Worldwide. The economy being a great modern control over the global populace as people no longer are taught to grow their own food and be indepenent. The Canon Law based Uniform Commerical Code (Oleron Law) financial system currently in place will eventually be replaced with an I.M.F backed system ready for the completion of an electronic only, non cash society which will also be a single World Company Inc currency by 2019. All controlled by the Universal Postal Union in Berne, Switzerland. In the meantime the populaces are to suffer and be bought back to the Dark Ages under the Papal Nobility and their Praetorian Guard known as the Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS. They've hinted about this covertly in Subliminals and more as far back as 1987 with films like 'The Running Man' take a look at its opening upward scroll text at the beginning of the film. We're about to enter a decade or more of deep poverty and severe lifestyle change.	3,071	3,636	Jul 21 2011, 04:39 AM In: "[We'll Have] a Never-Endin... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Knights of Malta Temporal Power Crusade Russia, China, Brazil, Syria, Iran, Venezuela, Cuba, India forming to defeat the Western New World Order or so we're led to believe. Any news on these places can be added here along with WAR information! Its the Knight of the Virgin Mary controlled Knights of Malta Crusade for the full control and creation of their One World Government. Note how The Pentagon of the Department of Defense originated with the Farnese Papal Bloodline and their Villa Farnese in Luzio, Italy. This is the Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS using their proxy military force commanded from 'little Rome' Washington D.C. as the bully boy bringing back Temporal Power this time Worldwide live never before.	4,533	2,971	Jul 21 2011, 04:14 AM In: Manufacturing Justification... By: TheUnhivedMind

	The Crusade on Iran and it's Caliph The Praetorian Guard (Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS) soon want war on Iran as part of an ongoing agenda to destroy of the divinity of thee Shia Caliph. No one can challenge the Pope's Spiritual and Temporal power. The Pope's Spiritual power granted in 606AD, his Temporal power in 756AD. His right to exclusive Deity in 1215AD & exclusive Infallibility in 1870AD. The Shia are the only threat to the Pope's Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem and therefore must be destroyed before the revived Babylon is birthed. A Babylon with Jerusalem as its spiritual capital whilst Dubai is the financial capital and Iraq is the political capital of the future Temporal Power global society known as the New World Order. Lebanon being the current power over the Middle East for the Roman Empire. Also note how Iran never signed up the Knight of Malta, Heinz Kissinger's oil for U.S. National debt interest payments, just the same as Iraq never did.	998	805	Jul 21 2011, 03:51 AM In: Iran's acceleration of ... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Gun control and the 2nd Amendment of America The Knights of Malta wish for an unarmed populace which can be easily governed under their fascist Global governance about to laid down. An unarmed populace cannot defend itself from tyrannical leaders. Crime rates fall where Guns are held by the populace. This reduces chaos! The Jesuits wish for chaos, so you'll except their fascist order. Never let the guns be removed from the people. Once the arms are rounded up by foreign U.N MJTF (Fincen) troops, the American people will be made aware of something huge. This will be notice that the U.S Constitution has been dead since 1945 but especially since 1992 and that the Congress is redundant. The land is no longer the United States but in fact the United Nations. This has been the case due to the Charter of the United Nations being accepted. Just study those once U.S. National Parks.	321	93	Jul 20 2011, 03:20 AM In: 'Bullet Tax' Propos... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Global Police state post democratic society As the Knights of Malta, Global governance rolls through so does the militarization of the Governments police forces. We now see a gradual increase in fascist thug actions upon the peoples of our lands especially with the deadly taser. All designed for subordination to the Police state in the post democratic society as stated numerous times within the Lisbon Treaty.	736	412	Jul 21 2011, 03:36 AM In: Dildos for Justice By: TheUnhivedMind
	Agents of Deception You should be aware that the Intelligence agencies controlled by the Knights of Malta try to control both sides of the coin. They know some people will wake up and therefore need to be put back asleep or diverted. At the same time they enjoy promoting self helplessness to awakening people. F.B.I Division #5 are one of the worse out there for trying to control and guide truth seekers. This technique is also used to see what people are wanting and will fall for in the future. They also like to find out how we're countering them so they can counter back by for instance banning a herb which aids reversing Cancer.	236	2,542	Jul 22 2011, 04:00 PM In: Alex "CIA" Jones Jesuit Tem... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Precious metal investment & true wealth Once you realize that paper ca$h is tra$h then you need precious metals to preserve and maybe increase your wealth through times of hardship in the economy. Right now you should be investing a large percentage of your wealth into physical Gold & Silver bullion. The later being the better of the two in the long run as it goes extinct around 2019! Silver also has a long way to go just to match the old 16:1 ratio against gold. Thus Silver is the one to watch and its very rare these days. Study now how to get into this arena and fast. The Knights of Malta still use bullion to this day behind closed doors but don't wish you to have the pleasure. Gold and Silver are the only legal tender in the U.S. under the Constitution.	3,197	416	Jul 21 2011, 04:36 AM In: Hathaway - Gold Breakout &a... By: TheUnhivedMind

	The Lower Races The destruction of the white nations via the immigration of black foreign beings into our once great Nations. Crime rates rocketing whilst our Countries get Africanized, meaning violence and sexed up with disrespect and zero order and morality. Examples of this is the gun/gang crime of Gunchester & London. The dramatic rise of rapes in London which is a usual happening in third World, Africa. The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS want the destruction of the white race as we're the only race which is a threat to the power of the Knights of Malta. They want a mulatto ridden set of lands easily controlled by military dictatorship like Africa. Please study 'Practical Idealism' by Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi and see their desires.	671	469	Jul 21 2011, 07:56 AM In: Lower Race shows why they s... By: IloveJFKJr
	The Homosexuality Agenda The goal is to have a population of at least fifty percent homosexuals whilst the rest are majority bi-sexual. This will be achievable without civilization collapse as kids of Saturn will be created in the laboratory replacing children of God. This all ties into the Papal Nobility Hermetic mind frames. All in a H.G Wells free-love society. These Satanic creatures want rid of the idea of sexes just the same as they wish to remove the idea of race, nationality, individuality etc. Until forced sterilization and eventual creation of a new genetic modified being, homosexuality aids in curbing the population growth in line with the 'Global 2000' report needs whilst needing a source of kids due to lack of breeding. Study groups like the Department of Justice Pride connected with bisexual Hillary Clinton and Kristian Marcy.	339	112	Jul 19 2011, 06:07 PM In: BBC axed gay scene from Tor... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Mass civil unrest, disobedience, protest and strikes Theres an agenda to create endless rioting in order to help break down society and bring in acceptance amongst the populace for Martial Law in the coming post democratic society. All as unemployment rates rise to economic Depression figures and worse whilst taxes get higher and people can no longer afford to live. This is unfortunately the post industrial/democratic zero growth society wished for by the Knights of Malta. Watch as security guards and traffic wardens take local duties of Police officers whilst the Police officers tackle the civil disobedience. Expect regular almost constant rioting from the end of 2014 onwards as the Depression and New World Order comes well into play.	317	2,290	Jul 21 2011, 04:42 AM In: Libya braces for 'Day o... By: TheUnhivedMind

DEPOPULATION

	Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info
	Vaccination Inquisition Vaccines do not cure disease they create disease. Vaccines are used as a depopulation tool under the guise of false help. An example is the Simian Virus 40 which causes Cancer in Salk Polio jabs amongst 150 other contaminants just in one vaccine. Used to create crippling illnesses and dumbing down of humans etc. Vaccines originate with Francis Xavier SJ of the Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS and pushed on the World by Edward Jenner SJ of the same order.	893	289	Jul 21 2011, 04:15 AM In: Prominent Doctor Agrees Vac... By: TheUnhivedMind
	AIDS and the non-existent hiv fraud There is no such virus as Human immunodeficiency virus its never existed. Knight of Malta, Robert Gallo and friends have created on of the biggest frauds and hoaxes on the public which will lead to depopulation on a grand scale when mandatory testing comes in. AIDS has been around since day one under the many names of old such as malnutrition and Syphilis etc. Don't be fooled by the hype and brainwashing on this subject. Information I possess is major heresy in this corporate medical World of so-called experts.	103	136	Jul 21 2011, 03:46 AM In: Anti-HIV drug made by GM pl... By: TheUnhivedMind

	The Aerosol Programme Aerosols are being vectored Worldwide across our skies raising environmental pollution and pathogens which have killed and diseased many people. Now after years of this we're seeing the collateral damage manifesting as Morgellons disease across America and other sprayed Countries. Thanks to the Office of Naval Intelligence we now have Operation Clover Leaf, Operation Red Sky, Operation Rain Dance right above our heads tied into the Civil and Military Open Skies treaties.	278	138	Jul 11 2011, 11:59 PM In: Morgellons Disease continue... By: TheUnhivedMind
	The Fraud Called Bird Flu The tests which are false science. Old medical rules turned upside down now making anti-bodies disease. Lack of health condition records on patients who are claimed to have died from this. Much Much more on another phony.	103	-1,441	Mar 11 2011, 03:12 PM In: Japan Is on High Alert as a... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Chemical/synthetic poisons and toxins Aspartame is a carcinogenic sweetener created by Searle which has multiple serious health symptoms creating havok and death. Please try to watch a video called "Sweet Misery." Try to study the work of Dr Russell L Blaylock. *NOTE NEW POISON COMING FROM NUTRASWEET SOON ALSO NOTE A NEW POISON SUBSITUTE FOR MSG NOW OUT CALLED -SENOMYX-17/8/7 * UPDATE: ASPARTAME BEING CALLED NOW 'AMINOSWEET' BEWARE OF THIS TRICKERY * Fluoride This deadly substance first developed by the Nazis and Russians causes many serious health problems including Cancer as well as the mind numbing effects to dumb down the surviving population via the water systems. Serious damages the Kidneys and damages the spiritual light body.	407	48	Jul 21 2011, 03:44 AM In: Head of NM resource protect... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Cell phones, Microwaves, EMF and Wifi Cell phones utilize microwaves and Extra Low Frequencies which interfere with the body and produce a host of symptoms including death from brain and Hodgkins Lymphoma. Intelligence agencies now have technology to utilize your cell phone as a real weapon via resonant frequency and microwaves by ECCM (Electronic Counter Counter-Measure) units such as Venus EECM and the Stoner techology both are in the hands of Mi6, CIA, FBI Division #5 and others.	118	13	Jul 21 2011, 03:37 AM In: The Growing Movement Agains... By: TheUnhivedMind
	The profiting off Cholesterol Cholesterol is vital to the human body and without it you'd die quickly. Think of it as your puncture repair kit and transportation of fat soluble vitamins and minerals. If you shut this down your illness needing Cholesterol will worsen and you'll be malnourished. Synthetic Cholesterol lowering medicine will damage your Liver, Kidneys and Spleen. Real Cholesterol problems stem from Liver dysfunction which responds well to Artichoke root herbal treatment.	81	29	Jul 12 2011, 06:26 PM In: DEADLY COST OF LOW-FAT DIETING By: TheUnhivedMind
	Abortion and sustainable development Study 'Memorandum 200' by Knight of Malta, Heinz Kissinger of the Deutsche Verteidigungs Dienst. Study 'Global 2000 Report' by Club of Rome tied to DVD agent, Mikhail Gorbachev. I also suggest you read 'Population Bomb' by Paul Ehrlich. Study the U.N Agenda 21 and Sustainable Development.	683	163	Jul 24 2011, 05:02 AM In: Agenda 21 in New York State... By: wades77

	Pandemic Flu & Pneumonic Plague Pandemic Level 6 flus and Epidemics are great ways to depopulation areas but the ultimate is Pneumonic Plague as trialled in the Ukraine during the supposed Swine flu level 6 pandemic. Remember no animal virus can enter a human being and survive naturally. Only military genetic engineering can create such viruses, many of which are injected via vaccines mostly and can be vectored by aerosols if need be.	1,642	3,679	Jul 21 2011, 03:29 AM In: H1N1 S188T Dominant In Sout... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Poliomyelitis and the truth Contagious disease? No! Polio is a virus which lives in the stomach in order to protect you from pollution and radiation. All viruses are protein solvents for cleansing of filth. I suggest you study Dupont more and make sure you're aware of Dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane. This DDT is still in use today in third World nations and you'll find they all have this disease called Polio. Beware them reintroducing it which they're calling for these days now population reduction is needed in the West.	4	2	Jul 21 2011, 01:33 AM In: Polio resurgence casts doub... By: TheUnhivedMind

WEATHER

	Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info
	Earth Changes and Scalar biowarfare The Jesuits were first to understand seismology and the ionosphere. I suggest you study there wicked actions down at Manila Observatory since 1951 onwards. Now when you understand these ionospheric heaters and the Earthquakes they can create you may think differently about their origins. Weather warfare is taking place by space based weapons platforms and satellites in conjunction with aerosol programs in the atmosphere and ground based scalar interferometers. Again please make sure you're aware of the report from Iron Mountain.	1,363	2,775	Jul 21 2011, 04:20 AM In: 8.9 JAPAN EARTHQUAKE, TSUNA... By: TheUnhivedMind
	The famine agenda The populaces of the Western World are to dramatically have their living standards drop closer to Second World status to match the rest of the World as we all become one under the World Government. Food controls the populace and this is to be severely depleted in order to bring about depopulation of the third World. Once the depopulation of the third World becomes really visible they'll then push for GM crops in order to help disease and control the Western World which has economies relying on sickness for the economy in the Post Industrial Zero Growth Society. Expect rations and expect to be forced to live as a Vegan and never to see Salt and Meat ever again. The later is to make sure the lifespan of the human being is depleted as studies have showed. Notice how the U,N food programs WFP, FAO and their headquarters are all in Rome, Italy.	905	79	Jul 21 2011, 03:55 AM In: Vandals Destroy 10 Acres Of... By: TheUnhivedMind
	The Ice Age As we enter the Dalton's minimum period of Solar activity for the next 30-50 years we enter into an Ice-Age period. The underwater Volcanoes heat up the oceans creating more moisture in the atmosphere which comes inland creating floods but when the temperature drops this gives you the Ice-Age. William Cooper warned us all about this period happening right now but he told us this decades ago in advance.	556	204	Jul 16 2011, 01:39 AM In: It's official: Territor... By: TheUnhivedMind

MYSTERY

Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info

	Unidentified Flying Objects Information on Unidentified Flying Objects and possibly various genetically created lifeforms for the final agenda what Project Greenstar has all been to bring about. Notice the predictive programming programmes on TV downloading the conditioning into your mind daily. Programmes such as series called 'V', movies like 'Skyline' or 'Battle Los Angeles' and 'War of the Worlds'. Please remember Knight of Malta, Ronald Reagan's words about a threat from outer space. Please make sure you're aware of the Iron Mountain Report and how this agenda fits in perfectly with this report.	240	153	Jul 19 2011, 02:21 AM In: UFO Fleet Over Bulgaria - A... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Holographic Universe Imagination, the matrix, manifestation	43	21	Jun 30 2011, 06:58 PM In: [vid] THE MADNESS OF ILLUSI... By: kalongi

HEALTH

	Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info
	Latest health news updates All the latest news on health from around the World.	1,638	294	Jul 21 2011, 04:30 AM In: No Liability for Beetles in... By: TheUnhivedMind
	The Liver cleansing flush A regular Liver cleanse is a good idea 2-4 times a year or more if an illness has set in. This is a very powerful treatment which can give some startling results with some diseases and in a very quick space of time. Especially good for skin and allergy problems.	16	16	Mar 20 2011, 10:35 AM In: Got Insomnia: Perhaps You N... By: seekerx
	Hydration and Salt Pure Water & Salt healing was brought to the masses by Dr. Fereydoon Batmanghelidj of Iran. Both substance are vital for life along with Qi, Oxygen and Iodine. Correct Salt levels help the Kidneys to function and should be obtained from natural foods ideally. If you wish to take salt other than the natural salty foods then you should only use Himalayan Salt or Redmond Salt. Sea salt is fine as long as it isn't processed. There must be correct balance between the water intake and salt in accordance with Dr Batmanghelidj's information or even better the Chinese diet system. His best book is 'Water & Salt Your Healers From Within'.	22	11	Jul 11 2011, 12:22 AM In: Interview with Dr. Gerald P... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Ozone and Oxygenation Ozone gas is renowned in Europe for its serious healing and detoxification powers. Used in Germany and Russia extensively for fighting many forms disease bought about by filth. Brought to the mass attention by "Mr.Oxygen" Ed Mccabe in modern times. I strongly suggest people study the work of Dr Otto Warburg of the early 20th Century.	23	11	Dec 30 2010, 02:24 AM In: Jim Humble's MMS By: servant of truth
	Electro-healing Doctor Hulda Clark & Robert C. Beck brought Electro healing back to the masses of the Western World. The original pioneers were Dr George Lakhovsky, Royal Raymond Rife, Wilhelm Reich and Nikola Tesla. You may wish to study information on Zapping, Blood Electrification, Magnetic Pulsing, Multiple Wave Oscillators and Rife based machines. This should be a part of the future of health!	62	40	Jul 11 2011, 12:05 AM In: Dr. James Oschman Discusses... By: TheUnhivedMind

	Urine Therapy Remember how the medical mafia will regularly as you for a urine sample to test for any illness you may have? The urine is a very powerful collection of your holographic system and contains a lot of data about yourself. Notice how Wolves know exactly who to hunt down via their urine showing their weaknesses. You can utilise this via ingesting your own urine slowly working up to higher levels. I strongly suggest your brainwashing denial is removed soon and you study this subject carefully. Remember those ear drops you're using usually have a synthetic urea (urine) compound within, urine would work better.	8	1	Nov 25 2009, 09:36 PM In: Urine Therapy in The Animal... By: Jefferson Smith
	Fasting In use for at least 7000 years this healing practice of going without food is a healing treatment. If Urine is added to this the healing power is dramatically increased. I will also advise that the Chinese do not like fasting as they believe it depletes the energetics of the body and Qi. Many have found it very useful, the choice is yours.	8	1	Apr 4 2011, 05:52 PM In: Fasting 'could lower yo... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Herbal medicine Herbal medicines have been used for centuries to reverse ailments and disease. This is the natural method of healing and not just masking of symptoms known as disease management which the pharmaceutical treatments are known for. Remember most of the top synthetic drugs of the Medical Mafia come originally from the plant Kingdom such as the Periwinkle and Mistletoe Chemotherapies along with Foxglove for Heart failure,	195	343	Jul 20 2011, 10:33 PM In: Cod Liver Oil: The Number O... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Cancer Cancer is now within one in three of the populace in some parts of the World such as parts of Canada in masculines. This is a filth originating metabolic disease stemming ultimately from Pancreas dysfunction tied to dysfunction of the Spleen. By this time you'll find the Liver and Kidneys most likely will have become dysfunction which will have an affect on the Heart and Lungs. This area will cover the Cancer subject and real alternative treatments available. Study the work of William Donald Kelley, Dr Max Gerson and Dr John Ray Christopher along with Harry Hoxsey, Rene Caisse, Sir Jason Winters, Dr Otto Warburg and of course Dr John Beard (The Unitarian Trophoblastic Theory). Remember on that the Pancreas is controlled by the Spleen.	430	106	Jul 21 2011, 01:06 AM In: Lung cancer rates are still... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Iodine therapy This most vital substance for the Human Body deals with a massive complex of problems and perfect running of the body. People are extremely deficient in Iodine and need to top themselves up. Before anyone rushes in, they should understand the subject completely first. Iodine is a powerful healing aid but is also powerful in giving you a world of hurt if you screw up.	6	3	Apr 12 2011, 01:54 PM In: Worrying levels of iodine d... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Dr John Ray Christopher One of the greatest occult healers the Western World has ever experienced. Utilizing ancient herbal knowledge along with his own findings to heal dramatic illness cases. Here is a compilation of his treatments for specific ailments. His student, Dr Richard Schulze continues his work.	3	7	Sep 12 2010, 11:05 AM In: Dr. CHRISTOPHER VIDEOS!! GONE? By: seekerx
	Edgar Cayce Edgar Cayce health readings contain much valuable information. I've used a few of them with great results. You'll find many problems need spinal/neck corrections as part of the protocol for health. Please utilise Cayce and Christopher together.	2	1	Oct 17 2009, 11:06 AM In: The Causes and Treatment of... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Ask The Unhived Mind Any health related information you wish for? If so then I may be able to guide you in the right direction. Always do your own research on top of my words and the choice to use my info is entirely yours.	333	1,169	Jul 23 2011, 04:33 PM In: Another sufferer of Eczema By: TheUnhivedMind

	Medical Quackery & Death The covert Spanish Inquisitional medical establishment exposed! This poisonous pharmacopeia is utter quackery designed to misled and control the populace. Fully controlled by the Knights of Malta through their American Medical Association and their bully boy Food and Drug Administration. A way of making mass profits for greedy corporations like Bayer. A tool to make currency whilst destroying the enemies of Rome! Synthetic drugs are poison and they'll kill you in the long run. These days the drugs seem to kill and hurt even faster than ever.	1,006	89	Jul 21 2011, 04:41 AM In: An unprecedented 1 in 66 Am... By: TheUnhivedMind
	The destruction of the National Health Service Common Purpose of the Pope's European Union are trying to engineer distrust in the National Health Service of Gt Britain. They want you to fall for their U.S. style private system being built as we speak. They want you to transition into this with ease and with zero troubles. So they attack the N.H.S and make it go through a hard time coping with the purposely created chaos. I don't agree with N.H.S poisoning but theres devious trickery going on by Knight of the Virgin Mary Michael Holman, SJ again. Its all about greed for pharmaceutical companies desperate to push highly inflated priced poisons with ease on your insurance bills. Ask the Americans how it hits their pockets.	241	13	Jul 19 2011, 05:44 PM In: Use your loaf! NHS official... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Traditional Chinese Medicine Traditional Chinese Medicine is 5000 years old and the ultimate in balance within the body. This involves the use of Herbal medicine along with Acupuncture, Tai Chi/Qi Gong, Massage and Cupping. It involves getting to the root of the problem and dealing with internal Qi lifeforce. Far more deeper than Western Herbalism with a far more deeper understanding of the body and its functions. An ultra strict diet system is involved and people must be serious about healing and dedicated fully.	126	96	Jun 27 2011, 04:56 PM In: Examine Your Stool By: TheUnhivedMind
	Quack Pharmaceutical Complex Profits from Death This forum is to highlight the serious economic system which the pharmaceutical industry really is. Its a business all about profit used to also control the populace.	19	1	Jul 15 2011, 03:01 AM In: Shire hits a 'high' on ... By: TheUnhivedMind

GENERAL

	Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info
	General information An area for anything of important but not quite relevant to any of the other topics.	2,367	9,158	Jul 23 2011, 03:28 AM In: UHM MAY GO QUIET FOR A WHILE By: Keith
	True-Christianity For true Christians who follow the King James AV1611 Bible of the Reformation and true Biblical teachings thus meaning non-Babylonian Paganized Catholicism the covert Mithra of Religions. Catholics are not wanted in this forum as Catholicism is blatantly in opposition to the word of the Christian God. Catholicism is the worship of Nimrod and his Wife, its Satanic! Feel free to post anything you wish to discuss. The King James AV1611 is the true enemy of the Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS 'Military Order' of evil. False teachings from the false Bibles such as promoted by 'Alpha' courses are certainly not desired. Only Geneva and AV1611 accepted. Beware of the Satanic Douay false Bible.	328	2,499	Jul 22 2011, 04:10 PM In: Daniel's 70 Weeks By: golden_oil

TRUTHSAYERS

Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info

	Joseph Vialls Joe Vialls was an old school researcher and exposer of the conspiracy being played out all these years now more in front of our face than ever. Joe was unique in his level of detail whilst going into even forensic detail like no other. Joe was plagued by the Knights of Malta intelligence networks who would remove his attempts to collect finances, they'd ban his PayPal and similar methods. Eventually they assassinated Joe in 2005 by bio-weapon which destroyed his Kidneys. A very sad time indeed for us all. His work will never be forgotten by myself. Much of his work is disappearing off the internet and we must keep his effort alive as its all of vital importance.	29	61	Dec 6 2010, 07:11 PM In: France, Russia, Germany Res... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Phil Schneider Phil was beaten, finger chopped off and strangled in his appartment after around the 9th attempt on his life. Phil exposed underground bases, ufos, space created materials, aliens, prison trains and depopulation plans. This guy knew way to much and was one of the biggest threats to the above top secret agendas.	3	1	Jun 6 2010, 11:06 AM In: PHIL SCHNEIDER SPOKE OUT IN... By: TheUnhivedMind
	William Cooper Another legendary truth exposer killed by the establishment at his home. William exposed the mysterys religion, Ufos, underground bases, freemasonry, project lucifer, JFK william greer shooting and much more. A true truthsayer.	9	7	Nov 22 2010, 12:12 AM In: William Cooper amazing lect... By: TheUnhivedMind
	Sherman Skolnick Sherman was a 50th veteran in truthsaying everything from naming names, busting court judges (the judge buster), JESUITS/Vatican and much much more. Sherman's death remains a mystery but it seems he may have been killed as he was one of G.W Bush's public enemy number 1's.	3	3	Apr 7 2010, 12:59 PM In: Broadsides hosted by Sherma... By: Cold
	Fritz Springmeier High level exposer of the inner core of the Conspiracy and it's invisible bars itself. Very high level de-programmer of mind control victims and once again a big exposer. Fitted up on phony robbery charges by the establishment and his devious wife. Now teaches inmates at the prison he's held within.	9	3	Feb 21 2011, 02:27 PM In: UPDATE: Fritz Springmeier B... By: Phazon
	Christopher Story	17	171	Jul 15 2011, 07:40 AM In: One year since Christopher ... By: AntiSionist

ENERGY

	Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info
	Orgone Orgone has been known by the few thanks to Wilhelm Reich. Mark Hooten created the most powerful orgonite cloudbusters and from then on dominates this arena with the most powerful creations around.	13	16	Apr 19 2011, 04:11 PM In: Orgonite deceptions By: TheUnhivedMind

VIDEO

	Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info

	Conspiracy video footage Video streams and files usually MP3/AVI containing information on Conspiracy knowledge.	858	931	Jul 21 2011, 03:37 AM In: Wal Thornhill NPA Lecture [Vd] By: TheUnhivedMind
	Health video footage Video streams and files usually MP3/AVI containing information on Health knowledge.	71	44	Jun 27 2011, 05:19 AM In: DR. DINO PRATO - SUCCESSFUL... By: TheUnhivedMind

AUDIO

	Forum	Topics	Replies	Last Post Info
	Conspiracy audio files Audio files usually MP3 or Streaming web format all containing information on Conspiracy knowledge.	143	252	Jun 30 2011, 04:35 PM In: MARTIN LUTHER - MASTER OF D... By: semperbry76
	Health audio files Audio files usually MP3 or Streaming web format all containing information on Health knowledge.	18	5	Feb 14 2011, 10:37 AM In: Various anti-Vaccination au... By: bovvered
	Eric Jon Phelps Eric Jon Phelps isn't known as Mr History for nothing. This man has single handedly brought back true history to all those not in denial of real truth. No where else today do you see people preaching true history in such details spanning 500 years plus. Eric has is a proper old fashioned preacher similar to how the Puritans were. Real truth hurts and Eric certainly has a list of enemies a mile long for being who is his. Without Eric the World would be in even further ignorance of the Society of Jesus and the Reformation truth.	26	741	Jul 19 2011, 10:02 PM In: New Eric Jon Phelps Audio By: Insurgent
	The Unhived Mind The Unhived Mind has been researching for just under a decade now. Well schooled in a broad array of subjects from health to conspiracy and the many angles within. Schooled in many subjects to make sure you all have an opportunity to learn what he knows to the fullest. The Unhived Mind has been one of the biggest promoters of the anti-Vatican movement and continues to this day to keep everyone aware of startling new information where others wouldn't dare to tread. Currently an adviser of Eric Jon Phelps.	56	1,110	Jul 15 2011, 02:14 AM In: THE UNHIVED MIND - THE DEPO... By: TheUnhivedMind

Quick Log In User Name Go

The moderating team | Today's active topics | Overall top 10 posters

Board Statistics

23 user(s) active in the past 15 minutes

22 guests, 1 members, 0 anonymous members

vally77

Show detailed list by: Last Click, Member Name

Board Statistics

Our members have made a total of 119,319 posts
We have 608 registered members
The newest member is AnonymousTruther2
Most users ever online was 131 on Mar 11 2011, 04:34 PM

Delete cookies set by this board · Mark all posts as read

Hosted for free by InvisionFree (Terms of Use: Updated 2/10/2010) | Powered by Invision Power Board v1.3 Final © 2003 IPS, Inc.
Page creation time: 0.0805 seconds | Archive

The Orsini Skin by Bunthius Zeta Board mods

0

View Full Version: The Unhived Mind Ii

The Unhived Mind Ii

WORLD CONTROL

- The Ptolemaic Papal Nobility Bloodlines
- The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)
- The Brotherhood of Zeus & Kronos
- The New World Order (Temporal Power)
- Knights of Malta Intelligence network false flags
- Knights of Malta Intelligence network dope trade
- Zionist Sabbatean Talmudic Masonic Labor Court Apostate Jews
- Surveillance network
- Knights of Malta World commerce system
- Knights of Malta economic Depression
- Knights of Malta Temporal Power Crusade
- The Crusade on Iran and it's Caliph
- Gun control and the 2nd Amendment of America
- Global Police state post democratic society
- Agents of Deception
- Precious metal investment & true wealth
- The Lower Races
- The Homosexuality Agenda
- Mass civil unrest, disobedience, protest and strikes

DEPOPULATION

- Vaccination Inquisition
- AIDS and the non-existent hiv fraud
- The Aerosol Programme
- The Fraud Called Bird Flu
- Chemical/synthetic poisons and toxins
- Fluoride
- Cell phones, Microwaves, EMF and Wifi
- The profiting off Cholesterol
- Abortion and sustainable development

- Pandemic Flu & Pneumonic Plague
- Poliomyelitis and the truth

WEATHER

- Earth Changes and Scalar biowarfare
- The famine agenda
- The Ice Age

MYSTERY

- Unidentified Flying Objects
- Holographic Universe

HEALTH

- Latest health news updates
- The Liver cleansing flush
- Hydration and Salt
- Ozone and Oxygenation
- Electro-healing
- Urine Therapy
- Fasting
- Herbal medicine
- Cancer
- Iodine therapy
- Dr John Ray Christopher
- Edgar Cayce
- Ask The Unhived Mind
- Medical Quackery & Death
- The destruction of the National Health Service
- Traditional Chinese Medicine
- Quack Pharmaceutical Complex Profits from Death

GENERAL

- General information
- True-Christianity

TRUTHSAYERS

- Joseph Vialls
- Phil Schneider

- William Cooper
- Sherman Skolnick
- Fritz Springmeier
- Christopher Story

ENERGY

- Orgone

VIDEO

- Conspiracy video footage
- Health video footage

AUDIO

- Conspiracy audio files
- Health audio files
- Eric Jon Phelps
- The Unhived Mind

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Ptolemaic Papal Nobility Bloodlines

1. THE ULTRA POWERFUL MAXIMUS FAMILY
2. Otto Von Hapsburg dead
3. ULTRA POWERFUL FARNESE FAMILY
4. Boarding the LHD "Juan Carlos I"
5. MEDICI BLOODLINE
6. ULTRA POWERFUL ALDOBRANDINI FAMILY
7. PALLAVICINI BLOODLINE
8. House of della Rovere
9. THE BORGIA (2006) MOVIE
10. THE BORGIAS 2011 Jeremy Irons as Rodrigo de Borgia
11. BERNARD OF CLAIRVAUX, THE TRUE FOUNDER OF THE
12. IHS ACRONYM CONNECTION TO THE COLONNA FAMILY
13. THE ARCANA ARCANORUM RITE OF ATLANTIS
14. Apex of the Power Structure
15. The 13 Real Illuminist Gray Masters?
16. Developer Geoff Palmer has built 3 PAPAL named
17. Trieste, Italy
18. Villas of the Papal Nobility
19. ALDEBARAN - MICK JAGGER RITUAL DANCING
20. Illuminati bloodlines by Fritz Springmeier
21. The Cybo family
22. CRISTOBAL COLON(NA)?
23. Other powerful Roman families
24. GAETANI Chapel and SATAN
25. Princess Susana von Radic
26. THE JESUIT COUNCIL BY DON VITTORIO [Aud]
27. THE VATICAN GENEALOGY
28. THE TRUE 13 BLOODLINES OF THE ILLUMINATI [Lk]
29. Underground of Rome [Vd]
30. Are there any good books about Papal black family?
31. LIST OF THE PAPAL NOBILITY
32. BORGO SANTO SPIRITO

33. ROMAN BLOODLINES
34. The Aldobrandinis/papal elite families on facebook
35. SMOM & PAPAL NOBLE CHRISTOPHER LEE
36. Great Video on the Papal Bloodlines
37. ULTRA POWERFUL BREAKSPEAR FAMILY
38. BLOODLINE-LED ROYAL CHIVALRIC ORDERS
39. House of Savoy
40. BASILICA SANCTAE CRUCIS IN HIERUSALEM
41. Was Eusebius the father of
42. CERRATO FAMILY & THE BLACK POPE
43. THE ULTRA POWERFUL ESTE ESTENCE FAMILY
44. THE COLONNA FAMILY
45. THE POWERFUL VENETIAN CASANOVA FAMILY!
46. THE POWERFUL SOMAGLIA FAMILY

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)

1. Online documents
2. BEWARE of FIDEL CASTRO & HUGO CHAVEZ
3. The Secret History of the Jesuits, by Edmond Paris
4. The Black Popes scenario for WW3 and destruction
5. The Two Babylons by Rev. Alexander Hislop
6. SMOM COUNCIL - Know thy ENEMY
7. JESUIT Power Structure of the United States
8. THE SECRET TERRORISTS by Bill Hughes
9. THE JESUITS "King Solomans Temple III", Pics
10. WHO SUNK THE TITANIC?
11. Jesuit General Pedro Arrupe & THE NEW WORLD ORDER
12. ROME'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE ASSASSINATION OF
13. THE CURIA GENERALIZIA - JESUIT WORLD HQ
14. HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE RULES TODAY DVD #3
15. Eric Jon Phelps 2009 Interview
16. The History of the Jesuits
17. The Inroads of Spiritualism with James Arrabito
18. The BANNING of VATICAN ASSASSINS
19. Dr. Alberto Rivera at Tony Alamo Ministries [VID]
20. Tasting the cup of the Borgia
21. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF JESUIT INFORMATION
22. `FOREIGN CONSPIRACY' AGAINST THE LIBERTIES OF THE
23. The REAL Controllers of the USA
24. BALANCED VIEW OF POPES
25. SECRET TREATY OF VERONA
26. Secret Instructions of the Jesuits
27. INDUCTION AND EXTREME OATH OF THE JESUITS
28. Cardinal O'connor & his master Michael Holman SJ
29. The Enemy Unmasked by Bill Hughes
30. Rome is the enemy of United States

31. The British Legal System of Mixed Common & Roman
32. THE NEW VATICAN ASSASSINS SEMINAR W/ PHELPS [VID]
33. JESUIT, SMOM & OPUS DEI Membership lists
34. EXPECT TROUBLE IN BAHRAIN, THE HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR
35. Irish PM in unprecedented attack on Vatican
36. TEMPLAR MEXICO CARTEL
37. The 32 flames and the Degree of the Scottish Rite
38. Obama to Israel: Give back seized land
39. Malaysia establishes ties with Vatican
40. Consecration of the youth of the world to the
41. Vatican II: Calling ambassadors for Christ
42. Video: Religious orders to refuse meeting over
43. Pope's envoy to visit Nigeria
44. Habsburg-Requiem: deep symbolism and historical
45. JESUIT TRAINED HERMAN VAN ROMPUT MEETS THE HOLY
46. THE MEETING WITH THE PRESIDENT OF THE EUROPEAN
47. German priest arrested for child abuse
48. THE JESUIT ORDER PREPARES THE SHIPS OF KITIM!
49. Is the Archbishops about to meet in Rome for some
50. HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR PICKS A NEW GENERAL SECRETARY

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Brotherhood of Zeus & Kronos

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF SATURNALIAN INFORMATION
2. THE SUN & MOON EYES OF HORUS
3. THE SATURNALIAN BROTHERHOOD EXPOSED
4. BAPHOMET - BY ALEX GREY
5. National Palace and Malecon's Obelisk
6. The Serpent of Lucifer and Wisdom
7. Two owls on top of the HSBC bank
8. Police are Masonic vermin
9. THE MANO CORNUTO
10. THE DRAGON'S 'TRIAD CLAW' HAND SIGNAL
11. [vid] Illuminati 9 11 Symbolism in Comic Books
12. [vid] Nietzsche wasn't atheist, he was a freemason
13. THE 'COSMOS' AUTHORITY ENERGY
14. The luciferian doctrine in Metal Gear Solid 4
15. More British Programming
16. THE SALUTE TO ISIS
17. AHURA-MAZDA SYMBOLISM
18. LUCIFER PROJECT update FYI (2010) Clarke novel?
19. JESUITICAL OPENING SCENE OF THE MOVIE "THE RITE"
20. Kate Middletons ZEUS WORSHIP Coat of Arms
21. THE WHORE OF REVELATION (TEASER)
22. London Olympics: Iran to compete
23. Phallic symbol on the RCC in my neighborhood
24. Symbolism of Royal Wedding coin
25. HUGE SATURNALIAN 666 HEXAGRAMS THROUGHOUT WORLD!
26. CATHOLIC EYE OF HORUS OVER LONDON!
27. Does anybody recognise this symbol?
28. I FOUND ANOTHER SUBLIMINAL SEX MESSAGE IN NEW
29. Bowling: satanists favourite sport!
30. What handshake is this? Obama & Chavez

31. Masonic symbolism in Ultravox music video [Vd]
32. Daniel Martin Diaz Art and Paintings
33. THE SATANIC TRINITY
34. THE OWL IN THE CENTER OF THE PENTAGON!
35. THE SIGNAL OF TANIT
36. THE FREEMASONS SQUARE GLASS
37. THE FREEMASONS SQUARE GLASS
38. Secret Societies By OG Playboy Hood Minister [Vd]
39. New GAP logo
40. Major symbolism in the new Virgin Atlantic advert
41. Subliminal Message Iron Chef America (SEX)
42. [VID] Vatican: The Hidden World
43. SEMIRAMIS CITADEL=VATICAN CITY
44. Saturnalian Cult revealed "A MUST"
45. codeword "freemason" wordplay
46. SONY PICTURES 9/11 AND SEXUAL SYMBOLOGY
47. "Christ the Redeemer" Statue of Brazil, 666 mts
48. The Armistice That Ended 1WW Signed at
49. The Satanic Symbology of SB-1070 Immigration Law
50. Satanic Claw by Sharon Osborne

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The New World Order (Temporal Power)

The Unhived Mind Ii > The New World Order (Temporal Power)

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 189

1. Do you know the truth about the EU?
2. START STOCKING UP FOR SURVIVAL!!!!!
3. International Maritime Admiralty Law
4. THE WORK OF RIK CLAY
5. PRISON PROFITS,FINANCIAL WORLD,MONEY LAUNDERING,
6. THE UNION OF NORTH AMERICA THREAD
7. The Yod and the Yoni Worship by Craig Oxley
8. BUSH 41 CAUGHT IN PEDOPHILE STING
9. Blacks, whites and Asians have different ancestors
10. Royals and nobles believe in Dragon genes?
11. Amazing details of exactly what asylum seekers
12. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF NWO INFORMATION
13. MIND CONTROL IN THE 21st CENTURY
14. THE SECRET COVENANT
15. Project for the Exposure of Hidden Institutions
16. the Council on Foreign Relations - by Myron Fagan
17. Targets of the Illuminati and the Committee of 300
18. US. DENTENTION CENTERS - DONT BE IN DENIAL
19. WIZARD OF OZ and the ILLUMINATI MIND CONTROL
20. Where the U.S President really takes orders from!
21. THE UNITED STATES IS STILL A BRITISH COLONY
22. Sensitivity Training - Edward Griffin [VID]
23. Kimball-Cherokee Castle where the Bushes KILL
24. The Disney Bloodline
25. Cave Mystery Schools
26. SECRETS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE
27. NWO 2006 Plans - William Cooper Had Some Answers
28. Royal Conspiracy: How the Crown & Jesuits Rule
29. REPORT FROM IRON MOUNTAIN
30. Prostitution ring for Wall Street clients busted

31. Rupert Murdoch Hires Author of U.S. Patriot Act to
32. Trial Looms for Price-Fixing in Digital Music
33. Inside Job Film Trailer - Former Federal Reserve
34. Shh! There's a Secret CIA Prison in Somalia
35. Why world leaders are losing hearts and minds
36. Grand jury to probe Boston mob boss' life on run
37. Musing on the Banks of a Dry River Bed.
38. Teenager 'bludgeoned parents then hosted party'
39. ANTI-NUCLEAR AGENDA FOR DEPOPULATION AND GREED
40. White House operative heading 'birther' smear
41. Bohemian Grove mystery broken down
42. The Restore America Plan (T.R.A.P.)
43. Man's call for Obama assassination is free speech,
44. Military-Industrial Journalism
45. Murdoch Media Misdirection
46. Raging Inequality May Cause Unrest and Violence In 47. 20 Signs That The Fabric Of American Society Is
48. Wynn CEO Goes On Epic Anti-Obama Rant On Company
49. A Christian Response to Vampire Obsession
50. New Terror Report Warns of Insider Threat to

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Knights of Malta Intelligence network false flags

The Unhived Mind Ii > Knights of Malta Intelligence network false flags

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 28

1. 9/11 NUCLEAR DEMOLITION OF THE WTC BY DIMITRI
2. THE DARKER SIDE OF 9/11 - THE FRENCH CONNECTION
3. BBC: al Qaeda Does Not Exist [Vd]
4. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF STATE TERROR
5. The New 9/11 Bait and Switch?
6. Bill O'Reilly attacks 9/11 victim's son [Vd]
7. NYC Dept. of Buildings: No Records for Pre-9/11
8. THERMITE CUTTING VERTICAL STEEL - VALIDATED -
9. Post 9/11 Era and Radicalism
10. Indian Leader Suspects Mossad-CIA handiwork in
11. The Kingdom and the Towers
12. STAGED OIL RIG DISASTER PROVES BIGGER THAN FIRST
13. Silenced: TWA 800 and the Subversion of Justice
14. TWA 800 - The Search For The Truth [Vd]
15. WTF Charlie Veitch???
16. Gun-smuggling cartel figures possibly were paid
17. New doubts over crucial evidence in Lockerbie tria
18. CIA Knowingly Released False TWA 800 Video, Report
19. 9/11 ANNOUNCEMENT: Long-awaited International
20. 9/11 Survivors Will Not Be Allowed to Attend
21. Report: Bin Laden Already Dead
22. Scientist Sues CIA for TWA Flight 800 Crash
23. Chinese Bank Helped Fund Hamas, Suit Says
24. Co-Chair of 9/11 Inquiry: American Government
25. CNN exposes ‘terror expert’ as a fraud
26. 9-11 HOW THE TWIN TOWERS WERE DESTROYED AND HOW
27. BUBONIC E.COLI IS A SUPER BIOWEAPONIZED AGENT
28. Iran explosives at centre of Cypriot intrigue
29. THE ORION EXERCISE HAPPENING IN THREE LOCATIONS IN
30. 9/11 And The Rise of The World Wolf State

31. Nearly 3,000 victims of 9/11 don't show up as dead
32. The NIST WTC 7 Report is False [Vd]
33. Mumbai: Explosions shake India's financial hub
34. Inside Job: More Proof of 9/11 Duplicity
35. 9/11 Truth Isn't Going Away
36. USS Liberty Song "Please Can You Tell Me"
37. ANYONE BELIEVING IN A CONSPIRACY ETC IS LABELLED A
38. Source of terror threat is in UK Government, says
39. Terror tots of the Taliban: Children as young as
40. 911 - PLANE - MUST - HIT - STEEL!!!
41. Sarkozy Allows No Summer Vacations for Ministers
42. V FOR VENDETTA; MARTIN McDAID; 7/7
43. Panetta in Kabul: Al-Qaeda Defeat 'Within Reach'
44. Lyndon LaRouche: 9/11 Was a Total Inside Job [Vd]
45. 9/11 kin: Troopers 'did nothing'
46. 9/11 Zadroga Health Care Law Goes Into Effect
47. Ted Gunderson Former FBI Chief - Most Terror
48. US strategy to narrow focus on home threat
49. Reply to James Fetzer Over No Plane Nonsense
50. Dead in the Water - The Attack on the USS Liberty

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Knights of Malta Intelligence network dope trade

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF INTEL DRUGS
2. MI6 Are The Lords Of The Global Drug Trade
3. Ten Years After Decriminalization, Drug Abuse Down
4. All charges dropped in massive cocaine smuggling
5. Marijuana: DEA proposal, new Colorado law could
6. Afghan president's brother, Ahmad Wali Karzai,
7. The “War On Drugs” Is A $2.5 Trillion Racket: How
8. Warning over legal Russian drug phenazepam
9. "Journalist" Blames Drug War Failure On Corrupt
10. July 5/11 Saskatoon StarPhoenix’s Cover-Up for
11. Super-strength ecstasy warning after Ayrshire deat
12. YES ELIZABETH MARY II PUSHES DOPE [Vd]
13. Flesh Eating Disease In Cocaine Found In NY, LA
14. Ron Paul, Barney Frank Introduce Bill That Would
15. DEA head: A thousand dead children means we're
16. Bolivia to withdraw from drugs convention over
17. Scotland tops world cocaine use
18. Krokodil: The drug that eats junkies
19. Drug addicts get methadone on the NHS... why can't
20. CONGRESSMAN CALLS FOR END TO WAR ON DRUGS
21. The Underground Website Where You Can Buy Any Drug
22. When Cocaine and Monsanto's Roundup Collide, War
23. Taliban grow rich from misery of opium farmers and
24. “Business is Booming”; Wall Street’s Role in Narco
25. Branson backs drugs policy change
26. World Leaders Urge Paradigm Shift on Drugs Policy
27. Oxi: Twice as powerful as crack cocaine at just a
28. Ultralight aircraft now ferrying drugs across U.S.
29. Middle Tennessee Police Profiting Off Drug Trade?
30. Volunteers to take ecstasy pills live on Channel 4

31. Baby is treated in hospital for being drunk -
32. Met chief: Stop keeping prisoners on drugs
33. Ecstasy use 'damages the brain'
34. HOUSE OF KESWICK'S ARE LARGE SCALE DRUG DEALERS
35. Dope Inc turning the West into drug addicts [Vd]
36. World banks run on cocaine cash [Vd]
37. Ron Paul accuses Bush of smuggling CIA drugs [Vd]
38. GARY WEBB WHO EXPOSED CIA DRUG RUNNING MURDERED
39. How a big US bank laundered billions from Mexico's
40. Schoolboys, 8, caught showing off 'bags of
41. Heroin dealers to escape jail: New sentencing
42. War on drugs has failed, say former heads of MI5
43. It's time to decriminalise drug use, say peers
44. Onion Router Encryption Devices
45. Lockerbie Diary: Gadhaffi, Fall Guy For CIA Drug
46. Holy Rollers
47. CIA chief nailed for sex crimes and cocaine
48. Britain now at heart of Europe's cocaine smuggling
49. DEA to legalize marijuana only for ‘Big Pharma,’
50. DRUGS & UNDECLARED WEAPONS SEIZED IN ARGENTINA ON

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Zionist Sabbatean Talmudic Masonic Labor Court Apostate Jews

The Unhived Mind Ii > Zionist Sabbatean Talmudic Masonic Labor Court Apostate Jews

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 16

1. 'Anti-Semitic' Is A Bogus Term As Used
2. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF SABBATEANS
3. Zionists Poisoned Sefardi Jewish Children
4. The Zionist Terror Network
5. Mordechai Vanunu Interviewed
6. Recruiting American Jews for Israel
7. The Sharon Assassination Attempts - Part 2
8. ADL CRIME CONVICTIONS
9. 5.8 million Israelis Get 100 Billion In US Tax
10. Germany to finance submarine for Israel
11. A VICTIM OF PEACE - THE SEA OF GALILEE IS DEAD
12. Human Trafficking in the Jewish State
13. Holocaust museum evacuated as fire nears Jerusalem
14. Did Israeli hacker abuse 100 US girls?
15. Blinded By Misdirection
16. Why Did The President of Bankrupt Greece Visit
17. Randy Rabbi 'caught on tape in bed with a
18. Book: Julian Assange Held Back Wikileaks About U.S
19. A VICTIM OF PEACE - THE SEA OF GALILEE IS DEAD
20. Ibrahim Hewitt: Israel's fifth columnists silence
21. Twelve pro-Palestinian Britons 'detained' in Israe
22. Holocaust-denying British bishop begins appeal in
23. Israel & Greece closely knitted [Vd]
24. United States puts Israel on its terror watch list
25. Netherlands parliament rules against ritual animal
26. WHY I'M NOT BELIEVED by Barry Chamish
27. What's Really Going On at the Israeli Institute
28. Israelis confess to Auschwitz memorial theft
29. Israeli PM's son insults Muslims on Facebook

30. U.S. Jews angered over Delta partnership with Saud
31. Israel's nationwide five-day emergency drill to
32. Israel's leaders hole up in nuclear bunker
33. Kosher Certification in Quebec [Vd]
34. John Galliano in court over race insults claims
35. ISRAEL WAGES WAR ON YOUR MIND [Vd]
36. Jewish court sentences dog to death by stoning
37. IDF to Conduct Home Front War Drill Next Week
38. Undeclared Israeli Nuclear Weapons: CIA Knew In
39. Is Chabad a Racist Criminal Terrorist Jewish Cult?
40. US: Israel must adopt Obama's vision
41. Phil Giraldi Spills the Beans on Israeli Espionage
42. SYRIAN TV REPORT IDF HAVE KILLED 20 PROTESTORS ON
43. FIFTH AVENUE SYNAGOGUE ‘SPRAY PAINTED’ WITH PIGS
44. Yale Pulls the Plug on Anti-Semitism Institute
45. ‘We’re no Nazi book burners’ Scottish council hits
46. The Smurfs are 'anti-Semitic and racist'
47. Golan: Israel troops fire on pro-Palestinian
48. Israeli military says will stop new Gaza flotilla
49. New FBI Files Alleging AIPAC Theft of Government
50. Anti-Zionist websites are disappearing

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Surveillance network

The Unhived Mind Ii > Surveillance network

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 111

1. How to Disable Geolocation in Specific Programs
2. Saudi 'Killer Chip' Implant Would Track,
3. How to ZAP Cameras with Lasers
4. CCTV Busting Infra-Red Headset Makes You Invisible
5. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF ORWELLIAN ACTIVITIES
6. The Panopticon: A Mass Surveillance Prison
7. New Body Screeners in use in dystopian London
8. Pentagon Seeks to Manipulate Social Media for
9. Anarchism in America [Vd]
10. New US software to end 'naked' airport scans
11. We're at your Service Ontario. [Vd]
12. 'Gold Card Desk' dismissed some L.A. parking
13. Influential Conservative is Dangerously Wrong on
14. Big Brother Creep Out: 7 Ways US Govt. Invades
15. City Council Attempts To Oulaw Free Speech And
16. Look who Obama's hired for cybersecurity team
17. Full Speed Ahead For Facial Recognition Technology
18. The NSA Is Building An Artificial Intelligence
19. Scanners to be Taken Back by JSO; Media Protests
20. Obama's 'beast' slapped with fine
21. Now Apple can turn your Mac into an iPad
22. New facial scanners at Heathrow to check the
23. What Makes Spot ‘Vicious?’ LA County To Seize Dogs
24. Sweet smell of success
25. New Plan by TSA Will Allow You to Bypass Their
26. Feds Charge Activist as Hacker for Downloading
27. Philadelphia Police Poised To Crack Down On
28. Anti-swearing law draws expletive-laden protesters
29. Rense & Devvy - Dangerous Smart Meters
30. Police Arrest Jogger After He Warns Drivers of

31. 16 Suspected 'Anonymous' Hackers Arrested in
32. Why Smart Meters Produce Higher Bills
33. When Will We Be Transhuman? Seven Conditions for
34. Darpa Searches for Life’s Master Clock
35. CIA's DARPA working on human-brain-mimicking tech
36. Lulz Security hackers target Sun website
37. Night-vision goggles, tracking devices and the
38. Nudge not enough to change lifestyles - peers
39. Desperate airlines resort to sign twirlers as
40. Microsoft offering $250,000 reward for Rustock
41. Small Arkansas Town Wants To Ban Free Speech And
42. Caught in a dragnet
43. Hospitals, doctors take 'palm prints' to ID patien
44. £1,000 fine if you're slow bringing your emptied
45. TSA Security Theatre is a National Embarrassment
46. BBC to survey UK mobile coverage
47. INFLUENCED BY ADVERTS?
48. Who's Cheating Who. ESA. ATOS Healthcare [Vd]
49. More body bomb nonsense to promote Knight of Malta
50. IS FACEBOOK DAMAGING CHILDRENS ACADEMIC SUCCESS?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Knights of Malta World commerce system

1. JUST STOP PAYING YOUR MORTGAGE!
2. Does your Money look like this??????
3. How to survive the Great Depression of 2K8-9
4. THE NEW AMERO PAPER CURRENT FOR U.S
5. Tips for Financial Problems
6. 1933 Bankruptcy of The United States
7. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF SMOM FINANCE
8. U.K BANK EMERGENCY COLLAPSE PROCEDURE
9. U.S PROTOCOLS FOR ECONOMIC COLLAPSE
10. Warren Buffets warnings on U.S Dollar collapse
11. The Money Myth Exploded
12. Six Ways to Liberate America From Wall Street Rule
13. Rick Santelli Goes On A Deficit Rampage: "Gov't 14. Dennis Kucinich "Congress Takes Money From The
15. Remember the real estate boom? [Vd]
16. HOME EQUITY NIGHTMARE: Second Liens, Second Wave
17. Walmart to Open up to 300 Stores Serving USDA Food
18. Recession hit Midlands workforce hardest
19. Low-skilled 'more likely to be jobless'
20. Inflation hits consumer confidence
21. Online rail ticket price warning
22. Jobs go as fashion stores close
23. US existing home sales fall to seven-month low in
24. Mortgage lending continues to be subdued, lenders
25. Chinese state oil firm buys Canadian oil sands
26. Wells Fargo Fined $85M for Subprime Loans
27. New Zealand's Dollar Advances to Reach Record High
28. GOOGLE IN TAX STORM
29. UNREST PUTS SANTANDER £20BN FLOAT IN QUESTION
30. NASA telescopes face budget abyss

31. Peter Schiff - 'Moodys should downgrade US debt to
32. Death and Budgets
33. Internet claims another victim: Borders closes
34. Big US Banks Ate Everyone's Lunch: Strategist
35. Bernanke: "Inflation is a tax" [Vd]
36. The Only Thing You Can Count On
37. Down but not out: Voices of the long-term
38. Conforming loan limits should expire lower – how
39. Cisco to cut workforce by 9% and sell Mexican unit
40. Land Securities reports a drop in vacancy rates
41. European Stress Tests May Spark Need to Raise
42. Pimco Favors Shorter Debt as Yen is ’Cleanest
43. Bank of Canada Keeps Key Rate at 1%, Says Stimulus
44. BOSSES WANT VAT SLASHED TO 15%
45. Ireland thrown interest rate crumbs of comfort by
46. Travelodge apologises for double-charging
47. 'Ending wars best resolution to US debt'
48. "Business As Usual Is Bankrupting This Nation!"
49. Government-funded electric car company folds; more
50. Ron Paul: "Every Time the Federal Reserve Engages

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Knights of Malta economic Depression

1. TODAYS STOCK MARKETS + OIL/GOLD PRICES
2. Charles Blahous admits Social Security is a PONZI
3. THE DAY THE DOLLAR FALLS [Vd]
4. Greenspan: Bankers commit FRAUD [Vd]
5. 2010 CIRCUIT BREAKERS
6. CNBC Guest Mentions the Presidents Working Group
7. Government protocols for Economic Collapse
8. GLOBAL ECONOMIC COLLAPSE SEPT-OCT 2008?
9. "[We'll Have] a Never-Ending Depression
10. Peter Schiff: If We Raise The US Debt Limit That's
11. Is Kodak Going Bankrupt Fast?
12. EU's QE: Printing money is Europe's only way out
13. Jim Rogers: Fed Will Launch QE3 by Q3
14. Moody's: McConnell Backup Debt Plan Won't Save
15. State of CRISIS [Vd]
16. IMF warns the Eurozone of £400bn global 'earthquak
17. China urges U.S. to boost confidence in debt, dlr
18. A Trillion of revenue is on the plate
19. Ron Paul: "We Will Default Because The Debt Is
20. Fed Preparing For US Default Says Plosser
21. $ Is Over. (If you want it.)
22. Economic D-Day for the Euro 21Jul11
23. Crisis And Collapse Unfortunate but Inevitable
24. A fate worse than debt ceiling
25. Ratings agencies running the show in Ireland and
26. Wall Street paralysed by US debt talks
27. Eurozone has liquidity - and that should buy us
28. Eurozone leaders set for crunch debt summit
29. Interest rate rise unlikely in near term, says
30. UK bank ring-fencing plans 'unclear'

31. Number of Scottish people going bust rises by 25%
32. Obama Open to Short-Term Debt Increase
33. EU Said to Weigh Bailout Fund Use for Emergency
34. Papandreou Sees Make-or-Break Time in Debt Crisis
35. Moody's eyes rating cuts for 5 US states
36. UK on the verge of Bankruptcy !!!!!! [Vd]
37. AP: Mortgage 'robo-signing' continues in Michigan
38. Must Watch Video: Debunking The Bullshit Corporate
39. Greece Bonds Collapse, Interest Rates Surge To 40. Greek Bonds Collapse As ECB's Nowotny Announces
41. Sign of the Times: San Francisco Court System
42. Marc Faber - financial Sense Newshour 15 july 2011
43. Obama Embraces Senators' Deficit-Cutting Plan
44. 18 Signs That Global Financial Markets Smell Blood
45. 10 Signs That The American People Are Starting To
46. The Head Of The World's Biggest Hedge Fund Sees "E
47. Too Big To Fail?: 10 Banks Own 77 Percent Of All
48. Greece debt: Merkel dampens expectations of deal
49. Bank of America posts record quarterly loss of
50. Goldman Sachs profits 'disappoint'

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Knights of Malta Temporal Power Crusade

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF WAR
2. Manufacturing Justification for the NATO Takeover
3. MASSIVE PAKISTAN WAR LEADING TO WW3
4. What a let down! Russia tricks enemies with
5. Pakistan Spy Agency Aided by Two Men in U.S.,
6. Liberals see opportunity for big cuts in defense
7. 'US suspicious of China-Iraq ties'
8. US Senators Warn Beijing On South China Sea Clashe
9. Ron Paul "This Military Spending Doesn't Defend Us
10. Austerity For Everyone, Except The DOD
11. UK announces early warning system to prevent
12. Lashkar Gah handover: police station targeted in
13. 15,000 US Troops to Remain In Iraq, Renamed
14. Brazil to build nuclear submarines which will
15. U.N. Briefed on Syria's Alleged Nuclear Activities
16. 17,000 TROOPS AXED TO BOOST TERRITORIAL ARMY
17. We won't ease up on Taliban, pledges new US
18. With Friends Like AFRICOM, Who Needs Enemies?
19. US Attack on Yemen Police Station Killed 50
20. Afghanistan: Senior aide to President Karzai
21. Afghanistan: Bamiyan province handed to local
22. Warning over early Afghan pull-out by British
23. Iran says it can block 'Internet in a suitcase'
24. Tehran ready to give Syria $5.8 billion: report
25. PIIGS, Presstitutes And The Global Meltdown
26. New Brown University Report Pegs The Real Cost Of
27. To improve relations, US must respect China's core
28. Vietnam: Chinese soldiers attack fishermen
29. Federal Reserve Causes Middle East Unrest
30. CHINA MISSILE SALES

31. Karzai brother service hit by Kandahar suicide
32. Israeli warplanes attack Rafah
33. Jordan: Egypt to fix pipeline in 10 days
34. Over a Fifth of Navy Ships Aren't Ready to Fight
35. Officials: NATO Kills 16 Civilians in Afghan Air
36. Why the US won't leave Afghanistan
37. Russia's Medvedev urges army to import weapons
38. Lavrov: Missile defense remains the biggest
39. China rejects Manila offer to bring dispute to UN
40. THE NORTH KOREA MAY 2009 INCIDENT ROOM!
41. Sarkozy's Karzai visit: 1,000 troops to leave by 42. Iran moves nuclear enrichment programme to
43. Israeli airstrike hits eastern Gaza
44. Rockets hit Kuwaiti embassy in Baghdad
45. Drone strikes are police work, not an act of war?
46. China says US spends too much money on military
47. Panetta's Iraq Visit Reveals his Lack of Knowledge
48. Egypt army detains four US nationals: military
49. China rejects Philippine proposal on Spratlys
50. China Says U.S. Navy Drills in Region 'Inappropria

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Crusade on Iran and it's Caliph

1. IRAN REPLACES DOLLAR WITH EURO IN FX
2. Iran's acceleration of its nuclear programme
3. Stuxnet returns to bedevil Iran's nuclear systems
4. Iran Opens Oil Bourse - Harbinger of Trouble for
5. Iran's acceleration of its nuclear programme
6. Hague must learn from Iran history
7. Iran shoots down Israeli spy drone w US markings
8. Iran Opens Oil Bourse - Harbinger of Trouble for
9. Iran Warns US, Russia to Pay Heed to Chemical
10. 'Iran victorious in war with Iraq'
11. 'Iran may cut oil flow to India in Aug.'
12. Ex-CIA officer: Israel likely to attack Iran in
13. Argentina welcomes Iran's offer on Jewish centre
14. Iran refuses to let in UN's human rights monitor
15. Iran, Pakistan urge stronger ties
16. Israeli Leaders Understand the Futility of
17. Iran Stands Firm!
18. Iran and China sign $4b in deals (Agencies) 17
19. Iran Warns US, Russia to Pay Heed to Chemical
20. 'Iran deploys forces along NW border'
21. Ahmadinejad warns Turkey of US, Israeli, "plots"
22. US threatens to act unilaterally against Iran
23. Panetta Says U.S. to Act Alone Against Iran-Backed
24. Iran accused of arming anti-US militias in Iraq
25. Iran ready to close Strait of Hormuz: General
26. Iran 'fired two long-range missiles into the India
27. U.S., Britain hit Iran with more travel restrictio
28. Iran Says Saudi Oil Output to Spark Price War If
29. Rumors of Iran-Venezuela uranium deal ‘a big lie’:
30. Ex-Mossad Chief’s Iran Warnings May Backfire

31. Iran Clones Russian S-300 Radar [Vd]
32. Sen. Joe Lieberman Predicts ‘Day Of Reckoning’ For 33. Robert Fisk: How Iran wages its own global 'war on
34. Iran rejects US defense chief's claims
35. Iran's Ahmadinejad warns against govt arrests
36. Iran launches hybrid power plant
37. Are subs, not the planes, the best way for Israel
38. Israeli minister: Don't take eyes off Iran
39. Conspiracy of silence over four Iranian nuclear-
40. Women activists arrested in Iran
41. Iran Arming Iraqi Groups Attacking U.S. Troops
42. Iran 'carrying out secret nuclear missile tests'
43. Robert Fisk: Iran's war games go underground
44. How the demise of a trusted adviser could bring
45. Saudi Arabia worries about stability, security and
46. Riyadh will build nuclear weapons if Iran gets
47. Iran successfully fires 14 Missiles in drill [Vd]
48. [vid] Iranian war games warn West
49. Iran unveils underground missile silo, poises for
50. Iran Woos Leaders of U.S. Allies as Troops

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Gun control and the 2nd Amendment of America

1. 'Bullet Tax' Proposed By Mayoral Candidate
2. Congressman Says Fast & Furious Was Obama Administ
3. NRA Will Sue Obama Administration Over New Gun-
4. Latest Gun Control method
5. Police Confront Man for Open Carrying Firearm
6. Obama aide: Gun legislation in 'near future'
7. There is No First Amendment Without a Second
8. Karl Denninger: The People Must Retain The Right
9. AK-47: The Ultimate Resistance Rifle [Vd]
10. Bloomberg's Anti Gun Ad Suggests Second Amendment
11. Homeowner Shoots Burglars, Kills 1
12. Pistol-packer reluctantly sent to jail
13. Editorial: Was Fast And Furious A Gun-Control Plot
14. Obama Administration Caught Running False Flag
15. ATF Agent Seizes 30 Toy Guns! Says They can be
16. Ronnie Barrett Responds To Felipe Calderon
17. Education Department buying 27 shotguns
18. We Must Kill the UN Small Arms Treaty
19. U.N. Agreement Should Have All Gun Owners Up In 20. Open-Carry Experiment Shows Cops Don't Know Their
21. New Al Qaeda Video: American Muslims Should Buy
22. ATF agents say motive of gun smuggling was to hype
23. Why gun control always misfires
24. Oklahoma City pharmacist found guilty of murder
25. California gun-control laws cut flow to Mexico
26. New Mexico Supreme Court Lets Cops Grab Guns
27. NRA Sells Out Second Amendment on Patriot Act
28. Documents Reveal Remington Wrestled with Potential
29. Peter Fonda encourages his grandchildren to take
30. Obama: “I’m working on gun control under the radar

31. Man who clashed with cops over legal gun was also
32. The Gun Boom
33. 3 Hurt When Gun Discharges At School
34. Woman, 62, Charged After Armed Standoff At Home
35. Carney faces ethics case today
36. E-Mails Show Federal Investigation Concerned U.S.
37. Idiots in Brazil want tougher Gun laws
38. Netherlands shooting: Gunman kills five in Dutch
39. US electronics chain offers free guns to TV subscr
40. ANGER AS GUN LICENCE GIVEN TO A CHILD OF 7
41. Mayor Bloomberg scolds nation for not standing up
42. Obama eyes 'common sense' US gun control
43. Illinois Strips Gun Owners of Privacy
44. FIRST EVER! – Austinites outbid Police in gun
45. Obama: 'I Believe in the Second Amendment'
46. Texas to pass bill allowing handguns on college
47. Gun control divides opinion in Germany
48. Switzerland rejects tighter gun controls
49. Switzerland to vote on gun law reform
50. Obama to Deliver Gun-grabbing Speech Soon

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Global Police state post democratic society

1. THE U.K. POLICE FOR ARE BEING MIND RE-FRAMED BY
2. AMERICA'S SECRET POLICE FORCE
3. Dildos for Justice
4. Oklahoma City parents complain police wrongly
5. Riot police demand toilet breaks every 45 MINUTES
6. Rochester NY Sends 25 Police Cars And The SWAT
7. Cops Strip Search Man & Leave Him Naked For 10 Hrs
8. 10 Met staff worked for News Int
9. Cop's Violent Reaction When his "Authority" is
10. Top murder cops probed over talks with suspect in
11. San Francisco Police (SFPD) shoot and kill a man
12. AMERICAN CONCENTRATION CAMPS [Vd]
13. Australia Commercial Statute Enforcers deploy the
14. Detention centres only for immigrants?
15. Cop appears to take swing at handcuffed suspect
16. Another Photographer Detained in Southern Californ
17. Oregon Sheriff Stands Up To USFS With Class
18. D.C. Firefighters To Help Police Streets?
19. Man Videotapes Himself Getting Detained For Openly
20. Police Officers Kidnaps Child Father Puts Cops in
21. Benefits scam police officer, Colin Burgoyne,
22. Man explains to WFTV News why he loves the Orlando
23. 'Emergency' declared in AZ town over allegations
24. Georgia cops bust 10-year-old girl’s lemonade
25. Charges dropped against Oak Park woman over veggie
26. Mayor Ed Foster Comments On The State Of Emergency
27. DEADLINE LIVE EXCLUSIVE: U.S. Government Builds
28. Phone hacking: Britain's most senior police
29. Fired Portland Police Officer Gets His Job Back
30. ABUSIVE COP CAUGHT ON CAMERA [Vd]

31. How Is This Different From Armed Robbery?: Cops in
32. Put Down Your Rights and No One Needs to Get Hurt!
33. Copwatcher Founder Convicted For Resisting Arrest
34. Man Jailed For Tossing Peanuts, Pretzels On Flight
35. A Hostile Takeover By Police Chief Dictatorship
36. Does SWAT serve its purpose? [Vd]
37. Ex-cop admits helping to cover up Hurricane
38. Jennifer Jones: AZ Police Chief Declares Martial
39. Drew Peterson Indicted on Murder Charge [Vd]
40. Jailed for cashing Chase check at Chase bank
41. “Jordan Miles”
42. New Hampshire Judge Caught On Video Ordering False
43. 'State of emergency' in 'Nazi'-cop town
44. Mayor Claims Quartzsite, Arizona Under Martial Law
45. 82 YEAR OLD HOSPITALIZED AS U.K. THUG COP TASERS
46. "US police as dangerous as criminals" [Vd]
47. Man Arrested for Filming Police from His Own Yard
48. 'Nazi' police 'kidnap' woman at town hall
49. Police inspector in court on child sex offences
50. Cops threaten taking child away so they could

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Agents of Deception

The Unhived Mind Ii > Agents of Deception

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5

1. ARCHIVE OF DECEPTIVE AGENTS
2. Alex "CIA" Jones Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor
3. KNIGHT OF MALTA LEN"COINTEL"HOROWITZ & SHERRY KANE
4. [vid] 100 % ABSOLUTE PROOF of Venus Project
5. David "DIVERSION" Icke agent exposure
6. Brother Nathanel AKA Milton Kapner exposed [Vd]
7. Beware of these Racist Disinformants loose on
8. Roman Catholic Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor CIA Asset
9. Alan Watt
10. Alfred "Temporal Coadjutor" Webre
11. Lindsay "RICH" Williams
12. Is the Truth Movement False Opposition?
13. Webster Tarpley is a Temporal Coadjutor
14. My mesage to the truth movement [Vd]
15. Alternative Media' hard on US; soft on Rome
16. new world order disinformation misdirection [Vd]
17. Leo "Stuart" Zagami
18. Thoughts on Glenn Becks topic
19. Charles Giuliani - exposes the Jesuits with the
20. What is our official stance on Khanverse?
21. Is Freeman an agent?
22. JESUITICAL GREG SZYMANSKI AGENT BACKSTAB
23. Wikileaks Julian Assange triad claw
24. Jordan "Mysteries Coadjutor" Maxwell
25. Noel "Ognir" exposed as a Temporal Coadjutor
26. CIA BARBARA HARTWELL & ROY FRANCIS STEWART/LOVERS
27. Terry Melanson who wrote a book on the illuminati
28. Dan Winter
29. Agent Thomas "Roman" Heneghan & Webb
30. "HAL TURNER WAS A PAID INFORMANT"

31. Drunvalo Melchizedek
32. Is Mark Dice a coadjutor?
33. So Rense is a coajutor? Could be.
34. Is Bob Chapman a disinformation agent?
35. Oliver Stone: Jews dominate media & US policy
36. Mark Philips and Cathy O`brien
37. JOE BLOWMAN: JESUIT-SCHOOLED, CRYPTO-CATHOLIC
38. VIVALDI ATTACKS LEO ZAGAMI [Vd]
39. Michael Tsarion starts trouble because he wants my
40. Has anyone checked out Joseph P. Farrell's work?
41. Project Camelot exposed
42. Max Keiser promotes a limited hangout
43. NY Times Intervews Zecharia Sitchin
44. Charlie Sheen in psychiatric care
45. WIKILEAKS : A CIA Front for Disinformation!
46. KEITH "TRUTH" THOMPSON
47. Dr Leonard "CIA/MALTESE KNIGHT" Horowitz
48. Who can you trust?
49. Isn't almost every researcher etc an agent?
50. The Love Police launch Bluefire Corp

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Precious metal investment & true wealth

1. Gold Transactions with Dealers Over $600 Will
2. INVESTING IN GOLD OR SILVER BULLION ETC
3. LATEST SILVER/GOLD PRICES
4. Hathaway - Gold Breakout & Subsequent Trading
5. Gold Confiscation Act in the Works
6. Is Gold Taking the Stairway To Heavenly Prices?
7. Gold to Rise on $14.3 Trillion U.S. Debt Limit
8. Heirs Lose Fight With Govt to Keep Rare Gold Coins
9. Newedge Sees Gold at $1,800 in 2011, Silver at $70
10. Precious Metals Ready for Big-Time Run as Global
11. Hong Kong Mercantile Exchange to launch silver
12. Gold price climbs to new record on debt uncertaint
13. Negative Interest Rates, Euro Disintegration, Fuel
14. Gold hits record $1600 and silver back through $40
15. Comex silver longs bound higher - but much of it
16. Gold and silver longs increase and GLD value hits
17. How Gold Performs In Deflation
18. Turk - Expect a Tidal Wave of Buying & Short
19. London Trader - Potential for Major Short Covering
20. Russell - Gold Market is Saying Bernanke to Print
21. Jim Sinclair - Gold Milestone at $1,764 Paves Way
22. Ben Davies - Gold to Break Above $2,000 in the
23. Poor Man's Gold is Breaking Out -- Sell Your House
24. Gold Could Hit $1,700 by End of the Year: Analyst
25. Gold Rallies to Record in Best Run Since 1980
26. Central Banks' First-Half Gold Buying Surpasses
27. COMMERCIAL SHORTS LOSING CONTROL ON THE SILVER
28. NH Electric Co. Offers 10K Reward Over Copper
29. They steal supermarket trolleys and wheelchair
30. Next: They Steal Your Gold

31. The Changing Nature of Gold Investing
32. Why a Gold Standard is Wishful Thinking
33. Gold/Silver Market Update
34. Gold & Silver Picking Up Steam Relative to Stocks
35. Gold tallies nine-session gain of nearly $108
36. 11 Silver Investor Mentality Shifts
37. Scrap copper market supply squeezed by U.S.
38. Extreme times for central bankers - a time for
39. China’s Inflation Problem, the Commodities Bubble
40. JP MORGAN - WHY GOLD COULD SOAR FURTHER
41. Silver 'biscuits' taking off in India
42. Return of the Gold Standard as world order unravel
43. The Collapse of Paper Money & the Vertical Move of
44. Hidden Yen Signal & Gold Breakout
45. 'Big Bank claims Gold could see $5,000 and Silver
46. 2011 World Gold Salesman of the Year
47. Italy's 2400 tons of gold: Real target of 'IMF
48. Gold price hits all-time high on US debt concerns
49. Facebook gold game; signs of a bubble or a mindset
50. Gold and silver last assets standing: new economic

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Lower Races

1. Pastor David Manning tells the truth about the
2. EXAMPLE OF THE AFRICANISED MIND [MP3]
3. Lower Race shows why they should stick to fires
4. Jamaican bride dumps new husband 20 MINUTES after
5. Housing official at Lambeth 'squatted in my flat
6. African Jig kills white woman and wounds 2 others
7. LOWER RACES GO CRAZY FOR HOUSING VOUCHERS
8. Photographer mugged by negroes
9. Lower Race destruction at Denny's [Vd]
10. Lower Race Lee claims the debt ceiling problems is
11. Hispanic births overtake immigration in U.S.
12. Minority Feelings and Violent Facts
13. The Knockout Game: Racial Violence and the
14. More lower races rob mobs Dallas style
15. Lower races attack 5 Dubliners in an orgy of 16. Bicycle gang hunted over teenage boy's knife
17. Third World London
18. Lower race flash rob mob [Vd]
19. Head's killer 'robbed man in respect row'
20. Retarded lower race rapes woman twice
21. Teenage girl 'lured two 16-year-olds into rape
22. Perfect example that a lower race will hump
23. UK girls at risk of mutilation abroad
24. Lower race cost the NHS £200,000 and works
25. Father 'raped his six-month-old son and infected
26. Negro rapes unconscious woman, though she was dead
27. Lower race gets upset by Clarkson joke
28. Detroit riots of '67 [Vd] in 3 parts
29. The teenage boy, 16, stabbed to death in London
30. Jamaica would be better off as a British colony

31. UK population sees biggest increase in half a
32. Teens in a mob assault and rob Center City patrons
33. Disproportionate number of child sex offenders
34. Lower race goes crazy at D.C. Caribbean Festival
35. Somalians ponder an escalator
36. U.S. soccer team booed in their own country as
37. Muslim woman sues Abercrombie & Fitch over hijab
38. MIGRANT CHEAT GETS LEGAL AID TO FIGHT FRAUD BILL
39. Peoria Mob: "Kill all white people!"
40. Woman tries to stop 3 negro thieves [Vd]
41. Census shows whites lose US majority among babies
42. Savage nig nog gangs attack white people [Vd]
43. Britain has THIRD WORLD schools riddled with lower
44. The Trouble with Herman Cain
45. NOW BLOODY STAY THERE !
46. One-fifth of men accused of sex grooming are Asian
47. Swedish Racemixing State Propaganda [Vd]
48. Shelby County, TN sees rise in lesbian gang rapes.
49. Another Toronto negro thug makes good
50. 'Find a river to dump her in': Chilling note found

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Homosexuality Agenda

The Unhived Mind Ii > The Homosexuality Agenda

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 7

1. BBC axed gay scene from Torchwood
2. Planned Pedophilia, UN Style
3. Christian preacher arrested for saying homosexuali
4. Appeals Court Temporarily Reinstates 'Don't Ask,
5. Are Indian doctors turning girls into boys for
6. 'I would be compromising my moral conscience if I
7. Payout for gay BBC man who hassled worker
8. Cities move toward transgender health care
9. Kid Meets First Gay Couple
10. Make your mind up! Cross dresser who stole £12,000
11. The U.S. city set to pay gay employees more than 12. Playboy and the (Homo) Sexual Revolution
13. Rio de Janeiro aims to become world capital of gay
14. U.S. court tells military to stop discharging gays
15. Brits are fed up with gay mind-reframing TV from
16. What HAVE they done to Corrie?
17. HOMOSEXUAL GANGSTERS RUN BULLYBOY LONDON'S
18. More lesbian couples getting ‘married’ than gay
19. California set to put US gay and lesbian history
20. Opera North denies homophobia
21. Homophobia persists in India despite court reforms
22. Hunt: Politicians Lag U.S. Voters on Same-Sex
23. Billy Elliot creator protests at 'homophobic'
24. Philip Hensher: The struggle for gay rights is far
25. Church of England to reconsider stance on gay
26. Attack on Heterosexuality is Satanism
27. Cuba's gay pride parade: big debut, few marchers
28. Feds find fix was in on 'study' of homosexuality
29. I Certainly Do Not Want To Wake Up Next To This
30. Feds find fix was in on 'study' of homosexuality

31. THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS "SAME SEX" MARRIAGE
32. Cowell backs Walsh over claims
33. You're all equal here: Swedish school bans 'him'
34. The Financiers Who Helped Back N.Y. Gay Marriage
35. Girls as young as ONE 'forced to have sex change
36. No 'him' or 'her'
37. Scottish Government's controversial Sectarian
38. Lewisham Council and Lewisham Police marked
39. Child "friends" found in sex offenders home, court
40. London council urges gay couples to become foster
41. HOMOSEXUAL LAWS BROUGHT IN UNDER GUISE OF
42. New York state approves gay marriage
43. "Vagina Monologues" - Porn Play Debased Women
44. California to require homosexual/transgender
45. David Cameron urges sporting bodies to help tackle
46. Same-Sex Household Growth 6x that of Hetro
47. Gay tolerance teaching mandatory in Toronto school
48. Make or break for gay marriage as rival camps
49. USDA gay-sensitivity training seeks larger audienc
50. Obama Mulling Endorsement of Same-Sex Marriage

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Mass civil unrest, disobedience, protest and strikes

1. THE PLANNED WORLDWIDE RIOT AGENDA
2. U.K CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE & WAR
3. Libya braces for 'Day of Anger' as protests
4. Bahrain protests: Demonstrators occupy Pearl
5. Malawi riots spread to major cities after troops
6. Syria unrest: Tear gas fired at Deraa funeral
7. NOW YEMEN DEMONSTRATE AGAINST RUTHLESS GOVERNMENT
8. Gaddafi removal not being discussed - Tripoli
9. Half naked protesters attacked by Georgian embassy
10. Irish police arrest eight people over dissident
11. Cairo protest: Police use tear gas on 'day of revo
12. Tunisian police fire in air to disperse rioters
13. Russia criticises US for recognising Libyan rebel
14. Four dead in attack on Chinese police station
15. Fresh protest rallies hit Moroccan cities
16. The fight to rescue the Arab spring
17. Jordan police attack anti-govt. march
18. Sectarian trouble flares at east Belfast's Short
19. Vietnam Forcibly Breaks Up Anti-China Protests
20. Malaysia's leader warned: reform elections or risk
21. Malaysia fires tear gas at protest, arrests 1,667
22. Syria: Thousands protest in restive city of Hama
23. U.S. Defense Secretary In Saudi Arabia To Discuss
24. Oman jails 12 more protesters, bringing total to
25. Chile police tear gas education protesters
26. Party of ousted PM's sister wins Thai elections
27. Gaddafi can retire in Libya under international
28. Anarchy erupts in Greece as austerity bites
29. Will the Revolution Begin in London?
30. "Stolen Elections" Battle Cry of the Color Revolut

31. London strike riots alert: Police on stand-by for
32. Senegal deploys troops after riots over power cuts
33. U2 PROTEST VIOLENTLY STOPPED BY SECURITY AT
34. France urges UN Security Council to speak out on
35. Protesters found in Wimbledon queue
36. Forecast: Spain's protests to 'go global'
37. DEFEND THE RIGHT TO PROTEST JUNE 2011 [Vd]
38. The CIA's Fake "Arab Spring" Becoming A Long, Hot
39. 'Flashmop' protest over Tesco cleaners' pay
40. School walkouts planned to coincide with public
41. Anti-China Protests Intensify
42. China riot informers promised cash and residency
43. China unrest as hundreds protest against Taizhou
44. Prince Charles and Camilla visit Morocco amid
45. Beijing battling protest fires on all fronts
46. Canadian Civil Liberties Crushed by Police in Mass
47. Starving for protest in India
48. Patrick Cockburn: Hopes for democracy fade as
49. Pro-, anti-government protesters fill Iraq square
50. Chicago Police Brace for 'Flash Mob' Attacks

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Vaccination Inquisition

The Unhived Mind Ii > Vaccination Inquisition

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 18

1. Vaccination, The Silent Genocide
2. Murder By Injection
3. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON VACCINES
4. Compulsory Vacc bill "BioShield 2" MUST Be Stopped
5. Prominent Doctor Agrees Vaccination May Increase
6. Bill Gates Wants to Register All New Babies on
7. SIMPLE JAB THAT CAN CURE HEART DISEASE
8. Testimony To Massachusetts Legislators on H1055 &
9. Swine flu breath test would 'save thousands from
10. 131 Children Vaccinated at Gunpoint in Malawi
11. Some pediatricians taking stand for vaccine prg
12. Deadlier Whooping Cough Epidemic Likely Caused by
13. Vaccines as ‘Cluster Bombs’
14. Why are Babies Vaccinated for a STD?
15. A Look Inside The Immunization Dilemma
16. Newly published research in leading journals
17. SHEOPLE FALL FOR MMR VACS OR IS IT A LIE?
18. New focus on vaccines could spell new pharmaceuti
19. 5 year olds targeted for population control with
20. Bill Gates And The SV40 Cancer-Causing Virus
21. Dr. Andrew Wakefield And GMOs
22. GMO-DNA Vaccines And Cytokine Storms
23. Is The H1N1 Vaccine Safe? Shocking Stories From
24. Autism Ideas
25. Vaccines in Pakistan, Drones in Yemen [Vd]
26. Vaccine hope for prostate cancer sufferers
27. Glaxo steps up presence in China with purchase of
28. Massive depopulation push against the Third World
29. NEW POISONOUS VAC FOR MENINGITIS NEXT
30. Fund vaccines for poorest children, pleads charity

31. 20 NEW POISON VACCINES ON THE WAY
32. An Interview About Vaccines with Helen V. Ratajcza
33. GlaxoSmithKline and Crucell to test malaria jab
34. The depopulation agenda continues in Liberia
35. MARY TOCCO - CHILDHOOD VACCINE DANGERS [Vd]
36. TB vaccination for all London newborns proposed
37. 78 percent of Pakistani children with polio were
38. European patient groups call for mandatory vaccine
39. How to Spot a Vaccine Zombie (Satire) [Vd]
40. CDC admits flu vaccines don't work
41. Narcolepsy cases rising after swine flu vaccine
42. New study claims 83 autism cases caused by
43. David Cameron takes on aid critics by making
44. Record Measles Cases In 15 Years, USA
45. HOARD TO BEAT FLU JAB PANIC
46. Bill Gates pushes for 90 percent vaccination rate
47. Autism Leads Rise of Developmental Disabilities in
48. Florida legislature refuses to regulate mercury in
49. Anthrax vaccine: Children targeted for testing
50. FOX NEWS: Feds Paid Millions To Cover Up Brain

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: AIDS and the non-existent hiv fraud

1. HIV FRAUD HIGHLIGHTED IN THESE VIDEOS
2. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF AIDS TRUTH
3. Anti-HIV drug made by GM plants begins trials in
4. The next round of purpose depopulation starts
5. Depopulation by ARV of the South
6. Mothers angry over hospital's HIV test mix-up
7. U.N. wants funds again to commit Genocide under
8. Propaganda claiming to have found a gene in the
9. African Trial of Gilead HIV Drug Stopped as No
10. GETTING CLOSER TO MANDATORY HIV TESTING
11. MERCK FAIL TO COMBAT NON EXISTENT VIRUS
12. HIV drug costs $12,000 a year
13. I won't go quietly [Vd]
14. NANCY TURNER BANKS - THE DEADLY FALSE HIV VIRUS OF
15. TOMMY MORRISON HELPING TO HIGHLIGHTING JUNK SCIENC
16. Speak out, Monsieur le Professeur Montagnier!
17. SIDA NONAMETV MENSONGE TRAITEMENT HIV [Vd]
18. Human Endogenous Retroviruses and AIDS Research:
19. Die Epidemie findet nicht statt - auch nicht in
20. AIDS and homeopathy in Africa [Vd]
21. AIDS - Exposing the myths - a video history [Vd]
22. The "AIDS" Hoax and Gay Men [Vd]
23. Nancy Banks at a conference [Vd]
24. HIV/AIDS and Goethe's Faust: a pact with the devil
25. How I fell victim to the AIDS machine [Vd]
26. Religion, politics & AIDS in Italy [Vd]
27. African population doubled from 400 to 800 million
28. AIDS research significantly confused by Human
29. Hindrances to scientific progress and the failings
30. AIDS, Opium, Diamonds & Empire - Dr. Banks [Vd]

31. Denialism: TheDeath of AIDS [Vd]
32. "Goodbye AIDS! Did it ever exist?" Book launch by
33. Rethinking AIDS Calls for Conference in 2011
34. Over the Rainbow with Marco Ruggiero
35. Global Fund Against Aids cracks down on fraud
36. THE HIV TEST FOR ALL IS NOW STARTING TO COME FORTH
37. Stem Cell Transplant Cures Man in Berlin of Non
38. Segments from the film AIDS Inc [Vd]
39. Leading AIDS Dissident: David Crowe Speaks Out
40. BIOWEAPONRY GILEAD WISH TO REDUCE GAY POPULATION
41. HIV Hoax movie maker to be interviewed
42. Clue to how some 'control' their HIV without meds
43. US porn industry in a crisis over a non-existant
44. More utter propaganda bunkum on hiv being 32000
45. Example of information on your antibodies
46. Pharmaceuticals contributing to AIDS crisis [Vd]
47. HIV vaccines cause 50 percent false positive rate
48. DRUGS TO FIGHT A NONEXISTANT VIRUS IN MOTHERS
49. "Rh-Neg Blood Products Used To Treat HIV/AIDS"
50. AIDS fraud: The Marketing of an Epidemic exposed

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Aerosol Programme

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF CHEMTRAILS
2. Morgellons Disease continues to defeat scientists
3. Geo-engineering: green versus greed in the race to
4. A "Nobel Torsion Message" Over Norway?
5. IHS/MORGELLONS/CHEMTRAILS
6. WEATHER MODIFICATION
7. CHEMTRAIL RALLY 9th July 2011 DUXFORD, CAMBRIDGESH
8. The Olgacom Scandal Explained: the connection of
9. DR GARTH NICOLSON - MORGELLON'S DISEASE [Vd]
10. Dismantle HAARP Immediately!
11. PROOF! PUBLIC LAW 105-85, bio warfare or populatio
12. MORGELLONS : ALTERED BLOOD
13. Electromagnetic Pulse Waves
14. Strange Rolling Cloud [Vd]
15. ES Corporation – The Power of Being Globalist
16. Los Angeles Chemtrail Group Banners the San Diego
17. How to Deal With a Chemtrail Debunker
18. Chemtrails: CBS INTERVIEWS Roxy Lopez: Our side of
19. Morgellons Victim Jumps to Death in Germany
20. The CFR’s CIA Controls Evergreen Air – Interview
21. Michael Murphy Discusses Chemtrails-Geoengineering
22. Ryan Dawson of anti-neocons hates HAARP talk
23. Proof of Chemtrails in 1971! [Vd]
24. MICHAEL MURPHY - CHEMTRAIL SPRAYING OF POISONS
25. What does Bill Gates, Monsanto, mosquitoes, Xe and
26. 1991 game chemtrail subliminals [Vd]
27. WEATHER MODIFICATION A COVERT WEAPON OF MASS
28. NBC -affiliated KMIR Reports on chemtrail/
29. Fox is Marketing 'X-Men: First Class' By Writing
30. Secret Presidential Chemtrail Budget Uncovered,

31. Weather How They Do It [Vd]
32. Dementia is an emerging epidemic
33. Govt defends $10m grant for untested rain-making
34. The real reason for all the dead microbiologists?
35. Toxic Levels Of Barium And Aluminum Found In
36. Zhirinovsky Threatens To Destroy Planet With
37. Chemtrails are Now a deadly Fact
38. HAARP and Earthquakes [Vd]
39. Excellent Video of Chemtrails over Great Yarmouth
40. The Biggest Crime Of All Time
41. Proof of Morgellons Fibers in Chemtrails [Vd]
42. Morgellons: Aerobiology and Toxins [Vd]
43. US Government Takes Down HAARP Website to Conceal
44. HAARP –Chilling Information You Really Need To See
45. Fiber Sensors in Morgellons [Vd]
46. Kandy Griffin of the Morgellons Research Group on
47. Respiratory illnesses causing big problems
48. Morgellons Victim Jumps to Death in Germany
49. Secrets in the Sky Airs on ABC Affiliate in Albany
50. Geoengineering Attacks Plants and Trees in Orange

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Fraud Called Bird Flu

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF TRUTH ON BIRD FLU
2. Federal plan aims to track all livestock by 2009
3. One Wicked Lie Can Kill Billions Around The Globe
4. UPPER RESPIRATORY SYSTEM
5. Japan Is on High Alert as a Virus Infiltrates Bird
6. Cambodian Bird Flu-85% mortality rate
7. Japan to slaughter 410,000 chickens for bird flu
8. S. Korean quarantine officials find dead owls
9. S.Korea reports first bird flu outbreak since 2008
10. H1N1 kills 1, authorities detect 89 bird flu spots
11. 17,000 Birds culled in Germany over Bird Flu
12. Hong Kong Quarantines Bird Flu Woman, Will Check
13. BIRD FLU JUMPS TO PIGS
14. Bird flu detected in one duck in Romania
15. Urgency needed in (bird flu) pandemic preparation:
16. Could Obama’s visit to Krakow spark a bird flu
17. First Vietnam bird flu death in 2010
18. Scientists bioengineer a lethal bird flu & seasona
19. THREAT OF BIRD FLU PANDEMIC HYPED
20. Cannabis to protect you from H1N1
21. Soldiers Get Mass Swine Flu Shots Before Holidays
22. NICOTINE CAN STOP CYTOKINE STORM
23. 100 dead as PNG declares health emergency: report
24. Mass evacuation Billboard! H5N1 warning [Vd]
25. Forced vaccinations, quarantine camps, health care
26. Deadly Dog Flu Spreads
27. A "Dark Winter" for Public Health: Meet Homeland
28. Flu Prevention and Treatment [Vd]
29. Biological Warfare and the National Security State
30. It's time for the BUNKUM on Bird Flu to arise

31. Bringing the "Bio" War Home
32. The Spanish influenza epidemic of 1918 was caused
33. From 2003: 1918 Spanish flu virus being
34. WHO Is Jane Burgermeister?
35. SAMBUCUS NIGRA AND OLEA EUROPAEA
36. Scientists Describe How 1918 Influenza Virus
37. Do Drug Companies Secretly Favor a World Flu Pande
38. Startling New Evidence That The 'Swine Flu' is
39. Copper can boost fight against swine flu
40. The ten points of the Nuremberg Code
41. chlorine dioxide gas against influenza A virus
42. Talking Head on Cspan avoids questions on biologic
43. Silver Lungs
44. Herbal Medicine for ‘flu (influenza)
45. Government POISONS US SOLDIERS with FLU Vaccinatio
46. Homeless people die after bird flu vaccine trial
47. summons I received from Austrian police about Baxt
48. Charges filed against WHO and UN for Bioterrorism
49. Understanding the H3N8 canine flu
50. New York City swine flu case tally could be as

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Chemical/synthetic poisons and toxins

The Unhived Mind Ii > Chemical/synthetic poisons and toxins

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 9

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF ASPARTAME
2. Aspartame / NutraSweet Toxicity Reaction Samples
3. Head of NM resource protection office resigns
4. EPA Drops Tough New Lead Paint Rule In Face Of
5. Morgellons: Terrifying New Disease Reaching
6. The world’s largest human experiment part two: why
7. How Mercury Causes Brain Neuron Damage - Uni. of
8. HIDDEN DANGER FROM ASBESTOS THREATENS 1.8M
9. My baby makes me eat furniture polish
10. Monsanto official Beaten by farmers in India over
11. The world’s largest human experiment part two:
12. Big Coal: Inbreeding, Not Mining, to Blame for
13. Diesel fumes 'increase the risk of heart attacks'
14. Coca-Cola Exposed! Killer Cola [Vd]
15. The worlds largest human experiment: GMOs, Roundup
16. Living in and Through The Poison Century
17. Obesity charity paid £50k in secret by Coca-Cola
18. True fact: A common ingredient in commercial bread
19. Monsanto accused of violating bio-safety rules
20. Processed Meats Declared Too Dangerous for Human
21. 15 Food Companies That Serve You 'Wood'
22. Greenpeace takes on Monsanto over 'pesticides arms
23. Hexane may be lurking in the soy protein found in
24. Acid, chlorine mixed at Ark. plant
25. Chemical in plastic containers makes male mice act
26. Monsanto Raises Forecast as Net Gains 77%
27. Could food-packaging chemical rob men of their sex
28. Action Alert: FDA Releases Draft Guidance on
29. Why guzzling diet drinks could make you FATTER -
30. Feds Refuse To Cleanup Buried Agent Orange That Is

31. Anti-foaming agent found in Chicken McNuggets
32. Agent Orange Barrels Seen Buried In Gainesville's
33. New Bill to Modernize 1938 Regulations that Allow
34. What's Hiding in Your Veggie Burger?
35. 50 Random Facts About . . . Carpet
36. Asbestos: Common Roofing Supply in India
37. Group Says Fire Retardant Not Worth Risk Or Money
38. Europe's top industrial firms have a cache of 240m
39. Feds weigh comments on Monsanto Co.'s proposal to 40. Three Generations of Agent Orange
41. Vietnam begins 1st phase of Agent Orange cleanup
42. Greece: Eurozone ministers set to approve latest
43. Chemtrails Pilot Admits to spraying paid by foreig
44. Symptoms of Chemtrail Spraying
45. Government Releases Partial List Of Chemicals
46. What Dow Chemical Doesn't Want You to Know About Y
47. Food-Container Chemical Added to Carcinogens
48. 6 Real Examples of Food Terrorism
49. The Pesticides and Politics of America's Eco-War
50. New study finds arsenic in chicken

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Fluoride

The Unhived Mind Ii > Fluoride

Pages: [1] 2 3

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF FLUORIDE
2. Fluoridation in UK is now illegal
3. Poisoned Horses Excerpts [Vd]
4. EPA: Fluoride Must be Phased Out
5. Fluoride consumption leads to brain damage, says
6. Symptoms of Fluoride Poisoning
7. Newly published research in leading journals
8. New Study: Fluoride Can Damage the Brain - Avoid
9. The Case Against Fluoride London Ontario [Vd]
10. Fluoride In The Water - a Sinister Way to Dumb Us
11. Leading paediatrician asks for rethink on infant
12. Fluoride: The Hard to Swallow Truth Documentary
13. Footage of fluoride damaging cells and stopping
14. Fears over fluoride plans
15. FLUORIDE GETS THE BOOT FROM CALGARY WATER
16. FREE EVENT : NHF Ireland Presents Dr Paul Connett
17. Australia Drops a Bombshell on Water Fluoridation
18. Documentary exposes fluoride truth: Industrial
19. URGENT: Tell Arkansas Senators to Kill Fluoride
20. Fluoridation: The scam of the century
21. USA admits adding fluoride to water is damaging
22. Southampton water fluoridation was not unlawful
23. National Fluoride Database Launched by USDA
24. WeAreChange Tampa Confronts Commissioners about
25. City resident challenges fluoridation bid
26. Are We Accidentally Medicating Ourselves Into a
27. An Overwhelming Number of Scientific Studies
28. Southampton's fluoridation decision 'unlawful'
29. Feds Say Too Much Fluoride in Drinking Water
30. Calgary fluoride debate delayed to Jan. 26 to

31. Professor Paul Connett: Your Toxic Tap Water [Vd]
32. Fluoride in Water Linked to Lower IQ in Children
33. Blaylock: Fluoride's Deadly Secret
34. CDC and ADA Now Advise to Avoid Using Fluorid
35. Fighting Fluoride
36. Fluoridated Water - The Ultimate Evil
37. Disease in rural China linked to Fluoride
38. News Video Footage Shows Fluoride Toxicity &
39. Death by Fluoride
40. Why Fluoride Should Be Banned From Our Drinking
41. Broke Towns Can't Afford to Drug Constituents with 42. Green Party of Canada calls for ban on the
43. 50 Reasons to Oppose Fluoridation
44. Fluoride: Direct Engagement to Incite Public
45. Study shows fluoride may not help teeth at all
46. Calcium Fluoride vs. Sodium Fluoride
47. City receives citation for not fluoridating water
48. Fluoride varnish to be painted on to children's
49. We Are Change Austin: Don't Drink the Water [Vd]
50. John Moore highlights Fluoride [Vd]

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Cell phones, Microwaves, EMF and Wifi

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON CELL PHONES
2. The Growing Movement Against Electromagnetic
3. WHO: CELL PHONE USE CAN INCREASE POSSIBLE CANCER
4. 5 Ways Your Telecom Company is Screwing You
5. BRING ON THE FLOODS AND DESTROY THE CELLS
6. How just ONE mobile phone can make a plane crash
7. 20 cell phones with highest radiation levels (phot
8. 600 TEXTS TO KEEP TRACK OF CHILDREN
9. MOBILE THREAT TO MEN'S FERTILITY
10. TSA backscatter radiation safety tests were rigged
11. NIGHTMARE OF MUM ALLERGIC TO ELECTRICITY
12. Mobile phones and wi-fi 'should be banned from
13. The potential dangers of electromagnetic fields
14. Why a mobile phone ring may make bees buzz off
15. Climate change 'threatens UK wi-fi connections',
16. Review: mobile phone Signal Boost from Orange
17. Each Time You are Exposed to This Machine, You
18. The young generation are 'addicted' to cell phones
19. GIRL, 11, DEFEATS PHONE GIANTS IN MAST BATTLE
20. Worldwide Electronic Mind Control via 'Cell Phone'
21. Block mobile phones to curb the Mr Bigs in prison
22. Medical Doctors Are Avoiding Airport Naked Body
23. Raised cancer risk for children as soaring numbers
24. Microwave Oven Radiation Test [Vd]
25. Mobile-Phone Use May Affect Brain Activity,
26. How clever cubes tiny enough to hold in your hand
27. O2 plans UK-wide wi-fi network
28. PHONE CHARGER LINK TO FIRE THAT KILLED 3 CHILDREN
29. Channel Tunnel to microwave you to death under
30. Wifi and Tinnitus

31. CELL PHONE EXPLODES INJURING OWNER
32. CELL PHONE DAMAGE TO BRAIN [IMG]
33. Is Wi-Fi frying our brains? Fears that cloud of
34. How Terahertz Waves Tear Apart DNA
35. WIFI IS DESTROYING TREES SAYS STUDY IN NETHERLANDS
36. Secretary of Transportation LaHood: We're looking
37. Lorry driver with 'God-awful hangover' guilty of
38. Graduate killed in horror head-on car smash as she
39. Should You Be Snuggling With Your Cellphone?
40. TEXT-MAD TEENS ARE 'MORE LIKELY TO HAVE HAD SEX'
41. Cell tower radiation harmful to humans
42. Who says men can't multi-task? [Vd]
43. 17,000ft Cell phone towers
44. Study: Laptops with WiFi can cause sperm damage
45. New Book Looks at Connection Between Mobile
46. Texting, talking while driving kills thousands
47. Health: A Cancer Muckraker Takes on Cell Phones
48. Vision And Psychosis
49. Industry study shows brain tumour link to heavy
50. Hidden health risk in mobiles: Phone giants

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The profiting off Cholesterol

The Unhived Mind Ii > The profiting off Cholesterol

Pages: [1] 2

1. DEADLY COST OF LOW-FAT DIETING
2. HUGE RISE OF STATINS SHOWS SHOCK TOLL ON NATION'S
3. Model Miranda Kerr takes 4 tablespoons daily of
4. High Doses of Cholesterol Drugs Raise Risk of
5. Why eating 'light' crisps could make you gain MORE
6. Propaganda against Cholesterol highlighing their
7. Impact of Coconut Oil on Blood Sugar and Diabetes
8. The Eskimo Enigma [Vd]
9. EATING BUTTER AND CHEESE ‘IS NOT HARMFUL’
10. Cooked tomatoes 'as good as statins' for battling
11. INQUISITION AGAINST 55YR OLD+ CONTINUES
12. MARY ENIG, Ph.D. - EAT FAT LOSE FAT [Vd]
13. More Saturated Fat Attacks
14. More Good News on Coconut Oil
15. Some Additives in Vegetable Oils
16. An Example of Junk Science
17. A Response to the National Association of Margarin
18. Saturated Fats and the Lungs
19. Saturated Fats and the Kidneys
20. A New Look at Coconut Oil
21. Cholesterol and Heart Disease: A Phony Issue
22. Cholesterol and Stroke
23. Cholesterol Lowering and Lowfat Diets for Children
24. Cholesterol: Friend Or Foe?
25. The truth about saturated fats
26. Cholesterol drugs could cut clots
27. Cholesterol 'does not predict stroke in women'
28. Health Authorities Want Depression-Causing Drugs
29. Statins 'may cause loss of memory and depression'
30. All Good Cholesterol Doesn't Help Equally Against

31. FULL-FAT MILK AND BUTTER MAY NOT BE BAD FOR US
32. POISONOUS STATINS TO INCREASE DOSAGE
33. Coming soon to Europe: Chewable cholesterol drugs
34. STATIN POISONS NOW PUSHED ON ARTHRITIS PATIENTS
35. Change Dietary Oil and Reduce Your Risk of Disease
36. Heart Disease: Understand the Difference between
37. Child Cholesterol: Lower without Drugs
38. 'Give out statins with junk food'
39. Niacin Increases Good Cholesterol
40. Get ready for forced Cholesterol drugging of Kids
41. High cholesterol in children may drop naturally
42. Saturated Fat is Not a Health Hazard (Opinion)
43. AstraZeneca shares up after winning US court
44. Big Pharma lies about statin drugs finally exposed
45. Brain regulates cholesterol in blood
46. 'Unintended' statin side-effect risks uncovered
47. MORE GREAT STUFF FROM RAVNSKOV
48. An Underactive Thyroid may be Cause of Your High
49. Vitamin B3 beats Big Pharma's Zetia cholesterol
50. Does Cholesterol Really Matter?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Abortion and sustainable development

The Unhived Mind Ii > Abortion and sustainable development

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 14

1. Agenda 21 in New York State - Home Rule and
2. Breast-Cancer Patients Under 40 May Keep Fertility
3. Defect in Sperm Cloaking Protein May Explain
4. Birth control coverage proposed for most health
5. THE QUIET COUP: The implementation of Agenda 21
6. Brain-damaged woman 'would not want to live'
7. Russia’s Medvedev Signs New Law Regulating Abortio
8. Doorstep lectures in U.K. on sustainable travel
9. AGENDA 21 - Woman Exposes Rockefellers Eugenics &
10. Executive Order # 13575: The theft of rural and
11. Global fertility dropping dramatically as UN
12. Share of children in U.S. hits bottom
13. The U.N. and “Livestock’s Long Shadow”
14. Chinese province looks to ease 'one child' policy
15. Cuba’s Population Shrinking, Growing Old
16. Historic Polish bill to ban all abortion clears
17. OREGON SHERIFF STANDS UP AGAINST THE U.S. FOREST
18. 1.3million driven off the road as cost of petrol
19. How your community is implementing AGENDA 21 [Vd]
20. Richard Ehrman: Europe needs to start addressing 21. Court ruling prompts late abortion data release
22. Al Gore's next crusade: in your bed
23. South Carolina & Comprehensive Planning [Vd]
24. ALLIANCE FOR CITIZENS RIGHTS WHAT IS AGENDA 21
25. TV adverts for commercial abortion clinics given
26. India: Rajasthan in 'cars for sterilisation' drive
27. Agenda 21 for lower living standards [Vd]
28. Mother walks free from court after strangling
29. Could food-packaging chemical rob men of their sex
30. Legally killed: 21 dementia victims given lethal

31. BARRY CHAMISH & GUESTS 'U.N. AGENDA 21 AND THE
32. AGENDA 21 [Vd]
33. IVF BABIES ABORTED
34. Dark Past: Michigan sterilized more than 3,000
35. Al Gore, Agenda 21 And Population Control
36. Does The New 'White House Rural Council' = UN's
37. The Pope and U.N. Agenda 21
38. Be Free of Your Rights, Even Liberated From Life:
39. North Carolina Confronts the Ugly Past of Its
40. Outcry in America as pregnant women who lose
41. Just another brick in the wall: UN Agenda 21 in US
42. Pennsylvania County Rejects Agenda 21
43. Al Gore branches out into population control theor
44. ALAN WATT - JUNE 17TH 2011 - THE U.N. AGENDA 21
45. Agenda 21 Indoctrination Going Global at Warp Spee
46. We have a hothouse filled with corn plants that
47. Monsanto, Agent Orange, and Population Reduction
48. Mainers Oppose Agenda 21 and Gateway 1 Corridor
49. Agenda 21 In One Easy Lesson
50. Sex selection and the rise of Generation XY

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Pandemic Flu & Pneumonic Plague

1. URGENT; RFID BRACELET FOR FLU JAB MATRIX [Vd]
2. Herbal Formula against H1N1 Clinically Proven
3. Using Bicarbonate Against the Swine Flu
4. Swine Flu Susceptibility Linked to Arsenic Exposur
5. FLU CAUSES SURGE OF GARLIC SALES IN SERBIA
6. Anticoagulant herbs to fight H1N1 pulmonary emboli
7. THE A/H1N1 HOAX PANDEMIC SCARE TATICS
8. H1N1 S188T Dominant In Southern Hemisphere
9. Contagion Trailer 2011 [Vd]
10. New gonorrhoea strain resistant to all available
11. Lyme Cover Up Rages On
12. Alarming Increase In H1N1 Low Reactors In Japan
13. More nonsense trying to link a monkey virus in man
14. RABIES FEAR AS UK LAW IS SCRAPPED
15. Withheld CDC H274Y H1N1Tamiflu Resistance Sequence
16. U.N. declares rinderpest wiped out worldwide
17. WHO Inconsistent Comments on Japan H274Y Tamiflu
18. BUBONIC SUPERBUG: THE COMING FALSE FLAG PT1
19. Plague Could Worsen With Climate Change
20. S246N and H274Y Tamiflu Resistance In Fatal
21. Potentially fatal infection strikes Joplin tornado
22. Swine Flu Variation Emerges With Power to Resist
23. Half of UK population had swine flu during pandemi
24. Novel Electromagnetic Disease Induction and Its
25. VIRUS KILLS ROYAL SWANS
26. Bolivia reports seven new A/H1N1 flu cases
27. African swine fever may spread to Europe: FAO
28. Winter flu death toll topped 600
29. Flu experts say world poorly prepared to deal with
30. Mysterious illness kills 64 in southwestern Somali

31. CDC Warns Public to Prepare for 'Zombie Apocalypse
32. Outbreak Of Fatal Horse Virus Spreads To Californi
33. CDC Delay On Korean H1N1 Non-Mystery Virus Raises
34. Tragic mother who was put in a coma to save her un
35. Brazil President In Hospital With Pneumonia / Flu
36. In Brief: Two bird flu cases confirmed in Egypt
37. Mexican governor says new H1N1 outbreak came from
38. Mexico Confirms 2 Deaths from Resurgent Swine Flu
39. VENEZUELA CONFIRMS 586 SWINE-FLU CASES
40. H1N1 Swine Flu Is an Artificial Bioweapon : Libyan
41. One dead as swine flu returns to Venezuela
42. NOW THEY WISH TO SCARE YOU ABOUT H2N2 PANDEMICS
43. H1N1 and bird flu virus produce dangerous hybrids
44. Girl, 3, died from swine flu at short-staffed
45. Why I will try to reopen the Baxter case and take
46. WEARECHANGEBRUM-UK ANTI SWINE FLU CAMPAIGN [Vd]
47. ALERT: Seizures Now Reported in Kids Receiving Flu
48. Flu pandemic measures can start late, researchers
49. SWINE FLU VACCINE CAUSING NARCOLEPSY PROBED BY WHO
50. U.K. EPIDEMIC TURNING INTO A GLOBAL PANDEMIC?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Poliomyelitis and the truth

The Unhived Mind Ii > Poliomyelitis and the truth

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON POLIO
2. Polio resurgence casts doubt on global eradication
3. Africa polio eradication scheme launched
4. Polio -- Then, Now, and Forever

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Earth Changes and Scalar biowarfare

1. WARNING! Goodbye U.S Sovereignty... Hello One
2. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON EARTH CHANGES
3. Iron Mountain Blueprint to Tyranny [VID]
4. problem with global warming... it stopped in 1998
5. THE NONSENSE OF GLOBAL WARMING
6. 8.9 JAPAN EARTHQUAKE, TSUNAMI & NUCLEAR DISASTER
7. Bering sea water temperature, headed down
8. Environ-Mentalism: A New Religion for a New Age
9. Mount Etna Erupts, Sixth Time This Year [Vd]
10. Sulawesi Volcano Eruption Interrupts Education of
11. Deep sinkhole opens under woman's bed
12. GOES satellite sees a triple header in the tropics
13. Earthquake hits Uzbekistan, kills 13
14. Mini twister spotted over UK town
15. Jellyfish warning for beach-goers
16. Ecolab buys water management firm Nalco for $5.4bn
17. UPROAR AS BBC MUZZLES CLIMATE CHANGE SCEPTICS
18. National Press Club Debate Christopher Monckton v
19. Latest BP Spill in Alaska Was Foreshadowed in Risk
20. Extreme heat wave to spread across Chicago, U.S.;
21. Scientists Gagged From Interpreting Study That L
22. Los Alamos lab prepares for flooding after fire
23. Indonesian volcano erupts twice in half an hour
24. Tropical Storm Bret Is Moving Northeast Off
25. NY, East May See 100 as Heat Wave Moves In
26. ANOTHER BP oil spill as 4,200 gallons of the black
27. Maritime countries agree first ever shipping
28. "We have to get rid of the Medieval Warm Period!"
29. Small Earthquake Strikes Berkeley Area
30. Green algae covers beaches and the sea in Qingdao,

31. Hail storm damages 40 planes, strands passengers
32. China Oil Spill Six Times Size of Singapore: Govt
33. Corporate Water World
34. Queensland floods and Russian heatwave will be
35. Earthquake Causes River to Disappear in Costa Rica
36. BP Spill Stopped One Year Ago Today - 5,000 Spills
37. UN Climate Body Struggling to Pinpoint Rising Sea
38. “Covert” Operations by East Anglia’s CRU
39. Fukushima cleanup recruits 'nuclear gypsies' from
40. Indonesian volcano erupts
41. Australian PM Gillard confronted over Carbon Tax
42. "Gasland"
43. 1,000-pound whale, second found this week in
44. Missouri River floodwaters taking more farmland
45. State Fracking Rules Could Allow Drilling Near New
46. EcoAlert: A dozen massive volcanoes reaching nearl
47. Dawn craft to circle giant asteroid in first of
48. RAIN TODAY COULD LAST FOR 40 DAYS
49. EARTHQUAKE HITS ENGLISH CHANNEL
50. Wildfire at ex-nuclear test area in Nevada cont

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The famine agenda

1. Monsanto Now Owns Blackwater (Xe)
2. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF FOOD DESTRUCTION
3. CONTRIVED SHORTAGES AND THE NEW REALITY
4. Vandals Destroy 10 Acres Of Big Island Papayas
5. The USDA “Invasive Species” Sham
6. Talk's Fine But Rothschild Can Cut The Food Supply
7. GM Crops Farmer to Farmer – The Truth about GM
8. Use of chemicals 'threaten grain output'
9. Biofuel demand in US driving higher food prices,
10. Grocery price inflation likely to pass 5%
11. U.S. Congress Turns Up The Heat On Genetically
12. GMO Deregulation: An Act of War
13. Aquaponic Food Production for Long Term Survival,
14. UN expected to declare famine in south Somalia
15. Genetically Modified Rice Overview
16. Down on the farm, investors see big potential
17. Outlook ‘worrying’ for Canada’s wheat farmers
18. Drought cripples southern US farms
19. North Korea faces famine: 'Tell the world we are
20. Wealthy Suburbs Not Immune To Hunger Struggle
21. Eco-activists destroy Australia GM wheat crop
22. Organic Spies Find Lies [Vd]
23. Monsanto and Gates Foundation Push GE Crops on
24. Hungary destroys all GMO maize fields
25. First study into GM Atlantic salmon mating reveals
26. Belgian Blues Will Blow Your Mind, These Cows Are
27. Killer Combo of High Gas, Food Prices at Key Tippi
28. Brazilian president announces $19 billion investme
29. Families face £260-a-year surge in food bills as
30. Kan. poultry farm loses 4,300 turkeys in heat wave

31. Drought Spreads Pain From Florida to Arizona
32. Corn Rallies to Highest Price This Month as USDA
33. Alternative Markets, Barter Systems, and Local
34. Wait, Did the USDA Just Deregulate All New
35. Super spud on menu as genetic code is cracked
36. Stop the Prosecution of the Bass Family for
37. Organic Spies Find Lies [Vd]
38. US farmers fear the return of the Dust Bowl
39. Corn, Soybeans Rise as Hot, Dry Weather Threatens
40. LS9 Planning Brazil's Biggest Plant to Make
41. Sugar Surges Most in Nine Months on Dim Outlook
42. Starving North Korea faces suspicious donors
43. BASF Said to Consider Genetically Modified Crop
44. Families face ever tighter squeeze as droughts and
45. Uncle Sam Food History Exhibit Promotes Food
46. Growing A Revolution: America's Founding Gardeners
47. Graziers say they will have to cull thousands of
48. The Seed Bullet and the Seed Shield
49. East African drought 'worst food crisis of 21st
50. Would you eat a two-week-old sandwich?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Ice Age

The Unhived Mind Ii > The Ice Age

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 12

1. Latest Global happenings in the new Ice-Age
2. Robert Felix - Global Cooling [VID]
3. It's official: Territory chill sets record for boo
4. No surprises here: Perth's on another record cold
5. Thousands stranded by worst snows in Bolivia for
6. Montana ultra-marathon race cancelled due to snow
7. Chile's Atacama Desert Hit With Record Snowfall
8. China Coal Consumption Linked To Global Cooling
9. SO MUCH FOR GLOBAL WARMING AS PLANET EARTH GETS
10. IS BRITAIN ABOUT TO PLUNGE INTO A LITTLE ICE-AGE?
11. Deep Snow Delaying Opening of Sunrise Area at
12. Freak cold weather grips southern Brazil
13. DR BILL DEAGLE - SULPHUR DIOXIDE, ICE-AGE AND
14. Chilean Volcano Eruption Could Lead To Climate
15. The myth of the melting ice caps
16. Snow Falling in Colorado on Eve of Northern
17. Sun's Output to Fall ... Leading to a Mini Ice Age
18. Solar cycle may go into 'hibernation'
19. Slideshow of Jupiter Fusion theory...
20. What’s to Be Done With 15 Feet of Snow in June?
21. Summer snow falls on summit of Snowdon
22. Climate chaos: Rare June snow falls in desert
23. Amazing Solar Eruption Video From NASA
24. Hawaii’s Mauna Kea summit blanketed with 3 inches
25. Snow in NW Italy Not happened in 80 years
26. Heavy snows spoil weekend holiday plans in West
27. America’s next disaster: Multiple floods in
28. VILLAGE SNOWED UNDER IN THE HEATWAVE
29. Temperatures Lowest For Time Of Year Since 1940s
30. Calif. drought officially ends after snowy winter

31. Wintry Storm Aims April Fool’s Day Punch at U.S.
32. Wintry Storm Brings Snow, Flight Disruptions to
33. Scotland hit by fresh snow fall
34. HEAVY SNOW HALTS TURKEY AND GREECE
35. ANOTHER WINTRY BLAST IS SET TO PUT SPRING ON ICE
36. Cold water flowing into Gulf may have killed baby
37. NASA To Hold Briefing Today On Missing Sunspots
38. Droughty Beijing embraces largest snowfall this
39. SAN FRANCISCO HAS A RARE 'SNOW' EVENT
40. The latest winter storm thread
41. Blizzard slams northern Midwest states
42. Red Ice Radio - Robert Felix - The Coming Ice Age
43. No sign of spring yet: England shivers under fresh
44. Seven injured after record snowfall causes South
45. Midwest's deep freeze likely to turn into wide
46. South Korea chaos after 'heaviest' snowfall
47. The Snowpocalypse Tsunami? Blizzard Could Send
48. ‘BEAST FROM THE EAST’ ROARS IN WITH MORE SNOW
49. UK WEATHER: GLOW AND BEHOLD, IT’S LIKE SPRING!
50. Cold weather sees insurance claims double to £1.4b

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Unidentified Flying Objects

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF U.F.O
2. UFO Fleet Over Bulgaria - Amazing Footage 2011 [Vd
3. UFOs fly out of giant haboob [Vd]
4. 6 Mind Blowing Ways 'Starship Troopers' Predicted
5. Montauk Project: New Film Takes On Allegations Of
6. UFO close to nasa international space station[Vd]
7. A History of Government Management of UFO Percepti
8. Bogota Columbia UFO sighting [Vd]
9. The (very) secret history of Area 51
10. Will We Really Find Alien Life Within 20 Years?
11. UFO over Toronto [Vd]
12. Rense & Robert Hastings - UFOs Took Control Of Our
13. UFO, 'Star Gate' or just a ballistic missile?
14. Alien Infiltration [Vd]
15. UFO Mothership & Fleet Over London UK 24th June 16. Huge UFO Near Nuclear Missiles Acknowledged By
17. Top 10 UFO incidents in the UK
18. [vid] "Alien Abductions & UFOs — Exposed!" Gary
19. National Geographic - When Aliens Attack
20. Cemetery of giant creatures found in Central Afric
21. Alien encounters 'within twenty years'
22. Disclosure: Rt. US Air Force Col. Ross Dedrickson
23. Are aliens getting less camera shy? UFO's filmed
24. Robert Hastings: Unidentified Aerial Object Sighte
25. 100% Proof The Military Has Alien TR-3B Craft to
26. Area 51: the plane truth
27. There's probably no one out there, at least not
28. Australia’s UFO files mysteriously disappear
29. Is this a squadron of UFOs flying over California?
30. UFO 2011 sightings [Vd]

31. UFO fleet in Russia [Vd]
32. National UFO Reporting CenterSighting Report
33. Flying Orange Orbs Shoot Overhead Of Missouri
34. The Friendship Case (Il Caso Amicizia) [Vd]
35. Searching for Aliens on Kepler's Planets
36. Roswell 'was Soviet plot to create US panic'
37. Astronomers start search for alien signals from 86
38. Nasa Feeds Shows UFO Armada Above Earth [Vd]
39. Multiple UFOs or just more fakery? [Vd]
40. UFO battles captured on video? Not likely, expert
41. Roswell Alien Footage Released HD
42. UFOs ALL OVER THE PLACE [Vd]
43. Supposedly old film of alien [Vd]
44. Every year they get closer: UFO fan hails clearest
45. Japanese UFO lighting up the sky big time [Vd]
46. Mass UFO Sightings reported over Euclid OHIO
47. The strange case of the Dyatlov Pass incident [Vd]
48. THE NSA RELEASES UFO FILES
49. This planetary object next to the sun [Vd]
50. History Channel: Moon Is Hollow Spacecraft From

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Holographic Universe

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF HOLOGRAPHIC UNIVERSE
2. [vid] THE MADNESS OF ILLUSION BEGIN! PROJECT BLUE
3. Does Our Brain Really Create Consciousness?
4. Creativity, evolution of mind and the "vertigo of
5. Crazy Amount of Fort Worth 'Transformers' Explode?
6. Holographic Universe [Vd]
7. Green horse of Cairo Egypt Fraud [Vd]
8. "mind on fire" pic
9. ebook: The secret science of ecstacy
10. Holographic Universe its all illusion [Vd]
11. World’s Most Precise Clocks Could Reveal Universe
12. Is The Universe One Giant Hologram?
13. [vid] Project Blue Beam - Amazing light show, just 14. [vid] Extraordinary Power of the Internet
15. Geocentricity
16. Forensic photoshop challenge!
17. Secrets of Zion - The Einstein myth
18. Quasar Jets timed at 225% the speed of light!
19. Big Bang ..Big BS
20. [vid] Holographic technology in Japan, Godzilla
21. The Oracle of the Tao - The single coin method!
22. Quantum Communication [Vd]
23. VISION FOR A NEW CENTER IN NOTHING
24. THE FUTURE MYSTERY
25. MORE NOTES ON IMAGINATION
26. VISION FOR NEW CENTER IN NOTHING
27. THE CENTRAL THEME
28. IMAGINATION WITHOUT GUILT
29. VISION FOR NEW CENTER IN NOTHING
30. STRAVINSKY, THE RITE OF SPRING, THE REVOLUTION,
31. MIND CONTROL AND MAGIC
32. ANOTHER JACK TRUE INTERVIEW

33. THE BASIS OF INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM
34. AN INTERVIEW WITH JACK TRUE
35. EXPRESSION AND TIME
36. HOW DO SHEEP EXPRESS SELF?
37. BREAKING OUT OF FIXED ASSUMPTIONS
38. THE HIGHER ORDER
39. NOW VERSUS FOREVER
40. BEYOND THE OLD WORLD OF MANIPULATION
41. SOLUTIONS FROM ABOVE
42. FINANCIAL CRISIS, OLD WORLD
43. THE SECRET BEHIND THE SECRET

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Latest health news updates

1. U.S GOVERNMENT STUDY LINKS MOUSE VIRUSES TO
2. Delicensed Stephen Barrett, Quackwatch.com Founder
3. How I cured long term Chronic Eczema problems
4. NAKED PSYCHIATRY: DEPRESSION HYPOTHESIS COLLAPSES
5. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF LATEST HEALTH
6. Bird Flu Fear Politically Timed For Iatrogenocide
7. THE "NEW DISEASE" OP AND THE GULLIBLE
8. Drug firms 'hype up diseases to boost sales'
9. Modern Health Care System is the Leading Cause of
10. UPERIOR HEALTH PROTOCOL - BY 2TUFF 14/7/6
11. THE MEDICAL OP---PLANET EARTH
12. No Liability for Beetles in Baby Food
13. NYT Launches Attack on Supplement-Protecting
14. Third of Citizens Obese in 12 States, Agency Says
15. Babies fed home-cooked food from birth are 'more l
16. Mozart died at 35 'because he didn't get enough
17. Diet is Key to Spiritual Advancement
18. Irradiated pet food endangering pets health and
19. Teenagers who eat with their parents are up to 35%
20. Do tea, coffee drinkers have lower risk of MRSA
21. Science with real bite: Full set of teeth grown in
22. Sex Parasite Is Most Common in Women Older Than 40
23. FDA unleashes end game scheme to outlaw virtually
24. Tests in Leicester show silver helps kill bacteria
25. PUPILS TO GET A £100K FOOTPATH LINKING SCHOOL TO
26. ITS ALL ABOUT CHERNOBYL !
27. FDA now admits breast implants only last 10 years
28. YOUNG FACE LIVER THREAT
29. Eating blueberries helps build strong bones
30. Woman hospitalised with hepatitis after drinking

31. Bacteria From Dutch Poultry Linked to Superbugs in
32. HOPE FOR ANTI-AGEING PILL AS ‘ELIXIR OF YOUTH’
33. NHS faces 'diabetes time bomb'
34. Obesity 'is higher among non-smoking women'
35. 50-somethings who are 'fitter than in their 20s'
36. Working more than 40 hours per week increases
37. Sugar: The Bitter Truth [Vd]
38. 7 surprising things you're not supposed to know
39. Diabetes rate 'double that of 1980'
40. Once Rare, Infection by Tick Bites Spreads
41. Is 'Big Food's' Big Money Influencing the Science
42. 'Catalyn'.. Wholefood Rip-Offs And Chiropractors
43. Type 2 diabetes in newly diagnosed 'can be reverse
44. My dishwasher is trying to kill me! Deadly bacteri
45. More new mothers are opting to breastfeed UK data
46. U.S. soldier 're-grows leg' after pioneering injec
47. diatomaceous earth
48. Lyme Disease Symptoms: Key Facts About This
49. Bad British diet is putting bones at risk of
50. 30% of Vitamins are defective

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Liver cleansing flush

1. r. Richard Schulze Liver 5 day Cleansing/Detox
2. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON LIVER FLUSHING
3. William Donald Kelley Liver Flush - Cleanse
4. The HULDA CLARK Liver Flush instructions
5. Got Insomnia: Perhaps You Need a Gallbladder Clean
6. liver flush and my personal testimony
7. Spring Tips for a Happy Liver
8. HEPATITIS C: The 'Phantom virus'
9. Detox Your Liver with These Natural Herbs
10. Is 24-hour lighting putting us on a path to
11. Ten Alternative Plants that Cleanse the Liver
12. Liver flush and kidney problems
13. Healing Your Liver with TEA
14. A live Liver Flush removing stones [VID]
15. Bild Duct Volume
16. British Water Might Be Laced With Drugs

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Hydration and Salt

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF WATER & SALT
2. High Blood Pressure by Dr.Batmanghelidj
3. Rheumatoid arthritis pain by Dr F.Batmanghelidj
4. Don’t be Deceived by the Crusade Against Salt
5. Interview with Dr. Gerald Pollack [Vd]
6. Consuming Less Salt Doesn’t Lead to Lower
7. Vitiligo
8. Heart Disease Deaths Four Times Higher With Low
9. Big Berkey gravity-fed water filters are a top
10. Avoid the Soda: Water Consumption is Necessary for
11. Drinking water before meals helps dieting, says
12. Avoid and Treat Dehydration during the Dog Days of
13. This Common Beverage Can Spike Brain Damage,
14. Five Reasons You Need More Water
15. Prevent Asthma and Allergy Symptoms Naturally
16. Why Himalayan Pink Crystal Salt is so much better
17. Enjoy the Benefits of Hot and Cold Water Therapy
18. Vitaliser Plus [Vd]
19. Steam Water Distillers
20. British children drink only half recommended
21. Dr Len Horowitz LiveH2O Concert
22. Ocean Plasma

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Ozone and Oxygenation

1. Much Ozone information by Gaylene
2. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON OZONE
3. Jim Humble's MMS
4. Ozone Therapy in the blessed isles of albion [Vd]
5. Flood Your Body with Oxygen
6. FDA declares war on ozone generators; seizes
7. Ozone and teeth
8. Ozone Therapy Documentary
9. Ozone Therapy for the eye
10. anti Cancer protocol with MMS
11. Ozone and TCM protect the liver
12. The FDA Continues to Suppress Ozone Therapy
13. MMS1 and MMS2 Vs. Ozone and Hydrogen Peroxide
14. Hulda Clark Ozone For Health
15. The Lost Tapes [Vd]
16. Ozone Therapy For Chronic Diseases [Vd]
17. Queens Raids Prompt Alert on Homemade Explosives
18. William F. Koch, Ph. D., M. D.
19. Why injecting oxygen into tumours 'can kill cancer
20. Natural bleach 'key to healing'
21. UBI--Irradiating Blood For Infections
22. Oxygen therapy benefit in autism
23. Hydrogen Peroxide Healing Protocol by Craig Oxley

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Electro-healing

The Unhived Mind Ii > Electro-healing

Pages: [1] 2

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON ELECTRO-HEALING
2. How to RIFE properly!
3. Tooth Infection Frequencies
4. Healing Energy by Jon Barron
5. Dr. James Oschman Discusses Earthing or Grounding
6. Blood Electrification _ Colloidal Silver [Vd]
7. SERGE LAKHOVSKY USING A MWO IN PARIS [IMG]
8. Konrad's use of the MOLECULAR ENHANCER
9. David Wolfe speaks on the Zapper [Vd]
10. The Bob Beck Protocol [ORIGINAL] [Vd]
11. More Scientific Evidence for Zappers
12. Which blood electificator is the best
13. LED Man and his products including Xmas sale
14. Lakhovsky Multiple Wave Oscillator original device
15. Dr Bob Beck on PSYCHOTRONICS [Vd]
16. Healing Machines - Vortex Energy [Vd]
17. Cancer is an Electrical Disorder [Vd]
18. Original Lakhovsky Multiple Wave Oscillator [Vd]
19. Lakhovsky Multi Wave Oscillator [Vd]
20. U.S. Psychotronics Associations - Multi Wave
21. Depression can be treated with electromagnets
22. Revealed: The £120,000 'Lung Zapper' against
23. WHY SHOULD WE GROUND THE BODY TO EARTH?
24. Heat wrap pad
25. Allergy Free Living - Spring Pollens [source code]
26. Frequency Foundation Workshop - Las Vegas 10-11
27. Disgusting Video,one of Royal Rife's equipment
28. Cranial Electrotherapy Stimulation (CES) Provides
29. Medical Mafia Hits Another Health Freedom Provider
30. Frequencies Disrupt Cancer Cells

31. Brain Cancer Zapper [Vd]
32. Carcinogenesis: Stopping it with electronic medici
33. machine uses soundwaves to shatter cells
34. Device spells doom for superbugs
35. Rectal cancer tumour destroyed by ultrasound
36. Tribute to Dr. Hulda Clark [Vd]
37. Electronic Medicine Workshop - Kauai 4-6 Jan 2010
38. The Beck Protocol [Vd]
39. Royal Rife: Cancer Cure Genius Silenced by Medical
40. Malaria Machine
41. Parasites: New Findings
42. Cancer Frequencies: Finally a Clinical Trial
43. Dr. Hulda Clark Passed Away on Sep. 3, 2009
44. Coping: With Scenars and Beyond
45. Medical spy ware: How Russian KGB technology is
46. Killer parasites' genes decoded
47. New Medical Research Show Rife Frequencies Kill
48. Jim Folsom Sentencing July 13 2009 in San Diego
49. Can a blast of light really kill breast cancer?
50. Could a zapper in your undies banish period pain?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Urine Therapy

The Unhived Mind Ii > Urine Therapy

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF URINE THERAPY
2. Urine Therapy in The Animal Kingdom?
3. Bear Grylls Drinks his own Urine
4. Urine Therapy
5. URINE & UREA Therapy
6. Shivambu Gita
7. ALL HUMAN BEINGS HAVE DRINKEN THERE OWN URINE
8. 5th.World Congress Urotherapy, In Guadalajara

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Fasting

The Unhived Mind Ii > Fasting

1. Fasting 'could lower your risk of heart disease
2. Benefit from Calorie Restriction and Intermittent
3. Man claims to have had no food or drink for 70 yrs
4. Fasting for Detoxification and Weight Loss
5. Juice Fasting Leads to Easy Weight Loss
6. Calorie Restriction Diet Once Again Proven to
7. Proof mounts on restricted diet
8. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF FASTING

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Herbal medicine

1. CRAIG OXLEY'S ULTIMATE HEART TONIC
2. CRAIG OXLEY'S ULTIMATE MALE SEXUAL TONIC
3. CRAIG OXLEY'S ULTIMATE ADRENAL TONIC
4. OXLEY TWO HERB COMBO TINCTURE FIGHTING
5. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON HERBS
6. Dr. John R. Christophers "Mucusless Diet"
7. SLIPPERY ELM GRUEL - WEIGHT GAIN & SURVIVAL
8. "INCURABLES" Program by Dr Schulze
9. POTASSIUM BROTH
10. The "COLD SHEET" Treatment
11. Super Tonic Formula by Dr. Schulze
12. Cod Liver Oil: The Number One Superfood
13. The Updated Eye Cure Formula.
14. WHY A GREEN BREW COULD BE JUST YOUR CUP OF TEA
15. HERBAL REMEDY'S NAGGING RELIEF TO THE HENPECKED
16. Cinnamon may help prevent Alzheimer's
17. Far out: Magic mushrooms could have medical
18. Dr. Mark Sircus: Magnesium and Radiation Protectio
19. lymes disease
20. Herbal Remedies Offer Hope as the New Antibiotics
21. Fears that EU rules on herbal medicines may put
22. WHY I PREFER FRESH PLANT TINCTURES – FOUR REASONS
23. ANH-Intl responds to THMPD disinformation in UK
24. VOTE NOW TO SAVE YOUR HERBAL MEDICINE NO TIME TO
25. The Man and His Mission Sebastian Kneipp
26. Manuka honey 'could help fight superbugs'
27. Herbal Tonic For Radiotherapy? Gingko Biloba Tree
28. Could a pill made from olive leaves help beat
29. TEA TIME? MORE GO FOR HERBAL
30. Foraging for Rose-hips [Vd]

31. Combating radiation via natural herbs
32. WENDY WILSON (HERBALIST) - HORMONAL PROBLEMS AND
33. WENDY WILSON (HERBALIST) 'METABOLISM & THE COLON
34. WENDY WILSON & DR REBECCA CARLEY - HERB TALK RADIO
35. PROTECTING OUR VISION NATURALLY - WENDY WILSON
36. Cayenne Pepper is the King of Herbs
37. Spice drug fights stroke damage
38. HERBAL TEA SALES SOAR 60 PER CENT
39. Health Benefits of Dandelions
40. Fish Oil
41. Green tea could protect the brain from Alzheimer's
42. Color Me ‘Buddha-ful’
43. Medicinal plant 'fights' Aids
44. Michael Morris looks at the German corporate media
45. GARLIC -THE SUPER POWERHOUSE-
46. Doctor's dandy idea leads to a promising cancer
47. Coconut Oil is the Antiviral of Nature
48. THE Rh FACTOR
49. Ginger effectively relieves even severe muscle
50. More Evidence Cinnamon Helps Control Blood Sugar

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Cancer

1. THE BEAUTIFUL TRUTH [MAX GERSON] [Vd]
2. Dying to Have Known [Vd]
3. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON CANCER
4. Lung cancer rates are still RISING in women but
5. Cancer rate rising in middle-aged
6. The 'super tomatoes' fortified with minerals that
7. Health charity says four in 10 people will get
8. VITAMIN A COULD HOLD KEY TO A KILLER CANCER
9. Unprecedented FDA vote declares Avastin, the
10. Three hours in the sun a day 'can halve breast
11. CALCIUM SUPPLEMENTS ‘HALVE THE DANGER OF SKIN
12. Study confirms safety, cancer-targeting ability of
13. Global Rise in Cancer Cost $300 Billion in 2010
14. Glue targets cancer cells, prof says
15. Despite Industry Pressure, Government Cancer
16. The Great Cancer Hoax: The Brilliant Cure the FDA
17. U.K. CANCER RATES CLIMB
18. Scientists cure cancer, but no one takes notice
19. 2 YR OLD BOY CURED OF BRAIN CANCER WITH MARIJUANA
20. PCD drug against Cancer is NOTHING NEW!
21. MISTLETOE FIGHTS CANCER
22. Cancer patients in London rate their hospital care
23. Radiation exposure chart admits cancer radiotherap
24. Experts concerned by variations in colon cancer
25. Strawberries 'may help prevent cancer'
26. CARROTS MAY HOLD KEY TO KILLING OFF TUMOURS
27. Student who 'hated the sun' dies of skin cancer
28. Cannabis and Cannabinoids against Cancer -NCI
29. Both parents with advanced Cancers
30. Cancer-blocking herb to be taken off shelves in

31. IT SOUNDS NUTTY, BUT PECANS BEAT CANCER
32. Rise in PSA protein 'not prostate cancer sign'
33. Cannabis ingredient 'restores taste buds and lost
34. Mammograms Fail to Find Tumors in Breast Cancer
35. Surgeons May Be Operating Too Much When Breast
36. NATIONWIDE SCREENING FOR LUNG CANCER
37. Breast Cancer Surgery to Remove Extra Lymph Nodes
38. Delaying Hormone Therapy Lowers Risk of Breast
39. Doctors eye chemicals for rise in child cancers
40. Why is Denmark the cancer capital of the world?
41. Alcohol and poor diet linked to UK breast cancer
42. Human Bacteria In The Production Of Human Cancer
43. Common weed petty spurge 'could treat' skin cancer
44. BREAST CANCER RISK SOARS FOR BRITISH WOMEN
45. Lemon (Citrus) a miraculous product to kill cancer
46. CANCER SUFFERERS TO BE GIVEN THEIR DANGEROUS CHEMO
47. Breastfeeding benefit to cancer survivors, says
48. Abortion Has Caused 300K Breast Cancer Deaths
49. SOYA BEANS MEANS A NEW WAY TO GUARD AGAINST CANCER
50. Oestrogen 'may fuel oral cancer' in young women

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Iodine therapy

1. ARCHIVES ON IODINE
2. Worrying levels of iodine deficiency in the UK
3. KELP benefits
4. Concern Develops for Iodine Levels in Australian
5. iodine
6. Iodine prevents breast cancer

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Dr John Ray Christopher

The Unhived Mind Ii > Dr John Ray Christopher

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON DR JOHN CHRISTOPHER
2. Dr. CHRISTOPHER VIDEOS!! GONE?
3. Red Clover combination tea

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Edgar Cayce

The Unhived Mind Ii > Edgar Cayce

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON EDGAR CAYCE
2. The Causes and Treatment of Cancer

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Ask The Unhived Mind

1. NEW RULES OF THIS FORUM
2. MASSIVE ARCHIVE FROM ASK CRAIG 1
3. Another sufferer of Eczema
4. Worried about mole
5. I always sweat?
6. Cancer worries
7. Tameness & bad memory.
8. Washing food : fruit/vegetable etc
9. Ionise water
10. Have you read- "The China Study"
11. Varicose veins
12. COCONUT OIL
13. urinary / tract infections
14. What is your take on Marfan Syndrome?
15. Iron Overload and Copper Deficiency
16. Cyst above the right ovary
17. What's the truth about Vitamin D3?
18. Swollen feet and ankles
19. Heart, Kidneys and Cancer issues
20. Computer Radiation
21. Fluid buildup in lungs
22. A good Spleen herb to take?
23. Violet Ray Device
24. Avioding Endodontic Therapy
25. baby has high temperature
26. Fever and green nasal discharge
27. Fluoride Free Toothpaste
28. LUPUS: HOAX OR REALITY
29. Radiotherapy fears
30. My sister has bad breast cancer

31. Cadmium
32. larrea tridentata (shegoi)
33. Olive Leaf extract
34. My ear has become really sore
35. Stomache trouble
36. i have the flu.... yet again
37. Parkinson's disease
38. What to do about tight muscle pain
39. UHM what is your opinion on Basil Earle Wainwright
40. Down syndrome
41. Oxycontin
42. Marijuana
43. Amalgam fillings
44. UHM what is your opinion on Clay Poutices for
45. Bronchitis or Bronchiolitis
46. garlic aftertaste help
47. Anxiety/PanicAttacks
48. Parkinsons
49. Problems with my fingers
50. a lot health issues

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Medical Quackery & Death

The Unhived Mind Ii > Medical Quackery & Death

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 21

1. Rockefellers Own All Drug Companies [Vd]
2. An unprecedented 1 in 66 Americans is a diagnosed
3. Police investigate three deaths at Stepping Hill
4. Pharmageddon: Prescription drugs are killing
5. Doctors told us to abort our little girl as she
6. Outsourced: Clinical Trials Overseas [Vd]
7. Over-stenting doc loses medical license
8. One in ten adults depressed: Prescriptions quadrup
9. Hospitals warned over Deep Vein Thrombosis (DVT)
10. Death doctor can keep working
11. Lung transplant patient dies after 'height error'
12. Painful deaths of two mothers sparks hospital prob
13. Prescription Drugs Cause More Overdoses in U.S.
14. Heart Procedure to Clear Arteries May Be Misused
15. Big Pharma's Latest Shady Ploy to Sell Depression
16. Doctors miss life-threatening brain tumour and cys
17. Dentists overusing expensive veneers 'after
18. Nottingham City Hospital doctor 'exposed himself
19. The anti-depressants epidemic: One in three women
20. GPs pocket millions from secret taxpayer-funded
21. Taking ibuprofen every day 'can raise the risk of
22. GREAT ORMOND STREET HOSPITAL (MASONS) COVER UP OF
23. IVF procedure 'may increase risk of Down's syndrom
24. Anti-smoking drug raises risk of heart problems,
25. Gastric band agony as 25-year-old woman's stomach
26. 25 DIE EVERY WEEK FROM SIDE EFFECTS
27. Hawaii Woman Blames Drug For Fracture [Vd]
28. Errors Occur in 12% of Electronic Drug Prescriptio
29. Doctor has heart attack whilst talking on heart
30. Hearing may be end of road for breast cancer drug

31. Doctors in U.S. Turning Away Insured Patients on
32. 'Poison doctor' Edward Erin struck off for abortio
33. Busted! Big Pharma epilepsy study rigged to push
34. Pfizer Drug Tests Kills 11 Children In Nigeria [Vd
35. Bristol-Myers, AstraZeneca Diabetes Drug Shows
36. IMPLANT MAY END MIGRAINE MISERY
37. High Court limits generic companies' duty to warn
38. Glaxo to pay Idaho $600K over faulty drugs
39. Common medicines for elderly linked to death
40. Bristol Diabetes Pill Faces Safety Hurdle After
41. Former nurse, 67, 'starves to death' after gastric
42. Supreme Court Will Review The Patentability Of
43. Woman, 26, died of DVT after NHS walk-in centre nu
44. GSK launches inquiry after China bans Augmentin
45. J&J Unit Recalls 16,000 Bottles Of Risperdal For
46. Hospital faces legal action over newborn baby
47. NHS WILL ONLY SAVE MY LIFE IF I START TO CLAIM
48. Concerns over North Staffs hospital doctor sparks
49. Woman sends two cats to the vet when one falls ill
50. Drug firms go online to test and sell medicines

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The destruction of the National Health Service

1. Hinchingbrooke NHS hospital poised to be privately
2. Use your loaf! NHS officials pay £32 for gluten-
3. Scrapping child heart surgery at Royal Brompton
4. Long hospital waits 'on the increase'
5. Call to cut hospital beds and improve dementia
6. ‘Close hospitals down to avoid scandals caused by
7. NHS chiefs warn of rising hospital waiting times
8. Addicts given £14,000 of heroin a year on the NHS
9. ELDERLY AT HIGHER RISK IN HOSPITAL
10. Public to pay for NHS alterations
11. You can't join NHS post-natal depression support
12. Major investigation into care at London NHS trust
13. Doctors reject revised NHS plans
14. Failing NHS complaints system needs overhaul, MPs
15. A £2 packet of pasta was costing the NHS £50
16. Newborn baby died after 61-hour delivery delay at
17. NHS changes: GPs want 'more concessions'
18. More than half of GPs planning to retire in next
19. The ultimate NHS indignity: Body of hospital patie
20. Cameron outlines changes to NHS reforms after
21. NHS FACES NEW CRISIS AS MIDWIVES LEAVE TO JOIN THE
22. Fifth mother dies at 'worst maternity unit in the
23. Health Secretary Andrew Lansley: funding crisis
24. HOSPITAL STAFF TOO BUSY TO FEED ELDERLY
25. Failing hospitals could be put into private hands
26. Wales facing 'worst health cuts'
27. Outrage as maternity centre at new hospital lies
28. Two London health trusts are to axe almost 300
29. NHS is safe behind my red lines, says Cameron as
30. NHS reforms 'will destroy services'

31. Family of man who died of thirst in hospital told
32. London hospital patients denied crucial blood clot
33. Top London hospital to cut 360 posts after fall in
34. Re: the Office of the Prime Minister in Canada and
35. NHS rewards bosses after 1,200 'excess' deaths at
36. NHS hospitals in England face tough efficiency
37. Hospital 'failed' fall pensioner sent away with
38. 'Radical' NHS shake-up may jeopardise patient care
39. Kings Fund: Waiting times in England at 3yr high
40. Stafford Hospital: Former health authority boss
41. Trafford General Hospital 'could be privatised'
42. Hospitals spend £15million on interpreters
43. NHS bosses see their bonus pot double in 5 years
44. Half of axed NHS posts will be doctors and nurses
45. Loss of NHS jobs will hit patients says nurse chie
46. Hip and knee patients facing 'cruel' delays
47. Lansley recognises 'genuine' concerns about NHS
48. HOSPITALS ‘ARE CLOSING BEDS AND AXING JOBS TO
49. Former NHS director dies after operation is
50. Lack of intensive care equipment 'causing deaths'

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Traditional Chinese Medicine

1. Examine Your Stool
2. Why GPs should be prescribing acupuncture to
3. Astragalus herb against Flu (HUANG QI)
4. THE BLACK SESAME [HEI ZHI MA]
5. THE RED REISHI MUSHROOM (LING ZHI)
6. Chinese mushroom found to have powerful anti-aging
7. Red Dates [JUJUBE DATES]
8. Elderly people should take up T'ai Chi, say academ
9. The Wondrous World of Chi (Qi) Power [Vd]
10. Mother's verdict after tearaway son, 14, is given
11. Traditional Chinese Medicine and Our Christian Fai
12. Gynostemma
13. Polyrachis Ant
14. Chicken Eggs in Chinese Medicine
15. BLACK BONE CHICKEN
16. TAI CHI...THE KEY TO A HAPPY OLD AGE
17. TCM, Spleen, Stomach and body weight
18. Chinese Naturopathy [Vd]
19. Tai Chi prevents elderly falls say geriatrics soci 20. Beijing Traditional Chinese Medicine published the
21. Tea Recipes
22. THE LANULA
23. Acupuncture can help treat lazy eye
24. BLEEDING PERIPHERAL POINTS: An Acupuncture Techni
25. Qigong master projecting his chi energy [Vd]
26. Acupressure Provides Many Benefits to Dogs and
27. Pumpkins Remedy Seasonal Ailments
28. Chinese Herbal Medicines for the Common Cold
29. CHINESE MEDICAL DIETARY RECOMMENDATIONS
30. Build Strong Teeth From the Inside Out

31. Couples increasingly seeking out alternative
32. Tai Chi beats stretching in fibromyalgia study
33. Heart failure breakthrough: placebo controlled
34. Human Avian/Bird Flu and Chinese medicine
35. TCM take on swine flu - It's pathogenic heat, cold
36. Big Natural Chinese Herbs will Overcome Death
37. Iraqi doctors run out of pharmaceuticals, start
38. Thyroid Disease: A Natural Perspective. An
39. Use of Traditional Chinese Medicine in Breast
40. HAIR LOSS REMEDIES FROM TRADITIONAL CHINESE
41. Tea Tips: Episode 09 "Pu-erh Tea"
42. The Five Viscera System
43. Shaolin Medicine for Arthritis and inflammation
44. TEAS FOR GENERAL HEALTH
45. Chinese Medicine Treatment for Excessive Sweating
46. Chinese Medicine Treatment for Sweaty Palms & Feet
47. Chinese Medicine Treatment of Excessive Underarm
48. Chinese External Herbal Remedies for Insomnia
49. Enjoying natural springs to promote health
50. Herbal Foot Baths to Promote Health

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Quack Pharmaceutical Complex Profits from Death

1. Shire hits a 'high' on hyperactivity drug hopes
2. Drug selectively dampens bad memories
3. Merck Profit Beats Analysts' Estimates on Diabetes
4. Faith investors turn on pharmaceuticals companies
5. Eli Lilly Profit Drops 15% on Costs From Diabetes
6. Drugmakers Poised to Report Biggest Profit Drop
7. GW signs Sativex cannabis-based drug deal with
8. Glaxo offers NHS rebate if latest cancer drug fail
9. Novartis Plans to Cut 1,400 Drug Sales Jobs in U.S
10. £600m cancer drug fund announced
11. Sellouts: How CNN's Sanjay Gupta Became Big Pharma
12. Pfizer buys King Pharmaceuticals for $3.6bn
13. China Demand to Help Increase Global Drug Sales to 14. Shrinking U.S. Biotechnology Sector Lost 25% of
15. Merck shares hit after drug denied approval
16. Malaria-Medicine Exports Will Boost Ipca Labs'
17. Boston Scientific to Buy Asthmatx for $193.5 Mln
18. Edwards $30,000 Heart Valve Can Triple Revenue,
19. Arena Shares Post Record Drop After U.S. Panel

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: General information

The Unhived Mind Ii > General information

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 48

1. PAST UHM SCROLLTEXTS
2. Past UHM Banners
3. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF GENERAL TOPICS
4. Unhived Mind ATTACKED by SMU Dept of Physics
5. UHM MAY GO QUIET FOR A WHILE
6. ONLY POST IN THREADS ALREADY CREATED ALL OTHER
7. UHM IS NOW FULL -DO NOT POST-
8. TEST
9. Storied US military hospital to close its doors
10. Largest uranium reserves found in India
11. World's biggest McDonald's for London 2012
12. Shuttle Atlantis heads home for farewell
13. Boeing sees orders fall sharply
14. Tsunami Watch Issued For Hawaii
15. Indian company produces flat-pack, $700 houses
16. World's oldest ritual discovered
17. Five people swept over Indian waterfall [Vd]
18. Something Big Is Going On At Giza
19. Russia averts 'major' terror act near Moscow:
20. Russia grounds about 200 planes, cutting off
21. 64 missile warheads stolen from Romanian train
22. Solar plant keeps working, even after sundown
23. Plane's nose wheel fails on landing
24. Dog bites a shark [Vd]
25. Care homes hell: Seven in 10 neglected elderly
26. Pemex Says 80 Oil Wells Shut Down Yesterday Due to
27. ShatteringDenial Website
28. Big fire inTV tower in the Netherlands: Tower
29. New Solar Cells Can Now be Printed on Paper
30. Manhattanhenge: New York's 'magical' astronomical

31. BP to redevelop North Sea oil fields
32. Mumbai's diamond sector badly affected by bomb
33. Drug shortages slam patients, health workers
34. First Demonstration of Time Cloaking
35. MOTORCYCLE SPHERE OF DEATH GOES WRONG
36. Delta Jets Collide at Boston Airport
37. First biofuel passenger flight
38. What other conspiracy forums/sites are like this?
39. Many missing as Russian boat Bulgaria sinks on
40. Drug shortages slam patients, health workers,
41. Singing Mice Made Via Genetic Modification
42. China raises undersea ante
43. China's new high-speed trains halted again
44. China halts drilling at leaking oil platforms
45. BIGFOOT CROSSING
46. Simple Harmonic (and non-harmonic) Motion
47. Researchers who have been have kill?
48. How Seawater Can Power the World
49. TOUR DE FRANCE 2011 CRASH CAUSED BY IDIOT DRIVER
50. Why is it so hot in Hong Kong at this time

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: True-Christianity

The Unhived Mind Ii > True-Christianity

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 7

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON THE AV1611 ENEMY OF THE JESUITS
2. Daniel's 70 Weeks
3. The Real Conspiracy: the Jesuit infiltration of
4. [vid] New Versions Are Vatican Versions
5. [vid] Simplicity In Christ (2 Corinthians 11:3)
6. [vid] False Apostles (2 Corinthians 11:12-13)
7. [vid] Hell is Real - The Lake of Fire - Eternal
8. got a rebuttal
9. Kent Hovind Creation Seminar
10. [vid / mp3] Bryan Denlinger - Is the Antichrist a
11. Im starting to go to church each sunday
12. John Metcalfe Audio Sermons
13. [vid] Bible Blender Boneheads
14. [vid] Presuppositional Apologetics - Kerrigan
15. The Pool at Bethesda
16. [vid] How Big Is God (Psalm 139)
17. EARLY CHRISTIAN CHURCH HISTORY PROVES
18. Habakkuk 2 Prophecy
19. Dr Jack Hyles
20. [vid] William Lane Craig - Where do Objective
21. Are Catholics Christians?
22. [vid] May 22nd and the Campingites
23. [vid] Answers To Your Bible Version Questions
24. [vid] Alexander Scourby Error
25. Jesus of Nazareth
26. Rick Warren, promoting globalism on all levels
27. [vid] Effective Evangelism in an Evolutionised
28. [vid] The Gospel According to Twitter [Portuguese
29. What If There Is No God?
30. The Christians were mistaken about Jesus'

31. [vid] testimonies
32. If Only I Could See a Miracle, I Would Believe
33. Geocentricity
34. What makes you happy?
35. [vid] 2011 NIV and the Mark of the Beast
36. I will give the bible another chance
37. MARTHIN LUTHER AND TYNDALE DID NOT BELIEVE IN HELL
38. 2 Testimonies and the True Gospel
39. KJV containing the Apocrypha
40. Christian persecution [website with daily updates]
41. [youtube / mp3] The Real Jesus vs.The Counterfeits
42. [youtube / mp3] Cults and Isms: True or False
43. Gay revision of the Bible to go on sale
44. Long Journey
45. The Good Test
46. [vid] Voices of the Cross
47. The Seventh Day Abomination
48. The Bible, Religion or Spirituality
49. Messianic Judaism
50. Mankind is Devolving - The State of Society

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Joseph Vialls

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF JOE VIALLS
2. France, Russia, Germany Responsible for 9-11
3. Monstrous Massacre in Fallujah
4. General Custer 'Captures' Downtown Baghdad
5. CIA False Flag Attack on Kuwaiti Shopping Mall
6. Beslan School Massacre ..a Mistaravim black op
7. The Mistaravim - Special Forces at Port Arthur
8. Zionists nuke Egypt's Taba Hilton Hotel ..Beslan
9. Home Run: Electronically Hijacking
10. The Terrorist Factory, by Joe Vialls
11. The Strategic Brains Behind 9/11
12. Stranger Than Fiction
13. Political Vermin Use Myths Mayhem and Mind Control
14. Bush Ordered Attack on Sgrena and Calipari
15. Potassium Deficiency Scam
16. Did New York Orchestrate The Asian Tsunami
17. Tesla’s Electromagnetic Pyramids
18. Who Really Murdered Holly Wells & Jessica Chapman?
19. Mossad Bombs Paradise Hotel in Mombasa
20. Micro Nuke Used in Bali “Terrorist” Lookalike
21. The Hypnotic Foot Grenade
22. Electronically Hijacking the WTC Attack Aircraft
23. The Falklands Alternative
24. Russia Proves 'Peak Oil' is a Misleading SCAM!
25. Proof that Vaccines caused the Gulf War Syndrome
26. Did America Sabotage Airbus Flight 961?
27. El-Al'eda Terrorists Strike Paris Airport Terminal
28. Bye, Bye Bye Boeing Bye Bye
29. Ryongchon - Nuclear Trigger for American DRAFT?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Phil Schneider

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON PHIL SCHNEIDER
2. PHIL SCHNEIDER SPOKE OUT IN 1995 ABOUT A COSMIC
3. Phil Schneider's Final Message!

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: William Cooper

The Unhived Mind Ii > William Cooper

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON WILLIAM COOPER
2. William Cooper amazing lecture [Vd]
3. Hour of the Time collection
4. William Cooper's Mystery Babylon Series, Transcrib
5. Hour of the Time audios + 3 interviews
6. William Cooper called Alex Jones a Jesuit infiltra
7. It's not the Jews
8. MJ-12 or PI-40 Committee
9. Chapter 2 Cooper's book, "Behold a Pale Horse"

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Sherman Skolnick

1. Broadsides hosted by Sherman Skolnick (Videos)
2. EXPOSURE OF BRIAN MULRONEY AND PAUL MARTIN
3. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF SHERMAN SKOLNICK

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Fritz Springmeier

The Unhived Mind Ii > Fritz Springmeier

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON FRITZ SPRINGMEIER
2. UPDATE: Fritz Springmeier BACK IN Prison [vd]
3. Fritz Springmeier Back in Jail (Updated)
4. How Fritz Springmeier Was Framed
5. Fritz Springmeier Released From Prison
6. A new letter from Fritz?
7. Exposé or Lies?
8. Did Fritz's wife Patty have a role in his setup?
9. Fritz Springmeier's Research [VIDS]

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Christopher Story

The Unhived Mind Ii > Christopher Story

1. CHRISTOPHER STORY ASSASSINATED BY MI6 -JUL 14 2010
2. COMPLETE CHRISTOPER STORY ARCHIVE (.RAR)
3. One year since Christopher Story died
4. Leo Wanta / Christopher Story
5. Christopher Story's work now continued
6. Email correspondence with Christopher Story
7. Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor Christopher Story
8. The killing of Social Security
9. Gehlen, Hoeher, Deutsche Verteidigungs Dienst
10. Christopher Story - The European Union Collective
11. BRITISH POLICE RAID PRIVATE SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES
12. MADAME WU DEMANDS U.S.TREASURY PAYMENT TODAY
13. WHITE HOUSE ORDERS CONTACT WITH STORY TO CEASE
14. EDITOR THREATENED BY TERRIFIED U.S. OPERATIVES
15. TONY BLAIR AND BEN BERNANKE ARRESTED [Vd]
16. Who was Christopher Story?
17. E.U CORRUPTION - CHRISTOPHER STORY [Vd]

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Orgone

The Unhived Mind Ii > Orgone

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE ON ORGONE/CHI/QI/PRANA
2. Orgonite deceptions
3. Stop Chemtrails - Build a Howitzer [Vd]
4. PVC CLOUDBUSTER [Vd]
5. kundalini and orgone linked possibly
6. Orgone pendants
7. Orgone Generators, Orgone Accumulators, and Karl
8. Orgone Adventures!
9. Man's Right to Know video
10. Reich and Gov't helped to make rain in Tucson.
11. Helicopter circling my house, Orgone, Orgonite
12. The Orgone Healer [VID]
13. Orgone Question

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Conspiracy video footage

The Unhived Mind Ii > Conspiracy video footage

Pages: [1] 2 3 4 5 … 18

1. One World Religion controlled by ROME
2. Sherry Peel Jackson - Breaking The Invisible
3. Robert Felix - Global Warming - Global Cooling
4. Total Onslaught
5. The Man Behind the Mask by Prof Walter J Veith
6. Dr Rivera & Jim Arrabito - JESUIT GOVERNANCE
7. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF CONSPIRACY VIDEOS
8. Edward Griffin - Sensitivity Training
9. Iron Mountain Blueprint to Tyranny
10. Wal Thornhill NPA Lecture [Vd]
11. Universe - The Cosmology Quest [Vd]
12. Rense & Jordan Maxwell - Democracy Now Equals
13. Rense & Celente - Stop The Debt Sellers [Vd]
14. BARRY CHAMISH INTERVIEWS GEMMA BLECH JULY 13TH
15. BARRY CHAMISH WITH MIKE BENOIT - LIBERTARIAN FOR
16. HAS NASA BEEN LYING TO YOU ABOUT COMETS [Vd]
17. $5000 Free Energy device by the Australians [Vd]
18. MOSSAD Moore on Capitalism [Vd]
19. WEBSTER TARPLEY - GENOCIDAL WORLD ECONOMIC
20. DR BILL DEAGLE - JULY 15TH 2011 - YELLOWSTONE
21. The Secret Government: The Constitution in Crisis
22. RAGE AND OUTRAGE ARE WAITING [Vd]
23. YOU ARE ARE BEING PROGRAMMED! TURN OFF THE TV!
24. Bloodline of the Antichrist
25. The Hidden Faith of Our Founding Fathers - Full
26. BOB CHAPMAN - 14TH JULY 2011 - A MARINES
27. Rage & Outrage Are Waiting [Vd]
28. Depopulation - Elenin - Haarp - End Times [Vd]
29. Lindsey Williams Returns:Confessions of an Elitist
30. March of the Bonus Army (1932) [Vd]

31. Money and inflation [Vd]
32. BARRY CHAMISH SPEAKS WITH MURRAY EINWOHNER
33. Rick Ross Says His Masonic Lodge is Second Nation
34. Reggae Band Steel Pulse's Song About the Illuminat
35. Satanic Priest Explains Pop Culture Brainwash
36. Rense & Chiappalone - Terminal Madness in the End
37. Metal Gear Solid : Rising - Illuminati
38. Subliminal Messages - Toys, Disney Famous Cartoons
39. Cross-Generational Programming
40. 2pac, terror, the illuminati
41. Fulford America Lesson [Vd]
42. WEBSTER TARPLEY - JULY 9TH 2011 - DEBT CEILING IS
43. Illuminati Revealed on Disney
44. DR BILL DEAGLE - JULY 8TH 2011 - POLE SHIFT &
45. GETTING PISSED ON BY THE POWER ELITE [Vd]
46. JERSEY'S CULTURE OF FEAR [Vd]
47. ATLANTIS AND THE MASONIC CONNECTION [Vd]
48. PARTNERS IN CRIME [Vd]
49. Kings Fornicate With Whore Of Babylon [Vd]
50. Zion's Watchtower, 1914,FED, Antichrist Federal

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Health video footage

1. Codex Alimentarius [FULL] By Ian Crane
2. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF HEALTH VIDEOS
3. DR. DINO PRATO - SUCCESSFUL CANCER TREATMENTS
4. Big pharma drugging pets & personal responsibility
5. Pam Killeen Interview with Garth Riley [Vd]
6. PAM KILLEEN - 22 MAY 2011 - ADDICTION: THE HIDDEN
7. Dr. Corey Gold: CODEX ALIMENTARIUS [Vd]
8. Dr Jonathan Wright - Food and Vitamin Cures [Vd]
9. ALERT!!! EU Ban On Traditional Herbs and Medicines
10. Shattering the Myth of incurable Disease
11. HEALTH VIDEOS TO GET BEFORE THEY GONE FOR GOOD
12. DAVID WOLFE'S EARTHING EXPERIMENT [Vd]
13. THE CURES HIDDEN FROM YOU BY BIG PHARMA [Vd]
14. HOW TO TACKLE RADIATION THE MUNG BEAN WAY
15. Dr Donsbach Leisure World 1 Good Fats Bad Fats [Vd
16. Guided healing and cleansing meditation
17. HOW TO DEAL WITH RADIATION - WENDY WILSON &
18. Dr Richard Schulze - Creating Powerful Health
19. INTERVIEW WITH DR STANLEY BASS ON PROPER NUTRITION
20. Thomas Levy Talks To Vitamin C Can Cure Coalition
21. Vitamin C curing Swine flu and UFOs UNCENSORED
22. BARRY CHAMISH DISCUSSES THE MEDICAL MAFIA DISEASE
23. SUGAR : THE BITTER TRUTH
24. Entheogens, Pineal, DNA
25. The Art Of Health - Gary Null
26. Natural Allopathic Principles
27. Magnesium Chloride Eye Treatments
28. Magnesium Chloride Deficiency - No Test Required
29. Magnesium Chloride Oil Terapy
30. About MagnesiumForLife.com

31. Magnesium Chloride Usage and Dosage for Autism
32. Nebulizing Magnesium Chloride
33. Jeffrey M. Smith: The GMO Threat
34. Krill Oil superior for health
35. When Never EVER to Use Fish Oil
36. Gary Null Activism Bio [Vd]
37. Paul C Bragg on food, nutrition and health.
38. Interview with Suzy Cohen about new book Diabetes
39. Rick Simpson's CRUSH CANCER WITH HEMP AND TRUTH
40. High Fructose Corn Syrup & Liver Disease
41. Make Yourself Heart Attack Proof
42. Dying to Have Known
43. TheAntiTerrorist on H1N1
44. David Wolfee
45. Charlie Fox and Kyolic Garlic
46. The Swine Flu Vaccination Hoax - Explained
47. Naturopathic Doctor Raided by Health Canada & RCMP
48. Restricting Our Freedoms - Shawn Buckley About
49. The Dangers of Aspartame (Artificial Sweeteners
50. The Dangers of Trans Fats, (partially) hydrogenate

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Conspiracy audio files

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF CONSPIRACY AUDIOS
2. MARTIN LUTHER - MASTER OF DECEIT
3. Dr Max Younce
4. Noise of Thunder Radio with Chris Pinto
5. 2004 interview with Dr. Colin Ross - mind control
6. Katherine Albrecht and Greg Nikolettos - March 31
7. William Ramsey - “Occult Hollywood”
8. Peter Levenda: Secret Space Program & NASA's Nazis
9. J Weidner - Kubrick's Odyssey & Saturn Brotherhood
10. The Occult Philosophy - by Michael A. Hoffman II
11. Tracy Twyman - Alconomics, Money & Magic
12. Bill Cooper Audio
13. Sandra Uttley - Dunblane Unburied
14. Aaron Franz - Philosophical Roots of Transhumanism
15. Old Shows with The Informer aka i-man
16. George Bush Sr. smiling at JFK Assassination
17. J. Corbett - Geopolitics, Eugenics & Depopulation
18. Recent interviews with Andrew Johnson
19. Lucifer, the God of Rock n Roll
20. LEO ZAGAMI ON ESTONIAN NATIONAL RADIO - DEC 5 2010
21. The Rising NWO Beast, USA Nazis & TSA Insanity
22. Jesuit Fessio interviewed
23. Scott Johnson Audios
24. Anton Mifsud - Malta's Ancient Megalitic Temples,
25. Jordan Maxwell :
26. NBC Tells the truth about
27. Google CEO: "We Know Where You Are
28. Barry Chamish w/Stan Monteith 27 Sept 2010
29. Israel is a Nazi Enterprise/Experiment
30. WHAT ZIONSTS DON`T WANT YOU TO SEE

31. WHAT THE ZIONISTS DON´T
32. Scary global warming propaganda video
33. Rowan Williams says the AngliCAIN church has...
34. The jesuit plan see it the V For Vendetta
35. Goldman sachs, Citibank to open banks in Iran
36. Nigel Paul Farage - harangues
37. Excellent Tom Friess and Bill Hughs
38. Lenon Honor & the Celtic Rebel discuss Hollywood's
39. Robert Newman - The Rise of the Modern Music Indus
40. Wallace Thornhill - The Electric Universe
41. 1933 Zionists sign a deal with Hitler
42. EU President Admits One World Government is Here
43. Audio: Live Interview With Thomas Anderson About
44. Secret Weapon: The "Faggot Bomb"
45. Interview with an Ex Satanic Elite
46. "Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave"
47. We Became Spies When the Media Betrayed the Truth
48. MISGUIDED MEDUSA MONARCHS CONTINUED TO FOMENT A
49. HIDDEN GENOCIDE AGENDA OF THE PAPACY EXPOSED ALONG
50. EPISODE HENEGHAN-WEBB INTEL. HOUR 19 8 2009

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Health audio files

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF HEALTH AUDIOS
2. Various anti-Vaccination audios
3. Interview with Daniel Vitalis of SurThrival.com
4. Charlotte Gerson speaks out about the cancer
5. MP3: Ex- CIA officer, Philip Giraldi, on AIPAC and
6. Dr Carley's show Sept 12 2009
7. Dr Carley's Interview by the C.L.A
8. Dr Carley's - Animal Vaccines
9. Dr Carley's - Antibiotics
10. Dr Carley's - Cancer
11. Dr. John Sarno - Must hear
12. Swine Flu Hoax Exposed
13. Dr. True Ott - Swine Flu
14. Fall Forced Vaccinations - Ingri Cassel of vaclib
15. Project Camelot interview Dr Carley on H1N1 Vac
16. David Christopher - General healing knowledge
17. Jeff Rense and Bill Deagle Swine Flu
18. AIDS infection myth

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Eric Jon Phelps

1. MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF ERIC PHELPS AUDIOS
2. New Eric Jon Phelps Audio
3. ERIC JON PHELPS & COUNT VIVALDI III - THE CATHOLIC
4. ERIC PHELPS & COUNT VIVALDI - CRIMINAL MARIO
5. ERIC PHELPS & VIVALDI III - GREEK DEFAULT &
6. ERIC PHELPS & VICTOR PERRILO - JESUITS MASTER
7. ERIC JON PHELPS & COUNT VIVALDI III - WESTERN
8. EJP's phone number
9. ERIC PHELPS - COMMUNIST DESTRUCTION OF NATIONS/
10. Islam & Roman Catholicism: The New Crusades -
11. ERIC PHELPS & COUNT VIVALDI III - POPE'S VISIT TO
12. ERIC PHELPS - BIBLICAL FEMININE SUBMISSION [Vd]
13. The Destruction of the Woman & Hillary Clinton [Vd
14. When is EJP coming back?
15. ROME'S GREAT LIE; THE INTERNATIONAL JEWISH CONSPIR
16. FILTHY CHRISTMAS BY ERIC JON PHELPS [Vd]
17. ROMAN EMPIRE POWER OVER CHINA & THE FAR EAST
18. Eric Jon Phelps - Doctrine of Devils - Feminism
19. Which network is Eric`s radio show on?
20. ERIC JON PHELPS' FINAL EDITION POWERPOINT
21. ERIC JON PHELPS HAS ENDED HIS BROADCAST
22. Eric Jon Phelps exposes Jesuit-CIA Alex Jones
23. Eric Jon Phelps on Sarah Palin
24. Eric Jon Phelps on his business with a jewish
25. Nelson Turner and Eric Jon Phelps
26. Hopefully Gneiss will be posting Eric's audio here

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Unhived Mind

The Unhived Mind Ii > The Unhived Mind

Pages: [1] 2

1. THE DARKER SIDE OF 9/11 & THE FRENCH CONNECTION
2. THE UNHIVED MIND - THE DEPOPULATION AGENDA [Vd]
3. THE TRUTH ON DOMINIQUE STRAUSS-KAHN, J.P MORGAN
4. ALERT - TEMPLAR ATTACK ON THE MIDDLE EAST FROM
5. THE UNHIVED MIND - COUNTER ATTACK AGAINST HOROWITZ
6. THE ROTHSCHILD'S ARE TO SCION WITH THE POWERFUL
7. Leuren Moret - Google And The Push To Control Your
8. THE GLOBAL OIL CONSPIRACY - DR. DAVID KELLY & THE
9. ENGLISH TAKE OVER OF NAZI U.K. AND THE ARREST OF
10. WORLD WAR III - ISLAM VS ZIONISM - KOLVENBACH AND
11. THE 12TH CRUSADE - ROMANISM VS ISLAM - WORLD WAR 3
12. THE UNHIVED MIND - VIRTUAL WORLD, RADIATION &
13. THE UNHIVED MIND - MI6 KILLED BIN LADEN NOT U.S.
14. THE ORDER FROM THE RAGING CHAOS OF 2011 & BEYOND
15. JAPANESE EARTHQUAKE THE STUXNET NUCLEAR WAR & THE
16. JAPAN EARTHQUAKE WAS NUCLEAR TERRORISM BY THE
17. THE ASSASSINATION OF AMERICA AND THE CONSPIRACY
18. Question?
19. JAPANESE EARTHQUAKE 2011 - WHO'S REALLY BEHIND IT?
20. O.S.S SECRET PLANS TO NUKE JAPAN FAULTLINES TO
21. BLACK NOBILITY TO COLLAPSE ECONOMY VIA
22. U.K. POPULACE ARE BEING CONDITIONED FOR FOOD
23. VATICAN BEHIND CODEX ALIMENTARIUS BANNING OF HEALT
24. CANCER REVERSAL TONIC WATER BY CRAIG OXLEY
25. ALL UK LEGISLATION PASSED SINCE 2000 IS NULL
26. Olive Leaf Extract Audio by Craig Oxley 8-Nov-2009
27. LEO ZAGAMI - OCCULTIC ALL SEEING EYE OF THE TWO
28. REAL REASON FOR THE ECONOMIC DEPRESSION & ILLNESS
29. SATAN'S SOLDIERS & THE SUPPRESSION OF EARTH'S 30. SHIMON PERES CONFRONTED FOR HANDING JERUSALEM TO

31. CHRISTOPHER STORY ASSASSINATION & THE NAZI, AFRICA
32. Old Europe Power Currently Over The World & The
33. HAMID KARZAI THE AGENT OF THE KING OF JERUSALEM
34. Chemtrails subliminal on X-Factor TV Show
35. THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC IS CRUMBING RAPIDLY
36. YOUTUBE CENSORS MY WORLD WAR III W/10,000 HITS
37. THE ROOTS OF THE GLOBAL GREEN CLIMATE WORSHIP
38. THE FALKLANDS ALTERNATIVE - WAR FOR WORLD CURRENCY
39. VATICAN HOFJUDEN - BY THE UNHIVED MIND 2 OCT 2008
40. VATICAN ALEX "CIA" JONES BY THE UNHIVED MIND
41. Kiss Goodbye to Free Internet News and Email
42. THE UNHIVED MIND MULTIPLE INTEL #2 [AUD] 11.2.2k9
43. THE TRUE 13 BLOODLINES OF THE ILLUMINATI [Vd]
44. JESUIT ILLUMINIZED OCCULT [Vd]
45. THE JACKSON 'EGYPTIAN SUN' RITUAL?
46. TONY BLAIR AND BEN BERNANKE ARRESTED [Vd]
47. THE POPE AND HIS TEMPORAL 'ECO FRIENDLY' POWER
48. Swine Flu - Whats happening and WHAT TO DO
49. VATICAN CRUSADERS - BY THE UNHIVED MIND 21.9.2008
50. THE UNHIVED MIND MULTIPLE INTEL #3 [AUD] 02.3.2K9

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

14f28

PLEASE MOVE OVER TO THE NEW SITE:

http://z15.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mind_III/

18 JULY 2011 .. GOLD HITS NEW HIGH OF $1604 AS SILVER RAISES TO $40.38 PER OUNCE. THE OVERT DEPRESSION IS ON, ALL READY FOR THE COMING COLLAPSE BETWEEN OCT 2011 - OCT 2012! THE LIKES OF WHICH HAS NEVER BEEN WITNESSED BEFORE WORLDWIDE, ARE YOU READY? MENTALLY? YOU SURE? GET HARDENED NOW AND PREPARE ASAP.....

THE UNHIVED MIND
This site is dedicated to the truthsayers assassinated such as William Cooper, Jim Arrabito, Alberto Rivera, Joe Vialls, Brian Downing Quig, Phil Schneider etc.

KING 'FARNESE' CARLOS
World War III
The Unhived Mind

THE KNIGHTS OF MALTA
DEUTSCHE VERTEIDIGUNGS DIENST
HOMELAND
DEPARTMENT
AGENCY
CARPATHIA HOSTINGS INC CYBERNAZIS

CARDINAL RATZINGER
And his Oslo Accords
UHM

C.I.A (D.V.D) PREPARE TO
TESLA ATTACK U.K
EXERCISE ORION
SEPTEMBER 2010
UHM

WTC nuclear demolition
Dimitri Khalezov

WATCH OUT MIDDLE EAST
KING JUAN CARLOS IS
IN RUSSIA 24/25 FEB

LATEST INFO

The Unhived Mind Ii->WORLD CONTROL->The Ptolemaic Papal Nobility Bloodlines

NEW TOPIC NEW POLL

The Ptolemaic Papal Nobility Bloodlines

		Topic Title	Topic Starter	Replies	Views	Last Action
		THE ULTRA POWERFUL MAXIMUS FAMILY (Pages 1 2 3 ...8) [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]	TheUnhivedMind	109	35,425	9th July 2011 - 11:37 AM Last Post by: Eboard10
		Otto Von Hapsburg dead Holy Roman Empire lineage	Ken Ardel	4	387	9th July 2011 - 10:53 AM Last Post by: Eboard10
		ULTRA POWERFUL FARNESE FAMILY (Pages 1 2 3 ...6) [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]	TheUnhivedMind	81	22,282	11th May 2011 - 06:30 AM Last Post by: Insurgent
		Boarding the LHD "Juan Carlos I" April 5, 2011	Maximiliano	1	608	14th April 2011 - 11:58 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		MEDICI BLOODLINE (Pages 1 2)	Maximiliano	19	3,027	2nd April 2011 - 06:56 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano

		ULTRA POWERFUL ALDOBRANDINI FAMILY (Pages 1 2 3 ...4) [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]	TheUnhivedMind	49	19,143	28th February 2011 - 05:08 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		PALLAVICINI BLOODLINE (Pages 1 2)	soulinspiration	20	3,209	17th February 2011 - 01:21 PM Last Post by: 14april2000
		House of della Rovere	14april2000	5	1,068	15th February 2011 - 10:02 PM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		THE BORGIA (2006) MOVIE	Maximiliano	1	718	12th January 2011 - 08:41 PM Last Post by: soulinspiration
		THE BORGIAS 2011 Jeremy Irons as Rodrigo de Borgia	Maximiliano	0	386	9th January 2011 - 10:50 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		BERNARD OF CLAIRVAUX, THE TRUE FOUNDER OF THE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR	Maximiliano	1	497	5th December 2010 - 04:34 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		IHS ACRONYM CONNECTION TO THE COLONNA FAMILY	Maximiliano	0	851	29th November 2010 - 02:56 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		THE ARCANA ARCANORUM RITE OF ATLANTIS	TheUnhivedMind	7	4,412	26th October 2010 - 11:52 PM Last Post by: soulinspiration
		Apex of the Power Structure facade of Catholicism	treadingserpents	10	975	6th October 2010 - 09:53 AM Last Post by: Phazon
		The 13 Real Illuminist Gray Masters? Witch role do play in the bigger picture	14april2000	4	1,786	5th October 2010 - 05:00 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Developer Geoff Palmer has built 3 PAPAL named apartment complexes in downtown LA!	TheUnhivedMind	2	447	1st September 2010 - 01:55 PM Last Post by: michael
		Trieste, Italy	TheUnhivedMind	8	1,584	10th August 2010 - 08:46 AM Last Post by: Halvor
		Villas of the Papal Nobility	14april2000	0	815	12th July 2010 - 11:17 PM Last Post by: 14april2000
		ALDEBARAN - MICK JAGGER RITUAL DANCING [THE ALDOBRANDINI WORSHIP OF TAU]	TheUnhivedMind	5	1,057	6th July 2010 - 03:41 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Illuminati bloodlines by Fritz Springmeier (Pages 1 2) Question about the bloodlines	yveloudon	19	1,554	6th July 2010 - 02:28 PM Last Post by: yveloudon
		The Cybo family	14april2000	2	483	3rd July 2010 - 08:50 AM Last Post by: 14april2000
		CRISTOBAL COLON(NA)?	Maximiliano	8	994	3rd July 2010 - 06:50 AM Last Post by: 14april2000
		Other powerful Roman families (Pages 1 2)	GMNL	25	5,767	30th June 2010 - 02:44 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		GAETANI Chapel and SATAN	TheUnhivedMind	0	592	28th June 2010 - 05:17 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

		Princess Susana von Radic Imperial Royal Highness of Croatia	14april2000	2	745	20th June 2010 - 11:35 PM Last Post by: 14april2000
		THE JESUIT COUNCIL BY DON VITTORIO [Aud]	TheUnhivedMind	5	1,156	19th June 2010 - 06:17 PM Last Post by: 14april2000
		THE VATICAN GENEALOGY	Maximiliano	0	703	13th June 2010 - 10:51 PM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		THE TRUE 13 BLOODLINES OF THE ILLUMINATI [Lk]	TheUnhivedMind	0	1,037	13th June 2010 - 12:14 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Underground of Rome [Vd]	TheUnhivedMind	4	1,499	11th June 2010 - 09:24 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Are there any good books about Papal black family?	Gangrenous Khan	1	695	29th May 2010 - 01:35 PM Last Post by: 14april2000
		LIST OF THE PAPAL NOBILITY	TheUnhivedMind	5	1,574	24th May 2010 - 09:14 AM Last Post by: 14april2000
		BORGO SANTO SPIRITO (Pages 1 2 3)	TheUnhivedMind	43	19,855	21st May 2010 - 05:59 PM Last Post by: soulinspiration
		ROMAN BLOODLINES OTHER SOURCES, OTHER INFO	soulinspiration	0	607	18th May 2010 - 05:11 AM Last Post by: soulinspiration
		The Aldobrandinis/papal elite families on facebook	Gangrenous Khan	14	926	18th May 2010 - 02:58 AM Last Post by: soulinspiration
		SMOM & PAPAL NOBLE CHRISTOPHER LEE ACTOR WITH THE MOST OCCULT TITLES EVER	map	14	2,067	18th May 2010 - 12:23 AM Last Post by: soulinspiration
		Great Video on the Papal Bloodlines	AntiSionist	4	1,854	7th May 2010 - 10:33 AM Last Post by: kalongi
		ULTRA POWERFUL BREAKSPEAR FAMILY (Pages 1 2) [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]	TheUnhivedMind	17	10,987	19th March 2010 - 02:56 AM Last Post by: Dan81xd
		BLOODLINE-LED ROYAL CHIVALRIC ORDERS	soulinspiration	0	853	13th February 2010 - 01:35 AM Last Post by: soulinspiration
		House of Savoy	TheUnhivedMind	4	796	29th January 2010 - 11:01 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		BASILICA SANCTAE CRUCIS IN HIERUSALEM [THE COMING TOGETHER OF THE PAPAL LINES]	TheUnhivedMind	8	1,459	29th January 2010 - 04:14 PM Last Post by: map
		Was Eusebius the father of the Catholic Church Papel Bloodline?	14april2000	0	640	20th December 2009 - 10:23 AM Last Post by: 14april2000
		CERRATO FAMILY & THE BLACK POPE	TheUnhivedMind	4	1,145	19th December 2009 - 03:25 PM Last Post by: 14april2000
		THE ULTRA POWERFUL ESTE ESTENCE FAMILY [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]	TheUnhivedMind	11	5,357	6th December 2009 - 05:32 PM Last Post by: GMNL

THE COLONNA FAMILY	TheUnhivedMind	3	1,945	16th November 2009 - 05:36 PM Last Post by: GMNL
THE POWERFUL VENETIAN CASANOVA FAMILY! [CONTROLLERS OF SWITZERLAND +]	TheUnhivedMind	2	1,890	19th March 2009 - 01:18 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
THE POWERFUL SOMAGLIA FAMILY [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]	TheUnhivedMind	0	2,039	16th January 2009 - 12:41 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

Showing 46 of 46 topics sorted by last post date in descending order from the beginning Go!

NEW TOPIC NEW POLL

Open Topic (new replies)

Open Topic (no new replies)

Hot Topic (new replies)

Hot Topic (no new replies)

Poll (new votes)

Poll (no new votes)

Locked Topic

Moved Topic

Search this forum: Enter Keywords Go

- The Ptolemaic Papal Nobility Bloodlines Go

Mark this forum as read

Hosted for free by InvisionFree (Terms of Use: Updated 2/10/2010) | Powered by Invision Power Board v1.3 Final © 2003 IPS, Inc.
Page creation time: 0.0259 seconds | Archive

The Orsini Skin by Bunthius Zeta Board mods

0

View Full Version: THE ULTRA POWERFUL MAXIMUS FAMILY

Title: THE ULTRA POWERFUL MAXIMUS FAMILY
Description: [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]

craig-oxley - January 24, 2009 04:51 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The Orsini family

These folks are really the

MAXIMUS FAMILY

(Orsini is Orso linking in with the long nailed grawling bear)
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

QUOTE

[dohtml]
[/dohtml] The Orsini family
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The Orsini family was one of the most celebrated princely families in medieval Italy and renaissance Rome. Members of the Orsini include popes Celestine III (1191–1198), Nicholas III (1277–1280), and Benedict XIII (1724–1730), numerous condottieri and other relevant political and religious figures.

Origins

According to their family lore, the Orsini are descended from the Julio-Claudian family of ancient Rome. This is fanciful, as well as the alleged connection to the German families of Anhalt, Baden and Rosenberg sporting the same name. The Orsini also carried on a political feud with the Colonna family until by Papal Bull it was stopped in 1511; in 1571 the Chiefs of both families married the nieces of Pope Sixtus V.

The Orsini were related to the Boboni family existing in Rome in the 11th century. The first members had in fact always doubled surname of Boboni-Orsini. This first known members is one Bobone, in the early 11th century, father of Pietro, in turn father of Giacinto dei Boboni (1110–1198), who in 1191 became pope as Celestine III. One of the first great nepotist popes, he created cardinals two of his nephews and allowed his cousin Giovanni Gaetano (Giangaetano, died 1232) to buy the fiefs of Vicovaro, Licenza, Roccagiovine and Nettuno, who formed the nucleus of the future territorial power of the family. The Boboni surname went lost with his children, who were called de domo filiorum Ursi. Two of them, Napoleone and Matteo Rosso the Great (1178–1246) increased considerably the prestige of the family. The former was the founder of the first southern line, who disappeared with Camillo Pardo in 1553. He obtained the city of Manoppello, later a countship, and was Papal gonfaloniere. Matteo Rosso, called the Great, was the effective lord of Rome from 1241, when he defeated the Imperial troops to 1243, holding the title of Senator. Two of his sons and Napoleone were also Senators. Matteo ousted the traditional rivals, the Colonna, from Rome and extended the Orsini territories southwards up to Avellino and northwards to Pitigliano. During his life the family entered firmly in the Guelph party. He had some ten sons, which divided the fiefs after his deaths: Gentile (died 1246) originated the Pitigliano line and the second southern line, Rinaldo that of Monterotondo, Napoleone (died 1267) that of Bracciano and another Matteo Rosso that of Montegiordano, from the name of the district in Rome housing the family's fortress. The most distinguished of his sons was however Giovanni Gaetano (died 1280): elected pope as Nicholas III, he named the nephew Bertoldo (died 1289) as count of Romagna and had two nephews and a brother created cardinals.

The second southern line

The rise of the Orsini did not stop after Nicholas' death. Bertoldo's son, Gentile II (1250–1318), was two times Senator of Rome, podestà of Viterbo and, from 1314, Gran Giustiziere ("Great Justicer") of the Kingdom of Naples. He married to Clarice Ruffo, daughter of the counts of Catanzaro, forming an alliance of the most powerful Calabrian dynasty. His son Romano (1268–1327), called Romanello, was Royal Vicar of Rome in 1326, and inherited the countship of Soana through his marriage with Anastace de Montfort. Romano's stance was markedly Guelph. After his death, his two sons divided his fiefs, forming the Pitigliano and the second southern line.

The Tower of Raimondello Orsini in Taranto, c. 1880.Roberto (1295–1345), Gentile II's elder son, married to Sibilla del Balzo, daughter of the Great Senechal of the Kingdom of Naples. Among his sons, Giacomo (died 1379) was created cardinal by Gregory XI in 1371, while Nicola (August 27, 1331 – February 14, 1399) obtained the counties of Ariano and Celano. The latter was also Senator of Rome and enlarged the family territories in Lazio and Tuscany. His second son, Raimondello Orsini del Balzo, supported Charles III' coup d'état in Naples against Queen Joan II. Under king Ladislas he was among the few Neapolitan feudataries who were able to maintain their territorial power afther the royal war against them. However, at his death in 1406 the southern Orsini fiefs were confiscated. Relationships with the royal family remained cold under Joan II; however, when Raimondello's son Giannantonio (1386–1453) sent his troops to help her against the usurpation attempt of James of Bourbon, he received in exchange the Principality of Taranto.

The links with the court increased further under Sergianni Caracciolo, Joan's lover and Great Senechal. A younger brother of Giannantonio one of Sergianni's daughters. However, the Orsini changed side when Alfonso V of Aragon started his conquest of the Kingdom of Naples. Giannantonio was awarded with the duchy of Bari, the position of Great Connestable and an appanage of 100,000 ducati. Giannantonio remained faithful to Alfonso's heir, Ferdinand I, but was killed during a revolt of nobles. Having died withouot legitimate sons, much of his were absorbed into the Royal Chamber.

Pitigliano line

This line was initiated by Guido Orsini, second son of Romano, who inherited the county of Soana. He and his descendants ruled over the fiefs of Soana, Pitigliano and Nola, but in the early 15th century wars against the Republic of Siena and the Colonnas caused to lost of several territories. Bertoldo (died 1417) managed to keep only Pitigliano, while his grandson Orso (died July 5, 1479) was count of Nola and fought as condottiero under the Duke of Milan and the Republic of Venice. Later he passed to the service of Ferdinand I of Naples, but, having not took part to the Barons' conjure, was rewarded with the fiefs of Ascoli and Atripalda. He took part to the Aragonese campaign in Tuscany and was killed in the siege of Viterbo.

Gerolama Orsini, Pier Luigi's wife.The most outstanding member of the Pitigliano line was Niccolò, one of the major condottieri of the time. His son Ludovico (died January 27, 1534) and his nephew Enrico (died 1528) took part to the Italian Wars at the service of both France and Spain, often changing side with the typical ease of the Italian military leaders of the time. Two of Ludovico's daughter married to relevant figures: Geronima to Pier Luigi Farnese, illegitimate son of Pope Paul III, and Marzia to Gian Giacomo Medici of Marignano, an important general of the Spanish army.

The line started to decay after the loss of Nola by Ludovico, who was also forced to accept the Senese suzerainty over Pitigliano. Under his son Giovan Francesco (died May 8, 1567) the county enter in the orbit of the Grand Duke of Tuscany. Later, the attempt of Alessandro (died February 9, 1604) to obtain the title of Monterotondo was thwarted by Pope Gregory XIII. His son Giannantonio (March 25, 1569 – 1613) sold definitely Pitigliano to Tuscany, in exchange to the marquisate of Monte San Savino.

The line became extinct in 1640 with the death of Alessandro.

Monterotondo line

This line was founded by Rinaldo, third son of Matteo Rosso the Great. They were often involved in the baronal struggles of the Late Middle Ages Rome, at least three members of the family being elected as Senators, while others foughts as condottieri. Francesco in 1370 took part to the war of Florence against the Visconti of Milan. Orso (died July 24, 1424) died fighting for the king of Naples in the Battle of Zagonara against the Milanese. His sons Giacomo (died 1482) and Lorenzo (1452) battled for the Papal States, Naples and Florence. One of Giacomo's daughters, Clarice (1453–July 30, 1488) became Lorenzo de' Medici's wife. Franciotto Orsini was created cardinal by Leo X in 1517.

The most important member of the Monterotondo Orsinis was Giovani Battista Orsini, who became cardinal under Sixtus IV (1483). He was probably among the promoters of the failed plot against Cesare Borgia in 1502, being assassinated as retaliation, together with numerous members of the family.

The line decayed from the late 16th century, when several members were assassinated or lost their lands for various reasons. Its last representants Enrico (died September 12, 1643) and Francesco (1592 - September 21, 1650) sold Monterotondo to the Barberini in 1641. [dohtml] [/dohtml]

The Orsini Castle in Nerola.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Bracciano line

Napoleone, another son of Matteo Rosso the Great, received Bracciano, Nerola and other lands in what is now northern Lazio. In 1259 he was Senator of Rome. Thanks to the strategic positions of their fiefs, and to their famous castle built in Bracciano in 1426, they were the most powerful Orsini line in the Lazio. Count Carlo (died after 1485), son of another Napoleone (died October 3, 1480), was Papal Gonfaloniere. By his marriage with a Francesca Orsini of Monterotondo was born Gentile Virginio Orsini, one of the most relevant figures of Italian politics in the late 15th century. After Carlo's death, he enlarged the family's tenure with lands inherited by his wife, another Orsini from Salerno, and most of all he was amongst the favourites of Ferdinand I of Naples, who appointed him as Great Connestable of Naples. Together with his cousin, the Cardinal Giovanni Battista, he was among the fiercest opposers of popes Innocent VIII and Alexander VI. In 1492 Gentile Virginio bought the county of Anguillara from Franceschetto Cybo.

During Charles VIII of France's descent into Italy, he managed to keep Bracciano by fighting without too much dogging against him. Ferdinand II had his fiefs confiscated and imprisoned him in Castel dell'Ovo, where he was poisoned in 1497. The family recovered this setback under the more friendly Medici popes of the early 16th century. His son Giangiordano was Prince Assistant to the Papal Throne. His son Virginio was a famous admiral for the Papal States and France, but in 1539 he had his fiefs confiscated under the charge of treason.

Paolo Giordano was created first Duke of Bracciano in 1560. An accomplished condottiero, he was however also a ruthless figure who had his wife Isabella de' Medici murdered. For this and other homicides he had to flee to northern Italy. He was succeeded by Virginio, whose heir Paolo Giordano II married the princess of Piombino and was created Prince of the Holy Roman Empire. His brother Alessandro was cardinal and Papal legate, and another brother, Ferdinando (died March 4, 1660) acquired the assets of the other line of San Gemini. In the 17th century the Dukes of Bracciano moved their residence to Rome. This, along with a general economical decadence, damaged the dukedom, and last Duke and Prince, Flavio (March 4, 1620 – April 5, 1698) was forced by the huge debts to sell it to the Odescalchi and others.

Gravina line

The line of Gravina, from the name of the eponymous city in Apulia, is the only existing line of the Orsini. It descends from Francesco (died 1456), a son of Count Carlo of Bracciano. Most of his fief were located in northern Lazio, but he entered in the Neapolitan orbit when in 1418 he was called by Sergianni Caracciolo to fight against the Angevine troops, which he defeated. By marriage, he obtained the title of count of Gravina. He was made Duke of Gravina by King Alfonso, title definitely assigned to his son Giacomo (died 1472), to which had been added the counties of Conversano, Campagna and Copertino. Two of Francesco's son, Marino (died 1471) and Giovanni Battista (died June 8, 1476), were respectively archbishop of Taranto and Grand Master of Knights of Rhodes.

The fourth duke, Francesco, was strangled by Cesare Borgia in 1503. One of his nephews, Flavio Orsini, was created cardinal in 1565. The fifth duke, Ferdinando (died December 6, 1549) had all his fiefs confiscated by the Spaniards, but regained it after a 40,000 scudi payment.

After the heirless death of Duke Michele Antonio (January 26, 1627), his lands passed to his cousin Pietro Orsini, count of Muro Lucano (died 1641). The latter's nephew Pier Francesco, who had renounced to the succession in favour to his brother Domenico to became a Dominican, was later elected pope with the name of Benedict XIII.

His successor raised Benedict XIII's nephew, Prince Beroaldo Orsini, to the dignity of Prince Assistants to the Papal Throne (title held until 1958), after the emperor Charles VI had already, in 1724, made him a prince of the Holy Roman Empire. The last cardinal from the family was Domenico.

The family moved to Rome in the 18th century, where Duke Domenico (November 23, 1790 – April 28, 1874), married Maria Luisa Torlonia in 1823. In 1850 he was Minister of War and General Lieutenant of the Papal Armies, and Senator of Rome as well.

The descendants of the family live in Rome, Torino, Singapore and in the United States. In the US there are a few people with the last name Orazine, the name was changed when family members emigrated to the United States due to translation difficulties. Many members of the bloodline reside on the East coast of the United States and some still maintain the proper Orsini name.

Notable buildings

Apart the Bracciano castle, other notable buildings and structures associated with the Orsini include:

The Bomarzo Garden, a Late Renaissance-Mannerist gallery of bizarre sculptures and architecture commissioned in the 16th century by Vicino Orsini. It includes also a palace, designed by Baldassarre Peruzzi, begun in 1525 by Gian Corrado Orsini and finished by his son Vicino.
The Orsini Palace in Rome, including the Theatre of Marcellus.
Palazzo Orsini Pio Righetti, also in Rome.
Orsini Castles in:
Avezzano
Nerola
Sant'Angelo Romano (15th century)
Soriano nel Cimino (built by Nicholas III in 1278)
Vasanello (12th century)

Sources

Rendina, Claudio (2004). Le grandi famiglie di Roma. Rome: Newton Compton.

QUOTE

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Pier Francesco Orsini
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Pier Francesco Orsini, also called Vicino Orsini (July 4, 1523 - 1583) was an Italian condottiero and patron of the arts. He is famous as the commissioner of the Mannerist Park of the Monsters in Bomarzo (northern Lazio).

Biography

Born in Bomarzo, he was the son of Giovanni Corrado Orsini and Clarice Anguillara.

He inherited the duchy of Bomarzo seven years after the death of the father, thank to intercession of cardinal Alessandro Farnese (the future Pope Paul III). He later married Alessandro's relative Giulia Farnese.

His career as condottiero ended in the 1550s, when he was taken prisoner and the Treaty of Cateau-Cambresis ended the French-Spanish Wars in Italy. Orsini then retired to Bomarzo where he surrounded himself with literates and artists, and devoted to an Epicurean style of life, which negated any contact with religion. Here he had the family completed and, starting from 1547, the famous Park, whose enigmatic constructions and sculptures are one of the most suggestive example of late Renaissance art in Italy.

After the death of his wife he dedicated the park to her memory.

Pier Francesco Orsini died in 1583.

QUOTE

Note the Luciferian serpant snake -Craig
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Vipére d'Orsini ~~ Vipera ursinii

Orsini's Viper

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
The Orsini's viper has a maximum length of 50cm, colouration is grey, brown or olive green with a very boldly marked black zig zag pattern on the back which is completely joined up and solid. It has a rounded nose and eyes with vertically slit pupils.

It is found at altitudes of 900 to 2200 metres. In France it is only in Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur and extremely rare, in danger of extinction in the only three EU countries where it is present, France, Italy and Greece with IUCN red listing. It prefers open rocky habitats with some shrubby growth and sparse grasslands/pasture, very sensitive to disturbance and human activity. Most studies conclude that it is not aggressive and rarely bites humans, 9 times out of 10 if it does "strike" it keeps its mouth closed. When approached by humans it chooses either to remain completely still or flee slowly and silently.

Its prey is almost entirely grasshoppers, crickets and other insects, occasionally small mammals which it hunts primarily during the morning and early afternoon. Hibernation is from October until April/May.

Reproduction has been difficult to study in the wild. The Orsini's viper is ovoviviparous(1) and the females cycle is essentially bi annual. Coupling takes place towards the end of May and between 3 and 8 young are born between the end of August and the end of September when they go straight into hibernation and do not eat until June the following year.

The following sites in France have been given Natura2000 status for this species.

FR9301530(2)

04

CHEVAL BLANC - MONTAGNE DES BOULES - BARRE DES DOURBES(2)

FR9301535(2)

04

MONTAGNE DE VAL - HAUT - CLUES DE BARLES - CLUES DE VERDACHES(2)

FR9301537

04

MONTAGNE DE LURE

FR9301540(2)

04

GORGES DE TREVANS - MONTDENIER - MOURRE DE CHANIER(2)

FR9301545

04

VENTEROL - PIEGUT - GRAND VALLON

FR9301547(2)

04

GRAND COYER(2)

FR9301570(2)

06

PREALPES DE GRASSE(2)

FR9301580

84

MONT VENTOUX

It would appear that the principle problem for this snake is Human activities, roads, ski runs, tourism and theft by reptile dealers and collectors. It is also eaten by Short toed Eagles, Buzzards, Montagu's Harriers and Ravens.

Level of protection. Habitats / Flora / Fauna Directives annexes 2 & 4 Berne convention annex 2, Washington convention annex 1, protected in France at the National level art1.

Population in steep decline – Endangered

VENOMOUS

(1) Animals that retain the eggs within the body of the female in a brood chamber in which the development of the embyo takes place, perhaps deriving some nourishment from the female, but without the strong umbilical attachment to a placenta as in mammals; the typical condition of so-called "live-bearing" fishes. Also called aplacental viviparous. The young hatch inside the mother's uterus from their thin egg capsule, and are usually born shortly afterwards

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Toni Orsini

The Tower of Raimondello Orsini in Taranto, c. 1880.

Gerolama Orsini, Pier Luigi's wife.

The Orsini Castle in Nerola.

Clarice Orsini of Jacopo. Who later married Lorenzo de Medici

> QUOTE
>
> The murderer of Napoleon III was Felice Orsini - probably a descendent of the Orsini family. His father, Andrea, was a former official of the Napoleon army during the Russian campaign, and surely a Jesuit agent. In fact he was a member of the Carbonari

> QUOTE
>
> "Bracciano is still possessed by the Orsini family and did not go from them in 1375 as many claim. When you control everything and pay no taxes you can make what you want happen and hide as you wish" -Anonymous

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - January 24, 2009 05:26 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

DUKE THOMAS CRUISE MAPOTHER IV

KNIGHT OF MALTA & IRREGULAR FREEMASON

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

"Tom Cruise is up the backside creeping to Pepe Orsini. He even bought a mansion that was owned by the Orsini's. Cruise also donates to depopulation organisations." -Anonymous

QUOTE

"He briefly attended a Franciscan seminary in Cincinnati and aspired to become a Catholic priest. He eventually graduated from Glen Ridge High School in New Jersey in 1980."

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Tom_Cruise#Fa..._and_early_life

Other interesting family history: "His family having moved from Kentucky so his father could take a position as a Defence consultant with the Canadian Army."

-Thomas

QUOTE

"His mother, a Catholic, was the lone hold out in the family until she turned to it (Scientology) in 2003 after going through "some things." She still practices her Catholic faith, however." (So she's a Scientologist AND a Catholic -TR)

http://www.religionfacts.com/celebrities/tom_cruise.htm

QUOTE

Jennifer Lopez wants to Tom Cruise to be godfather to her newborn twins.

The 'Jenny From The Block' singer -- who gave birth to son Max and daughter Emme on February 22 -- has convinced husband Marc Anthony to give Tom the role despite their differences in religious beliefs. Tom, a devout follower of the mysterious religion of Scientology; Lopez and Anthony Catholic.

A source said: "Tom is delighted. Marc wasn't sure if it was a good idea to have a Scientologist as the kids' godfather, especially as he and Jennifer are both Catholic. But in the end Jennifer managed to convince him to agree."

http://showbizspy.com/2008/04/07/jennifer-...twins-godfather

QUOTE

TOM CRUISE - Is he a Psy-op?

Hmmm, why would i say that..? Well, first off, he was raised Catholic and he even studied to be a Catholic Priest. His mother is a practicing Catholic AND Scientologist. Tom Cruise is also godfather to Jennifer Lopez's and Marc Anthony's twins. Lopez and Anthony are very religious Roman catholics so it's odd that they would have Tom Cruise to be the godfather of their Catholic twins.

Here's where a big piece of a possible Psy-Op (Psychological Operation) comes in. Tom's former wife, Nicole Kidman is a Roman Catholic and stated publically that scientology isn't compatible with catholicism and thus aided the split between them ending in divorce. What more public way could Roman Catholicism be divided from Scientology?

Oh, I could go on here and piece together a lot more regarding this. But let me say Scientology is very odd in itself. I believe Scientology is in fact a huge Psy-Op. Think about the fact that L Ron Hubbard was NAVY Intelligence officer. He then starts this religion and begins stating that the CIA and FBI is bad. Congressman leo Ryan who was Jesuit trained was an outspoken critic of Scientology and then was assassinated in Guyana investigation Jim Jones and Jonestown. In the wake of Leo Ryan's assassination, CAN (Cult Awareness Network) was created. CAN went after Scientology and was sued by scientology and Scientology won, and then took over CAN. Are you beginning to see what's happening?

There seems to be a tremendous drama being played out before our eyes. The whole thing seems contrived and I suspect the ending of this drama won't be very nice.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jennifer_Lopez#Scientology

Scientology

It was reported that Lopez and Anthony were taking professional business meetings at the Church of Scientology Celebrity Centre in Hollywood, California, in late 2006. It was also rumored that Lopez and Anthony became Scientologists during that period with the help of Angelo Pagan, the husband of "King of Queens" actress and Scientologist Leah Remini.[42] Just prior to those reports, Lopez said to NBC, "I'm not a Scientologist, I was raised Catholic. But it's funny the way people come at it. To me it's so strange. These are some of the best people I've ever met in my life." She added, "My dad has been a Scientologist for 20 years. He's the best man that I know in my life and so, it's weird to me that people want to paint it in a negative way."

-Thomas Richards

QUOTE

There is a Nazi connection to Scientology.

Brother Eric

QUOTE

The wedding was a very occult wedding -Craig

Bracciano Castle is the venue for the showbiz wedding of the year between Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes . Cruise chose a romantic castle wedding .Bracciano is a quiet town in northern Italy .

http://www.castlepictures.com/katie-holmes.shtml

> QUOTE
>
> Bracciano Castle is the venue for the showbiz wedding of the year between Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes . Cruise chose a romantic castle wedding .Bracciano is a quiet town in northern Italy .
> Bracciano is dominated by the castle built between 1470 and 1485 by Napoleone Orsini and his son Gentile Virginio. In 1497 Giovanni di Candia, son of Pope Alexander VI Borgia (1492-1503), repeatedly attacked the castle but the Orsini repelled the assailants and so they did again a few years later when Cesare Borgia, another son of the pope, made another attempt to take the castle.
>
> Many famous people have been married in the Castle . Martin Scorsese married Isabella Rosellini in the castle
>
> James Rubin also got married in the castle

The Bracciano castle:

http://viaggi.tiscali.it/articoli/06/12/18...hi_mistero.html

"...In 1419 the pope granted the castle to the family Orsini and then it passed to Odescalchi. Here lived also Isabella de Medici who loved to exhibit her beatiful body to the visitors dressing, during the holydays, with only transparent veils. The woman had also another perverted habit: after she met her lovers, she constrained them to pass through a corridor where the unlucky men fell in a trap-door, ending over sharped blades and to finally wanishing in the quicklime. Isabella was strangled with a silk ribbon by the husband , Paolo Giordano Orsini, who discovered her betrayals, ..."

You can quite pass over the Jesuit crap about 'lovers murdered' and 'betrayals', and read all that as a sacrificial productive activity performed by what we can well term as "real blood flowing in the veins of the Vatican Monarchy" - Italian Black Nobility. Isn't Isabella a sort of Venus/Isis/ Moon devouring the Male principle? Don't the Jesuits and Vatican ruled orders and lodges reverse today the Female and Male principles, pushing for the destruction of the family institution and for the annihilation of every natural sexual role in the societies? Saturnalia experts could better than me find other occult contents. And then these 'French' links and the 'Napoleon' name:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bracciano

> QUOTE

In 1494 Charles VIII of France and his troops marching against Rome stopped at Bracciano. This act led to the excommunication of the Orsini, and in 1496 the city was besieged by a papal army headed by Giovanni di Candia, son of Pope Alexander VI Borgia, though it resisted successfully. Cesare Borgia, another of Alexander's natural sons, was unsuccessful in his attempt to take the Orsini stronghold a few years later. The sixteenth century was a period of splendour for Bracciano. In 1558 the notorious Paolo Giordano I Orsini, marrying Isabella de' Medici, daughter of Cosimo I, Grand Duke of Tuscany, received the title of duke of Bracciano. The economy was boosted by the exploitation of sulphur and iron, the production of tapestries and paper. The latter was favoured by the construction of an aqueduct whose ruins can be still seen in the city. Bracciano in this period had some 4,500 inhabitants.

However, the expensive tenor of life of the Orsini eventually damaged the economic conditions of the city. The last great ruler was probably Paolo Giordano II, a patron of arts and literature which made Bracciano a center of culture in Italy. The decline culminated in 1696 when the castle was sold to Livio Odescalchi, nephew of Pope Innocent XI; the Odescalchi family still retain the castle.

In the castle, richly frescoed friezes and ceilings now contrast with blank walls, which were hung with richly-coloured tapestries when the lords of Bracciano were in residence. Actors Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes had their wedding in the castle on 18th November 2006.

Observation. The murderer of Napoleon III was *Felice Orsini - probably a descendent of the Orsini family. His father, Andrea, was a former official of the Napoleon army during the Russian campaign, and surely a Jesuit agent. In fact he was a member of the Carbonari - a secret society which fought for the independence of the Italian nation against the Austrian empire and against the pontifical state, but at the same time he was an informer of the Pontical state police too (Original Italian Wikipedia page words: "...Il padre Andrea, ex ufficiale al seguito di Napoleone durante la campagna di Russia (1810-1814), era iscritto alla carboneria, ma era anche al tempo stesso un confidente della polizia pontificia[1]....").

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

NOW FOLKS SMOM TOM CRUISE VISITS

THE EUROPEAN ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION

BASED IN BELLAGIO

Note how the Rockefeller Foundation is situated right in the Omega point of Capstone of the Pyramid. Note the Triangolo Lariano, remember what the the pyramid is. Remember that at the capstone we have a equilateral triangle. This represent deity and the Saturn God El along with his three angels, Gabriel, Michael and Israel.
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - January 24, 2009 05:46 AM (GMT)

[DOHTML]<CENTER>[/DOHTML]
NOW WHOS ABOUT TO JOIN UP WITH

SMOM THOMAS CRUISE?

WHY IT'S ALEX 'CIA' JONES OF COURSE

REMIND YOU OF THIS JESUIT STOOGE BOY:

HOWS ALEX'S OTHER BUDDY STOOGE
WITH GUESS WHO? A JESUIT!

YES THEIR FIT UP MEN PAID TO FOOL YOU

Ref:
Alex "CIA" Jones Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor

[DOHTML]</CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

craig-oxley - January 24, 2009 10:40 PM (GMT)

Incorrect. Orsini attempted to kill Napoleon III but failed. The Emperor died in England as a result of a botched surgery---sounds like murder.

Brother Eric

IloveJFKJr - January 25, 2009 01:07 AM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 23 2009, 09:46 PM)

Who is that man next too Mel Gibson, and is Mel a Jesuit agent, too?

Alexandra - January 25, 2009 02:44 AM (GMT)

Makes sense...Orsini, Ursa...reminds me of Ursa Major and Ursa Minor, two constellations.

The name "Arthur" also means "bear" or something along that line.

craig-oxley - January 25, 2009 04:01 AM (GMT)

QUOTE (IloveJFKJr @ Jan 25 2009, 01:07 AM)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 23 2009, 09:46 PM)

Who is that man next too Mel Gibson, and is Mel a Jesuit agent, too?

It is Fr' William J Fulco SJ! The same Satanic Jesuit who helped create the Satanic Hermaphrodite film, The Passion!

Alexandra - January 25, 2009 04:48 AM (GMT)

Yeah, that theatrical mass. Never saw it, don't want to see it, don't care to see it. I only had to hear that a CATHOLIC made that movie to know not to waste my money.

IloveJFKJr - January 25, 2009 05:07 AM (GMT)

Yup. I didn't know this then when the movie came out, and I wasn't are then of what is truly going on, but I'm glad I never saw it. The priest at my parent's Catholic church during the hour that they like to go to, and as well as some other members of my family, were told along with the rest of the attendees there, obviously, to go see the movie. He encouraged. I'm pretty sure all the priests there and across the world encouraged for people to see that damn movie.

Avles - January 25, 2009 11:45 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 24 2009, 04:51 AM)
>
> [dohtml] [/dohtml]
>
> The Orsini family
>
> These folks are really the
>
> MAXIMUS FAMILY
>
> (Orsini is Orso linking in with the long nailed grawling bear)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

> QUOTE
>
> [dohtml]
[/dohtml]The Orsini family
> [dohtml] [/dohtml]

Orso means "bear" - an animal you can find on the heraldic standard of Ratzinger:

user posted image

I don't have idea about the possible link. In any case on the 25th June 2006 a "Brown bear" migrated from the Adamello-Brenta park in the TRENTINO (with the city of TRENTO) province to the Bavaria land of Germany, where he was killed. He was the first bear entering in Bavaria after centuries....

Then in the April 2008 a 'dangerous' bear was killed by Swiss authorities in the Grigioni cantone, the bear " JJ3/Lumpaz" it too migrated from its home in the Adamello park (TRENTO city). The other bear killed in Bavaria was named: JJ1 or "Bruno".

On Youtube appeared a man with hidden face threatening to kill the hunters who killed the bear (in Switzerland). With a fake Kalashnikov and using the plural "we" he warned that the next time "we will kill you".

Best regards etc.

craig-oxley - January 25, 2009 10:23 PM (GMT)

Pope Ratzinger is not of any Papal Bloodline, he is a no body!

Karl - January 26, 2009 04:18 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (IloveJFKJr @ Jan 25 2009, 01:07 AM)

> Who is that man next too Mel Gibson, and is Mel a Jesuit agent, too?

Mel Gibson is also Opus Dei if I remember correctly. Very fitting that he'd make the Passion. It's got Opus Dei all over it.

Avles - January 26, 2009 01:53 PM (GMT)

Since about 1200 a.D. popes and bishops can get their heraldic standard, without regard to thei ancestors. The heraldic standard of Ratzinger (ex novo) has been drawn by: S.Em.za Rev.ma il Cardinale Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo, Arcivescovo titolare di Tuscania, Nunzio Apostolico, 15/03/1999 :

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Andrea_Corder..._di_Montezemolo

From a first look

Best regards etc.

[B][/B]

Avles - January 26, 2009 02:48 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 24 2009, 04:51 AM)
>
> According to their family lore, the Orsini are descended from the Julio-Claudian family of ancient Rome. This is fanciful, as well as the alleged connection to the German families of Anhalt, Baden and Rosenberg sporting the same name. The Orsini also carried on a political feud with the Colonna family until by Papal Bull it was stopped in 1511; in 1571 the Chiefs of both families married the nieces of Pope Sixtus V.

I searched about Anhalt, which is an ancient noble German family. But it is very interesting to see that the Anhalt region, belonging to the Land Sachsen Anhalt, is provided by a standard with two bears (plus others, but little ones):

The two killed bears? Lumpaz & Bruno? I don't know, but the coincidence exists.

This doesn't mean that Orsini are linked through the bear to Ratzinger with the Anhalt connection.
I don't know when SMOM Cruise went in Switzerland, but I think you should put more attention (I assure you that I don't know the details and I am just discovering these facts!!) on an interesting link: the bear Lumpaz was killed - in April 2008 - just near the 'temple' where Tom met Rock:

The bear "JJ3/Lumpaz" was killed in the central area of Cantone dei Grigioni / Kanton Graubünden . Where is this "Graubünden"? Precisely is the Swiss area North to the 'temple' of Rock (and Tom), the area inside the coloured line (which represents the map of a bike tour from Voghera - Italy up to the Grigioni and back):

The region, just for a coincidence, is the LOMBARDIA region, the one where an important German noble (Frederick "Barbarossa") went defeated by a papal army of the Italina cities supporting the supremacy of the pope on every other power on earth , at Legnano, ... And the capital MILANO (where the route divide itself to East and West) saw its famous cathedral (Duomo di Milano) honoured by the pray of the Muslims, a week ago...

I don't know if Ratzinger is or not linked with the Orsini through blood, but all these coincidencies deserve attention:

Orsini family >>> "Orso" = "Bear" >>> Tom is supported by the "Bear/Orsini" family >>> an "Orso/Bear" is killed near the 'temple of Rock' visited by SM(T)om Cruise >>> the papal coat of arms of Ratzinger (Bavarian priest) contains an "Orso/ Bear" >>> an "Orso/Bear" went killd in Bavaria in 2006 >>> etc.

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Avles - January 26, 2009 03:14 PM (GMT)

URSA MAJOR & URSA MINOR

QUOTE (Alexandra @ Jan 25 2009, 02:44 AM)

Makes sense...Orsini, Ursa...reminds me of Ursa Major and Ursa Minor, two constellations.

The name "Arthur" also means "bear" or something along that line.

QUOTE (Avles @ Jan 25 2009, 11:45 AM)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 24 2009, 04:51 AM)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The Orsini family

These folks are really the

MAXIMUS FAMILY

(Orsini is Orso linking in with the long nailed grawling bear)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Orso means "bear" - an animal you can find on the heraldic standard of Ratzinger:

user posted image

I don't have idea about the possible link. In any case on the 25th June 2006 a "Brown bear" migrated from the Adamello-Brenta park in the TRENTINO (with the city of TRENTO) province to the Bavaria land of Germany, where he was killed. He was the first bear entering in Bavaria after centuries....

Then in the April 2008 a 'dangerous' bear was killed by Swiss authorities in the Grigioni cantone, the bear " JJ3/Lumpaz" it too migrated from its home in the Adamello park (TRENTO city). The other bear killed in Bavaria was named: JJ1 or "Bruno".

On Youtube appeared a man with hidden face threatening to kill the hunters who killed the bear (in Switzerland). With a fake Kalashnikov and using the plural "we" he warned that the next time "we will kill you".

Best regards etc.

QUOTE (Avles @ Jan 26 2009, 02:48 PM)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 24 2009, 04:51 AM)
>
> According to their family lore, the Orsini are descended from the Julio-Claudian family of ancient Rome. This is fanciful, as well as the alleged connection to the German families of Anhalt, Baden and Rosenberg sporting the same name. The Orsini also carried on a political feud with the Colonna family until by Papal Bull it was stopped in 1511; in 1571 the Chiefs of both families married the nieces of Pope Sixtus V.

I searched about Anhalt, which is an ancient noble German family. But it is very interesting to see that the Anhalt region, belonging to the Land Sachsen Anhalt, is provided by a standard with two bears (plus others, but little ones):

The two killed bears? Lumpaz & Bruno? I don't know, but the coincidence exists.

This doesn't mean that Orsini are linked through the bear to Ratzinger with the Anhalt connection.
I don't know when SMOM Cruise went in Switzerland, but I think you should put more attention (I assure you that I don't know the details and I am just discovering these facts!!) on an interesting link: the bear Lumpaz was killed - in April 2008 - just near the 'temple' where Tom met Rock:

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 24 2009, 05:26 AM)

NOW FOLKS SMOM TOM CRUISE VISITS

THE EUROPEAN ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION

BASED IN BELLAGIO

Note how the Rockefeller Foundation is situated right in the Omega point of Capstone of the Pyramid. Note the Triangolo Lariano, remember what the the pyramid is. Remember that at the capstone we have a equilateral triangle. This represent deity and the Saturn God El along with his three angels, Gabriel, Michael and Israel.
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

The bear "JJ3/Lumpaz" was killed in the central area of Cantone dei Grigioni / Kanton Graubünden . Where is this "Graubünden"? Precisely is the Swiss area North to the 'temple' of Rock (and Tom), the area inside the coloured line (which represents the map of a bike tour from Voghera - Italy up to the Grigioni and back):

The region, just for a coincidence, is the LOMBARDIA region, the one where an important German noble (Frederick "Barbarossa") went defeated by a papal army of the Italina cities supporting the supremacy of the pope on every other power on earth , at Legnano, ... And the capital MILANO (where the route divide itself to East and West) saw its famous cathedral (Duomo di Milano) honoured by the pray of the Muslims, a week ago...

I don't know if Ratzinger is or not linked with the Orsini through blood, but all these coincidencies deserve attention:

Orsini family >>> "Orso" = "Bear" >>> Tom is supported by the "Bear/Orsini" family >>> an "Orso/Bear" is killed near the 'temple of Rock' visited by SM(T)om Cruise >>> the papal coat of arms of Ratzinger (Bavarian priest) contains an "Orso/Bear" >>> an "Orso/Bear" went killd in Bavaria in 2006 >>> etc.

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

craig-oxley - January 29, 2009 09:34 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]

WHY DO YOU THINK

KNIGHT, THOMAS CRUISE MAPOTHER IV

ADOPTED A BLACK?

DO YOU THINK ITS BECAUSE OF THE RACE MIXING AGENDA?

NO THERES MORE TO IT THEN THAT.

SMOM CRUISE HAS DONATED OVER $5,000,000 TO:

THE OPTIMUM POPULATION TRUST

HELPING DEPOPULATION PLANET EARTH

WHILST DEPOPULATING BLACK AFRICA

BUT THE SHEOPLE WOULD NEVER BELIEVE THAT

THE VEIL IS IN! HE HAS A BLACK CHILD HE'S A GOOD GUY
[dohtml]<Center>
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - January 29, 2009 10:21 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]
<img src="http://i247.photobucket.com/albums/gg145/2tuff2006/SMOMTOMPOP.jpg" border="0" alt="Knight of Malta, Thomas Cruise Mapother IV">

[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - January 29, 2009 05:05 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]
HERES THE ORSINI CREST NOTICE THE RED/WHITE STRIPES

IS LEO ZAGAMI LOOKING FOR PROTECTION AND

TO BY PASS THE JESUITS TO THE MITHRA PERHAPS?

WHATS DOES THIS REMIND YOU OF?

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

Ken Ardel - January 29, 2009 05:34 PM (GMT)

Africa has to be depopulated, especially the sub saharan part.
the negroes reproduce too fast for the multi national corporations who want the wealth of the land with little opposition.

shipping savage blacks arms and ammo is one way to do it.
sexually transmitted test tube plagues is a guaranteed method, as the negro cannot resist the lure of sex and promiscuity.

Jefferson Smith - January 29, 2009 07:49 PM (GMT)

Remember the research of Professor Philippe Rushton? Blacks have higher sex hormones, have children at younger ages, and produce more children. The Illuminati know this to be fact, even though the PC multicultural movement will have you think otherwise.

Africa is being destroyed through disease and war. The west is being destroyed through multiculturalism which is cultural suicide and socialism which turns the government into the parent and the citizens into children. Remember, children can't make babies, that's why Europe is a dieing nation whilst all the youth are muslim. Europe will also be destroyed economically because of this, no youth = nobody to finance the socialist "utopia". Arabs will be destroyed through the 10th crusade. Jews will be destroyed through the rise of antisemitism and eventually another holocaust. Asians are subordinate, they are no threat to the Jesuits so they can be disposed of very easily. China already has 150 men for every 100 women, if the BS theory that China will be the next superpower ever happens, they would be the next Sparta :lol:

White men are mating with Asian women and white women are mating with dark men. Soon enough the asian/white mulattos will mate with the black/white mullatos. This will create the perfect slave race for the NWO, largely inheriting the subordinate qualities of the asian race and low IQ of the black races.

Remember this is only the Luciferian plan for global domination and the coming of the anti-Christ kingdom. The Bible tells us that this plan will not be successful and God will destroy the anti-Christ system and will set up his own kingdom. Just to let you know in case all of this stuff is scaring you or putting you in a sour mood...

craig-oxley - February 14, 2009 03:20 PM (GMT)

Please note how the GRAND ORIENTE D'ITALIA has a FELICE ORSINI lodge down in Tuscany, Italy. You'll also notice lodges for Charles Dawin and Evolution, both Jesuit and Jesuitism to destroy the AV1611 Bible teachings of creationism.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Pisa
Carlo Darwin 137

Benjamin Franklin 591

Viareggio (LU)
Felice Orsini 134

Livorno
Evolution 1109

Firenze
Giuseppe Garibaldi 631

Now notice this lodge:

Latina
Akhenaton 1219
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - February 18, 2009 11:52 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

ALAN ROSENBERG

WHO HELPS CONTROL

HOLLYWOOD
[THE DRUID'S ILLUSION WAND]

AS THE

DIRECTOR OF THE SCREEN ACTORS GUILD

IS A GUESS WHAT? (NOTE THE BEARS)

YES HE'S FROM THE POWERFUL PAPAL BLOODLINE

THE ORSINI/MAXIMUS BLOODLINE

HE VETS EVERY SINGLE HOLLYWOOD MOVIE

> QUOTE
>
> http://orsini-rosenberg.at/

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

> QUOTE
>
> ## Alan Rosenberg
>
> Alan Rosenberg, January 2007
> Born October 4, 1951 (1951-10-04) (age 57)[1]
> Passaic, New Jersey
> Occupation Actor
> Years active 1978–present
>
> Alan Rosenberg (born October 4, 1951) is an American actor of both stage and screen, and current president of the Screen Actors Guild, the principal motion picture industry on-screen performers' union.
>
> Early life
>
> Rosenberg was born and raised in Passaic, New Jersey.[2] Alan's late brother, Mark, was a political activist in the 1960's, later a film producer; while his first cousin is musician Donald Fagen.
>
> Alan's German Jewish parents gave him enough money to apply to graduate school,[3] but while studying at Case Western Reserve University he became New York state's backgammon champion in 1982.[4] Rosenberg said on graduating in 1972, that he found another passion, poker, and had gambled away most of the money his parents sent him, and could only afford one application to Yale School of Drama. Rosenberg dropped out halfway through his second year, after his heart was broken by classmate Meryl Streep.
>
> Career
>
> Rosenberg is perhaps best known for his character Eli Levinson which appeared in both the series Civil Wars and the popular L.A. Law. He is also well known for his character Ira Woodbine in the sitcom, Cybill. More recently he was seen in the legal drama The Guardian as "Alvin Masterson".
>
> Rosenberg supplied the voice of the bounty hunter Boba Fett on NPR's adaptation of The Empire Strikes Back. Rosenberg is also known for his appearance as the crazed "Mad Bomber" in the 1986 cult-classic Stewardess School.
>
> In 1995, he received an Emmy Award nomination for a guest-starring role in the hit drama ER
>
> In 1999 he began a recurring role on as the hospital legal council, Stuart Brickman, on Chicago Hope. Halfway through their final season he was added to the opening titles as a series regular.
>
> He was elected the 24th president of Screen Actors Guild (SAG) on September 23 2005. Rosenberg succeeds Melissa Gilbert, who served as president since 2001 and chose not to run for a third two-year term. Rosenberg received 39.99 percent (10,748 total votes) of the nationwide vote of the Guild's general membership, defeating Morgan Fairchild and Robert Conrad. Fairchild received 34.72 percent (9,332 total votes) and Conrad received 25.29% percent (6,797 total votes). Rosenberg formally assumed the office of Guild president on September 25, and will serve a two-year term.

In 2005 he appeared as shady defense attorney "Adam Novak" in an episode of CSI: Crime Scene Investigation co-starring alongside his real life wife Marg Helgenberger. Novak was portrayed as a womanizer who encountered Catherine (Helgenberger) in a bar and later became the prime suspect in two homicides. He appeared once again in the 2007 episode Leaving Las Vegas as a lawyer defending a client who turned out to be guilty of two separate crimes, and yet the evidence failed to pin him down, resulting in a not guilty verdict which annoyed Catherine so much that she began to undergo further investigation.

In 2006, he appeared in a very small part as Bruce Steinerman, the divorce attorney of James Wilson in the TV-series House, M.D., adding yet another legal character to his CV.

In 2007 he started hosting a Public Television program, "Life: Part 2",[5] produced in St. Paul, Minnesota. He moderates panel discussions about issues that baby boomers face as they age.

Personal life

Originally married to actress Robin Bartlett, Rosenberg met Marg Helgenberger in New York while guest-starring on her soap Ryan's Hope. The two conversed for hours between shots on the motel-room set.

Four years later, the newly divorced Rosenberg walked into a West Hollywood bank and spotted Helgenberger in line - they exchanged telephone numbers. Within two months the actors were living together, and eloped in 1989 to avoid upsetting a Jewish relative. Their son, Hugh, was born the following year.

On December 1, 2008, Rosenberg and Helgenberger announced their separation.[6]

References

http://tv.yahoo.com/contributor/885911/new...labor__ER:46710 JewishJournal.com
http://www.jewishjournal.com/home/print.php?id=8685
Alan Rosenberg (I) - Biography
http://www.pbs.org/lifepart2
Fleeman, Mike. Marg Helgenberger & Husband Separate After 19 Years. People (magazine), December 1, 2008.

Avles - February 18, 2009 05:53 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Feb 18 2009, 11:52 AM)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

ALAN ROSENBERG

WHO HELPS CONTROL

HOLLYWOOD
[THE DRUID'S ILLUSION WAND]

AS THE

DIRECTOR OF THE SCREEN ACTORS GUILD

IS A GUESS WHAT? (NOTE THE BEARS)

YES HE'S FROM THE POWERFUL PAPAL BLOODLINE

THE ORSINI/MAXIMUS BLOODLINE

HE VETS EVERY SINGLE HOLLYWOOD MOVIE

> QUOTE
> http://orsini-rosenberg.at/

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]
[QUOTE]Alan Rosenberg

In an Italian site they claim the unexistence of an Orsini-Rosenberg bloodline, they say that Leopold I on 6 July 1684 allowed the Rosenberg to be named also 'Orsini'. In any case they point out the link between the roses, the bears and the bloodlines:

O R S A = B E A R (a female bear, male: orso)

R O S A = R O S E (the flower but also R O S E NBERG)

O R S I N I = R O S I N I = R O S E N BERG

Best regards etc.

craig-oxley - February 21, 2009 01:11 PM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
THE ORSINI'S

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
"The Orsini: A Family of Roman Baroni in Context—Politics, Society, and Art"
Thursday, February 1 - Saturday, February 3, 2007

This international conference coincided with the completion of a two-year project to create a digital catalogue for Orsini family papers in the Department of Special Collections in the Charles E. Young Research Library at UCLA. This Orsini collection constitutes a significant portion of the prominent family's private archive, with documents dating from circa 1300 to 1950; the focus of the conference was on the early modern period.

The conference was organized by Guendalina Ajello (Orsini Archivist, Department of Special Collections, UCLA Charles E. Young Research Library) who directed the project to facilitate access and use of the Orsini documents at UCLA. It was co-sponsored by the UCLA Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies, the UCLA Center for Seventeenth- and Eighteenth-Century Studies, the UCLA Charles E. Young Library Department of Special Collections, and the UCLA Department of Italian. Additional information about the Orsini project at UCLA is in the project section of the CMRS website, and the complete program is posted on the Library website at http://www.library.ucla.edu/libraries/spec...ini/program.htm.

craig-oxley - February 21, 2009 01:56 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]

Heinrich Orsini-Rosenberg

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]

JOSEPH ORSINI

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]

JAMES ORSINI

on the left then right:

[dohtml]</Center>[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - March 1, 2009 06:19 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Feb 11 2009, 06:33 AM)

"According to Vittorio, Rome is a hollow city created by a volcano. In the underground caves is where the Mithra is practised. Now whats interesting is that the book 'New Moon' based on the sci-fi vampire 'Twilight' series and gives us a hint. Note how it tells us that the most evil powerful Vampire families who controlled everything was from 'Volterra'. So we have Volcano and Earth within that City's title based down in Tuscany. Maybe this is something to ponder as another clever subliminal code." -CRAIG OXLEY

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

New Moon

http://www.imdb.com/title/tt1259571/

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

[DOHTML]<CENTER>[/DOHTML]

MELISSA ROSENBERG

HOLLYWOOD ORSINI

[DOHTML]<CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

craig-oxley - March 7, 2009 02:09 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

House of Rosenberg

The Rosenberg family (Rožmberkové in Czech, sg. z Rožmberka) was the most significant and influential Bohemian noble family playing important role in Czech medieval history from 13th century till 1611 (members of family held posts at the Prague royal (and later imperial) court and were called "the real lords of the kingdom"). This branch of Witikonides (Vítkovci) clan was initially founded by Vítek III, the son of Vítek (Witiko) of Prèice.

In about 1250, the Vítkovci clan settled the Rožmberk Castle in the region of Èeský Krumlov, then in about 1253 erected the Èeský Krumlov castle. The Krumlov castle thus became the residence of the Lords of Rožmberk for the next three hundred years. It was the Rožmberks who influenced to a great extent the appearance of south Bohemia.

The Coat of arms and emblem of this family was represented by a red five-petalled rose in a silver field which is still often seen in a considerable part of south Bohemia. Petr I. of Rožmberk held the post of the superior chamberlain at the court of John of Bohemia. His wife was a widow of the Bohemian king Wenceslaus III.

Another significant personage of the family was Jindøich III. of Rožmberk, a son of Oldøich I., who led the Union of Nobility, was displeased the reign of King Wenceslaus IV.

Jindøich's son Oldøich II. of Rožmberk was a member of the Bohemian nobility who defended the interests of Bohemian catholic nobility and of Sigismund, Holy Roman Emperor during the times of the Hussite wars.

A daughter of Oldøich II. was Perchta of Rožmberk, who is identified with the Rožmberks "White Lady" ghost tales, and current residents of the area still report seeing Perchta's spirit around the castle.

The decline of the House of Rožmberk began with Vilém and Petr Vok, the sons of Jošt III., both being raised in the guardianship of their uncle Petr V.

Vilém of Rožmberk is generally considered the most significant representative of the family, making the Èeský Krumlov area the center of southern Bohemian cultural and political life.

After Vilém's death in 1592, his younger brother Petr Vok assumed the position as reigning Lord. In 1601, he was forced to sell the Krumlov castle to the king Rudolf II, Holy Roman Emperor. Petr Vok transferred his residence after the sale to Tøeboò where he died in 1611. Petr Vok brought to a close the three-hundred-year-long reign of this illustrious dynasty.

References

VESELÁ, Lenka. Knihy na dvoøe Rožmberkù. Praha : Knihovna Akademie vìd ÈR : Scriptorium, 2005. 359 s. ISBN 80-86675-06-8 (KNAV). ISBN 80-86197-60-3 (Scriptorium).
Václav Bøezan: Životy posledních Rozmberkù. (aus dem Manuskript hrsg. v. Jaroslav Pánek). Praha 1985.
Jaroslav Pánek: Poslední Rožmberkové. Velmoži èeské renesance. Praha 1989.

Rožmberkové
Páni z Rožmberka nosili od počátku ve stříbrném poli červenou růži se zlatým semeníkem a stejná růže sloužila i jako klenot.
V pozdějších dobách se malovaly zelené okvětní lístky. Za posledních Rožmberků koncem 16. století se původní růže dostala do horní poloviny štítu, v dolní polovině, oddělené zlatým břevnem, byly červené a stříbrné pruhy, aby erb připomínal erb italského knížecího rodu Orsiniů z Rosenberka. V této podobě přešel rožmberský erb do znaku knížat Paarů.
Poslední Rožmberkové užívali také štítonoše, dva medvědy.

Notice the red & white Orsini

mvltiversal - March 7, 2009 02:16 AM (GMT)

A rose forming an inverted pentagram over the crown... what a satanic shield...
(there is also an Alfred Rosenberg born in Estonia, a Nazi)

Avles - March 8, 2009 08:52 PM (GMT)

Austrian bloodline Orsini-Rosenberg and Jesuits :

http://www.kath-kirche-kaernten.at/pages/p...d=4&pageid=7292

QUOTE

St Peter and Paul"s Cathedral in Klagenfurt
.....
The city of Klagenfurt is first mentioned at the end of the 12th century under the name of "forum Chlagenvurt". In 1518, Emperor Maximilian I gave the city to a body of representatives of the various classes in Carinthia, the so called "Landstände". In the late 16th century, nobility and normal citizens converted to Protestantism. The Protestant Landstände built today's cathedral of St Peter and Paul in 1578 for prestigious purposes. It is the oldest church with pilasters in Austria and one of the most important churches built by Protestants in the German-speaking area. The architect, however, remains unknown. The church was dedicated to the Holy Trinity until it was closed in 1600 because of the Counter-Reformation. Later, it was given to the Jesuits (Society of Jesus) and in 1604 the church was dedicated to St Peter and St Paul by Bishop Karl von Grimming. It had become a Roman Catholic church.
.....
The Sacrament Chapel (8) was originally (1660) built to accommodate the tombs of the dynasty of Orsini-Rosenberg and was dedicated to Franz Xaver. Later, the old altarpiece was replaced by a copy of the Madonna from Altötting. St Wolfgang and St Andrew are on each side of the altar of stuccoed marble (done 1740 by Christoph Rudolph).
.....

I noticed also the similarity among the Luther's rose and the Rosenberg's rose, of both Rosenberg bloodline, the one from Austria and the one from Bohemia. The rose of Luther:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Luther_rose

QUOTE

In a July 8, 1530 letter to Lazarus Spengler, Luther interprets his seal:

Grace and peace from the Lord. As you desire to know whether my painted seal, which you sent to me, has hit the mark, I shall answer most amiably and tell you my original thoughts and reason about why my seal is a symbol of my theology. The first should be a black cross in a heart, which retains its natural color, so that I myself would be reminded that faith in the Crucified saves us. "For one who believes from the heart will be justified" (Rom. 10:10[2]). Although it is indeed a black cross, which mortifies and which should also cause pain, it leaves the heart in its natural color. It does not corrupt nature, that is, it does not kill but keeps alive. "The just shall live by faith" (Rom. 1:17[3]) but by faith in the crucified. Such a heart should stand in the middle of a white rose, to show that faith gives joy, comfort, and peace. In other words, it places the believer into a white, joyous rose, for this faith does not give peace and joy like the world gives (John 14:27[4]). That is why the rose should be white and not red, for white is the color of the spirits and the angels (cf. Matt. 28:3[5]; John 20:12[6]). Such a rose should stand in a sky-blue field, symbolizing that such joy in spirit and faith is a beginning of the heavenly future joy, which begins already, but is grasped in hope, not yet revealed. And around this field is a golden ring, symbolizing that such blessedness in Heaven lasts forever and has no end. Such blessedness is exquisite, beyond all joy and goods, just as gold is the most valuable, most precious and best metal.This is my compendium theologiae [summary of theology]. I have wanted to show it to you in good friendship, hoping for your appreciation. May Christ, our beloved Lord, be with your spirit until the life hereafter. Amen...."

Black cross, ... heart in its natural color,.,..I am convinced that the guy that is talking here is the true Luther, with his true Christian rationality. Give a better look to the Rosenberg (the ones from Bohemia) rose - it may well have been very different, at the beginning of the bloodline, but don't you think that the Jesuits, with their Counter Reformation war in Bohemia, could have added the central sun and marked with black colour the reversed five pointed star, as a sort of "anti-Luther's rose"?

Rožmberkové
Páni z Rožmberka nosili od počátku ve stříbrném poli červenou růži se zlatým semeníkem a stejná růže sloužila i jako klenot.
V pozdějších dobách se malovaly zelené okvětní lístky. Za posledních Rožmberků koncem 16. století se původní růže dostala do horní poloviny štítu, v dolní polovině, oddělené zlatým břevnem, byly červené a stříbrné pruhy, aby erb připomínal erb italského knížecího rodu Orsiniů z Rosenberka. V této podobě přešel rožmberský erb do znaku knížat Paarů.
Poslední Rožmberkové užívali také štítonoše, dva medvědy.

These information don't solve the problem of the Orsini-Rosenberg family, but they could help to understand the use of the Rose as symbol.

Best regards etc....

[B][/B]
[I][/I]

Keith - March 10, 2009 09:51 PM (GMT)

314159265 is pi. mixing the codes open up more chances of seeing what you are looking for, but realize it is not going to allow you to see everything.

if we start at the 2 and read from right to left we get "orsini", this will lead us to the start of pi. now we read from left to right like normal and see that we get "gray pope".

so it's "orsini gray pope"

i heard craig say at the END of his latest interview that Orsini may be the "gray pope". this may be true if they follow the blueprint of pi.

if anyone wants me to spell out how i derived "orsini gray pope" from the end of pi, just let me know, i'll post it. you'll need to know 3 different codes +don't forget about symbols such as 1 equaling i or l.

in strictly the backwards alphabet code, gray=tiab=bait when reversed. bait is the second hebrew letter and it means "house" or "housing". bait is spelled as "bet", but it is pronounced like "bait" or "bate". the pope is likened to the pharaoh, and I heard on the history international channel last night that Pharaoh means "great house"...hmmm. when you say "great" you say gray-t. i bring up the pharaoh idea because the gray pope is supposed to be descended from akhenaton(pharaoh), or so i've heard.

I learned about BET from Stan Tenen.

The jesuits will hate me for this one. haha! lol! then again, what do they care? nobody's listening anyway---with the exception of a few...../// maybe .0000001% of the population

IloveJFKJr - March 11, 2009 12:52 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (Keith @ Mar 10 2009, 01:51 PM)
>
> 314159265 is pi. mixing the codes open up more chances of seeing what you are looking for, but realize it is not going to allow you to see everything.
>
> if we start at the 2 and read from right to left we get "orsini", this will lead us to the start of pi. now we read from left to right like normal and see that we get "gray pope".
>
> so it's "orsini gray pope"
>
> i heard craig say at the END of his latest interview that Orsini may be the "gray pope". this may be true if they follow the blueprint of pi.
>
> if anyone wants me to spell out how i derived "orsini gray pope" from the end of pi, just let me know, i'll post it. you'll need to know 3 different codes +don't forget about symbols such as 1 equaling i or l.
>
> in strictly the backwards alphabet code, gray=tiab=bait when reversed. bait is the second hebrew letter and it means "house" or "housing". bait is spelled as "bet", but it is pronounced like "bait" or "bate". the pope is likened to the pharaoh, and I heard on the history international channel last night that Pharaoh means "great house"...hmmm. when you say "great" you say gray-t. i bring up the pharaoh idea because the gray pope is supposed to be descended from akhenaton(pharaoh), or so i've heard.
>
> I learned about BET from Stan Tenen.
>
> The jesuits will hate me for this one. haha! lol! then again, what do they care? nobody's listening anyway---with the exception of a few...../// maybe .0000001% of the population

Keith, it's great what you are doing and who cares what the Jesuits and the rest of that NWO Cabal think.

And also, I am curious how you derived Orsini gray pope from pi. Interesting stuff.

Keith - March 11, 2009 02:56 AM (GMT)

314159 2 65

remember, we are starting at the 2 that i've spaced out.

2=O in pi blink code
9=R in backwards alphabet code
5=S due to symbols
1=I due to symbols
41=14=N as it's the 14th letter of the alphabet
3=I in phi blink code

now we are back at the beginning of pi, and we will go from left to right like we normally read but before i go on, there is debate whether to let the first digit (the 3) repeat. if you don't think that it should, then read this way ORSI:

4=N iin horse race code
1=I due to symbols

3=now we are at the 3 and we can start reading left to right

.....

3=G in chaldean numerology
1=R in phi blink code
4=A in pi blink code
1=skip this one and "read between the line" as they say
5=Y in pi blink code

9=6=P in phi blink code
2=O in pi blink code
6=P
5=E as it's the 5th letter of the alphabet

ORSINI GRAY POPE

my bad, you do have to know more than 3 codes to figure this one. look how much we used the "blink code" in the "gray pope" part. all but two slots. there must be something to this "blink" code. and since mike keith's website has been shut down and the pi code is not really published anywhere else on the internet, i doubt anyone will discover the blink codes on their own. on one hand, it was only until 1999 that the pi code was published, so you think that no one could have known the "blink codes" until 1999. on the other hand, the jesuits or vedas or aliens could have figured it out long long time ago in their secret dungeons. and of course, the almighty God knows of it. shit, He might have even rigged it Himself! I lean towards the aliens because they are absolutely addicted to pi. they can't help themselves. they keep telling/hinting at us to recognize pi in their detailed crop circles. they don't dedicate every crop circle to pi, but when they do, you can spend much time studying one crop circle because it has so much information packed into a little space. and notice how the most popular alien is labelled a "gray". all this alien talk is speculation though. and so is the "gray pope" because we don't know if he actually exists either.

craig-oxley - March 12, 2009 05:34 PM (GMT)

[DOHTML]<cENTER>
[/DOHTML]

NOTICE THE RED AND WHITE OF

ORSINI

ROMAN WASHINGTON D.C

[DOHTML]</cENTER>
[/DOHTML]

craig-oxley - March 12, 2009 06:13 PM (GMT)

Remember folks the Jesuit Order was created in 1534 -Craig

> QUOTE
>
> Pope Paul III (February 29, 1468 – November 10, 1549), born Alessandro Farnese, was Pope of the Roman Catholic Church from 1534 to his death in 1549. He also called the Council of Trent in 1545.

craig-oxley - March 13, 2009 03:38 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<Center>
[/dohtml]

THE ROMAN 'FACIST' WASHINGTON D.C

IN THE ROMAN LAND OF THE UNITED STATES

CONTROLLED BY

ZOROATHRIANIST-MITHRA, ORSINI FAMILY

HERES MITHRAS WITH HIS PHYRGIAN CAP

HOWS ABOUT THIS TOO:

NOTE THAT ORSINI SHIELD

Rožmberkové
Páni z Rožmberka nosili od počátku ve stříbrném poli červenou růži se zlatým semeníkem a stejná růže sloužila i jako klenot.
V pozdějších dobách se malovaly zelené okvětní lístky. Za posledních Rožmberků koncem 16. století se původní růže dostala do horní poloviny štítu, v dolní polovině, oddělené zlatým břevnem, byly červené a stříbrné pruhy, aby erb připomínal erb italského knížecího rodu Orsiniů z Rosenberka. V této podobě přešel rožmberský erb do znaku knížat Paarů.
Poslední Rožmberkové užívali také štítonoše, dva medvědy.

[dohtml]</Center>
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - March 13, 2009 05:14 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]
Help From Italy: an Interview with Georgia’s Prince

Natalie Mchedlishvili
19.12.2008
http://www.georgiatoday.ge/article_details.php?id=6060
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Prince Lelio Nicoloz Orsini-Bagrationi, son of Ketevan Bagrationi, is in Tbilisi. After the August events, representatives of the ruling royal family of Georgia and the head of a charity foundation, St.George's Shield, visited the country as rapidly as possible, providing humanitarian assistance to IDPs.

Georgia Today was fortunate enough to manage an interview with the Prince during his short visit in the country.

Georgia Today: Tell me about the implementation of St. George's Shield. What is the main activity of the foundation?

Lelio Orsin-Bagrationi: This is the association implemented by my mom in 1991. The main aim of the association has always been to display Georgian culture in Italy and to provide humanitarian aid for Geogria.

GT: Since the August events, the amount of humanitarian aid has mainly increased. What is the objective of your humanitarian assistance?

LO: I arrived to Georgia on the 11th of August, even though there was no flight, and I had to arrive in Tbilisi from Yerevan. Here I gathered approximately EUR 30.000 by telephone from different organizations in Italy, to assist IDPs here. More important was the assistance in Gori with the help of Father Andria, whith whom we managed to enter the so-called buffer zone as that time it was the only way to enter the region. Following a suggestion by Father Andria, we purchased 35 tones of flour for them. It was one of the most important humanitarian aid donations. However, we have organized other different activities as well. If we consider the enormousness of the tragedy, we did the smallest part for helping them.

GT: You have had a chance to meet with people in the conflict region. What impression about the region stayed in your memory?

LO: The most touching moment was meeting with a lady in the village of Ergneti, who said that when Ossetia's army passed by, they called his son, who was in the house, and shot him in front of his home. Of course there were numerous such stories. We also had a chance to see the camp-city, and visited wounded people. Russia's aggression became clear for all of us.

GT: It was extremely dangerous visiting the conflict zone, not only Georgian civilians but also several foreign journalists were killed. Didn't you think your visit would end up in tragedy?

LO: That time I didn't think of it. I knew people needed us, and they were desperately in need of the assistance that we brought them, so it was extremely important to move. I haven't thought of any danger since I noticed people needed me there.

GT: As far as I know, you visited Georgia a month ago when you brought more humanitarian aid for IDPs. Do you continue this activity rapidly?

LO: My Georgian origin and my duty allows me to continue humanitarian activity. Of course it is very sad, and it would have been much better if we helped the country in other ways as well.

GT: Despite assisting IDPs, what are the activities carried out by the foundation and what are your future plans?

LO: We always pay attention on cultural events, displaying Georgian culture, Georgian photography and writing, organizing exhibitions and different concerts in Italy. Unfortunately, I don't have much time for organizing such activities. For now, I am visiting Georgia for a week, and I brought another humanitarian assistance including 35 tones of winter clothing and food, which will be delivered to the Patriarchy. After that, the Patriarch decides how to organize delivery of the aid to the IDPs. We collaborated with different foreign associations for shipping the aid in such a short period of time, including Sempre Insieme Per La Pace, Comune Di Roma, Mayor Gianni Alemanno, Protezione Civile De Roma (Civil Defence of Rome), Arciconfraternita Del S.S. Sacramento E Di S. Trifone, charity association Amici Della Georgia (Switzerland), Universum (Switzerland), SOS Ticino (Switzerland), Magda Khotcholava, and International States Parliament for Safety and Peace (ISPSP). My mother started seeking for these Associations in August and ever since I got back from Georgia, I started heading the foundation.

GT: You have been talking about international associations. What about the support of the Georgian government?

LO: We have worked with the govenment in the past, but with help of the Patriarchy. Since 1990, we have had a very close relationship with the Georgian church, and with help of the Patriarch we always try to better organize our mission.

GT: You have been observing the latest political movements. In your opinion, what would have been done to avoid the tragedy?

LO: We have always known that Russia would never get used to the destruction of the Soviet Union. Since 1991, when Georgia adopted independence, Russia found the weakness with which it could play with the country, and that was the region of so-called South Ossetia. Because they knew that as soon as they could use Abkhazia and South Ossetia, endless destabilization would pop up in the country. I remember provocations from the Russian side a couple of months before the war, when they shot down the plane, and I was not the only one thinking that tragedy was about to come. As I lived in Italy, I tried to let society know about the fact. First of all, I warned the Italian government and the Parliament that a provocation was being prepared against Georgia. I created a Group of Georgia's Friends in Parliament, and we managed to involve several Parlamentarians in the group as well. We also managed to implement a conference, where the Italian Red Cross warned society about what was about to happen in the country. We urged the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs to express our misery about the refugees who have been existing in Georgia since 1990, and about those people who would have become refugees if the provocation did not end. Unfortunately our letter turned out to be prophetic.

GT: Are you planning to settle in Georgia and start other activities?

LO: I have been visiting Georgia since I was 8 years old, and time after time it gets harder for me to be far from this country. I don't exclude that I might be coming for longer period of time.

craig-oxley - March 13, 2009 05:29 PM (GMT)

Pope Benedict XIII Pope Benedict XIII

Pope Benedict XIII (February 2, 1649 – February 21, 1730), born Pietro Francesco Orsini, later Vincenzo Maria Orsini, was pope from 1724 until his death. He succeeded Pope Innocent XIII (1721–1724).

He was born in Gravina in Puglia to Ferdinando III Orsini, duke of Gravina, and Giovanna Frangipani della Tolfa, from Toritto. He was a member of the Orsini of Rome, the third and last member of that family to become Pope. He entered the Dominican Order and received the name Vincenzo Maria. He was named cardinal on February 22, 1672 (allegedly, against his will); later he was bishop of Manfredonia, bishop of Cesena and then archbishop of Benevento.

At first, he called himself Benedict XIV, but afterwards altered the title to Benedict XIII (the previous Benedict XIII having been considered an antipope).

Papal styles of
Pope Benedict XIII

Reference style His Holiness
Spoken style Your Holiness
Religious style Holy Father
Posthumous style None

He endeavoured to put a stop to the decadent lifestyles of the Italian priesthood and of the cardinalate. He also abolished the lottery in Rome. A man fond above all of asceticism and religious celebrations, according to Cardinal Lambertini (later Pope as Benedict XIV) he "did not have any idea about how to rule".[2] The government was effectively held in his lieu by Cardinal Niccolò Coscia, who had been Benedict's secretary when he was archbishop of Benevento, and who committed a long series of financial abuses at his own advantage, causing the ruin of the Papal treasure. According to Montesquieu, "All the money of Rome go to Benevento... as the Beneventani direct [Benedict's] weakness"[3].

In foreign politics, he struggled with John V of Portugal and the Jansenists

Benedict XIII, whose orders were descended from Scipione Rebiba, personally consecrated at least 139 bishops for various important European sees, including German, French, English and New World bishops. These bishops in turn consecrated bishops almost exclusively for their respective countries causing other episcopal lineages to die. As a result, more than 90% of present-day bishops trace their episcopal lineage through him to Cardinal Rebiba [1] [2].

In 1727 he inaugurated the famous Spanish Steps and founded the University of Camerino.

Benedict died in 1730 and was buried in a tomb in Santa Maria sopra Minerva completed by Pietro Bracci and others. Coscia fled from the city in the circumstance, being excommunicated under the new Pope Clement XII. He was later restored and took part to the conclaves of 1730 and 1740.

The comment to Benedict's death by Pasquino, the popular satirist of Rome, was:

"This tomb encloses
the bones of a little friar:
more than a saint's lover
a protector of brigands"

References
"Pope Benedict XIII" in the 1913 Catholic Encyclopedia.
Rendina, Claudio (1993). I papi. Storia e segreti. Rome: Newton Compton.

[edit] Footnotes

^ Pope Benedict X is now considered an antipope. At the time, however, this status was not recognized and so the man the Roman Catholic church officially considers the tenth true Pope Benedict took the official number XI, rather than X. This has advanced the numbering of all subsequent Popes Benedict by one. Popes Benedict XI-XVI are, from an official point of view, the tenth through fifteenth popes by that name.
^ Rendina, p. 590
^ Rendina, p. 592

QUOTE

PIETRO FRANCESCO ORSINI

Born 2 February, 1649; died 23 February, 1730. Being a son of Ferdinando Orsini and Giovanna Frangipani of Tolpha, he belonged to the archducal family of Orsini-Gravina. From early youth he exhibited a decided liking for the Order of St. Dominic, and at the age of sixteen during a visit to Venice he entered the Dominican novitiate against the will of his parents, though he was the eldest son and heir to the title and estates of his childless uncle the Duke of Bracciano. Their appeal to Clement IX was fruitless; the pope not only approved the purpose of the young novice, but even shortened his novitiate by half in order to free him from the importunities of his relatives. As student and novice, the young prince was a model of humility and zeal, and devoted himself to the acquisition of ecclesiastical learning. At the age of twenty-one he was promoted to a professorship. On 22 February, 1672, he was elevated to the cardinalate by his relative Clement X. He protested strenuously against the honour, but was compelled to accept it under the vow of obedience by the General of the Dominicans, at the insistence of the pope. As cardinal he adhered strictly to the observance of the rule of his order, and never laid aside his habit. In 1675 having the choice between the Archbishopric of Salerno and that of Manfredonia (Siponto) he chose the latter because it was a poor diocese and required great exercise of pastoral zeal. His virtuous life not only overcame the opposition made by his relatives when he became a monk, but exercised such a salutary influence that in time his mother, his sister, and two of his nieces embraced the religious life in the Third Order of St. Dominic. During the conclave that followed the death of Clement X (1676), he was one of the band of cardinals known as the zelanti who had agreed that no considerations of worldly prudence would influence them in the choice of a new pope. In the government of his diocese, Cardinal Orsini was unremitting in his labours and zeal. He visited even the most remote hamlets and was not less watchful over temporal than over spiritual things. He provided for the needs of the people, repaired churches and held a diocesan synod, the decrees of which he published. In 1680, when Innocent XI transferred him to Cesena, he left to the people of Siponto a memorial of his apostolic activity, his devotion to the poor and his constant preaching brought about a thorough-going reformation among both clergy and people. Seeing on his frequent journeys the condition of the churches in even the poorest parishes, he neglected none and by the promulgation of strict rules, he abolished all known abuses.

In 1686, a serious illness, attributed by his physicians to the climate, caused his transfer to Benevento, where he remained for thirty-eight years or until he was elected pope. During this long period he seldom left his diocese. Each year he made an episcopal visitation to every parish. Whenever necessary, he built or renovated churches. He built hospitals and strove incessantly for the alleviation of the sufferings of the poor. Twice during his episcopate (5 June, 1688, and 14 March, 1702) Benevento was visited by earthquakes and on these occasions his courage, his active charity in behalf of the stricken inhabitants, and his energy in the reconstruction of the city, won for him the title of the "Second Founder" of Benevento. He held two provincial synods, the first in 1693 attended by eighteen bishops, the second in 1698, with an attendance of twenty, the acts of which were approved at Rome. The only reproach made against his administration is that his simplicity and child-like confidence exposed him to the wiles of some unscrupulous persons who abused his confidence.

Cardinal Orsini had already taken part in four conclaves, when Innocent XIII died in March, 1724; and in all he had acted in the spirit of the zelanti. The conclave at which he was himself chosen assembled on 20 March; two months afterwards (25 May) no choice had been made. This long delay weighed heavily on the soul of Orsini, who commenced a novena of prayers to his patron, St. Philip Neri, that the election of a new pope might be no longer delayed. Before the novena was finished he saw with terror that he himself would be chosen, and, reluctant to accept a position which filled him with dread, he sought by all means in his power to prevent his election. Against his oft repeated protestations he was chosen 29 May, 1724, and even after the final vote was taken he refused to yield, arguing that his age, his physical weakness, his incapacity, and a resolution which he made never to become pope, should exempt him from such a grave responsibility. He yielded only when it was made clear to him that grave dangers were to be feared if the conclave should be reopened. So with tears, and obeying the command of the general of his order, he allowed himself to be proclaimed pope. In honour of Benedict XI, a member of the Dominican Order, he took the name of Benedict XIV, which he shortly changed to Benedict XIII as Peter de Luna who had previously borne the name (1394-1423) was a schismatic.

His first concern as pope was to enforce rigidly ecclesiastical discipline. He issued several decrees on ecclesiastical dress and was unsparing in his efforts to abolish any semblance of luxury or worldly pomp among the cardinals. During the Jubilee of 1725, he discharged personally the duties of Grand Penitentiary, and is said to have seriously considered the revival of public penances for certain grave offences. In order to encourage the foundation of diocesan seminaries, he organized a special commission (Congregatio Seminariorum). At a provincial Roman Lateran synod held in 1725, he required an unqualified acceptance of the Bull Unigenitus and through his efforts Cardinal de Noailles, Archbishop of Paris, was led to accept it in 1728. During his pontificate Benedict retained the Archbishopric of Benevento which he administered by a vicar-general and which he twice visited (1727, 1729).

In diplomatic matters and in his relations with foreign powers Benedict did not exhibit the vigour and conservatism which marked his administration in religious matters. His love of peace led him to attempt a settlement of the dispute in regard to the ecclesiastical privileges of the Kings of Naples (Monarchia Sicula) by a revocation of the constitution of Clement XI (1715) and by granting to the King of Naples (and Sicily) and his successors the right to appoint a spiritual judge in ecclesiastical affairs, reserving, however, the most important cases to the Holy See. The quarrel with Victor Amadeus of Savoy was compounded by giving to the king the right of patronage over the churches and monasteries in his dominions, without, however, conceding any claim to the incomes from vacant benefices. Towards John V, King of Portugal, the pope exhibited extraordinary firmness in refusing a claim based on the privileges held by other courts to propose candidates for the cardinalate. This was in consequence of the protests made by the cardinals against the election of Vincenzo Biechi, Nuncio to Lisbon. In retaliation John recalled all Portuguese residents in Rome, forbade all communication with the Roman Curia, and attempted to prevent the sending of the customary alms from Portugal to Rome; he also interfered with applications for dispensations from matrimonial impediments. At many courts of Europe grave offense was taken by the extension (1728) to the Universal Church of the Office of Gregory VII containing an account of the excommunication and deposition of Henry IV, which to Gallicans and Protestants seemed offensive.

Although full justice can scarcely be done to the virtuous life and the fatherly zeal for the interests of religion of Benedict, his pontificate lost much of its lustre because of his misplaced confidence in Cardinal Nicolò Coscia, who had been his coadjutor at Benevento. The pope was ignorant of the peculations and venality of his favourite, whose greed did much to diminish the prestige of the Holy See, and against whom a popular uprising took place on the pope's death, resulting in ten years' imprisonment for this unworthy cardinal. Benedict's theological writings were published in three volumes (Ravenna, 1728).

QUÉTIF-ECHARD, Script. Ord. Praed., I, 814; CAVALIERI, Galleria de sommi ponteficia, Patriarch . . . dell' O. P. (Benevento, 1696), I, 668; PITTONI, Vita del sommo pontefice Benedetto XIII (Venice, 1730); BORGIA, Benedicti XIII vita (Rome, 1752); GUARNACCI, Hist. pontif. roman., I, 39, II, 409 sqq.; SANDINI, Vitae pontif. roman. (Rome, 1763); GRONE, Papstgeschichte (Ratisbon, 1875); SENTIS, Die Monarchia Sicula (Freiburg, 1869), 159 sqq.; ARTAUD DE MONTOR, History of the Roman Pontiffs (New York, 1867), II.

PATRICK J. HEALY

Retrieved from "http://en.wikisource.org/wiki/Catholic_Encyclopedia_(1913)/Pope_Benedict_XIII"
Hidden categories: Subpages | Pages with override author

craig-oxley - March 13, 2009 05:32 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

BROTHERHOOD OF THE SNAKE

ORSINI

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - March 13, 2009 11:22 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Mar 13 2009, 03:38 AM)

[dohtml]<Center>
[/dohtml]

THE ROMAN 'FACIST' WASHINGTON D.C

[dohtml]</Center>
[/dohtml]

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]

[dohtml]</Center>
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - March 14, 2009 12:18 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

Pope Celestine III throwing the 'Cosmos' whilst handing the Black Cross to his Teutonic Papal Knights

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

QUOTE

Papa Celestino III ORSINI

Da Wikipedia, l'enciclopedia libera.

Celestino III, nato Giacinto di Pietro di Bobone (Roma, 1106 circa – Roma, 8 gennaio 1198), fu il 175° papa della Chiesa cattolica dal 1191 alla morte.

Biografia

Giacinto nacque nella nobile famiglia romana dei Bobone, da un ramo della quale discesero gli Orsini, per questo talvolta viene attribuito a questo papa il cognome "Orsini" o addirittura "Boboni Orsini". Gli viene attribuito anche il nome di Giacinto Boccardi.

Fu creato cardinale diacono nel 1144 ed eletto al sommo pontificato il 30 marzo 1191, all'età di 85 anni, quando era solo un diacono. Fu quindi uno dei pochi pontefici che, al momento dell'elezione non erano nè vescovi ed addirittura nemmeno sacerdoti; ricevette quindi l'ordinazione sacerdotale il 13 aprile, Sabato Santo e la consacrazione episcopale il giorno seguente, domenica di Pasqua del 1191.

Governò la Chiesa per sei anni, nove mesi e nove giorni e morì l'8 gennaio 1198. Venne sepolto in Laterano.
Il collegio cardinalizio aveva deciso in fretta la sua elezione, poiché l'imperatore Enrico VI stava ormai nei pressi di Roma. Egli giunse a Roma chiedendo la corona imperiale. L'autorità papale era in quel momento molto bassa, avendo più autorevolezza il Senato romano che seppe opporsi a Enrico VI, chiedendo a sua volta la rimozione della guarnigione imperiale stanziata nella cittadina di Tuscolo vicino Roma. Enrico VI cedette a tale richiesta e il 15 aprile fu incoronato imperatore del Sacro Romano Impero. Quindi partì lasciando la città di Tuscolo alla vendetta devastatrice dei romani.

Quando Enrico VI fece uccidere il vescovo di Liegi Alberto di Lovanio il papa non osò protestare e quando, sempre Enrico VI, fece prigioniero Riccardo Cuor di Leone, costringendolo a sborsare un favoloso riscatto, Celestino III non utilizzò l'arma della scomunica nei confronti dell'imperatore, si dice per paura. Nel 1192 Celestino III confermò lo statuto dell'Ordine Teutonico. Poco prima di morire espresse l'intenzione di abdicare indicando quale suo successore il cardinale Giovanni di San Paolo, ma i cardinali non glielo permisero.

QUOTE

Pope Celestine III

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Celestine_III

Pope Celestine III (Rome, c. 1106 – January 8, 1198), born Giacinto Bobone, was elected Pope on March 30, 1191, and reigned until his death. He was born into the noble Orsini family, though he was only a deacon before becoming Pope. He was ordained a priest on April 13, 1191, ruled the church six years, nine months, and nine days (though believed to have been about eighty five when elected), died January 8, 1198, and was buried at the Lateran. He crowned the Emperor Henry VI (1190–97) on the day after his election with a ceremony symbolizing his absolute supremacy, as described by Roger of Hoveden, who is believed (more reasonably as it would seem) by Baronius, but discredited by Natalis Alexander. He subsequently excommunicated the same Henry VI for wrongfully keeping Richard I of England (1189–99) in prison. In 1192, he confirmed the statutes of the Teutonic Order of Knights. He would have resigned the Papacy, and recommended a successor (Cardinal Giovanni di San Paolo, OSB) shortly before his death, but was not allowed to do so by the cardinals.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Otto Von Hapsburg dead

Title: Otto Von Hapsburg dead
Description: Holy Roman Empire lineage

Ken Ardel - July 4, 2011 05:55 PM (GMT)

http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/2011/jul/0...bsburg-obituary

News
World news
Austria
Otto von Habsburg
Son of Austria's last emperor and champion of European unity guardian.co.uk, Monday 4 July 2011 18.50 BST

Article history

Otto von Habsburg, who has died aged 98, bore the oldest and most eminent dynastic name in European history and could, according to genealogists, trace his ancestry back to the sixth century. The pretender to the defunct thrones of Austria, Hungary, Croatia and Bohemia (now part of the Czech Republic), he pursued a democratic postwar career as a member of the European parliament and a fervent advocate of European union.

Spending time in German diplomatic and political circles, as I once did as a correspondent, you meet men who introduce themselves in the formal German manner – a brief bow from the shoulders followed by an unadorned name straight out of Germanic history. But I never quite got used to shaking hands with a stranger who flatly introduced himself as "Bismarck" (diplomat), "Hannover" (banker) or "Rommel" (mayor of Stuttgart). Or indeed "Habsburg", whom I met briefly at a party conference in Munich.

Franz Joseph Otto Robert Maria Anton Karl Max Heinrich Sixtus Xavier Felix Renatus Ludwig Gaetan Pius Ignatius von Habsburg was born at Reichenau an der Rax, Lower Austria. His father, Charles, would become Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary.

Otto's mother was Zita of Bourbon-Parma. His great-uncle, Archduke Franz Ferdinand, whose assassination in 1914 would trigger the first world war, stood in for Otto's ancient godfather, the Emperor Franz Joseph, at his christening. Otto's father succeeded Franz Joseph in 1916, whereupon Otto became crown prince.

Otto von Bismarck had excluded Austria-Hungary from his united Germany of 1871 because of its large and diffuse non-German population. After 1918, it duly broke up into independent states including Czechoslovakia and Hungary. The rump of ethnically German Austria became a republic too. Charles went into exile with his family that year, and they later moved to the Basque country, Belgium and France. In 1919 Austria finally dispossessed the Habsburgs, although they kept their private fortune. Charles died in Madeira in 1922, whereupon Otto became head of the house of Habsburg, the titular Duke of Lorraine and pretender to four thrones, at the age of nine.

Noble titles confer no status or privilege in the four republics of which Habsburg held citizenship, but while Germany – where he spent most of his later life – tolerates their use, in Austria they are banned by law. So in the country of his birth, the eldest son of the last emperor of Austria was officially styled Otto Habsburg-Lothringen (Lorraine) – even the simple aristocratic prefix "von" was outlawed. Habsburg, always a loyal Catholic working for better understanding among Christians, Jews and Muslims, went to the Catholic University of Leuven, in Belgium, to read politics and social studies. He graduated in 1935.

Still believing in his right to the throne, Habsburg as an Austrian patriot opposed the country's absorption by Hitler into the Third Reich in 1938, and was sentenced to death by the Nazis. He fled France with his mother to neutral Portugal and then Washington DC in 1940, just before the Germans took Paris. After the war, Habsburg spent several years in France and Spain.

In May 1961, he formally renounced his claim to the Austrian throne and announced that he was a loyal citizen of the republic. As a result, two years later, an Austrian court lifted the ban on his visiting the land of his birth – a decision that proved unpopular in some quarters, precipitating the "Habsburg crisis" in Austrian politics. He was allowed to cross the border in 1966. Towards the end of his life, he admitted that his heart had not been in the renunciation, which he made out of sheer pragmatism.

Taking up residence in Germany, whose citizenship Habsburg also held, he joined the Christian Social Union (CSU), the rightwing Bavarian sister party of the Christian Democratic Union party (CDU), active in the rest of Germany. He was elected to the European parliament for the CSU and sat for 20 years from 1979 as MEP for Bavaria, becoming the equivalent of "father of the house" as the oldest member. He was already president of the international Pan-Europa Union from 1973, retiring only in 2004, strongly favouring political union and the eastward expansion of the EU to countries once ruled by his ancestors. In 1988, Habsburg clashed with the Rev Ian Paisley, then an MEP, after Paisley called the visiting Pope John Paul II the antichrist. A year later Habsburg helped to organise the "pan-European picnic" on the Austrian-Hungarian border in the summer of 1989, one of the events that led to the fall of the Berlin Wall and the collapse of Soviet communism.

He married the German Princess Regina of Saxe-Meiningen in 1951; she died in 2010. They lived near Lake Starnberg in Bavaria and had five daughters and two sons, who survive him. The eldest son, Karl, becomes head of the house of Habsburg.

• Otto von Habsburg, politician, born 20 November 1912; died 4 July 2011

TheUnhivedMind - July 4, 2011 09:54 PM (GMT)

DING DONG, A WICKED WITCH IS DEAD! THE POWERFUL KNIGHT OF MALTA, OTTO VON HABSBURG HAS DIED TO MEET HIS MASTER SATAN AND NOW THE NEXT SATANIC PUPPET, KARL HABSBURG-LOTHRINGEN TAKES OVER THE REIGNS. REMEMBER HE'S ONE OF THE SWINES WHO'S ADDED THE MULATTO BREEDING IN THE WEST TO DESTROY HUMAN GENETICS/RACE AND CULTURES. REMEMBER PRINCE HANS ADAM II OF LIECHTENSTEN IS ALSO A KNIGHT OF MALTA

TheUnhivedMind - July 4, 2011 09:56 PM (GMT)

Otto von Habsburg

https://wikispooks.com/ISGP/organisations/i...absburg_bio.htm

Born in Lower Austria in 1912 as a member of the Royal House of Habsburg, who have been allies of the Vatican for many centuries. Eldest son of Archduke Karl and Princess Zita von Bourbon-Parma. The Habsburg dynasty was, and is, very close to the Thurn und Taxis family (1001 Club) and the Vatican. During WWI his family lost the throne to the Habsburg kingdom. The Austrian parliament officially expelled the Habsburg dynasty and confiscated all of its property. Opposed the Nazi Anschluss of Austria in 1938 and went to the US (with help of the Knights of Malta). Spent most of the war years in Washington (1940-1944), after escaping from Austria to Portugal with a visa issued by the Portuguese consul in Bordeaux. He became friends with FDR, George F. Kennan (the father of the Containment policy), Felix Frankfurter, Winston Churchill and other important individuals. One of his main opponents at the time was Pilgrims Society member Lord Halifax (important to UN and pro-Nazi), who bluntly asked him: "Are you pursuing your intrigues even here?". Cordell Hull, pro-Vichy and pro-UN, was another opponent of Otto. Part of a mainstream bio: "A member of Koudenhove-Kalergi's Paneuropa Union since 1936 [24 years old then], Dr. Otto von Habsburg represented the organization in Washington D.C. beginning in 1940. In close collaboration with his brothers, the Archdukes Rudolf, Robert and Karl Ludwig, he convinced President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to regard Austria as a victim state of Nazi aggression. Based on this recognition, Archduke Robert and Winston Churchill, who favored a postwar reconstitution of a Danube confederation forged the Moscow Declaration of 1943, which prepared for Austria's independence at the conclusion of the war." The Paneuropa Union was founded in 1923 in Vienna by Count Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi, the son of an Austro-Hungarian (Habsburg) diplomat. Early leading members were Aristide Briand and Austrian chancellors Ignaz Seipel and Karl Renner. Opus Dei was founded in 1928 and at least in later times this group's objectives would essentially merge with those of the Paneuropa Union: 1) keep the Soviets out of Europe, and 2) create a Roman Catholic-oriented European superstate. Kalergi was of the opinion that Britain should be kept out of Paneuropa since it managed an autonomous empire. Unlike Russia, Turkey belonged to Asia and also should not be included in Paneuropa, according to Kalergi. The Paneuropean Union is also responsible for the 12 stars on a blue ground as official symbol for Europe, which symbolizes the stars of the virgin Mary. After the war Otto lived in exile in France and Spain. In Spain he received a secondary formal education by Benedictine fathers. An article in Lobster Magazine claimed that the impoverished Otto was subsidized to the tune of £50,000 a month by MI6 chief Stewart Menzies from 1939 to 1953. In 1949, together with Opus Dei member Alfredo Sanchez Bella (August 21, 1964, The Frederick News, 'Rev. Dr. Thorning Returns From Europe': "In Rome, Father Thorning was the guest of Spanish Ambassador Alfredo Sanchez Bella"; November 4, 1969, Greeley Daily Tribune, 'Economic, Social Advancement Aims of New Franco Cabinet': "[Alfredo] Sanchez Bella, aside from his own talents as a diplomat, is the brother of Florencio Sanchez Bella, leader of the Opus Dei in Spain."; Bella was Ambassador to Rome until November 1969), Otto founded the European Centre of Documentation and Information (CEDI), "whose objective was to construct around the Spanish Borbóns a federation of European states united in Christianity and anti-Communism. This sounded very much like a modern resurrection of the Holy Roman Empire over which Charles V had reigned. Like the Spanish empire of old, the envisaged Catholic federation was intended to have large-spectrum antennae in Latin America and the United States. CEDI was believed to be an auxiliary operation of Opus Dei. Although headquartered in Munich, it held its annual general meetings at the Monastery of El Escorial, near Madrid, and it continued functioning throughout the Cold War. Its tentacles spread among Catholic Monarchist circles throughout western Europe... [Otto] reportedly became one of Opus Dei's most treasured Old Guard supernumeraries. Like Opus Dei, CEDI published no membership lists, but the president of its Belgian chapter, Chevalier Marcel de Roover, was known to have close ties with the Belgian royal family. Indeed, Archduke Otto's nephew, Lorenz von Habsburg, son of international banker Karel von Habsburg, married Princes Astrid of Belgium [daughter of King Albert II, who stands accused of child abuse in the Pinon Affair, not unlike other members of the royal family; chairwoman Belgian Red Cross; patron Belgian Kids Foundation for Pediatric Research. The support committee of the Belgian Kids Foundation includes the wife of Count Maurice Lippens, who [the husband] stands accused of some of the most horrific child abuse practices. The support committee is presided over by Count Jean Pierre de Launoit, whose name once appeared on a list of people accused of involvement in trade in children and drugs. Nobody has been prosecuted], daughter of King Albert II. Astrid's aunt, the former Queen Fabiola, was related through the House of Aragon to the Spanish Borbón family. Professor Luc de Heusch of the Free University of Brussels, an expert on Sacred Kingship, maintained tha Queen Fabiola, a disciple of Escrivá de Balaguer [founder of Opus Dei], 'introduced Opus Dei to the Catholic aristocracy of Europe.' An idea of the company gathered from the membership of a sister organization, the Pan-European Union, headquartered in Zurich. An idea of the company CEDI kept can be gathered from the membership of a sister organization, the Pan-European Union, headquartered in Zurich. Also headed by Archduke Otto, among its members were two Belgian prime ministers, an Italian industrialist close to the Vatican, a former French prime minister, his legal counsellor, an aide to Valery Giscard d'Estaing, the secretary of Giscard's Independent Republican Party... the deputy head of NATO's intelligence division, a director of West German intelligence, the Spanish ambassador to the European Community and Alfredo Sanchez Bella." (1997, Robert Hutchinson, 'Their Kingdom Come', p.153-154). CEDI stood in close contact with the Belgian Cercle des Nations, which was a gathering place for Brussels fascist aristocracy which was founded in 1969. On the next page Hutchinson writes: "Otto is chairman for life of the CEDI. Married Princess Regina Von Sachsen-Meiningen in 1951 with the blessing of Pius XII. Vice-president of the Internationale Paneuropa-Union 1957-1972, working under Count Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi. His Opusian associate Jean Violet founded the Pinay Circle (Le Cercle) in the 1950s, one of the most influential behind-the-scenes anti-communist and pro-Europe organizations, which was, and is, riddled with questionable intelligence operatives. Otto's CSU (Bavaria) and CDU (the rest of Germany) party friends, Franz-Joseph Strauss (a hard-right politician), Count Hans Huyn (intermarried with Habsburg family), and Alois Mertes (important German politician in early 1980s) have all been leading members of both Le Cercle and the ultraconservative anti-communist faction in German politics. They are all suspected of having been members of Opus Dei. In 1959, Otto received the Knight Grand-Cross of Honour and Devotion of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta with the Cross of Honorary Professed Member. One of Otto's political secretaries, Jacques G. Jonet, is named as a co-founder of low-profile ultraconservative/fascist European-integration groups as Ordre du Rouvre, the Institut Européen pour la Paix et la Sécurité (IEPS), the Société Internationale de Wilton Park (Wilton Park conferences), and Cercle des Nations. Opusian Cercle founder Jean Violet was one of the few French members of Cercle des Nations (1990, Hugo Gijssels, 'De Bende & Co.', p. 130), together with Belgium's controversial hard-right aristocracy. Jonet was named as an individual that attempted to crush the Pinon investigation of the late 1970s and early 1980s, in which leading Cercle des Nations members like the Opusian Paul Vanden Boeynants, not to mention members of the Royal House of Belgium (counts Opus Dei and SMOM members in the family), were accused of child abuse. Jonet has been named as a member of Mouvement d'Action pour l'Union de l'Europe (MAUE), the Habsburgfounded Centre of Documentation and Information (CEDI), and CEPIC (of the Opusian Baron de Bonvoisin and Paul Vanden Boeynants, both named as child abusers in the Dutroux X-Files by a combination of X1, X2, and X3). Jonet is suspected of membership in Opus Dei and is the representative of the Belgian Order of Malta, while his wife is a member of the administrative council (anno 2006). In 1961, Otto finally renounced all claims to the Austrian throne and was eventually allowed to return to his home country in 1966. CEDI, earlier founded by Otto von Habsburg, had a secretary general named Paul Vankerkhoven, who became a member of the Ordre du Rouvre, the ultra right-wing catholic magazine Chantiers-Occident, and the fascist Cercle des Nations. Vankerkhoven was a co-founder and vice-chairman of l'Institut Europeen de Developpement, headquartered in the castle of the earlier-mentioned Baron de Bonvoisin. Vankerkhoven also founded the Belgian branch of the ultra-reactionary World Anti-Communist League (WACL), the 'Ligue Internationale de la Liberte' (LIL). The WACL was sponsored by the Sun Myung Moon sect and aristocrats like Count Hans Huyn and Otto von Habsburg were involved with it in Germany, at least in the late 1980s. Otto co-founded the Académie Européenne de Sciences Politiques, located in Brussels, somewhere in the 1960s or early 1970s. It was an ultraconservative Paneuropa affiliated group, managed by the Opusian Cercle founder Jean Violet and Paul Vanden Boeynants, also Opus Dei, is said to have been one of its prominent members. When Franco's regime was challenged in the late 1960s by members of Opus Dei and other reformer, Franco designated Prince Juan Carlos as king of Spain at the moment Franco died. It has been claimed that Franco initially invited Otto von Habsburg to become the new king, but Otto refused and recommended Juan Carlos. Franco, Juan Carlos, and Otto von Habsburg all were Knights of Malta. When Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi died in 1972, Otto followed him up as provisional president of the Internationale Paneuropa-Union. At the suggestion of French president, Paneuropa- and Cercle member Georges Pompidou Otto was elected official president in 1973. He still served in this position anno 2006. January 2004, Contemporary Review, 'Otto von Habsburg and the future of Europe': "Archduke Otto was the right-hand man of Count Coudenhove-Kalergi, and when the Count died in 1972, the leadership of Paneuropa fell to him. Since then he has been the President. When interviewed in 1986, Otto von Habsburg was insistent that Paneuropa still had work to do, and would not be subsumed in the European Community (as it then was) itself. " Anno 2006, Otto is an advisor to the Coundenhove-Kalergi Foundation, together with Count Hans Huyn, Jakob Coudenhove-Kalergi (nephew of Richard, the founder of the Paneuropa Union), and Prince Carlo della Torre e Tasso (Thurn und Taxis). Nikolaus von Liechtenstein (younger brother of Hans-Adam) is an executive member of the the Coundenhove-Kalergi Foundation. In December 1973 Otto gave a speech to the Benedictine monks at the Woodside Priory School on San Francisco's peninsula. Hosts for the luncheon were Phil Gregory of Raytheon (Philip L. Gregory; one of the buyers of Raytheon in the 1940s, with what would become his wife (Raytheon was originally founded by Vannevar Bush in 1922-1925; Pilgrims Society member and president-descendant Charles Francis Adams IV would sit on the board of Raytheon from 1938 to 1997); executive director of Raytheon, first in New England and then in California until 1979; founded the Semiconductor Equipment Materials International (SEMI) with two colleagues in 1970, the non-profit group that presents semiconductor manufacturers trade forums worldwide; president, chairman, and executive director of SEMI; he and his wife traveled extensively in building SEMI internationally; among their tours was a trip in the early 1970s to Beijing, China, right after Kissinger, Rockefeller, and Nixon had "opened it up"; his wife was active in numerous catholics groups, including the Legion of Mary) and Bill Keady Jr., president of Advalloy (November 19, 1973, San Mateo Times, 'Dr. Von Habsburg to Speak'). Also reported by the San Mateo Times of that day: "Two distinguished visitors will be in the Bay Area next month and both will be guests of honor at Dec. 6 events at the Fairmont Hotel... Dr. Otto von Habsburg, son of the last emperor and king of Austria-Hungary, will be honored by the Woodside Priory School at a formal dinner dance... That noon, Monsignor John Patrick Carroll-Abbing, founder and president of Boys' Towns of Italy, will attend the Oscar de la Renta fashion show and luncheon benefiting Girls' Town of Italy (a part of Boys Towns)." Member of the European Parliament for the CSU 1979-1999, the party of his reactionary Opusian Cercle friends Franz-Joseph Strauss, Count Hans Huyn, and Alois Mertes. Among the foreign policy advisors to the Hanns Seidel Stiftung (Hanns Seidel Foundation) since 1975 (established in 1967), as well as the Kuratoriums Mitglied of the Ludwig Frank Stiftung (Ludwig-Frank Foundation). The Hanns Seidel Foundation, based in Germany, receives funding from the European Union. The foundation is a geopolitical trust attached to the Bavarian CSU party (the Bavarian Christian Democrats) of the Strauss, Mertes, Huyn, and Edmund Stoiber. It was active on all continents in funding anti-communist militias. July 2005, The Trumphet, 'From the Editor: German Election Crisis—and a New Charlemagne': "Here is what Mr. Armstrong's Plain Truth staff wrote, September 1979: "On the United Nations, he [Otto] has declared that the organization is dominated by 'anti-European illiterates, despots and cannibals.'... "Possibly von Habsburg's most controversial suggestion has been his recipe for dealing with national emergencies. In the April 1978 issue of his conservative publication Zeitbühne, he suggested that in certain emergency situations (such as nuclear blackmail or other major acts of terrorism) governments should let a strongman take over for a period of nine months, allowing him to suspend laws and 'take all measure necessary for the maintenance of the life of the population.'... Interestingly, von Habsburg counts Bavarian leader Franz Josef Strauss among 'the few full-blooded politicians' who 'in the case of serious national crises are able to accept responsibility because of their clear-sightedness and indomitableness.' Von Habsburg says he is 'personally pretty close to his [Strauss's] ideas in many ways on the European unity subject"... The zenith of Habsburg power came in the 16th century under Emperor Charles v. Chosen by electors in 1519 at the age of 20, Charles was crowned Holy Roman emperor by Pope Leo x in October 1520. He ruled until 1556 and is considered to have been the greatest monarch to bear the imperial crown since Charlemagne. He was the last emperor to vigorously attempt to realize the medieval idea of a unified empire embracing the entire Christian world... Christopher Hollis, in the foreword to von Habsburg's book The Social

Order of Tomorrow, points out that Otto ‘would like to see Europe resume her essential unity, and in the symbolism of that unity he thinks that the imperial crown of Charlemagne and of the Holy Roman Empire might well have its part to play.’ “Inter-European unity has long been a quest of the Habsburg dynasty. Otto himself often speaks of the similarities between the Holy Roman Empire of the Middle Ages and his view of a coming United States of Europe. In this regard, Otto has stressed the importance of religion in the formation of a united Europe. He regards Christianity as Europe’s bulwark: ‘The cross doesn’t need Europe, but Europe needs the cross.’" The pope has also spoken out against Liberal Anglo-Saxon politics. Otto was a member of the Hilfskomitee Freiheit für Rudolf Hess (Freedom for Rudolf Hess Committee), which advocated the release of the former Thulist and number two in Hitler's early regime. Hess had secretly flown to England in May 1941, almost certainly trying to establish a peace between Hitler and the British Empire (through the opponents of Churchill affiliated with the British royal family) so both could attack Russia. Unfortunately for Hess, he was caught. After the war he was held in a prison until his death, mainly because the Soviet Union did not approve of his release. The Action Committee for the Freedom of Rudolf Hess made it to the international news a few times in the 1970s. SMOM member Kurt Waldheim, the secretary general of the United Nations who had to resign in 1986 after he was accused of war crimes, was a favorite of Otto. Otto was honored by the Anti-Defamation League (ADL) in February 1988. On 19 August 1989 he was the Patron of the Paneuropean-Picnic in Sopron, which was a protest against the Iron Curtain. Since 1988 he worked on the extension of the Paneuropa Union into the countries behind the Iron Curtain, on the independence of the Baltic States from Moscow, and of Croatia, Slovenia, Bosnia-Herzgovina and Macedonia from Belgrade (Serbia). He is considered an enemy of the Serbs. When Croatia (90% roman catholic) and Slovenia (84% roman catholic) withdrew from Yugoslavia, the Vatican immediately supported the action, together with the German government. 1994, Jean-Paul Picaper, 'Otto de Habsbourg: Memoires d'Europe', pp. 209-210 (Otto to a Figaro correspondent): "If German recognized Slovenia and Croatia so rapidly, even against the will of [then German foreign minister] Hans-Dietrich Genscher who did not want to take that step, it's because the Bonn government was subjected to an almost irresistible pressure of public opinion. In this regard, the German press rendered a very great service, in particular the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung and Carl Gustav Strohm, that great German journalist who works for Die Welt." In the late 80s and early 1990s, Otto invited leaders from Croatia and Slovenia to the European Parliament. He visited these countries and stated they should prepare themselves for a place in the European Union. Habsburg and his allies warned about Milosevic, who had just become a prominent former-communist socialist nationalist and wanted to unite all land where a significant amount of Serbians (mainly eastern orthodox christians) lived. Civil wars followed in which the Serbians ultimately were driven back south and east into Serbia. German, US, an UK intelligence services, together with special forces, were secretly funding the (also quite brutal) opposition to Serbia. NATO also bombed the Serbs twice. Otto had called for the bombing of Belgrade (capital of the Serbs) in 1993. Some fear that Otto would like to see Serbia removed from the map, as he blames this nation for the downfall of his beloved Austro-Hungarian Empire. In 2005 Carla Del Ponte, chief prosecutor of the UN international criminal tribunal for the former Yugoslavia, claimed that the Vatican protected suspected war criminal general Ante Gotovina, a hero in Croatia. Before becoming a general in the Croatian army, Gotovina fought in the French Foreign Legion; then became a close collaborator of the hard-right Jean-Marie Le Pen. In good tradition of the Nazi ratlines, the Vatican allegedly hid him in a monastery. September 20, 2005, The Telegraph, 'Vatican accused of shielding 'war criminal": "Carla del Ponte, the chief prosecutor of the UN international criminal tribunal for the former Yugoslavia, said she believed that Gen Ante Gotovina was being sheltered in a Franciscan monastery in his native Croatia... She said: "I have information he is hiding in a Franciscan monastery and so the Catholic Church is protecting him. I have taken this up with the Vatican and the Vatican refuses totally to co-operate with us." In July, Mrs del Ponte travelled to Rome to share her intelligence with the Vatican's "foreign minister", Archbishop Giovanni Lajolo. He refused to help, telling her the Vatican was not a state and thus had "no international obligations" to help the UN to hunt war criminals. Mrs del Ponte complained: "They said they have no intelligence and I don't believe that. I think that the Catholic Church has the most advanced intelligence services."" In 1989, he said to the European Parliament: "The [European] Community is living largely by the heritage of the Holy Roman Empire, though the great majority of the people who live by it don’t know by what heritage they live." Otto has met with Pope John Paul II to discuss at length the subject of European integration. In early 2006 he met with the new pope, Benedikt XVI (Ratzinger), whom he had already known. From September to December 2004 he travelled to Kosovo, Zurich, Rome, Vienna, Tyrol, Madeira, Croatia, London, again to Vienna, Paris, Strasbourg, Spain, Westphalia, Lower Saxony, Budapest, and three times to Hungary. In November 2002 the Austrian weekly Zur Zeit published an interview with Otto von Habsburg in which he had said: "If we consider America's internal politics, then we find that it is split in two halves. On the one hand, the Defense Department, in which the key positions are held by Jews; the Pentagon is today a Jewish institution. On the other hand, the blacks are in the State Department: for instance, Colin Powell or especially Condoleezza Rice. It is an internal conflict between hawks and doves. Currently, the Anglo-Saxons, that's to say the white Americans, are playing a relatively minor role." On April 20, 2005 National Public Radio (NPR) interviewed Otto and asked him about these comments. He confirmed what he said earlier and added: "There are many nationalities making up America. There are four states that in twenty years will have a majority of Spanish language [citizens]; and I don't think that's a catastrophy. It's a very good thing. I'm already well located. I have many children and all my children speak Spanish too." In the interview he's clearly hinting two or three times to the fact that he wants northern Africa to become part of the European Union. Otto thinks the rejected 2005 EU Constitution should be rewritten and reintroduced. Made a speech in German and French praising Valéry Giscard d'Estaing (former French president; like Habsburg, a good friend of Opusian Cercle founder Jean Violet; prominent member Paneuropa Union; received the Charlemagne award; Knight of Malta; Giscard's father had close connections to the Synarchy and Opus Dei) when this person was head of the Draft Treaty that should have established a Constitution for Europe. 2005, Ausgabe 2-3, Eurojournal pro management, p. 14, committee member Otto von Habsburg: "The original wording of the Constitution draft by Giscard d'Estaing was quite short and comprehensible. So why did it fail to convince the voters? This is plain: a campaign launched with the help of a book thick with legal terminology which, the bureaucrats hoped, voters would read and comprehend. Much money was spent, but nothing was gained. A Commission full of aged politicians to work on the draft which spoilt it just as "too many cooks spoil the broth". Giscard d'Estaing knew what would happen with his initial draft, and later photographs show the expression of a man in desperation who knew that should this revamped version fail, then he would be responsible anyway... No attempt was made to reach out to future generations as did the late pope John Paul II or as Pope Benedict XVI now does; two old men who somehow managed and manage to enthuse the masses. It is therefore no wonder that the battle was lost; the idea however still lives on, but we need new politicians to bring the idea home to voters." Giscard's initial draft version delegated a lot of authority to the EU presidency, who would be elected to serve for five years instead of the previous method of a six month rotation between all EU members. The European Council, the body made up of the heads of state of the member countries, would do the electing on the basis of Qualified Majority Voting. Giscard, who now favored the name United Europe, made many other proposals and was widely attacked for trying to reduce the influence of smaller EU countries, the commission and the European Parliament. Giscard did not see an EU president being directly elected by the European people "for another 50 years." Like Otto, Giscard d'Estaing is absolutely against Turkey joining the European Union. Tuesday 28 February 2006, Valery Giscard d'Estaing, speech at the London School of Economics entitled 'The Political Future of Europe' (transcript posted at website of LSE): "Let's be clear about this: the rejection of the Constitutional Treaty in France was a mistake, which will have to be corrected. Was the mistake due to the over-complicated presentation of the draft, or the choice of a referendum [public vote...] at a time when politicians were highly unpopular? It doesn't much matter. Everyone has accepted the democratic verdict, whatever their regrets. But the main victim has been a Treaty, which, according to the opinion polls, the French were not against. At a time when second chances are the order of the day, the Constitutional Treaty will have to be given its second chance. When? When France has completed her great electoral debate, with the presidential and parliamentary elections which are due to be held 14 months' time, in spring 2007. How? By refocusing the debate on the only genuinely constitutional parts, that is to say, the first part, and the Charter of Fundamental Rights demanded by the European Left, neither of which have given rise to much protest. Then the third part could follow a parliamentary route, which is far better suited to its legal nature." In this speech Giscard proposed that the two first parts of the Constitution could be subject to a new referendum, whereas the third and more controversial part would be subject to a parliamentary vote. On May 23, 2006 the Financial Times quoted Giscard d'Estaing as saying: "It is not France that has said no. It is 55 per cent of the French people - 45 per cent of the French people said yes... I wish that we will have a new chance, a second chance, for the constitutional project." Otto concurs and added in 2006 "A short, clear constitution text must go", suggesting the average person in the EU is interested in reading the document. April 09, 2002, Christian Science Monitor, 'Europe, prepare to greet Islam': "For centuries, the ruling Habsburgs defended the Continent against the expansion of the Turkish Ottoman Empire. Now Mr. von Habsburg makes it clear that all nations bordering the Mediterranean Sea – including those in North Africa and the Middle East – have a place in his broad vision for tomorrow's Europe." In other interviews Otto indeed claimed that as far as he is concerned, Africa starts with the Sahara. The small strip above it should still be included in Europe. Otto is also happy to see that Central and Eastern Europe starts to have more and more influence in the rest of Europe. When Otto von Habsburg visited the United States in April 2005, one of the few people he spoke with in private was Henry Kissinger. Also interviewed by a few newspapers during his visit to the United States. April 18, 2005, Washington Times, 'Habsburg, 92, has eye on future': "The Cosmos Club's windows were ablaze with light... talk centered on Archduke Otto's lifelong quest to build and expand the European Union. "Ten new states have recently been admitted, and we are waiting for others, especially Kosovo, Macedonia, Montenegro and the Ukraine," he told a reporter... Archduke Otto, amazingly hale and hearty at 92, readily admitted the EU was "already too big and unwieldy" but said that shouldn't matter: "The new [member states] will be better Europeans than the old because they know the totalitarian alternative. They will enrich us enormously." Later, he praised the Ukrainians for courageously taking to the streets to ensure democratic rule." Official supporter of Europe for Christ, which was founded in July 2005 and aims to insert the values of catholicism in the European constitution and the life of Europeans. The Vatican was "surprised" in 2003 that there was no specific reference to God and Christianity in the proposed EU constitution, even though the general importance of religions and spirituality on human society was in fact mentioned. Otto supports the Vatican on this issue. In November 2005 Otto denounced Putin as a KGB dictator and spoke in favor of Khodorkovsky, the famous oligarch, being released. Bavaria is known to have made large investments in Russia since the Oligarchs came to power. February 5-6, 2004, European Navigator/Jean Monnet Foundation for Europe, Otto von Habsburg interview in which he replies to the question what he thinks were the key players in European integration (translated from French): "Charles de Gaulle in the first place. Certainly one of the big visionaries of Europe... I will certainly also say Adenauer. Adenauer with his Rhenish vision because the Rhine plays a fundamental role in this Europe... Coudenhove, certainly; and... Schuman... I put them at the same level... Coudenhove said: "You know, it is awfully difficult to make Europe with the English, but without them, it is impossible" That is very true. And in case of France, that's also true. There are a lot of difficulties with the French, but we cannot make it without them. They are an essential element to us and without De Gaulle... France would have collapsed completely." February 5-6, 2004, European Navigator/ Jean Monnet Foundation for Europe, Otto von Habsburg interview in which he replies to the question what he thinks about Jean Monnet (translated from French): "Jean Monnet had a role, an important role, but he certainly was not the only one... the relations between Monnet and Coudenhove were not exactly very intimate... I was on the side of Coudenhove during the whole time, because I agreed with his vision. Jean Monnet was rather a technocrat and Coudenhove was a prophet and a visionary. It was that big of a difference, in my opinion." In the end the only differences between Monnet and Otto seem to be that Otto is taking things slower and has traditionally not really been concerned with Britain entering the European Union, as this was not an original Paneuropean objective. Otto von Habsburg has been named as a member of the Order of Malta, a member of Opus Dei, and a member of the Mont Pelerin Society (a branch of the Paneuropa Union). Prominent Catholic and a patron of the Augustan Society. Former sovereign of the Order of the Golden Fleece, which has now become his son. King Juan Carlos of Spain is head of the only other Order of the Golden Fleece. Has also been named as a member of the controversial Order of Zion, if it even exists, or existed. Other rumors about the Order of Zion have named Cercle members Alain Poher and Giulio Andreotti. Otto and his wife reside at the Villa Austria in Pöcking, Bavaria, Germany.

Otto von Habsburg's oldest son, Karl Habsburg (b. 1961), who is to be the future head of the Habsburg family, married Baroness Francesca von Thyssen-Bornemisza in 1993. Baroness Francesca is the daughter of Baron Hans Heinrich von Thyssen-Bornemisza, who was a member of the 1001 Club. They had three children in the 1990s, whose godmother is Gloria von Thurn und Taxis, the wife of the late Prince Johannes von Thurn und Taxis. Karl is president of the Pan Europa Union in Austria and currently serves as the elected OVP Party representative of Austria to the European Parliament. His son Georg von Habsburg is a Hungarian diplomat to the EU and his daughter, Countess Walburga Douglas, is a Pan Europa representative, politician and author.

The Habsburg Empire did not entirely end after WWI. Currently HSH Prince Hans Adam II of Liechtenstein is a Habsburg monarch. He also has close ties to the Vatican, is a member of the Knights of Malta, and at least a supporter of Opus Dei. Hans Adam's younger brother sits on the board of the Coudenhove-Kalergi Foundation, together with Otto von Habsburg, Count Hans Huyn, Jakob Coudenhove-Kalergi (nephew of Richard, the founder of the Paneuropa Union), and Prince Carlo della Torre e Tasso (Thurn und Taxis). Hans Adam is known to have a lot of interest in the UFO/alien issue. He had an interesting conversation about this subject with Dr. Steven Greer. According to Greer, Hans Adam is a radical end-of-the-world fanatic who privately claims aliens have invented all the world's religions. According to Greer, Hans Adam claimed to him that one of his brothers was kidnapped by aliens. Greer says he has spoken to people in the US who claimed Hans Adam's brother indeed was abducted; not by aliens, but by a human stagecraft team to bring him aboard of a certain agenda.

Ken Ardel - July 5, 2011 12:21 AM (GMT)

This Otto Von Hapsburg was more evil than I ever imagined.
He sure lived a long life, too bad he never got the Mexican treatment of his ancestor Maximilian early on.

Eboard10 - July 9, 2011 10:53 AM (GMT)

I found a very interesting article about Le Cercle and how Otto Von Habsburg was influential in the post-war unification of Europe. A must read!

https://wikispooks.com/ISGP/organisations/Le_Cercle.htm

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: ULTRA POWERFUL FARNESE FAMILY

Title: ULTRA POWERFUL FARNESE FAMILY
Description: [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]

craig-oxley - January 22, 2009 10:38 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

"Check out Villa Farnese and Piazza Farnese. There you will find the Old French Embassy. Farnese are the cream of the crop and gave recently gave many Euros to help depopulate the Planet. These people are really terrible." -Anonymous

QUOTE

House of Farnese

The Farnese family was an influential family in Renaissance Italy.

Its most important members include Pope Paul III and the Dukes of Parma.

Several important architectural works and antiquities are associated with the Farnese family, either through construction or acquisition, including the Farnese Marbles. These include the Palazzo Farnese in Rome and the Villa Farnese in Caprarola.

Origins

The family could trace its origins back to around AD 984 and took their name from one of their oldest feudal possessions - Castrum Farneti. There has been some debate as to the origins of the name Farnesti/Farnese. Some suggest that it derives from the vernacular name for an oak found in the region, the Farnia (Quercus robur), but others have held that the name owes its origins to the Fara, a term of Lombard origin used to denote a particular social group. In the 12th century they are recorded as minor feudataries in the area of Tuscania and Orvieto, several members holding political positions in the latter commune. One Pietro defeated the Tuscan Ghibellines in 1110 and, most likely, fought against the Italo-Normans in 1134. His son Prudenzio was consul in Orvieto and defeated the Orvieto Ghibellines backed by Siena; another Pietro defended the town against Emperor Henry VI.

In 1254 one Ranuccio defeated Todi's troops and fought for Pope Urban IV against Manfred of Sicily. His son Niccolò was in the Guelph army in the Battle of Benevento (1266).

The Farnese returned in Tuscia (southern Tuscany-northern Lazio) in 1319, when they acquired Farnese, Ischia di Castro, and the Castles of Sala and San Savino. In 1354 Cardinal Albornoz, in return for the family's help in the war against the Papal riotous barons, gave them the territory of Valentano. In this period they fought against the fierce Papal rivals, the Prefetti di Vico. In 1362 Pietro Farnese was commander-in-chief of the Florentine army against Pisa in the war for Volterra. Six years later Niccolò Farnese saved Pope Urban V from the attack of Giovanni di Vico, first in the castle of Viterbo and then in that of Montefiascone. The loyalty to the Papal cause granted to the Farnese the confirmations of their possessions in the northern Lazio and a series of privileges which raised them as the same level of the more ancient and powerful Roman barons of the time (Savelli, Orsini, Monaldeschi, Sforza of Santa Fiora).

Rise of the family

The family substantially increased its power in the course of the 15th century, as their territories reached the southern shore of the Lake Bolsena and Montalto, especially thanks to Ranuccio the Elder. He was commander-in-chief for the neighbouring Siena against the Orsini of Pitigliano and, after his victory, received the title of Senator of Rome. His son Gabriele Francesco originated the "military" line of the family, which however disappeared after three generations.

Pope Paul III with his cardinal-nephew Alessandro Cardinal Farnese (left) and his other grandson, Ottavio Farnese, Duke of Parma.

The Farnese's Palazzo della Pilotta in Parma.Ranuccio's son Pier Luigi married a member of the ancient baronial family of the Caetani (that of Pope Boniface VIII), thus giving the Farnese further importance in Rome. His daughter Giulia, who was a mistress of Pope Alexander VI, further expanded the Roman fortunes of her family. She granted her brother Alessandro the title of cardinal; under Alexander's successor Julius II he became governor of the Marca Anconetana and, in 1534, he managed to become pope as Paul III. Among his most notable feats, there were an unprecedented nepotism and the establishment of the Council of Trent.

Dukes of Castro and Parma

Paul III named his son Pier Luigi gonfaloniere of the Roman Church and Duke of Castro, granting him the possession of a state encompassing the Farnese lands from the Thyrrenian Sea to the Lake of Bolsena, as well as the county of Ronciglione and many other smaller fiefs.

In 1545 Paul was also able to carve out, from territories once belonging to the Papal States, another state in northern Italy for his son, the Duke of Parma and Piacenza. Two years later Pier Luigi was assassinated by his new subjects under Spanish mandate. Despite Charles V moves, the pope reacted and soon established Ottavio, Pier Luigi's son, on the ducal throne. Paul III died in 1549, his political role in the curia handed over to his grandson Alessandro, who was an influential cardinal until his death in 1589.

The Duchy of Parma continued to be ruled by the Farnese until the 17th century, but that of Castro went lost in 1649 under the military assault launched by Pope Innocent X. Despite the lack of the territories in central Italy, the Farnese court in Parma under duke Ranuccio II was one of the most splendid in Italy.

As the small state fell under the Spanish control and influence, the family lost Parma and Piacenza in 1731 as the last duke Antonio Farnese died heirless.

Most notable members

Pietro Farnese (dates unknown)
Ranuccio Farnese (1390—1450)
Pier Luigi Farnese (1435—1487)
Pope Paul III, born Alessandro Farnese (1468—1549)
Giulia Farnese, mistress of Pope Alexander VI and sister of the above Alessandro Farnese
Pier Luigi Farnese, first Duke of Parma (1503—1547)
Alessandro Farnese, Cardinal (1520—1589)
Ottavio Farnese, second Duke of Parma (1524—1586)
Ranuccio Farnese, Cardinal (1530—1565)
Alessandro Farnese, third Duke of Parma (1545—1592)
Ranuccio I Farnese, fourth Duke of Parma (1569—1622)
Odoardo Farnese, fifth Duke of Parma (1612—1646)
Ranuccio II Farnese, sixth Duke of Parma (1630—1694)

Francesco Farnese, seventh Duke of Parma (1678—1727)
Antonio Farnese, eighth Duke of Parma (1679—1731)
Elizabeth Farnese, Queen of Spain, wife of King Philip V, mother of Charles III (1692—1766)

Sources

Annibali, Flaminio Maria (1817-1818). Notizie Storiche della Casa Farnese. Montefiascone. del Vecchio, Edoardo (1972). I Farnese. Rome: Istituto di studi romani editore.
Drei, Giovanni (1954). I Farnese grandezza e decadenza di una dinastia italiana. Rome: La Libreria dello Stato.
Nasalli Rocca, Emilio (1969). I Farnese.

QUOTE

The Professional Women's Association (PWA) of Rome invites you to our next networking meeting on:

Wednesday January 21st, 2009 at the Rose Garden Hotel (Via Boncompagni, 19) at 7:00 PM on

A LECTURE ON: GIULIA FARNESE - A women of incredible power and influence in Renaissance in Italy

By Prof.ssa Felicita Menghini

Prof.ssa Felicita Menghini Di Biagio is a scholar of the Farnese Family and has focused primarely on the historical-artistic testimonies left from the Farnese in the Patrimony of Saint Peter in Tuscia, with particular attention to the figures of Julia Farnese and the brother Pope Paul III.

Prof.ssa Felicita Menghini Di Biagio is the author of “Isola Bisentina. Giardino tempio dei Farnese” and “Paolo III, pillole e profezie. Astrologia e medicina alla corte papale del ‘500”. Prof.ssa Felicita Menghini Di Biagio has participated as speaker in numerous conferences on topics related to envirnonment and history.

THE LECTURE WILL BE HELD IN ITALIAN.

Because of room limitation confirmation is absolutely required.

Please confirm via email at info@pwarome.org

Members and paid guests will have a priority at the entrance.

Find out more about our guest speaker by going to our site http://www.pwarome.org/events.htm

Kind regards

PWA Board
http://www.pwarome.org

Visitor fees:
Euro 10,00 (on-line registration and payment)
Euro 15,00 (late registration at the event; only cash, no credit cards or cheques accepted)

PWA Membership fee: Euro 80.00 per year

Meeting agenda

18:00 - Welcome / Registration desk opens

19.00 - Presentation by Guest Speaker
19:45 - Open Forum
20:15 - Non-alcoholic drinks are served: networking time

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Farnese Fountain

Palazzo Farnese

Farnese Cafe

Farnese Hotel

Alessandro Farnese

Alessandro Farnese

Alessandro Farnese

Vittoria Farnese
Seconda moglie di Francesco I d'Este, duca di Modena e Reggio col dominio della Garfagnana.

Duchessa dal 1648 al 1649.
Ritratto di Vittoria Farnese, anonimo del sec. XVII. Modena, Banca Popolare dell'Emilia Romagna

Maria Farnese
Prima moglie di Francesco I d'Este, duca di Modena e Reggio col dominio della Garfagnana.
Duchessa dal 1631 al 1646.
Matteo Loves. Ritratto di Maria Farnese, Ginevra, Museo delle Arti e della Storia

Margherita Farnese
Moglie di Francesco II d'Este, duca di Modena e Reggio col dominio della Garfagnana.
Duchessa dal 1692 al 1694.
Ritratto di Margherita Farnese, autore ignoto. Parma, Galleria Nazionale.

Francesco Farnese

I sei gigli azzurri in campo oro dei Farnese (Torre campanaria della Chiesa Collegiata di Gradoli)(1)

Arms of cardinal Farnese on a ceiling decoration, palazzo Farnese, Caprarola

Pope Paul III. Farnese (1468-1549)
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - January 22, 2009 11:58 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

DEPOPULATION

Manchester
08.11 pm
34003232 Children's Champion
The Planet is Full!
OPT
www.optimumpopulation.org

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

14april2000 - February 12, 2009 06:22 PM (GMT)

```
                                    PIETRO
                                      |
                                  RANUCCIO
                                (ca 1390-1450)
                                      |
                                      -------------------------------
                                      |            |              |
Giovannella     +            PIER LUIGI        Angelo         Gabriele
 CAETANI        |          (ca 1435-1487) (1465-1488)       Francesco
```

(1421-1475)

Orsino ORSINI + GIULIA (1474-1524) | ALEXANDRE (1468-1549) PAUL III | Gerolama (1466-1505) | Angelo (1465-1488) | Beatrice (1469-1507)

PAOLO (1504-) | RANUCCIO (1509-1529 ?) | COSTANZA + B.Sforza di Santafiora | PIER LUIGI (1503-1547) + Girolama ORSINI

CHARLES QUINT

MARGUERITE OF AUSTRIA + OTTAVIO (1524-1586) | ALEXANDER (1520-1589) (cardinal) | RANUCCIO (1530-1565) (cardinal) | VITTORIA (1519-1602) | HORACE (1531-1553) + HENRI II Diane of France

MARIA OF AVIZ + ALEXANDER (1545-1592) | ISABELLA (1570-1638) + Alessandro SFORZA DI BORGONOVO | ERSILIA (1565-1596) + Renato I BORROMEO | LAVINIA (1560-1605) + Alessandro PALLAVICINO | VIOLANTE (1555-) + Torquato de CONTI | CARLO (1545-1545)

RANUCCIO I (1569-1622) + MARGHERITA ALDOBRANDINI | MARGHERITA (1567-1643) + VINCENZO GONZAGA duke of Mantua | ODOARDO (1573-1626) (cardinal)

ODOARDO (1612-1646) + MARGUERITE OF MEDICIS | FRANCESCO (1619-1647) (cardinal) | OTTAVIO (1598-1643) | MARIA (1615-1645) + FRANCESCO OF ESTE | ISABELLA (1600-1645) | ALEXANDER (1610-1630) | VITTORIA (1618-1649)

ALESSANDRO (1635-1689) | CATERINA (1632-) | PIETRO (1639-1677) (cardinal) | HORACE (1636-1656) | Maria Madalena (1653-1693)

```
Isabella of Este   1 +    RANUCCIO II   + 2   Maria of Este
    (_1666)        |     (1630-1694)    |
                   |                    |
   ----------------                     ----------------
   |               |                    |               |
 Margherita      ODOARDO            FRANCESCO       ANTONIO
(1664 - 1718)  (1666-1693)          (1678-1727)    (1679-1731)
                   |
              ----------------
              |               |
          Alexander     ELISABETTA    +     PHILIPPE V
         (1691-1693)    or ISABELLA
                        (1692-1766)
```

FARNESA GENEALOGIES

The one you can`t see the whole thing of is :
VITTORIA
(1618-1649)

14april2000 - February 14, 2009 09:10 PM (GMT)

Elisabetta Farnese born October 25, 1692, Parma, Duchy of Parma died July 11, 1766, Aranjuez, Spain

Queen Isabel de Farnesio consort of Philip V of Spain (reigned 1700–46), whose ambitions to secure Italian possessions for her children embroiled Spain in wars and intrigues for three decades. Her capability in choosing able and devoted ministers, however, brought about beneficial internal reforms and succeeded in improving Spain's economy.

Isabella was the daughter of Odoardo Farnese (died 1693), the eldest son of Ranuccio II of Parma and Píacenza. She was the second wife of Philip and arrived in Spain in December 1714, whereupon she dismissed the resident royal favourite and quickly established an ascendancy over her weak husband that she continued to exercise until his death in 1746.

Since Philip's two sons by his first wife were in line to succeed him, the ambitious Isabella sought to secure lands in Italy for the children (four sons and three daughters) she bore the sovereign. This quest dominated her reign, and in the end Spanish imperialism in Italy achieved marked success. Isabella's eldest son, Charles (afterward Charles III of Spain), and his brother Philip both gained titles to Italian domains.

Isabella favoured ministers who could acquire the resources needed to advance her schemes, and the men she chose not only carried out her foreign policy but also undertook useful economic, administrative, and military improvements. After Philip's death and the accession of her stepson Ferdinand VI (reigned 1746–59), Isabella ceased to exert any real influence and spent many of her later years away from court, although she did act as regent between the death of Ferdinand VI (August 10, 1759) and the arrival in Spain of his successor, Charles III, in December 1759.

Source britannica

14april2000 - February 15, 2009 09:21 AM (GMT)

Ranuccio Farnese il Vecchio

Ranuccio Farnese (c. 1390 – July 2, 1450) was an Italian nobleman, feudal lord and condottiero.

Born in Bolsena, he is considered the founder of the fortunes of the Farnese family. In 1416 Ranuccio succeeded his father as commander-in-chief of the Republic of Siena's troops, and defeated the Orsini of Pitigliano. In 1419 Pope Martin V appointed him as Senator of Rome, and three years later he received the fiefs of Tessennano and Piansano in the Papal States.

Also serving as Captain General of the Church under Eugene IV, Ranuccio obtained new lands in rewards of the creadits accumulated towards the Apostolic Chamber. These included Montalto di Castro, Canino and numerous others in the northern Lazio.

Source wikipedia

craig-oxley - March 8, 2009 12:08 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Villa Farnese Caprarola

Risponde con una soluzione architettonica particolarissima e una peculiare situazione sociale,in quanto e` stato costruito per rappresentare visivamente il potere feudale dei Farnese su quelle terre,oltre che come aristocratica residenza extraurbana.Si deve al cardinale Alessandro junior,come si e' detto,l'iniziativa risalente al 1556,di riprendere la costruzione della residenza Farnesiana di Caprarola,convertendo pero' l'originaria idea della fortezza in quella di una elegante e confortevole residenza umanistica,il progetto fu affidato a Jacopo Barozzi di Vignola. La costruzione deli Orti Farnesani fu affidata intorno al 1565 utilizzando per i terrazzamenti la terra di scarico delle fondamenta della chiesa del Gesu',e venne conclusa solo nel terzo decennio del Seicento sotto la direzione di Giacomo Del Ducae quindi di Gerilamo Rainaldi,entrambi attivi anche a Caprarola. Il Vignola e' riuscito a conferire al complesso una straordinaria unitarieta', riadattando con grande abilita' gli elementi marziali,e a ottenere una perfetta integrazione tra gli spazi architettonici coperti a quelli all'aperto ai primi adiacenti,e che da essi si irradiano,fungendo da elementi di raccordo tra l'edificio e il paesaggio circostante,quello costruito all'antistante borgo e quello naturale del colle che incornicia il complesso alle spalle e dalla campagna che lo delimita ai fianchi.

This is where the Italian aristocratic family of Farnese (Nephilim) funded the Jesuit Order and this is where the many Jesuit war rooms were located in which the counter-reformation was directed and Luther was fought. The war room in Borgo Santo Spirito is of lesser importance than this building, built by a Cardinal (Farnese?), and which was the model for the Pentagon in Washington DC (!) Together with the FED being modeled after the Roman Catholic Church this piece of bombshell information seems to be yet another piece of the puzzle called Roman Catholic Control over the World. -Phil[/B]

14april2000 - March 8, 2009 12:23 AM (GMT)

This is the text from the above picture translated to english.

QUOTE

It responds with a unique architectural solution and a particular social situation, since it was built to visually represent the feudal power of the Farnese on those lands, as well as an extra aristocratic residence. For Cardinal Alessandro junior, as he said, The initiative dates back to 1556, to resume construction of the residence of Caprarola Farnesiana convert but 'the original idea of the fortress in an elegant and comfortable residence Humanities, the project was entrusted to Jacopo Barozzi Vignola. The construction deli Orti Farnesani was carried around in 1565 for using the land terracing exhaust of the foundations of the Church of the Gesu ', and was only completed in the third decade of the seventeenth century under the direction of Giacomo Del Duca then Gerilamo Rainaldi, both active in Caprarola. Vignola 'managed to give the whole an extraordinary unity', readjusting very empowering 'martial elements, and to achieve a seamless integration between architectural spaces covered and those adjacent on the t first, and they radiate, acting as elements of connection between the building and the landscape surrounding the village and built all'antistante natural hill that frames the complex behind the country side so it DILIMITA the boundary side.

craig-oxley - March 12, 2009 05:03 PM (GMT)

I have just concluded a trip to the Villa Farnese which was the ORIGINAL 'Pentagon' in Caprarola. What is amazing is that they arrogantly and proudly admit to controlling Washington D.C. and that the building was the original prototype. It was created as a secret and hidden meeting place for Cardinals to command their legions in Germany to counter the reformation and to plan the 30 years war. In its map room, we you can visit as a tourist, there are 5 maps of the United States dated to before the American Revolution 1600s. One of these includes a future capital where washington is today.

THESE PEOPLE DESIGNED AMERICA!
THEY LAID OUT WHERE EVERYTHING WOULD BE BEFORE IT CAME!

.....Then, the brainwashed tour guide told us that: "Oh my, it's a very strange coincidence that the future capital would be positioned there 'between Maryland and Virginia' and that the Pentagon is on the map too. The Farnese might have been psychic. After all they were popes"

Pyschic, MY ASS --- They built Washington! and its even got the Washington Monument on the same map!

check this out; Washington D.C. is between VIRGIN (ia) & MARY (land)

These Jesuits admit to EVERYTHING! We are the stupid ones, in that we just don't care. They get away with everything. Look at the inscription on Ignatius Loyola's tomb: What does it read: ' CARDINAL ALEXANDER F A R N E S E '

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Alessandro_Farnese_(cardinal) http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Villa_Farnese#History http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Paul_III http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_Pentagon

ANYBODY WHO THINKS THE JESUITS DON'T CONTROL WASHINGTON ARE SIMPLY RETARDED PERIOD!!!

THE FARNESE RAN THE JESUIT ORDER AND STILL DO TODAY!

THE FARNESE CREATED THE FRENCH REVOLUTION!
(Look at where the current French Embassy is in Rome: my my, it is in Piazza Farnese and the Embassy is Palazzo Farnese or Farnese Palace)

THE 'FARNESE' NAME IS WHAT IS ON THE TOMB OF LOYOLA - they commissioned him

THE FARNESE BUILD THE PENTAGON(U.S. Dept. of Defense) IN WASHINGTON

THE FARNESE CONTROL WASHINGTON AND THE US MILITARY

WAKE UP PEOPLE!!!
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Farnese

After the meeting with high-level illuminati's I wasn't able to photograph what I wanted to prove to you guys 'Martin Luther' wasn't a Rosicruscian.

In this Villa there is a famous 1600's fresco inside it's main lodge, depicting 'Martin Luther' and the Farnese war against him and his followers.

You can't even find the fresco at the Villa Farnese gift shop. I begged and begged them, and they plain-out refused the photography.

-Count Vivian Vivaldi III

craig-oxley - March 12, 2009 06:34 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]<CENTER>
<a href="http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mind_II/index.php?showtopic=6929"

target="_blank"><img src="http://i247.photobucket.com/albums/gg145/2tuff2006/farnesejesuits.jpg" border="0" alt="THE JESUIT ORDER IS A CREATION OF THE ZOROATHRIANIST PAPAL BLOODLINES SUCH AS THE ALL POWERFUL FARNESE FAMILY. THE SAME FAMILY BEHIND ROMAN WASHINGTON D.C."></CENTER>
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - March 12, 2009 06:48 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]<Center>
[/dohtml]

Titian's triple portrait of Pope Paul III with his grandsons, cardinal-nephew Alessandro Cardinal Farnese (left) and Ottavio Farnese, Duke of Parma (right)

Alessandro Cardinal Farnese

[dohtml]</enter>
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - March 13, 2009 11:30 PM (GMT)

[DOHTML]<CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

VINCENZO MARIA ORSINI

Pope Benedict XIII
(ANTIPOPE)
[DOHTML]</CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

Avles - March 15, 2009 05:55 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Mar 12 2009, 05:03 PM)

I have just concluded a trip to the Villa Farnese which was the ORIGINAL 'Pentagon' in Caprarola. What is amazing is that they arrogantly and proudly admit to controlling Washington D.C. and that the building was the original prototype. It was created as a secret and hidden meeting place for Cardinals to command their legions in Germany to counter the reformation and to plan the 30 years war. In its map room, we you can visit as a tourist, there are 5 maps of the United States dated to before the American Revolution 1600s. One of these includes a future capital where washington is today.

THESE PEOPLE DESIGNED AMERICA!
THEY LAID OUT WHERE EVERYTHING WOULD BE BEFORE IT CAME!

.....Then, the brainwashed tour guide told us that: "Oh my, it's a very strange coincidence that the future capital would be positioned there 'between Maryland and Virginia' and that the Pentagon is on the map too. The Farnese might have been psychic. After all they were popes"

I found it only in the Italian page of Wikipedia, the German and English ones dont mention about the Council of Trent fresco in the "anteroom of the Coucil", a room near the room of the cardinal and the room of the celebrities, the "Stanza dei Fasti Farnesia" (= room of the Farnese pomp). In the Council room there's also a paint with Paul Farnese III the pope of the Council clear:

QUOTE

Qui sono collocate la camera da letto del cardinale, detta Camera dell'Aurora, e la camera delle celebrità, detta Stanza dei Fasti Farnesia, con gli affreschi che riassumono la vita dei Farnese. Oltre è posta l'Anticamera del Concilio, che prende il nome dall'affresco del Concilio di Trento; nella stessa stanza vi è un affresco di Paolo III. Successivamente si apre la Sala di Ercole, che prende anch'essa il nome dagli affreschi presenti.

A pic of the global map is possible to see in the page:

http://www.tusciaitalia.it/itinerari/farne...n_caprarola.htm

Related arguments - see from Willinger's blog "Save the Capital":

Monday, June 11, 2007
Benjamin Franklin's Mysterious SunFire

http://savethecapitalcity.blogspot.com/200...us-sunfire.html

Best regards etc.

Douglas Willinger - March 17, 2009 05:09 AM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Mar 12 2009, 05:03 PM)

I have just concluded a trip to the Villa Farnese which was the ORIGINAL 'Pentagon' in Caprarola. What is amazing is that they arrogantly and proudly admit to controlling Washington D.C. and that the building was the original prototype. It was created as a secret and hidden meeting place for Cardinals to command their legions in Germany to counter the reformation and to plan the 30 years war. In its map room, we you can visit as a tourist, there are 5 maps of the United States dated to before the American Revolution 1600s. One of these includes a future capital where washington is today.

THESE PEOPLE DESIGNED AMERICA!
THEY LAID OUT WHERE EVERYTHING WOULD BE BEFORE IT CAME!

.....Then, the brainwashed tour guide told us that: "Oh my, it's a very strange coincidence that the future capital would be positioned there 'between Maryland and Virginia' and that the Pentagon is on the map too. The Farnese might have been psychic. After all they were popes"

Pyschic, MY ASS --- They built Washington! and its even got the Washington Monument on the same map!

check this out; Washington D.C. is between VIRGIN (ia) & MARY (land)

These Jesuits admit to EVERYTHING! We are the stupid ones, in that we just don't care. They get away with everything. Look at the inscription on Ignatius Loyola's tomb: What does it read: ' CARDINAL ALEXANDER F A R N E S E '

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Alessandro_Farnese_(cardinal) http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Villa_Farnese#History http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Paul_III http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_Pentagon

ANYBODY WHO THINKS THE JESUITS DON'T CONTROL WASHINGTON ARE SIMPLY RETARDED PERIOD!!!

THE FARNESE RAN THE JESUIT ORDER AND STILL DO TODAY!

THE FARNESE CREATED THE FRENCH REVOLUTION!
(Look at where the current French Embassy is in Rome: my my, it is in Piazza Farnese and the Embassy is Palazzo Farnese or Farnese Palace)

THE 'FARNESE' NAME IS WHAT IS ON THE TOMB OF LOYOLA - they commissioned him

THE FARNESE BUILD THE PENTAGON(U.S. Dept. of Defense) IN WASHINGTON

THE FARNESE CONTROL WASHINGTON AND THE US MILITARY

WAKE UP PEOPLE!!!
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Farnese

After the meeting with high-level illuminati's I wasn't able to photograph what I wanted to prove to you guys 'Martin Luther' wasn't a Rosicruscian.

In this Villa there is a famous 1600's fresco inside it's main lodge, depicting 'Martin Luther' and the Farnese war against him and his followers.

You can't even find the fresco at the Villa Farnese gift shop. I begged and begged them, and they plain-out refused the photography.

-Count Vivian Vivaldi III

See:

http://www.canino.info/inserti/monografie/...se/chiesa_gesu/

I found it by researching the location of the mother jesuit church.

Alexandra - April 15, 2009 10:46 PM (GMT)

Right now I'm trying to see what all connections are there.

Pope Alexander VI (Rodrigo Borgia) had a mistress, Giulia Farnese, who was married to an Orsini...whose mother was a cousin of Alexander VI.

If I ever get a family tree file going, I'll upload it and share.

Alexandra - April 15, 2009 11:20 PM (GMT)

Farnese Family Tree: http://www.onlipix.com/kings/italy/farnese.htm

Includes Aldobrandini, Medici, Orsini, etc.

craig-oxley - April 17, 2009 04:46 AM (GMT)

Piazza Farnese

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Nx5T8YUPo1E

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="344"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/Nx5T8YUPo1E&hl=en&fs=1"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/Nx5T8YUPo1E&hl=en&fs=1" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="425" height="344"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]

Farnese Bull

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eBms7bA32-Q

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="344"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/eBms7bA32-Q&hl=en&fs=1"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/eBms7bA32-Q&hl=en&fs=1" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="425" height="344"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - August 18, 2009 12:10 PM (GMT)

LAWRENCE M. FARNESE JR

user posted image

What is this Pennsylvania Senator's connection I wonder? Note he was Roman Catholic trained at Villanova University. Note that pagan heart symbolism of their logo.

http://www.larryfarnese.com/
http://www.senatorfarnese.com/

Notice the emphasis on the 'A' above all the rest. The 'A' is the capstone omega point of World control under the eye of Saturn tied in with Al-Deberan and of course Horus. Remember the Capstone is an equilateral TRIangle representing the planet Saturn and his triple angels. The Eye is infact the planet pupil and the rings the outline. The all seeing one, the God of Gods, El/Chronos/Satan.

QUOTE

Lawrence M. Farnese, Jr.
Of CounselOffice(s): Philadelphia, PA

Direct Dial: (215) 279-9698

Fax:

Email: lfarnese@archerlaw.com

Departments: Litigation Services

Practice Groups Commercial Litigation
Government Affairs

Practice Emphasis: Complex commercial litigation; Government Relations

Education: Villanova University, (B.A., 1990); Temple University, (J.D., 1994)

Bar Admissions: Pennsylvania - 1999, New Jersey - 1994

Personal Information: Born in Drexel Hill, Pennsylvania, 1968.

Biography:
Lawrence M. Farnese, Jr., focuses his practice in litigating complex commercial litigation and represents clients in matters involving copyright/trademark infringement, protection of corporate trade secrets, breach of fiduciary duty disputes and construction related litigation. He has tried cases in the federal and state courts of Pennsylvania and during his career has litigated matters in many states throughout the country, including Alabama, Georgia, Massachusetts, New York and Florida.

Farnese serves on the executive boards of assisted living facility Casa Farnese, The University of Pennsylvania's Young Friends of the International House and Academy House Condominium. He is on the advisory board of the Rebecca Davis Dance Company, and he is a member of NOW, NARAL, Liberty City Democratic Club and Liberty PA.

Larry was elected to the Pennsylvania Senate in 2008 for the 1st District. He has been selected to serve as Democratic Chair of the Senate Veterans Affairs and Emergency Preparedness Committee. He will also serve on the Senate committees on Appropriations, Banking and Insurance, Communications and Technology, Education, and Labor and Industry.

craig-oxley - August 18, 2009 03:04 PM (GMT)

HOLY SHIT!!!

And that guy is from Eric's State, Pennsylvania. Phelps has got to expose this criminal. Give me some time, I will have to call the xxxxxxxxxxxx in xxxx to see if he had registered there. What more proof do these Vatican/Jesuit conspiracy-deniers need! Your American followers should be warned immediately to not vote for this thug, as well as 'live' protests against him when he campaigns. Did you know that the Janet Napolitano and President Giorgio Napolitano are both 3rd cousins and that they are Don and Dame in the Order of Malta. SAME FAMILIES, BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC, AND THE ORIENT; THEY ALWAYS ENTER POLITICS. It Doesn't get closer than that!

People think that these government officials are picked 'out of the blue'. I am sure Farnese will win. The sad thing is that we are informed, and we are watching this whole thing go by, and there's nothing we can do except warn people who don't want to listen to the truth, even when it is purely evident.

I would tell Eric about this. Eric will be forced to mention the Farnese in his Broadcast.

What Eric doesn't know about the Farnese's:

1. They built the Jesuit Order and financed it.
2. They built the 'Original' Pentagon at Caprarola (If you take a tour to it outside rome, the guide will confess that it was created to headquarter and plan the 30 year war against the reformation- inside it is a Painting of Martin Luther, and there is a Map room of Washington DC)
3. They were the first Vatican Popes to appoint Jewish bankers
4. They built 'Piazza de Gesu', Borgo Santo Spirito, and Chiesa de Gesu(houses the tomb of Ignatius Loyola-founder of Jesuit order, and First black Pope)
5. The proof of all of this is out in the open and written on the buildings they financied

IT'S NO GUESSING GUYS!

Expose this fuckhead Farnese!

I would also build a new post against the Napolitano domination of Global Politics

craig-oxley - August 18, 2009 11:06 PM (GMT)

The painting depicts Luther as a Heretic being taken to Justice by the Farnese family. It was paid for by the Farnese Family. I am sorry I do not have a copy, it is not in Publication either. I believe it was painted by the Zuccari brothers. You are not allow to photograph it, and it isn't in the giftstore there either. The Map room is very interesting! The building is quite unique, and has some of the best acoustics I have heard in my life. This prooves that not everything is found on the internet. And there are certain things they do not want published.

Here is the official Website:
http://www.caprarola.com/palazzo_farnese.htm

Insurgent - August 21, 2009 11:07 PM (GMT)

michael - August 23, 2009 08:09 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Aug 18 2009, 11:06 PM)

> The painting depicts Luther as a Heretic being taken to Justice by the Farnese family. It was paid for by the Farnese Family. I am sorry I do not have a copy, it is not in Publication either. I believe it was painted by the Zuccari brothers. You are not allow to photograph it, and it isn't in the giftstore there either. The Map room is very interesting! The building is quite unique, and has some of the best acoustics I have heard in my life. This prooves that not everything is found on the internet. And there are certain things they do not want published.
>
> Here is the official Website:
> http://www.caprarola.com/palazzo_farnese.htm

if I may, what did you find most interesting about the map room Craig?

craig-oxley - August 26, 2009 02:38 PM (GMT)

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HB-XMGiXhQA

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="344"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/HB-XMGiXhQA&hl=en&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/HB-XMGiXhQA&hl=en&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="425" height="344"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

Quintessenz - August 26, 2009 04:21 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Aug 18 2009, 11:06 PM)
>
> I am sorry I do not have a copy, it is not in Publication either. [...] You are not allow to photograph it, and it isn't in the giftstore there either. The [...] This prooves that not everything is found on the internet. And there are certain things they do not want published.

And the tomb of Loyola with the Farnese name on it? I guess the hierarchy would love to show around the tomb of Loyola, so I guess there could be some pictures around with the Farnese name on it? Let us know, it would be good proof.

Eboard10 - September 24, 2009 08:18 PM (GMT)

KING JUAN CARLOS IS A DESCENDANT OF THE FARNESE (& CO.)!!

Ok, I didn't really know if to post this information here or on King Juan Carlos topic, though I believe it would be more appropirate to write it here.

Anyway, I wondered why does Juan Carlos have such immense power, so I started looking into his family tree trying to see if there was any connection to the old papal bloodlines, and guess what? I did find one! And a quite surprising one!

Using the powerful tool known as Wikipedia (:)) I was able to trace his lineage back to a certain Elizabeth Farnese. (I'm posting the whole lineage, so no "ifs" or "buts"!)

King Juan Carlos I of Spain

(son of)

Princess Maria Mercedes of Bourbon-Two Sicilies

(daughter of)

Prince Carlos of Bourbon-Two Sicilies

(son of)

Prince Alfonso of bourbon-Two Sicilies, Count of Caserta

(son of)

King Ferdinand II of the Two Sicilies

(son of)

King Francis I of the Two Sicilies

(son of)

King Ferdinand I of the Two Sicilies

(son of)

King Charles III of Spain

(son of)

King Philip V of Spain & Elisabeth Farnese

QUOTE

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...de_Farnesio.jpg

Queen Elizabeth Farnese of Spain

You can clearly see her doing the Triad Claw sign on her left hand and another sign on her right hand, which shouldn't be surprising afterall.

Now going further down the line we find that Elizabeth is a direct descendant of Ottavio Farnese:

QUOTE

http://gw1.geneanet.org/index.php3?b=genro...G&t=N&n=farnese 5.

- Ottavio Farnese 1524-1586 &1538 Margarita d'Austria 1522-1586
  - Alessandro I Farnese 1545-1592 &1565 Maria de Portugal 1538-1577
    - Margherita Farnese 1567-1643 &1581 Vincenzo I Gonzaga 1562-1612
    - Ranuccio I Farnese 1569-1622 &1600 Margherita Aldobrandini ca 1585-1646
      - Alessandra Francesca Farnese 1602-1602
      - Maria Farnese 1603
      - Alessandro Farnese 1610-1630
      - Edoardo I Farnese 1612-1646 &1628 Margherita de' Medici 1612-1679
        - Caterina Farnese 1629-1629
        - Ranuccio II Farnese 1630-1694 &1664 "Isabella" d'Este 1635-1666
          - Edoardo II Farnese 1666-1693 &1690 Dorothea Sophia von der Pfalz 1670-1748
            - Elisabeth Farnese 1692-1766 &1714 Felipe V d'Espagne 1683-1746

...

By just looking at the direct lineage you can see families such as the "Aldobrandini", the "d'Este" and the "de Medici" marrying with the Farnese's.

Ottavio Farnese, Duke of Parma

Ottavio Farnese was the second son of Pierluigi Farnese and Gerolama Orsini. He was also grandson of Pope Paul III, and brother to Cardinal Ranuccio Farnese and Alessandro Farnese.

QUOTE

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/File:Tizian_068.jpg

Pope Paul III with his cardinal-nephew Alessandro Cardinal Farnese (left) and his other grandson, Ottavio Farnese.

So as you can now see by yourselves, no "true" power is granted to people that aren't "of blood", so to speak. Juan Carlos descends from many of the old papal bloodlines such as the Farnese, the Aldobrandini and the Orsini. I'm sure that if one were to do a study of his whole family tree, he would find other connections as well.

map - September 24, 2009 09:00 PM (GMT)

nice work Eboard10

Eboard10 - September 25, 2009 01:57 PM (GMT)

KING JUAN CARLOS DESCENDS FROM ELIZABETH FARNESE THROUGH BOTH HIS MOTHERS & FATHERS LINEAGES!!

In my previous post I showed his mothers lineage which leads to King Philip V of Spain who married into the Farnese through Elizabeth (or Elisabetta). By looking at Infante Juan's direct lineage, we see that he also descends from King Charles III of Spain (son of Philip V and Elizabeth), as does his wife:

Juan of Bourbon-Spain, Count of Barcelona

(son of)

King Alfonso XIII of Spain

(son of)

King Alfonso XII of Spain

(son of)

Queen Isabella II of Spain

(daughter of)

King Ferdinand VII of Spain

(son of)

King Charles IV of Spain

(son of)

King Charles III of Spain

I'm doing a more in depth search into the Farnese family and all the descendants of Pope Paul III's offsprings (Alexander Farnese). It looks like there is another line descending from Cardinal Alessandro Farnese, through his daughter Clelia Farnese (the only other line remaining). Amazingly, also this line merges into Juan Carlos family!! Will post it when I have enough info.

Eboard10 - October 6, 2009 11:21 PM (GMT)

Just found something very interesting, if it hasn't already been posted.

I was looking through one of Vivian's videos on youtube which shows a picture of the Jesuit headquaters in Rome. I was surprised to see the name FARNESIVS written on top of the IHS symbol!

QUOTE

Vivian's Video (at 1:19-1:20)

Unfortunately you can't read the rest; would be interesting to see what it says.

map - October 7, 2009 05:00 AM (GMT)

ALEXANDER CAR DINA LIS FARNESIVS S.R.E VICE CAN I.E.C.MDLXXV
ALEXANDER CARDINAL FARNESE
IHS

now who wants to be the first to send that over to senator farnese in PA and ask him why that's there?

Eyes for the Profane - October 7, 2009 05:49 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (map @ Oct 7 2009, 05:00 AM)
>
> now who wants to be the first to send that over to senator farnese in PA and ask him why that's there?

Here's his e-mail address (the one given on larryfarnese.com at least): ted@larryfarnese.com

I'm positive that's not his personal e-mail address, but I'm shooting him a message to that address anyhow.

map - October 7, 2009 06:23 AM (GMT)

let us know his response

craig-oxley - October 7, 2009 01:08 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]
NOW DOESN'T THE SANTA MARIA IN TRASPONTINA

REMIND YOU OF SOMETHING?

CHIESA DEL SANTISSIMO NOME DI GESU ALL'ARGENTINA

BASED IN PIAZZA DEL GESU

WHERE? MISSILE PROTECTED:

BORGO SPIRITO SANTO
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

> QUOTE
>
> Santa Maria in Traspontina, the work of G.S. Peruzzi, is the only church in Rome whose dome has no drum. The lower height allowed the Castle's gunners (who owned a chapel there) to practise their shooting skills on the Gianicolo.

Insurgent - October 7, 2009 04:04 PM (GMT)

I was trying to translate the writing,

Vice-Translations:
events, successively

Can????

craig-oxley - October 18, 2009 12:38 PM (GMT)

Please note the CIA seal below and remember its the creation of the Popish Knights of Malta by merging the Office of Strategic Services with the Schutzstaffel funded by much stolen Torah believing Judiac wealth. Note the Jesuits created the Schutzstaffel and some even were in its highest positions. Himmler admitted it was modelled off the Society of Jesus. The Farnese are the covert authority of the Society of Jesus. Their the Arcana Arcanorum grey Papal bloodline power who created the Jesuit Order in the first place tied in with Alessandro Farnese. -Craig

Farnese, in Italian, literally translates to : " The Royal Oaks"

I don't know how this could help you out, but people here have recently asked me several times the meaning.

A royal oak tree is quite different than other species of Oak because it has 'oak nut acorns' which are commonly used as hereldic symbols.

In Italy, the singular form is called a "Farnia" and Multiple Farnia's are 'Farnese'

Its possible that there is a link to 'Royal Oak' in England

Oaks are present in all secret society rituals as symbols along with the Acacia. The Acorns are used in Ritual black magic within the covens.

-Anonymous

QUOTE

http://www.jordanmaxwell.com/articles/questions/questions8.html

user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image
user posted image

Wolveshater - October 18, 2009 01:55 PM (GMT)

Craig, aren't those the same leaves around the United Nations Emblem as well..

AntiSionist - October 18, 2009 05:59 PM (GMT)

Absolutely. Good catch.

map - October 18, 2009 09:48 PM (GMT)

i always wanted to know what the leafs are for... nice intel craig. someone hit up larry farnese from PA with this.

craig-oxley - October 19, 2009 09:37 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (Wolveshater @ Oct 18 2009, 01:55 PM)
>
> Craig, aren't those the same leaves around the United Nations Emblem as well..

No the U.N logo has the Roman Laurel leaves my friend, no Oak.

craig-oxley - October 19, 2009 11:46 AM (GMT)

According to the Instituto Araldico Genealogico Italiano, it seems that Larry is a direct descendent of Antonio Farnese.

Which, in turn, makes him an extreme Oligarch of the Jesuit order. Strangely enough, according to the Consiglio, the Farnese have been in both America's and had a presence in Cuba since the early 1600's and possibly the 1500's. They as famous for being part of both sides of conflict in South America revolutions.

Its strange that they are pro-communistic 'liberals'. It makes absolutely no sense at all.

-Anonymous

map - October 19, 2009 07:23 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Oct 19 2009, 11:46 AM)
>
> According to the Instituto Araldico Genealogico Italiano, it seems that Larry is a direct descendent of Antonio Farnese. Which, in turn, makes him an extreme Oligarch of the Jesuit order. Strangely enough, according to the Consiglio, the Farnese have been in both America's and had a presence in Cuba since the early 1600's and possibly the 1500's. They as famous for being part of both sides of conflict in South America revolutions.
>
> Its strange that they are pro-communistic 'liberals'. It makes absolutely no sense at all.
>
> -Anonymous

so larry is above even the provincial in his area?

craig-oxley - October 21, 2009 12:57 PM (GMT)

What this means is his bloodline is of power within the Jesuit Order but Larry is subordinate to his local Jesuit Provincial (James Shea, SJ) and of course the President of the Jesuit Conference of the U.S (Thomas Smolich, SJ) Only certain levels of the bloodline are within the Arcana Arcanorum Rite of Atlantis not all. The Arcana are never visible like Lawrence Farnese Jr is.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Boarding the LHD "Juan Carlos I"

Title: Boarding the LHD "Juan Carlos I"
Description: April 5, 2011

Maximiliano - April 13, 2011 11:20 PM (GMT)

His Majesty the King in the bridge of the ship

Juan Carlos observs an amphibious vehicle maneuver

Maximiliano - April 14, 2011 11:58 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<iframe allowfullscreen="" frameborder="0" height="400" src="http://www.youtube.com/embed/9NAgt3OwMxM" title="YouTube video player" width="535"></iframe>[/dohtml]

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: MEDICI BLOODLINE

Title: MEDICI BLOODLINE

Maximiliano - July 3, 2010 06:22 PM (GMT)

THE FEDERAL RESERVE BUILDING OF NEW YORK WAS MODELED FROM THE MEDICI'S PALACE IN FLORENCE

THE WEBSITE OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE IN NEW YORk SAYS THE FOLLOWING:

http://www.newyorkfed.org/aboutthefed/photos_5.html

The Bank

Architects York and Sawyer modeled the Bank after Florentine palaces in Italy. The size of the building and its façade molding suggest both the Pitti and Vecchio Palaces of Florence.

¿So, which owned this two palaces in Florence? Thats Right the Medici's Family

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Palazzo_Pitti

The Palazzo Pitti (Italian pronunciation: [pa•lattso •pitti]), in English sometimes called the Pitti Palace, is a vast mainly Renaissance palace in Florence, Italy. It is situated on the south side of the River Arno, a short distance from the Ponte Vecchio. The core of the present palazzo dates from 1458 and was originally the town residence of Luca Pitti, an ambitious Florentine banker.

The palace was bought by the Medici family in 1549 and became the chief residence of the ruling families of the Grand Duchy of Tuscany. It grew as a great treasure house as later generations amassed paintings, plates, jewelry and luxurious possessions.

In the late 18th century, the palazzo was used as a power base by Napoleon, and later served for a brief period as the principal royal palace of the newly united Italy. The palace and its contents were donated to the Italian people by King Victor Emmanuel III in 1919, and its doors were opened to the public as one of Florence's largest art galleries. Today, it houses several minor collections in addition to those of the Medici family, and is fully open to the public.

http://es.wikipedia.org/wiki/Palazzo_Vecchio

The Palazzo Vecchio in Piazza della Signoria in Florence (Italy). Inside the palace houses a museum that presents works by: Bronzino, Michelangelo, Giorgio Vasari and others. Between 1540-1550 the building was used as the residence of Cosimo de Medici calling, then, Ducal Palace.

JUST LOOK AT THE YHS ACRONYM IN THE FRONTISPIECE IN THE ENTRANCE OF THE PALAZZO VECCHIO (THE OLD PALACE) OF THE MEDICI'S

Maximiliano - July 3, 2010 07:17 PM (GMT)

Sala dell'udienza at Palazzo Vecchio

SOL IVSTITIAE,
CHRISTVS DEVS NOSTER
REGNAT IN AETERNVM

Maximiliano - July 4, 2010 11:38 PM (GMT)

It was the Medici-Riccardi Palace which laid the foundation for the Renaissance Tuscan palaces as the Pitti Palace.

Note the YHS inside the Medici-Riccardi Palace in the Chapel of the Magi

yveloudon - July 5, 2010 02:21 PM (GMT)

maximiliano,
Thanks for the pics. In the very top pic of the exterior of the Medici palace -the statue on the right of the man standing with a club in his hand, dominating the man at his feet. And that alligator, reptile thing underneath them. What does that mean?

Maximiliano - July 5, 2010 09:30 PM (GMT)

Yveloudon,

The meaning of the sculptures are the following:

The statue of the left its a replica of the Michelangelo's David which originally was placed here, and represents the spiritual power.

The statue of the right its the "Hercules and Cacus" made by Baccio Bandinelli. Here, the demi-god, Hercules, who killed the fire-belching monster Cacus during his tenth labor for stealing cattle, is the symbol of physical power.

Its intersting also to note that in the left its David and in the Right a Colossus, a Giant and that Hercules its nothing more that a representation of the Nephilim!

soulinspiration - July 10, 2010 12:46 PM (GMT)

How's this for interesting: Just over five hundred years ago a Medici was Archbishop of Caithness, Scotland, followed by a Sinclair & then a Stewart!:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bishop_of_Caithness

> QUOTE
>
> 1478-1484 Prosper Camogli de' Medici Also known as Prosper Camulio de Janua.
> 1484 John Sinclair
> 1501-1517 Andrew Stewart (I.)
> 1517-1540 x 1541 Andrew Stewart (II.)

Note that Caithness was where the Templars who escaped to Scotland landed. My research leads me to the conclusion that immediately following the Battle of Bannockburn the Order of the Rosy Cross was founded for the Scottish Templars to operate within, this Order just over four hundred years later becoming the Royal Order of Scotland that only admits high-level Scottish Rite members. This is sometimes referred to as their "traditional" origin & ostensibly no outside paper trail confirms its validity. However this is academic vanity & provides no logical replacement explanations for the foundation of speculative Freemasonry in Scotland.

craig-oxley - July 10, 2010 04:08 PM (GMT)

As we know, The Company of Jesus are the revived Rich Fellow-Soldiers of Christ and of the Temple of Solomon. Loyola supposedly being a member of this ancient Order who founded The Company of Jesus along with the more powerful, Francis Borja and Alessandro Farnese of the two Papal Nobility bloodlines. I believe The Company of Jesus is a combination of the Knights Templar and Hashshasin Order of the Middle East in one and we all know Loyola's connection to these Nazari-Ismailis don't we. Bloodlines in power of the Order are in fact worshipers of Ahura-Mazda the Sun God of the ancient Persian religion of Zoroastrianism. In fact the Aldobrandini family are ancient Persians. Originally the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem controlled the Knights Templar but now we know the Templars have taken control of this powerful Order of the old Crusade council. Reminds me of how the Templars defeated the Knights of Malta as revenge for when the Maltese removed them from Malta due to the suppression of The Company of Jesus by Pope Clement XIV in 1773. The Company of Jesus gained control in 1798 over there once fellow crusaders of old, the Knights of Malta and have subordinated them ever since. Lets not forget how it was the Knights of Malta who had handed over to them many of the wealths and powers of the old Templars when the pope had them destroyed. So we have The Company of Jesus in complete control of the Papacy and its loyal Knights of Malta who themselves are still controlled by the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem.

soulinspiration - July 10, 2010 04:56 PM (GMT)

Agreed that the Order of the Holy Sepuchre is above the Order of Malta, but:

> QUOTE
>
> Originally the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem > controlled the Knights Templar but now we know the Templars have taken > control of this powerful Order of the old Crusade council.

The Templars were controlled by the Holy Sepulchre? They founded the Order of the Holy Sepulchre:

Note the following, as Juan Carlos is the current Latin King of Jerusalem & we read here that the brother of the first King of Jerusalem founded & was the Head of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre:

http://www.governo.it/Presidenza/cerimonia...ta_sede_eng.pdf

> QUOTE

The Equestrian Order of The Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem 1) The Origins

The origins of this Order began with the liberation of the land of The Holy Sepulchre from Muslim domination by Godfrey of Bouillon, Chief Commander of the Militia of the first Crusade. In doing so, Godfrey of Bouillon founded the Order of the Holy Sepulchre.

In 1103, as reported by the writers of the Crusade, Balduino I, the first King of Jerusalem and as Head of The Equestrian Order of The Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem, he had the power to nominate new Knights. This power was for himself and his successors.

Godfrey of Bouillon, from a fresco painted by Giacomo Jaquerio in Saluzzo, northernItaly, in 1420 ca. (above)

Coat of arms of the kingdom of Jerusalem (above)

The Templars were the military wing/counterparts of the Cistercian Order.

- TS

craig-oxley - July 10, 2010 05:10 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jul 10 2010, 04:08 PM)
>
> As we know, The Company of Jesus are the revived Rich Fellow-Soldiers of Christ and of the Temple of Solomon. Loyola supposedly being a member of this ancient Order who founded The Company of Jesus along with the more powerful, Francis Borja and Alessandro Farnese of the two Papal Nobility bloodlines. I believe The Company of Jesus is a combination of the Knights Templar and Hashshasin Order of the Middle East in one and we all know Loyola's connection to these Nazari-Ismailis don't we. Bloodlines in power of the Order are in fact worshipers of Ahura-Mazda the Sun God of the ancient Persian religion of Zoroastrianism. In fact the Aldobrandini family are ancient Persians. Originally the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem controlled the Knights Templar but now we know the Templars have taken control of this powerful Order of the old Crusade council. Reminds me of how the Templars defeated the Knights of Malta as revenge for when the Maltese removed them from Malta due to the suppression of The Company of Jesus by Pope Clement XIV in 1773. The Company of Jesus gained control in 1798 over there once fellow crusaders of old, the Knights of Malta and have subordinated them ever since. Lets not forget how it was the Knights of Malta who had handed over to them many of the wealths and powers of the old Templars when the pope had them destroyed. So we have The Company of Jesus in complete control of the Papacy and its loyal Knights of Malta who themselves are still controlled by the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem.

Dear Craig,

Well said, in fact I have a quote from Von Hammer who states Loyola brought beliefs of the Assassins into the Order. Just as the Templars and the Assassins worked together during the Kingdom of Jerusalem, even so the Jesuits---the Order of the New Templars---absorbed all the power of the Old Templars and Old Assassins into the Order by 1814, at the time of its restoration by Pius VII.

Brother Eric

craig-oxley - July 10, 2010 05:59 PM (GMT)

This is once again that old argument that the Sepulchre were around a hell of a lot longer than what we're usually led to believe. If we look at the Sepulchre we see its roots go back to around 1099 the exact same time of the roots of the Knights Hospitaller. The Knights Templar coming almost twenty years later in fact. I conclude that the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem was always the master of the Rich Fellow-Soldiers of Christ and of the Temple of Solomon. Everyone should view the movie 'Kingdom of Heaven' directed by Ridley Scott and containing Michael Sheen who's an Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. In this we shall see the power of the Sepulchre over the Temple of Solomon and the rest.

Reference:
http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=20605

soulinspiration - July 10, 2010 06:54 PM (GMT)

Dear Craig

Okay, some clarification on my part is needed. Yes you are correct that chronologically the Hospitaller Order (f. 1099 by Gerard Thom & later known as the Order of Malta) & the Order of the Holy Sepulchre (f.1103 by Godfrey de Bouillon) predated the Order of the Temple (f. 1118 or 1119 - depending on the copy of Guillaume de Tyre's account [note that he was likely a Templar frontman] by Hugues de Payen - who had a fiefdom in north-west Troyes in France, see more on that below - & Godfrey de Saint-Omer, their patron being the Cistercian St Bernard of Clairvaux, who wrote the Templar Constitution).

However: First Crusade militia commander Godfrey, Lord of Bouillon, Duke of Lower Lorraine (who founded the Order of the Holy Sepulchre & was offered the post of first Latin King of Jerusalem) was a relative pawn (albeit a bloodline one) of the Merovingian-descended (esotericist, Kabbalically-inclined) "Salt Line" families (Bouillon being a Salt Line city), also referred to as the Troyes Fraternity (Troyes being an ancient Salt Line city), who had a burning resentment for the Carolingian Franks & the Roman Catholic Church, although they would use both for their purposes - the ultimate purpose in the case of the Roman Church being to replace it with something far older. The Troyes Fraternity adopted the name the Order of Sion once the Holy Land was secured & predate the Council of Troyes in the late 1120's.

Note that as a fighting force, the Hospitallers postdated the Templars.

Godfrey & his brother Baudoin had both Merovingian & Carolingian ancestry. The original named Templar knights were nobles of middle-ranking aristocratic stock from Champagne, Burgundy or Flanders. The Templars & the Cistercians before them were both founded by the "New Jerusalem"-focused Troyes Fraternity as part of a long term strategy required in order to recover a number of documents from the Temple (including the War Rule Scroll of the Essene & the Book of Jubilees). Bernard of Clairvaux's scholars translated any documents that were sent back.

Thus the power behind the Templars were also the founders of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre, however the Templars were at the highest levels far more closely connected with the inner circle of families backing them than was the nominal founder of the Holy Sepulchre.

For further research, please see:

"The Knights Templar Revealed: The Secrets of the Cistercian Legacy" by Alan Butler & Stephen Dafoe

Thanks -

Troy

map - July 10, 2010 09:38 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jul 10 2010, 05:59 PM)

This is once again that old argument that the Sepulchre were around a hell of a lot longer than what we're usually led to believe. If we look at the Sepulchre we see its roots go back to around 1099 the exact same time of the roots of the Knights Hospitaller. The Knights Templar coming almost twenty years later in fact. I conclude that the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem was always the master of the Rich Fellow-Soldiers of Christ and of the Temple of Solomon. Everyone should view the movie 'Kingdom of Heaven' directed by Ridley Scott and containing Michael Sheen who's an Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. In this we shall see the power of the Sepulchre over the Temple of Solomon and the rest.

Reference:
http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=20605

Kingdom of Heaven also stars Jeremy Irons which has played a JESUIT as well before in his career in the druid's HOLY wood.

taken from 'the mission' also starring SMOM robert deniro

Alexandra - July 11, 2010 09:39 AM (GMT)

Notice that Lenny Bloom's been linking to this stuff on his Facebook page?

Getting the word out.

craig-oxley - July 18, 2010 03:32 PM (GMT)

Researcher Puts 400-Year-Old Murder Mystery to Rest

Updated: 1 hour 48 minutes ago
Hugh Collins Contributor
http://www.aolnews.com/world/article/ancie...rest%2F19557603

(July 16) -- New research by an Italian scientist has solved a murder mystery that has lingered for more than 400 years.

The death of Francesco I de' Medici, the grand duke of Tuscany, has been shrouded in uncertainty for centuries. Francesco died in 1587 within 24 hours of his wife, Bianca Cappello.

The official death certificate cited malaria as the cause of death. However, suspicion soon settled on Francesco's brother, Cardinal Ferdinando I. After the deaths of his brother and sister-in-law, he resigned his position with the church and assumed the title of duke, and rumors swirled that he had poisoned them with arsenic to clear the way.

An Italian scientist says he's confirmed that Francesco I de' Medici, the grand duke of Tuscany, died in 1587 of malaria, not poison, as some suggested.

Now, Gino Fornaciari, a researcher at the University of Pisa, has absolved the cardinal and confirmed that Francesco did indeed die of malaria, a disease that was endemic in Tuscany right up until World War II.

"With the use of modern methods, we provide robust evidence that Francesco I had falciparum malaria at the time," Fornaciari writes in an article in The American Journal of Medicine. "Our findings also absolve Ferdinando I from the shameful allegation of being the murderer of his brother and sister-in-law."

To solve the ancient mystery, Fornaciari's team turned to Francesco's skeleton. The researchers tested the bones for a specific kind of protein that would suggest the presence of malaria, and the tests came up positive.

No tests could be performed on Bianca's skeleton, though, as nobody knows where she is buried.

This is the first time ancient bones have shown the presence of malaria at the time of death. Previously, researchers have turned to muscle tissue as the best indicator.

Even before Fornaciari cleared up the ancient riddle, history has been kind to Ferdinando. Whatever the suspicions around how he became grand duke, he put his position to good use, bolstering industry and patronizing the arts.

"He ruled with great skill and was the real beginner of a very rational trend in the government of Tuscany," Cristina Acidini, superintendent of Florence museums, told Discovery News.

Maximiliano - February 10, 2011 09:30 PM (GMT)

The Medici: Godfathers of the Renaissance

[dohtml]<iframe title="YouTube video player" width="640" height="390" src="http://www.youtube.com/embed/9FFDJK8jmms" frameborder="0" allowfullscreen></iframe>[/dohtml]

[dohtml]<iframe title="YouTube video player" width="640" height="390" src="http://www.youtube.com/embed/iBlGkTTol9E" frameborder="0" allowfullscreen></iframe>[/dohtml]

[dohtml]<iframe title="YouTube video player" width="640" height="390" src="http://www.youtube.com/embed/BmNbecu1V6I" frameborder="0" allowfullscreen></iframe>[/dohtml]

[dohtml]<iframe title="YouTube video player" width="640" height="390" src="http://www.youtube.com/embed/WSt3y8NZT_4" frameborder="0" allowfullscreen></iframe>[/dohtml]

SCREEN SHOTS FROM PART 1:

OWL IN A BLACK CUBE @3:11.

user posted image

IHS ON THE CUIRASS OF THE ARMOR OF SOLDIERS (as soldiers of Florence in 1300/1400).

user posted image

Scar - February 12, 2011 02:52 AM (GMT)

This article is from the Encyclopaedia Brittanica 9th Edition, 1875. Most readers here would be aware this was the last Encyclopaedia Brittanica published before the Rockefellers bought it out.

MEDICI. This family is renowned in Italian history for the extraordinary number of statesmen to whom it gave birth, and for its magnificent patronage of letters and art, It emerged from private life and rose to power by means of a very subtle policy that was persistently pursued from generation to generation. The origin of the family is buried in obscurity. Some court historians indeed declare it to have been founded by Perseus, and assert that Benvenuto Cellini's bronze Perseus holding on high the head of Medusa was executed and placed in the Loggia dei Lanzi to symbolize the victory of the Medici over the republic. But this only proves that the real origin of the family is unknown, and equally unknown is the precise signification of the Medicean arms—six red balls on a field of gold.

The name appears in Florentine chronicles as early as the close of the 12th century, although only casually mentioned in connection with various offices of the republic. The first of the family to be a distinct figure in history was Salvestro dei Medici, who, in the year 1378, took an active part in the revolt of the Ciompi—so-called because it was led by a wool-carder (ciompo), one Michele di Lando, and because the chief share in it was taken by the populace, who held the reins of government for some time, and sought to obtain extended political rights. But, although Michele di Lando was the nominal chief of the revolt, Salvestro dei Medici was its real leader. The latter, although a member of the greater guilds, had joined the lesser and sought to be at their head, in order to lay the foundation of his own power and that of his kindred by attacking the Albizzi, who were the leading men of the greater guilds.

The victory of the Ciompi, however, was brief, for the excesses of the lower classes brought about a reaction, in which they were crushed, and Michele di Lando sent into banishment. Nevertheless the lesser guilds had gained some ground by this riot, and Salvestro dei Medici the great popularity at which he had aimed. His policy during that period had traced the sole possible road to power in liberty-loving Florence. And this was the road henceforth pursued by the Medici.

On Salvestro's death in 1388 the Albizzi repossessed themselves of the government, and conducted the wars of the republic. Vieri dei Medici, who seems to have been the next head of the family, understanding the temper of the times, abstained from becoming a popular leader, and left it to his successors to prosecute the task under easier conditions.

Then, in the person of Giovanni, son of Bicci dei Medici (1360—1429), another branch of the family arose, and became from that time forward its representative branch. Indeed this Giovanni may be considered the actual founder of Medicean greatness. He took little part in political affairs, but realized an immense fortune by trade,—establishing banks in Italy and abroad, which in his successors' hands became the most efficient engines of political power. The council of Constance (1414 — 1118) enabled Giovanni dei Medici to realize enormous profits.

Besides, like his ancestor Salvestro, he was a constant supporter of the lesser guilds in Florence. Historians record his frequent resistance to the Albizzi when they sought to oppress the people with heavier taxation, and his endeavours to cause the chief weight to fall upon the richer classes. For this reason he was in favour of the so-called law of catasto, which, by assessing the property of every citizen, prevented those in power from arbitrarily imposing taxes that unjustly burdened the people. In this way, and by liberal loans of money to all who were in need of it, he gained a reputation that was practically the foundation-stone of the grand family edifice.

Giovanni dei Medici died in 1429 leaving two sons, Cosimo (1389— 1464) and Lorenzo (1395—1440). From the former proceeded the branch that held absolute sway for many generations over the nominal republic of Florence, and gave to Italy popes like Leo X. and Clement VII. On the extinction of this elder line in the 16th century, the younger branch derived from Lorenzo, Cosimo's brother, seemed to acquire new life, and for two centuries supplied grand-dukes to Tuscany. Cosimo, surnamed Cosimo the Elder, to distinguish him from the many others bearing the same name, and honoured after his death by the title of Pater patrioe,first succeeded in solving the strange problem of becoming absolute ruler of a republic that was keenly jealous of its liberty, without holding any fixed office, without suppressing any previous form of government, and always preserving the appearance and demeanour of a private citizen.

Born in 1389, he had already reached the age of forty at the time of his father's death. He had a certain amount of literary culture, and throughout his life showed much taste and an earnest love both for letters and art. But his father had mainly trained him to commerce, for which he had a special liking and aptitude. In fact he was devoted to business to the day of his death, and like his forefathers derived pecuniary advantage from his friendly relations with the papal court. He accompanied Pope John XXIII. to the council of Constance, transacted a vast amount of business in that city, and made very large gains. He then travelled in Germany, and after his return to Florence discharged several ambassadorial missions.

At the death of his father he was possessed of a vast fortune and an extended experience, and inherited the leadership of the opposition to the then dominant party of the greater guilds headed by Rinaldo degli Albizzi, Palla Strozzi, and Niccolö da Uzzano. Of gentle and kindly manners, generous in lending and even in giving money whenever he could gain popularity by that means, at critical moments he frequently came to the succour of the Government itself. He was very dexterous in turning his private liberalities to account for the increase of his political prestige, and showed no less acumen and still fewer scruples in making use of his political prestige for purposes of pecuniary profit. Indeed, whenever his own interests were at stake, he showed himself capable of positive villainy, although this was always tempered by calculation.

Cosimo proved his skill in these knavish arts during the war between Florence and Lucca. He had joined the Albizzi in urging on this war, and many writers assert that he turned it to much pecuniary advantage by means of loans to the Government and other banking operations. When, however, military affairs went badly, Cosimo joined the discontented populace in invectives against the war and those who had conducted it. This won him an enormous increase of popularity, hut the hatred of the Albizzi and their friends augmented in equal degree, and a conflict became inevitable.

The Albizzi, who were far more impetuous and impatient than Cosimo, were now bent upon revenge. In 1433 one of their own friends, Bernardo Guadagni, was elected gonfalonier, and thereupon Cosimo dei Medici was called to the palace and summarily imprisoned in the tower. A general assembly of the people was convoked and a “balia” chosen, which changed the Government and sent Cosimo into exile. Undoubtedly the Albizzi party would have preferred a heavier sentence, but they did not dare to attempt their enemy's life, being well aware of the great number of his adherents. Cosimo had some apprehension that he might be poisoned in prison, but Federigo dei Malavolti, captain of the palace guard, showed him the utmost kindness, and, in order to soothe his fears, voluntarily shared his meals. On the 3d October the prisoner was sent to Padua, his allotted place of exile.

The Albizzi speedily saw that they had done either too much or too little. While seeking to keep the government entirely in their own hands, they beheld the continual growth of the Medici party. When it was necessary to make a campaign in Romagna against the mercenary captains commanding the forces of the duke of Milan, it was plainly seen that in banishing Cosimo the republic had lost the only citizen banker in a position to assist it with considerable loans. The Florentines were defeated by Piecinino in 1434, and this event greatly increased the public exasperation against the Albizzi.

Meanwhile Cosimo, who had gone to Padua as a private individual, was entertained there like a prince. Then, being permitted to transfer his residence to Venice, he entered on a course of lavish expenditure. He was overwhelmed with letters and appeals from Florence. Finally, on the 1st of September 1434, a signory was elected composed of his friends, and his recall was decreed. Rinaldo degli Albizzi determined to oppose it by force, and rushed to the Piazza with a band of armed men; but his attempt failed, and he left the country to return no more. The Medici were now reinstated in all their former dignities and honours, and Cosimo, on the evening of September 6th, rode past the deserted mansions of the Albizzi and re-entered his own dwelling after an exile of a year. For three centuries, dating from that moment, the whole history of Florence was connected with that of the house of Medici.

Cosimo’s first thought was to secure himself against all future risk of removal from Florence, and accordingly he drove the most powerful citizens into exile to all parts of Italy. Nor did he spare even his former political adversary, Palla Strozzi, although the latter had been favourable to him during the recent changes. His rigour in this particular case was universally censured, but Cosimo would tolerate no rivals in the city, and was resolved to abase time great families and establish his power by the support of the lower classes. He was accustomed to say that states could not be ruled by paternosters. Still, when cruelty seemed requisite, he always contrived that the chief odium of it should fall upon others.

When Neri Capponi, the valiant soldier and able diplomatist, gained great public favour by his military prowess, and his influence was further increased by the friendship of Baldaccio d’Anghiari, captain of the infantry, Cosimo resolved to weaken his position by indirect means.

Accordingly, when in 1441 a partisan of the Medici was elected gonfalonier, Baldaccio was instantly summoned to the palace, imprisoned, murdered, and his body hurled from the window. No one could actually fix this crime upon Cosimo, but the majority believed that he had thus contrived to rid himself cf one enemy and cripple another without showing his hand.

It was impossible for Cosimo openly to assume the position of tyrant of Florence, nor was it worth his while to become gonfalonier, since the term of office only lasted two months. It was necessary to discover some other way without resorting to violence ; he accordingly employed what were then designated “civil methods.”

He managed to attain his object by means of the “balia.” These magistracies, which were generally renewed every five years, placed in the ballot bags the names of the candidates from whom the signory and other chief magistrates were to be chosen. As soon as a “balia” favourable to Cosimo was formed, he was assured for five years of having the government in the hands of men devoted to his interests. He had comprehended that the art of politics depended rather upon individuals than institutions, and that he who ruled men could also dictate laws.

His foreign policy was no less astute. His great wealth enabled him to supply money not only to private individuals, but even to foreign potentates. Philippe do Comines tells us that Cosimo frequently furnished Edward IV. of England with sums amounting to many hundred thousand florins. When Tommaso Parentucelli was still a cardinal, and in needy circumstances, Cosimo made him considerable loans without demanding guarantees of payment. On the cardinal's accession to the tiara as Nicholas V. he was naturally very well disposed towards Cosimo, and employed the Medici bank in Rome in all the affairs of the curia, which brought immense profits to the house.

At the time when Francesco Sforza was striving for the lordship of Milan, Cosirno foresaw his approaching triumph, showed him great friendship, and aided him with large sums of money. Accordingly, when Sforza became lord of Milan, Cosimo's power was doubled.

Without the title of prince, this merchant showed royal generosity in his expenditure for the promotion of letters and the fine arts. Numerous edifices were raised and public works accomplished with his purse. Besides his palace in the city, he constructed noble villas at Careggi, Fiesole, and other places. He built the basilica of Fiesole, and that of St Lorenzo in Florence, and enlarged the church and monastery of St Mark. Even in distant Jerusalem he endowed a hospice for the use of pilgrims.

The artists of the day comprised men like Donatello, Brunelleschi, Ghiberti, Luca della Robbia, and many others, and Cosimo's magnificent commissions not only developed their powers but stimulated other men of wealth to the patronage of art.

Without being a scholar, Cosimo had a genuine taste for letters, and gave them much and efficient patronage. He purchased many Greek and Latin manuscripts; he opened the first public library at St Mark's at his own expense, and founded another in the abbey of Fiesole. The Greek refugees from Constantinople found a constant welcome in his palace. During the council of Florence (1439—1442), Gemisthus Pletho spoke to him with enthusiasm of the Platonic philosophy. Cosimo was so deeply attracted by the theme that he decided to have the young Marsilio Ficino trained in philosophy and Greek learning in order to make a Latin translation of the complete works of Plato. And thus a version was produced that is still considered one of the best extant, and that Platonic academy was founded which led to such important results in the history of Italian philosophy and letters. On the 1st of August 1464 Cosimo breathed his last, at the age of seventy-five, while engaged in listening to one of Plato's dialogues.

The concluding years of his life had been years of little happiness for Florence. Being old and infirm, he had left the government to the management of his friends, among whom Luca Pitti was one of the more powerful, and they had ruled with disorder, corruption, amid cruelty.

The lordship of Florence accordingly did not pass without some difficulty and danger into the hands of Piero, surnamed the Gouty, Cosimo's only surviving legitimate son. Afflicted by gout, and so terribly crippled that he was often only able to use his tongue, the new ruler soon discovered that a plot was on foot to overthrow his power.

However, showing far more courage than he was supposed to possess, he had himself borne on a litter from his villa to Florence, defeated his enemies' designs, and firmly re-established his authority. But his success may be mainly attributed to the enormous prestige bequeathed by Cosimo to his Posterity.

Piero died at the end of five years' reign, on the 3(1 December 1469, leaving two sons, Lorenzo (1449—92) and Giuliano (1453—78). The younger, the gentler and less ambitious of the pair, was, as we shall presently see, quickly removed from the world. Lorenzo, on the contrary, at once seized the reins of state with a firm grasp, and was, chronologically, the second of the great men bestowed upon Italy by the house of Medici.

In literary talent he was immensely superior to Cosimo, but greatly his inferior in the conduct of the commercial affairs of the house, for which he had neither aptitude nor inclination. In politics he had nobler conceptions and higher ambitions, but he was more easily carried away by his passions, less prudent in his revenge, and more disposed to tyranny. He had studied letters from his earliest years under the guidance of Ficino and other leading literati of the day, who were constant habitues of the Medici palace. At the age of eighteen he visited the different courts of Italy in order to gain experience of the world and mankind.

At his father's death he was only twenty-one years old, but instantly showed his determination to govern Florence with greater despotism than his father or grandfather. he speedily resorted to the system of the "balia," and was very dexterous in causing the first to be chosen to suit his Purpose. He then proceeded to humiliate the great families and exalt those of little account, and this was the policy he constantly pursued. His younger brother Giuliano, being of a mild and yielding disposition, had only a nominal share in the government. Lorenzo's policy was not exempt from danger, but, although prosecuted with less caution, it was still the old astute and fortunate policy initiated by Cosimo.

But the grandson bestowed no care upon his commercial interests, although squandering his fortune with far greater lavishness. Accordingly he was sometimes driven to help himself from the public purse without ever being able to assist it as Cosimo had done. All this excited blame and enmity against him, while his greed in the matter of the alum mines of Volterra, and the subsequent sack of that unhappy city, were crimes for which there was no excuse.

Among his worst enemies were the Pazzi, and, as they formed a very powerful clan, he sought their ruin by competing with them even in business transactions. They were just on the point of inheriting the large property of Giovanni Borromeo when, in order to prevent this, Lorenzo hurriedly caused a law to be passed that altered the right of succession. The hatred of the Pazzi was thereby exasperated to fury.

And in addition to these things there ensued a desperate quarrel with Pope Sixtus IV., a man of very impetuous temper, who, on endeavouring to erect a state on the frontiers of the Florentine republic for the benefit of his nephews, found a determined and successful opponent in Lorenzo. Consequently the Pazzi and Archbishop Salviati, another enemy of Lorenzo, aided by the nephews of the pontiff, who was himself acquainted with the whole matter, determined to put an end to the family.

On the 26th April 1478, while Giuliano and Lorenzo were attending high mass in the cathedral of Florence, the former was mortally stabbed by conspirators, but the latter was able to beat back his assailants and escape into the sacristy. His life saved; and, no longer having to share the government with a brother, Lorenzo profited by the opportunity to wreak cruel vengeance upon his foes.

Several of the Pazzi and their followers were hanged from the palace windows; others were hacked to pieces, dragged through the streets, and cast into the Arno, while a great many more were condemned to death or sent into exile. Lorenzo seemed willing and able to become a tyrant. But be stopped short of this point. He knew the temper of the city, and had also to look to fresh dangers threatening him from without. The pope had excommunicated him, put Florence under an interdict, and, being seconded by the Neapolitan king, made furious war against the republic. These hostilities speedily assumed alarming proportions, and the Florentines began to tire of submitting to so many hardships in order to support the yoke of a fellow-citizen. Lorenzo's hold over Florence seemed endangered. But he did not lose heart, and, on the contrary, rose superior to the difficulties by which he was encompassed.

He boldly journeyed to Naples, to the court of King Ferdinand of Aragon, who was reputed to be as treacherous as he was cruel, and succeeded in obtaining from him an honourable peace, that soon led to a reconciliation with Sixtus. Thus at last Lorenzo found himself complete master of Florence, and was in a position to turn his power to account. But, as the "balia" changed every five years, it was always requisite, in order to retain his supremacy, that he should be prepared to renew the usual maneuvre at the close of that term and have another elected equally favourable to his aims. This was often a difficult achievement, and Lorenzo showed much dexterity in overcoming all obstacles.

In 1480 he compassed the institution of a new council of seventy, which was practically a permanent "balia" with extended powers, inasmuch as it not only elected the chief magistrates, but had also the administration of numerous state affairs. But, this permanent council of his own devoted adherents once formed, his security was firmly established. By this means, the chroniclers tell us, "liberty was buried," but the chief affairs of the state were always conducted by intelligent and experienced men, who promoted the public prosperity. Florence was still called a republic; the old institutions were still preserved, if only in name.

Lorenzo was absolute lord of all, and virtually a tyrant. His immorality was scandalous; he kept an army of spies, and frequently meddled in the citizens' most private affairs, and exalted men of the lowest condition to important offices of the state. Yet, as Guicciardini remark, "if Florence was to have a tyrant, she could never have found a better or more pleasant one."

In fact all industry, commerce, and public works made enormous progress. The civil equality of modern states, which was quite unknown to the Middle Ages, was more developed in Florence than in any other city of the world. Even the condition of the peasantry was far more prosperous than elsewhere. And Lorenzo's authority was not confined to Tuscany, but was also very great throughout the whole of Italy.

He was on the friendliest terms with Pope Innocent VIII., from whom he obtained the exaltation of his son Giovanni to the cardinalate at the age of fourteen. This boy cardinal was afterwards Pope Leo X. From the moment of the decease of Sixtus IV., the union of Florence and Rome became the basis of Lorenzo's foreign policy. By its means he was able to prevent the hatreds and jealousies of the Sforzas of Milan and the Aragonese of Naples from bursting into the open conflict that long threatened, and after his death actually caused, the beginning of new and irreparable calamities. Hence Lorenzo was styled the needle of the Italian compass.

But the events we have narrated cannot suffice for the full comprehension of this complex character, unless we add the record of his deeds as a patron of letters and his achievements as a writer. His palace was the school and resort of illustrious men. Within its walls were trained the two young Medici afterwards known to the world as Leo X. and Clement VII. Ficino, Poliziano, Pico della Mirandola, and all members of the Platonic academy were its constant habitués. It was here that Pulci gave readings of his Morqante, and Michelangelo essayed the first strokes of his chisel.

Lorenzo's intellectual powers were of exceptional strength and versatility. He could speak with equal fluency on painting, sculpture, music, philosophy, and poetry. But his crowning superiority over every other Maecenas known to history lay in his active participation in the intellectual labours that he promoted. Indeed at certain moments he was positively the leading spirit among the literati of his time. He was an elegant prose writer, and was likewise a poet of real originality.

At that period Italians were forsaking erudition in order to forward the revival of the national literature by recurring to the primitive sources of the spoken tongue and popular verse. It is Lorenzo's lasting glory to have been the initiator of this movement. Without being—as some have maintained—a poet of genius, he was certainly a writer of much finish and eloquence, and one of the first to raise popular poetry to the dignity of art, In his Ambra, his Caccia del Falcone, and his Nencia da Barberino, he gives descriptions of nature and of the rural life that he loved, with the graphic power of an acute and tasteful observer, joined to an ease of style that occasionally sins by excess of homeliness. Both in his art and in his politics he leant upon the people. The more oppressive his government, the more did he seek in his verses to incite the public to festivities and lull it to slumber by sensual enjoyments. In his Ballate, or songs for dancing, and more especially in his carnival songs, a kind of verse invented by himself, Lorenzo displayed all the best qualities and worst defects of his muse. Marvellously and spontaneously elegant, very truthful and fresh in style, fertile in fancy and rich in colour, they are often of a most revolting indecency. And these compositions of one filling a princely station in the city were often sung by their author in the public streets, in the midst of the populace.

Lorenzo left three sons,—Pietro (1471—1503), Giovanni (1475—1521), and Giuliano (1479—1516).

Scar - February 12, 2011 02:53 AM (GMT)

He was succeeded by Pietro, whose rule lasted but for two years. During this brief term Pietro performed no good deeds, and only displayed inordinate vanity and frivolity. His conduct greatly helped to foment the hatred between Lodovico Sforza and Ferdinand of Naples, which hastened the coming of the French under Charles VIII., and the renewal of foreign invasions. No sooner did the French approach the frontiers of Tuscany than Pietro, crazed with fear, hastened to meet them, and, basely yielding to every demand, accepted terms equally humiliating to himself and the state. But, returning to Florence, he found that the enraged citizens had already decreed his deposition, in order to reconstitute the republic, and was therefore compelled to escape to Venice. His various plots to reinstate himself in Florence were all unsuccessful. At last he went to the south of Italy with the French, was drowned at the passage of the Garigliano in 1503, and was buried in the cloister of Monte Cassino.

The ensuing period was adverse to the Medici, fur a republican government was maintained in Florence from 1494 to 1512, and the city remained faithful to its alliance with the French, who were all-powerful in Italy.

Cardinal Giovanni, the head of the family, resided in Rome, playing the patron to a circle of literati, artists, and friends, seeking to increase his popularity, and calmly wailing for better days. The battle of Ravenna wrought the downfall of the fortunes of France in Italy, and led to the rise of those of Spain, whose troops entered Florence to destroy the republic and reinstate the Medici.

Pietro had now been dead for some time, leaving a young son, Lorenzo (1492— 1519), who was afterwards duke of Urbino. The following year (1513) Cardinal Giovanni was elected pope, and assumed the name of Leo X. He accordingly removed to Rome, leaving his brother Giuliano with his nephew Lorenzo in Florence, and accompanied by his cousin Giulio, who was a natural son of the Giuliano murdered in the conspiracy of the Pazzi, and was soon destined to be a cardinal and ultimately a pope. Meanwhile his kinsmen in Florence continued to govern that city by means of a "balia," although preserving an empty show of republican institutions.

And thus, being masters of the whole of central Italy, the Medici enjoyed great authority throughout the country, and their ambition plumed itself for still higher flights. This was the moment when Niccoló Machiavelli, in his treatise The Prince, counselled them to accomplish the unity of Italy by arming the whole country, and expelling its foreign invaders.

Leo X., who is only indirectly connected with the history of Florence, gave his name to the age in which he lived in consequence of his magnificent patronage of art and letters in Rome. But he was merely a clever amateur, and had not the literary gifts of his father Lorenzo. He surrounded himself with versifiers and inferior writers, who enlivened his hoard and accompanied him wherever he went. He liked to lead a gay and untroubled life, was fond of theatrical performances, satires, and other intellectual diversions.

His patronage of the fine arts, his genuine affection for Raphael, and the numerous works he caused to be executed by him and other artists, have served to confer an exaggerated glory on his name.

He failed to comprehend the significance of the great religious movement already stirring in Germany, and had not the remotest idea of the grave importance of the Reformation, which indeed he unconsciously promoted by his reckless and shameless sale of indulgences. The whole policy of Pope Leo X. consisted in oscillating between France and Spain, in always playing fast and loose, and deceiving both powers in turn. Yet the evil results of this contemptible policy never seemed to disturb his mind. He finally joined the side of the emperor Charles V., and in 1521, at the time of the defeat of the French by the Spanish troops on the river Adda,he ceased to breathe at his favourite villa of Magliana.

Giuliano dei Medici had died during Leo's reign, in 1516, without having ever done anything worthy of record. He was the husband of Philiberta of Savoy, was duke of Nemours, and left a natural son, Ippolito dei Medici (1511—1535), who afterwards became a cardinal.

Lorenzo, being of more ambitious temper, was by no means content to remain at the head of the Florence Government hampered by many restrictions imposed by republican institutions, and subject to the incessant control of the pope.

In his eagerness to aggrandize his kinsmen, the latter had further decided to give Lorenzo the duchy of Urbino, and formally invested him in its rights, after expelling on false pretences its legitimate lord, Francesco Maria della Rovere. This prince, however, soon returned to Urbino, where he was joyously welcomed by his subjects, and Lorenzo regained possession only by a war of several months, in which he was wounded. In 1519 he also died, worn out by disease and excess.

By his marriage with Madeleine do la Tour d'Auvergne, he had one daughter, Caterina dei Medici (1519—89), married in 1533 to Henry, duke of Orleans, afterwards king of France. She played a long and sinister part in the history of that country.

Lorenzo also left a natural son named Alessandro, inheriting the frizzled hair and projecting lips of the negro or mulatto slave who had given him birth. his miserable death will be presently related. Thus the only three surviving representatives of the chief branch of the Medici, Cardinal Giulio, Ippolito, and Alessandro were all of illegitimate birth, and left no legitimate heirs.

Cardinal Giulio, who had laboured successfully for the reinstatement of his family in Florence in 1512, had been long attached to the person of Leo X. as his trusted factotum and companion, he had been generally regarded as the mentor of the pope, who had no liking for hard work. But in fact, his frivolity notwithstanding, Leo X. always followed his own inclinations. He had much aptitude for command, and pursued his shuffling policy without any mental anxiety. Giulio, on the contrary, shrank from all responsibility, muddled his brains in weighing the reasons for and against every possible decision, and was therefore a better tool of government in others' hands than he was fit to govern on his own account.

When Giuliano and Lorenzo died, the pope appointed the cardinal to the government of Florence. In that post, restricted within the limits imposed by republican institutions, and acting under the continual direction of Rome, he performed his duties fairly well. He caressed the citizens with hopes of extended liberties, which, although never destined to be fulfilled, long served to keep men's minds in a pleasant flutter of expectation; and when the more impatient spirits attempted to raise a rebellion he speedily quenched it in blood. When, after the death of Leo X. and the very brief pontificate of Adrian VI., he was elected pope (1523) under the name of Clement VII, he entrusted the government of Florence to Cardinal Silvio Passerini conjointly with Alessandro and Ippolito, who were still too young to do much on their own account.

The pontificate of Leo X. had been a time of felicity to himself if of disaster to Italy and the church. The reign of Clement, on the contrary, was fatal to himself as well, a result chiefly due to his hesitating temper and continual uncertainty of mind. His policy, like that of Leo X., consisted in perpetual oscillation between France and Spain. By his endeavours to trick all the world, he frequently ended in being tricked himself. In 1525 he was the ally of the French, who then suffered a terrible defeat at Pavia, where their king Francis I. was taken prisoner. The armies of Charles V. triumphantly advanced, without Clement being able to oppose any effectual resistance. Both Rome and Florence were threatened with a fearful catastrophe.

Thus far we have had no occasion to speak of the younger branch of the Medici, descended from Lorenzo, brother to Cosimo the Elder. Always in obscurity, and always held in check by the elder line, it now seemed to acquire new life, and first entered the arena of history when the other was on the point of extinction.

In fact the most valiant captain of the papal forces was Giovanni dei Medici, afterwards known by the name of Giovanni delle Bande Nere. His father was Giovanni, son of Pier Francesco, who was the son of Lorenzo, the brother of Cosimo dei Medici. History has little to tell of the elder Giovanni; but his wife Caterina Sforza, of whom he was the third husband, was a woman of more than masculine vigour. Giovanni dei Medici married her in 1497, but died in 1493, leaving her with one son who was christened Lodovico, but afterwards took his father's name of Giovanni (1498—1526).

Trained to arms from his earliest years, this youth inherited all the energy of his mother, whose Sforza blood seemed to infuse new life into the younger branch of the Medici. Notwithstanding his extreme youth, he had already achieved the title of the best captain in Italy. He always fought with immense dash and daring, and was devotedly loved and obeyed by his soldiery. He was the only leader who opposed a determined resistance to the imperial forces. He was seriously wounded at Pavia when fighting on the French side.

On his recovery he joined the army of the League, and was much enraged by finding that the duke of Urbino, commander of the Venetian and papal forces, would never decide on attacking. When the imperial troops were struggling through the marshes of Mantua, surrounded on every side, and without stores or ammunition, Giovanni could not resign himself to inactivity like his colleagues in command. He was ignorant that the imperialists had just received supplies and artillery from the duke of Ferrara, and therefore daringly attacked them with a small body of men without taking any precautions for defence. One of the first shots fired by the enemy injured him so fatally that he died a few days after. He was married to Maria Salviati, by whom he had one son, Cosimo (1519—1574), born, as we shall see, to lofty fortunes, for he became the first grand-duke of Tuscany, and indeed the founder of the grand-duchy and the new dynasty.

Meanwhile the imperial army pursued its march upon Rome, captured the Eternal City after a few hours' combat, and cruelly sacked it during many days (1527). Thanks to his perpetual shuffling and excessive avarice, the pope found himself utterly forsaken, and, being unable to defend the city, was obliged to seek refuge in the castle of St Angelo, whence he only effected his escape after some months. He then signed a treaty of alliance with the emperor (1529), who sent an army to besiege Florence and restore the Medici, whom the people had expelled in 1527 on the re-establishment of the republic. After an heroic defence, the city was forced to surrender (1530) ; and, although it was expressly stipulated that the ancient liberties of Florence should be respected, every one foresaw that the conditions would be violated.

In fact, pope and emperor immediately began to dispute as to which should be the new lord of the city. Clement VII. had inherited the traditional family dislike for the younger branch of his kin, and so the choice lay between the two bastards Ippolito and Alessandro. The former being a cardinal, the latter was chosen.

Alessandro, who already bore the title of duke of Città di Penna, came to Florence in 1531, and by imperial patent was nominated head of the republic. According to the terms of this patent, the former liberty enjoyed under the Medicean rule was to remain intact. But no previous ruler of the city had enjoyed hereditary power confirmed by imperial patent, and such power was incompatible with the existence of a republic. Moreover, Clement VII. showed dissatisfaction with the uncertainty of the power conferred upon his kinsman, and finally succeeded in obtaining additional privileges.

On the 4th of April 1532 a parliament was convoked for the last time in Florence, and, as usual, approved every measure proposed for acceptance. Accordingly a new council was formed of two hundred citizens elected for life, forty-eight of which number were to constitute a senate.

Alessandro, as duke of the republic, filled the post of gonfalonier, and carried on the government with the assistance of three senators, changed every three months, who took the place of the suppressed signory.

The duke's chief advisers, and the contrivers of all these arrangements, were Baccio Valori, Francesco Vettori, and above all Francesco Guicciardini,—men, especially the two latter, of lofty political gifts and extensive influence.

The mind and character of Duke Alessandro were as yet comparatively unknown. At first he seemed very anxious to win the favour of the people, and disposed to rule with justice and prudence. But soon encountering difficulties that he was unable to overcome, he began to neglect the business of the state, treated his new office as affording the means for increased indulgence in pleasure and vice, and acted as if the sole function of government consisted in lulling the people by festivities and corrupting it by the dissolute life of which he set the example. The question of the moment was the transformation of the old republican régime into a princedom; as an unavoidable result of this change it followed that Florence was no longer to be the ruling city to whose inhabitants alone belonged the monopoly of political office.

When the leading Florentine families realized, not only that the republic was destroyed, but that they were reduced to equality with those whom they had hitherto regarded as their inferiors and subjects, their rage was indescribable, and hardly a day passed without the departure of influential citizens who were resolved to achieve the overthrow of their new ruler. They found a leader in Cardinal Ippolito dei Medici, who was then in Rome, embittered by the preference given to Alessandro, and anxious to become his successor with the least possible delay.

Under the pressure of terror the duke at once became a tyrant. He garrisoned the different cities, and began the erection in Florence of the Fortezza da Basso, built chiefly at the expense of Filippo Strozzi, who afterwards met his death within its walls.

In 1534 Clement VII. died, and the election fell on Paul III., from whom Cardinal Ippolito hoped to obtain assistance for his designs. Accordingly the principal Florentine exiles were dispatched on a mission to the emperor Charles V. with complaints of Alessandro's tyranny and his shameless violation of the terms upon which the city had surrendered. Cardinal Ippolito also represented his own willingness to carry on the government of Florence in a more equitable manner, and promised the emperor a large sum of money. Reply being delayed by the emperor's absence, he became so impatient that he set out, accompanied by several exiles, to meet Charles in Tunis, but on the 10th of August 1535 died suddenly by the way, at Itri, poisoned by order of Alessandro.

Such at least was the general belief, and it was confirmed by the same fate befalling other enemies of the duke about the same time. On the emperor's return from Africa, the exiles presented themselves to him in Naples, and the venerable patriot Jacopo Nardi pleaded their cause. Duke Alessandro, being cited to appear, came to Naples accompanied by Francesco Guicciardini, who by speaking in his defence rendered himself odious to all friends of liberty, and irretrievably tarnished his illustrious name. The cardinal being dead, it was hard to find a successor to Alessandro. On this account, and perhaps to some extent through the emperor's personal liking for the duke, the latter rose higher than before in the imperial favour, married Margaret of Austria, the natural daughter of Charles, and returned to Florence with increased power.

And now Alessandro indulged unchecked in the lowest excesses of tyranny, and although so recently a bridegroom gave way to increased libertinism, His whole time was passed in vicious haunts and in scandalous adventures. [n order to conceal the obscurity of his birth, he left his mother to starve, and it was even asserted that he finally got rid of her by poison.

His constant associate in this disgraceful routine was distant kinsman Lorenzo, generally known as Lorenzino dei Medici. Of the younger branch of the Medici, the latter was second cousin of the Cosimo already mentioned as the son of Giovanni delle Bande Nere. He had much culture and literary talent, but led an irregular life, sometimes acting like a madman and sometimes like a villain. He was a writer of considerable elegance, the author of several plays, one of which, the Aridosio, was held to be among the best of the age, and he was a worshipper of antiquity. Notwithstanding these tastes, when in Rome he knocked off the heads of some of the finest statues of the age of Adrian, an act by which Clement VII. was so incensed that he threatened to have him hanged. Thereupon Lorenzino fled to Florence, where he became the friend of Duke Alessandro and his partner in the most licentious excesses. They went together to houses of ill-fame, and violated private dwellings and convents. They often showed themselves in public mounted on the same horse. All Florence eyed them with disgust, but no one foresaw the tragedy that was soon to take place.

On the evening of January 5th, 1537, after a day passed in the usual excesses, Lorenzino led the duke to his own lodging, and left him there, promising shortly to return with the wife of Leonardo Ginori. Alessandro, worn out by the exertions of the day, fell asleep on the couch while awaiting Lorenzino's return. Before long the latter came accompanied by a desperado known as the Scoronconcolo, who aided him in falling on the sleeper. Roused by their first thrusts, the duke fought for his life, sand was only despatched after a violent struggle. The murderers then lifted the body into bed, hid it beneath the clothes, and, Lorenzino having attached a paper to it bearing the words, vincit amor patriae, laudumque immenza cupida, they both fled to Venice.

In that city Lorenzino was assassinated some ten years later, in 1548, at the age of thirty-two, by order of Alessandro's successor. Thus he was only about twenty-two at the time he committed the murder. He wrote an Apologia, in which he defended himself with great skill and eloquence, saying that he had been urged to the deed solely by love of liberty. For this reason alone he had followed the example of Brutus and played the part of friend and courtier. The tone of this Apologia is so straightforward, sometimes even so eloquent and lofty, that we should be tempted to give it credence were it possible to believe the assertions of one who not only by his crime but by the infamy of his previous and subsequent career completely gave the lie to his vaunted nobility of purpose.

By Alessandro's death the elder branch of the Medici became extinct, and thus the appearance of the younger line was heralded by a bloody crime. When the duke's absence from his own palace was discovered on the morning of January 6th, he was at first supposed to have spent the night with one of his mistresses; but soon, some alarm being felt, search was made, and Cardinal Cybo was the first to discover the murder. Enjoining the strictest secrecy, he kept the corpse concealed for three days, and then had it interred in the sacristy of San Lorenzo. Meanwhile he had hastily summoned Alessandro Vitelli and the other captains, so that, by the time Alessandro's death was made public, the city was already filled with troops. The cardinal then convoked the council of forty-eight to decide upon a successor. Alessandro's only issue was a natural son named Giulio, aged five. The cardinal favoured his election, in the hope of keeping the real sovereignty in his own hands. But he speedily saw the impossibility of carrying out a design that was ridiculed by all.

On the other hand, Guicciardini, Vettori, and others of the leading citizens favoured the choice of Cosimo, the son of Giovanni delle Bande Nere. He was already in Florence, was aged seventeen, was keen-witted and aspiring, strong and handsome in person, heir to the enormous wealth of the Medici, and, by the terms of the imperial patent, was Alessandro's lawful successor.

Charles V. approved the nomination of Cosimo, who without delay seized the reins of government with a firm grasp. Like Alessandro, he was named head of the republic ; and Guicciardini and others who had worked hardest in his cause hoped to direct him and keep him under their control. But Cosimo soon undeceived them by proving that, his youth notwithstanding, he had a will of his own, and was resolved to rule unshackled by republican forms and unhampered by advisers disposed to act as mentors. The Florentines had now an absolute prince who was likewise a statesman of eminent ability.

On learning the death of Alessandro and the election of Cosimo, the exiles appreciated the necessity for prompt action, as all delay would be fatal to the overthrow of the Medicean rule. They had received money and promises from France; they were strengthened by the adhesion of Filippo Strozzi and Baccio Valori, who had both become hostile to the Medici through the infamous conduct and mad tyranny of Alessandro; and Strozzi brought them the help of his enormous fortune and the prowess of that very distinguished captain, his son Piero. The exiles accordingly met, and assembled their forces at Mirandola. They had about four thousand infantry and three hundred horse; among them were members of all the principal Florentine families; and their leaders were Bernardo Salviati and Piero Strozzi. They marched rapidly, and entered Tuscany towards the end of July 1537.

Cosimo on this occasion displayed signal capacity and presence of mind. Fully informed of the exiles' movements by means of his spies, he no sooner learned their approach than he ordered Alessandro Vitelli to collect the best German, Spanish, and Italian infantry at his disposal, and advance against the enemy without delay.

On the evening of July 31 Vitelli marched towards Prato with seven hundred picked infantry and a band of one hundred horse, and on the way fell in with other Spanish foot soldiers who joined the expedition. At early dawn the following morning he made a sudden attack on the exiles' advanced guard close to Montemurlo, an old fortress converted into a villa belonging to the Nerli. Having utterly routed them, he proceeded to storm Montemurlo, where Filippo Strozzi and a few of his young comrades had taken refuge and barricaded the gates. Knowing that they must either conquer or die, they made a desperate resistance for some hours, and then, overwhelmed by superior numbers, were obliged to yield themselves prisoners. The main body of the army was still at some distance, having been detained in the mountains by heavy rains and difficult passes, and, on learning the defeat at Montemurlo, its header refused to advance, and turned back by the way he had come. Alessandro Vitelli then reentered Florence with his victorious army and his fettered captives. Cosimo had achieved his first triumph.

All the prisoners, who were members of great families, were brought before Cosimo, and were received by him with courteous coldness. Soon, however, a scaffold was erected in the Piazza, and on four mornings in succession four of the prisoners were beheaded. Then the duke saw fit to stay the executions. Baccio Valori, however, and his son and nephew were beheaded on the 20th of August in the courtyard of the Bargello. Filippo Strozzi still survived, confined in the Fortezza da Basso, that had been built at his expense. His family was illustrious, he had numerous adherents, and he enjoyed the protection of the French king.

Nevertheless Cosimo only awaited some plausible pretext to rid himself of this dreaded enemy, he brought him to trial and had him put to the question. But this cruelty led to nothing, for Strozzi denied every accusation and bore the torture with much fortitude. On December 18th he was found dead in his prison, with a blood-stained sword by his side, and a slip of paper bearing these words exoriare aliquis nostris ex ossibus ultor. It was believed that having renounced all hope of his life being spared, Strozzi had preferred suicide to death at the hands of the executioner. Some, however, thought that Cosimo had caused him to be murdered, and adopted this mode of concealing the crime.

The young prince's cold-blooded massacre of his captives cast an enduring shadow upon his reign and dynasty. But it was henceforward plain to all that he was a man of stern resolve, who went straight his end without scruples or half measures. Before long he was regarded by many as the incarnation of Machiavelli's Prince, "inasmuch as he joined daring to talent and prudence, was capable of great cruelty, and yet could practise mercy in due season."

Guicciardini, who still pretended to act as mentor, and who on account of his many services had a certain influence over him, was obliged to withdraw from public life and busy himself with writing his History at his villa of Arcetri. He died in this retreat in 1540, and it was immediately rumoured that the duke had caused him to be poisoned. This shows the estimation in which Cosimo was now held. It was true that he punished with death all who dared to resist his will.

By 1540 sentence of death had been pronounced against four hundred and thirty contumacious fugitives, and during his reign one hundred and forty men and six women actually ascended the scaffold, without counting those who perished in foreign lands by the daggers of his assassins.

He reduced the old republican institutions to empty forms, by making the magistrates mere creatures of his will. He issued the sternest edicts against the rebels, particularly by the law known as the "Polverina," from the name of its proposer Jacopo Polverini. This law decreed not only the confiscation of the property of exiles, but likewise that of their heirs, even if personally acquired by the latter.

Cosimo ruled like the independent sovereign of a great state, and always showed the capacity, firmness, and courage demanded by that station. Only, his state being small and weak, he was forced to rely chiefly upon his personal talent and wealth. It was necessary for him to make heavy loans to the different European sovereigns, especially to Charles V., the most rapacious of them all, and to give enormous bribes to their ambassadors. Besides, he had to carry on wars for the extension of his dominions, and neither his inherited wealth nor the large sums gained by confiscating the estates of rebellious subjects sufficed for all this outlay. He was accordingly compelled to burden the people with taxes, and thus begin at once to diminish its strength.

Cosimo bore a special grudge against the neighbouring republics of Siena and Lucca. Although the latter was small and weak, and the former garrisoned by Spaniards, yet the spectacle of free institutions at the frontiers of his own state served as a continual incitement to subjects disaffected to the new régime. In fact Francesco Burlamacchi, a zealous Lucchese patriot, had conceived the design of re-establishing republican government in all the cities of Tuscany. Cosimo, with the emperor's help, succeeded having him put to death. Lucca, however, was an insignificant state making no pretence of rivalry, whereas Siena was an old and formidable foe to Florence, and had always given protection to the Florentine exiles. It was now very reluctantly submitting to the presence of a Spanish garrison, and, being stimulated by promises of prompt and efficacious assistance from France, rose in rebellion and expelled the Spaniards in 1552.

Cosimo instantly seized the opportunity, wrote to the emperor in terms that appealed to his pride, asked leave to attack Siena, and begged for troops to ensure the success of his enterprise. As no immediate answer arrived, he feigned to begin negotiations with Henry II. of France, and, by thus arousing the imperial jealousy, obtained a contingent of German and Spanish infantry. Then came a long and bloody war.

Siena was besieged for fifteen months, and its inhabitants, aided by the valour of Piero Strozzi, who fought under the French flag, made a most heroic resistance, even women and children helping on the walls. But fortune was against them. Piero Strozzi sustained several defeats, and finally the Sienese, having exhausted their ammunition and being decimated by famine and the sword, were obliged to capitulate on honourable terms that were shamelessly violated. By the varied disasters of the siege and the number of fugitives the population was reduced from forty to eight thousand inhabitants. The republicans, still eager to resist, withdrew to Montalcino.

Cosimo now ruled the city and territory of Siena in the name of Charles V., who always refused him its absolute possession. After the emperor's abdication, and the succession of Philip II. to the Spanish throne, Cosimo at last obtained Siena and Pontoferra by giving up his claim to a sum of 200,000 ducats that he was to have received from Charles V. In 1559 he also captured Montalcino, and thus formed the grand-duchy of Tuscany, but he continued to govern the new state—i.e., Siena and its territories—separately from the old.

His rule was intelligent, skilful, and despotic; but his enormous expenses drove him to raise large sums of money by special contrivances unsuited to the country and the people. Hence, notwithstanding the genius of its founder, the grand-duchy held from the first the elements of its future decay.

Cosimo preferred to confer office upon men of humble origin in order to have pliable tools, but he also liked to be surrounded by a courtier aristocracy on the Spanish and French pattern. As no Tuscan aristocracy any longer existed, he created new nobles, and tempted foreign ones to come by the concession of various feudal privileges; and, in order to turn this artificial aristocracy to some account, he founded the knightly order of St Stephen, charged with the defence of the coast against pirates, which in course of time won much honour by its prowess.

He also established a small standing army for the protection of his frontiers; but, as we have seen, he generally employed German and Spanish troops for his wars, and always had a foreign bodyguard. At the commencement of his reign he opposed the popes in order to maintain the independence of his own state; but later, to obtain help, he truckled to them in many ways, even to the extent of giving up to the Inquisition his own confidant, Piero Carnesecchi, who, being accused of heresy, was beheaded and burnt in 1567.

In reward for these acts of submission, the popes showed him friendship, and Pius V. granted him the title of grand-duke, conferring the patent and crown upon him in Rome, although the emperor had always withheld his consent. Finally, however, the latter confirmed the title to Cosimo's successor.

The measure most injurious to Tuscany was the fiscal system of taxes, of which the sole aim was to extort the greatest possible amount of money. The consequent damage to industry, commerce, and agriculture was immense, and, added to the devastations caused by the Sienese war, led to their utter ruin. Otherwise Cosimo did not neglect useful measures for the interior prosperity of his state. He was no Maecenas, hut nevertheless restored the Pisan university, enlarged that of Siena, had the public records classified, and also executed public works like the Santa Trinita bridge. During the great inundations of 1557 he turned his whole energy to the relief of the sufferers.

In 1539 he had espoused Eleonora of Toledo, daughter of the viceroy of Naples, by whom he had several children. Two died in 1562, and their mother soon followed them to the grave. It was said that one of these boys, Don Garcia, had murdered the other, and then been killed by the enraged father. Indeed Cosimo was further accused of having put his own wife to death; but neither rumour had any foundation. He now showed signs of illness and failure of strength. He was not old, but worn by the cares of state and self-indulgence.

Accordingly in 1561 he resigned the government to his eldest son, who was to act as his lieutenant, since he wished to remain the virtual head of the state and have power to resume the sceptre on any emergency. In 1570, by the advice of Pius V., he married Camilla Martelli, a young lady of whom he had been long enamoured. In 1574 he died, at the age of fifty-four years and ten mouths, after a reign of thirty seven years, leaving three sons and one daughter besides natural children. These sons were Francesco, his successor, who was already at the head of the government, Cardinal Ferdinand, and Piero.

Francesco I., born in 1541, began to govern as his father's lieutenant in 1564, and was married in 1565 to the archduchess Giovanna of Austria. On beginning to reign on his own account in 1574, he speedily manifested his real character. His training in the hands of a Spanish mother had made him suspicious, false, and despotic. Holding everyone aloof, he carried on the government with the assistance of a few devoted ministers, He compelled his stepmother to retire to a convent, and kept his brothers at a distance from Florence. He loved the privileges of power without its burdens.

Cosimo had known how to maintain his independence, but Francesco cast himself like a vassal at Austria's feet. He reaped his reward by obtaining from Maximilian II. the title of grand-duke, for which Cosimo had never been able to win the imperial sanction, but he forfeited all independence. Towards Philip II. he showed even greater submissiveness, supplying him with large sums of money wrung from his over-taxed people. He held entirely aloof from France, in order not to awake the suspicions of his protectors.

In short, under his rule the history of Tuscany was reduced to a mere record of local and municipal events. To increase his funds, he traded on his own account, thus creating a monopoly that was ruinous to the country at large, and led to an enormous number of failures. He raised the tax upon corn to so high a rate that few continued to find any profit in growing it, and thus the Maremme, already partly devastated during the war with Siena, were converted into a desert. Even industry declined under this system of government; and, although Francesco founded porcelain manufactories and pietra dura works, they did not rise to any prosperity until after his death.

His love of science and letters was the only Medicean virtue that he possessed. He had an absolute passion for chemistry, and passed much of his time in his laboratory. Sometimes indeed he gave audience to his secretaries of state standing before a furnace, bellows in hand. He took some useful measures to promote the rise of a new city at Leghorn, which at that time had only a natural and ill-sheltered harbour. The improvement of Leghorn had been first projected by Cosimo I., and was carried on by all the succeeding Medici.

Francesco was a slave to his passions, and was led by them to scandalous excesses and deeds of bloodshed. His example and neglect of the affairs of the state soon caused a vast increase of crime even among the people, and, during the first eighteen months of his reign, there occurred no less than one hundred and sixty-eight murders. In default of public events, the historians of this period enlarge upon private incidents, generally of a scandalous or sanguinary kind.

In 1575 Orazio Pucci, wishing to avenge his father, whom Cosimo had hanged, determined to get up a conspiracy, but, soon recognizing how firmly the Medicean rule had taken root in the country, desisted from the attempt. But the grand-duke, on hearing of the already abandoned plot, immediately caused Pucci to be hanged from the same window of the Palazzo Vecchio, and even from the same iron stanchion, from which his father before him had hung. His companions, who had fled to France and England, were pursued and murdered by the ducal emissaries. Their possessions were confiscated, and the "Polverina" law applied so that the conspirators' heirs were reduced to penury, and the grand-duke gained more than 300,000 ducats. Next year Isabella dei Medici, Francesco's sister, was strangled in her nuptial bed by her husband, Paolo Giordano Orsini, whom she had betrayed. Piero dei Medici, Francesco's brother, murdered his wife Eleonora of Toledo from the same motive.

Still louder scandal was caused by the duke's own conduct. He was already a married man, when, passing one day through the Piazza of St Mark in Florence, he saw an exceedingly beautiful woman at the window of a mean dwelling, and at once conceived a passion for her. She was the famous Bianca Cappello, a Venetian of noble birth, who had eloped with a young Florentine named Pietro Buonaventuri, to whom she was married at the time that she attracted the duke's gaze. He made her acquaintance, and, in order to see her frequently, nominated her husband to a post at court. Upon this, Buonaventuri behaved with so much insolence, even to the nobility, that one evening he was found murdered in the street. Thus the grand-duke, who was thought to have sanctioned the crime, was able to indulge his passion unchecked. On the death of the grand-duchess in 1578 he was privately united to Bianca, and afterwards married her publicly. But site had no children, and this served to poison her happiness, since the next in succession was her bitter enemy, the cardinal Ferdinand.

The latter came to Florence in 1687, and was ostentatiously welcomed by Bianca, who was most anxious to conciliate him. On October 18th of the same year, the grand-duke died at his villa of Poggio a Caiano, of a fever caught on a shooting excursion in the Maremme, and the next day Bianca also expired, having ruined her health by drugs taken to cure her sterility. But rumour asserted that she had prepared a poisoned tart for the cardinal, and that, when he suspiciously insisted on the grand-duke tasting it first, Bianca desperately swallowed a slice and followed her husband to the tomb. Such was the life of Francesco dei Medici, and all that can be said in his praise is that he gave liberal encouragement to a few artists, including Giovanni Bologna, who executed for him the group of the Rape of the Sabines. He was the founder of the Uffizi gallery, of the Medici theatre, and the villa of Pratolino ; and during his reign the Della Cruscan academy was instituted.

Ferdinand I. was thirty-eight years of age when, in 1587, he succeeded his brother on the throne. A cardinal from the age of fourteen, he had never taken holy orders. He showed much tact and experience in the management of ecclesiastical affairs. He was the founder of the Villa Medici at Rome, and the purchaser of many priceless works of art, such as the Niobe group and many other statues afterwards transported by him to Florence. After his accession he retained the cardinal's purple until the time of his marriage.

He was in all respects his brother's opposite. Affable in his manners and generous with his purse, he chose a crest typical of the proposed mildness of his rule,—a swarm of bees with the motto Majestate tantum. He instantly pardoned all who had opposed him, and left his kinsmen at liberty to choose their own place of residence. Occasionally, for political reasons, he committed acts unworthy of his character; but he re-established the administration of justice, and sedulously attended to the business of the state and the welfare of his subjects.

Accordingly Tuscany revived under his rule and regained the independence and political dignity that his brother had sacrificed to love of ease and personal indulgence, he favoured commerce, and effectually ensured the Prosperity of Leghorn, by an edict enjoining toleration towards Jews and heretics, which led to the settlement of many foreigners in that city. He also improved the harbour and facilitated communication with Pisa by means of the Naviglio, a canal into which a portion of the water of the Arno was turned.

He nevertheless retained the reprehensible custom of trading on his own account, keeping banks in many cities of Europe. He successfully accomplished the draining of the Val di Chiana, cultivated the plains of Pisa, Fucecchio, aiid Val di Nievole, and executed other works of public utility at Siena and Pisa. But his best energies were devoted to the foreign policy by which he sought to emancipate himself from subjection to Spain.

On the assassination (1559) of Henry III. of France, Ferdinand supported the claims of the king of Navarre, undeterred by the opposition of Spain and the Catholic League, who were dismayed by the prospect of a Huguenot succeeding to the throne of France. He lent money to Henry IV., and strongly urged his conversion to Catholicism; he helped to persuade the pope to accept Henry's abjuration, and pursued this policy with marvellous persistence until his efforts were crowned with success. Subsequently, however, Henry IV. showed faint gratitude for the benefits conferred upon him, and paid no attention to the expostulations of the grand duke, who then began to slacken his relations with France, and showed that he could guard his independence by other alliances.

He gave liberal assistance to Philip III. for the campaign of the latter in Algiers, and to the emperor for the war with the Turks. Hence he was compelled to burden his subjects with enormous taxes, forgetting that while guaranteeing the independence of Tuscany by his loans to foreign powers he was increasingly sapping the strength of future generations. He at last succeeded in obtaining the formal investiture of Siena, which Spain had always considered a fief of her own.

During this grand-duke's reign the Tuscan navy was notably increased, and did itself much honour on the Mediterranean. The war-galleys of the knights of St Stephen were despatched to the coast of Barbary to attack Bona, the headquarters of the corsairs, and they captured the town with much dash and bravery. And in the following year (1605) the same galleys achieved their most brilliant victory in the archipelago over the stronger fleet of the Turks, by taking nine of their vessels, seven hundred prisoners, and a store of jewels of the value of 2,000,000 ducats.

Ferdinand I. died in 1609, leaving four sons, of whom the eldest, Cosimo II., succeeded to the throne at the age of nineteen. He was at first assisted in the government by his mother and a council of regency. He had a good disposition, and the fortune to reign during a period when Europe was at peace and Tuscany blessed with abundant harvests. Of his rule there is little to relate. His chief care was given to the galleys of St Stephen, and he sent them to assist the Druses against the Porte. On one occasion he was involved in a quarrel with France. Concino Concini, the Marshal d'Ancre, being assassinated in 1617, Louis XIII. claimed the right of transferring the property of the murdered man to De Luynes. Cosimo opposed the decision, and, refusing to recognize the confiscation decreed by the French tribunals, demanded that Concini's son should be allowed to inherit. Hence followed much ill-feeling and mutual reprisals between the two countries, finally brought to an end by the intervention of the duke of Lorraine.

Like his predecessors, Cosimo II. studied to promote the prosperity of Leghorn, and he deserves honour for abandoning all commerce on his own account. But it was no praiseworthy act to pass a law depriving women of almost all rights of inheritance. By this means many daughters of the nobility were driven into convents against their will.

He gave scanty attention to the general affairs of the state. He was fond of luxury, spent freely on public festivities, and detested trouble. Tuscany was apparently tranquil and prosperous; but the decay of which the seeds were sown under Cosimo I. and Ferdinand I. was rapidly spreading, and became before long patent to nil and beyond all hope of remedy. The best deed done by Cosimo II. was the protection accorded by him to Galileo Galilei, who had removed to Padua, and there made some of his grandest discoveries. The grand-duke recalled him to Florence in 1610, and nominated him court mathematician and philosopher.

Cosimo died in February 1621, after twelve years of a quiet reign marked by no great event. Feeling his end draw near, when he was only aged thirty and all his sons were still in their childhood, he hastened to arrange his family affairs. his mother, Cristina of Lorraine, and his wife, Maddalena of Austria, were nominated regents and guardians to his eldest son Ferdinand II., a boy of ten, and a council of four appointed, whose functions were regulated by law.

Accordingly, after Cosimo's death, the young Ferdinand was sent to Rome and Vienna to complete his education, and the government of Tuscany remained in the hands of two jealous and quarrelsome women. Thus the administration of justice and finance speedily went to ruin.

Out of submissiveness to the pope, the regents did not dare to maintain their legitimate right to inherit the duchy of Urbino, and in 1623 sanctioned the transfer of that right to the holy see. They conferred exaggerated privileges on the new Tuscan nobility, which became increasingly insolent and worthless. They resumed the practice of trading on their own account, and, without reaping much benefit thereby, did the utmost damage to private enterprise.

In 1627 Ferdinand II., then aged seventeen, returned to Italy and assumed the reins of government; but, being of a very gentle disposition, he decided on sharing his power with the regents and his brothers, and arranged matters in such wise that each was almost independent of the other, he gained the love of his subjects by his great goodness; and, when Florence and Tuscany were cruelly ravaged by the plague in 1630, he showed admirable courage, and carried out many useful measures. But he as totally incapable of energy as a statesman.

When the pope made bitter complaints because the board of health had dared to subject certain monks and priests to the necessary quarantine, the grand-duke insisted on his officers asking pardon on their knees for having done their duty. On the death in 1631 of the last duke of Urbino, the pope was allowed to seize the duchy without the slightest opposition on the part of Tuscany. As a natural consequence the pretensions of the Roman curia became increasingly exorbitant; ecclesiastics usurped the functions of the state; and the ancient laws of the republic, together with the regulations decreed by Cosimo I. as a check upon similar abuses, were allowed to become obsolete.

On the extinction of the line of the Gonzagas at Mantua in 1627, war broke out between France on the one side and Spain, Germany, and Savoy on the other. The grandduke, uncertain of his policy, trimmed his sails according to events. Fortunately peace was re-established in 1631. Mantua and Monferrato fell to the duke of Nevers, as France had always desired.

But Europe was again in arms for the Thirty Years' War, and Italy was not at peace. Urban VIII. wished to aggrandize his nephews, the Barberini, by wresting Castro and Ronciglione from Odoardo Farnese, duke of Parma and brother-in-law to Ferdinand. Farnese determined to maintain his rights, and marched his army through Tuscany into the territories of the pope, who was greatly alarmed by the attack. Naturally the grand-duke was drawn into the war to defend his own state and his kinsman. His military operations, however, were of the feeblest and often the most laughable character.

At last, by means of the French intervention, peace was made in 1644. But, although the pope was forced to yield, he resigned none of his ecclesiastical pretensions in Tuscany. It was during Ferdinand's reign that the septuagenarian Galileo was obliged to appear before the Inquisition in Rome, which treated him with infamous cruelty. On the death of this great and unfortunate man, the grand-duke wished to erect a monument to him, but was withheld by fear of the opposition of the clergy. The dynasty as well as the country now seemed on the brink of decay. Two of the grand duke's brothers had already died childless, and Ippolito, the sole survivor, was a cardinal. Accordingly the only remaining heir was Cosimo III., married to a wife who held him in detestation, and did her best to have her marriage annulled or at least obtain a separation.

Like nearly all his predecessors, Ferdinand II. gave liberal patronage to science and letters, greatly aided therein by his brother Leopold, who had been trained by Galileo Galilei, and who joined with men of learning in founding the celebrated academy Del Cimento, of which he was named resident. This academy took for its motto the words Provando e riprovando, and followed the experimental method of Galileo. Formed in 1657, it was dissolved in 1667 in consequence of the jealousies and dissensions of its members, but during its brief existence won renown by the number and importance of its works.

Cosimo III. succeeded his father in 1670. He was weak, vain, bigoted, and hypocritical. In 1661 he had espoused Louise d'Orléans, niece of Louis XIV., who, being enamoured of Duke Charles of Lorraine, was very reluctant to come to Italy, and speedily detested both her husband and his country, of which she refused to learn the language. She had two sons and one daughter, but after the birth of her third child, Giovan Castone, her hatred for her husband increased almost to madness. She first withdrew to Poggia a Caiano, and then, being unable to get her marriage annulled, returned to France, where, although supposed to live in conventual seclusion, she passed the greater part of her time as a welcome visitor at court. Even her testamentary dispositions attested the violence of her dislike to her husband.

Cosimo's hypocritical zeal for religion compelled his subjects to multiply services and processions, that greatly infringed upon their working hours. He wasted enormous sums in pensioning converts—even those from other countries—and in giving rich endowments to sanctuaries. Meanwhile funds often failed for the payment of Government clerks and soldiers. His court was composed of bigots and parasites; he ransacked the world for dainties for his table, adorned his palace with costly foreign hangings, had foreign servants, and filled his gardens with exotic plants. He purchased from the emperor the title of "Highness" in order to be the equal of the duke of Savoy. He remained neutral during the Franco-Spanish war, and submitted to every humiliation and requisition exacted by the emperor.

He had vague notions of promoting agriculture, but accomplished no results. At one time he caused eight hundred families to he brought over from the Morea for the cultivation of the Maremme, where all of them died of fever. But when, after the revocation of the edict of Nantes, French Huguenots offered to apply their labour and capital to the same purpose, the grand-duke's religious scruples refused them refuge. So ruin fell upon Tuscany. Crime and misery increased, and the poor, who only asked for work, were given alms and sent oftener to church. This period witnessed the rise of many charitable institutions of a religious character under the patronage of the grand duke, as for instance the congregation of San Giovanni Battista. But these could not remedy the general decay.

Cosimo's dominant anxiety regarded the succession to the throne. His eldest son Ferdinand died childless in 1713. The pleasure-loving Giovan Gastone was married to Anna Maria of Saxe-Lauenburg, widow of a German prince, a wealthy coarse woman wholly immersed in domestic occupations, and who seemed little likely to give birth to any children. After living with her for some time in a Bohemian village, Giovan Gastone yielded to his dislike to his wife and her country, withdrew to France, and ruined his health by his excesses. After a brief return to Bohemia he finally separated from his wife, by whom he had no family. Thus the dynasty was doomed to extinction.

Cosimo had a passing idea of reconstituting the Florentine republic, but, this design being discountenanced by the European powers, he determined to transfer the succession, after the death of Giovan Gastone, to his sister Anna Maria Louisa, who in fact survived him. For this purpose he proposed to annul the patent of Charles V., but the powers objected to this arrangement also, and by the treaty of 1718 the quadruple alliance of Germany, France, England, and Holland decided that Parma and Tuscany should descend to the Spanish Infante Don Carlos. The grand-duke made energetic but fruitless protests.

Cosimo III. had passed his eightieth year at the time of his decease in October 1773, and was succeeded by his son Giovan Gastone, then aged fifty-three. The new sovereign was in bad health, worn out by dissipation, and had neither ambition nor aptitude for rule. His throne was already at the disposal of foreign powers, and his only thought on ascending it was to regain strength enough to pass the remainder of his days in enjoyment. He dismissed the spies, parasites, and bigots that had formed his father's court, abolished the pensions given to converts, suppressed several taxes, and prohibited the organized espionage established in the family circle. He wished to live and let live, and liked the people to be amused. Everything in fact bore a freer and gayer aspect under his reign, and the Tuscans seemed to feel renewed attachment for the dynasty as the moment of its extinction drew near. But the grand-duke was too feeble and incapable to accomplish any real improvement.

Surrounded by gay and dissipated young men, he entrusted all the cares of government to a certain Guiliano Dami, who drove a profitable trade by the sale of offices and privileges. In this way all things were in the hands of corrupt individuals; while the grand-duke, compelled to pass the greater part of his time in bed, vainly sought diversion in the company of buffoons, and was only tormented by perceiving that all the world disposed of his throne without even asking his advice. And when, after prolonged opposition, he had resigned himself to accept Don Carlos as his successor, the latter led a Spanish army to the conquest of Naples, an event afterwards leading to the peace of 1735, by which the Tuscan succession was transferred to Francesco II., duke of Lorraine, arid husband of Maria Theresa. Giovan Gastone was finally obliged to submit even to this.

Spain withdrew her garrisons from Tuscany, and Austrian soldiers took their place and swore fealty to the grand-duke on the 5th of February 1737. He expired on the 9th July of the same year. Such was the end of the younger branch of the Medici, which had found Tuscany a prosperous country, where art, letters, commerce, industry, and agriculture flourished, and left her poor and decayed in all ways, drained by taxation, and oppressed by laws contrary to every principle of sound economy, downtrodden by the clergy, and burdened by a weak and vicious aristocracy.

Capponi Storia della Repubblica di Firenze, Florence, 1875; Roscoe, Life of Lorenzo dei Medici, and Life of Leo X.; Alfred von Beaumont, Lorenzo dei Medici, il Magnifico, Leipsic, 1874 ; Galluzzi, Storia del Granducato di Toscana sotto il qoverno di Casa Medici, vols. Florence, 1787; A. von Reaumont, Geschichte Toscanas seit d. Ende d. florent. Frcistaates, 2 vols., Gotha, 1876.

TheUnhivedMind - March 30, 2011 03:34 PM (GMT)

"THEY WILL BURN THE VATICAN."

[dohtml]<iframe title="YouTube video player" width="640" height="390" src="http://www.youtube.com/embed/MpY1_iCUUa8" frameborder="0" allowfullscreen></iframe>[/dohtml]

REVE 17. BORGIA=1 OF THE 10 KINGS

TheUnhivedMind - March 30, 2011 03:36 PM (GMT)

Take notice folks how this show, 'The Borgia's' is on Showtime and remember how there logo is the IHS in the circle mirrored. The IHS is the symbol of Constantine and the Knights Templar whilst being continued by their continuum the Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS and their subordinate Sacred Military Constantinian Order of St George.

Maximiliano - April 2, 2011 06:56 AM (GMT)

INDEX LIBRORVM PROHIBITORVM,
CVM REGVLIS CONFECTIS
per Patres a Tridentina Synodo delectos, auctoritate Sanctiſs. D.N. Pij IIII, Pont. Max. comprobatus.

VENETIIS, M. D. LXIIII.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: ULTRA POWERFUL ALDOBRANDINI FAMILY

Title: ULTRA POWERFUL ALDOBRANDINI FAMILY
Description: [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 01:29 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

ALDOBRANDINI

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aldobrandini

This has got to be one of the most powerful and richest families of the world:

The surname literally translates to Satan, after you figure out the riddle.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aldebaran
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aldobrandini_Madonna

Because Aldebaran is the morning star and falling angel. Why would they have a name like this and be POPES. They are Satanists, PERIOD!
I have eaten many dinners in their palace in Frascati, Italy close to Rome in the Castelli Romani hills.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Villa_Aldobrandini

QUOTE

These people have the big massive orgies. We know that Stanley Kubrick was present at this Castle for many orgies. He got the inspiration of Eyes Wide Shut there. There is a portait of Kubrick inside the main hall with his autograph giving thanks to the Aldobrandini family for supporting his films.

Aldobrandini = Al Debaran

They have an Egyptian lineage from Ptolemy Egypt. There name is Arabic, which means they are also Moorish converts to Catholicism, but came from Egypt as well they married into the Venetian Este Family

Theres a lodge called Al-dabaran.

According to xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx it is to pat respect to Taurus. Have you ever wondered WHY, picasso did all of those orgy paintings with Taurus as giving orgies to many women. It is not only because Picasso was funded by the Aldobrandini's, he had many orgies in Rome.

The Taurus is Picasso's paintings is the POPE!

Picasso is a Jesuit as well. A Co-Adjutor

http://www.martinries.com/article1972-73PP.htm

QUOTE

Aldobrandini's, who are the distant cousins of the Breakspear's.

I am not going to betray xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx, but if you want to see Tsarion & Maxwell go Ballistic. go for the Aldobrandini's, who are the Nephilim.

He is always going-on about the Nephilim, so give him the Nephilim

"because ONE evil pope just happened to have that surname, does not mean diddly pal. that is like saying everyone who has the surname clinton has had blowjob in the oval office."* -Michael Tsarion

THEN HOW YOU DO EXPLAIN OTHER EVIL BLOODTHIRSTY POPES WITH OTHER SATANIC NAMES:

soulinspiration - December 30, 2008 04:06 AM (GMT)

If Mtsar has ever heard of Aldobrandini & knows of how high they are he will be bricking it right now. This is completely "right on the money" - literally. Will post more details as soon as have time.

Meanwhile, here's some other esoterically related info worth noting for those not familiar with various occult & conspiracy related matters to do with Aldebaran:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aldebaran#Ety...al_significance

"In the religion of Stregheria, Aldebaran is a fallen angel and quarter guardian of the eastern gate."

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Stregheria

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Vril

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Vril#The_Cons...laims_in_detail

http://www.theosociety.org/pasadena/etgloss/ah-al.htm

"Aldebaran A first magnitude ruddy star, the principal star in Taurus the Bull. It is one of the four Royal Stars of the ancient Persians, which approximately marked the solstices and equinoxes about 4000 BC. It represented the spring equinox; the others being Antares in Scorpius (summer solstice), Regulus in Leo (autumnal equinox), and Fomalhaut in the Southern Fish (winter solstice). They have been connected from an early time in India with the legends concerning the four Maharajas (regents of the cardinal points) and the four primitive elements, and have come down to us in connection with Hebrew and Shemitic writings as the archangels Uriel, Gabriel, Michael, and Raphael, as well as in the Christian symbols of the four evangelists: the bull, the eagle (Scorpio), the lion, and the angel or man. Blavatsky says that the spring equinox was in Taurus at the beginning of the kali yuga (3102 BC), though it was approaching Aries. Aldebaran symbolizes the Hebrew aleph (A or 1). "

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 05:41 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
PAPAL GENEALOGY

GoogleBook Link
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 05:48 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Roma - Palazzo Chigi (Seat of the Italian Government)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The Palazzo Chigi is a palace or noble residence in Rome, overlooking the Piazza Colonna and the Corso. It was begun in 1562 by Giacomo della Porta and completed by Carlo Maderno in 1580 for the Aldobrandini family. In 1659 it was purchased by the Chigi family. It was then remodelled by Felice della Greca and Giovan Battista Contini. It has five floors, a broad stairway that leads to the living rooms, and a courtyard decorated with a fountain, designed by Giacomo della Porta. The fountain has been copied in many sites in Rome and other Italian cities.

In 1878 it became the residence of the Austria-Hungarian Ambassador to Italy. 1916 it was bought by the Italian state and it became the seat of the Minister for Colonial Affairs. Later it was the official residence of the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs. In 1961 it became the official meeting place of Council of Ministers whose President is the Italian Prime Minister.
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 05:54 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Clement VIII's insignia on the relief behind the eagle, crest of Clement VIII
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 05:58 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Aldobrandini Madonna (Garvagh Madonna) - 1510
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 06:02 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Funtain of Cement VIII

An inscription and the Aldobrandini family arms decorate this niche fountain in the grounds of the Lateran's hospital.
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 06:09 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Antinoo-Palazzo Doria Pamphilj-Roma

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Antinous, Emperor Hadrian's lover depicted as Dionysus-Bacchus in the Palazzo Doria Pamphili.

This palace is one of Rome's most important private residences, and a museum containing an incredible collection of paintings and antique statues: the Galleria Doria-Pamphilj. The bust is exhibited in the room known as the Salone Aldobrandini, along with ancient statues ranging from the Arcaic period to the Hellenistical. Most of the pieces in this room come from the gradens of the Villa Pamphilj, built by Prince Camillo (1622-1666), who married Olimpia Aldobrandini in 1647. Olimpia brought as dowry the Aldobrandini collection of paintings. Camillo cultivated his passion for art, of which he was a collector and patron.
This Antinous, is probably a work of the 17th Century, transfered from the gardens of the Villa Pamphilj (also spelled Pamphili).

The Doria Pamphilj Gallery is a large art collection housed in the Palazzo Doria Pamphilj in Rome. It is situated between the Via del Corso and Via della Gatta. The principal entrance is on the Piazza del Collegio Romano. Like the palace, it is still privately owned by the princely Roman family Doria Pamphilij.
The large collection of paintings, furniture and statuary has been assembled since the 16th century by the Doria, Pamphilj, Landi and Aldobrandini families now united through marriage and descent under the simplified surname Doria Pamphilj. The collection includes paintings and furnishings from the Innocent X's Palazzo Pamphilj (in Piazza Navona), who bequeathed them to his nephew Camillo Pamphilj.

The Palazzo has grown over the centuries; it is likely the largest in Rome still in private ownership. The main collection is displayed in state rooms, including the chapel. The Salone Aldobrandini of the palace houses antique sculptures and marble reliefs by Duquesnoy. François Duquesnoy (1597-1643) was a prominent Wallon Baroque sculptor who in Rome, was called Il Fiammingo.

The collection was first opened to the public by the only daughter of Prince Filippo Andrea VI: Orietta Pogson Doria Pamphilj, whose British husband Frank Pogson added her name to his. Princess Orietta and Don Frank did much to restore the collection and the Palazzo, following her death in 2000 the guardianship of the collection was taken over by their adopted children, Prince Jonathan Doria Pamphilj and Donna Gesine Pogson Doria Pamphilj. The family still reside in the palazzo.

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 06:11 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Villa Aldobrandini in Frascati

Villa was built by a Cardinal in the 1500s. His family still owns the estate.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
1598-1603: The cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini (1572-1621) orders to a pupil of Michelangelo, Giacomo della Porta, the construction of his summer residence: Villa Aldobrandini.

1599: Completion by Giusto (or Justus) Utens upon orders from the grand-duke Fernandino I of fourteen painted glasses intended for his villa Ferdinanda d' Artiminio, on Montalbano, built by Bernardo Buontalenti and representing the villas built for various members of the Medici family between 1451 and 1599. These paintings, unique testimonies on the art of the gardens, are today in Museo Storico Topografico in Florence.

1605: Construction of Villa Borghese, in the year when Camillo Borghese is elected pope (Paul V).
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Clemens VIII

Pope Clemens VIII (Ippolito Aldobrandini) made a lot of use of the theme of his coat of arms (a stripe and a star) to decorate buildings he erected or restored (see S. Cesareo in Palazio or Palazzo di Campidoglio).
The balustrades of Villa Aldobrandini in Rome have little globes showing the family symbols.

Clemens VIII completed the decoration of the southern nave of S. Pietro in Vaticano and outside the Basilica one can find small piers with the family symbols.

The large and imposing Villa Aldobrandini in Frascati is all decorated with stripes and stars, even the garden shows them.

Details of the decoration of Villa Aldobrandini

SATURNALIAN BROTHERHOOD

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 07:04 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Palazzo Aldobrandini

1621-37 Territorial Princess Olimpia Aldobrandini (Senior) of Rossano Calabro (Italy)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Niece of Pope Clemente VIII (Ippolito Aldobrandini) (1536-92-1605) and universal heir of her brother, Cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini (d. 1621). She administered her places, cities and feudal fiefs in Calabria, Romagna, Lazio with great competence. and laid the foundations for the future Duchies of Carpineto, Maenza, Gavignano, Montelanico and Gorga, and she transformed the feudal territory into a dukedom also including several surrounding villages. In 1629, she ordered the building of St. Peter's Church, which she provided with gorgeous reliquaries and frescoes, the best known being a fresco attributed to the famous painter Caravaggio. She was married to Gianfrancesco Aldobrandini and mother two daughters and one son, who also died in 1637 and the family inheritance was therefore taken over by her granddaughter, Olimpia Junior. She lived (1567-1637).
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 07:08 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Inscription celebrating Clemens VIII's main achievements in Palazzo Senatorio in Campidoglio

Inscriptions at the entrance of Rocca di Spoleto and near Ospedale di S. Spirito in Rome

Great portal of the church dell'Orazione e della
Buona Morte in Perugia

Inner lateral façade of S. Giovanni in Laterano and Cappella Aldobrandini in S. Maria sopra Minerva

Coats of arms in the transept of S. Giovanni in Laterano

Heraldic symbols in Villa del Bel Respiro

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 07:15 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Princess Olimpia Aldobrandini and husband
David Rothschild

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 07:50 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

GIOVANNI ALDOBRANDINI

A DIRECTOR OF

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

QUOTE

Historian pushes for write-off of donations

18 June 2004
Paul Bompard, Rome
http://www.timeshighereducation.co.uk/stor...§ioncode=26

An Italian historian with links to Cambridge University and the London School of Economics is behind a move to make donations for research and scholarships tax deductible.

Giovanni Aldobrandini, a British history specialist has taught in Rome at the LUISS (Libera Universita degli Studi Sociali Guido Carli) and at La Sapienza, and in 1999-2001 he was a visiting fellow at St John's College, Cambridge, and then at the LSE's European Institute. In 2000, Professor Aldobrandini, the heir of an affluent Roman family, decided to personally finance a PhD at St John's.

"Having enjoyed the excellence of teaching and research at Cambridge, I wanted other Italians to have similar experiences. I spoke to the master of St John's and arranged to give £35,000 a year to support graduates from Roman universities - Jone a year for three years each."

Italian tax laws discouraged such an initiative, so Professor Aldobrandini contacted four Italian senators who agreed to promote a bill allowing individuals to write off donations for study or research abroad.

Currently, Italy allows write-offs only for companies and only for money given to Italian institutions.

Professor Aldobrandini's proposal sets donations at a maximum of 5 per cent of taxable income, with a ceiling of E250,000 (£167,000). It will finance PhD students in Italy and in selected foreign universities and support academics studying or researching abroad. It will also allow lump-sum endowments to universities.

The bill requires approval by Parliament's finance commission and by the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate, which could take up to two years.

Professor Aldobrandini said: "The task now is to drum up support among ministers, party leaders and MPs to make sure the bill becomes law as soon as possible."

NOW HE'S ALSO TIED AS WITH LUISA ALDOBRANDINI

TO THE ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE AT CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY

QUOTE

The Luisa Aldobrandini Studentship 2009

http://www.joh.cam.ac.uk/admissions/gradua...s/aldobrandini/

This is the English language version of the Competition information. You may also view the following:-

St John's College Cambridge proposes to award a Luisa Aldobrandini Studentship to enable a student from one of the Universities of Rome to undertake postgraduate study in the University of Cambridge commencing in October 2009. The successful applicant will be selected from those who have obtained a place at St John's College Cambridge to read for the M Phil or PhD degree.

To be eligible for the Studentship to be awarded from October 2009, a candidate must have obtained or obtain the Laurea from one of Universities in Rome (Università degli Studi di Roma 'La Sapienza', Università degli Studi di Roma 'Tor Vergata', Università degli Studi di Roma 'Roma III' and Libera Università Internazionale degli Studi Sociali Guido Carli in Roma) between 1st October 2007 and 1st October 2009.

The Studentship will be tenable for the duration of the student's course up to a maximum of three years and will comprise (a) a maintenance grant of at least £10,000 per annum and (b) approved College and University fees. The value of any Studentship awarded will be reduced appropriately to take account of any payment from other sources.

There is no separate application form for this Studentship. Candidates should apply to the University of Cambridge through the University's Board of Graduate Studies for admission as a graduate student, specifying St John's as their first choice of College. The Graduate Application Form can be downloaded from the Board's website www.admin.cam.ac.uk/offices/gradstud However, if you would prefer to receive a paper copy of the Graduate Application Form and the Graduate Studies Prospectus please send an e-mail to graduate-admissions@joh.cam.ac.uk giving your postal address. The papers of those who are accepted by the relevant University department will be passed on to St John's who will then consider the candidate for a place in the College. All eligible candidates who by May 1st 2009 have been made a conditional offer by St John's to read for the M Phil or PhD degree starting in October 2009 will be considered for the Luisa Aldobrandini Studentship. The successful candidate will be notified by the end of June 2009.

In view of the delays that can occur as a result of sometimes lengthy selection processes in the University departments it is suggested that candidates for the Luisa Aldobrandini Studentship ensure that their Graduate Application Forms reach the Board of Graduate Studies by 31st December 2008. Candidates whose forms are submitted after that date will be considered if their forms reach the College in time.

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 30, 2008 08:00 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

THE IMPERIAL NOBILITY OF ITALY

ACEDO
H.E. Count / Graf Don Francisco Acedo Fernández Pereira , de jure Duke of Candia and Duke of Crete ,
Count of Dominè , Count of Bergamin ,
Count Wetter-Tegerfelden , Patrician of Naples ,
Noble of Paternò , Hidalgo of Navarre and Castille .

H.E. Count / Graf Don Manuel Santiago Acedo Fernández
Patrician of Naples , Noble of Paternò ,
Hidalgo of Navarre and Castille.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.E. Countess / Graefin Donna Matilde Antonia Fernández del Amo
(Countess of The Holy Roman Empire)

ALBERTI DI POJA
H.E. Count / Graf Antonia Clemente Alberti di Poja .
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

ALDOBRANDINI
H.E. Marquis / Margrave Don Camillo Aldobrandini.
(Marquess of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF ALLIATA
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Gabriele Alliata di Villafranca .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF ALONZO DI ANCONA
See: Count and Baron von Reinheim and Baron von Steffenberg, Senior line*

H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Aaron Alonzo di Ancona ,
Duke / Herzog of Filottrano and of Monte Conero ,
Marquess / Margrave of Apiro, Count / Graf of Visso ,
Noble and Patrician of Rome and Ancona .
(Prince, Duke, Marquess and Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.S.H. Princess / Furstin Donna Arianna Alonzo di Ancona ,
Duchess of Filottrano and of Monte Conero ,
Marchioness of Apiro, Countess of Visso .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.S.H. Princess / Furstin Donna Alyssandria Alonzo di Ancona ,
Duchess of Filottrano and of Monte Conero ,
Marchioness of Apiro, Countess of Visso .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

ANTONELLI
Carlo Antonelli.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF d'AQUINO
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Alessandro d'Aquino.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

ATTEMS or ATTIMIS
H.E. Count / Graf Federico Cristiano Attems.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF d'AVALOS
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Francesco d'Avalos.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

AVENTI
Luciano Aventi.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

BARBASETTI DI PRUN
Giangiorgio Barbasetti di Prun.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

BARBIANNO DI BELGIOIOSO D'ESTE
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Barbianno di Belgioioso D'Este .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

BARBIANNO DI BELGIOIOSO
H.E. Count / Graf Guido Barbianno di Belgioioso.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

BENVENUTI
H.E. Count / Graf Ferrante Mercurino Benvenuti.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

BERTOLINI
Luigi Bertolini.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

BLANCHETTI REVELLI
Lanfranco Blanchetti Revelli.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

BONACOSSI
Knight / Ritter Bonacolsa Bonacossi.
(Knight of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF BONCOMPAGNI LUDOVISI
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Nicolo Francesco Boncompagni Ludovisi.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF BONIFAZI DI STATTE
H.R.H. Giancarlo Bonfazi di Statte de jure Prince of Tournai ,
Count of The Holy Roman Empire ,
Count of Statte, Baron of Ardgour .
(Count of The Holy Romann Empire)

H.R.H. Simona Bonfazi di Statte
de jure Princess of Tournai ,
Countess of The Holy Roman Empire ,
Countess of Statte, Baroness of Ardgour .
(Countess of The Holy Romann Empire)

BOSSI FEDIGROTTI

H.E. Count / Graf Frederico Bossi Fedigrotti.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

BRAGADIN
Marco Alvise Bragadin.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

BUFFA
H.E. Baron / Freiherr Guido Buffa.
(Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

CAPPONI
H.E. Count / Graf Neri Capponi.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF CARACCIOLO
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Francesco Caracciolo.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF CARAFA DELLA SPINA
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Gregorio Carafa Della Spina.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

COMPAGNINO
H.E. Baron / Freiherr Giuseppe Compagnino .
(Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

CASTELBARCO ALBANI VISCONTI SIMONETTA
H.E. Count / Furst Carlo Castelbarco Albani Visconti Simonetta.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

CASTRACANE DEGLI ANTELMINELLI
H.E. Count / Furst Castracane Degli Antelminelli.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

COZZARELLI
Lady / Frau Lucrecia Herrera Cozzarelli.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF CHIGI ALBANI DELLA ROVERE
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Agostino Chigi Albani Della Rovere.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

CIGALA
H.E. Count / Graf Oscar Cigala.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

CLARICINI DI DORNPACHER
Raimondo Claricini di Dornpacher.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

D'ANTONINICH / BARONY VON DEM CHERSO
(House of Steinhurst von der Steinhorst, (*Senior line)
See: Princely County and Barony von der Steinhorst, Barony of Dromcummer , *Senior Line .
Kingdom of Westphalia, Prince Electorship of Westphalia
Principality of Fulda, Marquisate of Auvergne, *Cadet Line .

H.Ill.H. Count / Graf Nelson Keith Steinhurst von der Steinhorst ,
Baron / Freiherr von dem Cherso .
(Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.Ill.H. Countess / Graefin Diana Elaine Antoninich-Steinhurst von der Steinhorst ,
Baroness / Freifrau von dem Cherso .
(Baroness of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Prince Keith Patrick Steinhurst of Westphalia ,
Baron / Freiherr von dem Cherso .
(See: Kingdom of Westphalia, *Cadet Line)
(Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.Ill.H. Countess / Graefin Joanna Nicole Steinhurst von der Steinhorst ,
Baroness / Freifrau von dem Cherso .
(Baroness of The Holy Roman Empire)

di COLLALTO
H.E. Count / Graf Giovanni di Collalto.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

COLLOREDO MELS
H.E. Count / Graf Antonio Vicardo Colloredo Mels.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

COZZARELLI
Lady / Frau Lucrecia Cozzarelli.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

de CONTI
H.E. Countess / Graefin Gisella de Conti.
(Countess of The Holy Roman Empire)

DI GERASA
H.E. Count / Graf Kyrill di Gerasa ,
Conte di Gerasa , Bishop of Aurora and Illinois .
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF DORIA PAMPHILJ LANDJ
H.S.H. Don Prince / Furst Jonathan Paul Andrea Doria Pamphilj Landj .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

DORIA
H.E. Marquess / Margrave Giorgio Doria ,
Count / Graf of Montaldeo .
(Marquess of The Holy Roman Empire)

KINGDOM OF ETRURIA IN THE HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE
(The Royal House of Johnson,*Senior Line)
(See: Duchy of Florence and Principality of Santa Croce)

H.R.H. Prince Ralph of Etruria,
Duke of Florence, de jure King of Etruria,
Imperial Vice-Chancellor of Italy .
(Kingdom in the Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Marianne of Etruria,
Duchess of Florence, de jure Queen of Etruria.
(Kingdom in the Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Prince Rutherford of Etruria ,
Hereditary Prince of Etruria,
Duke of Florence.
(Kingdom in the Holy Roman Empire)

FIORIO

H.E. Baron / Freiherr Carlo Fiorio.
(Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

DUCHY OF FLORENCE
(The Royal House of Johnson,*Senior Line)
(See: Kingdom of Etruria and Principality of Santa Croce)

H.R.H. Prince Ralph of Etruria,
Duke / Herzog of Florence ,
(Duke of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Marianne of Etruria,
Duchess / Herzogin of Florence ,
(Duchess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Prince Rutherford of Etruria ,
Hereditary Duke / Herzog of Florence ,
(Duke of The Holy Roman Empire)

SCIORTINO
H.E. Count / Graf Antonio Sciortino .
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

FRANCHINI STAPPO
Piero Alessandro Franchini Stappo.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

dalla FRATTA PASINI
H.E. Count / Graf Alessandro dalla Fratta Pasini.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

della GHERARDESCA
H.E. Count / Graf Walfredo della Gherardesca.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

GIOVANELLI
H.E. Count / Graf Don Alberto Carlo Giovanelli.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF GONZAGA
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Maurizio Gonzage.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

GRAMATICA
Giovanni Gramatica.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

GROPPLERO DI TROPPENBURG
Knight / Ritter Gian Andrea Gropplero di Troppenburg.
(Knight of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF GUASCO GALLARATE or GALLARATI
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Francesco Guasco Gallarate.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

GUIDOBONO CAVALCHINI GAROFOLI
H.E. Baron / Freiherr Giuseppe Guidobono Cavalchini Garofoli.
(Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF HERCOLANI
H.H. Prince / Furst Don Andre Hercolani.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

IMPELLIZZERI
H.E. Baron / Freiherr Vincenzo Impellizzeri.
(Baron Of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF LANDI
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Landi of Valditaro ,
Prince of Valditaro .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCE ELECTORSHIP OF LOMBARDY
His Imperial and Royal Highness
Prince Karl Friedrich of Germany ,
Imperial Prince Elector of Lombardy ,
Duke and Prince of Lombardy ,
de jure King of Lombardy .
(Prince Elector of The Holy Roman Empire)

KINGDOM OF ITALY / LOMBARDY
H.I.&.R.H. Prinz Karl Friedrich von Deutschland,
Herzog von Swabia , Herzog von Saxe-Altenburg ,
de jure Charles VIII I.R. ,
de jure King of Italy / Lombardy.
(King in The Holy Roman Empire)

DUCHY OF LOMBARDY
H.I.&.R.H. Prinz Karl Friedrich von Deutschland,
Herzog von Swabia, Herzog von Saxe-Altenburg,
de jure Charles VIII I.R.
Duke / Herzog of Lombardy.
(Duke of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCIPALITY OF LOMBARDY
H.I.&.R.H. Prinz Karl Friedrich von Deutschland,
Herzog von Swabia, Herzog von Saxe-Altenburg,
de jure Charles VIII I.R.
Prince / Furst of Lombardy.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

DUCHY OF LUCCA
Reverts back to the Imperial Crown.
Duke / Herzog of Lucca.
(Duke of The Holy Roman Empire)

LUPIS MACEDONIO PALERMO
H.E. Marquis Don Marco Lupis Macedonio Palermo,
13th Duke of San Donato, 12th Duke of Grottolelle,
14th Marquis of Tortora, 11th Marquis of Ruggiano,
10th Marquis of Oliveto, 8th Marquis of Capriglia,
Count / Graf and Knight / Ritter of the Holy Roman Empire .
(Count and Knight of The Holy Roman Empire)

MACH DI PALMSTEIN
Gianfranco Mach Di Palmstein.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

MARESCA
H.E. Marquis / Margrave Antonio Maresca .
(Marquis of The Holy Roman Empire)

MARULLI DI SAN CESARIO

H.S.H. Prince / Furst Marulli Di San Cesario .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

MARULLI
H.E. Count / Graf Marulli.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

DUCAL HOUSE OF MASSA AND CARRARA
H.S.H. Don John Malcolm James Cracknell,
Duke and Marquis of Massa and Carrara.
(Duke and Marquis of The Holy Roman Empire)

SOVEREIGN DUCHY OF MODENA
Reverted back to the Imperial Crown and Emperor,
Duke of / Herzog von Modena.
(Sovereign Duchy of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCIPALITY DI SANTA CROCE
(The Royal House of Johnson,*Senior Line)
(See: Kingdom of Etruria and Duchy of Florence)

H.R.H. Prince Ralph of Etruria,
Prince di Santa Croce, Prince del Monte Titano ,
Duke di Santa Croce , Duke del Monte Titano,
Marquis del Monte Titano , Count of Valais ,
Count del Monte Titano , Count and Baron Johnson ,
Reichsritter of The Holy Roman Empire ,
Noble of Rome and Patrician of Rome .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Marianne of Etruria,
Princess di Santa Croce, Princess del Monte Titano ,
Duchess di Santa Croce , Duchess del Monte Titano,
Marchioness del Monte Titano , Countess of Valais ,
Countess del Monte Titano , Countess and Baroness Johnson
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Prince Rutherford of Etruria ,
Hereditary Prince di Santa Croce ,
Duke del Monte Titano, Marquis del Monte Titano .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

HOUSE OF JOHNSON DI SANTA CROCE
(*Cadet Line)

H.E. Count / Graf Charles Daniel II Johnson di Santa Croce , Baron / Freiherr di Santa Croce .
(Count and Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.E. Countess / Graefin Rebecca Johnson di Santa Croce , Baroness / Freifrau di Santa Croce ,
(Countess and Baroness of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.E. Count / Graf Charles Daniel III Johnson di Santa Croce , Baron / Freiherr di Santa Croce .
(Count and Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.E. Countess / Graefin Jennifer Johnson di Santa Croce , Baroness / Freifrau di Santa Croce , (Mrs. Anderson).
(Countess and Baroness of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.E. Count / Graf Andrew Johnson di Santa Croce ,

Baron / Freiherr di Santa Croce
(Count and Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF MELI LUPI
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Bonifazio Meli Lupi.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

DUCHY OF MILAN
Part of the Imperial Patrimony of the Emperor.
Duke of / Herzog von Milan.
(Duke of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF MILANO D'ARAGONA
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Pietro Milano Franco D'Aragona.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

MISTRUZZI DI FRISINGA
Francesco Milano di Frisinga.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

DUCHY AND COUNTY OF FRIULI
Part of the Imperial Patrimony of the Emperor.
Duke / Herzog and Count / Graf of Friuli.
(Duke and Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

MONTECUCCOLI DEGLI ERRI
H.E. Count / Graf Montecuccoli Degli Erri.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

MONTECUCCOLI-LADERCHI
H.E. Count / Graf Montecuccoli-Laderchi.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

DUCHY OF NAPLES
Part of the Imperial Patrimony of the Emperor.
Duke / Herzog of Naples.
(Duchy of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF ODESCALCHI
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Ladislao Odescalchi.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF ORSINI
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Heinrich von Orsini und Rosenberg.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF PALLAVICINI
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Giulio Pallavicini.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.S.H. Princess / Furstin Donna Elvina Pallavicini.
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

PALLAVICINI - PALLAVICINO
H.E. Marquis / Margrave Adalberto Pallavicini.
(Marquis of The Holy Roman Empire)

PARETO SPINOLA
H.E. Marquis / Margrave Raffaele Pareto Spinola.
(Marquis of The Holy Roman Empire)

PARIBELLI

Pier Giacinto Paribelli.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

PAVAROTTI
H.E. Count / Graf Luciano Pavarotti di Modena
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

PECORI GIRALDI
H.E. Count / Graf Francesco Pecori Giraldi.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

PIANETTI
H.E. Marquis / Margrave Bernardo Pianetti.
(Marquis of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF PIGNATELLI ARAGONA CORTES
H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Nicola Pignatelli Aragona Cortes.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.S.H. Prince / Furst Don Mario Pignatelli Aragona Cortes.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

PONTOGLIO-BINO
H.E. Count / Graf Alessandro Pontoglio-Bino.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF di PORCIA e BRUGNERA
H.S.H. Prince / Furst di Porcia e Brugnera.
(Prince and Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

RAGGI
Antonio Raggi.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

RAVIGNANI DE'PIACENTINI
Gianluigi Ravignani de'Piacentini.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCELY HOUSE OF ROSPIGLIOSI
H.H. Prince / Furst Don Filippo Rospigliosi.
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

SARCHI
H.E. Count / Graf Auselmo Sarchi.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

SAIBANTE
Ugo Vittorio.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)

SALVADORI DI WIESENHOF
H.E. Baron / Freiherr Vittorio Emanuele Salvadori di Wiesenhof.
(Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

KINGDOM OF ITALY / ROYAL HOUSE OF SAVOY
H.R.H. Prince Vittoria Emanuele of Savoy, Prince of Naples .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Marina of Savoy, Princess of Naples .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Prince Emanuele Filiberto of Savoy ,

Prince of Venice and Piedmont .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Clotilde Marie of Savoy ,
Princess of Venice and Piedmont .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Vittoria of Savoy .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Luisa of Savoy .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Maria Pia of Savoy .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Maria Gabriella of Savoy .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Maria Beatrice of Savoy .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Prince Amedeo of Savoy, 5th Duke of Aosta .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Priness Silvia of Savoy, Duchess of Aosta .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Bianca of Savoy .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Prince Aimone of Savoy, Duke of Apulia .
(Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Mafalda of Savoy .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Isabella of Savoy .
(Princess of The Holy Roman Empire)

PRINCIPALITY OF SEBORGA
H.M.S.H. Prince / Furst Giorgio I of Seborga , (Sovereign Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

di SEREGO ALIGHIERI
H.E. Count / Graf Pieralvise di Serego Alighieri.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

SOLARO
H.E. Count / Graf Fausto Solaro.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

STANCHINA
Knight / Ritter Camillo Stanchina.
(Knight of The Holy Roman Empire)

STRASSOLDO
H.E. Count / Graf Giovan Battista Strassoldo.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

TAXIS BORDOGNA VALNIGRA
H.E. Baron / Freiherr Carlos Taxis Bordogna Valnigra.
(Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

TOMASELLA
H.E. Count / Graf Don Federico Tomasella ,
Count and Baron Tomasella , Noble of Rome.
(Count and Baron of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.E. Countess / Graefin Donna Carmen Alicia Dotti-Tomasella, Dowager Countess and Baroness Tomasella.
(Countess and Baroness of The Holy Roman Empire)

H.R.H. Princess Alicia Gabriela of Westphalia, (nee: H.E. Countess Donna Alicia Gabriela Tomasella)
Countess and Baroness Tomasella .
(See: The Kingdom of Westphalia).
(Countess and Baroness of The Holy Roman Empire)

MARGRAVIATE OF TUSCANY
Part of the Imperial Patrimony of the Emperor.
Margrave of Tuscany.
(Margraviate of The Holy Roman Empire)

GRAND DUCHY OF TUSCANY
H.I.&.R.H. Archduke Sigismund von Habsburg of Austria,
Prince of Tuscany, Head of the Grand Ducal House of Tuscany.
(Prince, Duke, and Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

DUCHY AND COUNTY OF TURIN
Part of the Imperial Patrimony of the Emperor.
Duke / Herzog and Count / Graf of Turin.
(Sovereign Duke and Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

VALVASONE
H.E. Count / Graf Ettore Valvasone.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

dal VERME
H.E. Count / Graf Ludovico dal Verme.
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

MARGRAVIATE AND PRINCIPALITY OF VERONA
Part of the Imperial Patrimony of the Emperor.
Margrave and Prince / Furst of Verona.
(Margrave and Prince of The Holy Roman Empire)

WINDISCH-GRAETZ
H.E. Count / Graf Mariano Ugo Windisch-Graetz
(Count of The Holy Roman Empire)

ZORZI GIUSTINIANI
Antonio Zorzi Giustiniani.
(Noble of The Holy Roman Empire)
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 31, 2008 12:42 AM (GMT)

Dear Craig,

More nobility controlled by the pope and his Jesuits.

Remember that Pope Clement XIII was poisoned by the Jesuits the night before he was to formally suppress the Order in 1769.

Brother Eric

craig-oxley - December 31, 2008 07:02 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Camillo Aldobrandini

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 31, 2008 07:43 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

BROOKE SHIELDS

Ascendance partielle de l'actrice Brooke Shields (23 générations jusqu'à St Louis)

The feminine within the masculine square, Lucifer & Satan

GENERATION XII
2691 Olimpia Aldobrandini-Ppsa di Rossano (° 20-04-1623 x 25-07-1638 + 18-12-1681)

GENERATION XIII
5382 Giorgio Aldobrandini-Ppe di Rossano (° ..-..-1591 + ..-..-1637)
5417 = 2691 Olimpia Aldobrandini-Ppsa di Rossano (° 20-04-1623 x 25-07-1638 + 18-12-1681)

GENERATION XIV
10764 Gianfrancesco Aldobrandini (° 11-03-1545 + 17-09-1601)
10765 Olimpia Aldobrandini ( )

GENERATION XV
21528 Giorgio Aldobrandini (° ..-..-1508 + ..-..-1581)
21530 Pietro Aldobrandini (+ ..-..-1587)

GENERATION XVI
43056 Jacopo Aldobrandini (+ ..-..-1527
43060 Salvestro Aldobrandini (° ..-..-1499 + ..-..-1558)

GENERATION XVII
86112 Giorgio Aldobrandini (° ..-..-1421 + ..-..-1480)
86120 Pietro Aldobrandini (° ..-..-1461 + ..-..-1522)

GENERATION XVIII
172224 Jacopo Aldobrandini (° ..-..-1388 + ..-..-1454)
172240 Salvestro Aldobrandini (° ..-..-1424 + ..-..-1491)

GENERATION XIX
335873 Cecilia Aldobrandeschi (x ..-..-1439)
335876 Aldobrandino Orsini-Cte di Pitigliano (+ ..-..-1472)
344448 Giorgio Aldobrandini (+ ..-..-1411)
344480 Aldobrandino Aldobrandini (° ..-..-1388 + ..-..-1453)

GENERATION XX
672522 = 335876 Aldobrandino Orsini-Cte di Pitigliano (+ ..-..-1472)
688960 = 344448 Giorgio Aldobrandini (+ ..-..-1411)
709120 Aldobrandino.II d'Este-Sgr di Modena (+ ..-..-1326)

GENERATION XXII
2687008 Aldobrandino Orsini-Cte di Soana (+ 06-05-1384)
2687012 = 2687008 Aldobrandino Orsini-Cte di Soana (+ 06-05-1384)

Aldobrandi love Saturn

THESE NAMES RING ANY BELLS?

Lucrezia Borgia
Charles V, Holy Roman Emperor
Charlemagne,Holy Roman Emperor

QUOTE

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Brooke_Shields

Brooke Christa Camille Shields [1] (born May 31, 1965 in New York City) is an American actress and supermodel. [2] Some of her better-known movies include Pretty Baby and The Blue Lagoon as well as tv shows such as Suddenly Susan and Lipstick Jungle.

Modeling career

Shields' career as a model began in the mid 1960s when she was an infant. Her first job was for Ivory Soap, shot by Francesco Scavullo. She continued as a successful child model with model agent Eileen Ford, who, in her Lifetime Network biography, stated that she started her children's division just for Brooke. In early 1980 (at age 14), Shields was the youngest fashion model ever to appear on the cover of the top fashion publication Vogue magazine. Later that same year, Shields appeared in controversial print and TV ads for Calvin Klein jeans[3]. The TV ad included her saying the famous tagline, "You want to know what comes between me and my Calvins? Nothing."[4][5]

By the age of 16, Shields had become one of the most recognizable faces in the world because of her dual career as a provocative fashion model and controversial child actress. TIME magazine reported, in its February 9, 1981 cover story, that her day rate as a model was $10,000. In 1983 Shields appeared on the cover of the September issue of Paris Vogue, the October and November issues of American Vogue and the December edition of Italian Vogue.[6]

Film career

Shields' first major film role was her 1978 appearance in Louis Malle's Pretty Baby, a movie in which she played a child living in a brothel (and in which there were numerous nude scenes). Because she was only 12 when the film was released, and possibly 11 when it was filmed, questions were raised about child pornography.[7][8][9] This was followed by a slightly less controversial, but also less notable film, Wanda Nevada (1979).

After two decades of movies, her best-known films are still arguably The Blue Lagoon (1980), which included a number of nude scenes between teenage lovers on a deserted island (Shields later testified before a U.S. Congressional inquiry that older body doubles were used in some of them), and Endless Love (1981). She won the People's Choice Award in the category of Favorite Young Performer in four consecutive years from 1981 to 1984.

Career stalling

Shields put her film career on hold to attend Princeton University from 1983 to 1987, graduating with a degree in French literature. [10][11] Her senior thesis was titled "The Initiation: From Innocence to Experience: The Pre-Adolescent/Adolescent Journey in the Films of Louis Malle, Pretty Baby and Lacombe Lucien." It was here at Princeton where she spoke openly about her sexuality and virginity. During her tenure at Princeton, Shields was a member of the Princeton Triangle Club and the Cap and Gown Club.

Shields' career stalled at various times, and she has told interviewers that her height (6') prevented her from getting roles opposite shorter male actors.

Television appearances

Shields has appeared in a number of television shows, the most successful being the NBC sitcom Suddenly Susan, in which she starred from 1996 until 2000 and which earned her a People's Choice Award in the category of Favorite Female Performer in a New Television Series in 1997 and two Golden Globe nominations.

Shields made a couple of guest appearances on That '70s Show. She played Pam Burkhart, Jackie's (Mila Kunis) mother, who later was briefly involved with Donna's (Laura Prepon) father (played by Don Stark). Shields left That '70s Show when her character was written out. She also appeared in one episode of the popular comedy sitcom Friends playing Joey's stalker. Shields recorded the narration for the Sony/BMG recording of The Runaway Bunny, a Concerto for Violin, Orchestra, and Reader by Glen Roven. It was performed by the Royal Philharmonic and Ittai Shapira. Earlier in 1980, Shields was the youngest guest star to ever appear on The Muppet Show, in which she and the Muppets put on their own version of Alice In Wonderland. She has also starred in episodes of Hannah Montana as Miley Stewart's mother. She is currently playing Wendy Healy in the television series Lipstick Jungle on NBC.

On-stage productions

Shields has appeared in many on-stage productions, mostly musical revivals, including Grease, Cabaret, Wonderful Town and Chicago on Broadway; she also performed in Chicago in London's West End.

Shields was born in New York City[12] into a well-known American society family with links to Italian nobility.[13] Her paternal grandmother was Princess Marina Torlonia (1916-1960), daughter of the Italian 4th Prince of Civitella-Cesi, an Italian aristocrat, and through him Brooke can claim descent from Henry IV, King of France, Lucrezia Borgia (and thus Pope Alexander VI), Charles V, Holy Roman Emperor and Honore I, Prince of Monaco, among others. Marina's brother, 5th Prince Alessandro (1911-1986) married the Infanta Beatriz of Spain (1909-2002), an aunt of King of Spain Juan Carlos de Borbón. Their granddaughter Sibilla Sandra Weiller (b. 12 Jun 1968), Brooke's second cousin, married in 1994 Prince Guillaume of Luxembourg (b. 1963), a younger brother of the reigning Grand Duke of Luxembourg. She is also the descendent of Charlemagne, Holy Roman Emperor and King of Italy ;William the Conqueror, King of England; Hugh Capet, King of France ;Ferdinand the Great, King of Castile and Leon; and D. Alfonso Henriquez, the first King of Portugal.[14]

Her father was Francis Alexander Shields, and her mother is Teri Shields (née Maria Theresa Schmonn). Shields adopted her middle name, Camille, for her Confirmation at age 10. Shields' parents divorced when she was a child, and her father later married Diana Lippert Auchincloss, the former wife of Thomas Gore Auchincloss (a half-brother of Gore Vidal and a stepbrother of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis). The actress has three half-sisters: Marina (who married Thomas William Purcell), Olympia, and Christina Shields. She also has two stepsiblings, Diana Luise Auchincloss and Thomas Gore Auchincloss Jr. She attended the all-girl Lenox School[15]. She graduated from Dwight-Englewood School in Englewood, New Jersey.

Her paternal grandparents were Francis Xavier Shields, a tennis star of Irish descent, and his second wife, the Italian princess Donna Marina Torlonia di Civitella-Cesi, a half-Italian, half-American socialite who was a sister of Don Alessandro Torlonia, 5th Prince di Civitella-Cesi, the husband of Infanta Beatriz of Spain (an aunt of King Juan Carlos I of Spain). Through her grandmother she is related to several Italian noble families (most notably Borgia, Medici, d'Este and di Savoia). The paternal grandmother of Shields' great-grandfather, Don Marino Torlonia (the fourth prince of Civitella-Cesi), was Princess Donna Anna Sforza-Cesarini, a descendant of Ludovico Sforza, Duke of Milan and patron of Leonardo da Vinci. Torlonia's maternal grandmother was Princess Donna Leopoldina Doria-Pamphilli-Landi, the granddaughter of Leopoldina of Savoy, a princess of the royal family of Piedmont and Sardinia, which later became the Royal Family of Italy. The descendant of many popes, Torlonia inherited the administration of the Banca Torlonia, which worked the finances of the Vatican and several other investments. He was one of the richest noblemen in Italy around the beginning of the twentieth century, and introduced the first motor car in Rome. Shields is a second cousin once removed of the actress Glenn Close. Shields's great-grandmother Mary Elsie Moore (wife of Don Marino Torlonia, 4th Prince di Civitella-Cesi) was Close's great-aunt, a sister of Close's maternal grandfather, Charles Arthur Moore.[citation needed]

Into the mid-1980s, Shields was a resident of Haworth, New Jersey.[16]

During the 1980s and 1990s, Shields' romantic relationships were the subject of many tabloid articles. Among the celebrities she dated were Ted McGinley (her high school prom escort), Dean Cain (her Princeton roommate),[17] John F. Kennedy Jr., Michael Bolton, Prince Albert II of Monaco, George Michael[18] and Michael Jackson (she was his date to the 1984 Grammy Awards).

Shields was married from April 19, 1997, to April 9, 1999, to professional tennis player Andre Agassi; their marriage was annulled. Since April 4, 2001, she has been married to television writer Chris Henchy. They have two daughters: Rowan Frances (b. May 15, 2003) and Grier Hammond (b. April 18, 2006).

Honorary Ambassador of Peace for the Harvey Ball Foundation along with Jackie Chan, A. V. T. Shankardass, Jerry Lewis, Prince Albert of Monaco, Jack Nicklaus, Greg Norman, Phil Collins, Jimmy Buffett, Dale Earnhardt Jr., Darrell Waltrip, Heather Mills, Yoko Ono, Patch Adams, Sergei Khrushchev and Winnie Mandela.

Filmography

Year Title Role Notes
1974 After the Fall Quentin's Daughter TV
1976 Alice, Sweet Alice Karen Spages aka Communion or Holy Terror
1977 The Prince of Central Park Kristin TV
1978 Pretty Baby Violet
King of the Gypsies Tita
1979 An Almost Perfect Affair uncredited
Tilt Brenda Louise Davenport
Wanda Nevada Wanda Nevada
Just You and Me, Kid Kate
1980 The Blue Lagoon Emmeline
The Muppet Show (Season 5) Herself TV
1981 Endless Love Jade Butterfield
1982 The Doctors Elizabeth Harrington TV
1983 Sahara Dale
1984 The Muppets Take Manhattan Customer in Pete's
Wet Gold Laura TV
1988 The Diamond Trap Tara Holden TV
1989 Speed Zone! Stewardess/Herself aka Cannonball Fever
Brenda Starr Brenda Starr
1990 Backstreet Dreams Stevie
1992 Running Wild Christine Shaye aka Born Wild
1993 Freaked Skye Daley
I Can Make You Love Me Laura Black TV
1994 An American Love Greta TV
The Seventh Floor Kate Fletcher
1995 Nothing Lasts Forever Dr. Beth Taft TV
1996 Freeway Mimi Wolverton
Suddenly Susan (1996-2000) Susan Keane TV
1997 Scratch the Surface Herself
1998 The Almost Perfect Bank Robbery Cyndee Lafrance TV
Junket Whore Herself
The Misadventures of Margaret Lily
1999 The Weekend Nina
Black and White Sam Donager
The Bachelor Buckley Hale-Windsor
2000 After Sex Kate
Massholes Herself
2001 What Makes a Family Janine Nielssen TV
2002 Widows Shirley Heller TV mini-series
2003 Mayor of the Sunset Strip Herself
Miss Spider's Sunny Patch Kids voice of Miss Spider TV
2004 Gone But Not Forgotten Betsy Tannenbaum TV aka Phillip Margolin's Gone But Not Forgotten
Our Italian Husband Charlene Taylor
The Easter Egg Adventure voice of Horrible Harriet Hare
2005 Bob the Butler Anne Jamieson
New Car Smell April TV
The Outsider Herself
That 70's Show Pam Burkart TV
2007 Hannah Montana Susan Stewart "I Am Hannah, Hear Me Croak" (Episode 5, Season 2)
"The Way We Almost Weren't" (Episode 21, Season 2)
National Lampoon's Bag Boy Mrs. Hart

2008 Justice League: The New Frontier Carol Ferris (direct-to-DVD release)
Lipstick Jungle Wendy TV series (2008- present)
Midnight Meat Train Susan Hoff
2009 Unstable Fables: The Goldilocks and 3 Bears Show Mama Bear voice in computer-animated film [22]
Hannah Montana: The Movie Susan Stewart Flashbacks

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 31, 2008 07:50 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Portrait of Margarita Aldobrandini
(Duchess of Parma)

by Bartolome Gonzalez

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 31, 2008 08:06 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Palazzo Aldobrandini

[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]

Palazzo Borghese-Aldobrandini

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - December 31, 2008 08:21 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

ALDOBRANDINI, BORGHESE AND PAMFILI

GENEALOGIES

[dohtml]
<img src="http://i247.photobucket.com/albums/gg145/2tuff2006/079.jpg" height="252" width="412">
[/dohtml]

Please click picture to expand.

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

Alexandra - December 31, 2008 01:16 PM (GMT)

I think Brooke Shields is also descended from Lucrezia Borgia.

Avles - December 31, 2008 08:00 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Dec 31 2008, 08:21 AM)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

ALDOBRANDINI, BORGHESE AND PAMFILI

GENEALOGIES

[dohtml]
<img src="http://i247.photobucket.com/albums/gg145/2tuff2006/079.jpg" height="252" width="412">
[/dohtml]
Please click picture to expand.
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

The above pic is summoning a very important piece of the Novo Ordo Seclorum history involving the Apennine Peninsula. Look at the interesting connection Borghese-Aldobrandini with Napoleon:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/House_of_Borghese

QUOTE

.....
Marcantonio II (1598-1658), son of Giambattista, was named prince of Sulmona in 1610 by Philip III of Spain, again thanks to Paul V's influence. In 1619 Marcantonio II married Camilla Orsini, becoming heir to both the Borghese and Orsini families. His son Paolo (1624-1646) married Olimpia Aldobrandini, princess of Rossano, and by this marriage enabled the Borghese to lay claim to the Aldobrandini family legacy, though this right was only recognised in 1769 after protracted court battles. Along with Paolo's titles, Olimpia handed the title of prince of Rossano to their son Marcantonio III (1660-1729), who also became viceroy of Naples.

Marcantonio IV (1730-1800), prince of Sulmona and of Rossano, was a senator of the Roman Republic. His son Camillo Filippo Ludovico (1775-1832) enlisted in the Napoleonic army and later became one of its generals. In 1803 he married Napoleon's sister, Pauline Bonaparte, the widow of general Leclerc. Camillo was named duke of Guastalla in 1806, and governor of Piedmont (1807-1814). On Napoleon's fall, he separated from Pauline and retired to private life in Florence, dying without issue.
.....

So these Saturnalia families controlled together and for the benefit of the Jesuit order the Puppet Napoleon. Napoleon admitted the importance of Jesuits for his career. Napoleon was the "false flag" threat with which to re-store the legitimacy of Rome in front of the European monarchies. In fact the Jesuits were forced to the self dismissing of their order, as their work produced a greater awareness about their evil essence. The pope Clement was only one of their agent and not "a true anti-Jesuit" pope. Then the agent was 'neutralized'.... You know, in the future could have blackmailed the General Superior, as happens among the members of a criminal gang... So don't believe in the romantic vision of an "anti-Jesuit pope". Just the year before a French Jesuit for the first time translated in a western language the Sun Tzu manual which teach the staging of a sort of 'defeat' or 'self-destruction' in order to deceive the enemy about the true condition of his adversary.... Only one year after the translation they realized the strategy... Was the tranlation itself a message?
And then the Orsini family. The castle where Tome Cruise married his beatiful wife with scientology rite was a property of the Orsini family. The Orsini who ordered the building of that castle - Bracciano castle - had the name: Napoleone. Anno Domini: 1470:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bracciano

Also the father of Napoleone Bonaparte was a noble but the origin are not exposed. Anyway Carlo Bonaparte dealt with Clement XIII, the friend of Jesuits:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Carlo_Buonaparte

> QUOTE
>
> Nobile Carlo Maria Buonaparte (March 29/27, 1746 – February 24 1785) was a Corsican lawyer and politician who briefly served as a personal assistant of the revolutionary leader Pasquale Paoli and eventually rose to become Corsica's representative to the court of Louis XVI. He is also the father of the famed Napoleon I of France.
>
> .....
>
> For a period after his marriage at Ajaccio on June 2/7, 1764, he worked as a Secretary and Personal assistant to Pasquale Paoli. Paoli sent him to Rome negotiate with Pope Clement XIII in 1766. He had apparently enjoyed his time in Rome up until being forced for reasons unknown back to Corsica in 1768. At the time of his return, the Republic of Genoa had offered Corsica to Louis XV as payment for a debt. Buonaparte was noted for a fervent speech against the French "invasion". Political upheaval followed as France gained ownership of Corsica, and many of Paoli's supporters had to flee, Buonaparte and his family included. Marie-Letizia was pregnant with Napoleon Bonaparte at this time.....

And Clement XIII:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Clement_XIII

[QUOTE]Pope Clement XIII (Venice, March 7, 1693 – February 2, 1769 in Rome), born Carlo della Torre di Rezzonico, was Pope from 16 July 1758 to 2 February 1769.

He was born to a recently ennobled family of Venice, received a Jesuit education in Bologna and became a cardinal in 1737
.....
Pope Clement XIII (Venice, March 7, 1693 – February 2, 1769 in Rome), born Carlo della Torre di Rezzonico, was Pope from 16 July 1758 to 2 February 1769.
.....
Clement XIII's pontificate was disturbed by perpetual contentions respecting the pressures to suppress the Jesuits coming from the progressive Enlightenment circles of the philosophes in France. Clement XIII placed the Encyclopédie of D'Alembert and Diderot on the Index, but this index was not as effective as it used to be in the previous century.
.....
More unexpected resistance came in the less progressive courts of Spain, the Two Sicilies, and Portugal. In 1758 the reforming minister of Joseph I of Portugal (1750–77), the Marquis of Pombal, expelled the Jesuits from Portugal, and shipped them en masse to Civitavecchia, as a "gift for the Pope." In 1760, Pombal sent home the papal nuncio and recalled the Portuguese ambassador. The pamphlet titled the Brief Relation, which represented the Jesuits as having set up virtually an independent kingdom in South America und

soulinspiration - December 31, 2008 08:15 PM (GMT)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pietro_Aldobrandini

Pietro Aldobrandini

QUOTE

Pietro Aldobrandini (1571-1621) was an Italian Cardinal and patron of the arts.

He was made a cardinal in 1593 by his uncle, Pope Clement VIII. He took over the duchy of Ferrara in 1598 when it fell to the Papal States. He became archbishop of Ravenna in 1604.

He bought the Palazzo Doria Pamphilj[1], and spent large sums on this and other buildings such as the Villa Aldobrandini[2]. He was a patron of Torquato Tasso, and of Girolamo Frescobaldi[3].

[edit] Notes

1. ^ :: Galleria Doria Pamphilj - Roma
2. ^ Villa Aldobrandini in the early 17th Century
3. ^ HOASM: Girolamo Frescobaldi

http://www.fiu.edu/~mirandas/bios1593.htm

The Cardinals of the Holy Roman Church

Biographical Dictionary
Pope Clement VIII (1592-1605)
Consistory of September 17, 1593 (I)

QUOTE

ALDOBRANDINI, Pietro (1571-1621)

Birth. March 31, 1571, Rome. Son of Pietro Aldobrandini and Flaminia Ferracci. Nephew of Pope Clement VIII on his father's side. Cousin of Cardinal Cinzio Passeri Aldobrandini (1593). Uncle of Cardinals Silvestro Aldobrandini, O.S.Io.Hier. (1603), and Ippolito Aldobrandini, iuniore (1621).

Education. Educated by the priests of the Congregation of the Oratory of S. Maria in Vallicella, Rome; St. Filippo Neri, who still lived there, predicted that he would be elevated to the cardinalate. Obtained a doctorate in utroque iure, both canon and civil law.

Early life. Protonotary apostolic. Consistorial lawyer. Prefect of Castle Sant'Angelo, 1592. Abbot commendatario of Ss. Vincenzo ed Anastasio alle Tre Fonatane alle Acque Salvie.

Sacred orders. (No information found).

Cardinalate. Created cardinal deacon in the consistory of September 17, 1593; received the red hat and the deaconry of S. Nicola in Carcere, November 3, 1593. Together with Cardinal Cinzio Aldobrandini, named cardinal nipote or secretary of State; gradually, he took over the affairs of the papal court. Governor of Fermo, January 27, 1595 until December 14, 1605. Abbot commendatario of Fossanova, 1595. Governor of Ferrara, January 28, 1598 until July 1605; he had negotiated joining of the city to the Papal States. Legate a latere of the papal army in Ferrara. Accompanied the queen of Spain on her voyage from Ferrara to Milan.

Priesthood. Ordained (no date found), on his return from that voyage by Pope Clement VIII in Loreto, together with Cardinal Bartolomeo Cesi.

Named camerlengo of the Holy Roman Church, ad vitam, December 20, 1599 until his death. Governor of Civita Castellana, February 28, 1600; prorogated for another triennium, February 20, 1603. He negotiated the rehabilitation of King Henri IV of France and the addition of Ferrara to the Papal State. Legate a latere to bless the marriage of King Henri IV of France and Caterina de' Medici in Florence, September 25, 1600. At the same time, he was named legate before King Henri IV of France and all the other kings and princes that would participate in the termination of the war started between France and the duke of Savoy for the marquisate of Saluzzo; the legation ended successfully on March 26, 1601. Grand penitentiary, 1602 until May 1605. Prefect of the Tribunal of the Apostolic Siganture (?). Opted for the order of cardinal priests and the title of S. Pancrazio, June 14, 1604. Poet Torquato Tasso dedicated the work Discorsi del poema eroico to him.

Episcopate. Elected archbishop of Ravenna, September 13, 1604. Consecrated, October 17, 1604, patriarchal Lateran basilica, Rome, by Pope Clement VIII, assisted by Cardinal Francesco Tarugi, Cardinal Alessandro de' Medici, and by Cardinal Ottavio Bandini. Participated in the first conclave of 1605, which elected Pope Leo XI. Participated in the second conclave of 1605, which elected Pope Paul V. Opted for the title of Ss. Giovanni e Paolo, June 1, 1605. Abbot commendatario of Rosazzo, 1610. Camerlengo of the Sacred College of Cardinals, January 10, 1611 to January 9, 1612. Opted for the title of S. Maria in Trastevere, June 4, 1612. Opted for the order of cardinal bishops and the suburbicarian see of Sabina, retaining the archdiocese of Ravenna, August 31, 1620. Participated in the conclave of 1621, which elected Pope Gregory XV; died the day after its closing. Protector and supporter of writers and painters.

Death. February 10, 1621, in the palace where he resided in Rome. Buried in the church of S. Maria sopra Minerva, Rome (1). The funeral oration was delivered by Father Angelo Galluccio, S.J.

Bibliography. Cardella, Lorenzo. Memorie storiche de' cardinali della Santa Romana Chiesa. 9 vols. Rome : Stamperia Pagliarini, 1793, VI, 7-11; Chacón, Alfonso. Vitæ, et res gestæ Pontificvm Romanorum et S. R. E. Cardinalvm ab initio nascentis Ecclesiæ vsque Clementem IX P. O. M. 4 vols. Romae : Cura, et Svmp. Philippi, et Ant. De Rvbeis. Svperiorvm Permissv., 1630, II, cols. 1875-1877; Gauchat, Patritium. Hierarchia Catholica Medii et Recentioris Aevi, Münich : Sumptibus et Typis Librariae Regensbergianae, 1935; reprint, Padua : Il Messagero di S. Antonio, 1967, IV, 4, 38, 43, 46, 47, 54 and 292; Weber, Christoph. Legati e governatori dello Stato Pontificio : 1550-1809. Roma : Ministero per i beni culturali e ambientali, Ufficio centrale per i beni archivistici, 1994. (Pubblicazioni degli archivi di Stato. Sussidi; 7) pp. 212, 243-244, 249, and 450.

Links. Brief biographical data, in English; his episcopal lineage, in English; his genealogy, A1 B4 D7 H4 K1.

(1) This is the text of his epitaph transcribed by Andrea Vittorelli in Chacón, Alfonso. Vitæ, et res gestæ Pontificvm Romanorum et S. R. E. Cardinalvm, II, col. 1877: PETRO. SABINENSI. EPISCOPO. CARDINALI. ALDOBRANDINO. SANCT. TOM. ECCL. CAMERARIO. ARCHIEPISCOPO. RAVENNATI.MAGNA. APVD. PRINCIPES. GRATIA. ET. AVTHORITATE. PERPETVA. ANIMI. ÆQVITATE. ET CONSTANTIA. DOMI. FOR. ISQ. CLARISSIMO. QVARTVM. LEGATO. SEMPER. PIO. LIBERALI. MAGNIFICO. PRINCIPI. OPTIMO. ALDOBRANDINA. FAMILIA. SOLLEMNE. FVNVS. PVBLICVM. AMORIS. DOLORISQ. ARGVMENTVM. SOLVIT. IV. KAL. IVNII. MDCXXI.

http://www.catholic-hierarchy.org/bishop/baldop.html

QUOTE

Pietro Cardinal Aldobrandini †
Deceased
Archbishop of Ravenna
Cardinal-Bishop of Sabina
Events
Date Age Event Title
31 Mar 1571 Born Rome
17 Sep 1593 22.5 Elevated to Cardinal
3 Nov 1593 22.6 Installed Cardinal-Deacon of S. Nicola in Carcere
14 Jun 1604 33.2 Appointed Cardinal-Priest of S. Pancrazio
13 Sep 1604 33.5 Appointed Archbishop of Ravenna, Italy
17 Oct 1604 33.5 Ordained Bishop Archbishop of Ravenna, Italy
1 Jun 1605 34.2 Appointed Cardinal-Priest of Ss. Giovanni e Paolo
4 Jun 1612 41.2 Appointed Cardinal-Priest of S. Maria in Trastevere
31 Aug 1620 49.4 Appointed Cardinal-Bishop of Sabina
10 Feb 1621 49.9 Died Archbishop of Ravenna, Italy

* a bishop for 16.3 years
* a cardinal for 27.4 years

* Principal Consecrator:
    o Pope Ippolito Aldobrandini, Sr. †
* Principal Co-Consecrators:
    o François-Marie Cardinal Tarugi †
    o Pope Alessandro Ottaviano de' Medici †
    o Ottavio Cardinal Bandini †

Episcopal Lineage / Apostolic Succession:

* Pietro Cardinal Aldobrandini † (1604)
* Pope Ippolito Aldobrandini, Sr. † (1592)
* Alfonso Cardinal Gesualdo di Conza (Gonza) † (1564)
* Francesco Cardinal Pisani † (1527)
* Pope Alessandro Farnese † (1519)
* Pope Giovanni de' Medici † (1513)
* Raffaele Cardinal Sansone Riario † (1504)

* Pope Giuliano della Rovere †

* Principal Consecrator of: o Archbishop Alfonso Manrique †
    o Laudivio Cardinal Zacchia †
    o Bishop Juan Bravo Lagunas, O.S.A. †

http://www.doriapamphilj.it/ukcennistorici.asp

Galleria Doria Pamphilj

QUOTE

Galleria Doria Pamphilj

History

The oldest nucleus of Palazzo Doria Pamphilj in the Corso dates to Giovanni Fazio Santorio (or Santoro), cardinal of Santa Sabina, who built himself an important residence between the Via Lata and the Collegio Romano, in the years 1505 to 1507. This developed around the quadrangular courtyard, in the style of Bramante, which still today opens onto the entrance in Via del Corso.

In 1508 the cardinal was compelled by Pope Julius II Della Rovere (1503-13) to give the palace to the pope's nephew, Francesco Maria I Della Rovere, duke of Urbino since 1508. Appointed Prefect of Rome and Captain General of the Church, the Duke took up residence in Rome, together with his wife, Eleonora Gonzaga. His son, Guidobaldo II, as heir of Francesco Maria, inherited his public roles, passing them on to his son, Francesco Maria II, husband of Lucrezia d'Este. He left the palace to his uncle, Cardinal Giulio Della Rovere.

Pietro Aldobrandini (1571-1621), Cardinal Nephew from 1593 of his uncle, Clement VIII (pope 1592-1605), until the latter's death, bought the complex in 1601. The building was valued by his architect, Giacomo della Porta, at a price of 40,000 scudi, but was bought for 5,000 fewer, on account of his political status. From 1601 to 1647, the Aldobrandini worked on it without cease. Up to the death of Cardinal Pietro (1621), the architect of the palace was Giovanni Antonio de Pomis, succeeded by Giovanni Pietro Moraldi, who finished the works between 1646 and 1648.

On the death of Cardinal Ippolito Aldobrandini, Olimpia the younger was left as the sole heir of the patrimony (1638); in 1647 she married, as her second marriage, Camillo Pamphilj, nephew of Innocent X.

The works undertaken by the Aldobrandini continued under the Pamphilj, involving also the rear side of the palace (1653). In 1659, Camillo summoned the architect Antonio del Grande to direct the works on the Collegio Romano, which led to the creation of the Pamphilj Apartment. For this part of the Palazzo Salviati was sacrificed; this had been bought by Camillo to make space for the new apartment, which was to be finished in 1660, with its characteristic L-shaped façade on the Piazza del Collegio Romano.

The State Apartment (opened to the public in 1996) consisted of large rooms, together with antechambers and small drawing rooms to the sides.

On the death of Camillo (1666), his wife, Olimpia, and sons, Benedetto and Giovan Battista, continued the works, keeping on as architect Antonio del Grande, who was employed until 1671. Benedetto and his mother occupied the Pamphilj part, while Giovan Battista with his wife Violante Facchinetti, as first-born and heir of the Aldobrandini secundogeniture, occupied the Aldobrandini Apartment.

Antonio del Grande was followed first by Giovanni Pietro Moraldi (active between 1673 and 1677), and then by Mattia De Rossi (1678). The new palace architect, active until 1714, was Carlo Fontana, who was responsible for the demolition of the Aldobrandini Chapel, in place of which was constructed the antechamber of the piano nobile.

After the death of Innocent X, the Pamphilj preferred to reside in the palace on the Corso rather than in the residence in the Piazza Navona, as is mentioned in the breve granted to Camillo Pamphilj by Alexander VII Chigi (16 November 1657): "permission to be able to live, for his natural life, together with his Wife and Family, outside the Pal. in Piazza Navona, without incurring any penalty". On 10 September 1666, another breve of Alexander VII renewed the concession to Giovan Battista Pamphilj, Camillo senior's eldest son.

Giovan Battista's son, Camillo Pamphilj junior, undertook further works on the palace between 1731 and 1734, employing Gabriele Valvassori to renew the façade on Via del Corso. The upper loggia of the Renaissance courtyard was closed at this time, converting the quadrilateral into a display area for the collection of pictures. These were works which Camillo senior had commissioned or purchased on the antiquarian market, or those which had come from the Aldobrandini patrimony, to which had been added those of Lucrezia d'Este, inherited by Pietro Aldobrandini and brought to Rome in 1598. Valvassori was followed in 1739 by Paolo Ameli, responsible for the part on the Via del Plebiscito (1744) and for the grand staircase on Via del Corso (1748-49).

On the death without heirs of Girolamo Pamphilj in 1760 (his only son, Benedetto, had died without issue in 1750), opens the struggle for the inheritance. This was contested by the Borghese and the Doria, the first on the basis of the marriage of Olimpia Aldobrandini, her first marriage, with Paolo Borghese, and the second on the basis of the marriage in 1671 of Anna Pamphilj, born of the second marriage of Olimpia with Camillo senior, with the Genoese aristocrat Giovanni Andrea III Doria. Having won the case, the Doria were compelled to come to Rome by the Pontifical State. According to the law of the period, in fact, the owner of such extensive properties in the state of the Church could not reside outside the territory. The first to take up residence in Rome was to be Giovanni Andrea IV, but only the son of Giovanni Andrea IV was to be granted, in 1765, the right to join the name of the Pamphilj to his own.

During his period as prince the Palace underwent a restoration, evident particularly in the decoration of the rooms of the State Apartment and of the quadrilateral, or Gallery. The occasion was the marriage of the prince with Leopoldina di Savoia Carignano (1767), to whom the groom wished to offer a renovated mansion.

Francesco Nicoletti, an architect from Trapani, , was employed to supervise the works; he directed the construction between 1767 and 1769, coordinating, together with other operations, the team of Late-Baroque painters, whose remit was to decorate the ceilings with painting which are evidently celebratory.

A document survives which describes the undertaking; dating to before 1768, it was drawn up by Nicoletti himself and held in the family archive. It is a plan which reproduces in elevation the rooms of the Gallery and the State Apartment, with attached the list of paintings to be put on display. The entire Gallery has been reordered on the basis of this historical evidence, after a series of works to bring the premises up to modern legal standards.

The uniqueness of the arrangement of the Doria Pamphilj Gallery derives from this; as happens rarely, a seventeenth-century collection is here displayed to the public following unusual criteria, but ones that are faithful to Late Baroque taste.

Filippo Andrea V (1813-1876), with the aid of his architect, Andrea Busiri Vici, wished to give the collection and the palace a breath of fresh air; he therefore embarked on new acquisitions and an arrangement according to new criteria. He was responsible for the choice of substituting some of the paintings of the collection with so-called “primitives”, and the acquisition of such works as the Deposition (or Compassion) of Memling.

http://www.hoasm.org/VC/Frescobaldi.html

QUOTE

Girolamo Frescobaldi
(1583-1643)

Italian keyboardist and composer. His father was a musician and a prominent Ferrarese citizen; he studied with the Ferrarese court organist Luzzaschi (a debt he often acknowledged in dedications), from whom he received training on Vicentino's chromatic archicembalo as well. He was named organist at the Accadernia della Morte in 1597 at the age of 14. At some point he came under the patronage of Guido Bentivoglio, a cleric and member of a powerful Ferrarese family. The duchy of Ferrara reverted to the papacy upon Alfonso's death in 1597; the principal Vatican figure in the affair, Cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini, promised a post at the papal court to Guido, who soon went to Rome, taking Frescobaldi with him. Girolamo was admitted to the Accademia di S. Cecilia in 1604 and became organist at S. Maria in Trastevere in 1607. He accompanied Guido to Flanders in 1607-8, where a set of his 5-part madrigals was published. He was summoned back to Rome by Guido's brother Enzo, a Vatican official, and was appointed organist of the Cappella Giulia, St. Peter's, upon his return; he worked also as a member of Enzo's household musica, though he was less than diligent in that post. He married in 1612 after fathering two illegitimate children by his future wife; by 1615 he seems to have left the service of the Bentivoglio family for that of Cardinal Aldobrandini, while the court of Mantua made an abortive effort to engage him in that same year.

The next thirteen years were his most fruitful in terms of output, with the two books of toccatas, sets of ricercars, canzonas, and capriecios, and a collection of ensemble canzonas appearing during this time. In addition, his fame as a keyboardist continued to grow; he took various engagements while keeping his posts at the Vatican and with the Aldobrandini family. He was in the employ of the Medici in Florence, 1628-34; his only works from this period are the two books of Arie musicali, encompassing strophic songs, through-composed madrigals, and works in stile recitativo. Returning again to Rome, he resumed playing at St. Peter's, in addition taking a post with Cardinal Francesco Barberini and appearing at the celebrated Oratorio del Crocifisso during Lent; the French viol player André Maugars commented in 1639 on his masterly improvisations at these Lenten performances. His international reputation brought Froberger to study with him in 1637-41. He took ill and died amidst the chaos of the final years of the Barberini papacy of Urban VII.

Frescobaldi's compositions were central to keyboard study until well into the next century; Gasparini was among those commending them, and J. S. Bach copied out the Fiori musicali(1635), a publication of liturgical organ music. Revised versions of earlier toccatas and ensemble canzonas show him to be concerned with the final state of his work.

Girolamo Frescobaldi is one of the most illustrious organists and composers we know. He is responsible for making a synthesis of all styles preceding his time and for combining subjectivity with logic, and dramatic passion with lyricism. Through his pupils, Froberger and Pachelbel, he wielded an indirect influence on J. S. Bach.

http://www.fiu.edu/~mirandas/bios1593.htm

The Cardinals of the Holy Roman Church

Biographical Dictionary
Pope Clement VIII (1592-1605)
Consistory of September 17, 1593 (I)

QUOTE

PASSERI ALDOBRANDINI, Cinzio (1551-1610)

Birth. 1551 (1), Senigallia. Of a family that originated in Ca' Passeri, near Bergamo. Son of Aurelio Personeni and Giulia Aldobrandini (2). He is also listed as Aldobrandini Passeri. Given the last name Aldobrandini by his maternal uncle Cardinal Ippolito Aldobrandini, seniore (1585) before he became Pope Clement VIII. Cousin of Cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini (1593). Uncle of Cardinals Silvestro Aldobrandini, O.S.Io.Hier. (1603) and Ippolito Aldobrandini, iuniore (1621).

Education. Sent to Rome in 1565 to be educated in letters and customs by his maternal uncle. Collegio Germanico, Rome; University of Perugia, Perugia (law); University of Padua, Padua (doctorate in law).

Early life. Accompanied Cardinal Ippolito Aldobrandini, seniore in his legation to establish the peace between Poland and Germany, 1588; sent back to Rome to bring Pope Sixtus V the news of the success of the mission. Referendary of the Tribunal of the Apostolic Signature of Justice, 1592.

Sacred orders. (No information found).

Cardinalate. Created cardinal deacon in the consistory of September 17, 1593, with dispensation for having a cousin in the Sacred College of Cardinals; received the red hat and the deaconry of S. Giorgio in Velabro, October 11, 1593. Together with Cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini, named cardinal nipote or secretary of State; gradually, the affairs of the papal court were taken over by Cardinal Pietro. Governor of Spoleto, February 4, 1595 to February 21, 1607. Prefect of the Tribunal of the Apostolic Signature of Justice, December 23, 1599 until his death. Legate in Avignon, 1601-1607. Participated in the first conclave of 1605, which elected Pope Leo XI. Named grand penitentiary by Pope Leo XI in 1605 but could not occupy the post because he had not yet been ordained a priest. Participated in the second conclave of 1605, which elected Pope Paul V.

Priesthood. Ordained (no further information found). Grand penitentiary, May 1605 until his death. Opted for the order of cardinal priests and the title of S. Pietro in Vincoli, June 1, 1605. Distinguished himself for his generosity to the poor and as protector and supporter of the arts and letters; he founded in his own house an academy that counted among its members Francesco Patrizio, Giambattista Raimondi, Scipione Pasquale, bishop of Casale; Pietro Nores, gentleman from Cyprus; and poet Torquato Tasso, who dedicated to him his famous poem Gerusalemme liberata.

Death. January 1, 1610, Rome. Buried in his title (3).

Bibliography. Beltrami, Giuseppe. Notizie su prefetti e referendari della Segnatura Apostolica desunte dai brevi di nomina. Città del Vaticano, Libreria Editrice Vaticana, 1972, p. 6; Cardella, Lorenzo. Memorie storiche de' cardinali della Santa Romana Chiesa. 9 vols. Rome : Stamperia Pagliarini, 1793, VI, 11-16; Chacón, Alfonso. Vitæ, et res gestæ Pontificvm Romanorum et S. R. E. Cardinalvm ab initio nascentis Ecclesiæ vsque Clementem IX P. O. M. 4 vols. Romae : Cura, et Svmp. Philippi, et Ant. De Rvbeis. Svperiorvm Permissv., 1630, II, col. 1877; Gauchat, Patritium. Hierarchia Catholica Medii et Recentioris Aevi, Münich : Sumptibus et Typis Librariae Regensbergianae, 1935; reprint, Padua : Il Messagero di S. Antonio, 1967, IV, 4, 48 and 52;Morera, Trento. I cardinali governatori di Capranica. Roma : Romagrafik, 1983, pp. 61-63; Siena, Ludovico de. Storia della città di Sinigaglia. Bologna : Arnaldo Forni, 1977. (Historiae urbium et regionum Italiae rariores ; 127 : Nuova serie ; 43). Reprint of the 1746 ed. published by Stefano Calvani, Sinigaglia, 1746, pp. 269-271.

Links. Biography, in Italian; his genealogy, A1 B4 C1 D7 E1 F4 G2, H4 I1 J5 K1; and his tomb in the church of S. Pietro in Vincoli, Rome.

(1) This is according to his genealogy linked above; his biography in Italian, also linked above, indicates that he was born in 1560.
(2) This is according to the epitaph on the tomb of the Servant of God Francesco di Bergamo in the mortuary chapel of the Capuchins in Rome, and the genealogy of the Aldobrandinis linked above. Cardella, Memorie storiche de' cardinali della Santa Romana Chiesa, VI, 11, indicates that the mother's name was not Giulia, as the continuators of Chacón's Vitæ et res getæ Pontificum Romanorum et S.R.E. Cardinalium point out, but Elisabetta as invicibilmente demonstrates Lodovico Siena in his Storia della città di Sinigaglia, p. 269.
(3) This is the text of his epitaph placed on his urn by his relative Prince Giambattista Pamphilj in 1707, taken from Lodovico Siena, Storia della città di Sinigaglia, p. 271: CINTHIO. ALDOBRANDINI. S. R. E. CARD. CELEMNTI. VIII. PONT. MAX. SANGUINE. AC. VIRTUTIBUS. CONJUNCTO. LITTERARUM. FAUTORI. BENEFICENTISS. PER. PROSPERA. ET. ADVERS. SEMPER, INVICT. JO. BAPTIST. PAMPHILIUS. ALDOBRANDINUS. MELDULÆ. PRINCEPS. ET. SARSINÆ. DUX. MATERNI. GENERIS. MEMOR. NEDIUTIUS. IN. OBSCURO. PRÆCLARI. CINER. JACERENT. IN. HAC. TEMPLI. LUCEM. TRANSFER. JUSSIT. ANNO. SALUTIS. HUMANÆ. MDCCVII.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Silvestro_Aldobrandini

Silvestro Aldobrandini

QUOTE

Silvestro Aldobrandini (1500-1558) was a Florentine jurisconsult and the father of Pope Clement VIII.

Silvestro Aldobrandini is depicted in a chapel named after Sixtus V in the church of Santa Maria Maggiore in Rome.[1]

References

1. ^ Playing with Colours

http://www.romeartlover.it/Colours.html

QUOTE

Cappella Aldobrandini by Giacomo Della Porta and Carlo Maderno in S. Maria sopra Minerva and Cappella Rucellai by Carlo Maderno in S. Andrea della Valle

The first example of ample use of coloured marbles can be seen in the chapel named after Sixtus V in S. Maria Maggiore. Pope Clemens VIII (1592-1605) followed the policy of his predecessor and the chapel he dedicated to his parents shines with all sorts of marbles: the design of the monument to his father follows a typical Renaissance pattern: an architectural structure provides a frame for the statue of the dead and the virtues associated to him. Silvestro Aldobrandini, the pope's father is portrayed in a traditional posture which follows Etruscan and Roman models: what is new is the choice of clear and brilliant coloured marbles.
Cappella Rucellai, designed just a few years later, would make happy any mineralogist: its walls are almost a catalogue of the different marbles used by the Ancient Romans.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Giacomo_Della_Porta

Giacomo della Porta

QUOTE

Giacomo della Porta (c. 1533 – 1602) was an Italian architect and sculptor, who worked for many important buildings in Rome, including St. Peter's Basilica.[1] He was born at Porlezza, Lombardy.

[Photo: Façade of the famous church of Gesù in Rome.]

Biography

Della Porta was influenced by and collaborated with Michelangelo, and Giacomo Barozzi da Vignola, his teacher of architecture. After 1563 he carried out Michelangelo's plans for the rebuilding of the capital's open spaces: in the Capitoline, della Porta intervened on the façade and steps of Palazzo Senatorio, and the Cordonata capitolina. After the death of Vignola in 1573, he continued the construction of Il Gesù, and in 1584 modified its façade after his own designs. From 1573 he was leader for the ongoing reconstruction of St. Peter's Basilica, and later, in collaboration with Domenico Fontana, completed the cupola in 1588-1590.

Giacomo della Porta completed much of Rome's fountains from 16th century. These include the fountains in Piazza del Popolo, the Fontana di Nettuno and Fontana del Moro in Piazza Navona.

He died in Rome in 1602.

Selected works

* Oratorio del SS. Crocifisso (1562-1568)
* Chiesa del Gesù (1571-1575)
* Fountains at the Palazzo Borghese (1573)
* Fountains in Piazza Colonna (1574)
* Small fountains at Piazza Navona (1574)
* One fountain at the Piazza della Rotonda
* Palazzo Senatorio at the Capitol Hill (1573-1602)
* Palazzo della Sapienza (1578-1602)
* Palazzo Capizucchi (1580)
* Santa Maria dei Monti (1580)
* Sant'Atanasio dei Greci (1581)
* Façade of San Luigi dei Francesi (1589)
* Fontana delle Tartarughe (1584)
* Santa Maria Scala Coeli
* Palazzo Marescotti (1585)
* Palazzo Serlupi (1585)
* SS. Trinità de' Monti (1586)
* Fontana di Piazza alli Monti (1589)
* Cupola of St. Peter's Basilica (1588-90)
* Fountains at the Piazza di Santa Maria in Campitelli (1589)
* Fountains opposite SS. Venanzio e Ansovino (1589)
* Fontana della Terrina (1590)
* Palazzo Fani (1598)
* San Paolo alle Tre Fontane (1599)
* San Nicolò in Carcere (1599)
* Palazzo Albertoni Spinola (1600)
* Villa Aldobrandini (1600-02) in Frascati
* Cappella Aldobrandini (1600-02) in Santa Maria sopra Minerva

References

1. ^ "Giacomo della Porta". Catholic Encyclopedia. (1913). New York: Robert Appleton Company.

GermanyThis biographical article about a Italian architect is a stub. You can help Wikipedia by expanding it.

Katherine Rinne, "Fluid Precision: Giacomo della Porta and the Acqua Vergine fountains of Rome", in Landscapes of Memory and Experience, ed. Jan Birksted (London, 2000), 183-201.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Clement_VIII

Pope Clement VIII

QUOTE

Pope Clement VIII (February 24, 1536 – March 3, 1605), born Ippolito Aldobrandini, was Pope from January 30, 1592 to March 3, 1605.

Early life and education

Born at Fano to an undistinguished Florentine family, the Aldobrandini, whose fortune he was to make, he studied law under his father, an able jurist; his ecclesiastical career was as a lawyer: successively consistorial advocate, auditor of the Sacra Rota Romana and the Datary.

Cardinal

He was made a cardinal 1585 by Pope Gregory XIII. Pope Sixtus V named him grand penitentiary in January 1586 and in 1588 sent him as legate in Poland. He placed himself under the direction of the reformer Philip Neri, who for thirty years was his confessor. Aldobrandini won the gratitude of the Habsburgs by his successful diplomatic efforts in Poland to obtain the release of the imprisoned Archduke Maximilian, the defeated claimant to the Polish throne.

Papacy

Election

After the death of Pope Innocent IX (1591), another stormy conclave ensued, where a determined minority of Italian Cardinals were unwilling to be dictated to by Philip II of Spain. Cardinal Aldobrandini's election on January 30, 1592, was received as a portent of more balanced and liberal Papal policy in European affairs. He took the non-politicized name Clement VIII. He proved to be an able Pope, with an unlimited capacity for work and a lawyer's eye for detail, and a wise statesman, the general object of whose policy was to free the Papacy from its dependence upon Spain.

In 1597, he established the Congregatio de Auxiliis which was to settle the theological controversy between the Dominican Order and the Jesuits concerning the respective role of efficacious grace and free will. Although the debate tended toward a condemnation of Molinism's insistence on free will to the detriment of efficacious grace, the important influence of the Jesuit Order — among other considerations — which, beside important political and theological power in Europe, had also various missions abroad (Jesuit Reducciones in South America, missions in China, etc.), led the Pope to abstain from an official condemnation of the Jesuits. In 1611 and again in 1625 a decree prohibited any discussion of the matter, although it was often uniformally avoided by the publication of commentaries of Thomas Aquinas.

Jubilee of 1600

During the jubilee of 1600, three million pilgrims visited the holy places. The Synod of Brest was held 1595 in Lithuania, by which a great part of the Ruthenian clergy and people were reunited to Rome.

Clement VIII presided at the conferences to determine the questions of grace and free will, controverted between the Jesuits and Dominicans, were commenced under him, but he abstained from pronouncing a decision.

On February 17, 1600, Giordano Bruno, a strong believer of free will, was burned alive due to Clement VIII's approval of a guilty verdict against Bruno.

Canonizations and beatifications

Clement VIII canonized Hyacinth (17 April 1594) and Raymond of Peñafort (1601).

Foreign relations

Reconciliation with France

The most remarkable event of Clement VIII's reign was the reconciliation to the Church of Henry IV of France (1589–1610), after long negotiations, carried on with great dexterity through Cardinal Arnaud d'Ossat, that resolved the complicated situation in France. Henry embraced Catholicism on July 25, 1593. After a pause to assess Henry IV's sincerity, Clement VIII braved Spanish displeasure, and in the autumn of 1595 he solemnly absolved Henry IV, thus putting an end to the thirty years' religious war in France and winning a powerful ally.

Expansion of the Papal States

Henry IV's friendship was of essential importance to the Papacy two years later, when Alfonso II, Duke of Ferrara, died childless (October 27, 1597), and the Pope resolved to attach the stronghold of the Este family to the states of the Church. Though Spain and the Empire encouraged Alfonso II's illegitimate cousin, Cesare d'Este, to withstand the Pope, they were deterred from giving him any material aid by Henry IV's threats, and a papal army entered Ferrara almost unopposed.

Peace of Vervins

In 1598 Clement VIII won more credit for the papacy by bringing about a definite treaty of peace between Spain and France in the Peace of Vervins which put an end to their long contest, and he negotiated peace between France and Savoy as well. He also lent valuable assistance in men and money to the Emperor in his contest with the Turks in Hungary.

Law enforcement

Clement VIII was as vigorous as Pope Sixtus V (1585–90) in crushing banditry in the papal provinces of Umbria and the Marche and in punishing the lawlessness of the Roman nobility. Upon his ascension to the papal throne in 1592, he immediately had several noble troublemakers put to death, including most famously Troio Savelli, scion of a powerful ancient Roman family. He did not even spare the youthful and noble parricide Beatrice Cenci, who was to become a popular heroine adapted in literature by Stendhal, Giorgio Moravia, and Percy Bysshe Shelley. Cenci had murdered her father, who had abused her in many ways. Although popular opinion sided with Cenci, Clement VIII refused to grant her clemency in order to make a moral statement. Although it has been rumored that it was more due to the property he confiscated from the Cenci family that he then passed on to his own family than any moral position.

Clement's strict ways also concerned philosophical and religious matters. In 1600 Giordano Bruno was burned at the stake in the Campo de' Fiori.

Anti-Semitism

Clement VIII was also openly anti-semitic, making the usual link of Jews and usury:

All the world suffers from the usury of the Jews, their monopolies and deceit. They have brought many unfortunate people into a state of poverty, especially the farmers, working class people and the very poor. Then as now Jews have to be reminded intermittently anew that they were enjoying rights in any country since they left Palestine and the Arabian desert, and subsequently their ethical and moral doctrines as well as their deeds rightly deserve to be exposed to criticism in whatever country they happen to live.[citation needed]

Clement VIII's approach towards the Jews had more specific targets. In Cum saepe accidere (February 28, 1592) he forbade the long-established Jewish community of the papal enclave of Avignon to sell new goods, putting them at a disadvantage and fostering the cliché of the Jew as a dealer in secondhand goods. With Caeca et obdurata (February 25, 1593) he confirmed the bull of Pope Paul III (1534–49) that established a ghetto for the ancient community of Jews in Rome, and reiterated the ban on Jews, who had otherwise been formally expelled from the Papal States by Pope Pius V (1566–72) (in Hebraeorum gens, February 26, 1569) dwelling outside of the ghettos of Rome, Ancona, and Avignon, thus ensuring that they remained city-dwellers. Beyond Papal reach, east of Poland, by contrast, farming communities of Jews remained a familiar feature of the landscape. With Cum Haebraeorum malitia a few days later (February 28) he even forbade the reading of the Talmud [1]. It is alleged that Clement VIII's reference to the "blind (Latin: caeca) obstinacy" of the Jews gave rise to the religious slur "kike", though many etymologies dispute this.

Later life and death

Clement VIII was afflicted by gout, and was forced to spend much of his later life immobilized in bed. He died in March of 1605, leaving a reputation for prudence, munificence,ruthlessness and capacity for business. His reign is especially distinguished by the number and beauty of his medals, and especially tarnished by his role in the brutal execution of Giordano Bruno, one of the great minds of his time. Clement was buried in St. Peter's Basilica, and later Pope Paul V (1605–21) had a mausoleum built for him in the Borghese Chapel of Santa Maria Maggiore, where the remains were transferred in 1646.

Clement VIII founded the Collegio Clementino for the education of the sons of the richer classes, and augmented the number of national colleges in Rome by opening the Collegio Scozzese for the training of missionaries to Scotland.

Trivia

Coffee aficionados claim that the spread of its popularity is due to Pope Clement VIII's influence. Being pressured by his advisers to declare coffee the "bitter invention of Satan" because of its popularity among Muslims, he instead declared that, "This devil's drink is so good... we should cheat the devil by baptizing it." It is not clear whether this is a true story.

Sources

* This article incorporates text from the public-domain Catholic Encyclopedia of 1913.

External links

* "Pope Clement VIII" in the 1913 Catholic Encyclopedia.
* Mons. Jouin, "The Holy See and the Jews", from Révue International des Societés, 1918 Roman Catholic Church titles

Pope
1592–1605

Preceded by Innocent IX

Succeeded by Leo XI

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bonifazio_Bev...ua_Aldobrandini

Bonifazio Bevilacqua Aldobrandini

QUOTE

Bonifazio Bevilacqua Aldobrandini (1571-April 7, 1627) was an Italian Cardinal. He was the uncle of Pope Gregory XIV.

Biography

In 1601, Pope Clement VIII associated Count Luigi Bevilacqua and his two brothers, Conte Bonifazio IV (1571-1627) and Conte Alfonso II (1565-1610), with his own family granting them use of his family's Aldobrandini Coat of Arms and the right to appoint courts and judges in their territories. They were also made Counts of the Palace and Knights of the Lateran and of the Golden Spur. Luigi also acquired citizenship in Rome, Bologna, Mantua and Montferrat with the Castle of Fontanile, Perugia, and Assisi. In 1607, Pope Paul V appointed him Captain of the Curiasses and the Grand Duke of Tuscany Ferdinando I gave him the Leadership of the Helmets. In addition, Clement made Bonifazio a cardinal in 1599.

Bonifazio was a "secret waiter" of Pope Gregory XIII in his youth, and received his doctorate in law at the University of Padua. Later, Bonifazio became Archdeacon of Ferrara and the Latin Patriarch of Constantinople.

Bonifazio was also elected Governor of Fano, and Governor of the Duchy of Camerino which were part of the Papal States at the time. During the conclave of Pope Gregory XV, Bonifazio formed strong alliances on the side of the French against Cardinal Guido Bentivoglio and the Spanish. When Gregory became pope, he gave Bonifazio citizenship in the Republic of Lucca. Due to the political animosity among the cardinals during his election, Pope Gregory XV abolished these abuses by making the balloting secret with no cardinal able to vote for himself.

When Bonifacio was made Cardinal, he was in charge of the diocese of Sabina, and Perugia, both in Umbria. He was also made the Prefect of the Cardinal's Consul, Referendario of the Cardinal's Senate, and elected Prefect of all of the Catholic Church's Assemblies. Pope Clement VIII bestowed his own family name, Aldobrandini, with all hereditary rights to Bonifazio since he loved him like a son. Bonifazio had the sepulchral monument of Torquato Tasso built in the church of S. Onofrio al Gianicolo in memory of one of his closest and dearest friends. Bonifacio is buried in a beautiful tomb in the Chapel of Saint Sebastiano Martire in the Church of Saint Andrea della Valle in Rome.

The Bevilacqua family exercised a tremendous amount of power within the Catholic Church through Cardinal Bonifacio and his aunt. Countess Isabella Bevilacqua (1519-1589) married Cavaliere Lorenzo Sfondrati, the Patrizio of Cremona. Lorenzo's brother, Francesco, was made a cardinal by Pope Paul III in 1544. Francesco was a Senator of Milan and when his wife, Sigismonda d'Este, died, he became a cardinal. Francesco's son, Niccolò, became Pope Gregory XIV on December 5, 1590 and the next year made his nephew Paolo Emilio Sfondrati a cardinal.

Arts

Cardinal Bonifazio was a great patron of the arts. He constructed the Church della Madonna della Neve in Cervia with his relatives the Capponi. The Capponi family built the Church and Monastery of Santo Spirito in Florence in 1360 by Gino Capponi. Gino was famous for conquering Pisa for the Florentines in 1404. His son Neri, whose portrait is done in basso-relief by Simone di Betto in the church, was distinguished in the war of the Florentines against the Duke of Milan, Cosimo de' Medici. His grandson Piero was threatened by Charles VIII of France to surrender or Charles VIII would "sound his trumpets for the final attack". Piero responded by saying, "Then, we shall sound our bells." Piero Capponi was killed in 1496 in an assault against the Pisans. He was buried in the same tomb as his great-grandfather Gino which is next to the monument of Cardinal Luigi Capponi, a close friend of Cardinal Bonifazio.

Cardinal Bevilacqua was a major patron of Ventura Salimbeni, the son of the Florentine artist Arcangelo Salimbeni (1567–1589), and Battista Focari, widow of Eugenio Vanni. Ventura was first taught painting in his native Siena by his father, as was his half-brother Francesco Vanni. Cardinal Bonifazio introduced Ventura to Pope Sixtus V (1585–90) in 1588. Ventura received his first commission for the fresco decoration of the Biblioteca Apostolica Vaticana (the Vatican Library) by the pope.

During 1590–91, Salimbeni received commissions from Cardinal Bevilacqua to decorate Gesù and Santa Maria Maggiore churches in Rome. In 1595, and the Church of Santa Trinita and the Church of Santa Spirito in Siena utilizing the Mannerist style. Subsequently, Cardinal Bonifacio Bevilacqua commissioned Salimbeni to paint the Betrothal of the Virgin in the diocese's seminary in Foligno while Bonifazio was governor.

Salimbeni was commissioned to paint Saint Carl Borromeo Adores the Name of Jesus for the cathedral of Saint Lawrence in Grosseto. Cardinal Bevilacqua was a supporter of the cult of the Name of Jesus instituted by Saint Bernardino and sanctioned by Pope Eugene IV in 1432. His next work, Concert of Angels, is stylistically very similar to Betrothal of the Virgin. For almost all of his painting cycles he first created detailed drawings. The few engravings that Salimbeni executed for the cardinal were made in Rome. Of these, only seven survive, dated between 1589 and 1594.

In Perugia, he decorated the Church of San Pietro. After completing his fresco in the church called Cavaleriato del Esperon de Oro, Cardinal Bevilacqua bestowed Ventura Salimbeni with the Bevilacqua family name. From that time, he became known as Il Cavaliere Ventura Salimbeni Bevilacqua. The title of Cavaliere was similar to being knighted. While knighthood was the first and most common of Italy's entitlements, it is not hereditary as are the royal titles. Knighthood is an individual title conferred by members of an Italian royal family for an individual's outstanding or meritorious service.

In 1612, one year before Salimbeni died, he painted a portrait in celebration of Bonifacio's elevation to the cardinalate. The inscription on the letter that Cardinal Bevilacqua holds in his right hand in the portrait reads, "Bonifacius Bevilacqua of Ferrara created Cardinal of the Most Holy Roman Church in 1598". This is a reference to the letter sent by Pope Clement VIII on April 3, 1598 granting Bonifacio with dispensation for not having reached the canonical age to accept his election by the College of Cardinals to the title of Patriarch of Constantinople. Bonifazio was only twenty seven years of age; three years younger than the canonical age to be elected a Patriarch.

In 1735, Marquis Ercole Bevilacqua and his wife, Bradamante d'Este, donated their Palace Paradiso to the city of Ferrara as The Civic Lapidario Museum. They also donated several ancient Roman gravestones, and many works of art including the Portrait of Cardinal Bonifacio Bevilacqua. This gift was in celebration his reelection to Giudice dei Savi or Mayor and Judge of Ferrara. In 1763, Cardinal Bonifacio's portrait was incorporated as part of Cardinal Giovanni Maria Riminaldi's prestigious collection of nineteen portraits of famous cardinals at the Civic Museum of Ferrara in the Schifanoia Palace.

External links

* Biography

http://www.fiu.edu/~mirandas/bios1599.htm#Bevilacqua

The Cardinals of the Holy Roman Church

Biographical Dictionary
Pope Clement VIII (1592-1605)
Consistory of March 3, 1599 (IV)

QUOTE

BEVILACQUA ALDOBRANDINI, Bonifazio (1571-1627)

Birth. 1571 (1), Ferrara. Son of Antonio Bevilacqua, count of Macastorna, and Isabella Turchi. He was aggregated to the Aldobrandini family by Pope Clement VIII on April 3, 1601. Related to Pope Gregory XIV.

Education. University of Padua (2), Padua (doctorate in law).

Early life. Returned to Ferrara and became archdeacon of its cathedral chapter, 1590-1597. Went to Rome entering the service of Pope Gregory XIV as domestic prelate in 1591. Governor of Fano, ca. 1593. Governor of the Patrimony of Saint Peter, 1593. Referendary of the Tribunals of the Apostolic Signature of Justice and of Grace, 1594. Governor of Camerino, October 14, 1596.

Sacred orders. (No information found).

Episcopate. Elected titular patriarch of Constantinople, with dispensation for not having yet reached the canonical age, April 3, 1598. Consecration (no information found).

Cardinalate. Created cardinal priest in the consistory of March 3, 1599; received the red hat and the title of S. Anastasia, March 17, 1599. Prefect of the Sacred Consulta, 1599. Legate in Perugia and Umbria, September 25, 1600. Opted for the title of S. Girolamo degli Schiavoni, February 26, 1601. Transferred to the see of Cervia, September 10, 1601. Prefect of the S.C. of the Index. Count of the Sacred Apostolic Palaces, April 22, 1602. Participated in the first conclave of 1605, which elected Pope Leo XI. Participated in the second conclave of 1605, which elected Pope Paul V. Opted for the title of S. Prisca, August 31, 1611. Opted for the title of S. Pietro in Vincoli, January 7, 1613. Camerlengo of the Sacred College of Cardinals, February 17, 1614, replacing the late Cardinal Francesco Mantica; elected again, January 12, 1615 until January 11, 1616. Prefect of the S.C. of the Sacred Consulta from 1614. Marquis of Tornano, 1619. Participated in the conclave of 1621, which elected Pope Gregory XV. Opted for the title of S. Maria in Trastevere, March 29, 1621. Obtained the title of duke over his fief, March 3, 1622. Participated in the conclave of 1623, which elected Pope Urban VIII. Opted for the order of cardinal bishops and the suburbicarian see of Sabina, September 27, 1623. Opted for the suburbicarian see of Frascati, September 7, 1626. Prefect of the S.C. of the Tridentine Council, 1626 until his death. He had the sepulchral monument of Torquato Tasso built in the church of S. Onofrio al Gianicolo.

Death. April 7 (3), 1627, at 9 p.m., Rome. Buried in the chapel of S. Sebastiano Martire in the church of S. Andrea della Valle, Rome.

Bibliography. Cardella, Lorenzo. Memorie storiche de' cardinali della Santa Romana Chiesa. Rome : Stamperia Pagliarini, 1793, VI, 47-48; Chacón, Alfonso. Vitæ, et res gestæ Pontificvm Romanorum et S. R. E. Cardinalivm ab initio nascentis Ecclesiæ vsque ad Vrbanvm VIII. Pont. Max. 2 volumes. Romae : Typis Vaticanis, 1630, II, col. 1895; Del Re, Nicola. "I cardinali prefetti della sacra congregazione del concilio dalle origini ad oggi (1564-1964)." Apollinaris, XXXVII (1964), p. 115; Gauchat, Patritium. Hierarchia Catholica Medii et Recentioris Aevi, Münich : Sumptibus et Typis Librariae Regensbergianae, 1935; reprint, Padua : Il Messagero di S. Antonio, 1960, IV, 5, 38, 39, 42, 46, 48, 146 and 162; Weber, Christoph. Legati e governatori dello Stato Pontificio : 1550-1809. Roma : Ministero per i beni culturali e ambientali, Ufficio centrale per i beni archivistici, 1994. (Pubblicazioni degli archivi di Stato. Sussidi; 7), pp. 172, 234, 330, and 494.

Links. Biography, in Italian; his prosopography, in German; and his genealogy, A3 B7.

(1) This is according to his genealogy, linked above. His biography in Italian, also linked above, indicates that he was born in 1570.
(2) This is according to Cardella, Memorie storiche de' cardinali della Santa Romana Chiesa, VI, 47; his prosopography, linked above, indicates that he obtained his law degree in Ferrara.
(3) This is according to Hierarchia Catholica Medii et Recentioris Aevi, IV, 5; his genealogy, linked above, indicates that he died on April 6, 1627.

Avles - December 31, 2008 08:26 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Dec 31 2008, 08:21 AM)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

ALDOBRANDINI, BORGHESE AND PAMFILI

GENEALOGIES

[dohtml]
<img src="http://i247.photobucket.com/albums/gg145/2tuff2006/079.jpg" height="252" width="412">
[/dohtml]
Please click picture to expand.
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

The above pic is summoning a very important piece of the Novo Ordo Seclorum history involving the Apennine Peninsula. Look at the interesting connection Borghese-Aldobrandini with Napoleon:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/House_of_Borghese

QUOTE

.....
Marcantonio II (1598-1658), son of Giambattista, was named prince of Sulmona in 1610 by Philip III of Spain, again thanks to Paul V's influence. In 1619 Marcantonio II married Camilla Orsini, becoming heir to both the Borghese and Orsini families. His son Paolo (1624-1646) married Olimpia Aldobrandini, princess of Rossano, and by this marriage enabled the Borghese to lay claim to the Aldobrandini family legacy, though this right was only recognised in 1769 after protracted court battles. Along with Paolo's titles, Olimpia handed the title of prince of Rossano to their son Marcantonio III (1660-1729), who also became viceroy of Naples.

Marcantonio IV (1730-1800), prince of Sulmona and of Rossano, was a senator of the Roman Republic. His son Camillo Filippo Ludovico (1775-1832) enlisted in the Napoleonic army and later became one of its generals. In 1803 he married Napoleon's sister, Pauline Bonaparte, the widow of general Leclerc. Camillo was named duke of Guastalla in 1806, and governor of Piedmont (1807-1814). On Napoleon's fall, he separated from Pauline and retired to private life in Florence, dying without issue.
.....

So these Saturnalia families controlled together and for the benefit of the Jesuit order the Puppet Napoleon. Napoleon admitted the importance of Jesuits for his career. Napoleon was the "false flag" threat with which to re-store the legitimacy of Rome in front of the European monarchies. In fact the Jesuits were forced to the self dismissing of their order, as their work produced a greater awareness about their evil essence. The pope Clement was only one of their agent and not "a true anti-Jesuit" pope. Then the agent was 'neutralized'.... You know, in the future could have blackmailed the General Superior, as happens among the members of a criminal gang... So don't believe in the romantic vision of an "anti-Jesuit pope". Just the year before a French Jesuit for the first time translated in a western language the Sun Tzu manual which teach the staging of a sort of 'defeat' or 'self-destruction' in order to deceive the enemy about the true condition of his adversary.... Only one year after the translation they realized the strategy... Was the tranlation itself a message?
And then the Orsini family. The castle where Tome Cruise married his beatiful wife with scientology rite was a property of the Orsini family. The Orsini who ordered the building of that castle - Bracciano castle - had the name: Napoleone. Anno Domini: 1470:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bracciano

Also the father of Napoleone Bonaparte was a noble but the origin are not exposed. Anyway Carlo Bonaparte dealt with Clement XIII, the friend of Jesuits:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Carlo_Buonaparte

QUOTE

Nobile Carlo Maria Buonaparte (March 29/27, 1746 – February 24 1785) was a Corsican lawyer and politician who briefly served as a personal assistant of the revolutionary leader Pasquale Paoli and eventually rose to become Corsica's representative to the court of Louis XVI. He is also the father of the famed Napoleon I of France.

.....

For a period after his marriage at Ajaccio on June 2/7, 1764, he worked as a Secretary and Personal assistant to Pasquale Paoli. Paoli sent him to Rome negotiate with Pope Clement XIII in 1766. He had apparently enjoyed his time in Rome up until being forced for reasons unknown back to Corsica in 1768. At the time of his return, the Republic of Genoa had offered Corsica to Louis XV as payment for a debt. Buonaparte was noted for a fervent speech against the French "invasion". Political upheaval followed as France gained ownership of Corsica, and many of Paoli's supporters had to flee, Buonaparte and his family included. Marie-Letizia was pregnant with Napoleon Bonaparte at this time.....

And Clement XIII:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Clement_XIII

QUOTE

Pope Clement XIII (Venice, March 7, 1693 – February 2, 1769 in Rome), born Carlo della Torre di Rezzonico, was Pope from 16 July 1758 to 2 February 1769.
He was born to a recently ennobled family of Venice, received a Jesuit education in Bologna and became a cardinal in 1737
.....
Pope Clement XIII (Venice, March 7, 1693 – February 2, 1769 in Rome), born Carlo della Torre di Rezzonico, was Pope from 16 July 1758 to 2 February 1769.
.....
Clement XIII's pontificate was disturbed by perpetual contentions respecting the pressures to suppress the Jesuits coming from the progressive Enlightenment circles of the philosophes in France. Clement XIII placed the Encyclopédie of D'Alembert and Diderot on the Index, but this index was not as effective as it used to be in the previous century.
.....
More unexpected resistance came in the less progressive courts of Spain, the Two Sicilies, and Portugal. In 1758 the reforming minister of Joseph I of Portugal (1750–77), the Marquis of Pombal, expelled the Jesuits from Portugal, and shipped them en masse to Civitavecchia, as a "gift for the Pope." In 1760, Pombal sent home the papal nuncio and recalled the Portuguese ambassador. The pamphlet titled the Brief Relation, which represented the Jesuits as having set up virtually an independent kingdom in South America under their own sovereignty, and of tyrannizing the Native Americans, all in the interest of an insatiable ambition and avarice, whether or not it was completely true, was damaging to the Jesuit cause.
.....
In France, the Parlement de Paris, with its strong upper bourgeois background and Jansenist sympathies, opened the pressure to expel the Jesuits from France in the spring of 1761, and the published excerpts from Jesuit writings, the Extrait des assertions, taken out of context perhaps, certainly provided anti-Jesuit ammunition. Though a congregation of bishops assembled at Paris in December 1761 recommended no action, Louis XV of France (1715–74) promulgated a royal order permitting the Society to remain in the kingdom, with the proviso that certain essentially liberalizing changes in their institution satisfy the Parlement with a French Jesuit vicar-general who should be independent of the general in Rome. To the arrêt of August 2, 1762, by which the Parlement suppressed the Jesuits in France, imposing untenable conditions on any wishing to remain in the country, Clement XIII replied by a protest against the invasion of the Church's rights, and annulled the arrêts. Louis XV's ministers could not permit such an abrogation of French law, and the King finally expelled the Jesuits in November 1764.
.....
Clement XIII warmly espoused the order in a papal bull Apostolicum pascendi, January 7, 1765, which dismissed criticisms of the Jesuits as calumnies and praised the order's usefulness; it was largely ignored: by 1768 the Jesuits had been expelled from France, the Two Sicilies and Parma. In Spain, they appeared to be safe, but Charles III of Spain (1759–88), aware of the drawn-out contentions in Bourbon France, decided on a more peremptory efficiency. During the night of April 2–3, 1767, all the Jesuit houses of Spain were suddenly surrounded, the inhabitants arrested, shipped to the ports in the clothes they were wearing and bundled onto ships for Civitavecchia. The King's letter to Clement XIII promised that his allowance of 100 piastres each year would be withdrawn for the whole order, should any one of them venture at any time to write anything in self-defence or in criticism of the motives for the expulsion, motives that he refused to discuss, then or in the future.
.....
Much the same fate awaited them in the territories of the Bourbon Duke of Parma and Piacenza, advised by the liberal minister Guillaume du Tillot. In 1768 Clement XIII issued a strong protest (monitorium) against the policy of the Parmese government. The question of the investiture of Parma aggravated the Pope's troubles. The Bourbon Kings espoused their relative's quarrel, seized Avignon, Benevento and Pontecorvo, and united in a peremptory demand for the total suppression of the Jesuits (January 1769). Driven to extremes, Clement XIII consented to call a consistory to consider the step, but on the very eve of the day set for its meeting he died (February 2, 1769), not without suspicion of poison, of which, however, there appears to be no conclusive evidence.

From the Annual Register, for 1758: Pope Clement XIII was "the honestest man in the world; a most exemplary ecclesiastic; of the purest morals; devout, steady, learned, diligent..."

Ah! Tears are starting to pour from your eyes! Commotion! There were other ages, with people with true bollocks! Ok, so do yhou understand why after the number XIII comes the number XIV, I mean Clement XIV?

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Clement_XIV

QUOTE

Pope Clement XIV (31 October 1705 – 22 September 1774), born Giovanni Vincenzo Antonio Ganganelli, was Pope from 1769 to 1774. At the time of his election, he was the only Franciscan friar in the College of Cardinals.
.....
Ganganelli was born in Santarcangelo di Romagna. He received his education from the Jesuits at Rimini and the Piarists of Urbino, and in 1724, at the age of nineteen, entered the Order of Friars Minor Conventual of St. Francis with the Franciscan name of Lorenzo Francesco.
.....
Clement XIV's policies were calculated from the outset to smooth the breaches with the Catholic Crowns that had developed during the previous pontificate. The dispute between the temporal and the spiritual Catholic authorities was perceived as a threat by Church authority, and Clement XIV worked towards the reconciliation of the European sovereigns. The arguing and fighting among the monarchs seemed poised to lead Europe towards heavy international competition – a situation which would have resembled the European situation in the late nineteenth century.
.....
By yielding the Papal claims to Parma, Clement XIV obtained the restitution of Avignon and Benevento, and in general he succeeded in placing the relations of the spiritual and the temporal authorities on a friendlier footing. The Pope went on to engage in the suppression of the Jesuits, the decree to this effect being written in November 1772, and signed in July 1773.
.....

Also the previous code-number XIII was trained by Jesuits, of course.

References with the other very important Saturnalia families of the Apenine Peninsula - family BORGHESE:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/House_of_Borghese

QUOTE

Borghese is the surname of a family of Italian noble and papal background, originating in Siena as the Borghese or Borghesi, where they came to prominence in the 13th century holding official offices under the commune. The head of the family, Marcantonio I moved to Rome in the 16th century and there, following the election (1605) of his son Camillo Borghese as Pope Paul V who was an unabashed nepotist, they rose in power and wealth.
.....
The head of the family, Marcantonio I, moved to Rome in 1541 and this Sienese family rapidly gained access to Roman society, culminating in the election (1605) of Marcantonio I's son Camillo Borghese as Pope Paul V. Paul V was an unabashed nepotist, naming his brother Francesco (1556-1620) duke of Rignano and general of the papal army, his other brother Giambattista (1554-1609) governor of the Borgo and castellan of Castel Sant'Angelo,
.....

JUNIO VALERIO BORGHESE

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Junio_Valerio_Borghese

QUOTE

.....In 1942, Borghese took command of the elite naval sabotage unit of the Italian Navy, which included surface assault craft, human torpedoes, midget submarines and SCUBA assault swimmers. This unit, known as the Decima Flottiglia MAS ("10th Assault Vehicle Flotilla"), or Xª MAS with roman numerals, saw active service in the Mediterranean and pioneered new techniques of commando assault warfare.
.....
Following the armistice of Italy on September 8, 1943, the Xª MAS was disbanded, and some of its sailors joined the Allied cause to fight against Germany and what remained of the Axis. Borghese chose to serve the fascist Italian Social Republic, Nazi Germany's allied state in northern Italy, and to continue fighting alongside the German armed forces.

On September 12, 1943 he signed a treaty of alliance with the German Navy. Many of his colleagues volunteered to serve with him, and the Decima Flottiglia was revived, headquartered in the Palazzo Fantoni in Salò. By the end of the war, it had over 18,000 members, and although Borghese conceived it as a purely military unit, it gained a reputation as a savage pro-fascist, anti-communist, anti-resistance force in land campaigns alongside the German Army, under the command of SS General Karl Wolff.

At the end of the war Borghese was arrested by partisans, but rescued by OSS officer James Angleton, who dressed him up in an American uniform and drove him to Rome for interrogation by the Allies. Borghese was tried and convicted of war crimes, sentenced to 12 years imprisonment, but released from jail by the Italian Supreme Court in 1949.....

COUPE D'ETAT JUNIO VALERIO BORGHESE

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Golpe_Borghese

QUOTE

The Golpe Borghese was, allegedly, a failed Italian coup d'état that was planned to take place in the night of 7 on 8 December, 1970. It is named after Junio Valerio Borghese, an Italian World War II commander of the notorious Xª MAS unit, the "Black Prince", convicted for war crimes, but a hero in the eyes of many post-War Italian fascists. The "coup" attempt became publicly known when the left-wing journal "Paese Sera" titled, on the evening of March 18, 1971 : Eversive plan against the Republic, discovered far-right plan.

The secret operation was code-named 'Operation Tora Tora' after the Japanese attack on the US ships in Pearl Harbour which had led the United States to enter the Second World War on December 7, 1941. The plan of the coup in its final phase envisaged the involvement of US and NATO warships which were on alert in the Mediterranean.
.....

Keep in mind that all the strategy of the tension of which the Borghese attempt was part:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Strategy_of_tension
....was only a staged climate of subversion in order to to arise the fear of a sudden classical coupe d'etat in the Italian population. The true coupe d'etat was and IS totally different, it is slower than a classical bloody one (a-la-Pinochet) and is realized also with the collaboration of the same anti-Fascist and anti-coupe forces as the nowadays 'opposition' leftist forces. Just in these days the coupe has been completed. The goal of the coupe is the restoration of the Pontificial reign in the peninsula and sees as first military pillar of it the totalitarian control of the country by the religious army of the Carabineers. In this month practically all the political forces went totally discredited and disreputed by scandals and acts of corruptions. The Constantinian Order Berlusconi government realized the goals of the divine emperor, with some governative measures purportedly created in order to supply the Vatican the opportunity to heavily enter in the inner Italian political affair. Remember the purportedly Fascist and Nazi laws to take fingerprints to gypsies last summer, a law that was ordered directly by the Vatican to Berlusconi's coalition in order to have then the opportunity to 'cry' from the Roman Catholic magazinez 'against the Fascist government' and to present the Roman Catholic power in Italy as the ONLY opposition to an 'oppressive' governement. The problem is that the goverment (and opposition) is TOTALLY made up by knights and butlers of the criminal state of the Vatican and of his pagan anti-Crhistian Romanist sect. See the Vatican that "refuses to accept Italian laws" - as you can see the Jesuits plot of XVIII century are still alive and in full health!!!

http://www.ansa.it/site/notizie/awnplus/en..._131168190.html

> QUOTE
>
> 2008-12-31 12:06
> Vatican divorces Italian laws
> They are too numerous and unstable, Holy See says
> (ANSA) - Vatican City, December 30 - The Vatican will no longer automatically adopt Italian laws as its own when a new statute comes into effect on Thursday, according to Vatican daily Osservatore Romano.
>
> Jose' Maria Serrano Ruiz, president of the Commission for the Revision of the Code of Vatican Law, said the move was motivated by the "exorbitant number" of Italian laws, as well as their "instability" and frequent contrast with "the irreversible principles of the Church".
> .....(continue for yourself)

If you have time at disposition and are interested to deepen, see also:
http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...showtopic=27169
http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...-commander.html
http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...and-jesuit.html

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

soulinspiration - December 31, 2008 08:36 PM (GMT)

VILLA ALDOBRANDINI

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/index.htm

> QUOTE
>
> Villa Aldobrandini on the Quirinal hill in Rome
>
> In a few web pages the fascinating history of the > Villa Aldobrandini in Rome.
> Built at the beginning of the 17th Century by Cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini, the Villa is now the property of the Italian State and the headquarters of the International Institute for the Unification of Private Law (UNIDROIT).

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-05.htm

> QUOTE

Renaissance Rome

By the end of the Middle Ages the monumental buildings of ancient Rome were in ruins. Southern part of the Quirinal hill as it appears in Antonio Tempesta's map (1593):

1. Property of the Vitelli family (indicated as Balnea Paulli on Bufalini's map on the previous page), acquired by the Aldobrandini family at the end of the 16th Century. The small medieval agglomeration of buildings that were demolished at the beginning of the 17th Century to make way for the Villa Aldobrandini can be seen, as well as the pavillion-tower (lower right hand corner of the area occupied by the Villa in the engraving) which served as an entrance to the estate and is still standing today at the corner of Via Panisperna and Largo Magnanapoli.
2. Church of Sant'Agata dei Goti
3. Church of Santi Domenico e Sisto
4. Torre delle Milizie (the nearby Church of S. Caterina had not yet been built).
5. Church of San Silvestro al Quirinale
6. Ruins of the Baths of Constantine, which were completely demolished at the beginning of the 17th Century to make way for the Pallavicini-Rospigliosi Palace.

The recovery of the City at the end of the Middle Ages began in the 16th Century with the Renaissance, the artistic, cultural movement which originated in Florence in the mid-15th Century. The role played by the florentine patrons of the arts was taken over in Rome by the local ruling families which vied with one another also in building luxurious urban residences and suburban villas with important picture galleries and collections of antique sculptures excavated from the inexhaustible archeological sites or expressly commissioned. A brief but dramatic event was the sack of Rome by the lansquenets of Charles V in 1527. The temporal power of the papacy increased however as a result: Rome became the capital of the Papal State and of the entire Catholic world.

The area indicated as Balnea Paulli on Bufalini's map, site of the future Villa Aldobrandini, was at this time the property of the Vitelli family. The building was not a palace but rather an agglomeration of buildings in the Medieval style which housed the Vitelli's art collection, the family residing in a palace in the Campus Martius. The Vitelli estate on the Quirinal must have been quite a valuable and important one if they felt the need to provide the property with the pretentious entrance built by the architect Carlo Lambardi around 1580. Lambardi's pavillion-tower can still be seen today at the corner of Largo Magnanapoli and Via Panisperna.

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-06.htm

QUOTE

Villa Aldobrandini in the early 17th Century

Villa Aldobrandini at the beginning of the 17th Century. Detail of the map of Rome by Goffredo Van Schayck (1630) in which the Villa Aldobrandini is still indicated as "Orti Vitelli" (Gardens of the Vitelli Family).

Renaissance rationality and equilibrium gave way in the 17th Century to the ornate dramatic style typical of the Baroque period which sought to make a strong visual impression by a display of grandeur and extravagance according to a programme for the glorification of the Church. Not only the many architects, painters and sculptors, but also a host of talented artisans, further embellished the city, creating that unique cityscape dominated by the contrast between its dark colour of its buildings and the blond travertine of the church facades, the imposing grandeur of the ancient classical ruins against the background of a luminous sky in a unique image that was to fascinate artists and educated travellers from all over the world over the centuries.

Each Pope sought to outdo his predecessor in the building and lavishly embellishment of churches and palaces which served as a splendid reflection of his religious and temporal powers. The Aldobrandini family, having reached the height of its powers when Ippolito Aldobrandini became Pope Clement VIII (1592-1605). In 1600 Clement VIII acquired the Orti Vitelli on the Quirinal hill and in 1601 donated the property to his nephew Cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini. The old buildings of the Vitelli Family were demolished and construction began on the new villa and adjacent garden.

The new building indicated on the map of Rome (1630) by the engraver G. van Schayck consists of two main parts - one facing the garden, the other flanking Via Panisperna - and two smaller parts enclosing a courtyard. Also visible is a tower which had existed since the Vitelli's time. The two storey villa (a third story was added subsequently) is crowned by a cornice decorated with statues on the sides facing the garden and Via Panisperna. The villa was never the family seat as the Aldobrandini family owned even more splendid residences elsewhere in Rome. The villa on the Quirinal hill served basically for ceremonial functions.

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-07.htm

QUOTE

Villa Aldobrandini at the end of the 17th Century

Church of Santi Domenico e Sisto with a glimpse of the Villa Aldobrandini from Via Panisperna. Detail of the engraving by De Rossi (1686):

1. Villa Aldobrandini
2. Church of S. Bernardino
3. Church of Santi Domenico e Sisto and the adjacent monastery, today headquarters of the Istituto Angelicum. In the 17th Century the side of the church was - and still is - flanked by a retaining wall, which in the engraving is indicated only as a shadow on the ground.
4. In keeping with the style of aggrandizement typical of the period, Via Panisperna is depicted much wider than it really was.

Only a corner of the Villa Aldobrandini on Via Panisperna is visible. The cornice of the facade is crowned by statues. At the base of the retaining wall an entrance to the villa, which no longer exists today, can be seen which probably replaced the access ramp from Lambardi's pavillion-tower which by the end of the 17th Century had been filled in.

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-08.htm

QUOTE

The Aldobrandini art collections

In the 17th Century a great number of antique marble sculptures decorated the garden and the interior of the Villa Aldobrandini. Also the collection of paintings, started by Pietro Aldobrandini and augmented by his decendants, was housed in the Villa Aldobrandini. The detailed inventories drawn up at that time give an idea of the impressive collection comprising works by the old masters, including Bassano, Giovanni Bellini, Bronzino, Correggio, Annibale Carracci, Cavalier d'Arpino, Domenichino, Dosso Dossi, Dürer, Garofalo, Giorgione, Leonardo da Vinci, Andrea Mantegna, Michelangelo, Palma il Vecchio, Peruzzi, Pontormo, Primaticcio, Andrea del Sarto, Raphael, Guido Reni, Giulio Romano, Tintoretto, Titian, Pierin del Vaga and Veronese.

A special place in the collection was occupied by the famous fresco of the 1st Century B.C. known as the "Aldobrandini Wedding" now in the Biblioteca Apostolica Vaticana.

A rather complex series of events conditioned the destiny of the Aldobrandini family in subsequent centuries. The premature deaths of the male descendants lead to the extinction of the family name. In 1638 Olimpia, the sole surviving descendent, became member of another noble Roman family on her marriage to Paolo Borghese. As a result of hereditary vicissitudes, the family property (villa, garden and art collections) came into the possession of the Pamphili family in the mid 17th Century, but eventually returned to the Borghese family, one of whose members changed his name to Aldobrandini in 1837, thereby restoring the Aldobrandini name to a new branch of the family which still survives today. Following the transfer into various residences, sales and hereditary divisions over the years a large part of the Aldobrandini art collection was dispersed. Many of the most important paintings and sculptures are in the major art galleries of the world, as are the numerous statues which adorned the villa and garden.

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-10.htm

QUOTE

Villa Aldobrandini in the Napoleonic period (beginning of the 19th Century)

At the end of the 18th Century the Italian peninsula, notwithstanding its economic, cultural and artistic potential, was dominated by a foreign power as the numerous States in which it was divided had failed to unify. France annexed Rome in 1798, created the Cisalpine Republic and deported Pope Pius VII. F.A. Sextius Miollis, a general in the army of Napoleon I and Governor of the Roman States, acquired Villa Aldobrandini in 1811 from Francesco Borghese-Aldobrandini and trasformed it into a pleasure palace in an attempt to promote the contemporary French "empire" style. Miollis had the Villa renovated and used it to house his vast collection of over 400 paintings, in his way renewing the former collecting efforts of the Aldobrandini family. He also had the garden adorned with 456 statues and several fountains while the upper story of the pavillion-tower designed by Lambardi which had served as an entrance to the garden was transformed into a coffee-house. Miollis' sojourn in Rome lasted only five years, after which his collection of art works was dispersed and the general stripping of the villa and garden began.

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-11.htm

QUOTE

Villa Aldobrandini in the late 19th Century

Francesco Borghese-Aldobrandini bought back the villa and garden from General Miollis' heirs in 1830. In 1846 his son Camillo undertook a new restoration/modification project which included the construction along Via Panisperna at a right angle to the 17th Century villa of a large edifice, designed by architect G.B. Benedetti. This building, in a rather spartan neo-renaissance style, matches the one on the other side of Via Panisperna. The same architect apparently designed the nymphaeum with the statue of Venus which still stands today opposite the entrance to the Villa from Via Panisperna. Much of the interior decoration of the Villa - grotesques, landscapes in pastels - was carried out in this period.
Venere By mid 19th Century the unification of Italy was under way thanks to the politico-military initiative of the House of Savoy. Rome became the capital of Italy in 1871 and the Papal State was confined to the Vatican City.
One of the first major urban development projects to be undertaken was the creation in 1873 of Via Nazionale linking the Termini Railway Station to the city centre. The northern flank of the garden of the Villa Aldobrandini was cut away and a high retaining wall was built along the new Via Nazionale to support the remains of the hill on which the garden is located. The pavillion-tower designed by Lambardi, which by then found itself situated a few metres above street level, no longer served its former function as entrance to the villa.

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-12.htm

QUOTE

Villa Aldobrandini in the early 20th Century

At the end of the 19th Century the trend to renovate the old villas within the city walls and to subdivide the open spaces in the historical centre led the owner, Giuseppe Aldobrandini, to commission a series of plans from several famous architects: F. Strocchi, M. Piacentini and C. Busiri Vici. However the numerous plans encountered difficulties with respect to approval by the public administration. Development was limited to the demolition in 1920 of the old wing which had been built in the 19th Century along Via Panisperna to the plans of architect Benedetti and the construction of the new wing. The plans for this new wing were unsigned and all that may be said is that the style chosen for this new wing was the rather massive neo-renaissance style typical of all the plans that had been commissioned but never executed.

Road signs and parked cars have changed the urban environment which has lost that air of 19th Century tranquil provincialism by now relegated to romantic memories (compare this image with that on the previous page).

The Villa, which was put up for sale by Giuseppe Aldobrandini, changed hands several times. The garden even risked being used for housing development and the villa being turned into a hotel. However, by a Royal Decree Law of 1926 the Italian Government finally purchased the Villa in the public interest. In 1927, a large part of the garden was assigned to the city to be used as a public park while the villa itself became part of the Demanio Statale (State property) "... at the disposal of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs to be used by the International Institute for the Unification of Private Law as its headquarters".

In order to adapt the entire complex to its new public functions the Genio Civile and the Comune di Roma (Muncipality of Rome) carried out numerous restorations of the buildings and garden in the years immediately following its acquuisition by the Italian State and, more recently, since the mid 1980s.
Notwithstanding the dispersion of the art collections and original furnishings, Villa Aldobrandini is still today an architectural complex of considerable historical and cultural significance on account of its place, over the centuries, at the centre of events in the life of Rome.

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-13.htm

QUOTE

The Quirinal hill and the practice of law
It may be interesting to note that the south-western area of the Quirinal hill, on the edge of which is located the Villa Aldobrandini, headquarters of the International Institute for the Unification of Private Law (UNIDROIT) has, since ancient times, hosted buildings which in some way or other are related to the practice of law. In the 5th Centry B.C. a temple dedicated to Senio Dius Fidius, an archaic divinity attributed the safeguarding of respect for oaths, existed on the site of the Church of S. Silvestro al Quirinale built in the mid 16the Century. In the 16th Century, in front of the Church of S. Silvestro al Quirinale, was the palace of Cardinal di Vercelli which had been built on the north side of the ruins of the Baths of Constantine. It was in this building that the Apostolic Camera installed, at the end of the 16th Century, the Ecclesiastic Court of the Sacra Consulta, which decided civil and criminal law cases brought in the foro secolare, and of the Secretariat for papal briefs. It is not surprising that many of the monuments and plaques which decorate the walls and floors of the nearby Church of S. Silvestro al Quirinale were placed in memory of important jurists of the period. Particularly impressive is the cenotaph in honour of Prospero Farinacci, one of the counsels for the defence of Beatrice Cenci, whose dramatic fate inspired illustrious writers such as Stendhal, Dumas and Shelley. Cardinal di Vercelli's palace was demolished in 1730 to make way for the Palazzo della Consulta, seat of the present day Constitutional Court. Also on the piazza del Quirinale is the Quirinal Palace, the official residence of the Popes until 1870, of the Kings of Italy from 1872 to 1946, and of the President of the Republic of Italy since 1946.

[Photo caption: Cenotaph in memory of the Roman jurist Prospero Farinacci (1544-1618), attributed to Domenico Fontana (1543-1607), in the Church of S. Silvestro al Quirinale. The bust's impressive pose and the frowning expression of the personage portrayed accurately symbolise the inexorable essence of the law. Prospero Farinacci had been appointed counsel of the Sacra Consulta by Pope Clemente VIII Aldobrandini and procuratore fiscale of the Apostolic Camera by Pope Paul V. Some of his works are in the collection of 17th and 18th Century legal books donated to library of the International Institute for the Unification of Private Law (UNIDROIT) in 1987 by Gino Gorla (1906 - 1992), former Professor of law in the Faculty of Law of the University of Rome "La Sapienza".]

http://www.paulahowarth.com/villa/e-14.htm

QUOTE

Select Bibliography

* Liliana Barraco: Rione I - Monti - Parte IV, Guide rionali di Roma. Palombi, Roma, 1984.

* Isa Belli Barsali: Ville di Roma. Lazio I Rusconi, Roma, 1983.

* Carla Benocci: Villa Aldobrandini a Roma. Argos, Roma, 1992 (well documented).

* Alberta Campitelli: Le ville a Roma. Architettura e giardini dal 1870 al 1930. Argos, Roma, 1995.

* Daniela Cavallotti Cavallero: Palazzi di Roma dal XIV al XX secolo. Nuova Editrice Romana, Roma, 1989.

* Pia Colini Lombardi: La Villa Aldobrandini a Magnanapoli. Capitolium. Anno VIII, luglio 1932, Roma.

* Alfredo Fabrizi: Le Ville degli Aldobrandini e l'Istituto Internazionale per l'Unificazione del Diritto Privato in Roma. Capitolium, Anno IV, 1928-1929, Roma.

* Frutaz: Le piante di Roma. Istituto Studi Romani, Roma, 1962.

* A. Wilton, I. Bignamini: Grand Tour. The Lure of Italy in Eighteenth Century. Exhibition at the Tate Gallery, The Gallery Publishing, London, 1996.

* Giuseppe Zucca: Gli orti pensili Aldobrandini. Capitolium, Anno I, 1925-1926, Roma.

For a rapid excursus in the complicated history of Rome, see, in the series "I Tascabili", Newton Compton, Rome:

* Armando Ravaglioli: Breve storia di Roma dalle origini ai giorni nostri.

* Armando Ravaglioli: I palazzi dei principi romani. Le regge delle famiglie papali.

For a more comprehensive study, see:

* Various Authors: Storia di Roma. Istituto di Storia Romana, Cappelli, Roma, various dates.

soulinspiration - December 31, 2008 09:03 PM (GMT)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Olimpia_Aldobrandini

Olimpia Aldobrandini

QUOTE

Olimpia Aldobrandini (1623–1681) was a member of the Aldobrandini family of Rome, and the sole heiress to the family fortune. Her first husband was Paolo Borghese. After Paolo's death, Camillo Pamphilj (son of Olimpia Maidalchini) renounced a cardinalship to become her second husband. Part of her dowry in this second marriage was a collection of paintings, including masterpieces removed from the duke of Ferrara's "Camerino d'Alabastro", villas in Montemagnanapoli and Frascati, the great Albodrandini estates in Romagna and its palazzo on the Corso in Rome, as well as the Palazzo itself. These thus passed to the Pamphilj family, and became the nucleus for the Galleria Doria Pamphilj. Camillo and Olimpia had five children, of which the oldest was Giovan Battista (1648-1709), and another of which, Anna Pamphlij, married the Genoese aristocrat Giovanni Andrea III Doria Landi in 1671 (when the Roman branch of the Pamphlilj family ended in 1760, it was Anna and Giovanni who inherited the Rome palazzo).

External links

* http://www.doriapamphilj.it/ukstoria.asp
* (Italian) http://www.doriapamphilj.it/archivio.asp

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aldobrandini_family

Aldobrandini family

QUOTE

The Aldobrandini were an undistinguished Florentine family whose Roman fortunes were made when Ippolito Aldobrandini became pope under the name Pope Clement VIII. He arranged the marriage that linked the Aldobrandini with the Roman family of Pamphili. Additionally, they were also linked to marriage alliances with the Farnese (Ranuccio I, duke of Parma, had married Margherita Aldobrandini) and Borghese (since Olimpia Aldobrandini married Paolo Borghese).

The family's palazzo and its collections of works of art and furnishings, is the Doria Pamphilj Gallery. The Doria, Pamphilj, Landi and Aldobrandini families have become united through marriage and descent under the simplified surname Doria Pamphilj.

Other members of the Aldobrandini:

* Alessandro Cardinal Aldobrandini (1667-1734), raised to the cardinalate 1730.[1]
* Bonifazio Bevilacqua Aldobrandini
* Ippolito Cardinal Adobrandini, iuniore
* Silvestro Cardinal Aldobrandini
* Cinzio Passeri Cardinal Aldobrandini, a nephew of Clement VIII, raised to the cardinalate 1593.
* Pietro Cardinal Aldobrandini (1571-1621), raised to the cardinalate 1593 by Clement VIII.[2]

See also

* Palazzo Chigi
* Villa Aldobrandini
* Raphael's Aldobrandini Madonna
* The Aldobrandini Wedding, a celebrated Roman bas-relief

Notes

1. ^ Catholic Hierarchy: "Alessandro Cardinal Aldobrandini"
2. ^ Catholic Hierarchy: "Pietro Cardinal Aldobrandini"

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Palazzo_Doria_Pamphilj

Doria Pamphilj Gallery

QUOTE

The Doria Pamphilj Gallery is a large art collection housed in the Palazzo Doria Pamphilj in Rome. It is situated between the Via del Corso and Via della Gatta. The principal entrance is on the Piazza del Collegio Romano. Like the palace, it is still privately owned by the princely Roman family Doria Pamphilij.

The collection

The large collection of paintings, furniture and statuary has been assembled since the 16th century by the Doria, Pamphilj, Landi and Aldobrandini families now united through marriage and descent under the simplified surname Doria Pamphilj. The collection includes paintings and furnishings from the Innocent X's Palazzo Pamphilj (in Piazza Navona), who bequeathed them to his nephew Camillo Pamphilj.

The Palazzo has grown over the centuries; it is likely the largest in Rome still in private ownership. The main collection is displayed in state rooms, including the chapel, complete with the mummified corpse of the family saint. However, the bulk is displayed in a series of four gilded and painted galleries surrounding a courtyard. An extensive suite of further rooms have now been converted to permanent well-lit galleries, containing the more medieval and Byzantine art in the collection.

Velazquez's portrait of Innocent X, who rose to papacy as cardinal Giovan Battista Pamphilj in 1644, is considered the collection's masterpiece. Velazquez while not idealizing the pope's countenance, is not unflattering in the portrait; Innocent X's features were by his contemporaries believed to symbolise a despotic lifestyle and vindictive character. The portrait painted to commemorate the Holy year was commissioned by his hedonistic sister-in-law Olimpia Maidalchini who was his close confidante and adviser, and some say mistress. Since 1927, Velázquez's portrait was placed in a specially designated small room along with a sculptured bust of the same pope by Bernini.

Olimpia Maidalchini's son Camillo Pamphilj, defying his powerful mother, renounced the Cardinalship conferred on him by his uncle the Pope and married the widowed Olimpia Borghese. Born an Aldobrandini it was she who brought the palazzo, then known as the Palazzo Aldobrandini, into the Pamphilj family. Following a period of exile in the country, to avoid confrontation with the Pope and Olimpia Maidalchini, the newly married couple took up permanent residence in the Palazzo Aldobrandini which from 1654 Camillo began to expand on a large scale; neighbouring houses and a convent were bought and demolished as the Palazzo grew, in spite of local opposition from the neighbouring Jesuits at the Collegio Romano. The architect in charge of this lengthy project was Antonio Del Grande. The façade facing the Via del Corso, however, is by Gabriele Valvassori. Following Camillo's death in 1666, building continued under the auspices of his two sons Giovanni Battista (his heir) and Benedetto.

One of Camillo and Olimpia's daughters, Anna Pamphlij, married the Genoese aristocrat Giovanni Andrea III Doria Landi in 1671, and it was their descendants who inherited the Palazzo when the Roman branch of the Pamphlilj family ended in 1760. In 1763 Principe Andrea IV combined his Genoese and Roman names to the present Doria-Pamphilij-Landi. In 1767 the ceilings of the state rooms were frescoed by late-baroque artists such as Crescenzio Onofri, Aureliano Milani, and Stefano Pozzi (Sala degli Specchi).

The collection was first opened to the public by the three-quarters English Orietta Pogson Doria Pamphilj, whose English husband Frank Pogson added her name to his. Her own father, Prince Filippo Andrea VI, was half English. Princess Orietta and Don Frank did much to restore the collection and the Palazzo, following her death in 2000 the guardianship of the collection was taken over by her adopted, English born, children, Prince Jonathan Doria Pamphilj (who formed a Civil Partnership with Elson Edeno Braga and has two children Emily and Filippo Andrea VII), and Donna Gesine Pogson Doria Pamphilj (married to Massimiliano Floridi with four daughters (Anna, Elisa, Orietta & Irene). They all still reside in the palazzo. Along with the possessions of the Colonna and Pallavacini-Rospigliosi families, this is one of the largest private art collections in Rome; the Palazzo Spada collection is now owned by the state.

Overview

* Family chapel was designed by architect Carlo Fontana in the late 17th century, but since altered. The ivory crucifix was carved by Ercole Ferrata.
* Saletta Gialla and Rossa contain Gobelins tapestries, including those on Zodiac signs by Claude Audran.
* Sala del Poussin: Landscapes by Claude Lorraine.

In the main painting galleries are:

* 1st Gallery: Mary Magdalene by Carracci; Christ in the house of the Pharisee by Cigoli; St. Roch and angel by Saraceni; and Herminia and Tancred by Guercino.
* 2nd Gallery: (Galleria degli Specchi): Velazquez and Bernini portraits, antique Roman statues; and Crossing of Red Sea by Antonio Tempesta.
* Saletta del Seicento: Caravaggio's Penitent Magdalene and The Rest on the Flight into Egypt
* Saletta del Cinquecento: Double portrait by Raphael; Salome with the head of St John the Baptist by Titian.
* Saletta del Quattrocento: works by Ludovico Mazzolino and Antoniazzo Romano.
* 3rd Gallery: St Jerome by Lotto; Return of prodigal son by Guercino; Madonna in adoration of the Child by Reni; Crucifixion by Marcello Venusti; Holy Family by Sassoferrato; Landscape with hunting scene by Paul Brill.
* 4th Gallery: bust of Olimpia Aldobrandini by Algardi; St John the Baptist by Caravaggio; Christ in the temple by Mazzolino.
* Saletta degli Specchi: Landscape by Domenichino; St Joseph by Guercino; Angel by Titian, Christ in the Garden by Venusti.
* Salone Aldobrandini: antique sculptures and marble reliefs by Duquesnoy.

Room of Andrea Doria: portrait of Christopher Columbus by Jan Mabuse and Sebastiano del Piombo, Portrait of Andrea Doria. Green Salon: large mid-15th century Tournai tapestry with the medieval legend of Alexander the Great; bronze Innocent X by Algardi; Portrait by Lotto; and Filippo Lippi's Annunciation

Note: The Palazzo housing the Gallery Doria Pamphilj should not be confused with the Palazzo Pamphilj, in Rome's Piazza Navona. Nor should this palace be confused with a second Palazzo Doria-Pamphilj, a summer urban villa, in Valmontone near Rome; this palace, while badly damaged during the second war, is renowned for its late Baroque fresco series by Francesco Cozza, Pier Francesco Mola, and Mattia Preti[1].

External links

* Galleria Doria Pamphilj
* map of the location of the gallery. The museum is in the center of the photo, a few blocks from the marble monument Monument to Vittorio Emanuele II.

soulinspiration - December 31, 2008 09:20 PM (GMT)

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=602099

QUOTE

Camillo Aldobrandini, 4º principe Aldobrandini

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma, Roma 21.05.1945

Genitori

Padre: Clemente Aldobrandini, 3º principe Aldobrandini * 27.06.1891 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Luise, Freiin von Welczeck * 20.08.1913 Discendente di Carlomagno

Matrimoni

Rom 10.06.1967
Stefania Gallarati Scotti * 22.06.1946

Figli

* Cinzia Aldobrandini * 26.08.1968 Giordano, conte Emo Capodilista
* Paola dei Prinicipi Aldobrandini * 24.09.1971 nobile Angelo Federico Arcelli
* Clemente Aldobrandini * 04.03.1982

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=602100

QUOTE

Stefania Gallarati Scotti

* Roma, Roma 22.06.1946

Matrimoni
Rom 10.06.1967
Camillo Aldobrandini, 4º principe Aldobrandini * 21.05.1945 Discendente di Carlomagno

Figli

* Cinzia Aldobrandini * 26.08.1968 Giordano, conte Emo Capodilista
* Paola dei Prinicipi Aldobrandini * 24.09.1971 nobile Angelo Federico Arcelli
* Clemente Aldobrandini * 04.03.1982

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=165252

QUOTE

Cinzia Aldobrandini

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma, Roma 26.08.1968

Genitori

Padre: Camillo Aldobrandini, 4º principe Aldobrandini * 21.05.1945 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Stefania Gallarati Scotti * 22.06.1946

Matrimoni

Giordano, conte Emo Capodilista * 06.02.1963

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=1082745

QUOTE

Paola dei Prinicipi Aldobrandini

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma 24.09.1971

Genitori

Padre: Camillo Aldobrandini, 4º principe Aldobrandini * 21.05.1945 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Stefania Gallarati Scotti * 22.06.1946

Matrimoni

Frascati 16.11.2002
nobile Angelo Federico Arcelli * 02.11.1970

Figli

* nobile Maria Camilla Lavinia Arcelli
* nobile Francesca Stefanina Arcelli

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=1082747

QUOTE

Clemente Aldobrandini

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma 04.03.1982

Genitori

Padre: Camillo Aldobrandini, 4º principe Aldobrandini * 21.05.1945 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Stefania Gallarati Scotti * 22.06.1946

soulinspiration - December 31, 2008 09:45 PM (GMT)

BORGHESE-ALBOBRANDINI PATERNAL LINE IN REVERSE CHRONOLOGY

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=602097

QUOTE

Clemente Aldobrandini, 3º principe Aldobrandini

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma, Roma 27.06.1891 + Roma, Roma 08.03.1965

Genitori

Padre: Giuseppe Aldobrandini, 2º principe Aldobrandini * 10.06.1865 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Maria Antinori, duchessa di Brindisi * 06.01.1865

Matrimoni

Matrimonio I: Wasserleonburg 29.10.1941
Luise, Freiin von Welczeck * 20.08.1913 Discendente di Carlomagno

Figli

Figli del matrimonio I:

* Livia, marchesa Aldobrandini * 31.08.1942 Giancarlo Tito Pediconi
* Camillo Aldobrandini, 4º principe Aldobrandini * 21.05.1945 Stefania Gallarati Scotti
* Giovanni, marchese Aldobrandini * 14.03.1952 Patricia Consuelo Sanchez

Figli di Anna Saluzzo di Santo Mauro

* Francesco Aldobrandini * 24.11.1921 Anne-Marie Lacloche

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=602091

QUOTE

Giuseppe Aldobrandini, 2º principe Aldobrandini

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Frascati 10.06.1865 + Lido di Roma 25.06.1929

Genitori

Padre: Camillo Aldobrandini, 1º principe Aldobrandini * 16.11.1816 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Maria Kethelyi, Gräfin von Hunyady * 19.11.1828 Discendente di Carlomagno

Matrimoni

Maria Antinori, duchessa di Brindisi * 06.01.1865

Figli

* Clemente Aldobrandini, 3º principe Aldobrandini * 27.06.1891 Luise, Freiin von Welczeck

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=243475

QUOTE

Camillo Aldobrandini, 1º principe Aldobrandini

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Toscana, Firenze 16.11.1816 + Roma, Roma 05.06.1902

Genitori

Padre: Francesco Paolo Borghese, 7° principe di Sulmona * 09.06.1776 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Adèle, comtesse de La Rochefoucauld * 15.09.1793 Discendente di Carlomagno

Matrimoni

Matrimonio I:

Marie Flore Pauline, princesse d' Arenberg * 02.03.1823 Discendente di Carlomagno

Matrimonio II:

Maria Kethelyi, Gräfin von Hunyady * 19.11.1828 Discendente di Carlomagno

Figli

Figli del matrimonio I:

* Maria Aldobrandini * 19.05.1844
* Pietro, principe Aldobrandini * 24.06.1845 Françoise de La Rochefoucauld
* Elisabetta Aldobrandini * 13.07.1847 Filippo Massimiliano Massimo, principe Lancellotti
* Luigi Gonzaga Aldobrandini * 22.12.1849

Figli del matrimonio II:

* Giuseppe Aldobrandini, 2º principe Aldobrandini * 10.06.1865 Maria Antinori, duchessa di Brindisi

Títoli

* Principi Aldobrandini (1)

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=133336

QUOTE

Francesco Paolo Borghese, 7° principe di Sulmona

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma, Roma 09.06.1776 + Roma, Roma 29.05.1839

Genitori

Padre: Marcantonio III Borghese, 5° principe di Sulmona * 16.09.1730 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Anna Maria Salviati * 09.10.1752 Discendente di Carlomagno

Matrimoni

Île de France, Paris 11.04.1809
Adèle, comtesse de La Rochefoucauld * 15.09.1793 Discendente di Carlomagno

Figli

* Luisa Borghese-Aldobrandini * 11.08.1812 Henri de Rochechouart, marquis de Mortemart
* Marcantonio Borghese, 8º principe di Sulmona * 23.02.1814 Gwendoline Talbot Marie Therèse de La Rochefoucauld
* Camillo Aldobrandini, 1º principe Aldobrandini * 16.11.1816 Marie Flore Pauline, princesse d' Arenberg Maria Kethelyi, Gräfin von Hunyady

Note Biografice
Data only available to Geneall Plus registered users.
Please Login or read access conditions.

Títoli

* Principi Borghese d' Aldobrandini e di Sulmona

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=72137

QUOTE

Marcantonio III Borghese, 5° principe di Sulmona

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma, Roma 16.09.1730 + Roma, Roma 26.03.1800

Genitori

Padre: Camillo Borghese, 4° principe di Sulmona * 07.04.1693 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Agnese Colonna * 06.04.1702 Discendente di Carlomagno

Matrimoni

Roma, Roma 25.04.1768
Anna Maria Salviati * 09.10.1752 Discendente di Carlomagno

Figli

* Camillo, principe Borghese * 08.08.1775 Paulina Bonaparte, duchesse de Guastalla
* Francesco Paolo Borghese, 7° principe di Sulmona * 09.06.1776 Adèle, comtesse de La Rochefoucauld

Títoli

* Principi di Sulmona (5)

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=72133

QUOTE

Camillo Borghese, 4° principe di Sulmona

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma, Roma 07.04.1693 + Roma, Roma 16.09.1763

Genitori

Padre: Marcantonio II, 3° principe di Sulmona * 20.05.1660 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Lívia Spinola * 14.12.1669

Matrimoni

04.10.1723
Agnese Colonna * 06.04.1702 Discendente di Carlomagno

Figli

* Eleonora Borghese * 1724 Michele Imperiali, 7. Principe di Francavilla,
* Maria Vittoria Borghese * 1729
* Marcantonio III Borghese, 5° principe di Sulmona * 16.09.1730 Anna Maria Salviati
* Livia Borghese * 22.09.1731 Emilio Carlo Altieri, 4º principe di Oriolo, 4º principe di Viano e 4º duca di Monterano
* Paolo Borghese, Principe Aldobrandini * 1733
* Scipione Borghese * 01.04.1734
* Ippolito Borghese * 1735
* Giovanni Battista Borghese
* Orazio Borghese * 1735
* Giacomo Borghese

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=72113

QUOTE

Marcantonio II, 3° principe di Sulmona

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* Roma, Roma 20.05.1660 + Roma, Roma 22.05.1729

Genitori

Padre: Giovanni Battista Borghese, 2º principe di Sulmona * 14.10.1639 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Eleonora Boncompagni * 07.07.1642 Discendente di Carlomagno

Matrimoni

Génova 24.01.1691
Lívia Spinola * 14.12.1669

Figli

* Camillo Borghese, 4° principe di Sulmona * 07.04.1693 Agnese Colonna
* Eleonora Maddalena Borghese * 1694 Baldassare I, principe Odescalchi

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=72103

QUOTE

Giovanni Battista Borghese, 2º principe di Sulmona

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* 14.10.1639 + 08.05.1717

Genitori

Padre: Paolo, principe Borghese * 1624 Discendente di Carlomagno
Madre: Olimpia Aldobrandini, principessa di Rossano * 20.04.1623

Matrimoni

Eleonora Boncompagni * 07.07.1642 Discendente di Carlomagno

Figli

* Marcantonio II, 3° principe di Sulmona * 20.05.1660 Lívia Spinola

Ordini

* Cavalieri dell' Ordine del Toson d' Oro (458) - 1662

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=72197

QUOTE

Paolo, principe Borghese

Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

* 1624 + 1646

Genitori

Padre: Marcantonio I Borghese, 1º principe di Sulmona * 1598
Madre: Camilla Orsini * 1603 Discendente di Carlomagno

Matrimoni

1638
Olimpia Aldobrandini, principessa di Rossano * 20.04.1623

Figli

* Giovanni Battista Borghese, 2º principe di Sulmona * 14.10.1639 Eleonora Boncompagni

* Maria Virginia Borghese * c. 1640 Agostino Chigi, principe di Farnese

Títoli

* Principi Borghese

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=73202

QUOTE

Marcantonio I Borghese, 1º principe di Sulmona

* 1598 + 1658

Genitori

Padre: Giovanni Battista Borghese * 1554
Madre: Virginia Lante * c. 1565

Matrimoni

1619
Camilla Orsini * 1603 Discendente di Carlomagno

Figli

* Paolo, principe Borghese * 1624 Olimpia Aldobrandini, principessa di Rossano

Títoli

* Principi di Sulmona (1)

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=72178

QUOTE

Giovanni Battista Borghese

* 1554 + 1609

Genitori

Padre: Marcoantonio Borghese * 1504
Madre: Flaminia Astalli * 1530

Matrimoni

1588
Virginia Lante * c. 1565

Figli

* Marcantonio I Borghese, 1º principe di Sulmona * 1598 Camilla Orsini

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=72171

QUOTE

Marcoantonio Borghese

* Siena 1504 + Roma 1574

Genitori

Padre: Giacomo Borghese * c. 1475
Madre: Margherita Saracini

Matrimoni

Matrimonio I: Siena 1531
Aurelia Bargagli

Matrimonio II: Roma 1548
Flaminia Astalli * 1530

Figli

Figli del matrimonio II:

* Paulus V, papa * 17.09.1550
* Orazio Borghese
* Giovanni Battista Borghese * 1554 Virginia Lante
* Ortensia Borghese Francesco Caffarelli
* Francesco Borghese, Duca di Rignano Ortensia Santacroce
* Margherita Borghese Orazio Vittori
* Girolamo Borghese

Note Biografice
Data only available to Geneall Plus registered users.
Please Login or read access conditions.

http://www.geneall.net/I/per_page.php?id=981743

QUOTE

Giacomo Borghese

* c. 1475

Matrimoni

1497
Margherita Saracini

Figli

* Camilla Borghese
* Marcoantonio Borghese * 1504 Aurelia Bargagli Flaminia Astalli
* Pierfrancesco Borghese
* Alessandro Borghese

Alexandra - December 31, 2008 10:01 PM (GMT)

That's where I found a lot of my info, at geneall. :)

Douglas Willinger - December 31, 2008 10:55 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Dec 31 2008, 12:42 AM)

Dear Craig,

More nobility controlled by the pope and his Jesuits.

Remember that Pope Clement XIII was poisoned by the Jesuits the night before he was to formally suppress the Order in 1769.

Brother Eric

I would put quote marks around the word "Nobility", given its meaning to recognize subservience to the apostate (Rome) which objectively is un-noble.

Avles - January 1, 2009 09:30 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE
>
> Camillo Aldobrandini, 4º principe Aldobrandini
>
> Discendente di Carlomagno Discendente di Ugo Capeto di Francia Discendente di Ferdinando I, re di León e Castiglia Discendente di Guglielmo I d'Inghilterra Discendente de Afonso Henriques de Portugal

"Discendente di Carlomagno".... i.e. descending from Charlemagne, etc. So how to fix bloodline coming from the Charlemagne with the church of Rome?

See the link (probably it has just explained in this site, but a refresh is useful):

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Temporal_power

> QUOTE
>
> Temporal power
> From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
>
> The temporal power of the Popes is the political and governmental activity of the Popes of the Roman Catholic Church, as distinguished from their spiritual and pastoral activity, which is also called eternal power, to contrast it with the Church's secular power.
>
> For centuries, its secular activities brought the Papal States into a status as a country bearing some relation with other countries of the world.[1] Some historians identify the crowning of Charlemagne in 800 as the moment in which the Church started having an international importance in a modern sense, although the temporal power can be traced to the earlier Donation of Pepin in 756. In his Pastoral Care, Pope Gregory the Great (died 604) had discussed the extensive range of duties that bishops owed their flock as huius saeculi potentes, "the powers of these ages"; hence some historians prefer to see the origins of secular powers in the age of the Byzantine suzerainty over the bishop of Rome. Yet "Justinian I succeeded in imposing his ecclesiastical policies on the papacy and Pope Gregory the Great maintained an attitude of political loyalty to the empire."[2]
>
> Charlemagne's crowning, however, was perhaps the first moment in which the Church was generally granted a power of control of the imperial dignity, thus demonstrating a sort of power of international veto. Subsequently, the Donation of Constantine was forged to provide a legal basis for the temporal power.
> .....Etc.
> .....

The Forgery of Constantine - with which the CONSTANTINE ORDER comes back through the windows of the forgeries (is not strange that prime minister Silvio Berlusconi and the general commander of allmighty Carabineers Army Giandomenico Siazzu are Constantinian order knights):

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Donation_of_Constantine

> QUOTE
>
> Donation of Constantine
> From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
>
> The Donation of Constantine (Latin, Donatio Constantini)[1] is a forged Roman imperial edict devised probably between 750 and 775, the earlier date being the more probable. It is often said that the document could have been written around 752. Albert Hauck suggested in 1888[2] that assuming that the document was forged shortly before the Council of Quierzy, 754, would explain demands made by the Pope on that occasion, "demands which had no basis in law or fact", commented F. Zinkeisen.[3] The earliest secure allusion to the Donatio is in a letter in which Pope Hadrian I exhorts Charlemagne to follow Constantine's example and endow the Roman church. It was clearly a defense of papal interests, perhaps against the claims of either the Byzantine Empire, or the Frankish king Charlemagne, who had assumed the former imperial dignity in the West and with it the title "Emperor of the Romans". The Donation is included among the texts of the False Decretals of Isidore.
>
> Purportedly issued by the fourth century Roman Emperor Constantine I, the Donation grants Pope Sylvester I and his successors, as inheritors of St. Peter, dominion over lands in Judea, Greece, Asia, Thrace, Africa, as well as the city of Rome, with Italy and the entire Western Roman Empire, while Constantine would retain imperial authority in the Eastern Roman Empire from his new imperial capital of Constantinople. The text claims that the Donation was Constantine's gift to Sylvester for instructing him in the Christian faith, baptizing him and miraculously curing him of leprosy.
>
> It has been suggested that an early draft was made shortly after the middle of the eighth century in order to assist Pope Stephen II in his negotiations with Pepin the Short, the Frankish Mayor of the Palace. In 754, Pope Stephen II crossed the Alps to anoint Pepin king, thereby enabling the Carolingian family to supplant the old Merovingian royal line. In return for Stephen's support, Pepin apparently gave the Pope the lands in Italy which the Lombards had taken from the Byzantine Empire. These lands would become the Papal States and would be the basis of the Papacy's secular power for the next eleven centuries.

.....Etc.

I remember I was teached in the school about the fake document, but those were times of 'protests' when the Jesuits provoked the '68 and the '77 movement under which (for the n-time - see Sun Tzu!!!), to hide themselves under the false appearance of a "weakeness" of the church in front of an "overwhelming anti-clergy atheist movement" in the society. With this knoweledge it is perfectly legitime to consider and define the Roman Apostolic Catholic church of the Vatican kingdom only the disguise of the old pagan, anti-Christian Roman empire. To say "Constantine after having killed Christendom used his skin as a disguise" is not only a literary or religious metaphore, but a strong description of a material reality. Nepotism and Satanism of the Aldobrandini-Orsini is clear from the events happened in their castle having a Medici as first character, Isabella De Medici wife of Giordano Orsini.

http://www.ansa.it/opencms/export/site/not...2028813445.html

QUOTE

2006-11-18 20:18 (ANSA)
E TOM CRUISE SFIDO' IL SORTILEGIO DEL CASTELLO
(i.e. : "AND TOM CRUISE DARED TO CHALLENGE THE WITCHCRAFT OF THE CASTLE")
(di Beniamino Mechelli)
.....
All'origine del sortilegio ci sarebbe il comportamento da 'mantide religiosa' di Isabella De Medici, moglie di Giordano Orsini. La donna, dal temperamento particolarmente focoso, dopo aver incontrato una sola volta i suoi numerosi amanti, li invitava ad entrare in una porta che conduceva in un salottino, dove li assicurava che li avrebbe raggiunti poco dopo. Ma dietro la porta c'era una botola aperta sul pavimento che inghiottiva i malcapitati, facendoli precipitare in un pozzo pieno di calce viva. Il marito della donna, stanco dei suoi tradimenti e, soprattutto invaghito di una giovane cortigiana, una sera la strangolò con un nastro rosso.
.....

I posted once a message about the Tom Cruise wedding and the castle's history involving the Saturnalia bloody rituals. Practically the above quote is saying that Isabella had many lovers, regularly murdered after the sexual act. The husband killed her. I suspect that this kind of 'macabre folklore' is hiding the core of pagan satanic rites of the Saturnalia brootherhod. Paganism and Satanism well hidden under the appearance of the Romanist 'Christendom' of the church. This is the reason for which the appearance of Martin Luther and other similar true believers putted all this human garbage practically out of head.

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Avles - January 1, 2009 11:18 AM (GMT)

THE "WAR ON TALMUD" OF ALDOBRANDINI "G. DOUBLE-U BUSH" CLEMENT VIII

QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Dec 31 2008, 08:15 PM)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Clement_VIII

Pope Clement VIII

QUOTE

Pope Clement VIII (February 24, 1536 – March 3, 1605), born Ippolito Aldobrandini, was Pope from January 30, 1592 to March 3, 1605.

.....

On February 17, 1600, Giordano Bruno, a strong believer of free will, was burned alive due to Clement VIII's approval of a guilty verdict against Bruno.

Canonizations and beatifications

Clement VIII canonized Hyacinth (17 April 1594) and Raymond of Peñafort (1601).

Foreign relations

Reconciliation with France

The most remarkable event of Clement VIII's reign was the reconciliation to the Church of Henry IV of France (1589–1610), after long negotiations, carried on with great dexterity through Cardinal Arnaud d'Ossat, that resolved the complicated situation in France. Henry embraced Catholicism on July 25, 1593. After a pause to assess Henry IV's sincerity, Clement VIII braved Spanish displeasure, and in the autumn of 1595 he solemnly absolved Henry IV, thus putting an end to the thirty years' religious war in France and winning a powerful ally.

.....

Anti-Semitism

Clement VIII was also openly anti-semitic, making the usual link of Jews and usury:

All the world suffers from the usury of the Jews, their monopolies and deceit. They have brought many unfortunate people into a state of poverty, especially the farmers, working class people and the very poor. Then as now Jews have to be reminded intermittently anew that they were enjoying rights in any country since they left Palestine and the Arabian desert, and subsequently their ethical and moral doctrines as well as their deeds rightly deserve to be exposed to criticism in whatever country they happen to live.[citation needed]

Clement VIII's approach towards the Jews had more specific targets. In Cum saepe accidere (February 28, 1592) he forbade the long-established Jewish community of the papal enclave of Avignon to sell new goods, putting them at a disadvantage and fostering the cliché of the Jew as a dealer in secondhand goods. With Caeca et obdurata (February 25, 1593) he confirmed the bull of Pope Paul III (1534–49) that established a ghetto for the ancient community of Jews in Rome, and reiterated the ban on Jews, who had otherwise been formally expelled from the Papal States by Pope Pius V (1566–72) (in Hebraeorum gens, February 26, 1569) dwelling outside of the ghettos of Rome, Ancona, and Avignon, thus ensuring that they remained city-dwellers. Beyond Papal reach, east of Poland, by contrast, farming communities of Jews remained a familiar feature of the landscape. With Cum Haebraeorum malitia a few days later (February 28) he even forbade the reading of the Talmud [1]. It is alleged that Clement VIII's reference to the "blind (Latin: caeca) obstinacy" of the Jews gave rise to the religious slur "kike", though many etymologies dispute this.

(For me is clear that the prototype of the occult Mussolini's and Hitler's policies have the source in Clement VIII.)

What are the links among the appeasement with France, the firm condemnation of Jews and the Counter Reformation war? In the renaissance Rome reached its maximum as regard the visible and not hidden corruption, paganism and sin. The true pagan essence of Roman Catholic church was exhibited from day to day with more arrogance. The Saturnalia bloodlines controlling the army of Romanist soldier/priests maybe thought to have the victory in the hands and were sure about a full coming back of the good old pagan Roman empire, without 'Christian' masques. All that was fuel for the Reformation machine. A fuel that had to be denied to the Protestant enemy. So Rome had to start a strong changing in his (apparent and public) nature, subtractinig from the adversay (Sun Tzu!!!) field vital elements of legitimacy for the Reform:

".....Reconciliation with France

The most remarkable event of Clement VIII's reign was the reconciliation to the Church of Henry IV of France (1589–1610), after long negotiations, carried on with great dexterity through Cardinal Arnaud d'Ossat, that resolved the complicated situation in France. Henry embraced Catholicism on July 25, 1593. After a pause to assess Henry IV's sincerity, Clement VIII braved Spanish displeasure, and in the autumn of 1595 he solemnly absolved Henry IV, thus putting an end to the thirty years' religious war in France and winning a powerful ally....." --- it is clear that the smell of all the Huguenot/Protestant corpses murdered twnty years before was still in the air:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/St._Bartholom...7s_Day_massacre

> QUOTE
>
> The St. Bartholomew's Day massacre (Massacre de la Saint-Barthélemy in French) was a wave of Roman Catholic mob violence against the Huguenots (French Calvinist Protestants), during the French Wars of Religion. Traditionally believed to have been instigated by Catherine de' Medici, the mother of King Charles IX, the massacre took place six days after the wedding of the king's sister to the Protestant Henry III of Navarre (the future Henry IV). This was an occasion for which many of the most wealthy and prominent Huguenots had gathered in largely Catholic Paris. Events began two days after the attempted assassination of Admiral Gaspard de Coligny, a Huguenot military leader. Starting on 24 August 1572 (the feast of Bartholomew the Apostle) with the murder of Coligny, the massacres spread throughout Paris, and later to other cities and the countryside, lasting for several months.

(where else did you encoutern another Medici killing-prostitute? In the Orsini castle of Bracciano - see a previous message).

Or see the farmer the Saturnalia and Jesuits putted on the Romanist throne as pope:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Sixtus_V

> QUOTE
>
> Pope Sixtus V (December 13, 1521 – August 27, 1590), born Felice Peretti di Montalto, was Pope from 1585 to 1590.
>
> Felice Peretti was born at Grottammare, in the Marche, son of Piergentile di Giacomo, nicknamed "Peretto", and Marianna da Frontillo. He took the surname "Peretti" in 1551 and was more generally known as "di Montalto"[1]. He was reared in poverty; born in a shanty so ill thached that the sun shone through the roof he later jested that he was "nato di casa illustre"-- born of an illustrious house. His father was a gardener and it is said of Felice that, when a boy, he was a swineherd.
>
> According to Andrija Zmajevi•'s chronicle[2], his father originated from the Bay of Kotor (modern-day Montenegro) and was born in Bjelske Kruševice, a village near Bijela, into the Šiši• family, possibly called Slavjan. The theory that he comes from the Svilanovi• family is unfounded. As a child, he served in a Catholic monastery in Kotor, where he converted from Serbian Orthodoxy to Roman Catholicism and was subsequently taken to Italy by an Italian friar. He settled in Ancona, where he married and had Felice Peretti (Sre•ko Peri• in modern Serbo-Croat). Not much else is recorded about Peretti's father, but when Felice eventually became Pope Sixtus V, he rebuilt the church of Saint Jerome in Rome (finished in 1589), to be used specifically for the people who spoke the Illyrian language. He also established a college of eleven Slavonic clerics in his papal bull Sapientiam Sanctorum of August 1, 1589. This was later transformed into the Pontifical Croatian College of St. Jerome
> .....etc.

This is usually called: "public image policy". The modern political electoral campaing invented nothin. Note the smell of Romanist ecumenism iniside the "Slavic and Orthodox origins". At those times the Balkans, with the Primoz Trubar of Slovenia, the Vlacic of Croatia and the many Italian Veneti of the Istrian and Dalmatian coasts, was a true pot of anti-Romanist and Lutheran movements. Rome keenly surrounded the problem shoving an appeasant face with the Orthodox heresy, which then coverd her left butcher hand when she wiped away the Protestantism from North Adriatic and Balkan regions (see my post in my blog - if you want to deepen:
"Re-Building (With Ethnical Genocides) A Virginity For Rome In The North Adriatic Regions" http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...-genocides.html
)

But the most important point is the Talmudic point. It is clear that the Clement VIII was anti-semite as Rome, the Prostitute, tried to appease with the cursed Lutherans via a third tool, the "Jewish evilness and corruption". Starting again to put the attention of the Jewry, Rome dragged the attention away from her paganism and satanism. And 'offered' to the Protestant enemy a 'neutral' field (the Jewish 'evilness') where to make a 'peaceful' encounter ('ecumenism'). A part that every attempt of Rome to dialogue with the enemies and adversary had, has and ever will have only one secret goal: to confuse and calm down the enemy before the sudden attack (see the false ecumenic climate before the Massacre of the saint Bartholomew). What matters here is to notice the contemporary appearance (dozens of years before or later) of the allegedly to Luther attributed anti-Semite booklets and the Clement VIII renewing of the anti-Talmudic and anti-Jewish theological (and material) campaign. The attempt to "submit all the world thanks to a third enemy" today summoned by the anti-Islamic-terrorism war of George Bush & CIA/Mossad had a very illostrious ancestor, the "War on Talmud" of Rome with which to drag behind herself the true enemies (as the true hard-to-die Talmudists in the world are nested in the Vatican city - Jews are only amateurish in comparison).

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Avles - January 1, 2009 02:31 PM (GMT)

THE CONSTANTINIAN ARCH, THE ONE-WAY GATEWAY TO HELL

.....BUILT BY THE ITALIAN 'NOBLE' FAMILIES FOR THE SAKE OF THEIR ROMANIST MASTERS

QUOTE (Avles @ Dec 31 2008, 08:26 PM)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Dec 31 2008, 08:21 AM)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

ALDOBRANDINI, BORGHESE AND PAMFILI

GENEALOGIES

[dohtml]
<img src="http://i247.photobucket.com/albums/gg145/2tuff2006/079.jpg" height="252" width="412">
[/dohtml]
Please click picture to expand.
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

References with the other very important Saturnalia families of the Apenine Peninsula - family BORGHESE:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/House_of_Borghese

QUOTE

Borghese is the surname of a family of Italian noble and papal background, originating in Siena as the Borghese or Borghesi, where they came to prominence in the 13th century holding official offices under the commune. The head of the family, Marcantonio I moved to Rome in the 16th century and there, following the election (1605) of his son Camillo Borghese as Pope Paul V who was an unabashed nepotist, they rose in power and wealth.
.....
The head of the family, Marcantonio I, moved to Rome in 1541 and this Sienese family rapidly gained access to Roman society, culminating in the election (1605) of Marcantonio I's son Camillo Borghese as Pope Paul V. Paul V was an unabashed nepotist, naming his brother Francesco (1556-1620) duke of Rignano and general of the papal army, his other brother Giambattista (1554-1609) governor of the Borgo and castellan of Castel Sant'Angelo,
.....

JUNIO VALERIO BORGHESE

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Junio_Valerio_Borghese

> QUOTE
>
> .....In 1942, Borghese took command of the elite naval sabotage unit of the Italian Navy, which included surface assault craft, human torpedoes, midget submarines and SCUBA assault swimmers. This unit, known as the Decima Flottiglia MAS ("10th Assault Vehicle Flotilla"), or Xª MAS with roman numerals, saw active service in the Mediterranean and pioneered new techniques of commando assault warfare.
> .....
> Following the armistice of Italy on September 8, 1943, the Xª MAS was disbanded, and some of its sailors joined the Allied cause to fight against Germany and what remained of the Axis. Borghese chose to serve the fascist Italian Social Republic, Nazi Germany's allied state in northern Italy, and to continue fighting alongside the German armed forces.
>
> On September 12, 1943 he signed a treaty of alliance with the German Navy. Many of his colleagues volunteered to serve with him, and the Decima Flottiglia was revived, headquartered in the Palazzo Fantoni in Salò. By the end of the war, it had over 18,000 members, and although Borghese conceived it as a purely military unit, it gained a reputation as a savage pro-fascist, anti-communist, anti-resistance force in land campaigns alongside the German Army, under the command of SS General Karl Wolff.
>
> At the end of the war Borghese was arrested by partisans, but rescued by OSS officer James Angleton, who dressed him up in an American uniform and drove him to Rome for interrogation by the Allies. Borghese was tried and convicted of war crimes, sentenced to 12 years imprisonment, but released from jail by the Italian Supreme Court in 1949.....

COUPE D'ETAT JUNIO VALERIO BORGHESE

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Golpe_Borghese

> QUOTE
>
> The Golpe Borghese was, allegedly, a failed Italian coup d'état that was planned to take place in the night of 7 on 8 December, 1970. It is named after Junio Valerio Borghese, an Italian World War II commander of the notorious Xª MAS unit, the "Black Prince", convicted for war crimes, but a hero in the eyes of many post-War Italian fascists. The "coup" attempt became publicly known when the left-wing journal "Paese Sera" titled, on the evening of March 18, 1971 : Eversive plan against the Republic, discovered far-right plan.
>
> The secret operation was code-named 'Operation Tora Tora' after the Japanese attack on the US ships in Pearl Harbour which had led the United States to enter the Second World War on December 7, 1941. The plan of the coup in its final phase envisaged the involvement of US and NATO warships which were on alert in the Mediterranean.
> .....

Keep in mind that all the strategy of the tension of which the Borghese attempt was part:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Strategy_of_tension
....was only a staged climate of subversion in order to to arise the fear of a sudden classical coupe d'etat in the Italian population. The true coupe d'etat was and IS totally different, it is slower than a classical bloody one (a-la-Pinochet) and is realized also with the collaboration of the same anti-Fascist and anti-coupe forces as the nowadays 'opposition' leftist forces. Just in these days the coupe has been completed. The goal of the coupe is the restoration of the Pontificial reign in the peninsula and sees as first military pillar of it the totalitarian control of the country by the religious army of the Carabineers. In this month practically all the political forces went totally discredited and disreputed by scandals and acts of corruptions. The Constantinian Order Berlusconi government realized the goals of the divine emperor, with some governative measures purportedly created in order to supply the Vatican the opportunity to heavily enter in the inner Italian political affair. Remember the purportedly Fascist and Nazi laws to take fingerprints to gypsies last summer, a law that was ordered directly by the Vatican to Berlusconi's coalition in order to have then the opportunity to 'cry' from the Roman Catholic magazinez 'against the Fascist government' and to present the Roman Catholic power in Italy as the ONLY opposition to an 'oppressive' governement. The problem is that the goverment (and opposition) is TOTALLY made up by knights and butlers of the criminal state of the Vatican and of his pagan anti-Crhistian Romanist sect. See the Vatican that "refuses to accept Italian laws" - as you can see the Jesuits plot of XVIII century are still alive and in full health!!!

http://www.ansa.it/site/notizie/awnplus/en..._131168190.html

> QUOTE
>
> 2008-12-31 12:06
> Vatican divorces Italian laws
> They are too numerous and unstable, Holy See says
> (ANSA) - Vatican City, December 30 - The Vatican will no longer automatically adopt Italian laws as its own when a new statute comes into effect on Thursday, according to Vatican daily Osservatore Romano.
>
> Jose' Maria Serrano Ruiz, president of the Commission for the Revision of the Code of Vatican Law, said the move was motivated by the "exorbitant number" of Italian laws, as well as their "instability" and frequent contrast with "the irreversible principles of the Church".
> .....(continue for yourself)

If you have time at disposition and are interested to deepen, see also:
http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...showtopic=27169
http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...-commander.html
http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...and-jesuit.html

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

I quoted again my previous message. What I am going to say is not strictly linked with the matter of this thread, but as it provoked my thoughts, I think this is the best place where to expose the probable connections of the Novo Ordo Seclorum involving these decayed anti-Christian 'noble' families.

The very important point on which to build the centre of the understanding is the important issue of Benedict XVI, of Tuesday 30th Dec, but issued to the public the day 31st Dec, the last day of the year. Let's see the integral issue (ANSA agency):

http://www.ansa.it/site/notizie/awnplus/en..._131168190.html

QUOTE

2008-12-31 12:06
Vatican divorces Italian laws

They are too numerous and unstable, Holy See says

(ANSA) - Vatican City,
December 30 - The Vatican will no longer automatically adopt Italian laws as its own when a new statute comes into effect on Thursday, according to Vatican daily Osservatore Romano.

Jose' Maria Serrano Ruiz, president of the Commission for the Revision of the Code of Vatican Law, said the move was motivated by the "exorbitant number" of Italian laws, as well as their "instability" and frequent contrast with "the irreversible principles of the Church".

Although the Vatican is an independent city-state, its residents are largely recognised as Italian citizens.

Under the current statute signed by Pope Piux XI in 1929, Italian laws are accepted by the Holy See except in cases where there is "radical incompatibility" with the basic principles of canon law, Ruiz said.

But the new statute signed by Pope Benedict XVI will mean all Italian laws will have to be examined by Vatican authorities before they are adopted as part of the city-state's own legislation.

Italian Parliament Relations Minister Elio Vito said Wednesday that he agreed "from a technical point of view" with some of the criticism published in Osservatore Romano.

"There's no doubt that there are too many laws, they are often written badly and they are sometimes not very understandable," he said.

But he pointed out that Simplification Minister Roberto Calderoli has been working to cut more than 36,000 laws, most of which were passed before Italy's Constitution went into effect in 1948, from the Italian code.

Vito added that an ad hoc committee in the Chamber of Deputies was at work to eliminate "those mysterious references and paragraphs and articles with which everyone has come unstuck at least once", while the government also plans to publish laws online to improve accessibility.

Opposition Democratic Party Senator Giorgio Tonini meanwhile leapt to the defence of Italian law in daily newspaper La Stampa, expressing surprise at what he described as the Vatican's "peremptory failing" of the democratic Italian system. "Parliament produces laws based on the changeable course of public opinion, there is a continuous political discussion and the general vision changes according to whether the centre-right or centre-left are in power," he said.

The Vatican's new statute also states that the Holy See will scrutinize international treatises before deciding whether to sanction "the explicit admission of conformity of the Holy See" - a measure that has been implicit in the past.

The move comes in the wake of a flap over a French proposal that the United Nations approve a declaration decriminalising homosexuality, which was backed by Italy but which the Vatican partly condemned, enraging gay rights groups.

The Vatican delegation at the UN urged countries around the world to decriminalise homosexuality but criticised the wording of the proposal, saying it went too far in an attempt to place different sexual orientations on the same level.

Photo: Pope Benedict XVI.

And now please, let's see again an above excerpt:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Clement_XIII

QUOTE

.....
To the arrêt of August 2, 1762, by which the Parlement suppressed the Jesuits in France, imposing untenable conditions on any wishing to remain in the country, Clement XIII replied by a protest against the invasion of the Church's rights, and annulled the arrêts. Louis XV's ministers could not permit such an abrogation of French law, and the King finally expelled the Jesuits in November 1764.....

So the popes (=the Jesuits & Saturnalia puppetmen) can abroge and delete any secular law belonging to any secular power of this planet (read: of the universality aka catho-universe). Doens't smell the recent papal issue of these 30/31 Dec 2008 of the same 'papal supremacy' stench of the August 2, 1762? But there's nothing that doesn't fit as the pope is the divine emperor or Rome and Rome has the command on the planet Earth.

But now the actual consideration, then the important historical considerations.

"..Parliament produces laws based on the changeable course of public opinion, there is a continuous political discussion and the general vision changes according to whether the centre-right or centre-left are in power,".....said Opposition Democratic Party Senator Giorgio Tonini : it is clear: after the Romish-Jesuit-Masonic power destroyed from inside all the secular instituions, with the purpose to throw against them the rage and hate of the same population those institutions claims to represents (just only see the Constantinian order knight Silvio Berlusconi and the trustful to the Jesuit family Veltroni... or the the Jesuit trained head of Italian intelligence De Gennaro, the executioner and assassin of demonstrants in G8 summit of 2001, or the Jesuit trained head of Italian Central Bank, the Mario Draghi financial criminal...), now the Jesuits are starting - to demolish also the APPEARANCE of secular power, a clash among the secular power and the theological Romanist power which has automatically on his side the (ignorant) popular support, as everyone in Italy consider the secular politicians no more or less than criminal. This is the reason of tha bold underlined lines, as they had the goal to instigate and provoke MORE rage and hate towards the disreputed secular institutions.

Opposition Democratic Party Senator Giorgio Tonini pronounced that sentence, obeying to his Masonic and idedological fidelity, just because they are by everyone considered false. Isn't the Black Lord of the Lies their god?

But let's return to the Saturnalia noble families and related symbology. So why they chose the last two days of December the time to put in the mouth of their divine scarecrow in Vatican those sentences? Look at this picture, a military propaganda sign of Junio Valerio Borghese X MAS army :

user posted image

Then in the 1970 you had an attempt of Golpe by the same Junio Valerio Borghese former commander of X MAS army. The Golpe was part of the "strategy of the Tension" operations of Vatican in Italy. This Golpe drags also our attention on a Vatican character which acquired much importance in early '90, the today Constantinian Order knight Silvio Berlusconi. Silvio is obviously linked with the Strategy of the Tension italian subversive psy-op. The pagan Saturnalian guy is linked through the P2 organization, another staged organization that had the task to put in your head the wrong direction, the wrong actualization and the wrong goals of a Golpe.

Trustful 'noble' papal zouave - with the uniform of X M.A.S. - 'prince' Junio Valerio Borghese:

user posted image

It is not strange that the 'secret' list of members went discovered in a theatrical way in early '80, giving to them the best echoes, strenghtened with the Calvi's murder and the usual voices about a "Vatican involvemente": the real goals of all those thaterical coup-de-theatre was to make people think that the "church is -yes- corrupted an friend of mafiosi, but NOT the FIRST responsible of what is happening, being the church always in a SUBMITTED role respect Mafia, Capitalism, Fascism, etc.".

Silvio Berlusconi was the Identity document N°
1816 member of P2 subversive papal organization:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Propaganda_Due

QUOTE

Propaganda Due or P2 was a Masonic lodge operating under the jurisdiction of the Grand Orient of Italy from 1877 to 1976 (when its charter was withdrawn), and a pseudo-Masonic or "black" or "covert" lodge operating illegally from 1976 to 1981. During the 1980s, when the lodge was headed by Licio Gelli, P2 was implicated in numerous Italian crimes and mysteries, including the nationwide bribe scandal Tangentopoli, the collapse of the Vatican-affiliated Banco Ambrosiano, and the murders of journalist Mino Pecorelli and banker Roberto Calvi. P2 came to light through the investigations into the collapse of Michele Sindona's financial empire.[1]

Receipt for membership of Silvio Berlusconi to "Propaganda Due" (P2) masonic lodge (From Wikipedia on Silvio):

A.·.G.·.D.·.G.·.A.·.D.·.U.·.

28 MAG. 19

R.·. L.·. Propaganda 2 № 104

Si riceve dal BERLUSCONI Silvio

la somma di Lire 100000 #

(centomila) per

Quota sociale anno 1978 £. 50000

Iniziazione £. 50000

Passaggio Grado £.

£.

£.

TOTALE £. 100000

lì 26 gennaio 1978

Il Tesoriere Il Segr. Amm.vo

P2 was sometimes referred to as a "state within a state"[2] or a "shadow government".[3] The lodge had among its members prominent journalists, parliamentarians, industrialists, and military leaders -- including the then-future Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi; the Savoy pretender to the Italian throne Victor Emmanuel; and the heads of all three Italian intelligence services.
.....etc.

So we have here the symbolic presence of a "X" and a "P", a "P" which claims to be the "second" one respect one before. Forget for a moment the previous "P" organization of which p2 should be the daughter. I think you have understood what I have in mind: the Constantine sign. The Chi Rho sign appeared in a dream to the emperor (a matter present just many times in this site):
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Constantine_I...ainst_Maxentius

Saturnalia brootherhod and Jesuits loves to spread the pieces of puzzles of their Novo Ordo Seclorum on the stage of the world events, hidden by disguising symbols and signs. Maybe the number 2 of P2 is alluding just to a second coming of the "sign" (plan) "X+P"? You perfectly know the belonging of Silvio Berlusconi to the Constantine order knighthood serving the Prostitute of Rome. The right wing coalition 'won' the elections last April in the sign of the COnstantine order/sign. Read again the final part of my message in my blog:

http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...and-jesuit.html

Sunday, September 07, 2008
The Constantinian Opus Dei Silvio Berlusconi and the Jesuit-Camorra Crisis of the Naples Garbage: NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL (EUROPEAN) IMPLICATIONS

QUOTE

The final electoral meeting before the national elections of 13th and 14th April 2008, was held on 10th April by the centre-right coalition which won the electoral race (SilviOpus BerlusDei + National Alliance of Gianfranco Fini + North League of Umberto Bossi), and precisely with the Constantine Arch in the back and near the Coliseum :
http://www.repubblica.it/2008/04/sezioni/p...zio-finale.html
"10th April 2008 - La Repubblica daily - article by Claudia Fusani:
.....
....It doesn't matter how many people would arrive, and what "He" will say and what the people joined along this archeological walk, at the basis of the Palatino hills and then all along the road would heard from him. What matters is that Berlusconi is going to walk on this stage and that the scenery putted it just at the basis of the Arch; what matters is that the round white-blue logo "People of the Freedom - Berlusconi president" has the same diameter of the Arch and that in the perspective the Arch is becoming the natural frame of the stage and of the symbol. What matters is that Berlusconi this evening in Rome will celebrate his triumph. At least three days before the response of the urn.....".
(Among the many posts I never sent, there's one inquiring the possible manipulation/engineering of the Italian elections) or see the image at the address:

http://farm4.static.flickr.com/3097/241086..._a6670d3811.jpg?

And now we are arriving to the link with the 'temporal' power of the popes, the 'noble' pagan blood giving reason of existence to the Prostitute of Rome, the Constantinian order and historical figure as the centre of 'organization' for all this 'noble' blood. The key to understand that is just the issue of the pope of last evening, publicized JUST the last day of this sad 2008. Why?
The last day of the year has been dedicated by the Romanist cult to the figure of saint Silvester - New Year's Eve, Saint Silvester's feast day (usual Wikipedia on names and terms). Again a previous quote:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Donation_of_Constantine

QUOTE

Pope Sylvester I was pope from January 31, 314 to December 31, 335, succeeding Pope Miltiades

.....

Purportedly issued by the fourth century Roman Emperor Constantine I, the Donation grants Pope Sylvester I and his successors, as inheritors of St. Peter, dominion over lands in Judea, Greece, Asia, Thrace, Africa, as well as the city of Rome, with Italy and the entire Western Roman Empire, while Constantine would retain imperial authority in the Eastern Roman Empire from his new imperial capital of Constantinople. The text claims that the Donation was Constantine's gift to Sylvester for instructing him in the Christian faith, baptizing him and miraculously curing him of leprosy.

.....

>>>>> (! ! ! ! !) It has been suggested that an early draft was made shortly after the middle of the eighth century in order to assist Pope Stephen II in his negotiations with Pepin the Short, the Frankish Mayor of the Palace. In 754, Pope Stephen II crossed the Alps to anoint Pepin king, thereby enabling the Carolingian family to supplant the old Merovingian royal line. In return for Stephen's support, Pepin apparently gave the Pope the lands in Italy which the Lombards had taken from the Byzantine Empire. These lands would become the Papal States and would be the basis of the Papacy's secular power for the next eleven centuries. (! ! ! ! !)
.....

"from the Byzantine Empire.....", and they continue to submerge us with the holy st of the "Charlemagne 'Christian' emperor" etc.!! The ancestor of all these 'noble' families! What a bloody farce! Billions of lies teached from the banks of school to the brainwash institute called "universities", hearing the bloody lies of Roman Catholic Masons!!! As the Muslim, Charlemagne & C. were used to unify Europe NOT in the sign of the Christendom, but to destroy ANY kind of different (read: even if for a micron this means a MORE trustful version of-) Christendom. Starting (with the help of Muslims whose presence near the Roman coasts gave the alibi for a quick encrowning of the Saturnalia Charlemagne as emperor) with the 1,000 year lasting Balkan crusade to end with the COunter Reformation war in Europe!!! But on that another time.

The bloody criminal clown theatre of the Strategy of the Tension, the attempts of Golpes, the Carabineers coupe, the Constantinian order knighthood circus in Italy are nothing else than the hallucinogenic smokes hiding the n-repeat of the Constantinian creation of the bloody Roman Catholic 'Christian' church - a low theatre with bloody criminal material effects called "Novo Ordo Seclorum" - something that in the Apenine Peninsula HAS JUST restored the Pontificial reign. All that palaces, buildings, castles are talking of the presence and of the unavoidable sustain of those bloody 'noble' Italian families in the restoration of the Feudal world in Italy, in Europe, in all the world. The mission of COnstantine knight Berlusconi is the one among the most crucial and difficult, the staged role of the 'sparring partner' of the Jesuits, he has to supply to their Romanist church the opportunity to return in the secular world as a pure totalitarian, feudal, pagan and satanist power with no other forms of control over him than the one of his bloody Lord, Lucifer. This is the reason for which the electoral campaing - of which the result has been established in advance - has been held in the sign of Constantine. Because now, for the n-time, the 'Constantine' of today, the Vatican actor Silvio Berlusconi, has to 'donate' to his master, the divine emperor-the pope, the full supremacy on the secular powers, the same secular and temporal powers of which Rome, in the last two centuries, with a keen plan, dragged away from herself. With the vital(letal) helps of the Aldobrandi-Borghese-Pamfili families.

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

craig-oxley - January 2, 2009 06:53 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

REMIND YOU OF THIS?

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

Avles - January 2, 2009 04:25 PM (GMT)

....REMIND OF WHAT?!

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Dec 30 2008, 01:29 AM)

QUOTE

ALDOBRANDINI

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aldobrandini

This has got to be one of the most powerful and richest families of the world:

The surname literally translates to Satan, after you figure out the riddle.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aldebaran
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aldobrandini_Madonna

Because Aldebaran is the morning star and falling angel. Why would they have a name like this and be POPES. They are Satanists, PERIOD!
I have eaten many dinners in their palace in Frascati, Italy close to Rome in the Castelli Romani hills.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Villa_Aldobrandini

QUOTE

These people have the big massive orgies. We know that Stanley Kubrick was present at this Castle for many orgies. He got the inspiration of Eyes Wide Shut there. There is a portait of Kubrick inside the main hall with his autograph giving thanks to the Aldobrandini family for supporting his films.

Aldobrandini = Al Debaran

They have an Egyptian lineage from Ptolemy Egypt. There name is Arabic, which means they are also Moorish converts to Catholicism, but came from Egypt as well they married into the Venetian Este Family

Theres a lodge called Al-dabaran.

According to xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx it is to pat respect to Taurus. Have you ever wondered WHY, picasso did all of those orgy paintings with Taurus as giving orgies to many women. It is not only because Picasso was funded by the Aldobrandini's, he had many orgies in Rome.

The Taurus is Picasso's paintings is the POPE!

Picasso is a Jesuit as well. A Co-Adjutor

http://www.martinries.com/article1972-73PP.htm

QUOTE

Aldobrandini's, who are the distant cousins of the Breakspear's.

I am not going to betray xxxxxxxxxxxxxxx, but if you want to see Tsarion & Maxwell go Ballistic. go for the Aldobrandini's, who are the Nephilim.

He is always going-on about the Nephilim, so give him the Nephilim

"because ONE evil pope just happened to have that surname, does not mean diddly pal. that is like saying everyone who has the surname clinton has had blowjob in the oval office."* -Michael Tsarion

THEN HOW YOU DO EXPLAIN OTHER EVIL BLOODTHIRSTY POPES WITH OTHER SATANIC NAMES:

user posted image

(Kubrick, 2001: A Space Odyssey, Bracciano castle, Eyes Wide Shut)

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

CommanderKeen - February 3, 2009 12:01 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Dec 30 2008, 07:11 AM)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Villa Aldobrandini in Frascati

Villa was built by a Cardinal in the 1500s. His family still owns the estate.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
[b]1598-1603: The cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini (1572-1621) orders to a pupil of Michelangelo, Giacomo della Porta, the construction of his summer residence: Villa Aldobrandini.

1599: Completion by Giusto (or Justus) Utens upon orders from the grand-duke Fernandino I of fourteen painted glasses intended for his villa Ferdinanda d' Artiminio, on Montalbano, built by Bernardo Buontalenti and representing the villas built for various members of the Medici family between 1451 and 1599. These paintings, unique testimonies on the art of the gardens, are today in Museo Storico Topografico in Florence.

1605: Construction of Villa Borghese, in the year when Camillo Borghese is elected pope (Paul V).

I just found out, Friscati has a sister town in Germany, and its Bad Godesberg.
Seat of the famous Jesuit College, Aloisiuskolleg.(metioned here before by Thomas, I cant find the thread anymore)
Also Bad Godesberg is a district of the former west-Germany capital Bonn and in past many embassys were situated there.
Bad Godesberg was one of the most favourite cities of Adolf Hitler, he has been there about 50 times.
Also Bad Godesberg was a favored place for many meetings of the DGAP, the German CFR/RIIA sister. There would be much more I guess when you dig a little bit further, but its very interesting that they just chose this city to be their twin city.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Frascati
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bad_Godesberg

CommanderKeen - February 3, 2009 12:25 PM (GMT)

Actually theres a whole system of (5) twin towns (Bad Godesberg, Frascati, Windsor, Saint-Cloud and Kortrijk), all towns beeing twins again to each other, and all obviously power HQs:

Frascati:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Frascati

* Germany Bad Godesberg, Germany
* France Saint-Cloud, France
* Belgium Kortrijk, Belgium
* United Kingdom Windsor and Maidenhead, United Kingdom.

Bad Godesberg
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bad_Godesberg

* France Saint-Cloud in France (since 1957)
* Italy Frascati in Italy (since 1960)
* United Kingdom Windsor and Maidenhead in the United Kingdom (since 1960)
* Belgium Kortrijk in Belgium (since 1964).
* Turkey Yalova in Turkey (since 1989)

Windsor:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Windsor_and_Maidenhead

* France Neuilly-sur-Seine, France - established 1955 with Royal Borough of New Windsor.
* France Saint-Cloud, France - established 1957 with Maidenhead.
* Germany Bad Godesberg, Germany - established 1960 with Maidenhead.
* Germany Goslar, Germany - established 1969 with Royal Borough of New Windsor.
*Italy Frascati, Italy - established 1972 with Maidenhead.
* Belgium Kortrijk, Belgium - established 1981 with Royal Borough of Windsor and Maidenhead.

Saint-Cloud:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Saint-Cloud

* Italy - Frascati, Italy
* Germany - Bad Godesberg, Germany
* Belgium - Kortrijk, Belgium
* United Kingdom - Windsor and Maidenhead, United Kingdom

Kortrijk:
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Kortrijk

* Germany Bad Godesberg, Germany (1964)
* Italy Frascati, Italy
* United States Greenville, South Carolina, USA
* Pakistan Lahore, Pakistan
* France Saint-Cloud, France
* United Kingdom Windsor and Maidenhead, United Kingdom

Avles - February 15, 2009 09:00 AM (GMT)

(of course this is the right thread to expose Picasso! - My error, sending the message in the Maximus family thread, was caused by the news of another exposition of Picasso works in Tuscany)

Its not strange that from 10th Oct 2008 to 8th Oct 2009.....

(why 8th Febr? go and see my post (if you have time) of Feb 17 2008, 09:26 AM in the second page of the thread " VATICAN PLOT TO DESTROY ITALIAN GOVERNMENT!!":
http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...pic=42056&st=0& = "CONFIRMATIONS, CONFIRMATIONS AND AGAIN CONFIRMATIONS…..")

.....you have, in a planned coordination with the recent war in Gaza, an exposition, an "anti-war" exposition with works of PICASSO:

http://www.voxita.com/2008/09/picasso-in-m...-museo-del.html

...in the above URL a short description of the exhibition of his visual works.....

http://www.vaccari.it/vnews/index.php?_id=6362

....and above the description of mails etc. he sent to friends etc. when he was opposing to Franco. But Picasso was a Stalinist, he joined the Communist party, and this is the reason for which, during the Nazi occupation of Paris, the Nazi authorities let him to remain in city, "only forbidding the exhibition of his works" (!!!!):

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pablo_Picasso

> QUOTE
>
> During the Second World War, Picasso remained in Paris while the Germans occupied the city. Picasso's artistic style did not fit the Nazi views of art, so he was not able to show his works during this time. Retreating to his studio, he continued to paint all the while. Although the Germans outlawed bronze casting in Paris, Picasso continued regardless, using bronze smuggled to him by the French resistance.

Picasso-Aldobrandini:

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...?showtopic=6005

> QUOTE
>
> These people have the big massive orgies. We know that Stanley Kubrick was present at this Castle for many orgies. He got the inspiration of Eyes Wide Shut there. There is a portait of Kubrick inside the main hall with his autograph giving thanks to the Aldobrandini family for supporting his films.
>
> Aldobrandini = Al Debaran
>
> They have an Egyptian lineage from Ptolemy Egypt. There name is Arabic, which means they are also Moorish converts to Catholicism, but came from Egypt as well they married into the Venetian Este Family
>
> Theres a lodge called Al-dabaran.
>
> According to xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx it is to pat respect to Taurus. Have you ever wondered WHY, picasso did all of those orgy paintings with Taurus as giving orgies to many women. It is not only because Picasso was funded by the Aldobrandini's, he had many orgies in Rome.
>
> The Taurus is Picasso's paintings is the POPE!
>
> Picasso is a Jesuit as well. A Co-Adjutor

I forgot: the museum is the Vittoriano museum, just behind this monument:

Best regards etc...

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

craig-oxley - May 28, 2009 05:29 PM (GMT)

The hidden hand behind the UN & UCC
Rome and the Villa Aldobrandini in Rome

The International Institute for the Unification of Private Law (UNIDROIT) was orginally called "The International Institute for the Unification of Private Law of Rome" This is the institue that developed the UCC [Uniform Commercial Code] & also developed the orginal drafts of UN commerical law.

My Webpage

The International Institute for the Unification of Private Law (UNIDROIT) is an independent intergovernmental organisation with its seat in the Villa Aldobrandini in Rome. Its purpose is to study needs and methods for modernising, harmonising and co-ordinating private and in particular commercial law as between States and groups of States.

The word "seat" is important to note. The term "see" comes from the Latin word "sedes", meaning "seat", which refers to the Episcopal throne.

Set up in 1926 as an auxiliary organ of the League of Nations, the Institute was, following the demise of the League, re-established in 1940 on the basis of a multilateral agreement, the UNIDROIT Statute .

These are the building overlooking the whole valley up to Rome, it was built on the order of Cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini, Pope Clement VIII's nephew over a pre-existing edifice built by the Vatican prelate Alessandro Rufini in 1550. Pietro Aldobrandini was the "CamerLengo", the treasurer of the Holy See. Interesting that the villa built by a holy see treasurer is used to draft commersial law for the UN

[URL=http://books.google.com.au/books?id=-mq ... t&resnum=2]My Webpage[/URL]

ACHIEVEMENTS

UNIDROIT has over the years prepared over seventy studies and drafts. Many of these have resulted in international instruments, including the following international Conventions and Model Laws, drawn up by UNIDROIT and - in the case of Conventions - adopted by diplomatic Conferences convened by member States of UNIDROIT:

1964 Convention relating to a Uniform Law on the Formation of Contracts for the International Sale of Goods (The Hague);
1964 Convention relating to a Uniform Law on the International Sale of Goods (The Hague);

1970 International Convention on the Travel Contract (Brussels);

1973 Convention providing a Uniform Law on the Form of an International Will (Washington);

1983 Convention on Agency in the International Sale of Goods (Geneva);

1988 UNIDROIT Convention on International Financial Leasing (Ottawa);

1988 UNIDROIT Convention on International Factoring (Ottawa);

1995 UNIDROIT Convention on Stolen or Illegally Exported Cultural Objects (Rome);

2001 Convention on International Interests in Mobile Equipment and Protocol to the Convention on Matters specific to Aircraft Equipment(Cape Town);

2002 Model Franchise Disclosure Law ;

2007 Luxembourg Protocol on Matters specific to Railway Rolling Stock to the 2001 Convention on International Interests in Mobile Equipment.

This is the hidden link to the UNIDROIT libary
http://asp01.exl.de/F

And this a search of the libary showing the UCC connection to UNIDROIT & the Holy See http://asp01.exl.de/F/L3VVLPIUMDPP4CRS3 ... 1&x=44&y=6

Now for the smoking gun...

http://www.uncitral.org/uncitral/en/index.html

The United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL) (established in 1966) is a subsidiary body of the General Assembly of the United Nations with the general mandate to further the progressive harmonization and unification of the law of international trade.

After a bit of digging we discover in a scan of a meeting at UN Headquarters, New York on Tuesday, 1 March 1955, at 11.15 a.m.
Go to page 3
http://www.uncitral.org/pdf/english/tra ... 507218.pdf

The Secretariat would make relevant documentation available in addition to that before the Commitee, In particular the ICC publication Commerical Arbitration & the Law throughout the World; and the DRAFT Uniform law on arbitration prepared by International Institute for the Unification of Private Law of Rome,

"draft" is a written order for the payment of a specified sum of money, & UNIDROIT [Holy See] wrote the order for the UN

Australia is a member of UNCITRAL & the laws are used as a guide to redraft australian commerical law. Below is a link to australian "ACT"s & you will discover 100's of references to UNCITRAL in australian law

http://www.austlii.edu.au/cgi-bin/sinos ... mask_path=

ps. adam can you please change the session times until user is auto logged out of the forum, i've just lost a longer draft of this post. For posts like this you need more than 30 mins. cheers.

hope it helps.

craig-oxley - August 14, 2009 04:54 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]Remember folks we stem from the Lyrian star system
before it's destruction (similar to the Saturnalian
'Superman' stories of Planet Krypton).

Take note of the song below from the Rolling Stones called
'2000 Light Years from Home'

The AL-DEBARAN

The BULL'S EYE

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="344"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/tIGdWzXhqlo&hl=en&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/tIGdWzXhqlo&hl=en&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="425" height="344"></embed></object>[/dohtml]
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tIGdWzXhqlo

'Their Satanic Majesties Request'

Note this was the 6th album and its Satanic with a picture of Satan himself

THE PLANET SATURN

Is that a persian temple I wonder?
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
To introduce new cults and continue to boost those already functioning which includes rock "music" gangsters such as the filthy, degenerate Mick Jagger's "Rolling Stones" (a gangster group much favored by European Black Nobility) and all of the Tavistock-created "rock" groups which began with "The Beatles." To continue to build up the cult of Christian fundamentalism begun by the British East India Company's servant, Darby -John Coleman
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Theres the TAU the bright star of AL DEBERAN

"THE SACRED GATE"

TAU being tied to the

AGE OF TAURUS IN THE PRECESSION OF THE EQUINOXES

Notice that Five pointed feminine pentagram of

LUCIFER
(THE PLANET VENUS)

which incidentally controls

THE CONSTELLATION OF TAURUS

Talking of the BULLSEYE

Remind you of the Britain controlling

BREAKSPEAR FAMILY?

The darts being the SPEARS/ARROWS

The BULL'S EYE being the ARROW piercing through the center of another ARROW.

Does the RED remind you of the TAU above?

Lyrics of '2000 Years'

Sun turnin' 'round with graceful motion
We're setting off with soft explosion
Bound for a star with fiery oceans
It's so very lonely, you're a hundred light years from home

Freezing red deserts turn to dark
Energy here in every part
It's so very lonely, you're six hundred light years from home

It's so very lonely, you're a thousand light years from home
It's so very lonely, you're a thousand light years from home

Bell flight fourteen you now can land
Seen you on Aldebaran, safe on the green desert sand
It's so very lonely, you're two thousand light years from home
It's so very lonely, you're two thousand light years from home
[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: PALLAVICINI BLOODLINE

Title: PALLAVICINI BLOODLINE

soulinspiration - October 12, 2009 09:12 PM (GMT)

THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE CLEARLY SHOWS THAT THE MEDIA'S PORTRAYAL OF U.S. FOREIGN POLICY BEING AT ODDS WITH ROME AS BEING FALSE:

http://www.lpca.us/ambassador_nicholson.htm

QUOTE

AMBASSADOR NICHOLSON'S REMARKS TO THE PRINCIPESSA PALLAVICINI CONFERENCE

Palazzo Pallavicini, Rome

February 12, 2003

Principessa Pallavicini, Professor de Mattei, Ambassador Sembler, members of the diplomatic corps, Mr. Erdmann, honored guests and friends, thank you all very much for making this evening's gathering possible.

Prof. de Mattei first approached me with the idea for this conference late last fall. He was concerned that a lack of understanding about U.S. policy regarding Iraq was driving an unnecessary and potentially damaging wedge between Europe and the United States, and he wanted to take action to bridge this gap of understanding by bringing to Italy an American with in-depth knowledge of U.S. goals and objectives. I agreed with Roberto that such a forum for building understanding would be useful, and I am pleased to welcome to Rome: Dr. Drew Erdmann of the Secretary of State Policy Planning Staff. As a policy planner with responsibilities that encompass the fight vs. terrorism, Dr. Erdmann knows U.S. policy because he helps develop it. My Embassy is delighted that you are able to join us tonight to share your insights on the most vital issue facing the world community today.

I want to offer a few comments, as Dr. De Mattei has indicated, to frame the issues currently under discussion between the United States government and the Holy See.

The complex political and moral issues raised by Saddam Hussein's breach of the Ceasefire Agreement he signed in 1991, and his repeated defiance of the international community over the past twelve years, has been the central issue in our discussions with the Holy See in recent months. The media has sought to portray the U.S. and Holy See as being at odds over war – the popular image is – as one poll by a major Italian Catholic magazine framed it: "Are you with the Pope and for peace or with President Bush and for war?" This misses the point, as both men hope for peace, I assure you.

More important, this overly simplistic portrayal obscures the fundamental issues in the Iraq debate, which are disarmament, the security of our citizens, and the creation of a stable international order leading to lasting peace. Peace is the goal! The United States, the Holy See, and our Allies in Europe and elsewhere share this goal. The debate is about how best to achieve a just and lasting peace.

The Pope has made clear throughout his Pontificate that peace must be built on a foundation of love, justice, truth, and liberty -- the "four pillars of peace," as he call them. Peace cannot be built on a foundation of sand, but on these four solid pillars. So in approaching the issue of Iraq, we have a duty to ask ourselves whether the conditions for genuine peace are present in today's Iraq.

Any objective assessment would leave little doubt that they are not. As Secretary Powell reminded us last week, Saddam Hussein's use of weapons of mass destruction on his neighbors, and on his own citizens, shows no love of others. Instead of justice, we see suppression of the Kurds, with whole families lined up in front of pits in the ground and shot. Instead of truth, we see deception of the international community and a continued and inexplicable passion to develop and hide weapons of mass destruction.

Instead of liberty, we see oppression and fear. Hate, injustice, deception, and fear – these are not true foundations for peace.

Recognizing the absence of the foundations for true peace, the question the international community faces is how to create from this swamp such foundations needed for lasting peace.

Contrary to the simplistic characterizations that the U.S. and the Holy See are at odds on this issue, I have found a broad recognition within the Holy See of the threat posed by Saddam Hussein, and of the importance of ensuring he does not threaten his neighbors or, through connections with terrorists, the rest of the world. As to how that threat should be addressed, the Holy See's position has been consistent: war should always be a last resort and the international community should take responsibility for addressing the threat. Despite popular misconceptions, this is exactly the position of President Bush. While the Holy See legitimately raises the moral questions to be considered, it is the legitimate authorities with responsibility for the common good, i.e. elected leaders, who must exercise prudential judgment about going to war.

Just this week, our two bilateral Embassies hosted here in Rome a series of meetings with moral philosopher Michael Novak. Novak eloquently analyzed how traditional just war theory ought to be applied to the new phenomenon of asymmetrical warfare -- of international terrorists striking "out of the clear blue sky" at the heart of civilization. September 11 proved that many of the ad bellum considerations of just war theory need to be rethought - terror cells, beholden to no nation-state, strike without warning and with devastating consequences for thousands of innocents. At the same time, rogue states develop weapons that can kill tens of thousands. All that remains is the "spark" that brings those two evils together to form an immensely greater evil, threatening whole societies.

Sometimes, therefore, a military response is not only justifiable but also a moral obligation when society is confronted with evils of sufficient magnitude. This is basically the challenge confronting President Bush and the rest of the free world. As a leading voice for peace and security, the United States must seek to define a response to that evil, and one that achieves the result we all seek – a foundation for genuine peace.

President Bush himself is listening carefully to the moral advice offered by our religious leaders as he forms his prudential judgment on how to respond to this new "asymmetrical" threat. The government he leads is not an amoral player; the President himself is a moral person, and a man of deep faith. At the National Prayer Breakfast earlier this month he said, "We can be confident in America's cause in the world. Our nation is dedicated to the equal and undeniable worth of every person. We don't own the ideals of freedom and human dignity… But we do stand up for those ideals, and we will defend them."

As Secretary Powell told the Security Council February 5, the nexus of international terrorism and weapons of mass destruction poses an unacceptable risk that could kill many thousands of our people. This is a life issue that requires a resolute and united response. It presents us with a new paradigm in which to consider the traditional theories of just war. In our view, the moral response is the one that will help achieve the Pope's four pillars of peace, end the suffering of the Iraqi people, and ensure the safety and dignity of human beings throughout the world.

President Bush in his State of the Union address said that we seek to resolve this crisis through persuasion and pressures short of war, but he also said that, "if war comes, we will fight a just war in a just cause, taking care to avoid civilian suffering and being sure to move quickly to provide food, and medicines, and relief to the people of Iraq." If we are forced to go to war, the only morally defensible way is to do exactly what the President of the United States has said. For the people of Iraq are suffering even now, and the rest of us are at risk.

Thank you, and with that I would like to yield the floor to my good friend Mel Sembler...

REMEMBER THAT THE NEW WORLD ORDER IS THE CREATION OF ROME & IS ROME'S PLAN FOR TOTALITARIAN VATICAN-LED GLOBAL GOVERNMENT, RULED FROM THE PROPOSED REBUILT TEMPLE IN JERUSALEM. HERE'S SOME ARTICLES FROM THE PAST FIVE YEARS FROM THE MAINSTREAM PRESS, INCLUDING SO-CALLED LIBERAL, SOCIALIST & CONSERVATIVE MEDIA OUTLETS:

http://www.nydailynews.com/opinions/2009/0...to_global_.html
A Pope's new world order: Pope Benedict XVI proposes stunningly radical approach to global economy

http://www.nytimes.com/2009/07/08/world/eu...8pope.html?_r=1
Pope Urges Forming New World Economic Order to Work for the ‘Common Good’

http://www.brisbanetimes.com.au/world/pope...90709-ddic.html
Pope calls for a new world order

http://www.amconmag.com/blog/2009/07/08/is...ew-world-order/
Is the Pope for New World Order?

http://www.guardian.co.uk/world/2004/jan/0....religion/print
Pope calls for a new world order

craig-oxley - October 13, 2009 09:47 AM (GMT)

House of Este
http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...?showtopic=8198

AntiSionist - October 13, 2009 09:48 AM (GMT)

I've got some stuff on the Pallavicini's here. Near the bottom. It's about their connection to the Cecils.

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...?showtopic=1363

soulinspiration - October 14, 2009 10:51 AM (GMT)

http://www.larouchepub.com/lar/1998/lar_surratt3_032498.html

> QUOTE
>
> The United States is not exceptional because our shores bred better ideas than existed among continental Europeans; but, rather, because, on condition we were prepared to fight against the traditionally Welf-led European feudal classes to secure this freedom, we had the geographically determined, strategic opportunity to build a society on the foundation of the best ideas, the noblest principles of truth and justice, which we had largely acquired from, or otherwise shared among the best thinkers of continental Europe.
>
> That problem of feudal infestations, faced by Europe then, persists there still, today, as typified by the financier-oligarchies represented by the hereditary households of Welf and Orange.[10]
>
> [10] What became the ultra-reactionary family of Este-Welf, rose to a dominant position in the European feudal oligarchy during the Eleventh Century, and has been in the forefront of the leading reactionary, pro-chivalric, pro-feudalist movements of Europe and the Americas ever since. The British monarchy of the Welf dynasty, typified what Venice created, during the Sixteenth Century, as the northern, nominally Protestant branch of the Este-Welf family. What the same Sixteenth-Century Venice dominated, simultaneously, as the southern, nominally Catholic branch of the same family, is typified, during recent decades by the Este family's Principessa Pallavicini, a feudal figure who, in such matters, greatly outranks Britain's relatively picaresque currently reigning royal frump. The wars between the Welf League and Frederick II, which caused the mid-Fourteenth Century "New Dark Age," typify the purely evil role performed consistently, throughout Europe, by Venice and the Welf faction, from the Eleventh through the Nineteenth Centuries. Miguel Cervantes' Don Quixote is a relevant insight into the role of this enemy, neo-feudalist tradition in bringing about the self-induced economic and cultural collapse of Spain over the course of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries.

Maximiliano - July 12, 2010 09:25 PM (GMT)

Napoleon Bonaparte I was a descendant of the Pallavicini Family.

From the following webpages of genealogy, Napoleon Bonaparte I was the son of Carlo Maria Buonaparte, which was the son of Maria Saveria Parravicini.

http://fabpedigree.com/s024/f009865.htm

The PEDIGREE of

Napoleon I BONAPARTE (EMPEROR) of FRANCE

eponym

Note: Ranked #34 in Michael Hart's list of History's Most Influential Persons

Born: Ajaccio 15 Aug 1769 Died: 5 May 1821 St. Helena

Male.

Wives/Partners: Marie Louise Leopoldine Franziska Theresia Josepha Lucia of AUSTRIA ; Josephine Marie Rose TASHIER de la PAGERIE ; Eleonore Denuelle de La Plaigne ; Marie Laczynska

Child: Napoleon II BONAPARTE (King) of ROME

```
                        /-- Giuseppe Maria `Magnifico' BUONAPARTE  +==&=> [ 255,gC,t,&]
                  /-- Sebastiano Nicolo BUONAPARTE
                /         \-- Maria Colonna (da) BOZZI  +            ====> [ 2]
            /-- Giuseppe Maria `Magnifico' BUONAPARTE
            |       \         /-- Carlo `l'Alfiere' TUSOLI  +        ==&=> [ 255,gC,t,&]
            /         \-- Maria Anna TUSOLI (di BOCOGNANO)
      /-- Carlo Maria BUONAPARTE
      |       \         /-- Giuseppe Maria PARAVICINI
      |         \- Maria Saveria PARAVICINI (? - 1776)
     /                \-- Maria Angela SALINERI (? - by 1741)
```

- Napoleon I BONAPARTE (EMPEROR) of FRANCE

```
     \                  /-- Giovanni (Jean) Jerome RAMOLINO  +     ====> [ 5]
      |             /-- Giovianni Agostino (Nob.) RAMOLINO
      |           /       \-- Maria Laetitia BOGGIANA
      |       /-- Giovanni Patriges Geronimo (Nob.) RAMOLINO
      |       |       \         /-- Andrea PERI  +                   ====> [ 4]
      |       |         \-- Angela Maria PERI
      |       /                 \-- Maria Maddalena COLONNA d' ISTRIA  +  ====> [ 1]
      \-- Maria Laetitia (Letizia) RAMOLINO
            \         /-- Giuseppe Maria PIETRASANTA (? - 1773)
             \-- Angela Maria (Nob.) PIETRASANTA (? - 1790+)
                       \-- Maria Josephine MALERBA
```

[Start]

© Jamie. 1997-2010

craig-oxley - July 13, 2010 05:29 PM (GMT)

Vittorio dares not to tread on the toes of the, Pallavicini Jesuits:
http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=34650

Eboard10 - September 2, 2010 09:03 PM (GMT)

Shaykh Abd al Wahid Pallavicini

QUOTE

http://www.casale2015.sonda.it/relatori1.htm
(Translated using Google Translate)

Shaykh Abd al Wahid Pallavicini was born in Milan in 1926. He converted to Islam January 7, 1951 assuming the same name as the French metaphysician Rene Guenon Islam while the latter went out in Cairo. For many years he lived in the East, where in 1980 he received permission to conduct as a teacher (Sheikh), an autonomous branch of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Brotherhood Idrisiyyah Shadhiliyyah in Europe. In 1986 he was appointed by the Islamic Cultural Centre of Italy, a body which currently manages the mosque in Rome, as responsible for interreligious dialogue, especially with Christianity. In the same year he participated as a representative to the meeting for Islamic peace promoted by Pope John Paul II at Assisi.
In 1991, Mondadori publishes the essay Islam inner collects its interventions in these ten years of operation. The book invites readers to make aware the purpose of his life faithfully following the teaching of his confession and the subsequent ritual practice. In 1995 the book was published in the French editions Christian de Bartillat. Later in 2002, leaving the second Italian edition revised and extended by another decade of evidence.
In 1993, Sheikh Abd al Wahid Pallavicini formed in Milan, becoming president, the Italian Association for Information on Islam to meet the increasingly stringent requirements related to the Islamic confession, such as required in the schools of depth on 'Islam. In 2000 the Association changed its name to the CO.RE.IS. (Islamic Religious Community), Italian equipping of a new statute also more suited to the role of a qualified representative of Islamic worship in Italy.
In 1996 Pallavicini promotes a scientific committee to draft an outline of Understanding between the Islamic community and the Italian State. Thanks to the work of two influential jurists of the University La Sapienza and University of Naples Federico II, the draft was submitted to the Italian Parliament in 1998 and found very interesting.
In 2000 the project of the Milan mosque, Sheikh Pallavicini strongly desired as a place dedicated to the worship of God, receives from the Milan city council approval for the building, the consensus of political forces.
In 2001, following the attacks of September, is received with a delegation of CO.RE.IS., the Vice-President of the Council and some government ministers to reaffirm the value of Islam in all its dignity, as of Judaism and Christianity, far from any violent exploitation.
In January 2005 he spoke at the first World Congress of Imams and Rabbis for Peace held in Brussels under the patronage of St. M. Albert II, King of Belgium, and S. M. Muhammad VI, King of Morocco.
Last twenty years has participated in about a thousand public meetings and conferences witnessing the universal principles of Islamic orthodoxy within the Abrahamic monotheism.

Looks like his real name is Felice Pallavicini and belongs to a fake Order of Malta since one has to be Catholic to join the real order.

QUOTE

http://www.kelebekler.com/occ/musulbuoni.htm

Convertiti e pentiti

Ma torniamo al manifesto dei musulmani buoni.

Alcuni dei firmatari sono persone degnissime. Mancano le persone impresentabili, come l•avventuriero Massimo •Abdul Hadi• Palazzi.

Tra gli italiani, troviamo anche una vecchia componente dell•islam italiano: persone di ottimo ceto sociale, alcune delle quali vicine alla massoneria. Citiamo Sergio Yahya, figlio del pittoresco e sorridente Felice Abdul Wahid Pallavicini, che si vanta delle sue ascendenze nobiliari e che fa parte anche di un misterioso •ordine di Malta•: il vero Ordine di Malta, nato con le crociate, ha tra i suoi obblighi quello di appartenere alla chiesa cattolica.

Maximiliano - September 2, 2010 11:41 PM (GMT)

Shaykh 'Abd al Wahid Pallavicini and Mario Borghezio at the Book Fair of Torino, May 6 of 2004.

http://www.coreis.it/Attivita/Foto%20Torin...ggio%202004.htm

Maximiliano - September 3, 2010 12:01 AM (GMT)

http://www.thecedarnetwork.com/cedar_membe...ahe-pallavicini

Yahya Sergio Yahe Pallavicini, the son of Abd al-Wahid Pallavicini

First Name: Yahya Sergio Yahe

Last Name: Pallavicini

Professional Position: Vice President of CO.RE.IS

Expertise: Policy and politics, Interfaith, Islamic Studies, Religion, Public Affairs, Foreign Affairs, Migration and integration, Education, Education

Country: Italy

Languages: English, Italian

Bio
At present, Yahya Pallavicini is vice president of the CO.RE.IS. (Comunità Religiosa Islamica Italiana). In 1997, he was made a member of the National Committee for Intercultural Education of the Ministry for Education, Universities and Research and a member of the Committee for the Heritage and Memory of the Culture of the Mediterranean, promoted by the Ministry for Cultural and Environmental Assets. ISESCO, the Islamic Organization for Education, Science and Culture, appointed Mr. Pallavicini to the board of governors of the Higher Council for Education in the West and the EIC (European Islamic Conference), conferred on him the function of ambassador for relations with the Vatican, and then made him responsible for international relations.

http://chiesa.espresso.repubblica.it/articolo/188961?eng=y

Five Muslims at the Vatican, to Prepare the Audience with the Pope

They are the representatives of the "letter of the 138" written to Benedict XVI last October. Here's who they are, and from where they come. One of them, Yahya Pallavicini, tells in a book about how to live as Muslims in a Christian country, in peace between the two religions.

ROMA, February 6, 2008 – Within one month, on March 4 and 5, there will be held in Rome the first meetings in preparation for the scheduled visit to the Vatican of a representative group of the 138 Muslim scholars who in October of 2007 addressed to the pope and to the heads of the other Christian confessions a letter with an offer of dialogue entitled "A Common Word Between Us and You."

The meetings will be held at the pontifical council for interreligious dialogue, presided by cardinal Jean-Louis Tauran. The schedule arranges for the Muslim representatives to meet with Benedict XVI and other Church authorities beginning next spring. And they will hold study sessions in institutes like the Pontifical Gregorian University and the Pontifical Institute of Arab and Islamic Studies, the PISAI, headed by Fr. Miguel Angel Ayuso Guixot.

The Muslim delegation will be composed of five Muslims scholars from as many nations:

– Ibrahim Kalin, from Turkey, director of the SETA foundation in Ankara and a professor at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.;

– Abd al-Hakim Murad Winter, from England, a professor of Islamic studies at the Shaykh Zayed Divinity School of the University of Cambridge, and director of the Muslim Academic Trust of the United Kingdom;

– Sohail Nakhooda, from Jordan, director of "Islamica Magazine," an international magazine edited in the United States;

– Aref Ali Nayed, from Libya, a member of the Interfaith Program of the Faculty of Divinity at the University of Cambridge, a former teacher at the International Institute for Islamic Thought and Civilization in Malaysia, and at the Pontifical Institute of Arab and Islamic Studies in Rome;

– Yahya Sergio Yahe Pallavicini, from Italy, imam of the al-Wahid mosque in Milan, president of the ISESCO council for education and culture in the West, and vice-president of the Islamic Religious Community of Italy, the COREIS.

All of these are part of the group of experts coordinated from Amman by Jordan's Prince Ghazi bin Muhammad bin Talal, president of the al-Bayt Institute for Islamic Thought, the leading promoter of the letter of the 138 and the protagonist behind the exchange of events that took place in November and December with Benedict XVI, through cardinal secretary of state Tarcisio Bertone, in preparation for the future meetings.

Of the five, the best known among the Vatican authorities and experts are Aref Ali Nayed and Yahya Pallavicini.

Nayed – well known to the readers of www.chiesa, which has published previews of many of his writings – is one of the leading experts in Western philosophy and Christian theology in the Muslim camp. He studied at the Gregorian, in addition to universities in the United States and Canada, and he knows as few others do the "Summa Theologiae" of Saint Thomas Aquinas. He is one of the main architects of the letter of the 138. And he is the author of a letter that is important in its own right, in which he responded to the message addressed to the Muslims by cardinal Tauran on the occasion of last Ramadan.

But Yahya Pallavicini has also been for some time a prominent counterpart for the Vatican authorities and experts.

His father, Abd al-Wahid Pallavicini, embraced the Muslim faith in 1951, like many other European intellectuals at that time who adopted Islam in the wake of the French metaphysician René Guénon. In the course of a long of a voyage in the East, he joined the Sufi confraternity Ahamadiyyah Idrissiyyah Shadhiliyyah, which is in sharp contrast to the sectarian Wahhabi Islamism that still dominates Saudi Arabia. He later became head of the confraternity in Italy. In Assisi, in 1986, Abd al-Wahid Pallavicini took part in the prayer meeting among the leaders of the religions called together by John Paul II. His dream is to build in Milan "a little Jerusalem that would see the children of Abraham united in prayer: Jews, Christians, and Muslims." His unshakable faith is that

Islam is "the ultimate and definitive expression of that primordial tradition that founded, confirms, and vivifies the earlier revelations."

Yahya Pallavicini, 43, was born Muslim and today is known in Italy as one of the main representatives of a sophisticated, democratic, "moderate" Islam, together with Khaled Fouad Allam of Algeria and Souad Sbai of Morocco. Under the religious profile, Pallavicini distinguishes himself from other Muslim personalities with whom he often finds himself in agreement – the best known of these in Italy is the Egyptian Magdi Allam. Unlike Magdi Allam, who does not practice the religion to which he was born and expresses a decisively secularized Islam, Yahya Pallavicini is an observant and fervent Muslim. He is the imam of a mosque in Milan, the leader of a community of Italians who have converted to Islam that is active in various cities, and is involved in courses of formation for new imams.

Since 2006, he has been a consultant on Islam for the Italian interior ministry. He is an unyielding critic of the violent tendencies of Muslim thought and practice. He has written and said on numerous occasions in public – something that is rare and often risky for a Muslim – that "acts of violence find no legitimization in the teachings of the prophet Mohammed or of the wise men." He has often strongly condemned "the exploitation of sharia, the Islamic law, to create a parallel alternative world, which refuses to integrate with the Western system." He has denounced "the culture of hatred" spewed in the preaching in many of the mosques in Italy on the part of imams "who are in reality political instigators with nothing authentically Islamic about them."

On the contrary, he is a convinced promoter of a positive dialogue with Judaism and Christianity. In 2005, he publicly contested the fatwa, the juridical sentence issued on the television screens of al-Jazeera by one of the most influential world leaders of fundamentalist Islam, Sheikh Yusuf al-Qaradawi, banning all dialogue with the Jews. The question has been raised again in recent days in Italy, when suddenly, because of an order that come from the al-Azhar University in Egypt, the representatives of the Grand Mosque of Rome had to cancel a visit – the first ever – to Rome's Jewish synagogue, scheduled for January 23rd.

These criticisms are all repeated in a book that Yahya Pallavicini recently published in Italy, entitled "Dentro la moschea [Inside the mosque]."

But there is much more in the same book. On the positive side, there is an account of a Muslim community in Italy, with the places and moments of its religious life: the mosque, those who attend it, how and when they pray, Ramadan, marriages, the veil, schools, birth, death, the pilgrimage to Mecca. It is the Sufi community to which Yahya Pallavicini belongs, which is very distant from the image of Islam that dominates the media, and is often hampered and opposed in fratricidal struggles by the proponents of this fundamentalist and aggressive Islam.

In his book, Yahya Pallavicini speaks on behalf of many of his brothers in faith. An entire section collects the preaching delivered in the mosques on Fridays by 25 Italian imams. Another section presents life stories: an entrepreneur, a violinist, a painter, men and women who have converted to Islam in the heart of the West. One of these converts, Ahmad Abd al-Wahliyy Vincenzo, has inaugurated a chair for the history of Islamic law and civilization at the Università Federico II in Naples. This is how he concludes his account: "Once, after an examination, a student told me something of which I am very proud: Dear professor, you should know that yesterday I received the sacrament of confirmation. And studying Islam with you was the best preparation I could have had."

Maximiliano - September 3, 2010 12:22 AM (GMT)

Imam and Italian goverment advisor, Yahya Pallavicini, at the Doha Debates.

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=y2nRLPh-b_Q

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BJxx6yad_nw

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=__S1_WKPHQM

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1-ZXX2e6Pss

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ISsyO3-_Mmw

map - September 3, 2010 04:08 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (Maximiliano @ Sep 3 2010, 12:22 AM)
>
> Imam and Italian goverment advisor, Yahya Pallavicini, at the Doha Debates.
>
> http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=y2nRLPh-b_Q
>
> http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BJxx6yad_nw
>
> http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=__S1_WKPHQM
>
> http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1-ZXX2e6Pss
>
> http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ISsyO3-_Mmw

looks like classic vatican ecumneism to me getting ready for the final world religion... the FAKE angel gabriel will help unite judaism, islam and apostate christians.

Maximiliano - September 3, 2010 05:32 AM (GMT)

http://www.asmasociety.org/emails/mlt/pdf/...Pallavicini.pdf

Yahya Sergio Yahe Pallavicini is an Italian citizen who was born a Muslim to a japanese mother and an Italian father in 1965. He works in Rome and Milan, where he lives with his wife and son, Muhammed Umberto.

2007

• Vice-President and Imam of the CO.RE.IS (Comunità Religiosa Islamica) Italiana.
• Adviser to the Ministry of the Interior in the Council for Italian Islam.
• President of the ISESCO (Islamic Organization for Education, Science and Culture) Council for Education and Culture in the West.
• Global Expert of the Alliance of Civilisations, United Nations.
• He is one of the 138 international Muslim scholars who have signed the document 'A Common Word between Us and You' addressed to the religious authorities of Christianity.
• Alumni, Interfaith Project Exchange, American Jewish Committee.
• Member of the executive committee of the European Muslim Council for Justice, Equality and Peace.
• Author of the book Dentro la Moschea, published in the Futuro Passato series by BUR-Rizzoli, Milan.

At an institutional level, Yahya Pallavicini has been involved in the drawing up of the 'Carta dei Valori della Cittadinanza e dell'Integrazione' (Charter on the Values and Significance of Citizenship and Integration) promoted by the Minister of the Interior, Giuliano Amato. As a member of the Council for Italian Islam, he has participated, at the Chamber of Deputies, in the hearings of the Constitutional Affairs Committee (regarding the Law on Religious Freedom) and the Social Affairs Committee (an analysis of the family in Italy) and, at the Ministry of Education, Universities and Research, in the National Committee for Intercultural Education. He has contributed to the drafting and presentation of a parliamentary bill on a register of imams in Italy.

In 1997 he was made a member of the National Committee for Intercultural Education of the inistry for Education, Universities and Research and, in the same year he also became a member of the Committee for the Heritage and Memory of the Culture of the Mediterranean, promoted by the Ministry for Cultural and Environmental Assets. ISESCO, the Islamic Organization for Education, Science and Culture, appointed him to the board of governors of the Higher Council for Education in the West and the EIC (European Islamic Conference), the first Islamic NGO recognized by the European Union, and conferred on him thefunction of ambassador for relations with the Vatican and then made him responsible for international relations. In 1998 he was invited by the Muslim World League to join the delegation of Italian Muslims in the pilgrimage to Mecca.

At present he is vice-president of the CO.RE.IS. (Comunità Religiosa Islamica) Italiana, on behalf of which he has met the king of Morocco, Hassan II, the president of the Arab Republic of Egypt, Hosni Mubarak, and the Libyan head of state, Muammar al-Gaddafi, as well as the ministers of religious affairs of various Middle Eastern and South-East Asian countries.

He is the Imam of the al-Wahid Mosque of Milan in Via Meda, where he coordinates the training of ministers of religion by preparing doctrinal sermons in Italian. In 2000 he became a member of the board of the governors of the Islamic Cultural Centre of Italy at the Rome Mosque.

In 2004 Il Saggiatore published his book L'Islam in Europa. Riflessioni di un imam italiano (Islam in Europe: The reflections of an Italian imam), with forewords by the minister for community policy, Rocco Buttiglione, and the president of the Union of Italian Jewish Communities, Amos Luzzatto. In September of the same year he was received at the Quirinal by the president of the Italian Republic, Carlo Azeglio Ciampi, and subsequently by the president of the Senate, Marcello Pera, as a member of the delegation of Italian Muslims who were signatories of the 'Manifesto contro il terrorismo e per la vita' (Manifesto against terrorism and for life).

In January 2005 he participated in the First World Congress of Rabbis and Imams for Peace, which took place in Brussels under the auspices of HM the king of Belgium, Albert II, and HM the king of Morocco, Mohammed VI. In August of the same year, on the invitation of the Council of Muftis of Russia, he was received in Kazan by the president of the Republic of Tatarstan as a member of a delegation of Muslims of the European Union. During the month of Ramadan, the president of the Republic of Tunisia, Zine El Abidine Ben Ali, awarded him the prize of the world Competition for Islamic Studies.

In 2006 he participated in the Congress of the Imams of Europe in Vienna, which was promoted by the European Commission; he went to Israel as the Muslim member of the interreligious project organized by the American Jewish Committee; at the end of September, in coincidence with the beginning of the month of Ramadan, he was invited an audience called by Pope Benedict XVI at his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo specifically for leading members of the Muslim communities in Italy and representatives of the diplomatic corps of the Islamic countries accredited to the Holy See.

Yahya Sergio Yahe Pallavicini
c/o CO.RE.IS. (Comunità Religiosa Islamica) Italiana Via Giuseppe Meda 9
20136 Milano
Tel. 02-8393340; fax 02-8393350
e-mail: roma@coreis.it

On an international level Yahya Pallavicini has represented Italian Islam in Berlin (Konrad Adenauer Foundation and Heinrich Böll Foundation, 'Muslims as Citizens. An International Dialogue on Civic Engagement'); Tunis (Zaitouna University, Faculty of Theology, 'La civilization islamique en Europe: culte et culture'); Naples (Fondazione Mediterraneo, 'Giving Voice to Muslim Democrats: Securing Democracy and Peace in the Mediterranean Space'); the Netherlands, in the Faculty of Theology of the University of Leiden ('The Training Programme of Imams in Italy'); Paris (UNESCO, 'The Responsibility of European Muslims in the Renewal of Islamic Civilization'); London (University of Cambridge and the Foreign Office, 'Muslims in the West: Engagement and Representation'); Singapore (ISESCO); Washington (Migration Policy Institute, 'Transatlantic Dialogue on Islam and Integration'); Rome (IOM [International Organisation for Migration], 'Immigration and Cultural Diversity in Europe. The Role of Muslim Migrant Women'); Brussels (Konrad Adenauer Foundation, 'Muslims in Europe'); Rhodes (World Public Forum 'Dialogue of Civilisations'); Brussels (European Commission, 'Education in the Prevention of Violent Radicalization'); Naples (Sant'Egidio international meeting 'Religions for Peace', For a World without Violence: Religions and Culture in Dialogue); Washington (US Department of State, 'Radicalization and Muslim Engagement in Europe and the United States); Tunis (Zaitouna University, 'Islam between Unity and Pluralism'), St Petersburg (Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Russian Federation, 'The Future the Middle East and the Mediterranean: Religions, Dialogue, Peace'), Venice (IPS [International Press Service], 'The Role of Communication in the Alliance among Civilisations').

In Italy Yahya Pallavicini has participated in conferences and lectures in Pisa (University of Pisa, Management of Intercultural and Interreligious Conflicts); Genoa (Italian Red Cross, Muslims and Westerners: Truth and Misrepresentation); Lucca (Diocese of Lucca, Community, Beauty, Hospitality and the Desire to Meet: the Dialogue between Judaism, Christianity and Islam), Pisa (Diocese of Pisa, The Different Architectural Forms of the Great Religions), Venice (University of Venice, Islam in Italy), Naples (Young European Federalists, European Citizenship and the Islamic,Identity), Naples (Institute of Philosophical Studies, The Philosophy of Religion between Universalism and Pluralism), Florence (Ministry of Family Policy, As the the Family Grows, SoDoes Italy), Rome (LIDU Italian League of Human Rights, Human Rights: Sources and,Orientations for a Common Language); Sanremo (Teatro dell'Opera, Centenary of the Award of the Nobel Peace Prize); Pisa (University of Pisa, Master Course in Public and Political Communication); Rome (Link Campus, University of Malta, 'Cultural Diversity and Religious Pluralism: the Possible Dialogue in Europe'); Terni (FilmFestival Popoli e Religioni, The Commitment of Religions to Civil Rights and Freedom), Poggibonsi (CISRECO [Centro Internazionale per lo Studio del Religioso Contemporaneo], The Enemy and the Guest: Experiences of Foreignness); Venice (Palazzo Ducale, The West and Islam. Unity in the Difference between Art and Intellectuality); Sassari (Associazione culturale De Gasperi, Religions and Nature); Milan (Milan Politecnico, Faculty of Design, 'Dentro la Moschea'); Genoa (Palazzo Ducale, Values and Virtues of Citizenship, Integration and Dialogue); Milan (Associazione De Amicis, an interreligious meeting in honour of the Dalai Lama's visit).

Maximiliano - September 3, 2010 06:36 AM (GMT)

From left to right: Herman Van Rompuy, Jerzy Buzek, Yahya Pallavicini, Imam and Vice-President of CO.RE.IS Italy (Islamic Religious Community), and José Manuel Barroso.

craig-oxley - September 3, 2010 11:45 AM (GMT)

FELICE ABDUL WAHID PALLAVICINI

KNIGHT OF MALTA

craig-oxley - September 3, 2010 11:52 AM (GMT)

map - September 3, 2010 06:54 PM (GMT)

what a JOKE!

rome is truly the MOTHER of ALL harlots! INCLUDING BABY ISLAM!

TheUnhivedMind - October 31, 2010 02:24 AM (GMT)

THE BENJAMIN SOLARI PARRAVICINI's PROPHETIC MESSAGE

by Tomás Latino - Grupo Sol
http://www.edicolaweb.net/nonsoloufo/pav_proe.htm

On September 11th 2001 the mankind was hardly shocked by an unexpected event with terrifying characteristics. During an attack, the NEW YORK twin towers were hit by liner aircrafts, causing the buildings to fall down with thousands of victims as a consequence. Incredibly this reality had already been prophesized in 1939 by an Argentinean plastic artist in his premonitory drawings. It is necessary to make clear that in that year the towers have not been built.

"...A great people have been carried to defend a great nation. The terrorist attacks can shake the basements of our biggest buildings, but they cannot touch the foundations of the United States. These actions destroyed steel, but they cannot injure the steel of the United States determination. The United States were the target of this attack because we are the most shining beacon of freedom and opportunity in the world. And nobody will make this light to extinguish. Today, our nation saw the wickedness, the worst of the human nature. And we replayed with the best of the United States, with the boldness of our rescue workers, with the affection of strangers and neighbors, who attended to give blood and to help in the way of the possible...".
George W. Bush. White House. September 11th 2001

Maximiliano - October 31, 2010 06:02 PM (GMT)

Solari Parravicini always talked about "THE GREY MAN"...
How interesting it is that Pepe Orsini its called the "Grey Pope"!

14april2000 - February 17, 2011 12:53 PM (GMT)

Portrait of Agostino Pallavicini

http://www.getty.edu/art/gettyguide/artObj...ails?artobj=548

Anthony van Dyck

http://www.getty.edu/art/gettyguide/artMak...tails?maker=453

Flemish, 1621 - 1623
Oil on canvas

Agostino Pallavicini, a member of the Genoese branch of the Pallavicini family and the future doge of Genoa, sits enveloped by the sumptuous, flowing red robes worn in his role as ambassador to the Pope. The wide expanse of fabric, spectacularly rendered, seems to have a life of its own and almost threatens to take over the painting. The luxurious swirl of cloth, its brilliant sheen, and the way it glimmers and reflects light display Anthony van Dyck's virtuosity as a painter. The family coat of arms seen on the drapery behind the sitter at the left, along with other documented portraits, firmly establishes Pallavicini's identity.

In 1621 Van Dyck left Antwerp and traveled to Italy, where he stayed for five years, viewing large private collections of Italian paintings and painting various portraits. This was one of the first paintings he made in Italy, painted in 1621 to commemorate the sitter's service as an ambassador to the newly elected Pope Gregory XV.

14april2000 - February 17, 2011 01:18 PM (GMT)

Villa Pallavicini Investment Condo and Townhouse Property Grounds...SOLD!

[dohtml] <object width="512" height="322"><param name="movie" value="http://d.yimg.com/static.video.yahoo.com/yep/YV_YEP.swf?ver=2.2.46" /><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true" /><param name="AllowScriptAccess" VALUE="always" /><param name="bgcolor" value="#000000" /><param name="flashVars" value="id=8812457&vid=3096764&lang=es-mx&intl=e1&thumbUrl=http%3A//l.yimg.com/a/p/i/bcst/videosearch/4112/68235461.jpeg&embed=1" /><embed src="http://d.yimg.com/static.video.yahoo.com/yep/YV_YEP.swf?ver=2.2.46" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" width="512" height="322" allowFullScreen="true" AllowScriptAccess="always" bgcolor="#000000" flashVars="id=8812457&vid=3096764&lang=es-mx&intl=e1&thumbUrl=http%3A//l.yimg.com/a/p/i/bcst/videosearch/4112/68235461.jpeg&embed=1" ></embed></object>
Villa Pallavicini Investment Condo and Townhouse Property Grounds...SOLD! en Yahoo! Video [/dohtml]

http://espanol.video.yahoo.com/watch/3096764/8812457

14april2000 - February 17, 2011 01:21 PM (GMT)

SLAM X @ csoa Cox18 Piersandro Pallavicini - 18/12/2010

[dohtml]<iframe src="http://player.vimeo.com/video/19480899" width="400" height="300" frameborder="0"></iframe> SLAM X @ csoa Cox18 Piersandro Pallavicini - 18/12/2010 from Agenzia X on Vimeo. [/dohtml]

http://vimeo.com/19480899

SLAM X - La rivoluzione con le bombe di carta
18 e 19 dicembre 2010 @ csoa COX18, Milano

Slam X è un festival di reading, performance e letture organizzato dalla casa editrice Agenzia X, un'occasione di dialogo e progetto a cui partecipano, scrittori, musicisti,attori e disegnatori per difendere spazi culturali ormai minacciati e in nome di un'altra idea di città.
Il secondo appuntamento si è tenuto sabato 18 e domenica 19 dicembre al csoa COX18 di Milano.
Nel video l'esibizione live di Piersandro Pallavicini, sabato 18 dicembre.
Video by C.S.O.A.COX18

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: House of della Rovere

Title: House of della Rovere

14april2000 - June 22, 2010 07:46 PM (GMT)

Della Rovere

Della Rovere was a noble historical family of Italy. Coming from modest beginnings in Savona, Liguria, the family rose to prominence through nepotism and ambitious marriages arranged by two Della Rovere popes, Francesco della Rovere, who ruled as Pope Sixtus IV (1471-1484) and his nephew Giuliano (Pope Julius II, 1503-1513). Pope Sixtus IV is known for having built the Sistine Chapel, which is named for him. The Basilica San Pietro in Vincoli in Rome is the family church of the della Rovere.

The most successful match established a line of dukes of Urbino. That dynasty ended in 1626 when Pope Urban VIII incorporated Urbino into the papal dominions, the gift of the weary last duke, Francesco Maria II, in retirement after the death of his heir, Francesco Ubaldo.

While Vittoria, last descendant of the della Rovere family (she was the only child of Federico Ubaldo), married Ferdinando II de' Medici, Grand Duke of Tuscany. They had two chidren: Cosimo III, Tuscany's longest reigning monarch, and Francesco Maria de' Medici, a prince of the Church.

Dukes of Urbino

* Francesco Maria I della Rovere
* Guidobaldo II della Rovere
* Francesco Maria II della Rovere
* Federico Ubaldo della Rovere

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/House_of_della_Rovere

Family tree

Dotted lines indicate aliases (where a person appears more than once in the tree.
Small caps text indicates the surname of the children (regardless of number) of a union.
All persons have the surname Della Rovere unless otherwise indicated.

The above text relete to the family tree there is in the button of the wikipedia link.

TABLE 78
GENEALOGIES
ITALY

DUKES OF URBINO: MONTEFELTRO AND DELLA ROVERE

Direct link : http://www.uni-mannheim.de/mateo/camenaref...v13/jpg/078.jpg della Rovere family

http://genealogy.euweb.cz/italy/rovere.html

Papal Genealogy: The Families And Descendants Of The Popes
Af George L. Williams

http://books.google.com/books?id=-mq7ctwMN...0family&f=false

14april2000 - June 22, 2010 08:03 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE
>
> Remember that Giuliano Della Rovere, later Pope Julius II, was instrumental in the Pontification of Pope Innocent VIII becouse tanks to his support he become Cardinal, durign the time of the Pope Sixtus IV who his real name was Francesco della Rovere.
>
> So the Della Rovere and the Orsini families controlled Cristobal Colon(na) and the Pope Innocent VIII and with the help of the Knight Templars "discovered America".

CRISTOBAL COLON(NA)?

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=31608

craig-oxley - June 23, 2010 03:12 PM (GMT)

If we look at that shield from its colors we see the Farnese family all over it.
Remember the ties with the sacred Oak tree and the Farnese family.
The name Farnese is linked with many acorns.

map - June 23, 2010 07:58 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jun 23 2010, 03:12 PM)
>
> If we look at that shield from its colors we see the Farnese family all over it.
> Remember the ties with the sacred Oak tree and the Farnese family.
> The name Farnese is linked with many acorns.

I was going to mention that after looking at their crest with the acorns and also noting what count Vivian said that della rovere is REALLY farnese under another alias.

it all makes absolute sense.

and these 10 papal families REALLY intermarry within each other...

noting the former smom grand master which was a della rovere and CHIGI.

Eboard10 - June 24, 2010 12:49 PM (GMT)

The della Rovere married extensively into both the Este and de' Medici families. One also married with Vittoria Farnese, sister of Cardinal Alessandro Farnese. However, I don't think their coar of arms is tied to the Farnese. Oak literally translates to rovere (or quercia) in italian, hence why they use it. The Equestrian Order headquaters in Rome used to belong to Cardinal Domenico della Rovere back in the late 15th century.

Maximiliano - February 15, 2011 10:02 PM (GMT)

Notice how the Papal Bloodlines Families are councelors not only of the Jesuit Order but also to the Order of Malta

Webpage of the Order of Malta in Cuba.

http://ordendemaltacuba.com/highoffices.aspx

HIGH OFFICES

As of June, 2009, the members of the Governing Council are as follows:

President: Excmo. Sr. Dr. D. Fernando Tomas García-Chacón y Chacón, Marqués de Salinas, Caballero Gran Cruz de Honor y Devoción en Obediencia

Vicepresident: Excmo. Sr. Dr. D. Juan Tomas O'Naghten y Chacón, Conde de Casa Bayona, Caballero Gran Cruz de Honor y Devoción en Obediencia

Chancellor: Ilmo. Sr. Dr. D. Luis Miguel O'Naghten y Chacón, Conde de Gibacoa, Caballero de Honor y Devoción

Hospitaller: Ilmo. Sr. Dr. D. Jose Joaquín Centurión y López-Oña, Caballero de Honor y Devoción en Obediencia

Treasurer: Ilmo. Sr. D. Luis Parajon y Gonzalez, Caballero de Gracia Magistral

COUNCELLORS

- Ilmo. Sr. Dr. D. Ludovico Blanc y Lante Della Rovere, Barón de Blanc, Caballero de Gracia y Devoción en Obediencia, Fiscal y Consejero Heráldico,

- Ilmo. Sr. Ing. D. Manuel Menéndez y Medina, Caballero de Gracia Magistral,

- Ilma. Sra. Dña. Maria Cristina Santos y Vega de Díaz, Dama de Gracia Magistral, Delegada de Actividades de Confraternidad,

- Ilmo. Sr. Dr. Col. D. Emilio T. Gonzalez Mazorra, Caballero de Gracia Magistral,

- Ilmo. Sr. Lic. D. Salvador Casellas y Moreno, Caballero de Gracia Magistral en Obediencia,

- Ilmo. Sr. D. Mauricio Fernández Ferrán, Caballero de Gracia Magistral, Vice-Tesorero,

- Ilmo. Sr. Ing. D. Juan José Calvo y de Dios, Caballero de Gracia Magistral, Delegado de Comunicaciones,

- Ilmo. Sr. Dr. D. Roberto López Alberola, Caballero de Gracia Magistral, Director Adjunto de Espiritualidad,

- Ilmo. Sr. Dr. D. Jose A. Garrido, Jr., Caballero de Gracia Magistral.

DELEGATE IN PUERTO RICO

- Ilmo. Sr. Lic. D. Jose de Santiago y González, Caballero de Gracia Magistral en Obediencia, Jefe de la Delegación de Puerto Rico

HEAD CHAPLAIN

- Excmo. Y Revdmo. Monseñor D. Agustín Aleido Román y Rodríguez, Obispo Titular de Sertie, Capellán Conventual Ad-Honorem

HONORARY PRESIDENT

- Excmo. Sr. Emb. Dr. Carlos Dobal y Marqués, Caballero Gran Cruz de Gracia y Devoción con Banda

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE BORGIA (2006) MOVIE

Title: THE BORGIA (2006) MOVIE

Maximiliano - January 9, 2011 11:12 AM (GMT)

THIS IT'S A MUST SEE MOVIE. Only that yet nobody uploaded it with english subtitles.

If somebody wants to watch it and later upload it this are the links and the subtitles in english.

http://rapidshare.com/files/189959820/LosBorgia.avi.001
http://rapidshare.com/files/189959923/LosBorgia.avi.002
http://rapidshare.com/files/190002993/LosBorgia.avi.003

http://rapidshare.com/files/190004022/LosBorgia.avi.004
http://rapidshare.com/files/190393337/LosBorgia.avi.005
http://rapidshare.com/files/190394386/LosBorgia.avi.006
http://rapidshare.com/files/190394634/LosBorgia.avi.007
http://rapidshare.com/files/190396567/LosBorgia.srt

[dohtml]<object width="480" height="385"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/z7u2V6SIdHs?fs=1&hl=es_ES"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/z7u2V6SIdHs?fs=1&hl=es_ES" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="480" height="385"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

soulinspiration - January 12, 2011 08:41 PM (GMT)

Those icons look interesting. A very Jesuit sun & a pentagrammish shape that looks like its slipped down within the circle. Be nice to see a closeup.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE BORGIAS 2011 Jeremy Irons as Rodrigo de Borgia

Title: THE BORGIAS 2011 Jeremy Irons as Rodrigo de Borgia

Maximiliano - January 9, 2011 10:50 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<object width="640" height="385"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/ItLou92CsEM?fs=1&hl=es_ES"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/ItLou92CsEM?fs=1&hl=es_ES" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="640" height="385"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: BERNARD OF CLAIRVAUX, THE TRUE FOUNDER OF THE Title: BERNARD OF CLAIRVAUX, THE TRUE FOUNDER OF THE Description: KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

Maximiliano - December 5, 2010 04:32 AM (GMT)

BERNARD DE CLAIRVAUX, THE TRUE FOUNDER OF THE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

http://www.jlgimenez.es/historia_ignorada/...rios.htm#inicio

The Order of Cister and Saint Bernard of Clairvaux

Contrary to what might appear, the Cistercians are not founded by Bernard of Clairvaux, but its existence is due to Roberto Molesmes, who in the year of 1098 he founded the monastery of Citeaux (hence the name of Cistercian), a city very close to Lyon. But it will be Bernard of Clairvaux (1090-1153), along with Stephen Harding, the then third abbot of the Order who, in the year 1120, the Cistercian provide their real international dimension, being both Harding and the real architects Clairvaux the founding of the order.

The over-materialization and worldliness that presented the Order of Cluny, had questioned the original purity of monasticism, as originally stated in the Rule of St. Benedict, which is why both Stephen Harding, through his letter "Caritatis "as the desire to literally restore the Rule of St. Benedict, by Bernard of Clairvaux, was giving way to one of the most important monastic orders and decisive throughout Europe during the Middle Ages.

With the introduction of a strong rigor in applying the Rule of Citeaux, taken from the San Benito, Harding and Clairvaux, monasticism were to return to original purity that is so missing in Cluny. Thus, we reject anything that was not explicit in the new rule, stressing especially the need to maintain a general uniformity among all religious services, schedules, discipline to apply, reading books, the regime food and even the kind of building should be maintained at all establishments of the order, to avoid any temptation to relax.

Bernardo de Fontaine, as well as who would later be called St. Bernard of Clairvaux (in reference to Clairvaux) was founded in 1090, within a wealthy family in Burgundy, as his parents were the lords of the castle-les Fontaines -Dijon. He was educated with her seven children, as it was for the nobility, six of whom were male and one female, receiving a fine education in the Latin language, literature and religion, which led to all the brothers had just being all religious.

In the year of 1112 he entered the Cistercian monastery and became accompanied by a noble band of followers who were to reach their thirties, as well as his four older brothers and his uncle (as indicate William of Saint-Thierry in his Life of St. Bernardo and James of Voragine in The Golden Legend). No wonder then, that the then abbot, Stephen Harding, welcomes them all with great joy, realizing that it was a mass accession to his monastery. Shortly thereafter, the order would join his younger brother Nirvardo and the death of his mother, his father would also Humbelina her sister with her brother. This gives us an idea of the large volume of influence exerted on his closest Bernardo, which resulted in a high degree of adherence to his person, as shown left six months before entering the Cistercian Order with its followers, who remained stationed with him for several weeks, while spending on achieving personal loyalty of all his companions, even to submit to all kinds of tests that demonstrate their loyalty to him and not to the Order to they would belong, because this was carried out six months before entering the convent of the Cistercian Order.

This situation makes us think that perhaps Bernardo already had a target set before entering the Order, since it was accompanied by the right people to achieve their goal. When we look at history and see the performance they had in the years following the entry into the Cistercian Order, in carrying out various covert activities, both inside and outside the Order, it seems that doubt is dispelled.

As expected, the massive influx of Fontaine clan (family and friends of Bernard) would become contentious for the abbot Stephen Harding, as the excessive influence of Fontaine was well known in the community, which together they were mostly in the Cistercian monastery as they entered Bernardo and his men had just a handful of monks, would cause a situation that would trigger the inevitable. But the solution would come soon after, through the generosity of Count Hugo I of Champagne, who was to play an important role in the founding of the new Order of the Knights Templar. Count Hugh I, donated the land he owned in Clairvaux, place near Dijon, north of Lyon, so that Bernardo could establish his own monastery there. Thus from then on, Bernardo de Fontaine, will be known as the famous Bernard of Clairvaux (of Clairvaux).

Three years after the entry of Bernard of Clairvaux in the Cistercians (1115), the Order had only four abbeys, however, the death of Bernard of Clairvaux in 1153, these four abbeys became more than 350 of that 69 was the direct subsidiaries of Clairvaux, founded by Bernard and raised directly with the help of family and friends of the nobility.

The Cistercian Order is characterized by the continuous construction of temples and shrines dedicated to Our Lady "by most of Europe, and sing the" Salve Regina "to terminate the day, such as was required in the Order. This situation prompted the Church to see Bernard of Clairvaux as the originator and official promoter of the cult of Mary, although some authors found in this cult dedicated to Mary a very different apparent since would not refer to the Virgin Mary but to Mary Magdalene.

Maximiliano - December 5, 2010 04:34 AM (GMT)

THE FOUNDATION OF THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE
St. Bernard of Clairvaux AND THE ORDER OF THE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

After the First Crusade, culminating in the conquest of Jerusalem in 1099, would then become Latin principalities in the area, as were the counties of Edessa and Tripoli, the Principality of Antioch and the Kingdom of Jerusalem, where Baldwin was to rule as king.

According to the chronicles, in the year 1118, the king of Jerusalem, Baldwin II, would welcome a group of nine French knights, led by the noble Hugo de Payens (Payns), who provide the sovereign to protect pilgrims to the Holy Land.

Among the components of the group was that was so generous with Bernard of Clairvaux, to donate land to build its own Clairvaux monastery, we mean, of course, the Count Hugo I of Champagne. He also accompanied his uncle Bernard, André de Montbard, who later would play an important role in the Order, becoming Grand Master of the same in 1153, coinciding with the year of the death of Bernard of Clairvaux.

It was on that date of 1118 when there would be the foundation of the "Knights Templar" and that, initially, was known as the "Order of the Poor Knights of Christ" (Pauperes Conmilitones Christi), but later, would become be commonly known as "Knights Templars or Knights of the Temple of Solomon" (milites Templi Salomonis), once they were installed in the premises of the ancient temple of Solomon in Jerusalem and whose motto is: "Non nobis, Domine, Non Nobis, Sed Nomini Tuo Da Gloriam "(Not for us, Lord, not for us, but write your name Gloria). Is now known and widespread "Order of the Temple" is produced through translation from Latin to French. The identity of the nine French knights founded the Order of the Temple was as follows:

- Hugo de Payens

- Geoffroy de Saint-Omer

- André de Montbard

- Saint-Amand Archambaut

- Payen of Montdidier

- Geoffrey Bisot

- Gondemar

- Hugo Rigaud

- Roland

Bernard of Clairvaux (NOTE THE THREE NAILS)

However, the identity of the gentlemen who composed the expedition would lead to speculate on other reasons than those expressed by Hugo de Payens, because it was too coincidental that some of the components are relatives or close friends of Bernard of Clairvaux , as indicated above.

To test this hypothesis, there are some very interesting documents, from an archive of the Knights Templar, who were found in the Principality of Seborga, a tiny country of about 14 square kilometers, located in northwestern Italy, in the region Liguria, and where it relates directly to Bernard of Clairvaux, with the founding of the Order of the Temple.

According to those documents, Bernard of Clairvaux, in 1113, have founded a monastery in Seborga, in order to preserve within it a "big secret", which is not specified. Bernardo left as guardians of secret and Rossal Gondemar monks, two brothers who belonged to the clan of Fontaine, and had entered with him into the Cistercian Order.

Later in the year 1117, Bernard of Clairvaux, he returned to the monastery of Seborga and release of their votes to the two monks, while entrusted to them a new destination: travel to the Holy Land, accompanied by seven knights. The names of these gentlemen were:

- André de Montbard (uncle of Bernard of Clairvaux).

- Hugh I Count of Champagne (who donated the land of Clairvaux).

- Hugo de Payens (who would be the first Master of the Order).

- Payen of Montdidier.

- Geoffrey de Saint-Omer.

- Saint-Amand Archambaud

- Geoffrey Bisot

As can be seen, most of the names that appear in the documents match the names mentioned in documents that refer to the group that went to Jerusalem and founded the Order of the Temple in 1118. Coincidence?

But these, would not be the only and "strange coincidence" that show an involvement of Bernard of Clairvaux, the Order of the Temple and its secrets.

Places to look for other strange relationship and implications between Bernard and the Order of the Temple, we could not ignore the attitude of the King Baudouin the nine Knights Templar. Indeed, the donation made by King Baldwin of Jerusalem, the new Order of the Temple, in what would be the headquarters of the Order, would correspond to an area too vast to be occupied by only nine men, as in this place , which was nailed above the Temple of Solomon (hence the name of the Order), there was enough space to accommodate several thousand men, but now occupy the building known as the white mosque of Al-Aqsa mosque, located in the Temple Mount and that is true only with what was the Temple court. But the mystery was going to increase.

Thus, what initially looked like it was a knighthood to safeguard the roads to the Holy Land and the pilgrims who went there, as some authors have developed, adopted a somewhat unusual position as far from increasing the number of members in the order as it would be logical because of the large territory to cover, the Knights Templar, admitted no one else in the new order in the first nine years of existence thereof. If true, what the Templars had ulterior motives for doing so?

According to some speculations, it appears that during that time span, the Knights Templar were engaged in carrying out some secret excavations in the stables of the Temple where, according to these same sources, had sought the Ark of the Covenant.

Although the Order of the Temple was recognized by the King Baudouin and settled in Jerusalem for the last nine years, in 1127, the Master Hugh of Payens, she travels to Rome, in order that the Order is approved by formal definitive Pope Honorius II, and so that was also referred to as a military order of right. To that end, King Baldwin of Jerusalem, sent a letter to the abbot Bernard of Clairvaux, who maintained a good relationship with the Pope, requesting that favored the first Master of the Order to the Church.

When we look at everything that has happened so far regarding the relationships and links of Bernard of Clairvaux, the Order of the Temple, we can not fail to perceive a direct relationship, but is somewhat hidden, especially in the areas of esoteric and initiatory nature. One aspect that will be addressed later, but now can not be overlooked, because, after all the maneuvers we've seen that Bernardo took place, to achieve its objectives with respect to the Order of the Temple, was necessary letter from King Baldwin of Jerusalem, requesting their support to the Church. Did I really need that letter of request for help, or was simply an excuse to justify the defense of the Order of the Temple, by Bernard of Clairvaux to the Church?

Either way, the truth is that Bernard of Clairvaux, he used all means at its disposal, to get them to convene the Council of Troyes, which would be the day of the feast of St. Hilary in the year 1128 (as indicated by literally The prologue of the Rule of the Temple), in the French city of that name, which was home to other county court of Champagne, in order that the council was finally approved the Order of the Knights Templar.

The Council of Troyes, which was presided over by Cardinal and papal legate, Matthew Albano, attended many French prelates, attending include: two archbishops, ten bishops and seven abbots (which would be the abbot of the house Cistercian matrix: Stephen Harding), and a variety of characters representing members of the clergy and nobility.

Thanks to the many influences that had Bernard of Clairvaux (remember that was in the domain of Count Hugh of Champagne), and despite several discussions were initiated, the question as to expose correctly the first principles and services Order of the Temple, responding correctly to all questions addressed to him, made after several weeks of deliberations, the Knights Templar were officially adopted with great enthusiasm by the Council of Troyes, while Hugo was appointed Grand Payens Master of the Order. It also asked for the new order, support and collaboration of all the nobles and princes who attended the Council, Bernard of Clairvaux encargándosele the task of drafting an original rule for the Order of the Knights Templar.

Bernard of Clairvaux was very clear what would be the rule that adapt to the Order of the Temple and thus, used the iron rule of the Cistercian Order, which would be adapted to the new military order, to organize their monastic life. In this sense, the Knights Templar, as monks and void, should the vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, adds a fourth vow, which pledged to contribute to the achievement and preservation of the Holy Land, reaching give our lives if necessary.

A fact that occurred in this Council and can not go unnoticed, which would be referred to the "secret" spot by Hugo Caballero Payens, which would only be known by Pope Honorius II and the Patriarch of Jerusalem (in addition to Bernard of Clairvaux, of course), which gives us an idea of what should be the real reasons that led to approve the Military Order of the Church. In paragraph 4 of the prologue of the Rule of the Temple, we read:

"4. And everything that happened at that Council can not be counted or recounted, and so it is not taken lightly by us, but regarded with wise caution, we leave to the discretion of both our honorable father and the Lord Honorio noble patriarch of Jerusalem, Stephen, who knows the problems of the East and the Poor Knights of Christ, on the advice of the common council adopted it unanimously. Although a large number of religious parents gathered in chapter approved the truth of our words, but not we must silence the true statements and judgments issued. " (Taken from The Primitive Rule of the Templars Trad. Robrenyo Montserrat, Barcelona, 2000).

It is thus clear that the need for the Order of the Temple was formally adopted by the Church, was due more to other vested interests, that being a military order created to protect pilgrims in the Holy Land, especially when, from several years ago because there were other orders that were responsible for this, as the Hospitaller Order of St. John of Jerusalem, which later became known as St. John of Malta, due to be relocated its headquarters to the island of Malta by King Charles I in 1530.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: IHS ACRONYM CONNECTION TO THE COLONNA FAMILY

Title: IHS ACRONYM CONNECTION TO THE COLONNA FAMILY

Maximiliano - November 29, 2010 02:56 AM (GMT)

It was Bernardino de Siena (1380-1444), an italian catholic priest and a franciscan missionary, one of the mens that, previous to the creation of the Jesuit Order in 1534, begun to openly worship the IHS luciferian acronym.

This men was a close friend of the Pope Martin V, which true name was Oddone Colonna, the son of Agapito Colonna and Caterina Conti!

HERE IT'S SOME PAINTINGS OF BERNARDINO DE SIENA

Painting of 16th century in Langeais Castle, France. Unknown painter.

user posted image

Stained glass in San Bernardino alle ossa church in Milan (Italy).

CABIT E IVSTA VIAS TVAS

IHS

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE ARCANA ARCANORUM RITE OF ATLANTIS

Title: THE ARCANA ARCANORUM RITE OF ATLANTIS

craig-oxley - October 11, 2009 02:04 PM (GMT)

As you all know from Venetian history, they had the secret 'counsil of ten', who throughout the history of Venice were always the UNKNOWN oligarchs. Somehow funds and projects would start appearing out of the blue around Rialto in the 400's, yet no one had a clue who was granting it. Was it the Byzantines, the Pope, or the Franks? Mysterous money flowing into a doomed project, we knew as Venice. The Jesuit Counsil also has ten people as heads, this is because of the Sephirot and Kabbalah.

These rites you speak of are all services, some are elite (Arcana Arcanorum,) but others anyone can join, such as The Ancient & Primitive Memphis Mizraim Rite & Rosy Cross. The Arcana Arcanorum is a Rite that goes back to Atlantis. It is the highest of rites and its purpose is to give offspring to the 'superhumans'. You must possess a special DNA to be allowed to have the ritual orgy.

Within a Church in Rome, where at day people pray to Jesus Christ, and at night elites have an extravagant orgy which can involve children. It happens in the Spring after the 'rite of Spring', during which time a virgin is sacrificed and her blood is drunk on a Christian altar, and then the orgy begins. The child must be born after the Winter Solstice, just like Jesus.

-Anonymous

craig-oxley - October 11, 2009 02:09 PM (GMT)

In the high occult circles, it is known that Alessandro Farnese held the 'Philosopher's Stone' . His personality is worshipped within the Cult of August and the great Arcanum rite of Atlantis. Most of us didn't even hear of him before initiation. The strange thing is that he invented the Jesuit order. The Jesuit order is the ultimate power on Earth, so I can only imagine that Farnese must have been very powerful. Higher sages within the Arcanum even go to the extent of claiming that Alessandro is still alive, therefore the Jesuits have remained powerful. Most of the other older have lost their edge , but the Jesuits are as powerful as when they first appeared. Venice which was the most anti-Jesuit city is now trapped by Jesuits everywhere. We have to find these Farnese's and torture them to death.

-Anonymous

craig-oxley - October 12, 2009 09:31 AM (GMT)

Back in the 80's, my professor often talked about the power of the Secret Council of Ten. I haven't heard of them since then to now.

-Lenny Bloom

craig-oxley - October 12, 2009 09:35 AM (GMT)

The council is quite small. Ten people, none of whom, are known by name. We have our own hunches of who is on the council. They take the rite seriously. As I said before, someone gets pregnant, and they are nurtured by members of the order. Other nobles are invited in if they possess 7 generations of VALID nobilty. Once you become a member the dues are very expensive and its not worth it in the end. Power isn't an free as one can falsely imagine. It's called Pornocracy

-Anonymous

soulinspiration - May 4, 2010 11:21 AM (GMT)

I just did a search for "Arcana Arcanorum Memphis Misraim" & clicked on the following link:

http://sites.google.com/site/memphismizraimbg/a-a-

Now Craig: If you, Greg Wolveshater, V or anyone else reading this who are on my mailing list go back through their emails to 29 December 2009, they will see that I posted a copy of this page (along with others from this same Memphis Misraim of Bulgaria site under the following title:

A.·.A.·.: ARCANA ARCANORUM - SCIENTIFIC ILLUMINISM

Now: Below I will post the second paragraph as it read back then (italics given are in the original):

QUOTE

A.·.A.·. is the one true and invisible Order which has operated under various names and guises throughout history to guide the spiritual evolution of humanity. The goals of the A.·.A.·. are those which have motivated spiritual exploration and religious inquiry throughout human history. Its methods are those of science; its aims are those of religion. It is the Arcanum Arcanorum, and the Holy of Holies wherein the Sacred Ark rests inviolate. Every legitimate magical order, mystery school, religion, or other agency disseminating some portion of Wisdom or Light is or has been but an Outer Vehicle of this Inner Fellowship of Light.

Now note this quote from your correspondent above:

QUOTE

These rites you speak of are all services, some are elite (Arcana Arcanorum,) but others anyone can join, such as The Ancient & Primitive Memphis Mizraim Rite & Rosy Cross. The Arcana Arcanorum is a Rite that goes back to Atlantis. It is the highest of rites and its purpose is to give offspring to the 'superhumans'. You must possess a special DNA to be allowed to have the ritual orgy.

Notice now how the paragraph that I quote above from that Memphis-Misraim site has been amended with the following addition added after the reference to the "Inner Fellowship of Light" (all italics given are as in the original):

QUOTE

The Arcana Arcanorum is a elite Rite that goes back to Atlantis. It is the highest of Rites and its purpose is to give offspring to the 'superhumans'. You must possess a special DNA to join.

This amendment seems to have taken place between my email post from September 2009 & Marco Ponce's post on the topic which includes a screenshot from the above source that includes the newly added reference:

http://marcoponce.com/2010/01/thievery-cor...C2%B7-a-%C2%B7/

This made me recall how Map (poster at UHM) wrote at:

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=25690

QUOTE

i emailed the webmaster at The Acient and Primitive Rite of Memphis and Misraim
Bulgarian Sovereign Sanctuary

E-mail: balcanmaster@yahoo.com

... i ask to see if they have any info on the ancient rite of atlantis.

To which Map added in the following post:

QUOTE

soulinspiration, you'd be interested to find out that I've received a quick response back from the site contact and here's the transcript.

QUOTE

Well I have to commend you taking my question seriously and providing a timely reponse.

Your website has definitely cleared up some conceptions about the rites of masonry and connections between them all.

Would you be so kind as to share some of the A.:.A.:. Rite of Atlantis info with me even though I'm not initiated in any rite?

My current understanding on the subject is that the council of 10 within the rite are those with proven bloodlines that goes back to Egypt. I also am aligned with the idea that everything goes back to Atlantis.

From your knowledge how does it go chronologically from Atlantis to Cannan to Sumeria to Babylon and then to Egypt?

Kind regards,
MAP

QUOTE

On Dec 30, 2009, at 9:08 AM, Mihail Georgiev <balcanmaster@yahoo.com> wrote:

> Yes, we have some information on the Ancient Rites of Atlantis.
>
> --- On Wed, 12/30/09,  MAP  wrote:
>
>
> From:  MAP ***
> Subject: great website
> To: balcanmaster@yahoo.com
> Date: Wednesday, December 30, 2009, 7:43 AM
>
> Would you have any information on the Ancient Rite of Atlantis?

Seems like someone at the Bulgarian Memphis Misraim Rite has a great sense of humour & has read both of the above threads at the Unhived Mind!

The fact that is most relevant is that doing a search for "arcana arcanorum atlantis" proves that in the top 100 hits that come up, the only ones that actually feature "arcana arconorum" & "atlantis" in the same sentence are clearly derived from the Unhived Mind postings on the matter.

As Craig wrote: "Do not be deceived by the Arcana Arcanorum Rite of Atlantis..."

In fact the Arcana Arconorum makes up the 87th to 90th degrees of the Memphis-Misraim Rite. For some "from the horse's mouth" information on & context on the Memphis-Misraim Rite historically, globally, in terms of degrees worked & in connection with French Masonic "obediences" see:

http://www.gnostique.net/initiation/_M&MBooklet_.pdf

QUOTE

THE RITE OF MEMPHIS-MISRAIM

The Rites of Memphis and Misraïm, until 1881, followed parallel roads and even in concert in the same particular climate. Indeed, the Rites begin to regroup Masons of the Grand Orient of France and of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite who were interested by the studies of the esoterics of Masonic symbolism: Gnosis, Kabbalah, even Hermetics and Occultism. Now, these two Rites had inherited and were the depositors of the old initiatic Obediences of the 18th Century: The Rite of Philalethes, The Rite of Philadelphia, The Hermetic Rite, The Primitive Rite, etc., and all this represented, in Misraïm: 90 Degrees; and in Memphis: 95 Degrees. How to administer and use this ill-assorted ensemble? When Garibaldi was appointed the first International Grand Master, “ad vitam” (the Brothers abroad had not suffered the political persecutions like in France), a kind of classification was made, which was not hierarchical in the beginning but which quickly became such. In fact, the 95 Degrees of the Rite of Memphis-Misraïm should be considered an ambulatory where rests old Masonic Degrees that are not practiced anymore, or very little, and not as a scale of values.

Furthermore, the agreements of 1863 with the Grand Orient of France, and of 1896 with the Grand Lodge of the Scottish Rite, which was to become the the Grand Lodge of France, speak only of the classical 33 Degrees (Rite of Perfection, followed by the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite).

The Memphis-Misraïm higher Degree Workshops must work: the 4th Degree (Secret Master), the 9th Degree (Master Elect of Nine), the 13th Degree (Royal Arch), the 14th Degree (Grand Elect of the Sacred Vault), the 18th degree (Knight Rose-Croix), the 28th Degree (Knight of the Sun), the 30th Degree (Knight Kadosh), the 32nd Degree (Prince of the Royal Secret), and the 33rd Degree (Sovereign Grand Inspector General). The 66th Degree (Patriarch Grand Consecrator) is conferred only to certain Brothers who could be called upon to act as Consecrator, and a certain particular preparation is required. Some have compared it to an Episcopal Consecration.

The 87th, 88th, 89th, and 90th Degrees comprise what is referred to in textbooks as the Arcana Arcanorum. Those who are admitted to the 95th Degree become the protectors and conservators of the Rite as their name, Patriarch Grand Conservator, indicates. It is among them that the International Grand Master chooses the members who serve on the International Sovereign Sanctuary, supreme governing body of the Rite.

Additionally, the 66th, 90th, and 95 Degrees may be conferred on Masons in recompense for their valor, their knowledge, and their fidelity; the 95th Degree confers upon them the right to sit on the “Council of Sages” in their quality as Grand Conservator of the Rite.

Other Degrees, such as the Royal Arch, are not mandatory and are left to the choice of the Brothers. Knighthood (Chivalry) is transmitted to certain Brothers with the 20th Degree (Knights Templar or Knight of the Temple), descended directly from the Ancient Strict Templar Observance and the Knights Beneficent of the Holy City of Jean-Baptiste Willermoz.

The Lodges of Memphis-Misraïm work the Egyptian Rite. On their altars, they add to the traditional interlacing of the Compass and Square, the Rule, symbol of the Grand Architect of the Universe and of Divine Law.

Since March 1990, the President of the National Council elect insures the administration of all the Blue Lodges of the Rite in France and in the Associate Countries.

On the 10th of May, 1991, the French Obedience was admitted into C.L.I.P.S.A.S. (Center of Liaison and Information of the Masonic Pow-ers, Signatories of the Call of Strasbourg), thus registering its action on the sides of European and liberal Freemasonry.

The Rite of Memphis-Misraïm perpetuates its traditions of fidelity to democratic principles and to the initiatic Sciences.

The Rite remembers its dead with honor - the Grand Master Constant CHEVILLON was assassinated by the Vichy militia in 1944, and Brother DE- LAIVE, the Grand Master of Belgium, was beheaded by the Nazis the previous year.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

The Rite of Memphis-Misraïm actually gathers a few thousand members, mainly in Europe. It had, in the early part of the 20th Century, several thousand members in South America, but the political situation in the countries of that continent has been detrimental to all Masonry for many years and only recently has begun to spring up again. The Rite has Lodges in France, Belgium, Switzerland, England, Italy, Canada, the United States, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, Haiti, Australia, certain countries of Af-rica, Madagascar, etc. Since the first General Grand Master, Garibaldi, the direction of the Rite has been assumed by various Grand Masters, among them: Dr. Gerard Encausse (PAPUS), Charles Detre (alias Teder), Jean Bricaud, Constant Chevillion, Charles-Henri Dupont, Robert Ambelain, Gerard Kloppel and George Claude Vieilledent, the latter since August, 1998. In 1964, the Lodges in South America decided that the International Grand Master should be from a French-speaking nation, and that the Rite's general headquarters should be in Paris. However, as of the International Sovereign Sanctuary meeting of August 14-18, 1998, held in New York, it was agreed that the title of Grand Master “ad vitam” (for life) was archaic, and that this should be eliminated.

The President of the International Sover-eign Sanctuary would assume the title of International Grand Master for a set term of office, after which a new International Grand Master would be elected from among the Grand Masters of the various National Sovereign Sanctuaries throughout the world where the Rite of Memphis-Misraïm has Lodges. The individual thus elected would hold the office for one term only, and would not be permitted to succeed himself.

THE DIFFERENT FRENCH OBEDIENCES :

- The GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE is a federation of Rites. It was founded in 1773. Numerically this Obedience is the most important.

- The GRAND LODGE OF FRANCE was founded in 1894. All its Lodges work the same Rite.

- The GRAND LODGE FEMININE OF FRANCE worked, in the beginning, with the Grand Lodge of France. It acquired its independence in 1901.

- The INTERNATIONAL FEDERATION "DROIT HUMAIN" whose origin goes back to 1882, is an Obedience which gathers men and women. This International Order is represented throughout the world.

Other more recent Obediences enrich universal Freemasonry by their diversities, among these are, namely:

The GRAND LODGE TRADITIONAL And SYMBOLIC OPERA

The UNIVERSAL MIXED GRAND LODGE

The MIXED GRAND LODGE OF FRANCE

The ANCIENT AND PRIMITIVE RITE OF MEMPHIS-MISRAÏM maintains privileged relations with these Obediences. They have been par-ticularly developed in the course of the last few years.

map - May 4, 2010 07:33 PM (GMT)

everything seems to stem from the nucleus known as the A.·.A.·.

soulinspiration - October 6, 2010 11:57 PM (GMT)

QUOTE

IF MALTA IS ATLANTIS IT WOULD EXPLAIN A LOT... : E.G. PAPAL KNIGHTS OF MALTA INTEREST IN THE PLACE, ALLEGED JESUIT/MEMPHIS-MISRAIM ARCANA ARCANORUM "RITE OF ATLANTIS"

http://www.redicecreations.com/radio/2010/.../RIR-101003.php

Anton Mifsud - Malta's Ancient Megalitic Temples, Giants & Traces of the Lost Atlantis

October 3, 2010

Anton Mifsud joins us from Malta to discuss his research and work on Maltese Prehistory, the Megalithic Temples at Tarxien, Mnajdra, Gozo and the possibility that Malta is a remnant of the lost Atlantis. Anton is the author of "Malta: Echoes of Plato's Island", "Dossier Malta - Evidence for the Magdalenian" and he's been featured in Graham Hancock's "Underworld". We talk about the History of the Island, the waves of colonization and the different people and cultures that have been interested in the island and inhabiting Malta. We also talk about the legend of the Giants that is said to have built the megalithic temples and the mystery of Malta's long-headed skulls. Topics Discussed: The Ice Age, Stonehenge, Conquest & Colonization of Malta, SMOM, Tarxien Temples, Megalithic Temples of Malta, Phoenicians, Tyre, Crete, Giants, Elongated Skulls, Malta's Long-Headed Skulls, Astronomical alignments, Bulls, Goats, Cult of the Bull, Libation Wholes, Gozo, Straits of Gibraltar, Atlantis, Plato, Solon, Egyptian, 2000 B.C., Noah's Flood and more. In hour two we discuss diving and finds in the water around the island. We talk about the carved irrigation canals found on the island, the Vatican archives, references to Atlantis, de' Medici, Minoan Civilization, Crete & Cretans, Bull Sacrifice, The Boat Building Industry, The Maltese Language, Trilithons & Giants and what Anton think of Göbleki Tepe in Turkey.

http://www.redicecreations.com/radio/2010/...101003-SUB.html

Anton Mifsud - Malta's Mysterious Pre-History, Crete, Minoans & Evidence for Atlantis

October 3, 2010

We discuss if there's has been any diving taking place around Malta and what some of the underwater finds have been. Who else have been interested in the finds at Malta? We proceed to discuss the irrigation canals found on the island that probably have been carved by man. Anton also got access to the Vatican archives and went looking for further references to Atlantis, we discuss some of his finds. We talk about the literature of House of Medici, the Minoan Civilization, Crete, Bull Sacrifice and the origins of the Maltese language. We ask how some of the trilithons have been put into place and if there is something to the theory of the giants. Topics Discussed: Sunken Temples, Features of Atlantis, Okinawa, Channels in Malta's Mountain's, Irrigation canals, Vatican Archives, De Medici, Corpus Hermeticum, St Paul, Christian History, Minoan Civilization, Heinrich Schliemann, Arthur Evans, Agean, Bull Sacrifice, Boat Building Industry, Crete & Cretans, Maltese Language, Giants, Gods, Trilithons, Göbleki Tepe and more. Don't miss this second hour with Anton.

FORUM THREAD ON THE ALLEGED "RITE OF ATLANTIS":

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=21354

KNIGHTS OF MALTA WIKIPEDIA ENTRY:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Knights_of_Malta

soulinspiration - October 26, 2010 11:52 PM (GMT)

http://www.illuminati-news.com/Articles/31.html

http://leozagami.wordpress.com/2008/04/25/...the-illuminati/

QUOTE

THE ILLUMINATI:

The Memphis, The Mizraïm and The Arcana Arcanorum of the Illuminati
by Leo Zagami, Dec 14, 2007

This Rite is closely connected to the Jesuits and the Knights of Malta trough Cagliostro and his misterious Master the Prince of San Severo :

A brief introduction from Wiki:

From as early as 1738, one can find traces of this Rite filled with alchemical, occult and Egyptian references, with a structure of 90 degrees. Joseph Balsamo, called Cagliostro, a key character of his time, gave the Rite the impulse necessary for its development. Very close to the Grand Master of the Order of the Knights of Malta, Manuel Pinto de Fonseca,[citation needed] Cagliostro founded the Rite of High Egyptian Masonry in 1784. He received, between 1767 and 1775, from Sir Knight Luigi d'Aquino, the brother of the national Grand Master of Neapolitan Masonry, the Arcana Arcanorum, which are three very high hermetic degrees. In 1788, he introduced them into the Rite of Misraïm and gave a patent to this Rite.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Rite_of_Memphis-Misraim

CAGLIOSTRO AND THE ILLUMINATI TEACHINGS FROM NAPLES

The hermetic society - which continued in the centuries under different denominations - known as "Neapolitan School", claims the right to be the oldest Alchemical Transmutation School in the West up to today.

In the times of Emperor Augustus a small Egyptian-Jewish colony settled in Naples (in the area known today as Piazza Nilo) where for over two thousand years the oral transmission of transmutation techniques imported from their own land got perpetuated.

According to a rather forcedly approximate reconstruction, we know today that there were three teaching levels. In the first level, theoretically, one could learn the fundamentals of Hermetism: the analog science, symbolism (which in the Neapolitan School was extremely rich and detailed with respect to other hermetic schools) and also the “art of memory”.

In the second level one could start the real transmutation work and according to a superb technique –of mitraic ancient origin characterized by a special kind of sexual magic called “osiridean”.

In the third level, the transmutation student could use two techniques of individual mastering for the purpose of giving him superior mental powers and starting the regeneration of the physical body.

Because of their secret connection to the Jesuits and their links to Freemasonry and the Knights of Malta , around the middle of the eighteen century this illuminati School decided to originate three systems of High Masonic Ranks, each allegorically describing the symbolism of the three levels of teaching: the Rite of Memphis for the first level, the Rite of Mizraïm for the second and the Egyptian Freemasonry.

The Memphis and Mizraïm Rites both started in Naples through the work of a number of remarkable people from the School. Among them we remember Prince Raimondo Sangro di San Severo (1710-1771) who commissioned the building of the extraordinary hermetic monument, San Severo Chapel in Naples, and Baron Henry Theodore de Tschoudi (1724-1769) author of the Masonic catechism “The Flaming Star” .Between the two Rituals, the Memphis Ritual was entirely speculative from the very beginning. No transmutation operative ritual was to be found besides its very rich symbolic content.

The Mizraïm Rite instead was retaining and practicing from the begining in its higher ranks the influence of some of the most influential osiridean rituals of the School: the so called Stair of Naples, or “Arcana Arcanorum”. Pretty soon both of the Rites started to be part of the international Freemasonic conspiracy created to help the Jesuit cause (where they could spread thanks to Jesuit friend Jean–Marie Ragon, the famous historian of the Scottish Ritual) .Very similar to each other, Memphis and Mizraïm Rites melted together and eventually they separated several times during the course of events. The definitive fusion, in 1908, originated what regular Freemasonry recognizes today as “Ancient and Primitive Memphis and Misraim Rite”. The Arcana of the illuminati of Memphis and Mizraïm kept on being handed on through different screen-organizations connected to the School in deep secrecy. In 1897, in Paris, the occultist Sedir (Yvon Le Loup; 1871- 1926) published the paraphrased version in a short essay called “The Magic Venus”, but the obscurity of his hermetic terminology prevented full understanding of the details. The complete ritual was not completely divulged until 1988, when a small publishing house from Milan published it in an unabridged edition, against the will of the School. The volume in limited edition, sold out after a few days.

To continue, the Arcana of the illuminati consist of three degrees or ritual cycles bringing to mastery plus a “High Arcane” (Secretum Secretorum). Their calendar runs according to the lunar cycle, and the 9 days of ritual fasting, during which one must follow complete chastity). The osiridean transmutation work is performed in pairs: by a woman and a man. The first degree performed by a man consists in a self–assimilation of his sperm, obtained by a self-sexual magic; the short cycle which is more used , covers forty operations, one every 9 days, during one year activity . As for the woman, the sperm is replaced by a microscopic sample of menstrual blood.

After the end of the year a third ingredient (differently diversified) is added to the sperm and blood and the compound is drunk over a cyclic period of fasting and light meals still insisting on these numbers: 9, 6, 3 and 1.

In the second degree these operations are repeated (with light variations), by combining all the three ingredients together.

The third degree is based on couple sexual practice where the philosophical amalgam (the three elements together) is “cooked” through the three passages called “Black Mercury”, ”White Mercury” and “Red Mercury” (three different sexual practices performed in pairs: one of sodomy, one without sperm emission and one during menstruation). A new philosophical amalgam will be obtained. Once it is swallowed it should cause the sprouting of the energetic body (called “Body of glory” according to the School terminology)

The final level or Major Arcane, is based on five retreats performed in darkness, each lasting seven days, with a decreasing number of sexual performances (9, 6, 3, 1 and then none, replaced by breathing exercises) where one comes back to the assimilation of one element only (sperm or blood) plus a third ingredient; the absence of light encourages the development of the body of glory and its strengthening.

Only after having finished this work could the illuminati transmutation student, from The School of Naples, face the advanced rituals of the third level, which Cagliostro has handed on through Egyptian Freemasonry.

The commission to create it was given to him by Cavalier Luigi D’Aquino (1739-1783) who according to the tradition was his initiator as well.

Cagliostro met him in Malta in 1766 and stayed with him in Naples in 1773, to receive the instructions which enabled him to found the Egyptian Freemasonry, in Paris, in the same year his master passed away.

The system he created is not, in Masonic terms, a Rite, but an Order: it does not deal with the High Degrees . Rather it deals with the three “Blue Degrees”of Freemasonry (Apprentice, Fellow-craft and Master) integrated with the thick hermetic symbolism Cagliostro added to it.

Later on because of this device, it developed as a kind of parallel Freemasonry totally independent from the body of the “regular” Freemasonry and practiced only in secret by the illuminati families. This fact allowed Cagliostro to admit women too, although still excluded from the “regular” Lodges, and it gave the necessary independence to prevent the danger of a forced suspension of the transmutation activity. This inconvenience was threatening the Rite of Mizraïm exactly in those years.

When the level of Master is achieved, an opportunity is offered to the Egyptian Brother or the Sister to engage in the famous “Quarantine”, two operations of transmutation, lasting 40 days each.

The first Quarantine: "How to achieve the Pentagon and become morally perfect" has to be practiced by thirteen Masters together. Strongly hybridized with magic-cabalistic elements, occasionally reminiscent of the Sacred Magic by Abramelin, had the purpose of sharpening the subtle faculties of the Master’s body of glory to give him the capacity to correctly explain the enigmatic instructions of the second Quarantine: “How to rejuvenate and become physically perfect”

The following text is almost the unabridged version, written by Cagliostro himself, as handed down from the many Egyptian Lodges still existing today (especially in southern France with illuminati Brothers like Jean Pierre Giudicelli also a member of the Monte Carlo Lodge) :

“The Aspirant has to retreat with a friend in the countryside on a full moon night and locked inside a room he has to suffer from a very exhausting diet for forty days time. The diet consists of scarce food based on light soups and tender cooling laxative vegetables, distilled water beverages or May rain. Each meal must to start with a liquid, a drink and end with a solid snack as a biscuit or bread crust.

On the seventeenth day of this retreat after a small emission of blood, he will start taking some white drops of secret composition. He will have to take six of them in the morning and evening, adding two a day till the thirty-second day. Another blood emission is taken on this day at sunset, the following day he stays in bed till the end of the Quarantine. Then he starts taking the first grain of Original Matter, the same that God has created in order to give man immortality. Because of sin, man has lost the knowledge of it. It can’t be conquered other than by a favor from the Eternal, and Masonic work.“

“After having taken this grain the one who is going to rejuvenate becomes unconscious for three hours and in convulsions he sweats and evacuates continuously.

After having come to himself and changed bed he must be fed with a pound of fat free beef and cooling herbs. If this food makes him feel better on the following day he is given the second grain of Original Matter in a cup of broth that besides the effect of the first grain will cause him a very strong delirious fever .He will lose the skin, and the teeth and hair will fall out. On the following thirty-fifth day if the patient recovers his strength, he will soak in a bath for one hour in neither cold or hot water. On the thirty-sixth day he will have his third and last grain of Original Matter in a glass of vintage and generous wine that will make him sleep quietly and peacefully.

Then the hair grows back, the teeth too and the skin gets healed. When he wakes up he soaks in new aromatic bath and on the thirty-eighth day he will have a bath in plain water mixed with niter .Later on he gets dressed and starts walking in his room, then on the thirty-ninth day, he takes ten drops of Balsam of the Great Master along with two spoons of red wine. On the fortieth day he will leave the house, rejuvenated and perfectly recharged".

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Apex of the Power Structure

Title: Apex of the Power Structure
Description: facade of Catholicism

treadingserpents - October 4, 2010 10:03 PM (GMT)

I was very pleased to see all this info about the papal bloodlines come out on here. I felt like there was something higher than the black pope controlling events. The main issue I have had in the past as well is I do not believe for one second that the ruling bloodlines have a facade of Catholicism behind the scenes. I believe at the very top they are just pure Satanists dealing directly with fallen angels. In Bill Schnoebelen's lecture "Exposing the Illuminati from Within" he shows in his pyramid structure:

Lucifer
7 fallen angels
the 9 "Unknown Men" (which could be the the Jesuit council?"
The Illuminati (really the Jesuits headed by the Black Pope"
The Palladium
and so on beneath that

I believe the top 2 are completely accurate and really the most important aspect of this whole conspiracy:
"[12] For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." - Ephesians 6:12

Without Satan, there would be no conspiracy. We are very close to their endgame NWO and the revealing of the son of perdition. The only thing that will get you through the tribulation ahead (unless you believe in the fairy tale that you will be whisked away in a pre-trib rapture and not have to be here during the reign of the antichrist :rolleyes:) is faith in Jesus Christ and His Word (the KJV). After the internet is shut down, the chaos erupts, the black awakening occurs, and WWIII decimates the earth, the only thing that will matter is will you worship the beast that will ascend out of the bottomless pit or not. The utopian Atlantis that will rise from the ashes of this chaos like a phoenix will entice and deceive even the stongest of the strong. At this point all of the fake

"christian" goats will renounce their faith for the pure doctrine of Lucifer just as Albert Pike predicted.

Heed this warning now: you will fail unless you "fill your lamp with enough oil to last the whole night" now. This means strengthen your faith in Christ(or get saved in the first place!) Heed the parable:

"[1] Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom.
[2] And five of them were wise, and five were foolish.
[3] They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them:
[4] But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.
[5] While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.
[6] And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.
[7] Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.
[8] And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are gone out.
[9] But the wise answered, saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.
[10] And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut.
[11] Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.
[12] But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.
[13] Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh." - Matthew 25:1-13

P.S. ATTN: Kalongi, I will not respond to any copy and pasted defense you post of the pre-trib crapture theory :)

kalongi - October 4, 2010 10:13 PM (GMT)

What for, I don't need to. The Bible teaches a pre-trib rapture, whether you like it or not, makes no difference. You either get it, or you don't. Nothing one can do.

People have been deceived into accepting this satanic mid / post trib crapture for some reason, and showing how it is IMPOSSIBLE to be mid / post to "supposed" brothers & sisters in Christ has became the same as explaining Muslims how Jesus is not a mere prophet. It is futile. I was definatly not going to respond to what you said about the rapture (because there is a proper thread for such subject). I'm also of the opinion that if people refuse to understand the sky is blue, we just have to let them go - if it makes them happy ... but since you brought that unfortunate "ATTN", I had to reply.

Your thread was decent at the start and ended up in a mess. "Welcome".

treadingserpents - October 4, 2010 10:17 PM (GMT)

LOL I knew you would reply first!

kalongi - October 4, 2010 10:20 PM (GMT)

Hi to you too.

treadingserpents - October 4, 2010 11:34 PM (GMT)

Sorry man, but I can't stand the pre-trib theory and once saved, always saved stuff. Seems like it is so common to American Christianity. I may seem like I am being harsh to you, but I just really don't want to have an endless debate with you because I've seen someone present facts to you about this subject and you still hold fast to your position.

kalongi - October 4, 2010 11:39 PM (GMT)

I don't think you understood the part that I don't care, specially when there's already a thread about it debunking all this mid/post trib non sense. Also the "Once Saved Always Insecure" heresy has already been taken care of before, yet I still see people bringing Hebrews 10:26 here to explain how we can lose our salvation (self righteous hypocrisy). There are people here who also deny the trinity, and it goes on and on. What can we do ?! We can try and explain, show the word, try to see the big picture but studying the context of it's passage related to "X" or "Y" doctrine and that is all, can't do miracles.

You say you saw someone else presenting "facts" to me but I guess you didn't see the other way around. Wilfully ignorant people usually see one side of the picture (the one they want), so then they say things such as "Sorry man, but I can't stand the pre-trib theory and once saved, always saved stuff. Seems like it is so common to American Christianity."

God has always protected a group of people before His judgments (ie. Noah, Sodom & Gomorrah), but no - not this time ! By having a good overlook of His past judgments, logic alone should give you a hint. The heck with those Christians who are suffering insane persecution in Muslim / Hindu nations, being burned alive, tortured, beaten, because they are still going to suffer the wrath of GOD right ?! Great God / savior He would be eh, ah wait - we are not appointed to wrath (1 Thess 5:9). Sigh.

I guess you can't even see the amazing fact that the Church is nowhere mentioned between Rev 4. and Rev 19 (His 2nd coming) either, or the fact that if the rapture is post-trib then noone will populate the Millenium but God's word tells us VERY plainly the Millenium will be populated - and on and on it goes.

Of course Replacement Theology - Satan's doctrine - has done an outstanding job confusing people (all post-tribbers are automatically - wilfully or ignorantly - deceived by this heresy), hands out to him to be honest, he knows what he is doing, and he knows this game a thousand times better than you or me.

I'm not here to take threads out of it's original context even if I don't agree with them. It is your opinion and you are free to voice it, but stick to what it is, and last I checked the "Papal Bloodlines" have zero to do with the rapture.

Very unfortunate "ATTN". Attention seekers have zero credibility in my book.

Phazon - October 5, 2010 12:40 AM (GMT)

I believe neither pre or post trib is correct and that the 7th Trump Rapture is correct.

The Seven Seals open the Seven Trumps and then the Second Coming happens at the Seventh Trump. Revelation 11:15-19

Then the unsaved receive the Seven Bowl judgements.

servant of truth - October 5, 2010 04:07 AM (GMT)

I would agree phazon

1 Corinthians 15:51-53 (KJV)

51-Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, 52-In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

53-For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.

very good post treadingserpents especially regarding once saved always saved doctrine of satan,

treadingserpents - October 5, 2010 10:19 PM (GMT)

Kalongi, I am not an attention seeker. I was merely stating that you shouldn't try to defend your pre-trib theory(and you ended up doing it anyway even though you said you don't care) because I really don't feel like wasting my time debating you. I wasn't kidding either so this rapture discussion is over :)

Phazon, I agree 100%. It's at the 7th trump and I believe that's what scripture shows.

By the way, I believe my post IS in the right section because it is not about the rapture. That comment was just a sidenote and my main focus was on the top of the pyramid (which I believe are the Papal Bloodlines).

Okay, so now let's hear some more people's perspectives on the top of the pyramid, the papal bloodlines, the jesuit council, and the role of occult societies. :ph43r:

me. - October 6, 2010 09:33 AM (GMT)

I dont think there is enough evidence to say the "Bloodlines" run the show, as of our current understanding.
There is definetly more evidence at this moment, to suggest that the Jesuits and it's "Black Pope" are at the top of the hierarchy. Obviously serving a Satanic agenda.

Ultimately, I believe "God" is in full controll. Knowing the "begining from the end", the "Alpha and Omega". God is not stupid, therefore: "Will not be mocked".

As for "Rapture", I agree: it's "Crapture".

Phazon - October 6, 2010 09:53 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (me. @ Oct 6 2010, 09:33 AM)
>
> I dont think there is enough evidence to say the "Bloodlines" run the show, as of our current understanding.
> There is definetly more evidence at this moment, to suggest that the Jesuits and it's "Black Pope" are at the top of the hierarchy. Obviously serving a Satanic agenda.

I also lean towards the "bloodlines" serving as the Council of Ten under the Black Pope.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The 13 Real Illuminist Gray Masters?

Title: The 13 Real Illuminist Gray Masters?
Description: Witch role do play in the bigger picture

14april2000 - July 3, 2010 09:25 AM (GMT)

Hello Craig,

Witch role do play in the bigger picture - in relations to the power of the 13 Papel bloodlines in your video? "THE REAL 13 ZOROASTRIAN BLOODLINES OF THE ILLUMINATI"

The 13 Real Illuminist Gray Masters?

Matteiano
Flaminio
Vaticano
Dogali
Solare
Lateranense
Minerveo
Macuteo
Sallustiano
Quirinale
Agonalis
Pinciano
Esquiline

_____

craig-oxley - July 3, 2010 10:49 AM (GMT)

You are speaking about their birth certificates not another set of masters. I will move this to my video in question shortly.

14april2000 - July 3, 2010 11:54 AM (GMT)

Yes im talking about their birth certificates

Question 1. I would like some more info so i can do my own research if possible?

Question 2. IS THE REAL 13 ZOROASTRIAN BLOODLINES OF THE ILLUMINATI : The 13 Real Illuminist Gray Masters or is it THE 13 PAPAL NOBILITY familys?

Power Structure among the 3 level elite familys ?

Halvor - July 3, 2010 05:22 PM (GMT)

I am also confused by this second list. I gather the list of names featuring Estes, Aldobrandini, Farnese, etc. are the papal bloodlines. I haven't yet grasped what this other list of names reference.

craig-oxley - October 5, 2010 05:00 PM (GMT)

He's talking about the list of birth certificates of this Nobility which you see as the obelisks of Rome. You know the ones where the Jesuits warned the workers that if anyone damaged the obelisks they'd be killed.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Developer Geoff Palmer has built 3 PAPAL named

Title: Developer Geoff Palmer has built 3 PAPAL named Description: apartment complexes in downtown LA!

craig-oxley - August 30, 2010 12:53 PM (GMT)

ORSINI, MEDICI, AND VISCONTI HAVE ALL BEEN BUILT BY THIS DEVELOPER... I WONDER IF HE IS SMOM OR EOHSJ.

ALL 3 BUILDINGS ARE LUXURY, ORSINI HAS OBELISK IN THE FRONT AND THEY PROBABLY HAVE NUKES IN THEM FOR WHEN JESUITS PLAN TO DETONATE DOWNTOWN.

NOTE THE FOLLOWING PDF FOR MORE INFO ON THE TEMPORAL COADJUTOR TO ROME DEVELOPING ALL THESE PAPAL NAMED LUXURY APARTMENT COMPLEXES: http://www.ghpalmer.com/files/corporate/00...s/gparticle.pdf

-Marco

Keith - August 30, 2010 02:28 PM (GMT)

he must be an admirer. stupid tool doesn't realize God is his true master.

michael - September 1, 2010 01:55 PM (GMT)

great post

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Trieste, Italy

Title: Trieste, Italy

craig-oxley - June 12, 2010 10:22 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<img src="http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/thumb/4/44/Collage_Trieste.jpg/800px-Collage_Trieste.jpg" width=500 height=500>[/dohtml]

Trieste

Trieste is a city and seaport in north eastern Italy. It is situated towards the end of a narrow strip of land lying between the Adriatic Sea and Italy's border with Slovenia, which lies almost immediately south, east and north of the city. Trieste is located at the head of the Gulf of Trieste and throughout history it has been influenced by its location at the crossroads of Germanic, Latin and Slavic cultures. In 2009 it had a population of about 205,000[1] and it is the capital of the autonomous region Friuli-Venezia Giulia and Trieste province.

Trieste was one of the oldest parts of the Habsburg Monarchy from 1382 until 1918. In the 19th century it was the most important port of one of the Great Powers of Europe. As a prosperous seaport in the Mediterranean region Trieste became the fourth largest city of the Austro-Hungarian Empire (after Vienna, Budapest, and Prague). In the fin-de-siecle period, it emerged as an important hub for literature and music. However, the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian Empire and Trieste's union to Italy after World War I led to some decline of its "mittleuropean" cultural and commercial importance. Even if enjoyed an economic revival during the 1930s, after WWII suffered because of the border changes and, throughout the Cold War, Trieste has been a peripheral city of western Europe.

Geography

Trieste is situated on the extreme limit of the Italian northeast, near the border with Slovenia, in the more northern part of high Adriatic and lies on the Gulf of Trieste.

The urban territory is mostly built upon a hill side that becomes a mountain: it is situated at the foot of an imposing escarpment that from the Kras Plateau comes down abruptly towards the sea. The Kras heights, close to the city, reach an altitude of 458 meters (1,502 ft) above sea level.

The territory of Trieste is composed of several different climatic zones according to the distance from the sea and/or elevation. The average temperatures are 6 °C (43 °F) in January and 24 °C (75 °F) in July. [citation needed]

The climate can be severely affected by the Bora, a northern to north-eastern katabatic wind that can reach speeds of up to 200 kilometers per hour. Trieste also has the smallest province in Italy.

History
Ancient era

The area of what is now Trieste was settled by the Carni, an Indo-European tribe (hence the name Carnia) in about the 3rd millennium BC

Subsequently the area was populated by the Histri, an Illyrian people, who remained the main civilization until the 2000 BC, when another Illyrian people, the Veneti arrived.

From 177 BC Tergeste was under the Romans. It was granted the status of colony under Julius Caesar, who recorded its name as Tergeste in his Commentarii de bello Gallico (51 BC). The name Tergeste derived from the Venetic trg and este; Tergeste was defined an "Illyrian city" by Artemidorus of Ephesus, a Greek geographer, and "Carnic" by Strabo.

In imperial times the border of "Roman Italia" was moved from the Timavo river to Formione (today Risano). The Roman Tergeste lived a flourishing period due to its position as a crossroad from Aquileia, the main Roman city in the area, and Istria, and as a port as well, some ruins of which are still visible. Augustus built a line of walls around the city in 33-32 BC.

In the Early Christian era it remained a flourishing center, and after the end of the Western Roman Empire (in 476), Trieste was a Byzantine military outpost. In 567 AD the city was destroyed by the Lombards, in the course of their invasion of northern Italy. In 788 it became part of the Frankish kingdom, under the authority of their count-bishop. From 1081 the city came loosely under the Patriarchate of Aquileia, developing into a free commune by the end of the 12th century.

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...st-Valvasor.jpg
Trieste in the 17th century, in a contemporary image by the Carniolan historian Janez Vajkard Valvasor.

Habsburg Empire

After two centuries of war against the nearby major power, the Republic of Venice (which occupied it briefly from 1369 to 1372), the main citizen of Trieste petitioned Leopold III of Habsburg, Duke of Austria to become part of his domains. The agreement of cessation was signed in October 1382, in St. Bartholomew's church in the village of Šiška (apud Sisciam), today one of the city quarters of Ljubljana. The citizens, however, maintained a certain degree of autonomy up until the 17th century.

Trieste became an important port and trade hub. In 1719, it was made a free port within the Habsburg Empire by Emperor Charles VI, and remained a free port until 1 July 1891. The reign of his successor, Maria Theresa of Austria, marked the beginning of a flourishing era for the city.

In 1768 the German art historian Johann Joachim Winckelmann was murdered by a robber in Trieste, while on his way from Vienna to Italy.

Trieste was occupied by French troops three times during the Napoleonic Wars, in 1797, 1805 and in 1809. Between 1809 and 1813, it was annexed to the Illyrian Provinces, interrupting its status of free port and losing its autonomy. The municipal autonomy was not restored after the return of the city to the Austrian Empire in 1813. Following the Napoleonic Wars, Trieste continued to prosper as the Free Imperial City of Trieste (Reichsunmittelbare Stadt Triest), a status that granted economic freedom, but limited its political self-government. The city's role as main Austrian trading port and shipbuilding centre was later emphasized with the foundation of the merchant shipping line Austrian Lloyd in 1836, whose headquarters stood at the corner of the Piazza Grande and Sanità. By 1913 Austrian Lloyd had a fleet of 62 ships comprising a total of 236,000 tons.[2] With the introduction of the constitutionalism in the Austrian Empire in 1860, the municipal autonomy of the city was restored, with Trieste became capital of the Adriatisches Küstenland, the Austrian Littoral region.

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...1/Borsa1854.jpg
The Stock Exchange Square in 1854.

The particular Friulian dialect, called Tergestino, spoken until the beginning of the 20th century, was gradually overcome by the Triestine dialect of Italian (a local variant partially similar to Venetian) and other languages, including German grammar, and standard Slovene and Italian languages. While Triestine was spoken by the largest part of the population, German was the language of the Austrian bureaucracy and Slovene was predominant in the surrounding villages. From the last decades of the 19th century, Slovene language speakers grew steadily, reaching 25% of the overall population of Trieste city in 1911 (30% of the Austro-Hungarian citizens in Trieste)[citation needed].

A small number of the population spoke Croatian (around 1% in 1911), and the city also counted several other smaller ethnic communities, namely Czechs, Istro-Romanians, Serbs and Greeks, which mostly assimilated either to the Italian or Slovene-speaking community.

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...Triest_1885.jpg
A view of Trieste in 1885.

The modern Austro-Hungarian Navy used Trieste's shipbuilding facilities for construction and as a base. The construction of the first major trunk railway in the Empire, the Vienna-Trieste Austrian Southern Railway, was completed in 1857, a valuable asset for trade and the supply of coal.

At the beginning of the 20th century, Trieste was a buzzing cosmopolitan city frequented by artists and philosophes such as James Joyce, Italo Svevo, Sigmund Freud, Dragotin Kette, Ivan Cankar, Scipio Slataper, and Umberto Saba. The city was the major port of the Austrian Riviera, an enclave, the only one very real part of Mitteleuropa on the south of Alps. Viennese architecture and coffeehouses still dominate the streets of Trieste to this day.

Ethnic distribution in Istria and Trieste in 1910/1911:

Union with Italy

Together with Trento, Trieste was a main focus of the irredentist movement, which aimed for the annexation to Italy of all the lands they claimed were inhabited by an Italian speaking population. Many local Italians enrolled voluntarily in the Royal Italian Army (a notable example is the writer Scipio Slataper).[3]

After the end of World War I, the Austro-Hungarian Empire dissolved, and many of its border areas, including the Austrian Littoral, were disputed among its successor states. On November 3, 1918, the Armistice of villa Giusti was signed ending hostilities between Italy and Austria-Hungary. Trieste was occupied by the Italian Army (warmly welcomed by the majority of the population) after the Austro-Hungarian troops had been ordered to lay down their arms, a day before the Armistice was due to enter effect, effectively allowing the Italians to claim the region had been taken before the cessation of hostilities (a similar situation occurred in South Tyrol). Trieste was officially annexed to the Kingdom of Italy only with the Treaty of Rapallo in 1920. The region was reorganized under a new administrative unit, known as the Julian March (Venezia Giulia).

The union to Italy, however, brought a small loss of importance for the city, with the new state border depriving it of its former hinterland. The Slovene ethnic group (around 25% of the population according to the 1911 census) suffered persecution by rising Italian Fascism. The period of violent persecution of Slovenes began with the riots of April 13, 1920, which were organized as a retaliation for the assault on Italian occupying troops in Split by the local Croatian population. Many Slovene-owned shops and buildings were destroyed during the riots, which culminated when a group of Italian Fascists, led by Francesco Giunta, burned down the Narodni dom ("National House"), the community hall of Trieste's Slovenes.

After the emergence of the Fascist regime in 1922, an official policy of Italianization began. Public use of the Slovene language was prohibited, by 1927 all Slovene associations were dissolved, while names and surnames of Slavic and German origin were Italianized by the end of 1930. Several thousand Slovenes from Trieste, especially intellectuals, emigrated to the Kingdom of Yugoslavia and to South America, where many became prominent in their field. Among the notable Slovene émigrés from Trieste were the writers Vladimir Bartol and Josip Ribi•i•, the legal theorist Boris Furlan, and the architect Viktor Sul•i•. Meanwhile several thousands ethnic Italians from Dalmatia moved to Trieste from the newly created Yugoslavia.[4]

In the late 1920s, Yugoslav irredentism started to appear, and the Slovene militant anti-fascist organization TIGR carried out several bomb attacks in the city centre. In 1930 and 1941, two trials against Slovene activists were held in Trieste by the fascist Special Tribunal for the Security of the State.

Despite the demise of its traditional multicultural and pluri-linguistic character, and the emigration of many Slovene and most of the German speakers, the overall population continued to grow. Even the economy enjoyed a significant improvement in the late 1930s, with development of industrial activities [5].

The Fascist Regime built several new infrastructures and public buildings, including the almost 70 m (229.66 ft) high Victory Lighthouse (Faro della Vittoria), which became one of the city's landmarks. The University of Trieste was also established in this period.

Several artistic and intellectual subcultures continued to swarm even under the repressive Fascist regime. In the 1920s, the city was home to an important avant-gardist movement in visual arts, centered around the futurist Tullio Crali and the constructivist Avgust •ernigoj. In the same period, Trieste consolidated its role as one of the centres of modern Italian literature, with authors such as Umberto Saba, Biagio Marin, Giani Stuparich, and Salvatore Satta. Among the non-Italian authors and intellectuals that remained in Trieste, the most notable were the Austrian Julius Kugy and the Slovene Boris Pahor. Intellectuals were frequently associated with Caffè San Marco, a cafè in the city which remains open today.

World War II and its aftermath

After the constitution of the Italian Social Republic, on 23 September 1943, Trieste was nominally absorbed into this entity. The Germans, however, annexed it to the Operation Zone of the Adriatic Littoral, which included the whole Julian March, Friuli, the Province of Ljubljana, Gorski Kotar and the islands of Krk and Rab. The new administrative entity was headed by Friedrich Rainer. Under the Nazi occupation, the only concentration camp on Italian soil was built in a suburb of Trieste, at the Risiera di San Sabba, on 4 April 1944. The city saw a strong Italian and Yugoslav partisan activity, and suffered from Allied bombings.

On April 30, 1945, the Italian anti-Fascist National Liberation Committee (Comitato di Liberazione Nazionale, or CLN) of don Marzari and Savio Fonda, constituted of approximately 3,500 volunteers, incited a riot against the German occupiers. On May 1, Allied forces of the Yugoslav Partisans' 8th Corps arrived and took over most of the city, except for the courts and the castle of San Giusto, where the German garrisons refused to surrender to any force other than New Zealanders. The 2nd New Zealand Division continued to advance towards Trieste along Route 14 around the northern coast of the Adriatic sea and arrived in the city the next day (see official histories The Italian Campaign and Through the Venetian Line). The German forces capitulated on the evening of May 2, but were then turned over to the Yugoslav forces.

The Yugoslavs held full control of the city until June 12, a period known in the Italian historiography as the "forty days of Trieste"[6] During this period, hundreds of local Italians were arrested by the Yugoslav authorities, and many of them disappeared.[7] These included former Fascists and Nazi collaborators, but also Italian nationalists, and any other real or potential opponents of Yugoslav Communism. Some were interned in Yugoslav concentration camps (mostly in Borovnica, Slovenia), while others were allegedly murdered and thrown into the potholes ("foibe") on the Kras plateau.[8]

After an agreement between the Yugoslav leader Josip Broz Tito and the British Field Marshal Harold Alexander, the Yugoslav forces withdrew from Trieste, which came under a joint British-U.S. military administration. The Julian March was divided between Anglo-American and Yugoslav military administration until September 1947, when the Paris Peace Treaty established the Free Territory of Trieste.

Zone A of the Free Territory of Trieste (1947-54)

user posted image

In 1947, Trieste was declared an independent city state under the protection of the United Nations as the Free Territory of Trieste. The territory was divided into two zones, A and B, along the Morgan Line, established in 1945.

From 1947 to 1954, the A Zone was governed by the Allied Military Government, composed of the American "Trieste United States Troops" (TRUST), commanded by Major General Bryant E. Moore, the commanding general of the American 88th Infantry Division, and the "British Element Trieste Forces" (BETFOR), commanded by Sir Terence Airey, who were the joint forces commander and also the military governors. Zone A covered almost the same area of the current Italian Province of Trieste, except for four small villages south of Muggia which were given to Yugoslavia after the dissolution of the Free Territory in 1954. Zone B, which remained under the military administration of the Yugoslav People's Army, was composed of the north-westernmost portion of the Istrian peninsula, roughly between the coastal towns of Ankaran and Novigrad.

In 1954, the Free Territory of Trieste was dissolved. The vast majority of Zone A, including the city of Trieste, was ceded to Italy. Zone B became part of Yugoslavia, along with four villages from the Zone A - (Plavje, Spodnje Škofije, Hrvatini, and Jelarji), and was divided among the Socialist Republic of Slovenia and Croatia. The annexation of Trieste to Italy was officially announced on 26 October 1954, and was welcomed by the majority of the Trieste population.

The final border line with Yugoslavia, and the status of the ethnic minorities in the areas, was settled in 1975 with the Treaty of Osimo. This line is now the border between Italy and Slovenia.

Economy

The economy depends on the port and on trade with its neighbouring regions. Trieste is a lively and cosmopolitan city, with more than 7.7% of its population being from abroad, and it is rebuilding some of its former cultural, economic and political influence. The city is a major centre in the EU for trade, politics, culture, shipbuilding, education, transport and commerce. Trieste is also Italy and the Mediterranean's leading coffee port, the hometown of "Illy Caffè" and the supplier of more than 40% of Italy's coffee.[9] The city is part of the "Corridor 5", which aims at ensuring a bigger transport connection between countries in Western Europe and Eastern European nations, such as Slovenia, Croatia, Hungary, Ukraine and Bosnia.[10] This will be also a great impetus for a further boost to the economy of Trieste.[9] Trieste is also home to some Italian mega-companies, such as Assicurazioni Generali, which was in 2005, Italy's 2nd and the world's 24th biggest company by revenue.[11]

During the Austro-Hungarian Empire, Trieste became a leading European city in economy, trade and commerce, and was the fourth largest and most important centre in the Empire, after Vienna, Budapest and Prague. The economy of Trieste, however, fell into a small decline after the city's annexation to Italy after World War I. But Fascist Italy promoted a huge development of Trieste in the 1930s, with new manufacturing activities related even to naval and armament industries (like the famous "Cantieri Aeronautici Navali Triestini (CANT)")[12]. Allied bombings during WWII destroyed the industrial section of the city (mainly the shipyards).

As a consequence Trieste was a mainly peripheral city during the Cold War. However, since the 1970s, Trieste has had a huge economic boom, thanks to a significant commercial shipping business to the container terminal, steel works and an oil terminal. Trieste is also Italy's and Mediterranean's (and one of Europe's) greatest coffee ports, as the city supplies more than 40% of Italy's coffee.[9] Coffee brands, such as Illy, were founded and are headquartered in the city. Currently, Trieste is one of Europe's most important ports and centres for trade and transport, with Trieste being part of the "Corridor 5" plan, to create a bigger transport connection between Western and Eastern European countries.[10]

Demographics

As of April 2009, there were 205,507 people residing in Trieste, located in the province of Trieste, Friuli-Venezia Giulia, of whom 46.7% were male and 53.3% were female. Trieste had lost roughly 1/3 of its population since the 1970s, due to the crisis of the historical industrial sectors of steel and shipbuilding, a dramatic drop in fertility rates and fast population aging. Minors (children aged 18 and younger) totalled 13.78% of the population compared to pensioners who number 27.9%. This compares with the Italian average of 18.06% (minors) and 19.94% (pensioners). The average age of Trieste residents is 46 compared to the Italian average of 42. In the five years between 2002 and 2007, the population of Trieste declined by 3.5%, while Italy as a whole grew by 3.85%. However, in the last two years the city shown signs of stabilizing thanks to growing immigration fluxes. The crude birth rate in Trieste is only 7.63 per 1,000, one of the lowest in eastern Italy, while the Italian average is 9.45 births. [citation needed]

Today, Trieste is a border town. The population is an ethnic mix of the neighbouring regions. The dominant local dialect of Trieste is called Triestine language ("Triestin" - pronounced [tri•s•tin]), a form of Venetian. This dialect and the official Italian language are spoken in the city, while Slovene is spoken in some of the immediate suburbs. The Triestin is considered autochthonous of the area. There are also small numbers of Serbian,[13] Croatian, German, and Hungarian speakers. [citation needed]

At the end of 2009, ISTAT estimated that there were 15,795 foreign born residents in Trieste, representing 7.7% of the total city population. The largest autochthonous minority are Slovenes, but there is also a large immigrant group from other Balkan nations (particularly nearby Croatia, Albania and Romania): 4.95%, Asia: 0.52%, and sub-saharan Africa: 0.2%. Serbian community consists of both autochthonous[14] and immigrant groups.[15] and immigrant groups.[16] Trieste is predominantly Roman Catholic, but also has large numbers of Orthodox Christians due to the city's large migrant population from Eastern Europe and its Balkan influence. [citation needed]

The city's most spoken language is Italian though there are some Slovene, Venetian and Friulian language speakers. [citation needed] There are also very little groups of German, Istro-Romanians and Hungarian speakers. [citation needed]

Main sights

[dohtml]<img src="http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/thumb/6/6a/Frontemare_di_Trieste.jpg/800px-Frontemare_di_Trieste.jpg" width=657 height=153>[/dohtml]

Trieste seafront.

[dohtml]<img src="http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/thumb/4/4e/Trieste_Piazza_Unita_panoramic_view_9923px.jpg/800px-Trieste_Piazza_Unita_panoramic_view_9923px.jpg" width=657 height=153>[/dohtml]
Piazza Unità d'Italia.

Piazza Unità d'Italia by night

Castles

The Miramare Castle.

[dohtml]<img src="http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/0/04/CastelloMiramare.jpg" width=500 height=500>[/dohtml]

The Trieste Cathedral dedicated to Saint Justus.

Serbian Orthodox Church of Saint Spyridon, mid 19th century.

Trieste City Hall.

The old city stock exchange.

Miramar Castle

The Schloß Miramar was built between 1856 and 1860 from a project by Carl Junker working under Archduke Maximilian. The Castle gardens provide a setting of beauty with a variety of trees, chosen by and planted on the orders of Maximilian, that today make a remarkable collection. Features of particular attraction in the gardens include two ponds, one noted for its swans and the other for lotus flowers, the Castle annexe ("Castelletto"), a bronze statue of Maximilian, and a small chapel where is kept a cross made from the remains of the "Novara", the flagship on which Maximilian, brother of Emperor Franz Josef, set sail to become Emperor of Mexico. During the existence of the Free Territory of Trieste, the castle served as headquarters for the United States Army's TRUST force.

Castle of San Giusto

Designed on the remains of previous castles on the site, it took almost two centuries to build. The stages of the development of the Castle's defensive structures are marked by the central part built under Frederick III (1470-1), the round Venetian bastion (1508-9), the Hoyos-Lalio bastion and the Pomis, or "Bastione fiorito" dated 1630. [citation needed]

Places of worship
The St. Justus Cathedral. Symbol of Italian Trieste during the Risorgimento.

The Serb-Orthodox Temple of Holy Trinity and St. Spyridon (1869). The building adopts the Greek-Cross plan with five cupolas in the Byzantine tradition.
The Basilica of St. Silvester (11th century)
The Church of Santa Maria Maggiore (1682)
The Church of San Nicolò dei Greci (1787). This church by the architect Matteo Pertsch (1818), with bell-towers on both sides of the facade, follows the Austrian late baroque style.
The Synagogue of Trieste (1912)

Archaeological remains
Arch of Riccardo (33 BC). It is a Roman gate built in the Roman walls in 33. It stands in Piazzetta Barbacan, in the narrow streets of the old town. It's called Arco di Riccardo ("Richard's Arch") because is believed to have been crossed by King Richard of England on the way back from the Crusades.
Basilica Forense (2nd century)
Palaeochristian basilica
Roman Age Temples" : one dedicated to Athena, one to Zeus, both on the S.Giusto hill.

The temple dedicated to Zeus ruins is next to the Forum , the Athenas is under the basilica, visitors can see his basement .

Roman theatre

Trieste or Tergeste, which probably dates back to the protohistoric period, was enclosed by walls built in 33–32 BC on Emperor Octavian’s orders. The city developed greatly during the 1st and 2nd centuries.

The Roman theatre lies at the foot of the San Giusto hill, facing the sea. The construction partially exploits the gentle slope of the hill, and much of the theatre is made of stone. The topmost portion of the amphitheatre steps and the stage were supposedly made of wood.

The statues that adorned the theatre, brought back to light in the 1930s, are now preserved at the Town Museum. Three inscriptions from the Trajan period mention a certain Q. Petronius Modestus, someone closely connected to the development of the theatre, which was erected during the second half of the 1st century.

Caves

In the whole Trieste province, there are 10 speleological groups out of 24 in the whole Friuli-Venezia Giulia region. The Trieste plateau (Altopiano Triestino), called Kras or the Carso and covering an area of about 200 km² within Italy has approximately 1500 caves of various sizes (like that of Basovizza, now a monument to the Foibe massacres).

Among the most famous are the Grotta Gigante, the largest tourist cave in the world, with a single cavity large enough to contain St Peter's in Rome, and the Cave of Trebiciano (350 m (1,148.29 ft) deep) at the bottom of which flows the Timavo River. This river dives underground at Škocjan Caves in Slovenia (they are on UNESCO list and only a few kilometres from Trieste) and flows about 30 km before emerging about 1 km from the sea in a series of springs near Duino, reputed by the Romans to be an entrance to Hades ("the world of the dead").

Others

The Risiera di San Sabba (Risiera di San Sabba Museum)', a national monument. It is a testimonial of the only Nazi extermination camp in Italy.
The Foibe (Fojbe) are notable and unique national monuments (foiba of "Basovizza" is a national monument). They are a reminder of the killings of Italians (and other ethnic groups) by Yugoslav partizans after World War II. The Yugoslav army is alleged to have taken revenge on Italians for Fascist violence, which lasted from 1920 until 1945, on the Slovene minority of the Trieste region (but Italians argue that Slavs were responsible of starting the violence during the Austrian times in the second half of the XIX century). Anyway, the issue remains a controversial topic for many from Trieste and only now is being know the full facts of what happened. *Source?
Civico Museo di Storia Naturale di Trieste (natural history museum) containing fossils of early man.
Civico Orto Botanico di Trieste, a municipal botanical garden
Orto Botanico dell'Università di Trieste, the University of Trieste's botanical garden
Val Rosandra, a national park on the border between the Province of Trieste and Slovenia.
Caffè San Marco, historical cafè in the center of the city.
Piazza Unità d'Italia, Trieste's central square surrounded by XIX century beautiful buildings.

Education

The University of Trieste main building. This section requires expansion.

The University of Trieste is a medium-size state supported institution that consists of 12 faculties, boasts a wide and almost complete range of university courses and currently has about 23,000 students enrolled and 1,000 professors. It was founded in 1924.

Sports

The local "calcio" club is called Triestina, one of the oldest in Italy. Indeed, the U.S. Triestina Calcio in 1947/48 was the runner up in the Italian Serie "A" after the champion Torino.

Trieste is notable for having had two soccer clubs participating in the championships of two different nations at the same time during the period of the Free Territory of Trieste. Triestina played in the Italian Serie A. Although it faced relegation after the first season after the Second World War, the FIGC changed the rules to keep it in, as it was seen as important to keep a club of the city in the Italian league, while Yugoslavia had its eye on the city. In the championship of next season the club played its best seaon with a 3rd place finish.

Meanwhile, Yugoslavia bought A.S.D. Ponziana, a small team in Trieste, which under a new name, Amatori Ponziana Trst, played in the Yugoslavian league for 3 years.[17] Triestina went bankrupt in the 1990s, but after being re-founded regained a position in the Italian second division Serie B in 2008. Ponziana was renamed as "Circolo Sportivo Ponziana 1912" and currently plays in Friuli-Venezia Giulia Group of Promozione, who is 7th level of Italian league.

Trieste also boasts a famous basketball team Pallacanestro Trieste which reached its zenith in the 90's when, with large financial backing from sponsors Stefanel, it was able to sign players such as Dejan Bodiroga, Fernando Gentile and Gregor Fu•ka, all stars of European basketball.

Transport

Maritime transport

Trieste's maritime location and its former long term status as part of the Austrian and Austro-Hungarian empires made its dock the major commercial port for much of the landlocked areas of central Europe. In the 19th century, a new port district known as the Porto Nuovo was built northeast to the city centre.[18]

In modern times Trieste's importance as a port has declined, both due to the annexation to Italy, for Italy's wider choice of better located ports, and the competition with the nearby new port of Koper in Slovenia. However, there is significant commercial shipping to the container terminal, steel works and oil terminal, all located to the south of the city centre. After many years of stagnation, a change in the leadership placed the port on a steady growth path, recording a 40% increase in shipping traffic as of 2007.[18]

Rail transport

Railways came early to Trieste, due to its port and the need to transport people and goods inland. The first railroad line to reach Trieste was the "Sudbahn" in 1857. This railroad stretched for 1400 km to Lviv, Ukraine, via Ljubljana, Slovenia; Sopron, Hungary; Vienna, Austria; and Kraków, Poland, crossing the backbone of the Alps mountains through the Semmering Pass near Graz. This railroad approaches Trieste through the village of Villa Opicina, a few kilometres from the big city but over 300 metres higher in elevation. Due to this, the line takes a 32 kilometer detour to the north, gradually descending before terminating at the Trieste Centrale railway station.[18]

A second trans-Alpine railway was dedicated in 1906, with the opening of the Transalpina Railway from Vienna, Austria via Jesenice and Nova Gorica. This railway also approached Trieste via Villa Opicina, but it took a rather shorter loop southwards towards Trieste's other main railway station, the Trieste Campo Marzio railroad station, south of the central station. This line no longer operates, and the Campo Marzio station is now a railway museum.[18]

To facilitate freight traffic between the two stations and the nearby dock areas, a temporary railway line known as the Rivabahn was built along the waterfront in 1887. [citation needed] This railway survived until 1981, when it was replaced by the Galleria di Circonvallazione, a 5.7 kilometer railway tunnel route, to the east of the city. Freight services from the dock area now include container services to northern Italy and to Budapest, Hungary, together with truck piggyback services to Salzburg, Austria and Frankfurt, Germany.[18]

Passenger rail service to Trieste now mostly consists of trains to and from Venice, Italy, connecting there with trains to Rome and Milan at Mestre. These trains reach the Trieste central station via bypassing the Gulf of Trieste, connecting with the Sudbahn's northern loop. International trains between Italy and Slovenia now pass through Villa Opicina, bypassing Trieste.[18]

Trieste will be connected to the Italian TAV railway network: a 300 km/hour fast train route is going to connect Trieste with Venice in the next years.[19]

Air transport

Trieste is served by Friuli Venezia Giulia Airport, located at Ronchi near Monfalcone at the head of the Gulf of Trieste.

Local transport

Local public transport in Trieste is operated by Trieste Trasporti, which operates a network of around 60 bus routes and two boat services. They also operate the Opicina Tramway, a hybrid between tramway and funicular railway providing a more direct link between the city centre and Villa Opicina.[20]

craig-oxley - June 12, 2010 11:31 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<table cellspacing="0" cellpadding="0" border="0" class="etext">
<tr>
<td width="70" valign="center" bgcolor="000000"> <FONT COLOR="99ffff" size="3" face="arial"> Craig Oxley </td>
<td width="619" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2"> Its interesting that this military shield carries a spear. Could this spear just be symbolism for the worship of the feminine side of wisdom stemming from the </td>
</tr>

<td border="3" rowspan="2" align="center" >

<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2"> Greek Goddess, Athena? This is where we get the owl symbolism of the Illuminists for all seeing and knowledge. Remind you of that clockwork owl from the Company of Jesus unHoly Wood in their 1981 movie 'Clash of the Titans,' by Desmond Davis? We see the red colour of blood, revolution and the destructive planet Mars known as the Greek God of war Ares. When the spear pierces the side of the feminine we get her menstrual blood symbolised as the symbol for the planet Venus (Lucifer) and the feminine.

Folks could there also be a subtle hint of the Breakspeare and Este families here I wonder? Remember the 'tri' is the trinity or the number three. This is</td>

</tr>

<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2"> where we get the triangle of the planet Saturn (Satan) guarded by his three fallen angels. Now going back to Athena its interesting that David Bowie has a 1993 drum'n'bass music track called 'Pallas Athena'. Now whats interesting was the album name with which this track comes from. We all know about the Masonic duality checkerboard of the black and white tiles. The title of Bowie's album was, 'Black Tie White Noise'. If we scan through the tracks on this album we see one called 'Lucy can't Dance.' Now the name Lucy comes from the Goddess of death, the planet Venus (Lucifer). The same way as the name Patrick comes from the God of death, the planet Jupiter. </td>
</tr>

<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2">
 </td>
</tr>

<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2"> If you watch the video to this Lucy song you'll see how much Luciferian worship is within. Take a look at all the feminine reflections of the other plane along with black and white symbolism. Don't forget to watch Bowie throwing the serpent fangs during the video and remember that the serpent is the sacred animal of Lucifer. Even the intro has a bird of Athena flying, you'll also see this bird later on in the video towards the end on top of the building. The video finishes with Bowie having his hair blown back by the air which is the realm of Lucifer under the number of thirty six, the circle known in the coded King James Bible as 'the enemy.' The air represents the raising of consciousness part of the rebellion against God such as practicing the occult. Just notice all those lights in the video too, light of Lucifer. David Bowie was one of many created by the mind controlling, Tavistock Institute. He's helped move people away from music which can aid the system and pushed them onto trash which negates the system known as popular music ready for the transition into the newer robotic transhuman electronic music of today. If you just study him you can see his role in the androgynous, alien, homosexual and transhumanism agendas. </td>
</tr>

<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2">
<embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/aW0XT5SbEII&hl=en_GB&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="342" height="340"></embed><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/OJSo9cYw0uw&hl=en_GB&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="342" height="340"></embed></object> </td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2">
 </td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2"> If we look into this Trieste location we find the headquarters of the United Nations backed International Centre for Genetic Engineering and Biotechnology created in 1983 and currently controlled by Francisco Baralle. Where do you think this organisation was launched from? Why it was the Spanish city of Madrid controlled by 'The Custodian of the two Holy Mosques' (King of Jerusalem), King Juan Carlos of Spain, of The Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem who carries the bloodline of the Papal Nobility, Farnese within his veins. Please study the Plenipotentiary Meeting held in Madrid on September 12th back in 1983. </td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2">
 </td>
</tr>
</table>[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - June 13, 2010 04:26 PM (GMT)

As for Trieste, I conduct business their as and visit often. definitely one of Europe most powerful ports controlled by Juan Carlos of course. He is the duke of that region.

Roman Catholic David Bowie, is a OPUS DEI member in Rome. I think xxxxx has mentioned that several times. We don't know if he is a Knight of Malta. One hundred percent, Opus Dei confirmed!!! All of Bowie's charities are backed by Opus Dei. Pope Ratzinger is a huge fan of David Bowie and Ziggy Stardust. Bowie has a beautiful apartment overlooking the Piazza di Popolo. I have met him three times; once in Siena, another by Castel San Angelo in Rome, during a festival, and here in Venice for our Genetics conference. Apart from seeming very liberal by the media, he is secretly right-wing. He just loves the Vatican and Rome!

-Anonymous

Halvor - June 21, 2010 11:49 PM (GMT)

I seem to intuit a peculiar cluster of illuminated minds stemming from or converging on Trieste. Jules Verne and James Joyce are pretty obvious. But add to those Robert Anton Wilson and Ann Shulgin and I certainly get a creeping sense of elevated consciousness in the best Luciferian tradition.

Could Trieste also be a global hub of the Illuminati's consciousness expansion agenda?

soulinspiration - June 22, 2010 01:35 AM (GMT)

Craig, my compliments on your very thorough analysis to a video to a song ("Lucy Can't Dance" - or whatever it's called) that is so dire that it should have ended Bowie's career overnight.

Surprised that you didn't note the 12-pointed black star near the door of the building near the start of the clip. That was the one thing that seemed conspicuous via being clearly unrelated to anything obvious.

soulinspiration - June 22, 2010 01:45 AM (GMT)

Note Bowie's son's t-shirt with the inverted black pentagram at the top centre:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Duncan_Jones

Halvor - June 22, 2010 05:02 PM (GMT)

I may have been wrong asserting Robert Anton Wilson to be among the illuminated minds with particular adherence to Trieste. I just remembered from his writings that he offered some meanderings on the city, but that could have been solely in relation to James Joyce to whose authorship he frequently returns in his prose.

Halvor - August 10, 2010 08:43 AM (GMT)

And now this: In part two of a YouTube video with rogue physicist Jack Sarfatti doing a presentation for the Theosophical Society in San Francisco, the following phrase is uttered, which would appear rather impenetrable: "I haven't been 86ed from Trieste yet.." Then there follows a lighthearted exchange with more references to people 86ed (or not) from Trieste.

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PnPy_fJCXvk (time: 4:15)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/86_%28term%29

Can anyobody here decipher these remarks with respect to Trieste? Why would Trieste be a household reference for Sarfatti and the S.F. Theosophical Society

Halvor - August 10, 2010 08:46 AM (GMT)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Caffe_Trieste

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Villas of the Papal Nobility

Title: Villas of the Papal Nobility

14april2000 - July 12, 2010 11:17 PM (GMT)

Villas of the Papal Nobility

Region: Lazio - Provinces: Rome and Viterbo

http://whc.unesco.org/en/tentativelists/351/

Lazio's countryside features quite a number of stately homes, or suburban villas, built from the second half of the 16th century onwards for the higher clergy and by members of the aristocracy connected to the papal court in Rome.

These suburban villas developed mainly in two areas: in the region's northern area, around Viterbo and in the South-Eastern area, on the Colli Tuscolani, an area that was already much appreciated by the Ancient Romans - namely by Lucullus and by Cicero - on account of its mild climate and strategic location not far from Rome. Because they were relatively close together and also because in all the projects the natural environment was clearly part of the original conception, these villas came to form a high level residential system that deeply influenced the development of the whole countryside.

Architects of great renown were called upon; among them Baldassarre Peruzzi, Antonio da Sangallo the Younger, Martino Longhi the Elder, Flaminio Ponzio, Carlo Fontana, Giovanni Vasanzio, Jacopo Barozzi da Vignola, Giacomo Del Duca, Girolamo Rainaldi, Giacomo della Porta, Carlo Maderno, Gian Lorenzo Bernini, Francesco Borromini, Luigi Vanvitelli. No less important are the authors of the decorations; and it is not surprising since these villas were commissioned by pontiffs and by the more influential figures of the Roman society who were accustomed to summoning artists such as Taddeo and Federico Zuccari, Cesare Nebbia, Paolo Guidotti Borghese, Domenichino, Raffaellino da Reggio, Agostino Tassi, Cavalier d'Arpino, Pietro da Cortona, Cherubino Alberti, Domenico and Tommaso Passignano, Carlo Maratta, Antonio Tempesta, Ciro Ferri, Taddeus Kuntz, Giuseppe and Domenico Valeriani, Ignazio Heldman, Pier Leone Grezzi and Giovanni Paolo Pannini.

A close relationship with nature is ever present in the decorations: cascades of flowers, themes centred on the countryside, reflections on the passage of time and of the seasons, airy architectural fancies framing spectacular views, loggias transformed into trompe l'oeil arcades with decorations recalling Antiquity and the Bible.

Main common feature of these villas is the great importance accorded to the vast parklands surrounding the buildings, where formal, "artificial", gardens are perfectly integrated into the natural landscape. Many of the estates were farms where the original farmhouses progressively changed to satisfy new requirements associated to social life and entertainment. Large-scale terracing then made room for formal Italian gardens; engineering works were carried out to supply water for fountains and water works; extravagant nymphaea were built and the villas now offer a vast range of this typical element. The very particular relationship with the environment is certainly the most spectacular aspect: each villa's design was conceived taking into account the surrounding landscape: existing oak or cypress groves were left intact and incorporated into the garden's layout; water falls were emphasized through excavations and earth-moving; sloping sites were exploited to achieve intricate jeux d'eau.

The following private and state-owned estates are included in this residential system: in the Province of Viterbo - Palazzo Farnese at Caprarola, Villa Lante at Bagnaia, Bomarzo's "Monsters' Grove" and Palazzo Giustiniani at Bassano Romano; in the Province of Rome - Villa Mondragone and Villa Taverna Parisi at Monteporzio Catone, the villas Falconieri, Tuscolana, Aldobrandini, Lancellotti, Sora and Torlonia at Frascati, Villa Grazioli and Villa Muti at Grottaferrata and Palazzo Chigi at Ariccia.

PALAZZO FARNESE at Caprarola (VT) - Palazzo Farnese was begun in 1559; the initial project by Baldassare Peruzzi and Antonio da Sangallo il Giovane, was later taken up by Vignola who adjusted it to fit the Farnese's rising political standing and fortune. The massive pentagonal fortress thus became an elegant palazzo with a fine circular courtyard and, in the interior, remarkable paintings, based on an historical and mythological celebration of the Farnese family, commissioned to renowned artists such as Taddeo and Federico Zuccari, Antonio Tempesta, Raffaellino da Reggio. The formal garden is structured on various levels and organized around a succession of fountains representing classical themes.

VILLA LANTE at Bagnaia (VT) - Villa Lante was designed by Vignola in 1568 and completed by Maderno at the beginning of the 17th century. Several rooms of the two elegant buildings feature frescoes by outstanding artists (A.Tempesta, A.Tassi, Cavalier d'Arpino). The formal Italian garden's layout follows the prospective axis of the sculptures decorating a succession of fountains. A vast park extends beyond the fenced-in formal garden.

MONSTERS' GROVE at Bomarzo (VT) - This suggestive monumental complex, unique in its kind, was created by order of Vicino Orisni on the slopes of a natural amphitheatre with a series of terraces descending to the valley floor. It is characterized by its larger-than-life fantastic sculptures - monstrous animals, grotesque giants, distorted architectures - that reveal a peculiar imagination and a taste for horrors that is typical of Roman Mannerism. Several inscriptions accompany visitors on a startling, thought-provoking, esoteric journey.

PALAZZO GIUSTINIANI at Bassano Romano (VT) - The villa originally belonged to the Anguillara; it was purchased in 1595 by Giuseppe Giustiniani, a banker from Genova who had been introduced to the papal court by his brother in law, cardinal Orazio Giustiniani.. The villa's present structure dates back to the beginning of the 17th century when Vincenzo Giustiniani had it restored, adorned with outstanding ancient statues and used it as a his suburban residence and administrative seat of the vast Bassano estate. The more important artists and architects of the day were involved, including Maderno who supervised the works and Antonio Tempesta, Francesco Albani, Bernardo Castello, Domenichino and Paolo Guidotti Borghese who frescoed the palazzo's vaulted ceilings and walls.

VILLA MONDRAGONE at Monteporzio Catone (RM) - The villa was built using the structure of the Roman Villa dei Quintili by order of Marco Sittico Altemps, nephew of pope Pius IV Medici. Works were begun by Giacomo Barozzi da Vignola and completed at the end of the 16th century by Martino Longhi the Elder. The more ancient nucleus maintains the distinctive features of a Renaissance palace-fortress; in the 17th century, Scipione Borghese summoned Carlo Maderno, Giovanni Fontana and Vasanzio who transformed it into a magnificent complex, adding new wings and fountains in the formal gardens. The "Giardino della girandola" or "whirl garden" deserves particular mention: it is a totally separate area with a monumental nymphaeum, designed to favour rest and meditation.

VILLA TAVERNA PARISI at Monteporzio Catone (RM) - The villa's original nucleus was erected at the beginning of the 16th century; in 1730-36 Girolamo Rainaldi added two lateral wings and so obtained two courtyards. A nymphaeum was erected on the hills behind the villa and connected to the upper formal garden by an imposing double staircase; the secret garden on the Eastern side was adorned with an octagonal fountain. Noteworthy are the second floor's terrace and balustrade and the decorations of the rooms on the first floor, featuring themes taken from antiquity, social life, hunting and landscapes, painted by renowned artists including Giuseppe and Domenico Valeriani and Ignazio Heldman.

VILLA FALCONIERI at Frascati (RM) - The original villa, Villa Rufina, was the first villa built on the Monti Tuscolani; it was enlarged in the 17th century, at the time of Orazio Falconieri, by Francesco Borromini., who transformed the simple country house into a impressive villa with a central edifice and two lateral wings overhanging the surrounding park. Later, also the park was restructured and enriched with formal Italian gardens on different levels, staircases, fountains and, on the edge of the forest, a particularly suggestive lake lined with cypress trees, created at the beginning of the 18th century. The villa's internal decorations are also noteworthy with frescoes by Ciro Ferri, Giacinto Calandrucci, Francesco Grimaldi, Pier Leone Ghezzi.

VILLA TUSCOLANA at Frascati (RM) - This villa was known as "La Ruffinella" from the name of its first owner, Alessandro Rufini. The original nucleus, built in 1578, was restructured by Luigi Vanvitelli in 1742 by order of the Jesuits who owned the villa at that time; two stories and a belvedere loggia were added to the 16th-century edifice which was also flanked by a new, long wing. In the 19th century, with Lucien Bonaparte, the vast park was completely redesigned: a Mount Parnassus was raised in those years and all the gardens were decorated with ancient statues and archaeological findings taken from the excavations conducted in the park itself.

VILLA ALDOBRANDINI at Frascati (RM) - This villa stands apart from all the other ones built in the same period; it was begun in 1602 by Giacomo Della Porta, by order of Pietro Aldobrandini, nephew of Pope Clement VIII, and completed around 1621 by Carlo Maderno and Giovanni Fontana. These same architects also built the succession of monumental fountains extending from the hill behind the villa to the grandiose "theatre of waters" below. The villa was conceived as a stage set, focal point of a superb formal garden structured according to a complex design of fountains, basins and pools where aesthetic aspects merge with symbols and allegories. Of great interest also the hydraulic devices, in particular the hydraulic organ, now kept in the Sala del Parnaso, and several frescoes by outstanding artists including Domenichino and Domenico Passignano.

VILLA LANCELLOTTI at Frascati (RM) - Built in the 16th century, this villa was restructured at the beginning of the 17th century and a formal Italian garden, ending in a nymphaeum, created in front of it. The present structure dates back to the 18th century when Elisabetta Borghese Aldobrandini and Filippo Massimo Lancellotti, carried out a complete renovation. The internal decorations are also noteworthy, in particular the older paintings by Ciro Ferri and, among the more recent ones a series of landscapes, depicting the family's estates.

VILLA SORA at Frascati (RM) - The original nucleus was erected around 1570 for Giulio Moroni, nephew of the cardinal Giovanni Moroni. When, in 1600, the villa was sold to Giacomo Boncompagni, illegitimate son of pope Gregory XIII, it was enlarged and richly decorated. Particularly noteworthy are the paintings in the Sala delle Conferenze ascribed to the school of Cavalier d'Arpino.

VILLA TORLONIA at Frascati (RM) - The complex, created for Scipione Borghese, nephew of pope Paul V, was begun in 1607. The villa was part of a vast park with terraces, balustrades and fountains whose construction involved Flaminio Ponzio, Giovanni Fontana and Carlo Maderno. The villa itself was heavily damaged during World War II but the gardens remained unmarked and maintain their exceptional variety of plants and the fine architectural structures, arranged along the central axis, leading to a particularly large and impressive theatre of waters.

VILLA GRAZIOLI at Grottaferrata (RM) - The villa was erected towards the end of the 16th century and then enlarged and restructured, up to the first half of the 18th century, by subsequent owners, Cardinal Peretti-Montalto, the Savelli family and the Odescalhi family. It features a number of outstanding paintings illustrating mythological themes and themes taken from the Old Testament, in particular the gallery decorated by Giovanni Paolo Pannini.

VILLA ARRIGONI-MUTI at Grottaferrata (RM) - The villa was begun in 1595 by order of Cardinal Pompeo Arrigoni who also commissioned the decorations of first-floor rooms, focussed on the Old Testament, to artists from Tuscany, including Ludovico Cardi, known as il Cigoli, and Passignano. The frescoes in the villa's left wing were painted later by Giovanni Lanfranco. The park is structured on various levels and shows an interesting historical stratification of landscape gardening from the formal Italian garden to an English garden created around 1850.

PALAZZO CHIGI at Ariccia (RM) - The present palazzo is a 16th-century re-visitation of a late-15th-century edifice built by Carlo Fontana and Gian Lorenzo Bernini, who was in charge of Ariccia's urban renovation. The structure recalls both the castles typical of the Ile de France and those typical of the Campagna Romana. The surrounding 28 hectares of parkland are the last fragment of the nemus aricinum dedicated to the goddess Diana which, in the 17th century, the Chigi family endowed with fountains, pools and an aviary built by Bernardino Savelli. Several works of art are still kept inside the palazzo, including works by Gian Lorenzo Bernini, Antonio Tempesta and Liborio Coccetti.
Justification for Outstanding Universal Value
Satements of authenticity and/or integrity

The villas are substantially well preserved, both as regards the edifices and the formal gardens. Damages caused to some of the villas during World War II have been repaired following methodologies fully respectful of the original techniques and materials.
Today, the formal gardens are the outcome of a succession of modifications conducted over a period of 400 years. The original structures have, in part, been maintained and subsequent enlargements and alterations, dictated by changes in taste, still form an harmonious ensemble.
Comparison with other similar properties

Lazio's ‘Ville Pontificie', or Villas of the papal nobility, form a system of suburban stately homes situated in a privileged environment; they are homogeneous as regards destination, typology and formal characteristics.. As such they are comparable to the Ville Palladiane in Veneto, to the Ville Medicee in area around Florence and to the Ville

Vesuviane in the Gulf of Naples.
However, the Ville Pontificie show a greater variety compared to the Ville Palladiane and Medicee; they were also built over a longer period of time and were destined mainly to social activities rather than farming. The Ville Pontificie have in common with the spectacular Ville Vesuviane a very particular relationship with the surrounding landscape, always taken into account as the all-important backdrop.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: ALDEBARAN - MICK JAGGER RITUAL DANCING

Title: ALDEBARAN - MICK JAGGER RITUAL DANCING Description: [THE ALDOBRANDINI WORSHIP OF TAU]

craig-oxley - June 16, 2010 12:07 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]<object width="480" height="385"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/zjrxxg_lZlk&hl=en_GB&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/zjrxxg_lZlk&hl=en_GB&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="480" height="385"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - June 16, 2010 12:10 PM (GMT)

Remember my little exposure of the Aldebaran song from the Rolling Stones a while back? Just come across this new video and I believe Mick Jagger is up to some occult work with his actions prior and after this song within the video. Keep an eye on his hand signals and movements its also very much like Tai Chi he's doing. We all know what Qi is and how important it is. I would like to know more on Jagger's actions and also what that clothing he was wearing in the original music video from years back mean.

craig-oxley - June 16, 2010 12:14 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]<object width="480" height="385"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/n8Ba3MjC5x4&hl=en_GB&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/n8Ba3MjC5x4&hl=en_GB&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="480" height="385"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - June 16, 2010 12:15 PM (GMT)

THE ORIGINAL

[dohtml]<object width="480" height="385"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/kAdOSdDUoiE&hl=en_GB&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/kAdOSdDUoiE&hl=en_GB&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="480" height="385"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - June 16, 2010 12:21 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]Remember folks we stem from the Lyrian star system
before it's destruction (similar to the Saturnalian
'Superman' stories of Planet Krypton).

Take note of the song below from the Rolling Stones called
'2000 Light Years from Home'

The AL-DEBARAN

The BULL'S EYE

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="344"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/tIGdWzXhqlo&hl=en&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/tIGdWzXhqlo&hl=en&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="425" height="344"></embed></object>[/dohtml]
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tIGdWzXhqlo

'Their Satanic Majesties Request'

Note this was the 6th album and its Satanic
with a picture of Satan himself

THE PLANET SATURN

Is that a persian temple I wonder?
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
To introduce new cults and continue to boost those already functioning which includes rock "music" gangsters such as the filthy, degenerate Mick Jagger's "Rolling Stones" (a gangster group much favored by European Black Nobility) and all of the Tavistockcreated "rock" groups which began with "The Beatles." To continue to build up the cult of Christian fundamentalism begun by the British East India Company's servant, Darby -John Coleman

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

TEXACO

Theres the TAU the bright star of AL DEBERAN

"THE SACRED GATE"

TAU being tied to the

AGE OF TAURUS IN THE PRECESSION OF THE EQUINOXES

Notice that Five pointed feminine pentagram of

LUCIFER
(THE PLANET VENUS)

which incidentally controls

THE CONSTELLATION OF TAURUS

Talking of the BULLSEYE

Remind you of the Britain controlling

BREAKSPEAR FAMILY?

The darts being the SPEARS/ARROWS

The BULL'S EYE being the ARROW piercing through the center of another ARROW.

Does the RED remind you of the TAU above?

Lyrics of '2000 Years'

Sun turnin' 'round with graceful motion
We're setting off with soft explosion
Bound for a star with fiery oceans
It's so very lonely, you're a hundred light years from home

Freezing red deserts turn to dark
Energy here in every part
It's so very lonely, you're six hundred light years from home

It's so very lonely, you're a thousand light years from home
It's so very lonely, you're a thousand light years from home

Bell flight fourteen you now can land
Seen you on Aldebaran, safe on the green desert sand
It's so very lonely, you're two thousand light years from home
It's so very lonely, you're two thousand light years from home
[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]

craig-oxley - July 6, 2010 03:41 PM (GMT)

It may interest you to note that Mick Jagger's son is named Lucas which comes from Lucifer, the Light-Bearer.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Illuminati bloodlines by Fritz Springmeier

Title: Illuminati bloodlines by Fritz Springmeier Description: Question about the bloodlines

yveloudon - June 26, 2010 08:32 PM (GMT)

Hello
I am in process of reading The 13 Bloodlines of the Illuminati by Fritz Springmeier. It has been very helpful for me, except for my returning to The Unhived Mind after a long hiatus (2 yrs) -something redirected me here yesterday!! I am grateful for this...
HOWEVER I would like to know if anyone here knows what Fritz is referring to in these bloodlines.. who is he? I know that he is a Christian man and in prison in Lompoc CA.
I do believe that the Vatican is the undergirder of all evil in this world, now more than ever before. My husband is from ROME and a Christian who never stepped foot in the Roman Catholic church in his life and I think that is because his father was imprisoned by Mussolini for 10 years for not joining the fascists...his father hated the pope. My husband always talks about how bad Catholicism is, and I have believed him but now more than ever my eyes are being MORE opened if that's possible.. yes it is possible== :ph43r:
Any thoughts or comments about fritz springmeier will be welcome.
God bless all of you

soulinspiration - June 27, 2010 01:34 AM (GMT)

Hi yveloudon

I'm going to go out on a limb here, as Fritz S. is something of a "holy cow" to a number of posters here. But consider a few things:

Fritz only ever paid lip service to the Jesuits having a role in the New World Order agenda & only ever lightly touched on Rome.

His task, whether self-appointed or an accepted commission (I came to the conclusion some time back that the latter is the more likely after several years of endorsing him) is to paint the N.W.O. "conspiracy" as Jewish (he sometimes stated Zionist, but uses the terms pretty interchangeably).

This in my humble opinion has set the truth-revelation aims of most within the conspiracy research arena (often misguidedly called the "truth movement" by many of those for whom this is a primary area of interest) back by many, many years.

The other "conspiracy theories" (for that's what they are, might as well tell it like it is) is that the N.W.O. is at the capstone peak level Anglo-American (see Webster Tarpley), British royal (see Lyndon Larouche of E.I.R. & Jordan Maxwell), German aristocratic (Chris Everard of Enigma TV & Alex Jones), Reptilian shape-shifters (David Icke & his fellow mind-controlled cronies: Credo Mutwa, Arizona Wilder, etc) or plain old "Masonic" (see anyone of a 1001+ names, I'll refrain from listing them here). Michael Tsarion hedges his bets & says it's a Zionist/Royal/Vatican fusion, where all three are actually at the top level known as "Atonists".

None of these theorists (& that's being kind, one could call them counterintelligence diversion agents) can give you anything approaching a detailed, structured analysis of how power manifests from the highest levels & exactly who these higher levels comprise. Despite decades of investigation, the biggest names listed here & a fair number of others are so vague about it that you wonder why they don't just take up knitting or weather-forecasting for a "hobby"/life pursuit/calling.

Fritz is really no different, with the exception of his several volumes of the fruits of his research (if it is his research that is), which are encyclopaedic in detail & often absolutely huge in size.

To my eye, which is always analysing not just the material, but the way its presented, who it's presented by, what we are supposed to believe about them, what the "subtext" (implied, but not always obvious conclusions which we are being steered toward) is, it seems that there are a few truths that are being left to one side.

Consider this: How does one get to be a "deprogrammer" of CIA ("Illuminati") mind-controlled slaves, without having been a CIA (or possibly another intelligence agency, such as Army or Naval Intelligence) mind-contol PROGRAMMER?

Makes no sense to me. It's not the kind of thing that one just stumbles into.

Springmeier has the support of a fair number of (mostly American) people who consider themselves to be "Christian patriots". Your average "Christian patriot" is being steered by CIA infested "alternative media" propagating conspiracy theories which mix in some real facts with a large dollop of bull-dung. My contention is that American television "programmes" & Holly-Wood movies have been of such a low level artistically, aesthetically, especially in terms of the acting & stodgy scripts that your typical viewer of such dross (not only American unfortunately, as this crud has been shoved down the mental "throats" of the general populaces of most "developed" nations by now) is now capable of believing almost anything that's presented to them. I don't know whether or not Adam Weishaupt actually said it, but he is often asserted to have stated "Oh foolish Man: What can you not be made to believe?" It's a great quote anyway & very appropriate here.

If anyone seriously thinks that Springmeier got all of his info from bulging filing cabinets & boxes of documents that were just given to him over the years & happened to be lying around (none of which seemed to give him any idea of Rome's unparalleled covert global power structure, whether via the priestly orders of the Jesuits & many, many others, Opus Dei, the Papal-loyal knighthood orders such as the Holy Sepulchre, SMOM, Constantinian Order, etc, or the Jesuits roots in the Alambrados & other Templar offshoots & their subsequent involvement in the beginnings of higher degree Continental Freemasonry in Paris, which developed into the Scottish Rite.

Seriously: How is Fritz Springmeier any more accurate than, ooh, say Hutton Gibson? Fritz "Bible-believing Christian" Springmeier was both an early supporter of David "Jesus Christ didn't historically exist, despite what Josephus & Tacitus had to say about him, or the stoning to death of Jesus' brother James" Icke. Note that Icke promoted Fritz & his work very heavily, even showing the cover (of what I contend is most likely a group/committee created tome, as I do Icke's own long series of large publications) of "Bloodlines of the Illuminati" on the projector screen for quite some time during one of his key post 9/11 6-hour powerpoint lectures that has been out on video for about six years or so. Even if one agreed with Icke & was a secular atheist with a hatred of the notion of Christ or anything associated with Christ, surely this would be a red flag in regards to Springmeier's own beliefs.

There are a number of attacks on Springmeier out there online, but rather than refer you to these (which are flawed & can be picked apart, do not cover my central points & are most likely put out there to divert attention from who commissioned &/or wrote his books & what agenda he truly served), I will give you a link to an article that really should help anyone who reads it to be a bit more savvy about these "brave heroes" who spoonfeed the credulous their adrenaline-activating conspiritainment (& I don't even LIKE the author of the piece, based on various accounts by people who've known her, however this is worth studying, regardless of one's personal predispositions):

http://www.sott.net/articles/show/204059-C...ive-Convention-

QUOTE

Case Study on COINTELPRO and Ponerization: Report from an 'Alternative Convention' Convention'

SOTT Editors
Sott.net
Sun, 28 Feb 2010 11:42 EST

Some days ago we received the following letter from a reader. We decided to publish it with a few observations of our own to illustrate the amount of disinformation the average seeker of truth needs to face.

Reader: [...] I attended the Alternative Research Community (Arc) Convention at Bath over the weekend, and I'd like to make a brief report. It was simultaneously good to be talking to people who were looking for answers, but at the same time, for me, it was also depressing. It seems the level of discernment out there is just... low, to the point of non-existent. There are many who seem to be basically nice people, including the organisers, genuinely looking for a path to knowledge and trying to navigate all the information that floods the alternative scene, but it was really hard work dealing with the simply huge problem of both disinfo and naivete. It is like they live in a whole different imaginary universe. The road to hell is paved with good intentions indeed.

People just assume that because they are on the 'alternative' side, they have the Truth and it won't be taken from them. This is a pity because quite a few of them do seem sincere, but they are like sheep under the guidance of wolves. Listening to so much crap from some of the speakers - while others were just too superficial and speculative - and seeing how much is uncritically accepted by the audience made me want to go have a shower by the end.
It's also very depressing that in conversations with other people there, they say they've been reading Dan Winter or Drunvalo Melchizedek, and talk about Project Camelot as commonplace, but haven't heard of Laura's work or SOTT. I'm glad PC has announced it will have an interview with Laura soon.

[...] Perhaps the most shocking single event for me was part of a discussion I overheard in a cafe between one of the speakers, a man called Ralph Ellis, and a small group of people. They were talking about Palestine and Ellis was basically arguing the Zionist point of view, he was extremely smooth and charismatic and used stone-cold unemotional argument, very forcefully and self-assuredly done.

From the Psychopath Checklist-Revised (PLC-R) by Robert Hare Ph.D:

Factor 1: Personality "Aggressive narcissism"
Glibness/superficial charm
Grandiose sense of self-worth
Pathological lying Conning/manipulative
Lack of remorse or guilt
Shallow affect
Callous/lack of empathy
Failure to accept responsibility for own actions

The book Snakes In Suits (Robert Hare Ph.D. & Paul Babiak Ph.D.) goes into great detail about how these characters can operate by sheer force of personality. This kind of dangerous suave charm can be characterized by a quote from C. S. Lewis:

"The greatest evil is not done in those sordid dens of evil that Dickens loved to paint ... but is conceived and ordered (moved, seconded, carried and minuted) in clear, carpeted, warmed, well-lighted offices, by quiet men with white collars and cut fingernails and smooth-shaven cheeks who do not need to raise their voices."

Before you wonder if we are justified to bring up the subject of psychopathy in this case, read the following.

Reader: I had never heard in a personal conversation such an inhuman view of things. He was arguing that the land belongs to the Jews because the Bible says so; that during the Six Day War the Arabs forced the Jews to grab most of the land; that the poor Israelis are being constantly manipulated by evil Christian and Arab conspiracies; that the Jews in Israel are under siege, so they have no option but to build a wall and send in the tanks to kill a few of them every now and then, which is perfectly ok; that the fact that there have been more Palestinian casualties only shows that the Israelis are better fighters, etc.

One of the other guys in the coversation kept bouncing everything back quite proficiently, but Ellis was so insistent that it got to the point where this other guy basically laughed down his whole argument as utterly ridiculous, called him a joker, then simply refused to listen to it any more. Which was excellent. [...]

This would seem to fit right in with the inhuman mentality that we see exhibited every day by the occupying forces in Palestine:

IDF soldier: "The best thing is that you're not obliged to follow any laws or rules. You feel like you are the law. You are the law. You decide. It's as if the moment you leave Israel and pass through the Erez Checkpoint into the Gaza Strip, you are the law. You are God."

So, what could cause a person to act in this way?

"When we see people doing such things, either on the news or in our own lives, who are they? On the rare occasion, they are formally insane, or under the pressure of some radical emotion. Sometimes they are members of a group that is desperately deprived, or they are substance abusers, or the follower of a malevolent leader. But most often they are none of these. Rather, most often, they are people who have no conscience. They are sociopaths."

"...It feels more democratic and less condemnatory (and somehow less alarming) to believe that everyone is a little shady than to accept a few human beings live in a permanent nighttime. To admit that some people literally have no conscience is not technically saying that some human beings are evil, but it is disturbingly close. And good people want very much not to believe in the personification of evil."

Martha Stout: The Sociopath Next Door

Back to our reader:

Reader: I later discovered this guy Ellis was not only a speaker but seemed to be quite involved with what was going on that day, moderating the time of speakers and chairing the panel, etc. So I wondered how many other potential 'random conversations' that I didn't hear might have shown similar things in other people??

Then I heard Ellis' talk and I found it to be insufferable rubbish. Basically he argued that Jesus was the great-grandson of Cleopatra, Marc Anthony and Julius Caesar (yeah, all of them), as well as the descendant of a few other Persian and Middle Eastern kings and queens; that he was elected high priest; that he effectively became secular king of the Jews but this 'fact' was covered; that he was no spiritual leader but a revolutionary, á la Che Guevara; and that he was exiled by the Romans to Great Britain, where he became King Arthur himself!!

His argument seemed to be founded on cherry-picked Bible quotes and a lot of rather random speculation moving dates back and forth and identifying different historical personalities with each other. Like another of the speakers, Alan Wilson, told him on the panel later, "that is all conjecture upon conjecture and you can build whatever you want that way". (Not that Wilson didn't provide his share of conjectures, to be fair, but at least he seemed to be better informed on Ancient History). That comment was addressed at Ellis's assertion that the stone of Excalibur was a magnetic meteorite in which swords became stuck - except for Jesus/Arthur's because he was smart enough to use a sword made of a different material, so he could withdraw it. I was pretty dismayed when in conversations with other attendants many seemed to have been positively impressed by Ellis. I can only conclude that this was because he had good presentation skills and a neat Powerpoint presentation. [...]

As an author, Ralph Ellis is described as follows:

Ralph Ellis is an airline captain with a distinctly lateral, open-minded view on history and religion. He has written five books so far, which purport to explain every last facet of man's history. Under this new concept, the pyramids of Egypt become the central cathedral complex of the early Israelites, who were, in fact, the Hyksos Shepherd Kings of Lower Egypt.

We find a similar description in the Arc Convention website:

Ralph Ellis was trained in mineral surveying and computer science, but after several years in the industry he decided to retrain as a pilot. Ralph's distinctly lateral, open-minded view on history and religion has allowed his research to proceed unhindered by historical preconceptions and doctrinal dogma. His books include; King Jesus, Eden in Egypt, K2: Quest of the Gods, Cleopatra to Christ: Scota, Egyptian Queen of the Scots, Solomon: Falcon of Sheba, and Thoth, Architect of the Universe.

It seems, however, that Ralph Ellis's interest in Ancient "History" is just a hobby. The above resumes fail to mention that he is also the president of the Congregation B'nai Israel, which describes itself as "A home for your total Jewish experience on the Southside of Atlanta" - not such a "distinctly lateral, open-minded view on religion", after all. But as our reader's report reveals, this man is not simply a devoted average Jew, but rather an unashamed supporter of the imperialist goals of Israel, i.e. a Zionist.

How is it possible that the same person who professes to be open-minded about religion and history is also a promoter of Judaism - a religion which is as dogmatic and mythological as they get? The contradiction is best understood if we examine the way Zionists have historically manipulated people - including Jews - in order to carry out their 'Talmudic vengeance' on gentile nations, as described by Douglas Reed in The Controversy of Zion'. According to Reed, Zionist inspired groups were responsible for revolutions with an atheist element, such as the Communist Revolution, as part of their overall strategy to rule over and undermine gentile nations and culture:

"The simultaneous triumphs of Bolshevism in Moscow and Zionism in London in the same week of 1917 were only in appearance distinct events, the identity of their original source has been shown in an earlier chapter, and the hidden men who promoted Zionism through the Western governments also supported the world-revolution. The two forces fulfilled correlative tenets of the ancient Law: "Pull down and destroy ... rule over all nations"; the one destroyed in the East and the other secretly ruled in the West.

1917 gave proof of Disreili's dictum about the revolution in its 1848 phase, when he said that Jews headed "every one" of the secret societies and aimed to destroy Christianity. The controlling group that emerged in 1917 was preponderantly Jewish that it may be called Jewish. The nature of the instigating force then became a matter of historical fact, not of further polemical debate. It was further identified by its authorship deliberately given to the murder of the monarch. All these bore the traits of a Talmudic vengeance.

[...] In respect of the leadership it was that for a long period before 1917 (as to later and the present situation, subsequent chapters will look at the evidence). It was not a conspiracy of all Jews, but neither were the French revolution, Fascism and National Socialism conspiracies of all Frenchmen, Italians or Germans. The organizing force and the leadership were drawn from the Talmudic-controlled Jewish areas of Russia, and in that sense Communism was demonstrably Eastern Jewish.

As to the purposes revealed when the revolution struck in 1917, these showed that it was not episodic or spontaneous but the third "eruption" of the organisation first revealed through Weishaupt. The two main features reappeared: the attack on all legitemate government of any kind whatsoever and on religion. Since 1917 the world-revolution has had to cast aside the earlier pretence of being directed only against "kings" or the political power of priests."

Could this be the reason why Ellis is presenting a version of a secular and warrior Jesus quite contrary to what is commonly accepted in societies with a high percentage of Christians?

Of course, there is also the Hasbara Handbook that lays out in detail the techniques that advocates of Israel are recommended to learn in order to propagate their message. These include, but are not limited to:

Point Scoring

Point scoring is a method of communication that prioritises making certain points favourable to the speaker, and attacking opponents of the speaker by trying to undermine their positions. Point scoring communication ought to give the appearance of rational debate, whilst avoiding genuine discussion. The aim of the Israel activist point scorer is to try to make as many comments that are positive about Israel as possible, whilst attacking Palestinian positions, and attempting to cultivate a dignified appearance.

Point scoring only works because most audience members fail to analyse what they hear. Rather they register only a key few points, and form a vague impression of whose 'argument' was stronger.

...

Seven Basic Propaganda Devices

Propaganda is used by those who want to communicate in ways that engage the emotions, and downplay rationality, in an attempt to promote a certain message. To effectively present Israel to the public, and to counter anti-Israel messages, it is necessary to understand propaganda devices.

[The Handbook then goes on to discuss the techniques of: Name Calling, Glittering Generality, Transfer, Testimonial, Plain Folks, Fear, Bandwagon]

Our reader continues:

Reader: Among the speakers there was the guest of honour - another bloke whom I found really hard to tolerate - Michael Tsarion, who by the way was more than happy to shower Ellis with compliments at the least provocation. [...]

It sounds as though Ellis' ponerized views have been successfully integrated into the 'alternative' milieu, corrupting it from the inside. We do not get any indication from our reader's report that Ellis' promotion of Judaism - which would reveal his double standards on religion and history - was ever openly mentioned in the event. Yet he has managed to earn a reputation as a respected alternative thinker. Andrew Lobaczewski writes on the process of ponerization:

"Any human group affected by the process described herein is characterized by its increasing regression from natural common sense and the ability to perceive psychological reality. Someone considering this in terms of traditional categories might consider it an instance of "turning into half-wits" or the development of intellectual deficiencies and moral failings. A ponerological analysis of this process, however, indicates that pressure is being applied to the more normal part of the association by pathological factors present in certain individuals who have been allowed to participate in the group because the lack of good psychological knowledge has not mandated their exclusion."

Lobaczewski - Political Ponerology, p. 119

So, we see the extreme necessity for discernment, and good psychological knowledge, when delving into the 'jungle' of alternative debate.

Lobaczewski continues:

"Thus whenever we observe some group member being treated with no critical distance, although he betrays one of the psychological anomalies familiar to us, and his opinions being treated as at least equal to those of normal people, although they are based on characteristically different view of human matters, we must derive the conclusion that this human group is affected by a ponerogenic process and if measures are not taken the process shall continue to its logical conclusion.

We shall treat this in accordance with the above described first criterion of ponerology, which retains its validity regardless of the qualitative and quantitative features of such a union: the atrophy of natural critical facilities with respect to pathological individuals becomes an opening to their activities, and, at the same time, a criterion for recognizing the association in concern as ponerogenic.

Such a state of affairs simultaneously consists as a liminal (watershed) situation, whereupon further damage to people's healthy common sense and critical moral faculties becomes even easier. Once a group has inhaled a sufficient dose of pathological material to give birth to the conviction that these not-quite-normal people are unique geniuses, it starts subjecting its more normal members to pressure characterized by corresponding paralogical and paramoral elements.

Simply put, the acceptance of even one pathological individual 'into the alternative fold' starts the process of 'infection'. This results in a corrupted (ponerized) world view combined with an atrophy of critical thinking abilities amongst the group, such that the process snowballs.

Once this process takes hold, it is very difficult to stop, much less reverse:
We know from Erich Fromm's theory of cultural patterning that even the most ludicrous and blatantly erroneous ideas can become accepted as unquestionably true. Not only that, this phenomenon causes those who are not deviant to experience themselves as such if they do not accept the deviant proposition of the majority. Thus there is continual social pressure on individual members of the group to adopt the socially patterned beliefs regardless of their validity. Obviously, this helps to explain the dominance of religion, as well as the many secular forms of madness that have swayed entire societies of people."

John F. Schumacker - The Corruption of Reality, p. 236

It is an irony that alternative thinkers who believe they have broken free from religious dogma regard the theories of some of their heroes with uncritical fanatism.

In The Protocols of Zion - probably better described as 'The Protocols of the Pathocrats', as they equally apply to all elite pathological groups in the world - 'Protocol 12: Control of The Press' goes into more details regarding the manipulation of societal belief patterns via controlled opposition and manufactured social proof (mirroring the techniques described in the 'Hasbara Handbook', previously). And 'Protocol 17: Advocacy' talks about how to fight the existing church, in the way that Douglas Reed alluded to. This document was obviously written with the benefit of in-depth knowledge of the workings of the human mind:

"There is nothing more dangerous than personal initiative." - Protocols of Zion

Our reader continues:

Reader: [...] Even Tsarion's clothes and mannerisms seemed to be meant to transmit that he is cool, rebellious and in charge (leather biker jacket, baseball cap, unshaved 'rough' look, chains, etc). (Similarly, Ellis is always wearing a leather hat, probably to get an Indiana Jones air or something.) From what I forced myself to hear from Tsarion, he sounds like David Icke (although he says he has many differences with Icke), in the sense that he talks about the Illuminati conspiracy, fascism and so on, and will then proceed to declare that there is no problem because in the end it is all an illusion, you can focus on your own 'spirituality' (whatever that meant for any of those present, as it was never properly defined by anyone, other than in airy-fairy terms), and no evil will be able to touch you.

Those two I think were the worst - because I felt they were probably wolves in sheep's clothing. [...]

An online biography of Tsarion reads:

"Described as a teacher's teacher, Michael Tsarion is a Divination Scholar and Sidereal Mythologist. An expert on Stellar Astrology, he is the creator of the Archetypal Stellar Taroscopic© Astrological system of Hermetic Divination, and founder of the online Taroscopic Mystery School. Michael is a descendant of a long line of philosophers, free-thinkers, ascetics and visionaries. His Himalayan born mother was a well-loved, internationally recognized clairvoyant, whose affiliates included Barbara Marx Hubbard, Sir George Trevelyan, Jerry Jampolsky, Elizabeth Kubla-Ross, Shirley MacLean, Edgar Mitchell and a host of other celebrities and academes. She attended J. Krishnamurti's premier college in India and was later honored as the very first clairvoyant to be a regular on Irish Television. The CEO of Britain's Independent Broadcasting described her readings as "devastatingly accurate."

Michael is also the grandson of Tara Singh, the renowned philosopher, author and teacher of the theosophic tome A Course in Miracles. He was the intimate friend of J. Krishnamurti (the World Teacher), Swiss architect Le Corbusier, Keith Critchlow, Alan Chadwick, Eleanor Roosevelt and President Nehru. He was entrusted, by the latter, with India's 5-year plan of restoration after British withdrawal. Tara Singh was also played a key role in the Rev. Paul Solomon's Fellowship of Inner Light, one of the first true American mystery schools. He now heads the Foundation for Life Action in Los Angeles.

Michael was born and raised in Ireland and grew up learning metaphysics from Krishnamurti, Rev. Paul Solomon and Peter Balin. Growing up surrounded by leading free-thinkers and mystery school creators he was under pressure to find his own authentic voice rather than becoming dependant on the systems and influences of others. He has honored his pedigree by dedicating his life to the deepest research concerning the seminal metaphysical sciences. [...]

Intuitive since birth, he was introduced to the Tarot at age 11 through Rev. Paul Solomon's premier mystery school - the Fellowship of Inner Light Movement and learning of its profound effect on the human intuition and its value as an empowerment tool, committed his life to bringing Tarot into the lives of others.

He has been affiliated with the Paul Solomon Foundation of Virginia and Rosicrucian Order, the Naqsbaandi Sufi Order, has taught indigo children at the New Age Academy in Berkeley and is frequent guest of Seeing Beyond and KEST, the Bay Area's leading metaphysical radio programs. He has appeared on The Quest with Peter Weisbach, on Seattle's Conspiracy Corner, on Dr. Stan Monteith's Radio Liberty, on Radio Alchemy, KKUP and The Hilly Rose Show, and made five hour-long programs with Bay Area's KMVT. He has been a guest speaker at the Boeing Parapsychological Society and at the UFO/Paranormal conferences of California and Washington where his presentations and lectures on Atlantis and pre-diluvian history, have been passionately acclaimed by veterans in the field, such as Jordan Maxwell, Lloyd Pye, Dr. Roger Leir, Peter Davenport, Robert Perala, and Glenn Kimball, etc,. His book, Atlantis, Alien Visitation and Genetic Manipulation seeks to correct the plethora of disinformation regarding Atlantis and the pre-diluvian epochs and addresses the exact reasons why human beings are finding themselves, existentially and socially, in the present precarious situation. Along with Jordan Maxwell, Michael has been a contributor of information to researcher and author David Icke. [...]"

Tsarion has had interesting influences. In a now defunct webpage Tsarion dedicates his work, among others, to:

"Jiddu Krishnamurti, Maharaj Charan Singh, Rev. Paul Solomon, Rune Moller, David Singer, Peter Balin...
To Jordan Maxwell (master scholar of Astro-Theology & Stellar Symbolism),
[...]
To Edward Aleister Crowley & MacGregor Mathers, Lady Coleman Smith, Lady Freida Harris....
To Gerald Massey, R. A. Schwaller de Lubicz, Alvin Boyd Kuhn, Madame Helena Petrova Blavatsky, Mustafa Gadalla, James Morgan Pryse, Bryan Wilson Key & Bonnie Gaunt...."

Magic, divination, myths and rituals seem to rank pretty high on Tsarion's list of interests. This is what Gurdjieff had to say about those attracted to such pseudo-esoterism:

"The idea of initiation, which reaches us through pseudo-esoteric systems, is also transmitted to us in a completely wrong form.

"The legends concerning the outward rites of initiation have been created out of the scraps of information we possess in regard to the ancient Mysteries. [...]

"Transitions from one level of being to another were marked by ceremonies of presentation of a special kind, that is, initiation.

"But a change of being cannot be brought about by any rites.
"Rites can only mark an accomplished transition.

"And it is only in pseudo-esoteric systems in which there is nothing else except these rites, that they begin to attribute to the rites an independent meaning.

"It is supposed that a rite, in being transformed into a sacrament, transmits or communicates certain forces to the initiate. This again relates to the psychology of an imitation way.

"There is not, nor can there be, any outward initiation. In reality only self-initiation, self-presentation exist. Systems and schools can indicate methods and ways, but no system or school whatever can do for a man the work that he must do himself.

"Inner growth, a change of being, depend entirely upon the work which a man must do on himself." [Gurdjieff quoted by Ouspensky in In Search of the Miraculous]

For an interesting discussion on Tsarion, check out this forum thread, where he is quoted as saying:

"...My main mission is to reveal that we do not need any external authority. We are to understand that we are here on earth to be our own priests or priestesses. We become initiated into these roles through the right use of the High Arts of Divination. That is what they were expressly created for. They alone are the prerequisite to reaching this esteemed goal. They are the means for engendering in each of us the necessary mental, emotional, and moral hygiene necessary to effect actual, lasting, positive change in our own lives and subsequently in the world at large. As we know, there are many people calling themselves "teachers" who involve themselves in these arcane subjects. Nearly all of these individuals come from other disciplines, from the fields of academic psychology, mythology, philosophy or even business and science, etc. They are often severely handicapped by the bad habits they have learned from trying to matriculate in these fields. I come directly from the philosophical and metaphysical traditions. It is in my bloodline from many generations past. We would do well, therefore, to remember that though many can teach ancient subjects, few can teach them in the ancient way. And there is a difference - Michael Tsarion"

Whether he is a conscious "wolf" as our reader suspects or just the blind leading the blind, it is clear that he has an overinflated ego. He would have us believe that there is no external authority - except for him, of course, because he has skipped academia and inherited the wisdom through his "bloodline".

Reader: [...] The other speakers seem to be sincere but misguided to different degrees and easily carried away by their own ideas, I don't know. Among the latter, there was Andrew Johnson, who insists that everything on 9-11 was done with energy weapons, including the planes on the towers (which were not real planes) and hurricane Erin which approached NYC that morning but then steered away. He has also got a crush on chemtrails, provides lots of speculation about them but zero evidence. Or rather, his evidence seems to be based mostly on photographs and videos, which indeed prove that there's a lot of planes flying around, and that some trails remain longer in the sky than others, but for the life of me I don't see what else it shows. I am ready to concede that there may be something anomalous about them, but it is anyone's guess what that is. Yet I had to step out of his talk after he presented a video of a few hours compressed into a couple of minutes showing four or five planes flying around and some time later a thunderstorm - an "interesting" indication in Johnson's view that chemtrails might be designed to affect the weather. Thank God he didn't actually call that "proof".

A video of Andrew Johnson's presentation on chemtrails can be found here. Judge for yourselves.

Reader: I must confess that given what I saw I soon started to skip a few lectures and preferred to do some site-seeing around Bath on my own. One I did see was by Leo Rutherford, quite a likeable guy, who to his credit made some solid arguments against the (non)values of monotheistic religions, quoting some of the most heartless fragments of the Bible and mocking them in a funny way. However, even this I found to be somewhat shallow; there was no discussion of the historical origins of the Bible, the layers of text within it, or the agendas of the different authors. He concluded by presenting his view of spirituality, which wasn't bad but again felt superficial - perhaps because of time constraints. I didn't hear anything relating to the struggle with the self or self-lies or the great difficulties of growing spiritually, but rather a few 'light' statements about reconnecting with the Feminine and Earth (if I understood correctly). Browsing through his books - which he had on sale - I got the impression he has idealised the practices of the "shamans" without a lot of critical thought, although I would need to read them before offering a more informed opinion.

A small auto-bio of Leo Rutherford:

"A few words about my journey. I worked in industry for twenty years, and for the last twelve years of that was a Managing Director of a manufacturing company which made tin cans and drums. By the age of forty I was suffering from acute stress and depression and 'normal' life did not make sense to me any more. I took my life apart and set out to find an alternative path, a path with more heart. I went through all kinds of therapy, learned to dance, sing and play in a way I hadn't since childhood, and I gained my MA in Holistic Psychology at Antioch University in San Francisco, where I lived for five years. Quite unexpectedly I came across the beautiful ancient wisdom of the indigenous shamans. I was introduced to this path by Joan Halifax in 1980 and since then have continued to learn from a wide variety of teachers. As I have got older, so I have become younger! It is my great joy to pass on to others through these workshops, some of the experience and knowledge that has helped me to transform my life. A process that goes on and on.....
Some of his views on shamanism can be found in this article and on this website. For an in-depth understanding of shamanism, we recommend reading this forum thread."

Reader: There was also a question and answer panel, which Ralph Ellis chaired (surprise!), and which discussed questions from the audience. All I can say about the main line of force of that is that it was so beyond anything that I could usefully add ANY context to with appropriate questions, that - to use a phrase I've read in your forum once or twice - it was "not even wrong". And it seemed to be backed up with some pretty solid support from the captive audience, who would cheerfully applaud every time Tsarion or some other panelist would declare that the Illuminati are scared to death of 'people like us'. It is interesting that when discussing the subject of the Illuminati, Ellis asked the other panelists if perhaps they were not all that bad, given that "we enjoy better lives than in past ages". None of them seemed to catch onto the fallacy of the statement, but thankfully another chap in the panel, Daniel Tatman, later corrected him by pointing out the obvious: that the only reason 'we' - westerners - have a relatively better standard of life is that billions of people around the globe are exploited.

All in all, a pretty disheartening and lonely experience, but a useful reminder of just what seekers of truth are pitted against in the jungle out there.
Indeed, this illustrates very well the workings of COINTELPRO, and the process of ponerization:

"Observation of the ponerization process of various human unions throughout history easily leads to the conclusion that the initial step is a moral warping of the group's ideational contents. In analysing the contamination of a group's ideology, we note first of all an infiltration of foreign, simplistic, and doctrinaire contents, thereby depriving it of any healthy support for, and trust in, the necessity of understanding of human nature. This opens the way for invasion by pathological factors and the ponerogenic role of their carriers."

Lobaczewski - Political Ponerology, p. 118

This can be seen, for example, in the New Age movement, where the seed was sown of the idea that a useful thing to do is to simply shut out reality by 'thinking happy thoughts' and 'sending love to the world', without the hard work on oneself necessary in order to come to an objective view of reality, and acknowledging it for what it is. In essence, this meant an attempt to 'dictate to reality' according to one's own personal wishes. This panders to the human inclination to take the 'path of least resistance' - the idea that there is some kind of shortcut is all too attractive for many.

In the modern alternative scene, similarly counterproductive seeds have been sown. One such, is the notion that once one breaks through the mainstream reality, and enters the 'alternative zone', then that is all that is required, that everyone is to be trusted, and that one immediately has the 'whole story'. As has been shown by the workings of groups such as the CIA and FBI, that is very much not the case.

The Shock Doctrine by Naomi Klein details numerous examples during the 20th century of secret agencies planting covert 'fake' groups into different social settings in order to sow the seeds of unrest, or disinformation, and to further a destructive agenda. Such were the cases of the CIA activities against Salvador Allende in Chile and Indonesia's President Sukarno.

Currently, there is a concerted effort by the 'Powers that Be' to undermine any potentially effective analyses that would shine light on the truth. The alternative scene is therefore dangerous to the establishment and an obvious target. Despite the official line that the FBI's COINTELPRO was discontinued as an official program back in the 70's, there are many telltale signs that similar techniques are widely in use today. Cass Sunstein, Obama's administrator of the White House Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, openly advocates such tactics, as a defense against 'conspiracy theorists'. In a paper published in January 2008 he says:

"Many millions of people hold conspiracy theories; they believe that powerful people have worked together in order to withhold the truth about some important practice or some terrible event. A recent example is the belief, widespread in some parts of the world, that the attacks of 9/11 were carried out not by Al Qaeda, but by Israel or the United States. Those who subscribe to conspiracy theories may create serious risks, including risks of violence, and the existence of such theories raises significant challenges for policy and law. The first challenge is to understand the mechanisms by which conspiracy theories prosper; the second challenge is to understand how such theories might be undermined."

He then goes on to spell it out in black and white:

"the best response consists in cognitive infiltration of extremist groups. Various policy dilemmas, such as the question whether it is better for government to rebut conspiracy theories or to ignore them, are explored in this light.
By 'extremist groups', he is referring to anyone who might suspect that the government does not have our best interests at heart. He then goes on to dissect how 'conspiracy theories' start and are propagated, and analyses how best to deliberately manipulate these dynamics by planting misleading information and sowing seeds of discord and distraction, and how to do this in the most devious way possible in order to remain 'plausibly deniable'."

As SOTT continues to point out, navigating this environment cannot be done alone. There is a trap out there for everyone. Only with a good working knowledge of ponerology, of one's own psychological 'machine', and, most of all, with a sincere and objective network, can one navigate these dangerous waters:

Georges Ivanovich Gurdjieff: "You do not realise your own situation. You are in a prison. All you can wish for, if you are a sensible man, is to escape. But how to escape? It is necessary to tunnel under a wall. One man can do nothing. But let us suppose there are ten or twenty men - if they work in turn and if one covers another they can complete the tunnel and escape.

Furthermore, no one can escape from prison without the help of those who have escaped before. Only they can say in what way escape is possible or can send tools, files or whatever may be necessary."

We would like to finish off with a reminder to us all:

Albert Einstein: "The important thing is not to stop questioning."

craig-oxley - June 27, 2010 11:19 AM (GMT)

This topic really has no reason to be in this Papal Nobility forum and will be moved soon to the General forum. Fritz Springmeier highlights lower down in power bloodlines and trumps them up as all powerful when in fact their pions compared to the Papal Nobility I've been highlighting for over a year or more now.

yveloudon - June 28, 2010 03:04 AM (GMT)

Thank you all.
My own opinion of F Springmeier's work is that he is sincere, but his style is not a polished style of writing. His writings do provide information, but I am thoroughly and easily convinced that it is the Vatican who pulls the strings everywhere. I have been having revelation after revelation since April.

In 1982 I had ordered the comic book series on Alberto Rivera (while he was still alive); read them, but for some reason it didn't register to me at that time, a mother of four small children - to make it my reality and delve further. I knew who he was though, and here I am studying his life again and just listened to his lectures from Richard Thomas. It was also at that time that I listened to Keith Green and shocked when he died that same year -- years later I read he'd been put down by the Jesuits because he'd written a book called The Catholic Chronicles. For some reason, again, it didn't really pique my interest. I guess I had to listen to Alex Jones for 2 months (recently) and what I instinctively got from him was this "Yeah let's get 'em boys..." but how? I kept thinking. What was he doing on the radio and not being shot or killed lor imprisoned ike the others? As a side note -many of these we are change groups through the USA are really getting into trouble because they are listening to Alex Jones. They are doing it (protesting) all dangerously wrong, and I fear that some will be put in prison for no reason at all. Jones doesn't seem to care one way or the other, and that was a red flag for me. I'd read that he was a Jesuit coadjutor but didn't pay attention. I guess I've had to learn the hard way, but not for very long...
One thing that I would like to share with you all is that my sweet little father in law, Aurelio Carminati, who was imprisoned for 11 years during WWII in Rome Italy, ABSOLUTELY HATED the pope. I never figured it out really until now. He told us stories about his days with his little renovation business in Rome, replastering walls in the Catholic churches or places of business, and heard the most disgusting conversations. I am sure that only amplified his hatred of them that I think he experiencedwhile in prison; he must have heard of or known something back then. We will never know; he passed away in 2002-

Anyway. I do thank you both for being here to answer my questions. I agree with craig oxley's comment about the bloodlines listed by springmeier as being lower level, however in my opinion noteworthy at some level. But, yes, it is the Vatican.
Thanks SO much soulinspiration. God (the real Jesus Christ) bless you both-

Cold - June 28, 2010 04:52 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jun 27 2010, 03:34 AM)
>
> Fritz is really no different, with the exception of his several volumes of the fruits of his research (if it is his research that is)

Jordan Maxwell once said on a radio show that Fritz stole all his research. I think it was his wife who convinced Jordan to give her his research, and she handed it over to Fritz.

Maybe Jordan made it all up for his own ego, I don't know really.

soulinspiration - June 28, 2010 11:09 AM (GMT)

Having just read the following very interesting recollection & observation let me make some further observations of my own:

"Jordan Maxwell once said on a radio show that Fritz stole all his research. I think it was his wife who convinced Jordan to give her his research, and she handed it over to Fritz. Maybe Jordan made it all up for his own ego, I don't know really."

OK: I have just watched Jordan Maxwell's latest interview (see: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4QLBDEKB1ZM). Now I consider myself to be pretty open-minded (okay I know, I'm hearing "don't we all!" from the back seats, but hear me out), but while he was recounting various episodes of the "Twilight Zone"-type that had occurred too him throughout his life, he kept saying certain phrases that seemed to be conditioning/trigger phrases while telling certain stories (either that or he just has a terrible habit of saying the same things to describe his emotional responses to each incident) like "I started feeling very afraid" & "then I started to cry".

Maybe true: But there was just something about the way he kept repeating these phrases, which would make great Neuro Linguistic Programming tools for trying to get the audience to align with him. I have even had a manager in the past at one of my places of employment who I suspect had done NLP & I saw him tell this heart-strings-tugger story on more than one occasion where he would work himself up into tears. It was all very bizarre & to me seemed not quite authentic. I don't know, call me cold-hearted (which is far from true) but I think that I'm pretty sharp about these things.

Anyway: I was also thinking while & after listening to this 2-hour drone by Maxwell (honestly it seemed like 6-hours, but I was intent to sit it out, as it was recorded in a hotel room in Rome I believe, just after him & Bill Ryan [Project Camelot/Project Avalon - the former being his collaboration videos with Kerry Cassidy, which I suspect (STRONGLY] of being either MI6 or CIA-backed "projects"] had visited the Vatican.

The choice of the name Project Camelot by Ryan & Cassidy I have always found to be most telling (though I am sure that they would claim it to be ironic):

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Project_Camelot

"Project Camelot was a social science research project of the United States Army in 1964. The goal of the project was to assess the causes of violent social rebellion and to identify the actions a government could take to prevent its own overthrow. ... The project's purpose was described by the army as follows:

'Success in such tasks as equipping and training indigenous forces for an internal security mission, civic action, psychological warfare, or other counterinsurgency action depends on a thorough understanding of the indigenous social structure, upon the accuracy with which changes within the indigenous culture, particularly violent changes, are anticipated, and the effects of various courses of action available to the military and other agencies of government upon the indigenous process of change.'

...

CAMELOT was a United States Army program, not an operation of the Central Intelligence Agency. The work was performed by a subcontractor to what was then called the Special Operations Research Office (SORO) at American University, which was renamed the Center for Research in Social Systems (CRESS) after the CAMELOT fiasco. ...

'Project Camelot is a study whose objective is to determine the feasibility of developing a general social systems model which would make it possible to predict and influence politically significant aspects of social change in the developing nations of the world. Somewhat more specifically, its objectives are: First, to devise procedures for assessing the potential for internal war within national societies; Second, to identify with increased degrees of confidence those actions which a government might take to relieve conditions which are assessed as giving rise to a potential for internal war; and Finally, to assess the feasibility of prescribing the characteristics of a system for obtaining and using the essential information needed for doing the above two things. Project Camelot, which was initiated during a time when the military took counterinsurgency seriously as an area of competency, recognized the need for social science insights. According to the director's letter: "Within the Army there is especially ready acceptance of the need to improve the general understanding of the processes of social change if the Army is to discharge its responsibilities in the overall counterinsurgency program of the U.S. Government.'"

Consider the following, fairly typical kind of (quite frankly kind of creepy in its naivety) viewer comment that this interview inspires among many of the less-questioning viewers: "i can listen to jordan all day• long... he mezmerises me =)... i wish i was as lucky as him to experience what he does". Maybe Dorothy if you wish really, really hard, then you will do! (Brrr, I'm getting a cold shiver all over...).

Yes: "mesmerising" is the word:

http://www.skepdic.com/mesmer.html

"Mesmerism

'Here, in fact, lies the whole secret of magnetism, and all delusions of a similar kind: increase the spirituality—rouse the spirit from its slumbers, or, in other words, work upon the imagination—induce belief and blind confidence, and you may do any thing.' -- Charles Mackay

In the early 1770s, Mesmer met Maximillian Hell, a Viennese Jesuit and healer. The rest, as they say, is history. Fr. Hell cured people with a magnetic steel plate. Hell's "proof" of magnetic healing was that it worked, i.e., he had a lot of satisfied customers. Mesmer plagiarized Hell's magnetic therapy and posited that it works because there is a very subtle magnetic fluid flowing through everything but which sometimes gets disturbed and needs to be restored to its proper flow. Hell, Mesmer theorized, was unblocking the flow of this subtle fluid with his magnets. Mesmer eventually discovered that he got the same results without the magnets. What today we might attribute to the placebo effect and a few other psychological factors like the power of suggestion, Mesmer attributed to magnétisme animal and his ability to direct it.

Mesmer also discovered that even though he didn't need magnets to get results, the dramatic effect of waving a magnetized pole over a person, or having his subjects sit in magnetized water or hold magnetized poles, etc., while he moved around in brightly colored robes playing the scientific faith healer, made for better drama and for larger audiences. He was able to evoke from a number of his clients entertaining behaviors ranging from sleeping to dancing to having convulsions. Mesmer did basically what today's hypnotists do in showrooms and at fairs, and what faith healers do in circus tents and churches. ...

Did Fr. Hell and Dr. Mesmer really cure anyone by channeling magnétisme animal? No, of course not. Did any of their patients improve or feel better after taking the cure, or did they declare that they had been healed? Yes, of course. Faith healers and mountebanks always have satisfied customers. Was the main thing at work here the power of suggestion and the belief in the therapy? Yes. Are those the same qualities at work in the placebo effect? Yes. In some cases, Hell and Mesmer may have created the illnesses themselves through their power of suggestion and the receptiveness of their subjects."

So for Jordan Maxwell's fans to describe him as "mesmerising" in this video is VERY appropriate. Whether or not Maxwell has Jesuit backers is beyond my scope of knowledge. The quoted fan's unwitting comparison of the selfstyled "Godfather of the Secret Societies" with the likes of that running partner to the Jesuit "Father" Hell, Charles Mesmer is most intriguing when we contemplate the implications as we have done here.

Back to J.M.: Not a mention of Rome in Maxwell's new(ish) video. OK, it was not within the remit of the video. However, Maxwell's short video filmed outside the Vatican had acted as a "teaser" implying that there would be something more substantial focusing on the Vatican & the covert goings-on in Rome (it was after billed as a "trailer", see: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aQWZnWRN2HU)

My other thought was that - although Maxwell seemed very humble throughout the video, he also seemed very plausibly mind-controlled & each story just seemed like more bull-dung piled upon more of the same. He then hailed the works of Charles Fort, who I've not read, but checking out a listing for an anthology of his complete works, the following comment reminded me immediately of Maxwell's interview:

"If you can ignore the dated assertions that the Earth is shaped like a top, you still have to swallow 1000+ pages of Fort's inane philosophical musings on subjects that have potential. Rather than explore in detail a specific time when, say, it rained fish, Fort is content to give the reader a list of all such events that occurred and use this as a springboard to prove (or prove-unprove as he would say) that there are magical lands in the sky."

Replace the odd phrase or two, like "1000+ pages of Fort" with "two hours of Maxwell" & we get a close approximation of my feeling after enduring this seemingly painfully-transparent mind-programming film.

So in response to whether or not Fritz Springmeier "stole" a lot of documentation & work from Jordan Maxwell & whether or not Maxwell "made it all up for his own ego" or not:

I don't think that Jordan Maxwell has a big ego, in fact he is in a very small group of individuals in the conspiracy arena who doesn't. I'm not even sure if HE made up the accounts in the interview, or whether these were programmed "recollections". His repeated emotion-triggering phrases (that seemed like NLP conditioning techniques, as I mentioned above) lead me to think that the latter is likely.

That Springmeier may have got a lot of documentation from Maxwell is highly possible. It is also highly possible that both have been working for one intelligence organisation or another - although not necessarily the same one.

As always: Caveat emptor

(caveat emptor: the principle that the buyer alone is responsible for checking the quality and suitability of goods before a purchase is made. ... literally ‘let the buyer beware.’)

yveloudon - June 29, 2010 06:23 PM (GMT)

It seems if he stole Jordan Maxwell's material that we'd hear more about that...wow, just when I was beginning to trust the book. I don't think I'm going to give up reading it though, too much information is there and I'd rather read it from Fritz than Jordan. I will always remain very open minded about all of this.
I guess we'll never know until FS gets out of prison next March. It does make me wonder though. I love what he wrote about Disney, again, something I never really gave any thought to. I'm clawing my way out of the matrix.
Was that guy's name really FATHER HELL ? good grief...

craig-oxley - June 29, 2010 06:42 PM (GMT)

Jordan Maxwell is a pathological liar and deceiver especially these days more so than before.

soulinspiration - June 29, 2010 07:12 PM (GMT)

We don't even know if Fritz Springmeier is his name & if he is actually in prison. We don't know that his wife is his wife, etc, etc...

The guy who called himself Fritz Springmeier could himself be a programmed MPD. "Cisco Wheeler" (man talk about having echoes in a name to Arizona Wilder!) might have been HIS "handler".

His two "How to Program an Illuminati Mind Control Slave" type books seem to me to have likely been written by either an individual or more likely a Mind Control cell within the intelligence network.

This whole notion of "the government doesn't want us to know" - that so many have within the areas of conspiracy study - is misplaced.

The masses will NOT be told via the mainstream media as it WOULD cause panic. I believe it is stated in Springmeier's "Bloodlines" book that the "Illuminati" have a spiritual law which requires disclosure of their actions - at least make it available for those smart enough to look for such info of their own accord. However: Even then the intention is to not make it too easy for people, as that would mess with the pace of the revelation of the method.

14april2000 - July 2, 2010 06:52 PM (GMT)

I about a mouth ago i talk to Eric Jon Phelps about Fritz Speingmeier.

He believe the reason they throw him in prison - was for establish credibility to the idea that the Jewish Zioinst leader and Papel knight of malta Jacob Rothschild is THE TOP DOG OF THE NEW WORLD ORDER ELITE.

Eyes for the Profane - July 5, 2010 02:31 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Jordan Maxwell once said on a radio show that Fritz stole all his research. I think it was his wife who convinced Jordan to give her his research, and she handed it over to Fritz.

Maybe Jordan made it all up for his own ego, I don't know really.

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jun 29 2010, 06:42 PM)

Jordan Maxwell is a pathological liar and deceiver especially these days more so than before.

QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jun 27 2010, 03:34 AM)

Fritz is really no different, with the exception of his several volumes of the fruits of his research (if it is his research that is)

Jordan Maxwell is a liar. I'd trust the word of Fritz over Jordan any day of the week!

Maxwell is an Adept in the Mystery Schools as both a New Age spokesperson and a Theosophist!

Peace&Love
God bless

14april2000 - July 5, 2010 05:19 AM (GMT)

Original Message -----
From: xxxxxxxxxxxxx
To: Eric Jon Phelps
Sent: Thursday, October 15, 2009 9:32 AM
Subject: Questions

Dear Brother Eric,

What`s your thoughts and infomation about John Todd & Fritz Springmeier and there infomation?

In faith
Brother xxxx

Eric Phelps skrev:
> Dear Brother xxxxx,
>
> They told the truth in 90% of their audios and books. Lots of meat and few bones.
>
> Lord Bless,
>
> Brother Eric

Dear Brother Eric,

Is The last 10% is that the clame that the Rothschilds are the top of the illuminati - or are there other thing that is not true?

In faith
Brother xxxxx

Dear Brother xxxxxxxxx,

Yes, he knows better than to repeat the fable that the Rothschilds rule the world's banking system.

Lord Bless,

Brother Eric

14april2000 - July 5, 2010 05:37 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jun 29 2010, 09:12 PM)
>
> The masses will NOT be told via the mainstream media as it WOULD cause panic. I believe it is stated in Springmeier's "Bloodlines" book that the "Illuminati" have a spiritual law which requires disclosure of their actions - at least make it available for those smart enough to look for such info of their own accord. However: Even then the intention is to not make it too easy for people, as that would mess with the pace of the revelation of the method.

> QUOTE (AntiSionist @ Jan 29 2009, 06:01 AM)
>
> John Todd (whistleblower on masonry and satanism in rock music industry).
>
> David Lee Hill, Jr. (defected American mason who fed Fritz Springmeier key bloodline info through a friend two weeks before his death).

Posted: by 14april2000 Jan 28 2009, 11:34 PM

Researchers who have been have kill?, Please come up with as many as possible?

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=7007&

Getting to closed to the illuminati bloodlines and getting in the way of the business can get you in a whole a lot of trouble at best.

I for sure have no wishe to get in hot water with the illuminati like i was last summer.

soulinspiration - July 5, 2010 09:26 AM (GMT)

Most "Illuminati" info is put out there by the intelligence agencies anyway. Wake up people! Then they can mix as much bull as they want to in various amounts for differing audiences.

Most of it is Jesuit, Roman Catholic Church propaganda built up over centuries & with the advent of the internet they can go to town with it. This largely suits not only the Roman Church but the thoroughly infiltrated Protestant ones, especially all these Evangelical ones set up by dark agenda players.

You need to study organisations like this one:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_Fellowshi...n_organization)

with their Opus Dei connections.

I try to minimise using the term "Illuminati", as it makes one sound like its preferable to be an "Ignorati" - which is often the case anyway!

Christians are being deceived if they think that saying that they believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as their saviour is some kind of protection against being deceived further. There are many spiritual lessons to learn in life. But you aren't supposed to realise this - instead you are supposed to believe that is to be avoided as it is "spiritual evolution". Wake up, monkey-boys! Read the Bible & interpret it for yourself. Trust no other interpreter. I don't care if its Luther, Calvin or whoever. Use the light of your ongoing experiences & development from them to help you divine wisdom. Get rid of unnecessary cultural detritus that obscures ones vision of the original knowledge. What really bothers me is the expectation that Christians are supposed to suddenly believe a vast amount of things that they cannot hope to comprehend without testing it. Yet this is supposedly "questioning the word of God".

Another thing that people should wise up to is that the New Testament replaces the Old - both spiritually & culturally speaking. If you try to follow both then you will end up in an insane asylum - or prison! Which would be the best place for you. Many Christians are borderline pseudo (or even crypto) Orthodox Jews, with cultural mindsets to boot. This is as bad as the "I hate Jews because they killed Jesus" camp. Both are examples of the classic ways of the "Ignorati"!

craig-oxley - July 5, 2010 11:45 AM (GMT)

If anything Fritz is in jail and removed due to his deprogramming of mind control victims and not for his information he put out which many others had done so prior. Bringing mind control victims out of programming can be a serious threat to the elitest handlers of these victims. Handlers do everything in their power to keep their slave under their complete control utilising many counter-measures along the way. I believe that Stewart Swerdlow has some good information on this subject in his works.

yveloudon - July 5, 2010 02:04 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jul 5 2010, 09:26 AM)

Most "Illuminati" info is put out there by the intelligence agencies anyway. Wake up people! Then they can mix as much bull as they want to in various amounts for differing audiences.

Most of it is Jesuit, Roman Catholic Church propaganda built up over centuries & with the advent of the internet they can go to town with it. This largely suits not only the Roman Church but the thoroughly infiltrated Protestant ones, especially all these Evangelical ones set up by dark agenda players.

You need to study organisations like this one:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_Fellowshi...n_organization)

with their Opus Dei connections.

I try to minimise using the tem "Illuminati", as it makes one sound like its preferable to be an "Ignorati" - which is often the case anyway!

Christians are being deceived if they think that saying that they believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as their saviour is some kind of protection against being deceived further. There are many spiritual lessons to learn in life. But you aren't supposed to realise this - instead you are supposed to believe that is to be avoided as it is "spiritual evolution". Wake up, monkey-boys! Read the Bible & interpret it for yourself. Trust no other interpreter. I don't care if its Luther, Calvin or whoever. Use the light of your ongoing experiences & development from them to help you divine wisdom. Get rid of unnecessary cultural detritus that obscures ones vision of the original knowledge. What really bothers me is the expectation that Christians are supposed to suddenly believe a vast amount of things that they cannot hope to comprehend without testing it. Yet this is supposedly "questioning the word of God".

Another thing that people should wise up to is that the New Testament replaces the Old - both spiritually & culturally speaking. If you try to follow both then you will end up in an insane asylum - or prison! Which would be the best place for you. Many Christians are borderline pseudo (or even crypto) Orthodox Jews, with cultural mindsets to boot. This is as bad as the "I hate Jews because they killed Jesus" camp. Both are examples of the classic ways of the "Ignorati"!

YEAH!!
Any church at this point in time is not safe as well as any organized religious group---The last church I went to was Free Chapel Worship Center in Gainesville GA. The pastor is on TBN all the time and has been for several years; he also has a church, I mean business, in Orange County, CA. I left the church in 2006 and have meetings elsewhere-- I realized I had been brainwashed and am still in the process of deprogramming myself. I started researching mind control several months ago and realized that I had been programmed at this church to give them my money! This is when I started reading F Springmeier's works.

It's amazing what people believe in this country to feel righteous. Mind you, feel, not be. the Sheeple in the USA still think the USA rules, and we are the best country on the face of the earth. This lie is fed from the American pulpit.
I would love to hear if anyone has anymore information about these types of charismatic (Church of God or Assembly of God) churches other than what Johnnie Todd revealed- in the 70's- the Council of 300 giving $35 mil to four pastors to start 'charismatic' churches in the USA; melding Catholics and Protestants together under the guise of speaking in tongues.

I am currently reading Trance-formation of Amerika by Cathy O'Brien who was a Monarch MK-Ultra Pentagon White House "Model", sex slave and courier. Reading about what they did to her is amazing, amazing because she is actually reintegrating and was able to give a lot of information about many people in the American government. But the most amazing thing is that Nashville TN is a big CIA drug-running hub. (Nashville TN has more churches than any other city in the USA) The names she names, I REMEMBER, from the 70's and 80's. It's pretty incredible reading it because I was born and raised there. At this point I think that she is being passed off as a liar and irrelevant, a crazy MPD.
Thanks for naming names here-- I am looking up everything.

soulinspiration - July 5, 2010 10:23 PM (GMT)

Craig, do you not believe Swerdlow to be completely MK'd to this day?

Have you read any of his books? I bought "Blue Blood, True Blood" years ago & actually believed that crap once upon a time. Oh deary me! "Oh foolish man, what can you not be made to believe?" I think that Weishaupt came up with that phrase for the likes of myself back then! If you haven't read it then please do - it's one bad joke after another - I realise now in the light of much further research & sounder discerning skills. I think that Swerdlow is a MK'd masterful MK programmer. Programmed to programme.

& where did Springmeier learn to "deprogramme"? That is either bunkum & he was MK'd - or like Swerdlow he is a MK'd Mind Controller & as a Programmer he would have the skills to Deprogramme. The sheer horrificness of the MK agenda is enough to make it safe for them to release this info. I maintain that in many (most?) people reading about it it can cause Trauma-based suggestibiliy. That's where the likes of Icke can step in with their spin & go to town.

Halvor - July 6, 2010 11:21 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jul 5 2010, 10:26 AM)
>
> Christians are being deceived if they think that saying that they believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as their saviour is some kind of protection against being deceived further. There are many spiritual lessons to learn in life. But you aren't supposed to realise this - instead you are supposed to believe that is to be avoided as it is "spiritual evolution". Wake up, monkey-boys! Read the Bible & interpret it for yourself. Trust no other interpreter. I don't care if its Luther, Calvin or whoever. Use the light of your ongoing experiences & development from them to help you divine wisdom. Get rid of unnecessary cultural detritus that obscures ones vision of the original knowledge. What really bothers me is the expectation that Christians are supposed to suddenly believe a vast amount of things that they cannot hope to comprehend without testing it. Yet this is supposedly "questioning the word of God".

"The apologists of the second century, even on the basis of certain statements in the New Testament, testify to us often of the expansion of power of malign spirits, which extend and multiply their functions to the point where they seize control not only of the physical world, but also of the very heart of humankind." (Filoramo, Giovanni 'A History of Gnosticism' (1990), ch. 2 "Between Demons and Gods", p.31ff., citing Wey, H. 'Die Funktionen der bösen Geister bei den griechischen Apologeten des zweiten Jahrhunderts nach Christus (1957))

I have quoted this previously to point to the profound depths to which the deception has its tentacles extended. To me it means that the "just follow you heart" principle is senseless. Most people who believe they are beyond the reach of the conspiracy are very gullible and have no grasp whatsoever of the real meaning of the phrase "wickedness is high places", like the "best answer" given at Yahoo! Answer to someone who wanted to know what that phrase meant.

craig-oxley - July 6, 2010 11:41 AM (GMT)

QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jul 5 2010, 10:23 PM)

Craig, do you not believe Swerdlow to be completely MK'd to this day?

Have you read any of his books? I bought "Blue Blood, True Blood" years ago & actually believed that crap once upon a time. Oh deary me! "Oh foolish man, what can you not be made to believe?" I think that Weishaupt came up with that phrase for the likes of myself back then! If you haven't read it then please do - it's one bad joke after another - I realise now in the light of much further research & sounder discerning skills. I think that Swerdlow is a MK'd masterful MK programmer. Programmed to programme.

& where did Springmeier learn to "deprogramme"? That is either bunkum & he was MK'd - or like Swerdlow he is a MK'd Mind Controller & as a Programmer he would have the skills to Deprogramme. The sheer horrificness of the MK agenda is enough to make it safe for them to release this info. I maintain that in many (most?) people reading about it it can cause Trauma-based suggestibiliy. That's where the likes of Icke can step in with their spin & go to town.

Regardless of whether Stewart is still an asset and programmed up which I believe he is, there is still some meat to eat amongst all those bones when dealing on the subject of programming.

yveloudon - July 6, 2010 02:28 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (Halvor @ Jul 6 2010, 11:21 AM)

> QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jul 5 2010, 10:26 AM)
>
> Christians are being deceived if they think that saying that they believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as their saviour is some kind of protection against being deceived further. There are many spiritual lessons to learn in life. But you aren't supposed to realise this - instead you are supposed to believe that is to be avoided as it is "spiritual evolution". Wake up, monkey-boys! Read the Bible & interpret it for yourself. Trust no other interpreter. I don't care if its Luther, Calvin or whoever. Use the light of your ongoing experiences & development from them to help you divine wisdom. Get rid of unnecessary cultural detritus that obscures ones vision of the original knowledge. What really bothers me is the expectation that Christians are supposed to suddenly believe a vast amount of things that they cannot hope to comprehend without testing it. Yet this is supposedly "questioning the word of God".

"The apologists of the second century, even on the basis of certain statements in the New Testament, testify to us often of the expansion of power of malign spirits, which extend and multiply their functions to the point where they seize control not only of the physical world, but also of the very heart of humankind." (Filoramo, Giovanni 'A History of Gnosticism' (1990), ch. 2 "Between Demons and Gods", p.31ff., citing Wey, H. 'Die Funktionen der bösen Geister bei den griechischen Apologeten des zweiten Jahrhunderts nach Christus (1957))

I have quoted this previously to point to the profound depths to which the deception has its tentacles extended. To me it means that the "just follow you heart" principle is senseless. Most people who believe they are beyond the reach of the conspiracy are very gullible and have no grasp whatsoever of the real meaning of the phrase "wickedness is high places", like the "best answer" given at Yahoo! Answer to someone who wanted to know what that phrase meant.

This is exactly my point. There is spiritual wickedness in high places. Jesus said to redeem the time because the days are evil...the days are evil. If HE said that, it must really be far beyond the evil that we can physically see or comprehend. . The sad thing, if you can call it sad, is - all these people are a part of Lucifer's big plan. And another sad thing, when the antiChrist returns, a lot of these-no more than a lot, a majority of the people are going to think it's the real deal. That's the deception. That's where the teachings of Jesus really hit home for me. The more I know about the truth here on this planet, the easier it gets for me to trust Him. In fact if it weren't for the LORD I wouldn't have come back to this website. :ph43r:

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Cybo family

Title: The Cybo family

14april2000 - July 3, 2010 06:47 AM (GMT)

Cybo family

http://romanchurches.wikia.com/wiki/Cybo_family

The Cybo, Cibo or Cibei family of Italy is an aristocratic family from Genoa of Greek origin. They came to the city in the 12th century. In 1528 the Cybo's formed the 17th "Albergo", an union of noble families of Genoa. The family split in many branches, some living in Genoa, other in Naples. Most famous member is pope Innocent VII, from whom descended the dukes of Massa. They married with the most famous Italian families: de Medici, della Rovere, d'Este and Pico della Mirandola.

The family became marquises (later dukes) of Massa. With the matrimony of Lorenzo with Ricciarda Malaspina in May 1520 started the branche of Cybo-Malaspina.

Famous members of the family

Angelo Cybo

Angelo Cybo (died 1404) brother of Leonardo Cybo. He was created cardinal in 1402 by Pope Boniface IX. He was made cardinal deacon of Santi Silvestro e Martino ai Monti

Leonardo Cybo

Leonardo Cybo (died 1404), was a famous lawyer when Pope Boniface IX created him and his brother cardinal in 1402. He received the deaconry of Santi Cosma e Damiano.

Giovanni Battista Cybo

Giovanni Battista Cybo (1432 - 1492), was the son of Arano Cybo and Teodorina de Mari. He was created cardinal priest in 1473 by Pope Sixtus IV and received the titles of Santa Maria Maggiore and Santa Balbina. He was elected Pope in 1484 and took the name Innocent VIII. His first child, Franceschetto, was born in 1449. Altogether it is said that he had eight sons and eight daughters. He was the first Pope who instead of calling them his 'nieces' and 'nephews' he legitimated them and married them into noble families.

He was buried at San Pietro in Vaticano.

Innocenzo Cybo

Innocenzo Cybo (1491 - 1550), was the son of Franceschetto Cybo (son of Pope Innocent VIII) and Maddalena de Medici (daughter of Lorenzo de' Medici (il Magnifico)) and as this nephew of Pope Leo X. He was created cardinal by his uncle in 1513, and received the titular deaconry of Santi Cosma e Damiano. He had four illegitimate children. He was buried in choir of Santa Maria sopra Minerva.

Lorenzo Cybo de Mari

Lorenzo Cybo de Mari (born ca 1450, died 1503) was an illegitimate son of Maurizio Cybo, brother of Innocent VIII. He was created cardinal priest in 1489 by his uncle and received the tile of Santa Susanna. He was buried in Santa Maria del Popolo.

Odoardo Cybo

Odoardo Cybo (1619 -1705), brother of Alderano Cybo. He was elected titular patriarch of Constantinople in 1689 and titular archbishop of Seleucia in 1670.

Alderano Cybo

Alderano Cybo (1613-1700), descendant of Innocent VIII, great- uncle of Camillo, and brother of Odoardo Cybo. He had two sons that pursued clerical careers. One became Jesuit the other Knight of St.John of Malta. He was created cardinal priest in 1645 by Pope Innocent X with the title of Santa Pudenziana. He was buried in the Cybo chapel of Santa Maria del Popolo.

Camillo Cybo-Malaspina

Camillo Cybo-Malaspina (1681-1743) Great-nephew of Alderano and Odoardo Cybo. He was created cardinal priest in 1729 by Benedict XIII and received the tile of Santo Stefano al Monte Celio. From October 1730 until the following June he was Grand prior in Rome of the Sovereign Order of St. John of Malta. He was buried in the Cybo chapel of Santa Maria degli Angeli.

14april2000 - July 3, 2010 06:52 AM (GMT)

CRISTOBAL COLON(NA)?

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=31608

> QUOTE
>
> A Pope and a Roman noble, parents of Christopher Columbus?
>
> The Historians say that would be the extramarital son of Anna Colonna and Pope Innocent VIII.
>
> This study showed that Columbus would be the result of an extramarital affair > between Anna Colonna, wife of the Prince of Taranto Antonio Del Balzo Orsini, > and Giovanbattista Cibo, who later became Pope Innocent VIII.

14april2000 - July 3, 2010 08:50 AM (GMT)

Papal Genealogy: The Families And Descendants Of The Popes
Af George L. Williams

The Cybo, Cibo family

http://books.google.com/books?id=-mq7ctwMN...0family&f=false

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: CRISTOBAL COLON(NA)?

Title: CRISTOBAL COLON(NA)?

Maximiliano - May 9, 2010 05:41 PM (GMT)

http://www.clarin.com/diario/2004/03/08/s-03401.htm

A Pope and a Roman noble, parents of Christopher Columbus?

The Historians say that would be the extramarital son of Anna Colonna and Pope Innocent VIII.

EFE
A Roman noblewoman and a man who later became Pope anointed have been the parents of Christopher Columbus.

This is the conclusion he arrived two Italian historians who dispute the theory that the sailor was the son of Genovese merchants.

The curious thesis belongs to Lionero Boccianti and Renato Biagioli and was presented last week at a conference held in Genova on Columbus.

This study showed that Columbus would be the result of an extramarital affair between Anna Colonna, wife of the Prince of Taranto Antonio Del Balzo Orsini, and Giovanbattista Cibo, who later became Pope Innocent VIII.

Everything would have happened in Naples 1446. There, the woman would have related to Cibo, who was then 14 years.

After becoming pregnant, Colonna retreated, with the help of a sister in a town in northern Italy, where he gave birth to her son celebrated as contend Boccianti and Biagioli.

And years later, Pope Innocent VIII himself was, according to this theory, the charge of giving the child up for adoption to Domenico Colombo, a Genovese wool trader, and his wife, Susanna Fontanarossa. The official story says it is the latter the real parents of Columbus.

The new version of the origin of the navigator was published yesterday in the Italian regional newspaper La Provincia Pavese. Just at the local university of Pavia is part of the ashes kept alleged to have belonged to Columbus. With the new, academic leaders will conduct a DNA analysis of the remains, which come from the tomb in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.

However, doubts persist about whether these are really the remains of who discovered America. In fact, since 1877 there are two graves that bear his name: one in Haiti and one in the Cathedral of Seville in Spain. Just Biagioli requested that studies be conducted to compare with the marine's brother, Diego, who are also in Seville.

Boccianti deductions and Biagioli were not the only curiosity that arose in the forum to be held in Genova.

Another colleague from the Italian, the Frenchman Jacques Heers, said Columbus was a pirate in his youth.

Heers, author of a biography of the sailor said, to defend his hypothesis that "piracy practice at the time was commonplace and regarded almost as a school to learn navigation."

Maximiliano - May 9, 2010 05:58 PM (GMT)

Pope Innocent VIII

Cristobal Colon(na)

Maximiliano - May 9, 2010 06:09 PM (GMT)

Remember that Giuliano Della Rovere, later Pope Julius II, was instrumental in the Pontification of Pope Innocent VIII becouse tanks to his support he become Cardinal, durign the time of the Pope Sixtus IV who his real name was Francesco della Rovere.

So the Della Rovere and the Orsini families controlled Cristobal Colon(na) and the Pope Innocent VIII and with the help of the Knight Templars "discovered America".

Maximiliano - May 9, 2010 06:13 PM (GMT)

Note again the similar faces of the Pope Innocent VIII whith Cristobal Colon...

Pope Innocent VIII

Cristobal Colon(na)

Maximiliano - May 9, 2010 06:33 PM (GMT)

This theory also explains why so many Genoese embarked on the first voyage of Columbus. And why was baptized as "CUBA" the first set foot on land. Although it seems of indigenous origin, this word derives from Cybo, the Pope's secular name which in turn comes from "CUBES" or "CUBUS".

map - May 9, 2010 09:16 PM (GMT)

GREAT STUFF HERMANO MAXI!

Alexandra - May 10, 2010 04:38 AM (GMT)

Now that's interesting. No surprise that Columbus was nothing more than a pirate working for the pope.

14april2000 - July 3, 2010 06:36 AM (GMT)

Cybo family

http://romanchurches.wikia.com/wiki/Cybo_family

The Cybo, Cibo or Cibei family of Italy is an aristocratic family from Genoa of Greek origin. They came to the city in the 12th century. In 1528 the Cybo's formed the 17th "Albergo", an union of noble families of Genoa. The family split in many branches, some living in Genoa, other in Naples. Most famous member is pope Innocent VII, from whom descended the dukes of Massa. They married with the most famous Italian families: de Medici, della Rovere, d'Este and Pico della Mirandola.

The family became marquises (later dukes) of Massa. With the matrimony of Lorenzo with Ricciarda Malaspina in May 1520 started the branche of Cybo-Malaspina.

Famous members of the family

Angelo Cybo

Angelo Cybo (died 1404) brother of Leonardo Cybo. He was created cardinal in 1402 by Pope Boniface IX. He was made cardinal deacon of Santi Silvestro e Martino ai Monti

Leonardo Cybo

Leonardo Cybo (died 1404), was a famous lawyer when Pope Boniface IX created him and his brother cardinal in 1402. He received the deaconry of Santi Cosma e Damiano.

Giovanni Battista Cybo

Giovanni Battista Cybo (1432 - 1492), was the son of Arano Cybo and Teodorina de Mari. He was created cardinal priest in 1473 by Pope Sixtus IV and received the titles of Santa Maria Maggiore and Santa Balbina. He was elected Pope in 1484 and took the name Innocent VIII. His first child, Franceschetto, was born in 1449. Altogether it is said that he had eight sons and eight daughters. He was the first Pope who instead of calling them his 'nieces' and 'nephews' he legitimated them and married them into noble families.

He was buried at San Pietro in Vaticano.

Innocenzo Cybo

Innocenzo Cybo (1491 - 1550), was the son of Franceschetto Cybo (son of Pope Innocent VIII) and Maddalena de Medici (daughter of Lorenzo de' Medici (il Magnifico)) and as this nephew of Pope Leo X. He was created cardinal by his uncle in 1513, and received the titular deaconry of Santi Cosma e Damiano. He had four illegitimate children. He was buried in choir of Santa Maria sopra Minerva.

Lorenzo Cybo de Mari

Lorenzo Cybo de Mari (born ca 1450, died 1503) was an illegitimate son of Maurizio Cybo, brother of Innocent VIII. He was created cardinal priest in 1489 by his uncle and received the tile of Santa Susanna. He was buried in Santa Maria del Popolo.

Odoardo Cybo

Odoardo Cybo (1619 -1705), brother of Alderano Cybo. He was elected titular patriarch of Constantinople in 1689 and titular archbishop of Seleucia in 1670.

Alderano Cybo

Alderano Cybo (1613-1700), descendant of Innocent VIII, great- uncle of Camillo, and brother of Odoardo Cybo. He had two sons that pursued clerical careers. One became Jesuit the other Knight of St.John of Malta. He was created cardinal priest in 1645 by Pope Innocent X with the title of Santa Pudenziana. He was buried in the Cybo chapel of Santa Maria del Popolo.

Camillo Cybo-Malaspina

Camillo Cybo-Malaspina (1681-1743) Great-nephew of Alderano and Odoardo Cybo. He was created cardinal priest in 1729 by Benedict XIII and received the tile of Santo Stefano al Monte Celio. From October 1730 until the following June he was Grand prior in Rome of the Sovereign Order of St. John of Malta. He was buried in the Cybo chapel of Santa Maria degli Angeli.

14april2000 - July 3, 2010 06:50 AM (GMT)

Papal Genealogy: The Families And Descendants Of The Popes
Af George L. Williams

http://books.google.com/books?id=-mq7ctwMN...0family&f=false

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Other powerful Roman families

Title: Other powerful Roman families

GMNL - November 16, 2009 03:01 PM (GMT)

GMNL - November 16, 2009 04:35 PM (GMT)

N/A

GMNL - November 16, 2009 05:19 PM (GMT)

N/A

GMNL - November 16, 2009 06:09 PM (GMT)

N/A

GMNL - November 16, 2009 08:16 PM (GMT)

N/A

map - November 16, 2009 08:53 PM (GMT)

great job GMNL, thanks for the info...

i also agree with you on the nufffrespect character being a dis-info agent.

alex is surrounded by nothing but controlled opposition it seems.

kalongi - November 16, 2009 09:17 PM (GMT)

good stuff GMNL

I called out on nufff quite sometime ago as well and got blocked right away.

GMNL - November 16, 2009 09:20 PM (GMT)

N/A

zenmodi - November 18, 2009 12:37 AM (GMT)

yet an existing Caetani thread.

GMNL - November 19, 2009 06:23 PM (GMT)

N/A

GMNL - November 19, 2009 06:33 PM (GMT)

N/A

GMNL - November 19, 2009 06:44 PM (GMT)

N/A

craig-oxley - November 19, 2009 10:53 PM (GMT)

Cannibal is tied to both Cain and Abel. It was the Massimo family behind the creation of the SMOM

Insurgent - December 9, 2009 05:59 AM (GMT)

Stumbled on Google upon this family: del Balzo/Orsini family

http://www.delbalzo.com/old/genealogia2.htm

Residence: Naples.

The del Balzo/des Baux dynasty was originated in Provence (France) from the Seigneurs di Balz descendants of William King of Arles and Prince of Orange (1059-1110 c.a.).Some authors with hagiographic aim,sustained their origin from Balthazar,one of the three Magi (the Comet in the Coat-of-Arms was used since remote times).

One of the Most prestigeous family (Les Baux de Provence) was already famous and powerful,the des Baux were independent Lords,castellan of Les Baux and Arles and wielded very considerable authority at local level ,holding cospicuous fiefs and vaste lands (Vienne,Marseilles,Berry,Bruges, Montpellier,..), they followed Charles I of Anjou in the conquest of the Kingdom of Naples (1263), with Barral, Lord of the "State" of Les Baux (Balzo Balcio, Baltio, Baucio, Baux). Barral one of the winner in the Battle of Benevento ,against the Hoenstaufen was created Count of Avellino by King Charles and was the founder of the most illustrious branch of the family ,was also Great Justiciar of the Realm.

Bertrand, Seigneur of Berre, followed also Charles of Anjou was created Justiciar of the Abruzzi,he received various lands in this province and fought for Charles in Campania,founder of the branch of the Counts of Montescaglioso and Dukes of Andria, enriched with other titles Count of Bisceglie, of Copertino and Duke of Venosa

The del Balzo/des Baux were merely the most famous of several important families who linked the two cornerstone of Charle's empire,Provence and the Realm(Regno)

Giovanni Antonio del Balzo-Orsini powerful Prince of Taranto(1406) ,who owned seven archbishoprics,thirty bishoprics,and over 300 castles,and traveled from Salerno to Taranto without ever setting foot outside his own lands.

Very relevant, was the political role, that several members of this important family,one of the seven greatest of the Realm , managed during the Angevin and Aragonese ruling.They received waste lands and fiefs in recognition of their service:

(Earldom: :Acerra 1453, Avellino 1418, Montescaglioso 1307 , Soleto 1443, Ugento 1493, Copertino 1283……. Dukedom: Andria 1494, Nardo' 1497, Venosa 1499… Princedom: : Altamura 1467 , Taranto 1387..)Important relations with Royal Dynasty, Francesco, son of Bertrand first Duke of Andria, married with Margherita of Anjou

Antonia and Giacomo,the first married Federico III d'Aragona, King of Sicilia, and the second Agnese of Anjou; Isabella, daughter of Pirro, prince of Altamura the most powerful Lord of the Realm, executed ,because was one of the inspirer of the Magnates Conspiracy against Ferrante of Aragon King of Naples (1486) married Federico King of Naples ,last of the Aragonese Dynasty.

The del Balzo of Naples ,descend from Battista , to whom Ferrante I° of Aragon King of the Kingdom Naples(1458-1494) in recognition of his service and military help , conceded in1465 the fiefs of S. Croce ,Casa Selvatica and Mirabello. Battista married Cecca of Monfort niece of Guglielmo Count of Campobasso.The sons Vincenzo e Francesco were received by the city of Capua with special Honours . From Vincenzo came the branch of the Barons of S. Croce, extinguished late 18th Century. Francesco was the founder of the Schiavi Lordship ,Dukedom in 1681 ,then Dukes of Caprigliano in 1696 ,then Barons and Dukes of Presenzano{1734).

The Battista branch descend from the second brother of William,last Duke of Andria, Bianchino.In 1615 the cousins of Battista, Scipione and Geronimo del Balzo, claimed at The Council of the Kingdom to regain the lawful possession of the ancient Chapel in the Church of Santa Chiara in Naples, Chapel still today held by the family.

This branch was also holding Lordships since 1465, received in 1590 in the Order of Malta ,had also five concessions of Dukedoms and one on the family name (1868). One Earldom was granted in 1830, when Francesco,General of the Neapolitan Army, married Queen Isabella ,widow and mother of Francis I of Bourbon King of the Two Sicilies.

The two branches Presenzano and Caprigliano, are in the early XX Century represented by NICOLA, of Nicola, of Pasquale, Duke of Presenzano (mpr.), noble of Capua (m.), Don e Donna , Knight of Honour and Dev. of the Ord. of Malta, b. in Napoli 24 dec. 1884 from Nicola and Enrichetta Ciccarelli Marchioness of Cesavolpe, marr. in Napoli to nob. donna Maria Consuelo Alvarez de Toledo of the Dukes of Bivona, dama of the Order of Malta.

Oncles (sons of Pasquale husband in first wedding to Concetta Bassano dei Marchesi di Tufillo and in second wedding Giulia dei marchesi Brancia dei Principi di Apricena

http://www.delbalzo.com/old/orsinidelbalzoing.htm

Short Essay on the History of the del Balzo/Orsini family

Genealogy Orsini / del Balzo (see page Genealogy and family tree del Balzo)

3.2.3.1.6.Hugues de Baux, Sn de Gaudissart, Cte di Soleto, died a Tanaro 1315
m.c.a. 11 Dec 1310 Jacopa della Marra

3.2.3.1.6.1.Raimondo del Balzo, Cte di Soleto, Marshal of the Kingdom of Naples/Sicily
d.1375, bur Naples;

marr.1st before 1332 Margherita d'Aquino;

marr..2d before 11 Feb 1337 Isabelle d'Appes

3.2.3.1.6.2.Sveva del Balzo; marr.1330 Roberto Orsini, Cte di Nola; her descendants inherited the estates of her brother Raimondo del Balzo Count of Soleto and took the surname Orsini del Balzo :

had issue: Raimondo Orsini del Balzo Prince of Taranto died 1406

m.Marie d'Enghien Ctss of Lecce c.a 1380 had issues (three sons)

1). Giovanni Antonio Orsini del Balzo Prince of Tarant m.Anna Colonna (d.1465)

2).Gabriel Orsini del Balzo Duc of Venosa d.1465 m.Jeanne Caracciolo had issue : (two daughters)

1.Maria Donata Orsini del Balzo d. ca 1487
marr.Pirro del Balzo 4th Duc of Andria

2.Ramondina Orsini del Balzo d.ca 1490
marr. Roberto Sanseverino Prince of Salerno

3).Caterina Orsini del Balzo m.Tristan di Chiaramonte Cte of Copertno had issue : (two daughters)

- Isabella di Chiaramonte m. Ferrante I King of Naples d.1494 ;

- Sancia di Chiaromonte, m. Francesco II 3rd Duc of Andria d.1482

Raimondello Orsini del Balzo, Prince of Taranto (XIV sec. - Taranto 1406), son cadet of Roberto Orsini, Count of Nola.
In 1380 , he returned from the East occupies with violence the Earldom of Soleto and some other lands pertaining to his mother inheritance.

In May 1382 Roberto , in order to fight the rebellious son, asks king Charles III of Durazzo for help. Charles , however, was engaged in the fight against Luigi I of Angiò and he profits of the friendship and the alliance of the young del Balzo, because he wants him to its flank against the Angevin.

After few years , Raimondello revolts against Charles III and he passes from the part of Luigi I of Angiò. In the fight with the father Roberto , Raimondello, succeeds to obtain the fiefdoms and lands that they were up for inheritance.

Following the advise of the Angevin , in 1384, married Maria of Enghien, Countess of Lecce and owner of important Fiefdoms.

When in 1384 Luigi I of Angiò died , Raimondello continues in its politics in favour of the House of Anjou , supporting Luigi II of Angiò and in March of 1385, helps the Pontiff Urbano VI threatened in Nocera by the troops of Carl III of Durazzo.

The pope Urban VI is liberated in 1385 , the Pontiff grants to Count Raimondello Orsini del Balzo licence to build a Convent , an Hospital and a Church " sub vocabulo Sanctae Chatarinae" in S. Peter in Galatina.

With the inheritance from the wedding with Maria of Enghien , together with his vast Lands , Raimondello becomes one of the most powerful Lord of Southern Italy and his switch from Luigi II of Angiò to Ladislao the Magnanimous , during the dynastic fights for the Realm , he becomes the key player for the defeat and the final dissolution of the Anjou-Naples branch (1399).

Raimondello again came in contrast with Ladislao of the Durazzo branch. The king had placed under besieges the city of Taranto, Raimondello, was there to defense his own Lands and died in 1406 , but the resistance and the fight continued, even if for a short period, from the widow Maria of Enghien.

Giovanni Antonio (or Giannantonio) Orsini del Balzo, son of Raimondello and Maria of Enghien cannot succeed in 1407 the father, because of the wedding between his mother and the king Ladislao the Magnanimous .

With this wedding, in fact, it was intentional to prevent the celebration of the one with Maria of Anjou -Valois, daughter of Luigi II, that would have established an opposite military political alliance, in contrast to what was the purpose of his mother original marriage.

Later, in 1417, he married the grandaughter of Pope Martino V, Anna of the princes Colonna.

He become Prince of Taranto in 1414 , was then involved in the dynastic fights during the Reign of Giovanna II, greater sister of Ladislao , who was very hostile to him.

He was by the side of Alfonso V of Aragon (Alfonso I°, king of Naples) and was opposed to his son , Ferrante (Ferdinando I) king of Naples. He died in 1463, in Altamura, assassinated, and its fiefdoms were returned to the the Crown.

(see full genealogy on the del Balzo family Tree)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Giovanni_Anto...el_Balzo_Orsini

Peter Paul Rubens's copy of The Battle of Anghiari by Leonardo Da Vinci. Allegedly the 2 knights at right are Lodovico Trevisan and Giovanni Orsini.

GMNL - December 9, 2009 03:59 PM (GMT)

This conspiracy BS is a load of paranoid crap. just get on with your life people.

map - December 9, 2009 11:23 PM (GMT)

that fleur is EVERYWHERE!

AntiSionist - December 10, 2009 05:52 AM (GMT)

A modern reincarnation.

craig-oxley - December 17, 2009 03:08 PM (GMT)

Information about Rome for visitors

http://www.sjweb.info/curia/visitors.cfm

Where to stay in Rome

The Collegio Bellarmino and the Canisio residence are the normal places for Jesuit visitors to stay in Rome.
Collegio Bellarmino: Via del Seminario, 120, 00186 Roma; Guestmaster email: mincsrb@gmail.com
Canisio residence: Via Penitenzieri, 20, 00193 Roma; Guestmaster email: canisiomin@gmail.com

Hotels near the Vatican and pensioni run by religious groups in Rome:
Hotels
Pensioni
Long-term housing

Mass in English There is an English Mass at 11:00 AM Sundays at the Jesuit-supported Caravita Chapel, just to the left of Chiesa San Ignacio in the center of Rome. For more information, visit the website: www.caravita.org

Web Sites about Rome The AbcRoma Guide (hotels and restaurants, museums)

An online booking service for hotels and other services

Romaclick- an online booking service for hotels

RomeEye has a variety of information

Rooms of Ignatius
The rooms where St. Ignatius wrote the Constitutions of the Society of Jesus and directed its early growth have been restored. They can be visited from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m.; they are open to the public during those hours. They are located at Piazza del Gesù; the entrance is just to the right of the church as you face it.

Mass is celebrated every 45 minutes in the Gesù.

Vatican Information about the Vatican.

Borghese Gallery
The Borghese Gallery is a very nice museum and palazzo which is open on Tuesday through Sunday with entrance from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is also the only museum where you have to make a reservation ahead of time. The reason for this is the fact that only groups of 50 people at a time are admitted. You can either phone to: 00-39-06-32810 and, when a tape in Italian starts transmitting dial 2 for the English speaking operator, or try to fax to their number: 00-39-06-32651329.

GMNL - December 24, 2009 10:08 AM (GMT)

N/A

craig-oxley - January 21, 2010 04:25 PM (GMT)

If you haven't already included the Medici's, your delaying their influence. Their line included 4 Pope's and they intermarried with all of the Farnese lines. Their power was from Florence, which was a Guelph stronghold. Ironically without Florence, Umbria, and the Valley of the Tiber, Rome can't survive. Medici were enemies of the reformation. Napoleon Bonaparte's father or mother???? is a descendant of the Medici's. And there is also a French line.

-Anonymous

Gangrenous Khan - February 1, 2010 04:22 PM (GMT)

I wonder how Machiavelli factors into this Roman drama? I do know he is tied to the Medici's (which is of course common knowledge) and that his work has been an inspiration to illuminist demagogues the world over.

Not to mention, he is one of the few (all of them could be considered having illuminist ideas, or illuminists themselves, and have been a great inspiration and model to the New World Government) that we study as Political Scientists in our Universities (including Plato, Hegel, Marx, the Catholic thinkers, et all.) It is always nice to know that our university system indoctrinates and programs our future political thinkers this way.

Dan81xd - March 14, 2010 08:57 AM (GMT)

(FAMILY) Pitti PALACE (Florence) [conected with: Medicis-Lorraine-Savoy-Toledo]

IN SPANISH:

http://www.foroxerbar.com/viewtopic.php?t=8077

This work is dedicated to Pitti Palace in Florence in Italy. The Florentine palace located on the left bank of the Arno, between the Place Pitti and the Boboli Gardens was originally built as a residence for the banker Luca Pitti (to which it owes its name), entrusting the project to Brunelleschi, who began work in 1440 .

According to experts: The approach differs from the Pitti Palace, which until then had been done in European civil architecture and buildings which until then had primarily a defensive character. In the palace there is the integration of the building in the area citizen, going to be part of it, although the palace was located in what might be called the outside of Florence.

In the next century, and before the unstoppable economic power of the Medici, the Pitti family sold the palace to this family, which gave him the splendor of it enjoys today. To this charge an expansion project and remodeling Bartolomeo Ammannati consisted in transforming the town into a real palace of pleasure. Ammannati transformed and expanded the main facade and I think one of the most beautiful Renaissance courtyard, the Cortile dell 'Ammannati, inside the Palace.

The facades of the Palazzo Pitti, in the courtyard are arranged on three floors, separated by a cornice and topped by a balustrade. It introduces the classic succession of orders, Doric on the first floor, Ionic on the second and Corinthian in the third. Also decorated with padding, which will be typical of Florentine civic architecture. This padding is repeated as such on the main facade.

In the seventeenth century, the architect Giorgio Vasari involved in building the Vasari Corridor. This corridor is a large gallery that crosses many streets of Florence, including the Arno River. It was built with the aim of uniting the Pitti Palace with the Palazzo Vecchio and the Uffizi through the Ponte Vecchio, the Medici family allowing move freely between their two residences Florence without "down" on the streets, thus avoiding potential hazards when exposed to population. However, this corridor had another more important function: to serve as an art gallery as the Medici collection had grown so much that the idea of having ideo along this corridor so that the family could enjoy it as they rode through the streets of Florence.

From the sumptuous interior of Palazzo Pitti, we highlight several stays: Prometheus Hall, Hall of San Giovanni, the throne room, the salon of Hercules, decorated by Pedro Benvenuti, the Logetta, living on Mars, the room of the lilies, one of the oldest and the Leonardo room, with important works of this artist.

Behind the palace lie the beautiful Boboli gardens, designed by Tribole.

I hope that the collection of information and images that I got you like them.

PALACE PITTI

The Palazzo Pitti is a huge Renaissance palace in Florence, Italy. Situated on the south bank of the Arno, a short distance from the Ponte Vecchio. The aspect of the present palazzo dates from 1458 and was originally the town residence of Luca Pitti, a Florentine banker. It was bought by the Medici family in 1539 as the official residence of the Grand Dukes of Tuscany.

In the nineteenth century, the palace was used as a base by Napoleon I, and then served for a short period of time, as the official residence of the Kings of Italy. In the early twentieth century, the palace and its contents were donated to the Italian people by Victor Emmanuel III as its doors were opened to the public and became one of the largest art galleries in Florence. Today, it remains a public museum, but has expanded the initial collections.

The facade of the Pitti Palace overlooking the Boboli Gardens, widening of the original Palatine

HISTORY

user posted image

Tinted photograph of the Pitti Palace (early twentieth century), still known as La Residenza Reale following the residency of King Emmanuel II between 1865 to 1871, when Florence was the capital of the United Origins of the Palazzo Pitti. The construction of this harsh and imposing building was commissioned in 1458 by the Florentine banker Luca Pitti, a friend and ally of Cosimo Médicis.La early history of this palace is a blend of myth and reality. Luca Pitti is said that he wanted to build a large palace that dislodged Palazzo Medici Riccardi, giving precise instructions about the size of the windows (they debáin be greater than the portico of Palazzo Medici-Riccardi). Illustrated personalities as Vasari proposed that Brunelleschi was the true architect of the palace and that his pupil Luca Fancelli simply made the job of assistant. Currently, the design is attributed to Fancelli palace.

Lucca Pitti

Leonor Alvarez de Toledo

Luca Pitti (1398 - 1472) began work at the palace to 1458; Leonor di Toledo, Grand Duchess of Tuscany, bought the palazzo from the Pitti in 1549. Portrait of Agnolo Bronzino

Apart from the obvious stylistic differences between the two architects, Brunelleschi died twelve years before work began on the palace. The design and positioning of the openings suggest that Fancelli had more experience in utilitarian domestic architecture than in man-made rules defined by Alberti in De Re-construction manual.

The original palace, although impressive, no rival in terms of size and content with the magnificence of the Medici family residences. The architect was counter to the fashion of the time, because the cushion of the stone masonry reinforced by the repetition of windows and arches give the palazzo a severe and harsh, resembling a Roman aqueduct (art all'antica). This original design has withstood the test of time, since the formula of the façade was maintained during the successive enlargements of the palace, extending its influence during his time numerous imitations and recreations of the eighteenth century.

The work of the palace were stopped after suffered financial losses as a result of Luca Pitti death of Cosimo de Medici in 1464, the building unfinished at his death in 1472.

Vault painted in 1599 by Giusto Utens that reproduces the original Palace, Boboli Gardens and Amphitheater

The building was sold in 1549 by Buonaccorso Pitti, a descendant of Luca, Eleanor of Toledo, wife of Cosimo I de 'Medici, Grand Duke of Tuscany, and had been educated at the luxurious court of Naples. On moving into the palace, Cosimo had Vasari enlargement of the palace to suit your tastes and needs.

Relief on the facade of the Pitti Palace. The greatly increased size of the palace and built an elevated walkway from the former royal residence, the Palazzo Vecchio, crossing the Ponte Vecchio and the Uffizi, the Palazzo Pitti.

In addition, acquired some land to fund the palace on the hill of Boboli, to create a large park, the Boboli Gardens. Landscapers who worked on this project were Niccolo Tribolo and Bartolommeo Ammanati. The original design of the garden surrounding an amphitheater, located behind the corps de logisdel palace, where plays were performed playwrights of the stature of Giovanni Battista Cini for the cultivated Florentine court Martyrdom of Saint Agatha by Sebastiano del Piombo, bought by the Medici to its renowned collections.

Il Genio di Casa Medici, statua bronzea di Bartolomeo Ammannati

Expansions

When completed the project of the gardens, Ammanati focused on building a great cortile (patio) after the main facade, to join the palace garden with brand new. So that was the same level as the plaza, had to dig into the hillside of Boboli. The fluted masonry of this court has been copied in many palaces, as did Marie de Medici at his residence in Paris, the Luxembourg. It introduced into the façade of finestre inginocchiate, 1 replacing the inlet openings on both sides.

Between 1558 and 1570, Ammanati built a monumental staircase that provided access to more pomp to the piano nobile, and added two wings to the palace, surrounding the newly created court. On the side facing the garden, he designed a cave called Grotto of Moses, by the statue of porphyry situated therein, and on the upper terrace level of the windows of the piano nobile, the Source of Carciofo, 2 designed by the wizard Giambologna, Francesco Susini (1641).

Gladiatore. Portico del cortile di Palazzo Pitti a Firenze.

In 1616 he opened a competition to design the expansion of the main urban facade by three bays at each end which Giulio Parigi won. Work on the north side began in 1618 and in the south in 1631, the latter by Alfonso Parigi.

During the eighteenth century, two perpendicular wings were constructed, designed by architect Giuseppe Ruggeri to create a central square in front of the façade, the prototype of Cour d'honeu then copied in France. Many other minor alterations and additions were made through the years under different rulers and by different architects.

Nineteenth-century architectural drawing on the Pitti Palace

The Lorraine and Savoy

The palace was the principal residence of the Medici to death in 1737 the last heir to the lineage, John Gaston de 'Medici, Grand Duke of Tuscany. The property then passed into the hands of the new dukes, members of the House of Lorraine, in the person of Francis I, Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. The palace owned by the Austrians was briefly interrupted by Napoleon, who used the palace as a residence during his rule in Italy.

When in 1860, Tuscany became a province of the Kingdom of Italy, the palace became property of the House of Savoy. After the Risorgimento, when Florence was briefly the capital of Italy, King used it as a residence until 1871. His grandson, Victor Emmanuel III gave the palace to the nation in 1919.

Aerial view of Palazzo Pitti, the Boboli Gardens in the background. The palace and other buildings in the Boboli Gardens were divided into five galleries and a museum, home to most of its original contents and various state procurement. The 140 rooms open to the public belongs to the original kernel extensions that were made in the XVII and XVII. Antique interiors have been preserved and later additions, like the throne room. In 2005 the baths were discovered in the eighteenth century, showing plumbing very similar to current health.

Palace Galleries

The Palazzo Pitti is currently the largest museum complex in Florence. The main building Palatine, usually called corps de logis has an area of 32000 square meters and is divided into sections cited here.

Dan81xd - March 14, 2010 09:21 AM (GMT)

Palatine Gallery (Pitti Palace)

Rafael. The evening. 1515 -1516. Oil on canvas. 82 x 60.5 cm. Palatine Gallery. Palazzo Pitti

The Palatine Gallery, located on the piano nobile of the palace, is probably the most famous group which once formed part of the famous Medici collections. This museum, which runs through the royal apartments, contains works by Raphael, Titian, Correggio, Rubens and Pietro da Cortona, and others. He continues to maintain the appearance of a private collection, for works of art are arranged in the manner of a palace, instead of the typical placement of museums.

La cosiddetta

The main rooms were decorated by Pietro da Cortona in baroque style, he painted frescoes in seven halls of the palace. In fact, it is considered one of his best work the vast series of frescoes in the Sala della Stuff (1637 - 1642), representing the Golden Age, Silver Age, Copper Age and Iron Age, and Chambers of Mars, Jupiter and Venere (1647), which served as models for the Salon des Planetes of Le Brun at the Palace of Versailles. The rest of the rooms were filled to the seventeenth century by Ciro Ferri.

The collection was opened to the public for the first time at the end of the eighteenth century by Grand Duke Pietro Leopoldo, who wanted to gain popularity after the end of the Medici dynasty.

Copia cinquecentesca del cosiddetto -Antinoo capitolino-, sullo scalone d'ingresso di Palazzo Pitti a Firenze.

Bacchus Statue in the Palazzo Pitti.

Royal Apartments

Here are a set of 14 rooms, formally used by the Medici family and their descendants. These rooms have been substantially altered since the Medici era, mostly during the nineteenth century and contains a collection of portraits of the Medici, many of them Sustermans Giusto.

In contrast to the great halls of the gallery palate, many of these rooms are small and intimate but luxurious and formal, are more attuned to everyday needs. King of Italy used as a royal residence until 1920, Pitti Palace, as though he had become a museum, some farms were reserved for visits to Florence.

Modern Art Gallery

This vast collection, which extends over 30 quarters, including works by artists of the movement you Macchiaioli Italian and other modern schools. The paintings of this movement, along with schools of nineteenth-century Tuscany (directed by Giovanni Fattori were precursors of Impressionism. The period in this gallery is from 1800 to 1939, because art after World War II (contemporary art), exhibited at the Centro per l'Arte Contemporanea Luigi Pecci in the city of Prato.

Portico del cortile di Palazzo Pitti a Firenze. Frammento di volto antico-romano di divinità, completato nel XVI secolo come busto di Pirro.

Silver Museum

The Silver Museum, sometimes called "The Medici Treasury," contains a valuable collection of silver, cameos, work in semi-precious gems and jewelry from antiquity, both belonging to the collection of Lorenzo de Medici. These rooms were part of the private apartments, decorated in frescoes by painters of the seventeenth century as Giovanni di San Giovanni. The Silver Museum also has a magnificent collection of German silver, donated by the Grand Duke Ferdinand when after the defeat of Napoleon in 1815.

Sommer, Giorgio (1834-1891) - Venere del Canova (Firenze) ca. 1860

Porcelain Museum

This collection was opened to the public for the first time in 1973, settling in the "Casino del Cavaliere" in the Boboli Gardens, and is composed of pieces of the most famous European factories (Sèvres, Meissen, Capodimonte ...). Many pieces are diplomatic gifts from foreign courts, and others were ordered by the court of Grand Duke. The jewels of the collection are the Servivios dinner from the factory of Vincennes, and Capodimonte bisque figures.

Hall Prometheus

Costume Gallery

This gallery, located in a wing of the palace known as Meridian Palazzina, consists of a set of theatrical costumes covering the sixteenth century to our days and funeral garments of the Grand Duke Cosimo, his wife Eleanor and his son Garcia. This collection was opened in 1983 by Kristen Aschengreen Piacenti.

Hall ST. Giovanni

Carriage Museum

Located on the ground floor of the palace, the Carriage Museum shows floats and other couplings that were used in the grand ducal court in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. There are a variety of carriages, from the simplest to the most ostentatious, such as "Carrozza d'Oro", decorated with gold leaf and landscapes. Other points of interest are the carriages of the King of the Two Sicilies and of the archbishops of Florence.

Throne Room

hall della tazza (1897)

The Palace Today

Compared with many of the great palaces of Italy, the Pitti Palace stands not at first sight, in particular, does not have the imposing and impressive presence of the Royal Palace of Caserta, and the appearance of strength of Turin, or the elegance of the Royal Palace Naples or the Quirinal.

The architectural significance of the Pitti Palace is its severity and simplicity, a structure that has been copied repeatedly to throughout history. Draws attention to the magnificence of size, strength and the reflection of light in the repetitive structure of the stone facade, in which the vast and solid cushion plays down the ornamentation and elegance of design. As in many Italian palaces, you must enter the building to fully appreciate its architecture.

The gardens of the amphitheater in the park of Boboli, Palazzo Pitti.

Vasari Corridor

In the seventeenth century, the architect Giorgio Vasari involved in building the Vasari Corridor. This corridor is a large gallery that crosses many streets of Florence, including the Arno River.

It was built with the aim of uniting the Pitti Palace with the Palazzo Vecchio and the Uffizi through the Ponte Vecchio, the Medici family allowing move freely between their two residences Florentine (the palace in the center Vecchio and the Palazzo Pitti in the suburbs) without "down" on the streets, avoiding exposure to potential hazards to the population. However, this corridor had another more important function: to serve as an art gallery as the Medici collection had grown so much that the idea of having ideo along this corridor so that the family could enjoy it as they rode through the streets of Florence.

The head of this new feature was Cosimo I de 'Medici, Grand Duke of Tuscany, who converted the palace into an art gallery, a function which still holds, and why it is known mundilamente. In this century, Pietro da Cortona and his followers carried out the historic frescoes decorating the walls of the palace. Also are continuous extensions of the building, mainly due to Parifi and Ruggieri

This "Museum-Vasari Corridor in Florence" has an important collection of paintings and sculptures that "you can visit" at the top of the oldest bridge in Florence, the most comprehensive collection of self portraits in the world. It is a spectacular museum, unique.

At the top, on one side of the Ponte Vecchio can be appreciate the corridor, where it is now a museum. During the Second World War, unlike other bridges in Florence the Ponte Vecchio was not destroyed by the Germans during their retreat on August 4, 1944. According to tradition this was due to an express order of Hitler. But the Germans blocked access to the Ponte Vecchio, through the destruction of buildings in close proximity to both headers.

Dan81xd - May 18, 2010 09:39 AM (GMT)

A Uruguayan catholic priest exchanging emails with Alessandra Borghese a blog entry:

http://algotipocomo.blogspot.com/2008/04/u...a-borghese.html

Jaime Fuentes
From 1987-2008 I was professor of theology and chaplain at the University of Montevideo. In 2009 I explained Mariology at the Faculty of Theology of Uruguay. I live in Paysandu and every week I travel to Salto and Montevideo.

Friday April 11, 2008

ALESSANDRA BORGHESE EMAIL

Yesterday, unexpectedly, I received an email from Alessandra Borghese. I do not know if they know their history, the account in that book and it's exciting: the story of a woman who had everything (Alessandra belongs to one of the most aristocratic families of Italy) and in fact had nothing. Until I found that, leaving everything in God's hands, could begin to have the most craved: a loving heart since then is carried to all, without fear of going against the tide.

When a couple of years ago I read his book I wrote, I said and I joined their mailing list.

The mail I received yesterday states:

"Necesto a minute of your time and thank you. Maybe you've had a chance to know me through my books, or articles I have written as Vatican following the pope, or televised testimony. My website is active and updated to know more:

http://www.alessandraborghese.com/

Some time ago, Pier Ferdinando Casini asked me to go top of the list to the Senate of Rome and Lazio, by the Union of the Centre. This new commitment to my life has come so sudden and without having sought. After having meditated long, I have accepted the challenge, which is to be as high as 8% in the Senate, it is difficult but not impossible.
If I become elected, I will continue defending the non-marketable securities that we believe in: family, youth, culture of life, education and work. I do not intend to bring my faith to parliament, but to make policy at the level of my faith, this does.

Paul VI said that politics is the highest form of charity. Me in the Senate, the people of life, of which I am proudly part, will have a clear point of reference. Give me your vote and I will be useful to people.

Alessandra Borghese
alessandra.borghese @ yahoo.it

So much for the mail. I think Alessandra Borghese is setting an example to imitate. Or not?

With Francesco Cossiga & Joaquín Navarro-Valls
Throwing the cosmos

Alessandra Borghese

Alessandra Borghese was born in Rome on 25th September, 1963 to Prince don Alessandro Romano Borghese and Fabrizia dei Conti Citterio.

She attended the Catholic Institute of Trinità dei Monti, and obtained a degree in Business Administration from the John Cabot College, specializing in marketing and management.

She then worked in New York for three years for American Express. On returning to Italy she became a share holder of International Affairs, a company specialized in communication and company image management, adding the following companies to their client portfolio: Italiana Petroli, Piaggio and Edisport.

In 1990 she founded the “Alessandra Borghese” Culture Centre with which, over the years, she has organized very successful public events of a high standard in the art, cinema and music fields, including: “Intorno al Futurismo” (Around Futurism) (1991/92), “La seduzione da Boucher a Warhol” (Seduction from Boucher to Warhol) (1992/93), “Tamara de Lempicka” (1994), “Cinema: cento anni di meraviglia” (Cinema: a hundred years of wonderment) (1994/95), “Leni Riefenstahl” (1996), “Passione per la vita: la rivoluzione nell’arte messicana del XX secolo” (A passion for life: revolution in Mexican 20th Century art) (1996/97).
At the same time, she worked on the restoration of a 17th Century family property near Montecatini Terme, transforming a farmhouse into a tourist centre.

To promote the new complex, Alessandra Borghese organized two events called “Country art at the Medici farmhouse” (1995-1996).
During the second edition, she set up an exhibition called “The Borghese family, patronage in 1996” working with major contemporary Italian figurative artists, followed by an international meeting on the theme of contemporary art patronage.
She has also organized Eucharistic celebrations in the most famous Roman Basilicas, presided by Cardinals of the Clergy and accompanied by renowned international orchestras including the great Dresden Orchestra (2000), the Regensburg Choir (1999) and the Salzburg Chamber Orchestra (2001). Profits were devolved to humanitarian causes, including the poor in Rome and Afghan refugees.
Alessandra has also raised funds for the Italian Cancer Research Association and for the Koscevo hospital in Sarajevo through charity events.

She was Mayor Rutelli’s Special Counsellor for Culture and Tourism (a non political, fiduciary appointment) during the 2000 Jubilee, as well as a member of the Agenzia della Moda Board of Directors.
She has worked for Panorama and for the daily newspaper Il Tempo, and has written for the weekly magazine Gente and for Style, the Corriere della sera. monthly magazine.

craig-oxley - May 19, 2010 01:58 PM (GMT)

If you look into Switzerland you'll see the power of the Casanova family. This family is tied into the Hapsburg-Gonzaga families. Now check out Jesuit soldier, Aloysius Gonzaga SJ and how he was controlled and educated by Francesco I de' Medici. You'll note the Gonzaga connection to the Holy Roman Empire via Holy Roman Emperor, Ferdinand I being the grandfather of Vincenzo Gonzaga and of course the relationships with the Holy Roman Emperors of Ferdinand II and III by Eleonor Gonzaga and Eleanor Gonzaga. If we look at Federico II of Gonzaga we will see on his coat of arms the logo of The Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem just as we see it within the Rex Templar shield. Interesting to note the connections these families all now seem to have with Asia. If we look at the Philippines we see a town based in Cagayan called Gonzaga. This is off the coast of the Republic of the Philippines. These families seem to like these types of coastal locations such as Bellagio, Como in Italy. Reminds me of the location of Macau, China where the powerful Henry Breakspeare dwells. Lets note how the Papal Nobility control directly the Republic of the Philippines down in Quezon City using Jesuit soldier, Jose Cecilio Magadia SJ. This Provincial being controlled by Assistant, Daniel Huang SJ based in the Curia Generalizia controlled by the Superior General and the Jesuit Gray Council.

craig-oxley - June 30, 2010 02:44 PM (GMT)

user posted image

user posted image

General Medici

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: GAETANI Chapel and SATAN

Title: GAETANI Chapel and SATAN

craig-oxley - June 28, 2010 05:17 PM (GMT)

This picture is taken from the Caetani Chapel located at Anagni Cathedral in the Country of Italy. Notice the Abzu of Lucifer nearby, that swirly pillar tied to the planet Venus and the polarisation of Earth's waters bringing about more land on the planet later in time. Also the six pointed star within the circle meaning the perfect image of creation and first principle of the universe (eternity). We have the square of the planet Saturn (Satan) held up by the four phallic pillars, the front two being Boaz and Jachin. Saturn is the universe being held up by these four pillars. The square being known as the act of quaternary geometry. The four individual pillars being made up of the squared circle which is the act absolute eternal harmony. The square masculine surrounding the feminine circle.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Princess Susana von Radic

Title: Princess Susana von Radic
Description: Imperial Royal Highness of Croatia

14april2000 - June 20, 2010 09:01 PM (GMT)

PRINCESS SUSANA FRANGIPANE ANJOU MANLIUS TORQUATUS von RADIC of CROATIA

Infomation found on he facebook profle.

http://www.facebook.com/note.php?note_id=114550068294

Her Imperial Royal Highness is the direct descendant of an Ancient Imperial Roman & Illyrian/Croatian Royal bloodline that dates back many centuries. Her male ancestral line descends from Gaius Julius Augustus Caesar's family blood line. They were also part of the Octavian lineage that descended from the Anicii. Anicius was a Prince who escaped from Troy upon its destruction. He migrated to Italy where it had been arranged for him to marry Lavinia the daughter of Latinius, King of Latium. When the King died, his daughter became Queen of Latium and Anicius became King of Latium. Vatican records prove that her lineage descends from the "Ancient Latin Royal House of Latium by way of Augustus, Octavian and originates from the Anicii gens". Papal Genealogy - The Families and Descendants of the Popes by George L. Williams 1998 pg 21. Dictionary of Greek and Roman Biography by William Smith, LL.D. in three volumes, published 1844.

The maternal side was related to the earlier Popes and clergy of the Holy Roman Empire. As you read on -- you will see how she is related to the Davidic line. We will list a small amount of them just as an example: Pope Honorius (1124-1130), Pope Innocent II (1130-1143), Cardinal Aimerico Frangipane, Cardinal Fabio Frangepane (d.1587), Archbishop of Taranto Mirto Frangipane (16th Century), Paul Anjou Horvat von Radic of Palisna, Bishop of Agram [Zagreb] (1379 - 1387) and many more. The spelling of the family name is Frangipane and Frangipani (Frankopan is a Croat nickname). Both maternal and paternal sides the surnames were altered to sound more slavic. Examples of this can be seen in Frankopan, Frankopanovic and Radic. Radic is the paternal side but we are told this nickname comes from a couple of very interesting stories as well.

They were originally from a family called Pierleoni. There are a few people who make the mistake thinking that Pierleoni and Frangipani (Frankopan) are two different families because they struggled for power over one another. There are deep political, religious, family reasons -- skirmishes and discords over inheritances -- why they struggled. However, please do not make the same mistake that others have in the past, they are one in the same family. The tensions between the family became so volatile that their wars are forever emblazoned in history. One of those wars was known as the Guelph-Ghibelline conflict which gave way to a civil war which was finally settled in 1152 by the election of Frederick I Barbarossa. It is not common knowledge but there were several Popes of Royal Jewish descent ruling over the Holy See. Her Imperial Royal Highness's family contributed much towards the Vatican.

Her direct ancestor is Jordan (Giordano) Pierleoni. He was given the Roman cognomen of Frangipane (nickname for bread giver)in the 7th Century. Like all great heroes of Rome, he earned a nickname which honored his great generosity. Although he was renowned for his bravery and abilities, the greatest moment was when he saved the Roman people from starvation due to a huge flood which resulted in a great famine. With great determination he gathered supplies from far away which he managed to obtain with his own money to feed the entire Roman population. He then traveled by boat traveled from house to house; passing out loaves of bread and food to all of the starving people. J. Siemacher's Wappenbuch bands 29 & 36 published in 1873 & 1879

Even though Jordan (Giordano) Pierleoni - Frangipani great grandfather had married a well known Roman woman from a high aristocratic powerful family, he kept the nickname "Frangipane" because in those days Jews were not allowed to own properties, have slaves or servants, or conduct or own particular businesses. There were very careful records kept on the Roman population and more so on the Jewish population. They were not allowed to live in wealthy areas of Rome no matter how much money they had. Anyone with a drop of Jewish blood was forced to live in a Jewish ghetto. History has taught us the unjustness of prejudice. In ancient history and in more current history the attitude was a Jew was a Jew was a Jew. It did not matter to anyone that Her Imperial Royal family was of Jewish Aristocracy was allowed to inter-marry with the Royalty of the Roman Empire. Only the best of Royal European families were allowed to marry one of the Frangipane. There has been an unbroken chain of marriage with only their own kind since. They kept their name to identify which branch of three branches they derived from. One branch became clergy and thus this line died out. The second branch was beheaded in the late 16th century. The remaining branch is the branch which migrated from Friuli, Italy to Croatia and Hungary and is directly relative to Her Imperial Royal Highness.

Jordan (Giordano) Pierleoni - Frangipane accomplished much which helped serve his fellow Jews, however life was still limited to them. By helping the starving people of Rome, he hoped to bridge the gap so that the Romans would see that despite their treatment of our people, they were a very generous and kind people who knew how to put their differences aside to help even our enemies. Changing your name during the conversion to Christianity was one way to advance during those times, but to be given Roman citizenship and the chance to marry a wife of high Royal Roman blood and being bestowed with a hero's cognomen and being a Jew was just unheard of. He accomplished the impossible.

As we know from church and historical records that Jordan (Giordano) was the son of Petrus Leonis Pierleoni, who was the son of a wealthy banker and royal from Palestine. The documentation indicates his father's name was Baruch.

Here's where the mystery lies. There was a Baruch ben Neriah who was the scribe, disciple, secretary, and devoted Cousin of the Biblical prophet Jeremiah. Jeremiah and Baruch served as advisors to Zedekiah the last King of Judah. According to Josephus, Baruch was a Jewish aristocrat, a son of Neriah and brother of Seraiah ben Neriah, who was Lord Chamberlain of King Zedekiah of Judah. Barurch ben Neriah's name is a shortened form of the name Berechyahu. Baruch was the son of Neriah who was son of Mahseiah. The records only indicates that Baruch descended from a prominent family in Jerusalem and his prophetic career spanned the reigns of five kings (Jer 1:2-3): Josiah (639-309), Jehoahaz II/Shallum (609), Jehoiakim (608-598) Jehoiachin (598-597), and Zedekiah (597-586). Jerusalem fell to the Babylonians in 586 B.C.E. Baruch ben Neriah was trained, groomed and faithfully followed the prophet Jeremiah until it was his time to succeed Jeremiah. In turn Baruch trained and groomed Ezra and some others. He was chosen as God's apocalyptic seer and most of his holy visions came to pass.

Baruch wrote down the first and second editions of Jeremiah's prophecies as they were dictated to him by his Cousin. His loyalty, honesty and faithful service to Jeremiah under the worst and most dangerous times proved his discipline for what he believed in and love for Jeremiah. Baruch was a prophet in his own right. There are four books written by the prophet Baruch ben Neriah. Some sources identify him with Zoroaster who was an ancient Persian prophet and religious poet. The hymns attributed to him, the Gathas, are at the liturgical core of Zoroastrianism.

Both Baruch and Jeremiah witnessed the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem of 587–586 BCE. The rabbis described Baruch as a faithful helper and blood-relative of Jeremiah. According to rabbinic literature, both Baruch and Jeremiah, being kohanim and descendants of the proselyte Rahab, served as a humiliating example to their contemporaries, inasmuch as they belong to the few who harkened to the word of God.

Rahab (Rachav) meaning broad or large, lived in Jericho as a prostitute that assisted the Israelite spies. In turn for information and her sacrifice as a prostitute she was promised this would save her family and her during the planned military invasion as long as she continued to fulfill her part of the d3eal by keeping the details of the contact with them secret. She kept her promise and hid the spies in her house when the city guard came to her house looking for them. They kept their words by sparing her and her family after taking the city. When the people of Israel conquered, she also left the profession of prostitution and joined the Jewish people and became an honorable married woman. As a result of her honorable actions, she earned a place of honor in the Holy Scriptures. Josephus refers to Rahab as an Innkeeper and makes no mention of her being a harlot and some scholars argue that we really do not know if she was a harlot or not. Her behavior closeness to her father's family seem to indicate that she may not have been a harlot at all. However, there are many women in biblical history that were unfairly labeled as harlots. We only need to look at the more current stories of Mary of Magdalene as one of these prime examples.

Baruch's grave became the subject of later legends. According to a Muslim tradition reported by sources including Petachiah of Ratisbon, an Arabian king once ordered it to be opened; but all who touched it fell dead. The king thereupon commanded the Jews to open it; and they, after preparing themselves by a three days' fast, succeeded without a mishap. Baruch's body was found intact in a marble coffin, and appeared as if he had just died. The king ordered that it should be transported to another place; but, after having dragged the coffin a little distance, the horses and camels were unable to move it another inch. The king, greatly excited by these wonders, went with his retinue to Muhammad to ask his advice. Arrived at Mecca, his doubts of the truth of the teachings of Islam greatly increased, and he and his courtiers finally accepted Judaism. The king then built a "bet ha-midrash" on the spot from which he had been unable to move Baruch's body; and this academy served for a long time as a place of pilgrimage.

Baruch's tomb is a mile away from that of Ezekiel, near Mashhad Ali and a Jewish rabbinic source reported that a strange plant, the leaves of which are sprinkled with gold dust, grows on it. According to the Syriac Apocalypse of Baruch, he was translated to paradise in his mortal body. The same is stated in Derekh Eretz Zu??a (i.) of Ebed-Melech. Those who regard Baruch and Ebed-melech as identical find this deduction is evident.

The Arabic-Christian legends identify Baruch with Zoroaster, and give much information concerning him. Baruch, angry because the gift of prophecy which had been given to him but the situation denied him the same recognition his Cousin Jeremiah and others had, on account of the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple. He left Palestine to found the religion of Zoroaster. The prophecy of the birth of Jesus from a virgin, and of his adoration by the Magi, is also ascribed to Baruch-Zoroaster.

I have seen many records which indicates that without a doubt my family descended from the Davidic line. Where I have a question that is unanswered is, could there be a connection to Baruch the aristocratic banker and Baruch ben Neriah?

While we wait for that answer, you can read about both branches of her family in "Papal Genealogy, The Families and Descendants of the Popes" by George L. Williams or the Catholic Website. Just enter in the names of the popes related to this family or about Croatian History.

http://www.newadvent.org/

Although their cultural beliefs seem to continue throughout their rule over the Papal See, there were those that came along to degrade those cultural beliefs which have been presented very badly over the centuries. This led to family loss and their power over the Vatican along with all of the churches they built, and lands they amassed over the centuries as the marriages with other European Royal families came into play who sought that supreme power. They tried desperately to keep the church free from corruption and a place that was next to the second temple of Solomon. However, they lost that battle when it became aparant that others and groups of nobles discovered the idea of mixing religion, politics and money. Some viewed all of the family problems arising from the battle of the Guelphs and Ghibellines, while others state it was the Black Nobility that conspired to remove Her Imperial Royal Highness's family members from power. While the conspiracy theories grow rampant, Her Imperial Royal Highness is only interested in one thing - preserving what is left of her family honor and history. She aspires to live up to the ancient honor codes set forth by her forefathers. She also is only interested in making the world a better place for all.

The branch related to Popes originally immigrated to Rome from Palestine not long after the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem of 587–586 BCE. There are records noting the family permanently being recognized and officially noted as Roman Citizens. During that time it was almost impossible to obtain Roman Citizenship even when you were born and raised in Rome.

They were granted the title "Markgraftum of Rome". The records are a little strange in that it states the title was bestowed by "di Neri". This is a high military title which allows them to bear arms and control the military. The name di Neri which is close to the Emperor name Nero sounds frightening, especially when one considers the story of the Nero that burned down Rome while playing his violin. However, the name Nero derives from an Ancient Roman naming convention for the Claudian Gens (Gens: family). It is common knowledge that Nero despised Christians. He not just fed them to the lions but often used them as human torches to light up his gardens. It is therefore perplexing that Nero would have granted her family titles and lands. The various archival information was referring to none other than Augustus Caesar's family - part of the Claudian gens. Archival records indicate that her family descended from Augustus Caesar's bloodline. This is by way of her paternal side.

This information was released previously in many ancient archival records. However, there was a recent publication that was released by the Vatican in 1998 that was written by George L. Williams from translations from the works of Pompeo Litta who was allowed to research the 113 families of the Papacy. He died in 1852 leaving his work untranslated. The translated records released by the Vatican clearly state that Her Imperial Royal Highness's "lineage derives from the Latin Gens Anicia Augusta and Roman House of Augusta Octavia".

Many royal archival records indicate and reflect that Her Highness's bloodline did in fact, descend from this rare branch of the Roman Empire. The mystery behind Nero's reasons will be revealed in a soon-to-be-completed book by Her Imperial Royal Highness.

Part of the secret is that her paternal side of the family was descended from an Ancient Imperial Roman family bloodline that founded Tosculum and Rome that dates prior to 753 B.C. called the "Manlius Torquatus (Manlius)" genetes. This part of the original branch of the family descended from the bloodline of King Priamus of Troy by way of Prince Aeneas of Troy. He left upon the fall of Troy and settled in Latium (Italy). There he married Queen Lavinia where he founded a town which he lovingly named Lavinium in honor of her. The historical records also state that our family was thus known as being from the Ancient Anicia Gens (or the Anicii). The male part of our family is also known as having the cognomen of Gallus, Manlius Torquatus, Manlius Vulso, Augustus, Octavia, Caesar, Silanus, Olybrius, Flavius, Ptolemaeus, Gaius, Julia, and Junius as parts of their original ancient family branches. This part of the family's ancestry can be traced to ancient Persian/Trojan history.

Her family's medieval lineage traces to the first Counts of Anjou, France. There is a famous quote from the Medieval Sourcebook you can find on-line by visiting the Fordham University website that was translated from a Cistine Monk during the medieval period that states:
"From that stock [i.e. the new men] there was Tertullus (aka Torquatus), from whom the line of the consuls of Anjou took its beginning. A man who knew how to wound the enemy, sleep on the bare earth, put up with hunger, suffer winter and summer with equal patience, and fear nothing but a bad name".

http://www.fordham.edu/halsall/source/anjou.html

Her family has lived and died by these Ancient Honor Codes. "I live by example. MAKE NO MISTAKE, THE BLOOD OF MY ANCESTORS IS STRONG WITHIN ME. I AM A WARRIOR OF THE MOST ANCIENT KIND!"

The surname of the family was altered several times to nicknames. The earliest original family surname can be traced to the Manlius gentes (gentes: family). This is the branch of the family migrated during the Trojan War before the fall of Troy. This was Aeneas of the Anicii (Aeneades) which was known as the son of Priamus King of Troy. There were family stories that he was not in agreement with his brother Paris in keeping Helen.

He made arrangements with the great King Agamemnon and his brother Menelaus. As a result of their good relationship, he was allowed to leave with his wealth, personal property, wife and children upon the fall of Troy. The family ruled over Tusculum for centuries. This part of the family was then descended from Popes. This is also where the shroud of Turin now rests. There are inside family accounts that explain what happened; but for this, you will have to read her book when it is published.

The surname Manlius Torquatus derived from the account of her ancestor who fought in a hand-to-hand combat with a Gaul warrior. This story has been compared to David and Goliath because of the size of the Gaul warrior. Ancient accounts state that the Gaul was so large, he made Aeneas Manlius look like a small boy in comparison. The great Gaul warrior had appeared every day at the edge of the bridge, mouthing off insults against the Roman people. The battle had been arranged to give Titus Manlius Capitolinus Imperiosus of the Anicii a chance to also recover family honor.

The large Gaul warrior was the strongest warrior they had. Titus Manlius Capitolinus Imperiosus was injured by the Gaul and fell. The Gaul warrior thought he had delivered a fatal blow. The Gaul turned to the crowd, raising his shield and arms while the crowd cheered his praises. All of a sudden the crowd got very quiet because Titus Manlius Capitolinus Imperiosus started laughing in a maniacal way. As he removed the weapon from his body, he yelled out to the Gaul, "Is that the best you can do? Is that all you've got? Now it's my turn!" He rose to his feet while the Romans now cheered. He told the Gaul warrior to prepare to become one with his ancestors. He then slew the Gaul warrior, cut off his head and yanked the heavy gold "torque, (twisted" necklace) from the warrior's dead body. He took the heavy gold torque - necklace as his trophy. From that day forward the soldiers teased him calling him rudely calling him Torquatus - Torquatius. This is how this branch of the family earned the name "Torquatus" which we have kept to honor our ancestor but to also continue to identify the branch of Anici Manlius we come from.

The Anjou Manlius Torquatus infused themselves with their new family from the union they made between the Croatian/Illyrian Imperial ruling house and Rome. The family surname of "Radic" was an added surname/nickname to help incorporate the family into the surrounding Slavic tribes. However, there were several branches that did the same thing with their surnames of Subic, Gussich, Frankopanovich, Corbavia, Hrvat, Horvatic, Horvat de Palisna and so on. They are all still the same family. The portion of the surname "Rad" was from the word that meant "laughing or happy". The patronymic suffix of "ic" was then added.

The surname of Radic has a deeper meaning to the family. This part of their surname derived from the story of Marcus Manlius Torquatus who saved Rome because of the cackling of geese that woke him. This is why there are depictions of laughing geese on several family coat of arms. There are a couple of coat of arms that are identical to branches of Vlad the Impaler's family's coat of arms. One in particular is a direct branch to Her Imperial Royal Highness which shows a depiction of a laughing goose with a crown around it's neck and two dragons from the "Order of the Dragon" where the name "Dracula" they claim derived from. It is surrounded by the two dragons that are kissing at the top and tails entwined at the bottom. Another coat of arms is from the Radic side where there is a depiction of a pelican with a stone clutched in it's talons as a sign of the family's vigilance. Marcus Manlius is a sad story. Marcus Manlius Capitolinus was a patrician of the Roman Republic. He served as consul in 390 BC. As a result of his story no one has ever named another child Marcus as a tribute to his memory since. What the family did do was give ourselves the surname of Radic to continue his legacy.

http://www.ancientlibrary.com/smith-bio/0010.html

If you ever wondered what original royalty of the ancient world looked like, just look at her photographs. The family resemblance has been a remarkable trait passed on throughout the centuries.

Authentic records and some family photographs have survived, despite all the damages from war and efforts from those who have opposed and threatened her.

YOU ARE INVITED TO CHECK OUT HER PHOTO ALBUMS. Read her blogs for more eye opening information. Is Her Highness's story just a mere coincidence to you? YOU CAN DECIDE TO SEE THE TRUTH FOR YOURSELVES!

QUOTE

Copyright © 2008 Her Imperial Royal Highness Princess Susana of Croatia. All Rights Reserved

IN SUPPORT TO HIRH PRINCESS SUSANA , FOLDER: Documentation of Lineage

Book containing Vatican information published several years after HIRH Princess Susana went public.

http://www.myspace.com/princessvonraditsch

14april2000 - June 20, 2010 10:36 PM (GMT)

Papal Genealogy, The Families and Descendants of the Popes" by George L. Williams

http://books.google.com/books?id=-mq7ctwMN...illiams&f=false

14april2000 - June 20, 2010 11:35 PM (GMT)

I have not jet look into witch of the Papel bloodlines she is related to.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE JESUIT COUNCIL BY DON VITTORIO [Aud]

Title: THE JESUIT COUNCIL BY DON VITTORIO [Aud]

craig-oxley - May 7, 2010 01:14 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]

Don Vittorio on Black Pope's Occult Adviser: Jesuit Council

MAY 5TH 2010

[dohtml]<embed src="http://thatradio.podhoster.com/FlowPlayerLight.swf?config={embedded:true,videoFile:%27http://blip.tv/file/get/Craigoxley-COUNTVIVALDIIIIPapalNobilityMay5th2010469.mp3%27,initialScale:%27scale%27,controlBarBackgroundColor:%270x778899%27,autoBuffering:false,loop:false,autoPlay:false}" width="400" height="25" scale="fit" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" pluginspage="http://www.macromedia.com/go/getflashplayer"></embed>[/dohtml]
Download MP3 Direct HERE (Right Click, Save as)
Download from backup sites LINK1 or LINK2

MAY 6TH 2010

[dohtml]<embed src="http://thatradio.podhoster.com/FlowPlayerLight.swf?config={embedded:true,videoFile:%27http://blip.tv/file/get/Craigoxley-COUNTVIVALDIIIIPapalNobilityMay6th2010572.mp3%27,initialScale:%27scale%27,controlBarBackgroundColor:%270x778899%27,autoBuffering:false,loop:false,autoPlay:false}" width="400" height="25" scale="fit" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" pluginspage="http://www.macromedia.com/go/getflashplayer"></embed>[/dohtml]
Download MP3 Direct HERE (Right Click, Save as)
Download from backup sites LINK1 or LINK2

[dohtml]</Center>[/dohtml]

14april2000 - June 16, 2010 06:33 PM (GMT)

THE JESUIT COUNCIL OF TEN

1. Farnese
2. Borja
3. Colonna
4. Gaetoni
5. Medici
6. Pamphili
7. Orsini
8. Aldobrandini
9. Chigi
10. Conti

These are the 10 Roman families whose top men sit on the Jesuit Council.

craig-oxley - June 19, 2010 11:40 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]

Don Vittorio on Black Pope's Occult Adviser: Jesuit Council

JUNE 18TH 2010

[dohtml]<embed src="http://thatradio.podhoster.com/FlowPlayerLight.swf?config={embedded:true,videoFile:%27http://blip.tv/file/get/Craigoxley-VittorioOnEricPhelpsShowAboutPapalNobilityJune182010971.mp3%27,initialScale:%27scale%27,controlBarBackgroundColor:%270x778899%27,autoBuffering:false,loop:false,autoPlay:false}" width="400" height="25" scale="fit" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" pluginspage="http://www.macromedia.com/go/getflashplayer"></embed>[/dohtml]
Download MP3 Direct HERE (Right Click, Save as)

[dohtml]</Center>[/dohtml]

14april2000 - June 19, 2010 05:42 PM (GMT)

MAY 7TH 2010

http://www.mediafire.com/?tjnmqrnyim0

http://www.vaticanassassins.org/2010/05/ma...jesuit-council/

http://www.vaticanassassins.org/2010/05/ma...ncil-pt-1-of-3/

http://www.vaticanassassins.org/2010/05/ma...ncil-pt-3-of-3/

craig-oxley - June 19, 2010 05:59 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (14april2000 @ Jun 19 2010, 05:42 PM)

MAY 7TH 2010

http://www.mediafire.com/?tjnmqrnyim0

http://www.vaticanassassins.org/2010/05/ma...jesuit-council/

http://www.vaticanassassins.org/2010/05/ma...ncil-pt-1-of-3/

http://www.vaticanassassins.org/2010/05/ma...ncil-pt-3-of-3/

I never added these as I found them all but lacking in knowledge on the subject for those wishing to learn on the Papal Nobility. Those which I've highlighted are of the most importance.

14april2000 - June 19, 2010 06:17 PM (GMT)

I understand Craig.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE VATICAN GENEALOGY

Title: THE VATICAN GENEALOGY

Maximiliano - June 13, 2010 10:51 PM (GMT)

HERE IT IS A VERY GOOD STUDY ABOUT THE GENEALOGY OF THE VATICAN

http://www.homar.org/genealog/iii_gregolatino/vatindex.htm

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE TRUE 13 BLOODLINES OF THE ILLUMINATI [Lk]

Title: THE TRUE 13 BLOODLINES OF THE ILLUMINATI [Lk]

craig-oxley - June 13, 2010 12:14 PM (GMT)

Video here:
http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...showtopic=33218

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Underground of Rome [Vd]

Title: Underground of Rome [Vd]

craig-oxley - June 6, 2010 10:57 AM (GMT)

Remind you of what I informed you about with the Zoroastrian & Mithra occult rituals which take place below Rome? -Craig

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=DZO8YS85t20

[dohtml]<object width="480" height="385"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/DZO8YS85t20&hl=en_GB&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/DZO8YS85t20&hl=en_GB&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="400" height="340"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

map - June 6, 2010 11:07 PM (GMT)

your comments from UHM are the first thing I thought of when I emailed you this video.

They are showing all this because they are about to move bases of operations to jerusalem after the vatican is burned in one hour.

let's not forget emperor Constantine died a MITHRIAC

Maximiliano - June 7, 2010 12:33 AM (GMT)

Also remember folks that the Library of Alexandria which was founded by the Ptolemy dinasty it's was "burned" by Julio Cesar, which married whith Cleopatra, the last in the dinasty of Ptolemy... So the whole so called Burning of the Library of Alexandria was a fake and i believe that today that Library its in fact the Library of the Vatican, which it's today, like in that time, been moved to other secret place, to later been "burned" like in Alexandry.

Don't ever forget that the Ptolemy and the Seleucid Dinasties are the king of the south and the king of the north!

craig-oxley - June 7, 2010 09:36 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<table cellspacing="0" cellpadding="0" border="0" class="etext">
<tr>

<td width="70" valign="center" bgcolor="000000"> <FONT COLOR="99ffff" size="3" face="arial"> Craig Oxley </td>
<td width="619" valign="bottom" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2">
Correct, the current fixed base of operation is within Rome and sovereign, Borgo Santo Spirito. Your also very correct that the new fixed base of operation is to be The Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem. A location very much part </td>
</tr>

<td border="3" rowspan="2" align="center" >

<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2"> controlled by the Custodian of the two Holy Mosques, King Juan 'Farnese' Carlos of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem and their subordinate Knights Hospitaller. This location being the true capital of the World and the spiritual head of the revived Babylon including Dubai and Iraq. The later being the political capital whilst Dubai becomes the financial capital. Both The City of London and New York City will become redundant and this is evident by the start of the destruction of Western nations financially since September 2008 and onwards especially December 2010 through to 2018 when by 2019 they'll be ready to introduce the electronic only currency system doing away with cash entirely. So any safety guarantees to the </td>
</tr>

<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2"> corporations of the United States and United Kingdom that those locations within once bought will be no more. The Templar system is moving East to meet with Horus as the World's populace follow the Luciferian Doctrine openly and knowingly finally. </td>
</tr>

<tr>
<td width="657" colspan="3" valign="top" bgcolor="000000"><FONT COLOR="ffffff" size="2"> </td>
</tr>
</table>[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - June 11, 2010 09:24 PM (GMT)

Building at Caesarea Maritima converted to a Mithraeum in the early 2nd century A.D. Photo by Ferrell Jenkins.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Are there any good books about Papal black family?

Title: Are there any good books about Papal black family?

Gangrenous Khan - May 29, 2010 08:55 AM (GMT)

Having been to bookstores here in korea, although there is a good selection of books in english, i am hardpressed to find a good book that tells the truth about the hidden forces at work in our history.

It is so depressing... it seems that every book is just lies and bullshit.... In china and korea they have a book in print (which i have a copy of) called "Currency Wars", which talks about the dark influence banking families (primarily the rothschilds) have had on the world. It was written by a Chinese national. Not exposing the vatican system per se BUT ATLEAST ITS SOMETHING. This book is not available for print in english! But it is so popular here! Even among Chinese businessmen!

It is so depressing that the Asians have a better idea what is going on than us, who get blessed with such crap such as "My Life", and "The Secret". I even saw a book written (probably not really) by Henry paulson about the "action packed" events of getting the (elite looting festival) bailout passed and why it was needed. I wanted to tear apart the english section at that point....

Even reading through the book "Hitler's Pope", i was disappointed to find that the whole premise was that Hitler controlled Pius XII and not the other way around, and that Pius XII was just weak, and did not reflect the catholic church. The guy who wrote it allegedly had acces to vatican archives... i am starting to think he is a containment agent...

anyhow, let me know if there is anything of interest...

14april2000 - May 29, 2010 01:35 PM (GMT)

Papal Genealogy: The Families and Descendants of the Popes by George L. Williams

http://www.amazon.com/Papal-Genealogy-Fami...ntt_at_ep_dpi_1

http://www.amazon.co.uk/Papal-Genealogy-Fa...75139812&sr=8-5

Papal Genealogy: The Families and Descendants of the Popes (Library Binding) by George L. Williams

http://www.amazon.co.uk/gp/offer-listing/0...6&condition=all

Papal Genealogy: The Families And Descendants Of The Popes
Af George L. Williams

http://books.google.dk/books?id=-mq7ctwMNd...epage&q&f=false

The book is well written with Genealogy trees interspersed for most of the Popes and their associated Clans.It covers a lot of territory so is lacking in real depth - some of the related trees are in separate parts of the book which is a bit hard to follow. Obviously the earliest Popes have the scantiest information, and perhaps a bit more of the background clan politics could have been added,feuds and the reasons for the feuds, but overall it is well researched and a great reference book to have on hand.Well recommended.

To my knowlegde this is the only book.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: LIST OF THE PAPAL NOBILITY

Title: LIST OF THE PAPAL NOBILITY

craig-oxley - May 7, 2010 01:33 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]

LIST OF THE PAPAL NOBILITY

By Craig Oxley

Aldobrandini/Borghese *
Borja
Breakspeare *
Chigi
Colonna/Cologna
Conti
Farnese *
Gaetani/Caetani
Medici
Orsini *
Pamphili
Somaglia *

* = Most powerful bloodlines
[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]

Novusordo - May 13, 2010 10:58 PM (GMT)

I was fixing a computer at a customers house and it turns out they both had masters in history and while on the subject of the Jesuits/Romes power, the lady told me her mother used to babysit for the Aldobrandini's in Italy in the 1970's! She went on to say that her mother used to tell her that the Aldobrandinis were always petrified of the Communists and thought they would be killed any day, but never were as it turned out.

The lady also told me her and her mother went back to Italy on holiday and her mother wanted her to visit the Aldobrandini house in which she babysitted at and the lady was expecting a nice mansion and was in awe to discover it was more like a bloody fortress!

soulinspiration - May 14, 2010 07:47 PM (GMT)

QUOTE

DEAR ERIC & VITTORIO: OPINIONS SOUGHT ON IMPLICATIONS OF THIS ACCOUNT OF THE ALDOBRANDINIS' PARANOIA OF ATTACKS FROM LEFT-WING MILITANTS IN THE '70'S

Dear Eric & Vivian

I always like to hear or read of personal accounts from different people involving their coming into contact with various members of the so-called global elite. I say "so-called" so as to not give them any more prestige than is already heaped on them. The account below from a poster at The Unhived Mind forum reminded me of an old friend of mine who had a job one day installing a sound system at David Mayer de Rothschild's estate (If I recall correctly he said that he saw a large phoenix icon in the mansion).

To the matter at hand: If we are to take the account that was relayed to our fellow researcher below as being in any way accurate, then what are your opinions as to how this reflects on Vivian's contention that the Aldobrandinis are one of the key families that are at the peak of the covert global power structure & that they in fact oversee the Jesuits?

Or even, as seems to be the position that Eric is now allowing for: that the members Jesuit Council that these families have representatives on can be in an informed enough position concerning the bigger picture to act in an advisory capacity at the level that is conceded?

I have one book, called "Murder In The Vatican" by Lucien Gregoire (see: http://www.amazon.com/Murder-Vatican-Revol...73864111&sr=1-1) written by an acquaintance of Pope John Paul I that contends that Pope John Paul I was killed primarily for his being a Marxist/socialist at the height of Italy's Cold War "Strategy of Tension" period.

Eric contends (& has provided a reasonable body of evidence to back his thesis, which my own research has led me to acknowledge as being the most likely of scenarios) that the Cold War was at the highest levels a "beyond top secret" smoke & mirrors show that benefitted the central banking system, arms business & the rest of the military-industrial complex & the ongoing orchestrated dialectical strategy needed to implement an overt global geo-political entity implemented for the benefit of the Roman power nexus.

If that is the case then how do the two of you account for this eyewitness report of the Aldobrandinis paranoia of extreme left-wing militant forces (presumably the likes of the Red Brigade) that were unwittingly controlled by extreme right-wing forces, including intelligence operatives within Operation Gladio & P2 structures, that would have had the blessings of the CIA, NATO & Rome? Do you think that the situation that had been created was so volatile that it was often less than full confidence as to what the outcome might be? It may be a theoretical proposition to consider now, but how far do you think that the grassroots groundswell support for the Left could have have brought about the downfall of the status quo in Italy?

I have long maintained that the Western European elite were happy for there to be Communism in Eastern Europe & China (aided & orchestrated by the West), providing that it didn't make great headway in Western Europe, which would have accelerated their desired changes to come about too soon, so that the delicate balance of parts would likely gel less than perfectly, providing a less stable infrastructure, not too mention messing up the advantages to be milked from another decade or so of Cold War.

Your thoughts will be much appreciated.

Thank you -

Troy

http://realityresearch.wordpress.com

---
http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...1509&st=0&#last

Gangrenous Khan - May 15, 2010 12:24 PM (GMT)

They have reason to be scared. Even though they are part of the apex of power on earth, they are not stronger than God. eventually, according to the 17-18 chapters of revealation, some of the very power structures that rome helped set up on earth will turn on it, and set the city on fire. None will be spared. this is because God put it in their minds to do so.

Eboard10 - May 15, 2010 03:24 PM (GMT)

Its possible that they were scared of the italian communists and the red brigades who hated the aristocracy as well as other local gangs . Take a look at what happened to Duca Massimiliano Grazioli Lante della Rovere, an italian nobleman who was kidnapped by the Banda della Magliana in 1977 in Rome, and killed.

14april2000 - May 24, 2010 09:14 AM (GMT)

Craig you forgot The ESTE ESTENCE?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: BORGO SANTO SPIRITO

Title: BORGO SANTO SPIRITO

craig-oxley - January 16, 2009 02:13 AM (GMT)

[DOHTML]<CENTER>[/DOHTML]

BORGO SANTO SPIRITO

THE HOME OF ROMAN POWER

(JESUIT, KNIGHTS OF MALTA, MASONRY & TEUTONIC KNIGHTS)

NOW WHY WOULD MERE UNHOLY MEN

NEED THIS?

YES AN ADVANCED AIR DEFENSE SYSTEM?

THEY RULE THE WORLD

THEY PROTECT THEMSELVES AS THEY DO

THEIR PENTAGON.

[DOHTML]<CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

craig-oxley - January 16, 2009 02:32 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]

Masonic headquarters

at

Piazza del Gesu in Rome.

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]
Scottish Rite Supreme Council 33° of the Gran Loggia Nazionale Italiana

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]
Piazza del Gesù obedience

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]
The Grande Oriente Italiano obedience

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]
[dohtml]</Center>
[/dohtml]

Insurgent - January 16, 2009 03:16 AM (GMT)

Craig is that inside info or have you read it somewhere?

soulinspiration - January 16, 2009 04:19 AM (GMT)

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2009/01/05...-italy-in-rome/

QUOTE

MASONIC CATHOLIC PRIEST AT PIAZZA DEL GESU GRAND LODGE OF ITALY IN ROME

No surprise either, as both the Scottish Rite Supreme Council 33° of the Gran Loggia d'Italia (GLDI, founded in 1910 after a schism with the Grande Oriente d'Italia) & the Church of the Gesù - the mother church of the Jesuits - are located in Piazza del Gesù! In fact the GLDI is known as the Piazza del Gesù obedience. This body is recognised by the Scottish Rite's US Southern Jurisdiction ("Mother of the World") Supreme Council 33° in Washington, DC. The Jesuits control both the Roman Catholic Church & many elements within high-level Freemasonry on both sides of the Atlantic.

The Grande Oriente Italiano obedience (founded 1975, not to be confused with the Grande Oriente d'Italia) is also to be found at Piazza del Gesù, as is the Scottish Rite Supreme Council 33° of the Gran Loggia Nazionale Italiana (founded 1979).

- TS

Sources:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Gran_Loggia_d%27Italia

http://www.massoneriascozzese.it/altreobbedienze.htm

http://www.paginecattoliche.it/modules.php...article&sid=193

http://www.prontoimprese.it/lazio/roma/rom...reative+39.html

http://www.masonicworld.com/education/file...pythagorean.htm

http://www.mainemasonrytoday.com/history/P...proc1955p16.htm

http://www.catholicculture.org/news/featur...fm?recnum=49344

Catholic World News (CWN)
Italian priest joins Masons

Rome, Feb. 19, 2007 (CWNews.com) - An Italian Paulist priest has become a member of the Masons, joining the group in a ceremony attended by about 40 people at the Masonic headquarters at Piazza del Gesu in Rome.

Father Rosario Francesco Esposito dismissed the Church ban on membership in the Masonic lodge, saying that it is "a thing of the past."

The move by the 85-year-old Father Esposito is particularly interesting because he, along with Father Giovanni Caprile, SJ [Note: SJ = Society of Jesus = Jesuits - TS], was once commissioned by the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith to study the Church's teaching on masonry. In 1983 the prefect of the Congregation, then-Cardinal [Note: & SMOM Knight of Malta - TS] Joseph Ratzinger [Note: now Pope Benedict XVI - TS], made a public announcement that the teaching of the Church had not changed, and the ban on Masonic membership remained in place.

Related material:

 THE CHURCH OF ROME & FREEMASONRY

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/09/09...me-freemasonry/

 THE VATICAN'S OPEN BUT FALSE POLICY ON MASONRY & THE ROMAN CHURCH

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/09/12...e-roman-church/

 1754: RITE OF PERFECTION (JESUITS' CLERMONT COLLEGE, PARIS), SCOTTISH JUDGES (MARTINEZ AT MONTPELLIER) & STRICT OBSERVANCE RITE (BARON HUND, GERMANY) - JUST A COINCIDENCE!

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2009/01/03...-a-coincidence/

 THE JESUITS, CLERMONT COLLEGE, THE STUARTS & ADVANCED-DEGREE FREEMASONRY

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2009/01/03...ee-freemasonry/

 PHOTO OF THE GRAND MASTERS OF THE MARK MASTER MASONS & THE (FRANCO-NEAPOLITAN) CONSTANTINIAN ORDER

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2009/01/04...antinian-order/

 PAPAL-MASONIC LOVE-IN (THE TWIN-BACKED BEAST)

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/09/05...n-backed-beast/

 PRE-PAPAL RATZINGER BECAME A S.M.O.M. KNIGHT OF MALTA IN 1999

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/09/06...-malta-in-1999/

craig-oxley - January 16, 2009 06:43 AM (GMT)

Yes this is new inside information to the World again. Lets hope profane sheople wake up finally and see whos giving them real information. I broke the Breakspear's and people ignore it and carry on with their piker Rothschilds the front Hofjudens in the BBC and CNBC new studios like pion puppets they are. The real rulers live within Rome and Asia now such as Macau with Henry Breakspear.

zenmodi - January 16, 2009 04:17 PM (GMT)

interesting. against who need the jesuits to defend? that means there are parties out there, with at least a bit military power those offend the jesuits. else why would they use air defence missiles?

Avles - January 16, 2009 05:12 PM (GMT)

Shortly:

QUOTE

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/09/06/pre-papal-ratzinger-became-a-smom-knight-of-malta-in-1999/

....." May. 24, 2006 (CWNews.com) - Four of the newest members of the College of Cardinals, after receiving their red hats from Pope Benedict XVI (bio - news) on March 24, have received high honors from the Knights of Malta.

Cardinals Agostino Vallini, Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo, William Joseph Levada, and Franc Rodé received the Grand Cross of Honor and Devotion from Fra Andrew Bertie, the Grand Master of the Order of Malta. The honor– one of the highest available in the Order– was conferred on the four new cardinals who are currently stationed in Rome, and are now members of the Knights of Malta.

Pope Benedict XVI is also a Knight of Malta, having receiving the same honor in 1999. He is the second Pontiff to be a member of the Order, following Pope Pius XII."
http://www.catholicculture.org/news/featur...fm?recnum=44355

.....

Who is Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo?

QUOTE

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Andrea_Cordero_Lanza_di_Montezemolo
.....
Andrea Cardinal Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo (born August 27, 1925) is an Italian cardinal of the Roman Catholic church and Titular Archbishop of Tuscania and currently Apostolic Nuncio Emeritus to Italy.
.....
Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo's father was among the victims of the massacre of the Fosse Ardeatine, carried out on the outskirts of Nazi-occupied Rome in 1944. He and his sister Adriana have, on several occasions, been conspicuous for their forgiveness of the perpetrators, notably Erich Priebke.

He is related to Luca di Montezemolo, president of Ferrari and chairman of FIAT.
.....

Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo's father:Giuseppe Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo.

Colonel of Italian army. Volunteer in the Spanish war (with Fascist front). During the coupe of 25 July '43, the father of the Cardinal SMOM Andrea cord. etc. was in the delegation which agreed with German general Kesserling the ceasefire in ROME on the 10 September '43. His superior was the general Pietro CALVI di Bergolo...
Calvi appointed Giuseppe cordero etc. as head of the Civil Affair office of the Open City (="Città APerta", a sort of neutral status for ROme --- sorry keine refenrence in Wikipedia, papal censorship? But Rossellini did a movie, "Roma città aperta"!!!!).

How many opportunities to do Vatican plots, arent they??

On 23 Sept '43 the Nazi ended the experiment - with the alibi of an alleged aggression by Italian militaries. Montezemolo escaped. THen he enter in the anti-Nazi anti-Fascist guerrilla (=partisans), with important charges. His faction was loyalist to the king. And a competitor with the other partisan, the GAP formation, strongly oriented to the left ideological area. Despite his anti-Bolshevik attitude, he take care of the coordination with the Marxist partisans. With whom creates the opportunity for the (catastrophical) "Landing of Anzio". The SS captured him and tortured him. After the Rasella massacre he went killed in the Fosse Ardeatine Massacre - reprisal.

The Cardinal.
The Andrea Cardinal Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo is cousin of ....:

> QUOTE
>
> .....Luca Cordero di Montezemolo (born August 31, 1947) is an Italian businessman with an estimated net worth of 400 million dollars, president of Ferrari and chairman of FIAT; he was also president of Italian Confindustria from 2004 to 2008 and of FIEG. He comes from an old aristocratic family of Piedmont, and is related to Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo, who became a cardinal in 2006.....(still WIkipedia).

Luca Cordero di Montezemolo is Jesuit trained at the prestigious Istituto Massimiliano Massimo of Rome. His comrades, in the Jesuit institute, were:

>>>> Mario Draghi, head of Italian Central bank and member of the Internation Bank of Settlements in Basel, Swiss.

>>>> Giovanni de Gennaro, former State Police head, responsible of the torture in G8 demonstration in 2001 and today head of the Italian intelligence, the AISI - "Agenzia Informazioni e Sicurezza Interna".

I found also further interesting information. I found in the web the 'confession' of a former Fininvest manager (Fininvest = Silvio Berlusconi society), which claims to be threatened to death by Silvio. The man - name: Pino - says that Berlusconi ordered the murder of CORSO BOVIO and other people who were threatening him to reveal the truth of his crimes. He mention the allmighty power of the Masonry in Milan which controls everything (for the count of the Vatican - my note) and that the new appointed Licio Gelli (for the whole planet) is Giuseppe Sabato (di Banca Esperia = Esperia Bank society) who should be a manager of the (Constantine knight) Silvio Berlusconi's society. It could be, as the Constantine knights surely are over a Masonic lodge. The problem for Pino started when he voted Prodi in the 2006. Then he confirm that the first true founder of Silvio's societies was the Mafioso of Sicily, Opus Dei linked and Jesuit trained MARCELLO DELL'UTRI. He enlist a trail of murdered people then claimed victims of 'suicide'. The same Pino expresses the intention to commit suicide.

Obvious information in an anonymous shape. His signature: "Pino ex quadro dirigenziale Gruppo Fininvest, via Paleocapa 3, 20121 MIlano". The address (Italian language):

http://dovlatov.typepad.com/dovlatov/2005/...ri_ditalia.html

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:

http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Insurgent - January 16, 2009 06:45 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (zenmodi @ Jan 16 2009, 04:17 PM)
>
> interesting. against who need the jesuits to defend? that means there are parties out there, with at least a bit military power those offend the jesuits. else why would they use air defence missiles?

Very good point.

Ken Ardel - January 17, 2009 01:52 AM (GMT)

The jesuits made enemies before.
they were not kicked out of many roman catholic nations for nothing.
they had it coming to them in 1773 and they are due a slap or two for their latest escapades.
they control the world's intelligence agencies through their SMOM, so they know what is in the wind.

there are a lot of pissed off people and nations in this latest manufactured financial crisis.

craig-oxley - January 17, 2009 03:55 AM (GMT)

Yes Michael Holman and company need the rope around their necks for what they've done!

Alex - January 17, 2009 04:04 AM (GMT)

What about a bullet aimed at their heads?

Wolveshater - January 17, 2009 04:33 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (zenmodi @ Jan 16 2009, 04:17 PM)
>
> interesting. against who need the jesuits to defend? that means there are parties out there, with at least a bit military power those offend the jesuits. else why would they use air defence missiles?

Perhaps someday the lackies of the world will all at the same time say hey wait a minute...who has all the worlds wealth stashed away and owns everything...including us...BOOM, no more council of Trent...no more Roman shit bags running it all..dead Popers aren't much fun...heh heh...

Ken Ardel - January 17, 2009 04:44 AM (GMT)

Their total control on politicians and the" Jesuit multicultural PC agenda" in white nations, including their masterminding the invasion of western europe with savage negroes and moozlem ones at that, is enough to condemn them to total eradication like any virulent vermin , which they are.

Avles - January 17, 2009 11:36 AM (GMT)

YOU are the threat for them. And as they can't kill you physically without a decent alibi, they have to create one. Those missiles/that 'threat' is the alibi to kill you.

Best regards etc.

Avles - January 17, 2009 03:41 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 16 2009, 02:13 AM)
>
> NOW WHY WOULD MERE UNHOLY MEN

NEED THIS?

YES AN ADVANCED AIR DEFENSE SYSTEM?[/color]

THEY RULE THE WORLD

THEY PROTECT THEMSELVES AS THEY DO

THEIR PENTAGON.

[DOHTML]<CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

Did they really need of it..... or they need you think they are materially thratened.....?

I take the picture literally. I see a short-medium range ground-air missile system. Who could really threaten them? Generals of Air Forces who are dissident? Cannot they defuse the threat with other means? To shot down an F16 in the sky over Rome is not a job you can hide so easily. I imagine the only real aerial threat, the one carried through light civil planes. Such a defence system is fitted for this kind of threat - radar guided instead infrared guided

The Assassination of President Anwar Al-Sadat: Video:
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9Ol7EgxFx3o

Or it is a deception, aimed to suggest that such a material threats exists, in order to create (false) hopes in their hidden enemies (pushing them to expose themselves). Hidden enemies who have more efficient means to destroy the Jesuits than classical military means. I am saying the silent inner opposition, saboteurs of the Romish Masonic net.
Or there are really some powerful insiders, at high level, that are no more disposed to follow this madness. Riotous bloodlines - in the Air Force. Are they aware that a Big One has to occur, in the next few years? With the Novo Ordo Seclorum in the conclusive phase, it could be that many of their soldiers, aware of the nightmare to come, are seriously thinking to wipe away this scum of the Hell, a-la-Sadat.

Best regards etc.

soulinspiration - January 17, 2009 07:54 PM (GMT)

I would imagine that the whole of the area around the Vatican, including Borgo Spirito Santo & Piazza del Gesu would have such missile defences. I'm not an expert in such technology but I would imagine that machinery needed would be of a size that would be hard to hide. Am I correct or not? If so, then I would also imagine that they should be photographable, as should any other military defence presence in the vicinity, i.e. tanks, as has been claimed elsewhere.

Who maintains this kind of military equipment if it exists? The Italian government? That would seem to put too much advantage their way post-Lateran Treaty & would seem questionable. Or perhaps NATO? They also providing the troops for UN "Peacekeeping" forces & NATO is currently headed by Roman Catholic Dutchman, Jaap de Hoop Scheffer, NATO's 11th Secretary General, who took over this post in January 2004. NATO's HQ is in Brussels, Belgium.

The previous Supreme Allied Commander Europe (NATO's other top position) was James L. Jones (USMC 4-star General & now also Obama's US National Security Advisor. Jones was Jesuit-trained at Georgetown University's Foreign School of Service. In December 2006 he was succeeded by Bantz J. Craddock (US Army 4-star General). He oversees the NATO military forces' central command known as SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe), based in Casteau, near Mons, Belgium.

The Deputy Supreme Allied Commander Europe soince Oxtober 2007 has been (General Sir) John McColl, who was appointed Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath in the 2008 New Years Honours.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/NATO

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jaap_de_Hoop_Scheffer

http://www.nato.int/docu/update/2004/01-january/e0105a.htm

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Supreme_Allied_Commander_Europe

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/James_L._Jones

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bantz_J._Craddock

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/John_McColl

http://www.nato.int/shape/news/2007/09/070908a.htm

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...2002-Summit.jpg

Above: NATO 2002 Summit in Prague.

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/en/a...oopscheffer.jpg

Above: Secretary General Jaap de Hoop Scheffer meeting George W. Bush on March 20, 2006.

http://www.nato.int/shape/graphics/about/shapehq.jpg

Above: SHAPE, Belgium - Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE)

http://www.nato.int/shape/graphics/2007/b070908a.jpg

Above: Found at a page on the official NATO website accompanied by the following text:

> QUOTE
>
> The flag is the European Union flag charged with a logo outlining in white houses, a church steeple, a defence tower and a dome, thus reflecting the diversity of European cultural heritage.

And what was the true nature of the visit by the previous Grand Master of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta, the late Andrew Bertie, to NATO in February 2007?

http://www.nato.int/docu/update/2007/02-february/e0201a.html

"Visit to NATO by Andrew Bertie,
Grand Master of the Knights Hospitaller

Andrew Bertie, Grand Master of the Knights Hospitaller, visited NATO Headquarters on Thursday 1 February 2007 and met with the Secretary General, Mr. Jaap de Hoop Scheffer."

http://www.nato.int/pictures/2007/070201a/b070201a.jpg

Above: "Centre and right: Andrew Bertie being greeted by NATO Secretary General, Jaap de Hoop Scheffer"

http://www.nato.int/pictures/2007/070201a/b070201b.jpg

Above: "Left to right: Andrew Bertie with NATO Secretary General, Jaap de Hoop Scheffer"

http://www.nato.int/pictures/2007/070201a/b070201c.jpg

Above: "Left to right: Andrew Bertie with NATO Secretary General, Jaap de Hoop Scheffer"

http://www.nato.int/pictures/2007/070201a/b070201d.jpg

Above: "Left to right: Andrew Bertie with NATO Secretary General, Jaap de Hoop Scheffer"

http://www.nato.int/pictures/2007/070201a/b070201e.jpg

Above: "Centre left to right: Bilateral meeting between Andrew Bertie NATO Secretary General, Jaap de Hoop Scheffer"

http://www.nato.int/pictures/2007/070201a/b070201f.jpg

Above: "Bilateral Meeting with NATO Secretary General Right: Andrew Bertie, Grand Master of the Knights Hospitaller"

There is no other info about this at the NATO website:

http://isn-lucene-search.ethz.ch/result.php?q=Andrew+Bertie

Interesting to note the Masonic symbolism too in the photo below:

http://www.nato.int/pictures/2002/020703b/b020703c.jpg

Above:

"Chairman of the Military Committee Changeover Ceremony 3 July 2002 Left to right: Admiral G. Venturoni handing the gavel over to General H. Kujat"

We know of the Supreme Council, American Military Scottish Rite Bodies, Orient of NATO Bases:

user posted image

Above:

http://www.scottishrite.org/web/journal-fi...4/cisep-oct.htm

http://www.masonicforum.ro/en/nr19/france.html

"Unique gavel presentation to the Supreme Council for France"

> QUOTE
>
> Sovereign Grand Commander Ronald A. Seale, 33°, with his wife, Saundra, and Sovereign Grand Commander Walter E. Webber, 33°, Northern Masonic Jurisdiction, with his wife, Leslie, were pleased to participate in the 47th Conference of Sovereign Grand Commanders of Europe and Associated Countries meeting in Paris, France, May 16-23, 2004.
>
> The delegates to the conference, most accompanied by their wives, from the Southern Jurisdiction were Ill. Bros. Seale, SGC; Curtis N. Lancaster, Lt. SGC; Robert L. Goldsmith, Grand Minister of State; Robert W. Woodward, GC, Deputy, Orient of American Military NATO Bases; and William G. Sizemore, GC, Grand Executive Director of the Supreme Council.

http://www.scottishrite.org/web/journal-fi...ct03/nedkov.jpg

Above:

http://www.scottishrite.org/web/journal-fi...ct03/nedkov.htm

Scottish Rite Journal, October 2003

"During his recent visit to Bulgaria, Deputy Robert W. Woodward, 33°, G.C. (left), conferred with Ill. Michael Mavronichis, 33°, District Grand Master of Cyprus."

> QUOTE

During the week of June 21-27, 2003, as Deputy Robert W. Woodward, 33°, G.C., visited their country, Bulgarian Freemasons showed the power of fraternal enthusiasm and Masonic building. On June 21, Bulgarian Brethren welcomed Ill. Woodward, Deputy, Scottish Rite Bodies, NATO Bases, as a Brother whose name is engraved with golden letters in the Masonic history of Bulgaria. ...

On the following day, Sunday, June 22, the regular conference of the Supreme Council, 33°, in Bulgaria welcomed Ill. Woodward, elevated five deserving Bulgarian members of the Scottish Rite to the 33°, and announced the election of Sovereign Grand Commander C. Fred Kleinknecht, 33°, and Ill. Woodward, 33°, G.C., as honorary members of the Bulgarian Supreme Council. ...

Later during the same day, the American College was established with all the required educational licenses from the USA. The American College is built with the sponsorship of the Grand Lodge of Bulgaria and the Supreme Council, 33°, in Bulgaria and will function under their auspices. Deputy Woodward, who became the College's first Chairman of the Board, placed a time capsule carrying a message of hope and inspiration to future generations. ...

On June 25, at noon in Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria, Sovereign Grand Commander Petar Kalpaktchiev, 33°; Grand Master Roumen Raltchev, 33°; and Ill. Woodward, G.C., were received at the presidential palace by the Honorable Georgi Parvanov, the President of the Republic of Bulgaria. President Parvanov, who has met with Deputy Woodward three times in the last three years, stated his willingness to support the Scottish Rite and Freemasonry. Ill. Woodward, speaking for the Brethren of the Southern Jurisdiction, presented his own warm regards and expressed admiration of the President's efforts towards Bulgaria's acceptance in NATO. ...

All Brethren wished for additional meetings in the near future and more efforts for the development of the Scottish Rite and Freemasonry around the world, for the strengthening of the democracy in Eastern Europe, and for the safeguarding of freedom.

- Constantin Iancu, 33º, Sovereign Grand Commander, Supreme Council of AASR from Romania

The Scottish Rite seems to play a crucial role within NATO:

http://www.masonicforum.ro/en/nr10/ci.html

QUOTE

On 7 May 1993, the Supreme Council Mother of the World of the AASR in Washington, together with the Lodge of NATO Bases, came to Bucharest and initiated Romanian and East European Brethren. In October 1993, in Washington, at the plenum of the Supreme Council Mother of the World, and in the presence of the Grand Masonic Powers, some Romanian Brethren, together with Brethren from Portugal and Poland, were initiated in the 33rd and last degree. This act made possible the reconstitution and reconsecration of the Supreme Councils in Portugal, Poland and Romania. ...

The Scottish Rite is the Masonic body whose role is to provide the link on the international level between the various national Masonries. It represents an upgrading of the York Rite from both a ritualistic and territorial perspective. Much more than that, the Scottish Rite represents an incorporation of rituals from different esoteric societies Rosicrucians, Templars etc. For this reason it is absolutely natural and necessary for any Mason to pass through the higher school of the A.A.S.R. ...

As we are taught in the 32nd degree as Princes of the Royal Secret the Supreme Council of the 33rd and last degree of the A.A.S.R. ... will continue to fight for the Unity of Europe, so that, together with the other Brotherhoods American, Asiatic, African, to work for the Universal Brotherhood, for the restoration and installment of the Temple of Solomon.

The New World Order goals & role of both the Scottish Rite & NATO is not open to dispute either:

http://www.masonicforum.ro/en/nr16/iancu.html

QUOTE

More than 200 years ago, in May 30, 1786, Frederic the Great established the first Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in the world. ...

We have the honour to see among us the successor of the first Sovereign of the Scottish Rite, Ill. Br. C. Fred Kleinknecht (Sovereign Grand Commander of the Supreme Council Mother of the World), the Sovereign Grand Commander Robert Ralston, Sovereign Grand Commander Friedrich-Wilhelm Schmidt, Sovereign Grand Commander Corrado Ballaco Gabrieli, Sovereign Grand Commander Leopold Tröthann, Sovereign Grand Commander Peter Kozma, Sovereign Grand Commander Nogueira, our beloved Brother Robert Woodward, the chief of the NATO Bases Lodges.

Today a wonderful thing has happened: the Sovereign Grand Commanders are present here together with the Grand Masters of the Grand Lodges for a common celebration. This proves that Masonry is only one, though we talk about Romania, Germany, Hungary, France or America. What happens today should stand for a new level of the World Freemasonry. As I've already said, there isn't a European Masonry and an American one - the Masonry is only one! Whatever is against it is in fact outside Masonry. ...

The fraternal love must work indeed and win. I think this is our message, especially that we are now on the verge of unifying - in the profane field of world union -, at the point of restoring and installing the new order of the Temple of Solomon. For this we all swore, this is our ambition ...

the historical, cultural and spiritual rights to be part of the wonderful universal chain of fraternity, the universal chain in which we all are neighbours. Masonry should be what it was before, the promoter of this union on the world plane. We are convinced that Masonry, the Scottish Rite, represents the elite that leads and will lead the mankind towards harmony and peace and towards love, which is above all.

I want to thank once again the high and distinguished guests, to thank you, Brethren, for everything you have done so far and please consider seriously the fact that from now on a new stage begins, a stage in which we have to dedicate ourselves to work and prove that we are indeed an elite and we deserve the sacred mission we were called at.

- Constantin Iancu, 33º, Sovereign Grand Commander, Supreme Council of AASR from Romania

And of course we have the connections between the Ancient & Accepted Scottish Rite, Freemasonry, the Jesuits & the Vatican:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2009/01/05...-italy-in-rome/

http://www.vitesse.ca/images/for_page_content/NATO.jpg

http://www.nato.int/pictures/2005/050616d/b050616al.jpg

Above: NATO Secretary General, Jaap de Hoop Scheffer

http://thebiggestsecretpict.online.fr/nwo/nato_swastika.gif

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/europe/5268950.stm

'No swastikas' for Nato mittens

"It was thought the design might offend delegates unfamiliar with local folklore"

Which still leaves unanswered the question of which military body oversees any missile defences around the area of the Vatican.

Also: do the SMOM bases of Via Condotti & Aventine Hill have similar defences?

It would be superb if any intrepid Romans with a taste for discrete, intrepid photography are prepared to obtain & contribute any evidence here to substantiate the existence of these defences.

Avles - January 18, 2009 09:42 AM (GMT)

The above observations about Nato suggested to me an idea linked with the actual bloody war in Gaza. In fact there's a country NOT formally belonging to the NATO, whose foreign citizens/national people have been persecuted TEN years ago, just with the NATO support.

See the NATO forces just arrived in Pristina in 1999, protecting the Masonic Islamic army from Albania (Albania = Italian Jesuit province belonging), who, at the opposite of the native Muslims of Kosovo till that moment living in peace with the rest of the ethnic population, i.e. Serbs, Jews, Gypsies, started to kill and persecuted anyone not agreeing with their ethnic and religious cleaning, the Jew community too (and the same native Muslims of Kosovo!) :

http://www.srpska-mreza.com/Kosovo/hoax/ar...Prlincevic.html

QUOTE

Driven from Kosovo

Interview with Cedda Prlincevic, Chief Archivist of Kosovo and leader of Pristina's Jewish Community.

[The website, http://www.emperors-clothes.com, encourages everyone to reproduce the following interview by email, on websites, or in print, wherever possible, but please don't leave anything out, including this note. Thanks.]

The interview is divided in two parts, conducted at different times. Jared Isael is the interviewer in Part One. Note that KFOR essentially means NATO.

Jared: So you are the President of the Jewish Community in Pristina?

Cedda: It was a small community. We have all left.

Jared: Why did you leave?

Cedda: Because the political settlement became a military resolution. Pressure was on the citizens. They didn't ask which nationality you are, you were pressed to leave the apartments and the city. Even if I had a paper which said I am the President of the Jewish Community of Pristina in English and signed by the President of the Federation of Jewish Community from Belgrade, Mr. Singer, the officers from KFOR [NATO], refused to recognize that paper and I was kept imprisoned in my home for one week.

I gave it to another KFOR officer later and he said "I have other business to attend to."

The powers from Albania came inside the country. Their main purpose was to get all the non-Albanian population out. With help from Eliz Viza from Israel and from the Chairman of the Jewish Community from Skopia I was rescued, taken by Taxi together with my wife and my mother to Macedonia and from Macedonia I came to Belgrade. The whole rescue operation of my family was given to Israeli TV. Altogether there were 40 people of Jewish origin in Kosovo. They are of mixed marriage, Jewish-Albanian, Jewish-Turkish and Jewish-Serbian. All are prepared to go to Israel. To go back to Kosovo for us is too late. Even though we got a guarantee from Thaci which is the head of the UCK [KLA], that our homes would not be touched we have information that all our apartments and our houses were completely robbed and demolished. Which means UCK and Thaci do not have control.....
.....Etc. etc.

I mentioned the fact in the thread about Kosovo: "SUN-day 2-17-2008 (=allusion to 2017), Day Of, Kosovo In(Vatikan)dependence Declaration"

http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...pic=44705&st=0&

Yes, I am starting to think that they are trying to do a preventive dissuasion from possible 'inner' threats. They probably never were completely sure to have the Jews - through Shabtai Zivi sect etc. - in their hands, and probably inside Israel, IDF, etc. there are many Jews who - in the silence - knows well that the true master of their country and responsible of this 60 years long lasting stream of innocent blood has his capital in Rome and is the General Superior of the Society of Jesus and his minions. Chamish is exposing that from years, i.e. the diligent work of the Sabbataian of Israel in murdering as many true Jews it is possible (fjor example see criminal Barak purportedly launching 25 Jews in an Arab killing trap twenty five years ago).

Israel is about 2,500 - 3,000 kilometres far from Rome. If the Jews start to see that their destiny, in any case, is a new, but final Holocaust, what would obstacle them to perform such a mission, only aimed to the headquarter of the Beast in Saturnia?

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Israeli_Air_Force

QUOTE

.....Bombing of the PLO headquarters in Tunis

A response to a PLO terrorist attack which resulted in the murder of three Israeli civilians in Cyprus, Operation Wooden Leg took place on October 1, 1985. The strike involved the bombing of PLO Headquarters in Tunis, Tunisia, by F-15 Eagles. This was the longest combat mission ever undertaken by the IAF, a stretch of 2300 kilometers, involving in-flight refueling by an IAF Boeing 707. As a result, PLO headqurters and barracks were either destroyed or damaged.....

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

craig-oxley - January 18, 2009 10:58 PM (GMT)

SHAPE
http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...?showtopic=5993

soulinspiration - January 19, 2009 06:10 PM (GMT)

KNOW THY NEW WORLD ORDER:

ATLANTIC TREATY ASSOCIATION:

NATO'S UMBRELLA ORG OVER ATLANTIC COUNCIL, ETC.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Atlantic_Treaty_Association

QUOTE

Atlantic Treaty Association

The Atlantic Treaty Association (ATA) is an umbrella organization which acts as a network facilitator in the Euro-Atlantic and beyond. The ATA draws together political leaders, academics, and diplomats in an effort to further the values set forth in the North Atlantic Treaty - Democracy, Freedom, Liberty, Peace, Security, and the Rule of law.

Since the end of the Cold War and the dissolution of the Warsaw Pact, the role of the Atlantic Treaty Association has changed considerably. Following an early application for membership by the Atlantic Club of Bulgaria, in 1992 the ATA Constitution was amended to accommodate associate members and observers from non-NATO countries. Given the shifting nature of security politics, and NATO's continued transformation, the ATA now works beyond the borders of the Euro-Atlantic – promoting new initiatives in Central and Eastern Europe, the Mediterranean, and the South Caucasus. Following the ascension of the new NATO countries in 1999 and 2004, the ATA membership expanded considerably, and naturally its security focus has shifted eastward.

The ATA is active in NATO's Partnership for Peace (PfP) and Mediterranean Dialogue programmes, as well as in directing its own initiative, the Central and South Eastern European Security Forum (CSEESF).

The Atlantic Treaty Association seeks, through discussion and political channels, to support the values set forth in the North Atlantic Treaty: Freedom, Liberty, Peace, Security, and the Rule of law. As such, the ATA acts as a forum for debate in which member associations can realize common interests and democratic goals in the ever-changing security environment of the 21st century.

The ATA is now fully dedicated to engaging the youth of the Euro-Atlantic through close cooperation with its youth division, the Youth Atlantic Treaty Association (YATA). YATA seeks to educate and promote debate amongst the successor generations in an effort to create responsible future political leaders who have an understanding of the values set forth in the North Atlantic Treaty.

The Atlantic Treaty Association firmly believes in the strength of the transatlantic relationship – one which is fundamental to the stability of the international system in the 21st century. As such, the ATA remains instrumental in bridging values from both sides of the Atlantic in its effort to underpin the broader goals of the NATO Alliance.

Presidents

2003-2008 HE Ambassador Bob Hunter, former US Ambassador to NATO

2008- Dr Karl A. Lamers MdB

External links

* Atlantic Treaty Association Website - http://www.ata-sec.org

http://www.ata-sec.org/

QUOTE

Welcome to the Atlantic Treaty Association Website

The Atlantic Treaty Association (ATA) is an organization which acts as a network facilitator in the Euro-Atlantic and beyond. The ATA draws together political leaders, academics, and diplomats in an effort to further the values set forth in the North Atlantic Treaty: Democracy, Freedom, Liberty, Peace, Security, and the Rule of law.

For fifty-four years the ATA has served as the leading transatlantic non-governmental organisation promoting public support for the institutions that bring together people of the North Atlantic Alliance. It is the umbrella organisation for the 42 Atlantic councils, which work in each of NATO's member states and most of the Partnership for Peace countries.

In the past few years, the challenges facing the Alliance and ATA have changed and grown as the allies have sought to create a "Europe whole and free" and as new threats and opportunities have arisen from beyond the North Atlantic area. Promoting public debate, public understanding, and public support is critical at a time when the purposes and promise of NATO, other institutions like the EU, and transatlantic relations overall are more complex and less well understood among our people.

At the same time, there is a vital need to engage a younger generation of leaders—present and future—on both sides of the Atlantic. We do this through the activities of the Youth Atlantic Treaty Association, YATA.

ATA is now embarking on its 2009 program with a number of activities, organised by the members as well as by the ATA secretariat. Student conferences, simulations, workshops, summer seminars, young researcher's forums and national educational conferences are all part of the agenda of the YATA and its members as well of the ATA.

For more information, call upon your national association or check the ATA Secretariat.

Troels Frøling
Secretary-General
Atlantic Treaty Association

Contact Information
Atlantic Treaty Association
Association du Traité Atlantique

Quartier Prince Albert
Rue des Petits Carmes, 20
B-1000 Bruxelles

Tel: +32 2 502 31 60
Fax: +32 2 502 48 77
Email: info@ata-sec.org

ATA Newsletter
Summer/Fall 2008

PDF Download:

http://www.ata-sec.org/downloads/newslette...mer_fall_08.pdf

soulinspiration - January 19, 2009 06:23 PM (GMT)

Why has the UK's Atlantic Council (NATO/Atlantic Treaty Association member) website been pulled from the net?

http://web.archive.org/web/*/http://atlanticcouncil.org.uk

http://web.archive.org/web/20060507131943/...council.org.uk/

craig-oxley - January 22, 2009 10:19 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]
WHO WANTED TO NUKE

THE BORGO SANTO SPIRITO?

WHY IT WAS

VITTORIO EMANUELE IV

WHILST IN SWITZERLAND

THE SAME VITTORIO WHO DRUG DEALING KINGPIN

JUAN CARLOS OF SPAIN

STOLE HIS TITLES FROM
[dohtml]</Center>
[/dohtml]

Avles - January 23, 2009 11:37 AM (GMT)

I am in an anxious wait to see further details. But to mee, a question of legacy etc. among the un-noble bloodlines of the pope, as a reason to nuke Rome, seems almost not credible.... anyway this world is full of surprises!

I found this material, maybe these facts are un-directly linked with the alleged nuke attempt of Victor:

http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/...ian-throne.html

QUOTE

Royal cousins fight for defunct Italian throne

By Malcolm Moore in Rome
Last Updated: 2:17AM GMT 01 Mar 2007

Italy is bracing itself for an unseemly court battle over who has the right to call himself the head of the country's royal family.

While the titles and honours of the Italian royal family have not legally been recognised since 1946, when the republic was founded, Prince Victor Emmanuel, 70, has ruled over the House of Savoy since the death of his father, Umberto II, in 1983.

However, his cousin Amedeo, 63, the 5th Duke D'Aosta, strenuously maintains it is he, not Victor Emmanuel, who is the true heir to the defunct monarchy.

Last summer, Amedeo declared that he had changed his name to Savoy and would assume power. However, his attempt to seize control will be fiercely fought by Victor Emmanuel in a closed hearing at a court in Arezzo at an undisclosed date this month.

Victor Emmanuel has said Amedeo's membership of the dynasty has now been cancelled, "because of his gravely injurious behaviour towards the honour of our royal person." In addition, he denounced Amedeo and his son Aimone to the court for usurping the name of Savoy and the position of family head.

The quarrel between the two men has raged for several years and once even resulted in a fist fight. Three years ago, Victor Emmanuel punched Amedeo twice in the face during a dinner held by King Juan Carlos I of Spain to celebrate his son's wedding.

Amedeo believes his cousin gave up the right to call himself Umberto II's heir when he married a Swiss biscuit heiress and champion water-skier without his father's permission in 1971.

To back up his claim, he has produced letters between Umberto and Victor Emmanuel, in which the last king warned his son about the consequences of marriage without his express permission.

"It could bring about the loss of all your rights to succeed as Head of the House of Savoy and your claim to the throne of Italy, reducing you to the status of a private citizen," wrote Umberto. When Umberto heard that Victor Emmanuel had married Marina Doria secretly in Las Vegas, he wrote again in panic, reminding him "word for word" of what he had said.

Meanwhile, Emmanuel Filiberto, the son of Victor Emmanuel, dismissed Amedeo's claims as "sterile provocations" and said he possessed documentation countering the claim.

"It makes me laugh. I think Italians have plenty of other problems, and are not even slightly interested in the issues raised by the duke.

"If he wants to crown himself, let him. All of Italy will laugh," he said.

Despite the acrimony, many Italians still look upon the House of Savoy with fondness and respect. Amedeo announced he wanted to settle the matter because of a series of scandals that have tarnished the Italian throne, but did not want to bring the matter to court earlier because it might have held up Victor Emmanuel's return from exile.

Victor Emmanuel, who has worked as a banker and an aircraft salesman, was convicted in 1989 of having shot a 19-year-old German while on board a yacht in Corsica. He was subsequently acquitted.

His name was also found on a list of people allegedly belonging to the secretive P2 Masonic lodge, membership of which is illegal under Italian law.

In 2003, he gaffed when he said the laws against the Jews, passed by Mussolini and signed by his grandfather, were "not that terrible". The laws banned Jews from attending or teaching in school, from owning businesses, marrying non-Jews, staying in hotels, or working for the state.

Last summer, he was arrested and imprisoned on charges of pimping and corruption.

He has been released from house arrest and no trial has been announced.

> His sister, Princess Maria Gabriella, has switched her allegiance and is backing Amedeo's claim. "My father asked to be buried along with the royal seal, and that was his way of showing that the dynasty ended with him," she said.....

Nuke Rome but for what reason? Just only a scuffle among members of the same criminal gang? I am sceptical about....

Best regards etc. [B][/B]

craig-oxley - January 23, 2009 10:51 PM (GMT)

Use your head Avles! Emmanuele IV is a guy down trodden on by the Jesuits and their gang. If you want to rid the World of the powerful controlling Jesuits then you have to destroy their heart. The heart is Borgo Santo Spirito! So I see nothing weird about anyone wanting to destroy it. Same as I'd see nothing weird about anyone wanting to destroy the Pentagon (including the CIA on 911).

Avles - January 24, 2009 01:15 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 23 2009, 10:51 PM)
>
> Use your head Avles! Emmanuele IV is a guy down trodden on by the Jesuits and their gang. If you want to rid the World of the powerful controlling Jesuits then you have to destroy their heart. The heart is Borgo Santo Spirito! So I see nothing weird about anyone wanting to destroy it. Same as I'd see nothing weird about anyone wanting to destroy the Pentagon (including the CIA on 911).

yes this is quite possible plausible and logical, but in this case I would see involved not only the Savoy family but also some others families controlling a decisive portion of the military system, a syndacate of familiies which are seeing in the frustration of Emanuel a sort of 'party' to support in order to get more power respect the headquarter.

Anyway, I welcome such inner divisions in the enemy field.

Probably the truth is hidden in details. Former president Cossiga was used to change the shape of Italy and was important to put under the eyes of public opinion the black operation GLADIO (underground net of civil and military intelligence involved in the "Tension Strategy" in Italy and in the rest of Europe) . Cossiga was surely a key man in the kidnapping and murdering of Aldo Moro 30 years ago by Red terorists Brigate Rosse. I consider the murder the turning-point of the tide, when the supporter (Aldo Moro) of the anti-Israeli 'secular' groups was cancelled to let grow the ISLAMIC oriented anti-Israeli guerrilla. Cossiga was interviewed by the daily Yediot Aharonot on the 3 oct 2008 (anniversary of the 'selling' of future America etc.) and he admitted simply: "we have sold you (the Jews)" (to the enemy). The agreement is not a novelty, the novelty is the admission in public, simply the Italian (Vatican) state let the Arab terrorist groups to do their businness and the terrorist groups would have not touched Italy. And Cossiga says that something similar is happening today with Hezbollah. ROMANIST CAHTO-ISLAMIC STEEL PACT. I repeat, this is not a novelty, the novelty is that these kind of revelations on a JEWISH daily happened to be JUST THREE MONTHS BEFORE THE WAR IN GAZA. So the Franco-Neapolitan branch of Constantinian order played an heavy card on Israel.....

http://www.focusonisrael.org/2008/10/06/co...bbiamo-venduti/

QUOTE

Cossiga agli ebrei italiani: “Vi abbiamo venduto” / "We have sold you"

Yediot Aharonot, 3 Otobre 2008, p B10

Lo chiamavano “L’Accordo Moro”, e la formula era semplice: l’Italia non si intromette negli affari dei palestinesi, che in cambio non toccano obiettivi italiani. Tuttavia, ora si scopre che gli ebrei erano esclusi dall’equazione. In un’intervista speciale, l’ex Presidente Francesco Cossiga rivela come le Autorità di Roma avrebbero collaborato con le organizzazioni terroristiche negli Anni Ottanta, ed ammonisce: “Oggi c’è un accordo analogo con Hizbullah in Libano”

OR: they called it "Moro agreement", and it was simply: Italy was not interfering in the Palestinian affairs, in exchange the Palestinians don't touch Italian objects. Nevertheless now it is clear that the Jews were not present in the equation. In a special interview, the former president Cossiga reveals as the Authorities of Rome (purportedly used the term ROME? my note) would have collaborated with the terrorist groups in the eighties, and warn: "today there's such an agreement with Hizbullah in Lebanon".

(So you can understand who is pushing pshychopats ORTHODOX from Rumania to rape woman in Italy meanwhile the ISLAMIC invasion is blessed by the official & alternative media...)

Cossiga was very embittered with the Hispano-Neapolitan branch of the Borbon house. And the Borbon house - the Franco Neapolitan branch if I am not wrong, is linked with the Savoy family....

http://www.constantinian.com/dynastic-constantinian.html

QUOTE

King Umberto II wishing to further build on the warm relations, which had now existed for many years between the two dynasties, honoured the current Duke of Castro with the Supreme Order of the Most Holy Annunciation in 1977. HRH The Duke of Castro returned the honour by awarding and investing King Umberto with the pre-eminent Order of St Januarius of the Royal House of Bourbon Two Sicilies.

On the death of King Umberto in 1983, the Duke of Castro continued the family relationship by honouring the new Head of the Royal House of Savoy, HRH Prince Victor Emanuele, Duke of Savoy(left) and Prince of Naples with the Collar of the Constantinian Order.

The current Heir Apparent of the Royal House, HRH Prince Carlo of Bourbon Two Sicilies, Duke of Calabria, has also been invested by HRH The Duke of Savoy as a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St Maurice and St Lazarus.

Yes, on the same page they exhibit Cossiga and Berlusconi as member, so Emanuel, Cossiga, Berlusconi, Sarkozy..... ASSAD of DAMASCO are on the same boat:

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...p?showtopic=107

QUOTE

SARKOZY & THE PAPAL KNIGHT SYRIAN PRESIDENT
SaRKoZY & THe PaPaL KNiGHT SYRiaN PReSiDeNT
[SPECIFICS: THE ROYAL ORDER OF FRANCIS I IS ASSOCIATED WITH THE FRANCO-NEAPOLITAN BRANCH OF THE PAPAL-LOYAL CONSTANTINIAN ORDER. PRINCE CARLO, DUKE OF CASTRO, IS GRAND MASTER OF BOTH OF THESE, AMONG OTHER ORDERS]

SARKOZY MEETS KNIGHT OF THE ORDER OF FRANCIS I (CONSTANTINIAN ORDER ASSOCIATE), SYRIAN PRESIDENT AL-BASSHAD•:

http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/middle_east/7597361.stm

"French President Nicolas Sarkozy is meeting the leaders of Syria, Turkey and Qatar in a bid to boost efforts towards Middle East peace.

Mr Sarkozy is on a two-day trip to Damascus, also aimed at cementing revived ties between France and Syria"

Juan Carlos the 'king' of Jerusalem, belong to the Hispano-Neapolitan branch....

http://www.constantinianorder.org/index.ph...id=31&Itemid=26

QUOTE

Since 1961 the Grand Master has been invited to send a delegation of Constantinian Knights to the bi-annual ceremony of the Military Order of San Hermengildo, held at the Palace of the Escorial and presided over from 1961-1973 by H.E. General Francisco Franco and from 1977 to date by H.M. King Juan Carlos I.

Its a good deal to appoint an Hispano Neapolitan branch knight as "Jerusalem king" and then to control him through a Franco Neapolitan controlled Syria. Did they promise something to Victor? Pieces of the Juan Carlos feuds? Maybe they could use the Israeli Air Forces, as an alibi to nuke the headquarter? To reveal the "truth on the Holocaust" and the consequent events could be a good alibi in order to push an air squadron of Israeli Air Force (under the control of one of the factions) to nuke Borgo Santo Spirito. The king of Jerusalem now should be very powerful after this bloody war in Gaza. He would be the king of the "World Religion parliament".... Over an Israeli state reduced in pieces ....

Best regards etc....[I][/I][B][/B]

soulinspiration - January 24, 2009 04:09 PM (GMT)

King Juan Carlos is not a member of the Hispano-Neapolitan Constantinian Order, although his cousin the Infante Carlos, Duke of Calabria (not to be confused with the Franco-Neapolitan branch's head Prince Carlos/Charles, Duke of Castro who before his father's death was a competing Duke of Calabria) is the Grand Master of that branch of the order.

King Juan Carlos invited the Infante Carlos to send a delegation of Constantinian Knights to a ceremony of the Military Order of San Hermengildo, which according to the piece you posted is an order headed by King Juan Carlos. Now I have not heard of or looked into this order before, so perhaps some fruitful research may come from following that up.

Strangely I can't get passed the homepage at the Hispano-Neapolitan branch's website. This is the first time that this has happened since I discovered it in spring 2007. In the interim they have revamped the look of the website & given new URL's to the pages - presumably to thwart my efforts at encouraging a closer analysis of them with the links from my site, while still maintaining some kind of "nothing to hide" appearance. After all, it was merely just surface cosmetics & a few pdf links they'd added & no reason for new URL's for each page, as the structure was still the same.

Also: Cossiga was NOT "very embittered" towards the Hispano-Neapolitan branch, far from it. He had concluded that the Franco-Neapolitan branch were bringing the Constantian Order into disrepute & handed in his knighthood with the F-N order. Whether there was more to it, I don't know, but I have no doubt that he had no issue with the H-N branch.

For a full list of the H-N members see:

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/02/08...odern-crusades/

- TS

Avles - January 24, 2009 08:30 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE
>
> King Juan Carlos is not a member of the Hispano-Neapolitan Constantinian Order, although his cousin the Infante Carlos, Duke of Calabria (not to be confused with the Franco-Neapolitan branch's head Prince Carlos/Charles, Duke of Castro who before his father's death was a competing Duke of Calabria) is the Grand Master of that branch of the order.

So I was misled by this (from the site of Hispano branch, with Infante Carlos as Grand master):

http://www.constantinianorder.org/index.ph...id=31&Itemid=26

> QUOTE
>
> The new Grand Master thoroughly revitalized the Order, appointing several non-Italians including eight Spaniards to the Deputation [Note 8.1] and extending the membership. Among the new Grand Crosses were the Count and Countess of Barcelona, the present King and Queen of Spain,.....

This is the original piece - erroneusly recalled by me - about the 'embittered' Cossiga:

http://www.borbone-due-sicilie.org/english...oc_cossiga.html

> QUOTE

> [Trans: “The spokesman of the President Emeritus of the Republic Francesco Cossiga makes known that following the intervention released by the Life Senator to the weekly “Panorama” of 30 October 2002, Charles Bourbon, of the junior line of the Spanish House of the Bourbons of the Two Sicilies of Parma (sic), has communicated the decision to exclude him from the rolls of the Sacred Military Constantinian Order of Saint George.
>
> “Senator Cossiga, who for some time has regretted having accepted as head of State this supposed honor, not customary for someone of his origins and nature, as a friend of the royal house of Spain does not regret this: indeed he rejoices!”].....

And below the text says that the "Consejo de la Grandeza de Espana" considers not legitimate the appointment by the Franco-Neapolitan branch etc.....

So Cossiga is with the Spanish --- and even if the 'king' of Jerusalem is not a knight (but Grand Crosses...), however he is always a man belonging to the 'Spanish tribe'.... or not?

Cossiga belongs to the Order of Pius IX - Pian Order or the Ordine Piano, which in the Italian page (Wikipedia on that order) is considered the most prestigious pontificial conferred equestrian order; anyway "KoSSiga" (as the far left wing militants wrote his name in the seventies on the walls of the cities) is not a knight of this order, only a lower level member (collare - collar).
But he is also a "Balì of Great Cross and Devotion to the SMOM". Not a knight but... Who was Balì? Look at the strange parallel events in history. In 1798 Napoleon (a Frenchman or the emperor of French) occupied Malta who was governed by the SMOM with feudal 'rights' given by.... the Reign of the Two Sicilies.

Balì Frisari was among the ones who signed the treaty with which Malta was assigned to the Frenchmen, and the man expressed some reservations about the right of the king of Naple on the island. After two years the French troops surrended to the English fleet and the island become "English affaire", pushing the poor knights on the street without a roof on their heads. The SMOM grand master Hompesch who signed the treaty, after he arrived in the city of Trieste, immediately denounced the deed of assignement and suddenly exploded the inner division among the knights. The dissidents appointed grand Master the Russian emperor Paul I.... who then was killed .

The Jesuit tissue of these events is evident = do they gain the total control on the SMOMs with all those low tricks (Napoleon, French occupation, treties, Russian emperos than conveniently killed, English fleet, etc.). They operated just when they were no more officially existing - from 1773 (about, don't remember the precise date), till the famous 1814 (13th July, creation of Carabineers corp by anti-semite and anti-protestant Victor Emanuel I)..... And just in the same 1814, on 28th November, Ferdinand VII of Spain creates the SAINT HERMENEGILD ORDER for the military who served in Spain and in the Indie....

http://www.iagi.info/ARALDICA/ordini/spagn...o/spagna08.html

> QUOTE

ORDINE DI SANT' ERMENEGILDO

Il re Ferdinando VII istituì l'Ordine Militare di Sant'Ermenegildo il 28 novembre 1814, destinandolo a ricompensare il servizio reso dai militari in Spagna e nelle Indie. L'Ordine si divide in tre classi:

Cavalieri di Gran Croce

Cavalieri di seconda classe

Cavalieri di terza classe.

La decorazione consiste in una croce patente d'oro, smaltata di bianco, sormontata dalla corona reale. Caricato in cuore uno scudetto d'azzurro con l'immagine di Sant'Ermenegildo. Lo scudetto risulta circondato dal motto Premio a la constancia militare; nel retro la cifra del sovrano. Il nastro dell'Ordine è di bianco al palo di rosso.

Saint Hermenegilde:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Hermenegild

So Constantinian order, SMOM, Juan Carlos, Savoy, Two Sicilies REal House, the past and present clashes, how could that fit with those missiles?

Best regards etc.

soulinspiration - January 24, 2009 09:42 PM (GMT)

Interesting note that, about King Juan Carlos being made a member before his accession to the throne.

He is in fact mentioned in the membership lists, you are completely correct Avles, my apologies about that. I could have sworn that I'd not seen his name there before.

These are the lists I use:

http://www.constantinianorder.org/index.ph...id=15&Itemid=40

http://www.constantinianorder.org/index.ph...&id=5&Itemid=12

His name is second in the latter list.

That is the same list posted at my research resource.

Here is a link for some more info & photos showing the close links between the King of Spain & the Spanish Constantinian branch:

http://www.constantinianorder.org/index.ph...id=13&Itemid=42

Excellent point made regarding possible ramifications of inner tensions within the Catholic knighthoods. I am sure that there is more to this Constantinian split than meets the eye, but I have not been able to put my finger on it, i.e. whether it's merely a ploy for obfuscation or whether it is far deeper than mere diplomatic questions of legitimacy imply.

We know that the Franco-Neapolitan branch have a Jesuit for Grand Prior & a rare Jesuit Cardinal no less: Albert Cardinal Vanhoye. There are no other Jesuit Cardinals who are members of either branch. Whether or not there are any other Jesuits who are members I do not know.

The House of Bourbon-Two Sicilies that is disputed over by the Hispano- & Franco-Neapolitan branches has an order (according to the F-N branch's site) that is higher than the Constantinian Order: the Order of St Januarius. This again has two branches. The membership list for the H-N branch is on the internet. I obtained a few months ago the list for the F-N branch's St Januarius order (or whatever "St Januarius" is in Italian, as their branch is known by that name), which is not available on the internet or in book form. It was my intention to follow this up & publiah it, but time constraints due to work & other research have got in the way. Perhaps this is an opportune time to dig out that info.

Avles - January 25, 2009 07:44 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jan 24 2009, 09:42 PM)
>
> He is in fact mentioned in the membership lists, you are completely correct Avles, my apologies about that. I could have sworn that I'd not seen his name there before.

No, its not your guilty, but (unfortunately) their 'pride', for having so muddyed the waters that it is impossible to go below a certain rate of errors. To explore these zones is like to fly without GPS, without radar, maps, at 500 feet, in a wall of fog and with only some gallons of fuel... I don't know how many errors I did and I haven't yet discovered..... But at least you helped to correct one, the wrong assignement related to Cossiga.. I am obsessed by that interview, a clear signal, but how to interpret?

Ok, the missiles. From the Franco-Neapolitan site (or at least I think so, please, if I am wrong, correct me!!! --- in the linked page of the family tree you read at the bottom, for Charles:"Head of Royal House and Duke of Castro - since 20th March 2008)

http://www.realcasadiborbone.it/uk/oggi/ev...hp?data=2007-06

> QUOTE

June 6, 2007
On the occasion of the Feast to mark the Anniversary of the Foundation of the Carabinieri Corps, H.R.H. the Grand Prefect paid tribute to the Commander General Gianfranco Siazzu and attended the ceremony in Piazza di Siena The celebrations took place in the presence of His Excellency the Chief of the Italian State Hon. Giorgio Napolitano Other ceremonies were held all over Italy to celebrate the one hundred ninety third anniversary of the important Italian institution and many Constantinian knights and dames were in attendance. The town of Latina celebrated this important event with a ceremony attended by the Vice Delegate for Latium, Knight Commander Franco Ciufo and the local Constantinian knights and Dames.The Provincial Commander of Latina, Col. Leonardo Rotondi, who holds the Constantinian Order in very high regard, gave directions for the assignment of a very special placement for its representatives in attendance, in recognition of the humanitarian activities jointly carried out with our Order.

General Gianfrancesco Siazzu Commander General of the Carabinieri Corps, Constantinian Knight of Grand Cross of Merit

user posted image

The Constantinian stand that was set in the principal area of the manifestation , was carried out by the Constantinian Knight Don Massimo Patroni Griffi, illustrated all the humanitarian activities carried out by the Order jointly with the Carabinieri Corp

So the Carabineers Army ----> not 'corp' as they want you erroneusly think. Who did found the Carabineers? But of course the ANTI-SEMITE and ANTI-PROTESTANT (Waldesians 'sub-section') Victor Emanuel I of Savoy - they were founded in 13th July 1814. If you maybe want to deepen their link with the 'virgin' Mary (but not a vital link with this thread) see:
http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...e-part-two.html

So who are these Carabineers?

I am exposing them and their Vatican Jesuits masters since Jun 15 2007, 06:34 PM, in the thread "Low Intensity Golpe Acted Through Carabinieri At, Work In Italy? (long post, sorry)." In the second post of June 22nd I translated the point which define the institutional duties of the Army. Here the excerpt:

http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...showtopic=27169

QUOTE

http://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Carabinieri#R...di_Forza_armata

"…The Arma dei Carabinieri (Carabineers Force), till that moment the "first force of the Army", with the decree of the 5 October 2000, n. 297, arose to the "rank of Armed Force, in the sphere of the Defence Minister, depending from the General Commandant from the Chief of the High Command of the Defence, in order to absolve the sequent military duties:
1) to concur to defend the Homeland and the protection of the free institution and of the common good of the national collectivity in the cases of public calamity, conforming to the article 1 of the law of the 11 July 1978, n. 382;
2) to participate to military operation in Italy and abroad on the basis of the planning of the use of the Armed Forces established by the Chief of the High Command of the Defence;
3) to participate to the military police operations abroad and, on the basis of the agreements and international mandates, to concur to the reconstitution of the local police forces in the areas where the Armed Forces are present to support the peace;
4) to exercise exclusively the functions of the military police and security for the Army, for the Navy and for the Air Force, as well as, according to the penal military codes, to exercise the functions of the military judiciary police at the service of the military justice;
5) to assure the security of the diplomatic and consular representations together the offices of the military attaché abroad;
6) to assist the commands and the military unities engaged in institutional activities on the national territory, to concur to the service of the mobilitation.
You can see today Carabinieri all over the world not only near Italian ambassades and other diplomatic institution, in uniform or in civil dresses, but moreover where the Italian protectorate has to act in first line to realize the politic of the New World Order, in Afghanistan, Balkans, Iraq, etc. They are not simply a military police, remember, they are an autonomous Armed Force with a global-wide projection, an Armed Force which inside the nation helps the old women to pass across the street, or makes raids in the restaurants in order to drive out sophisticated or expired foods, an Armed Force which does intelligences activities like the filing of what you are now reading or maybe what I am saying with colleagues on job (once it kept voluminous files of the results of interceptions and spying, the Carabineers said they had destroyed nearly anything, but I think just only to make space for new incoming information for their masters), and outside Italy it is allowed to carry out military actions, as Carabinieri have also panzer divisions and parachutists. If someone of you will find a more totalitarian force in the world, ok, will receive from the undersigned Avles an award, a beautiful Carabinieri calendar which every year spreads itself on all the Saturnalian peninsula (and abroad, of course)….

Carabineers are a perfect 'universal' aka 'totalitarian' aka catholic army. Practically - (only an innocent hypotesis! you know....) - they could take on board of one of their planes in Afghanistan an Islamic sniper, they could bring him in Italy and to make land in a military airport controlled by them, then they could put him in one of their thousands of police cars with which they control the civil traffic and the criminality in the Italian society, and to put him in a container in a highway service area, let's imagine near the city of Perugia. After the diligent Islamic sniper would have done his duty, they could bring him home exactly with the reversed path (yes, to carry home, a good sniper is a too much precious resource...)

Practically this could be the true hidden scenario of what could have been happened on 11th November 2007 when the most important ghostwriter of the LISBON TREATY, the former Socialist Italian party boss Giuliano Amato, was interior minister in the centre left government of Romano Prodi. An football fan was killed by a 'civil' policeman in a highway service area. It followed the usual golpe-scenario, with hooligans attacking the State Police stations (State Police, the 'adversay' of military Carabineers) and the usual 'alternative' propaganda licking the asses of the Carabineers, i.e. doing the usual pogrom on the 'civil' State Police. But let's put a part this.

So the CARABINEERS ARMY is not depending (as happened before 5th oct 2000) by the chief staff of the GROUND ARMY, an age when in Italy you had only THREE armies, Air Force, Ground Force and Navy Force. Now the MILITARY POLICE controlling the THREE forces (again Air, Ground and Navy) is an AUTONOMOUS ARMY. Ladies and Getlemen, it is the "most beloved" army of Italy, the CARABINEERS ARMY.

So we are in the presence of a very sinister, worth of a black an pessimistic S.F. novel or movie, scenario. Just only look to the NAZI-styled uniform of the Carabineers (probably from a movie scenario - its hard to find pics with their true expressive uniform!!:

Heraldic standard of Carabineers army:

Again an excerpt from "Low Intensity coupe of Carabineers ...etc." - an explanation of the Flame of Baal their carry (the sign....) on their frontheads and that they present it as an 'exploding grenade':

> QUOTE
>
> The grenade is also the only symbol present on the uniforms (on the hat and on the arm and is always a symbol of modern military orders; in fact it was applied for the first time as symbol by the nobility of Brugioni who had, with this title, leaded the artillery of the Estensi against the papal army.....

So all the information above are important to make you understand that....

...CARABINEERS ARMY ARE A N.A.T.O. FORCE

Remember:

NOW the Italian government of Constantine order k. Berlusconi will send Carabineers in Gaza, in the Rafah border block with Egypt (they just were there in the past)

NOW the Italian government of C. order Berlusconi will increase the number of soldiers (Ground Army, controlled by Carabineers) just present in the Italian streets, to prevent mafia and rape crimes (see the tide of East Europe 'Orthodox heretic' caused crimes) from 3,000 to 30,000 (= 33,000)

Yeah, its a golpe..... the Pontifical reign definitively came back!

And just to help to render the true picture, consider that also the RAMSTEIN BASE is a NATO base --- RAMSTEIN BASE was important for "many flames" in 1988:

"28th August, A Day As many Others...."

http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...showtopic=37452

> QUOTE
>
> .....
> Carabineers, also when they were not an autonomous force and were depending from the Army command, are a NATO military force and this means that they could gain access to NATO bases. Ramstein is not a NATO base but it is involved in it as “support NATO” base.
>
> > QUOTE
> >
> > Ramstein is a NATO support installation; it has not been given the designation of a NATO base. Canadian, German, British, U.S., French, Belgian, Polish, Czech, Norwegian, Danish and Dutch forces are located at the base…..
> >
> > ….On 1 December 1957, the two bases were consolidated into the [B]largest[/B] NATO-controlled air base in service on the continent. It was called Ramstein-Landstuhl Air Base, but later, through common usage, came by its present name, Ramstein Air Base in 1958……
> >
> > ……Ramstein air base became a large multi-national NATO center: in addition to the USAFE's headquarters, it also housed the new NATO headquarters of the Allied Air Forces Central Europe (AAFCE).
>
> .....

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:

http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Avles - January 25, 2009 08:21 AM (GMT)

THE CARABINEERS ARMY of the Pontifical reign HELP the aged women to cross the streets, are doing inquiries in the restaurants in case of rotten food, are defending the women from the "ugly rapers coming from East Europ foreing (and Orthodox heretic) countries", are controlling the streets with blocks where they ask your documents.....

.....and then they control this (oh yeah, just only an hobby!!!):

TORNADO

....and travel in military missions all around the globe:

(its probably a puzzle of an anti-Iraq invasion site, anyway it remarks the presence of Carabineers in Iraq)
user posted image

Carabineers army NATO-KFOR force:

The previous commander of Carabineers army general Luciano Gottardo visiting the base of the IPU-EUFOR regiment in Sarajevo - where his soldiers supported the newly born Roman Catholic Ustash-Islamic alliance in the Balkans:
http://www.carabinieri.it/Internet/Cittadi...to/20050812.htm

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen

Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Avles - January 25, 2009 08:39 AM (GMT)

In the Italian site they say that the Italian armed forces are composed by 5 forces, Air, Navy, Ground, Carabineers and Financial guards (tax guardians of the pope). In the English page of Wikipedia they still mantain the version with 4 armies. Anyway, what matters is that the CARABINEERS ARMY has the material, logistic, tactical, strategical, military and informative control of the Apennine peninsula today Pontificial reign:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Military_of_Italy

QUOTE

The four branches of Italian Armed Forces
.....
The Italian Army (Esercito Italiano) is the ground defense force of the Italian Republic. It has recently (July 29, 2004) become a professional all-volunteer force of.....
.....
The Aeronautica Militare Italiana (AMI), the air force of Italy, was founded as an independent service arm on March 28, 1923, by King Vittorio Emanuele III as the Regia Aeronautica (which equates to "Royal Air Force"). After World War II, ...
.....
The Marina Militare, the Italian Navy, was created in 1946 as the Navy of the Italian Republic, from the Regia Marina. Today's Marina Militare is a modern navy with a strength of 35,261 and.....
.....
The Carabinieri are the gendarmerie and military police of Italy. At the Sea Islands Conference of the G8 in 2004, the Carabinieri were given the mandate to establish a Center of Excellence for Stability Police Units (CoESPU) to spearhead the development of training and doctrinal standards for civilian police units attached to international peacekeeping missions.[1]
.....

Heraldic standard of the unified Italian armed forces:

user posted image

The central star - if I am not wrong - is related to the Ground Army, the upper 'grenade' is not the one of the Carabineers (at the left, with many flames of Baal), but the nine flamed (and not six as previously err. stated) fire of Financial Guards - here the sign of the Beast on their forefront, practically similar to the Carabineers' 13 flames of Baal:

user posted image

.....and the Italian page, with its fifth army (considered a sub-branch of the four principal armies), the papal guardians for the application of Admiralty canonical international law inside the official borders of the Apennine Pontifical reign (Wikipedia):

> QUOTE
>
> The Guardia di Finanza, (/•gwardja di fi•nantsa/) (English: Financial Guard) is an Italian police force under the authority of the Minister of Economy and Finance. Although it retains military status unlike the Carabinieri it is not part of the Italian Armed Forces. The Guardia di Finanza maintains over 600 boats and ships and more than 100 aircraft to fulfill its mission of patrolling Italy's territorial waters.

The 'civil' State Police is only a branch of the 'civil' intelligence headed today by Jesuit trained Giovanni de Gennaro. Gen. de Lorenzo who was in the military intelligence, started to build the 'new' Carabineers you see today.
http://de.wikipedia.org/wiki/Servizio_Info...ni_Forze_Armate
"....Der Servizio Informazioni Forze Armate (SIFAR) (dt.: "Nachrichtendienst der Streitkräfte") ist ein ehemaliger italienischer Nachrichtendienst....
Der SIFAR wurde als Nachfolger des Servizio Informazioni Militare am 30. März 1949 aufgestellt.
...
....Gen. Giovanni De Lorenzo (1955-1962)..."

Carabineers army is the other face of a medal whose dark side is the MILITARY INTELLIGENCE. Military intelligence control the civil one and the cursed 'civil' State Police. Stay sure that all those ignoble cretins of the radical left area raging against the 'civil state police' brutalities, are only the pussycats of the CARABINEERS ARMY AND INTELLIGENCE.

HOW MANY POWERS AND ARMIES DOES CONTROL THE FRANCO-NEAPOLITAN BRANCH OF THE CONSTANTINIAN ORDER?!

THEY ARE A THREAT NOT ONLY FOR ITALY, BUT FOR THE REST OF THE WORLD:

.....The Carabinieri are the gendarmerie and military police of Italy. At the Sea Islands Conference of the G8 in 2004, the Carabinieri were given the mandate to establish a Center of Excellence for Stability Police Units (CoESPU) to spearhead the development of training and doctrinal standards for civilian police units attached to international peacekeeping missions.....[1]

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.

„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Avles - January 25, 2009 10:15 AM (GMT)

"....the CARABINEERS ARMY has the material, logistic, tactical, strategical, military and informative control of the Apennine peninsula today Pontificial reign:...."

Sorry, I forgot the MIND CONTROL they have.
An example to better understand the brain manipulation done also by the CONSTANTINIAN ORDER controlled Carabineers Army.

This man is Michele Santoro, a Bolshevik mercenary fighting the papal crusades. During the bombing of the Serbs in 1999, his Marxist boss, Massimo d'Alema, was prime minister and so the first responsible in Italy of the "aerial crusade" of the pope. But Santoro was sent on the bridge of Beograd to "ask for a stop of the bombings" with an historical live-tv from Yugoslavia, in order to deceive the ingénue supporters of the party about its true nature. So the face of D'Alema was safe, the party still maintained a 'credibility' for the (ignorant) masses. To not mention the role done by the leftists of the pope in order to support Milosevic in the elections, just when he was loosing them…. A defeat that would have wiped away all the Roman Catholic hopes of war in the Balkans. But this another time. So today the Bolshevik of the pope Michele Santoro is doing a very 'sensational' program, where he deals with events and facts of the chronicle from a very radical left wing perspective. Recently he invited a woman as collaborator for the program:

This woman - Margherita Granbassi - comes from the city of Trieste, the "Gateway for the papal crusades in the East". His grandfather was the exact opposite of the apparent (and false) ideology of Michele Santoro. He was a Fascist volunteer fighting in Spain. Just for a coincidence the woman was invited by Santoro in the same period of time (October, approx.) when in the city of Trieste the church of Rome blessed one of its 'martyr' allegedly killed by the Tito's militia in the late fourties, after the war. And at the same time, there's a polemic going on in the city, as the major wanted to assign the name of the Fascist grandfather of Margherita Granbassi to a street of the town. All the ethnic cleaning, the hate and the nationalist wars in the North Adriatic regions, have been purportedly engineered by the Jesuits and the Vatican, in order to destroy any possibility of dialogue among nations outside the control of the priests and bishops. With the brotherly helps of the CARABINEERS ARMY. In fact the act that inaugurated the ethnic cleaning in N. E. Adriatic regions (1918 - 1947) and that was the founding act of the true Counter Reformation nationalist Fascism, was the stake of the Narodni Dom in Trieste (and Pula/Pola), an Inquisitorial stake occured on the exact 106th birthday of the Carabineers Army (13th July 1920).
Carabineers were known as the first supporters of the Mussolini's death squads (except the usual noble but few exceptions).
But all that you can see for yourself in the page:

http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...tican-hero.html

Not problem for the lacking pics, the Jesuit-Masonic intelligence net removed them (for example the pic of the bishops of Bergamo with his Islamic mercenaries:

QUOTE

Not Found

The requested URL /old/settembre 2008/vescovo/1.jpg was not found on this server.

QUOTE

The pic is a bright witness of the Roman Paganism for white Caucasians (Roman Catholicism) & Roman Paganism for Arabs (Islam) - united & strong, together marching for the destruction of the Western world and for the full restoration of the Canonical law based, anti-Lutheran Middle Age. The pic from: http://www.alternainsieme.net/old/settembre%202008.htm
"...(in the city of Bergamo) - The workers of the Bonduelle preside encountered mons Amadei, ntered that showed a punctual knoweledge of the situation of the Bonduelle (an industry in crisis), expressed solidarity with the workers and their families...". Mons. Amadei is only the colonel of the local papal immigration mercenary army for the 'war on heretics' in Europe.

.....(sorry for the amount of quotes) and:

http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...-genocides.html

So lets return to Constantinina brainwash operations.
Also the new collaborator of Santoro is a right wing oriented woman. Not so radical as the grandfather, of course. But as much as it is required to stage a choreographed difference among the anchorman and his assistant in the studio. And the Margherita Granbassi is not only a champion of fencing:

"….She took the bronze medal on August 11,2008 at the Beijing Olympics defeating fellow teammate Giovanna Trillini 15-12….(Wikipedia)

… but she practice this sport in the Carabineers sport association. Margherita Granbassi WAS a Carabineer agent. And after the command of the army refused to let her to participate to the program, she left the army…..

It is clear that the Carabineers are controlling the Margherita Granbassi. It is clear that they were the first to suggest the dismission, in order to not be painted as 'infiltrating and controlling' the media. So Granbassi met with another Carabineer agent, Michele Santoro. This one but is a covert agent. He is one of the chieftains of the tribe which never waste a minute to attack the 'civil' State Police for the brutalities of G8 Genoa summit in 2001. With those brutalities, finely engineered by the intelligence, the reputation of the 'civil' State Police was definitively destroyed for the benefit of the military totalitarian Carabineers police. Yes, the State Police at those times was just a branch controlled by the Carabineers. But they have to shape the 'moral' dress of that branch, in order to adapt it to their bloody ugly hidden body….. The tribes of the left radical wing movements in Italy, were (and ARE) only the tool used by the Carabineers military intelligence to carry out this special mission. Of course the Carabineers killed a radical violent left wing oriented demonstrator, Carlo Giuliani (son of Marxist senator in the parliament…). But the ones who literally are since that July 2001 filling obsessively the first pages of the newspaper are only and always the 'criminal' 'civil' policemen. And it is clear now why Giuliani was killed. His murderer was 'innocent', in the sense that he was an inexpert eighteen years old military of Carabineers. Their intelligence created the environmental conditions in order to cause a murder. Carabineers are experts in dirty war strategies. Aren't they present in Kosovo, Iraq, Afghanistan, and now in Gaza??!! So the Carabineer agent Mario Placanica become the useful scapegoat. Killing the demonstrator Carlo Giuliani, he pushed away from the Carabineers army and intelligence the possible suspect and blame "for having gained advantage by the destruction of the State Police reputation". You can give a look at the various "Jesuit-Indy Media" sites, there the cattle is since eight years walking in the same pen around the same eight year old puddle filled with the same Jesuitical psychological deceptions. It is a matter of taste….

So you can see here how much deep in the souls of people the Roman Catholic Constantine order NATO force Carabineeers army can dig, to then bury his (fake) moral remote mind control devices.

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Insurgent - January 25, 2009 04:33 PM (GMT)

Hey Avles wanted to thank you for all the great info that you provide on here!!!

craig-oxley - January 29, 2009 02:36 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 22 2009, 10:19 AM)

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]

WHO WANTED TO NUKE

THE BORGO SANTO SPIRITO?

WHY IT WAS

VITTORIO EMANUELE IV

WHILST IN SWITZERLAND

THE SAME VITTORIO WHO DRUG DEALING KINGPIN

JUAN CARLOS OF SPAIN

STOLE HIS TITLES FROM
[dohtml]</Center>
[/dohtml]

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]
VITTORIO EMMANUELE IV

IS SUBORDINATE TO

PRINCE PHILIP

NOW THINK ABOUT IT P2
[dohtml]<Center>
[/dohtml]

soulinspiration - January 29, 2009 11:00 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (Insurgent @ Jan 25 2009, 04:33 PM)
>
> Hey Avles wanted to thank you for all the great info that you provide on here!!!

Ditto. For my money, Avles is the most thorough & heavy-hitting researcher posting on the net at the moment, no offence to anyone else, but I appreciate his following up the various implications & possibilities of these connections between the Constantinians, NATO & Carbinieri, etc. & coming up with some new, verifiable, solid connections. Top detective skills, which is what quality research comes down to at the end of the day.

Oh: & more pix of Margherita Granbassi please! - LOL!! ;D

soulinspiration - January 29, 2009 11:31 PM (GMT)

Like this:

http://gallery.panorama.it/gallery/margher...arabinieri.html

Or these:

user posted image

arena

Rai
Due

Oh & we'd better not forget this!:

http://www.repubblica.it/speciale/2003/cal...piccinini01.jpg

Oh, hang on - that last one is actually Francesca Piccinini according to:

http://www.politicaonline.net/forum/showthread.php?t=453626

Nevermind.

Man, this Margherita Granbassi is a DANGEROUS woman!!

craig-oxley - January 30, 2009 06:14 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

THE PATTUMELLI'S

ARE ON THE HUNT

THEY WANT

LEO LYON ZAGAMI

DEAD LIKE THIS MAN

LEO IS A TRAITOR TO THE JESUITS

CONTINUING P2 ARE READY TO TAKE HIM OUT

THEY SUSPECT LEO ZAGAMI HAS PLANNED

AN ATTACK ON

BORGO SANTO SPIRITO

"I know it's a bit disturbing the current situation for me, please pray for me Brother. I just want them to give me me back my son if possible and for me to stay alive to see him."
-Leo Zagami
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 22 2009, 10:19 AM)

[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]

WHO WANTED TO NUKE

THE BORGO SANTO SPIRITO?

WHY IT WAS

VITTORIO EMANUELE IV

WHILST IN SWITZERLAND

THE SAME VITTORIO WHO DRUG DEALING KINGPIN

JUAN CARLOS OF SPAIN

STOLE HIS TITLES FROM
[dohtml]</Center>
[/dohtml]
[dohtml]<Center>[/dohtml]
VITTORIO EMMANUELE IV

IS SUBORDINATE TO

PRINCE PHILIP

NOW THINK ABOUT IT P2
[dohtml]<Center>
[/dohtml]

QUOTE

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

HERES THE ORSINI CREST NOTICE THE RED/WHITE STRIPES

IS LEO ZAGAMI LOOKING FOR PROTECTION AND

TO BY PASS THE JESUITS TO THE MITHRA PERHAPS?

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

Ken Ardel - January 30, 2009 02:55 PM (GMT)

Remember Leo's membership in the Gulen "SMOM" movement during his moozlem phase and all the trouble he had with the boss's daughter?

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=zt19OYMrXpg

Avles - January 30, 2009 04:49 PM (GMT)

FOR WHOM IS REALLY WORKING ITALIAN-ENGLISH PUBLIC PROSECUTOR JOHN WOODCOCK?

(Not a rethorical question)

user posted image

QUOTE (soulinspiration @ Jan 29 2009, 11:00 PM)

QUOTE (Insurgent @ Jan 25 2009, 04:33 PM)

Hey Avles wanted to thank you for all the great info that you provide on here!!!

Ditto. For my money, Avles is the most thorough & heavy-hitting researcher posting on the net at the moment, no offence to anyone else, but I appreciate his following up the various implications & possibilities of these connections between the Constantinians, NATO & Carbinieri, etc. & coming up with some new, verifiable, solid connections. Top detective skills, which is what quality research comes down to at the end of the day.

Oh: & more pix of Margherita Granbassi please! - LOL!! ;D

Remember that without 2tuff/Craig, Phelps, Willinger, Chamish, Thomas Richards (to not forget who did deep researches for example about Constantinian order and others), etc., now I would continue to dupe myself with "Neocons", "Aliens", "Reptilians" etc.... My work is a sort of 'reflex', a reflex possible exclusively and only thanks the existence of the above mentioned 'mirrors'.

For example this thread: my posts are not 100% inside the argument, simply people find them interesting because (probably) I am saying interesting things. But Constantinian order ruled Carabineers are the TOOL, not the thinking head. Constantine Carabineers are something which adds further details to the Borgo Santo Spirito picture. I am following Craig, really, and not the opposite! I would have never discovered by myself things such the Borgo Santo Sp. missile defence system or the submission of Victor to Philip.
This case recalls to me the 2006 judiciary case involving Victor Emanuel, something that - if I remember well - has been recalled also by Craig in the past. And by others:

Romish-Masonic 911 Suspects ---> The USA's 'Reichstag Fire'

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/11/02...tors-executors/

.....quoted in:

http://continuingcounterreformation.blogsp...1-suspects.html

QUOTE

From Troy Space
http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/2008/11/02...tors-executors/

PARTIAL LIST OF VATICAN-LOYAL SUSPECTED 9/11 ORCHESTRATORS & EXECUTORS (INCLUDING JESUITS, CARDINALS, S.M.O.M. KNIGHTS OF MALTA, FRANCO-NEAPOLITAN CONSTANTINIAN KNIGHTS, SKULL & BONES, C.F.R., KNIGHTS OF STS. MAURICE & LAZARUS, P2 MASONS & OTHER JESUIT TEMPORAL COADJUTORS)

http://troyspace2.wordpress.com/

.....

VITTORIO EMANUELE, PRINCE OF NAPLES

Grand Master of the Order of Saints Maurice & Lazarus (1983 - present); Monte Carlo/P2 Lodge Paramasonic Freemason (from at least 1981 - present)

.....

On several occasions he has been the centre of controversy in Italy and abroad due to a series of incidents, including remarks that were seen by some as anti-semitic. In France he was tried on a murder charge, of which he was cleared of unlawful killing but convicted of a firearms offence. More recently, Vittorio Emanuele was arrested on June 16, 2006, following an investigation started by Henry John Woodcock of the Public Prosecutor's Office in Potenza, Italy, on charges of criminal association, corruption and exploitation of prostitution".

http://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Lista_appartenenti_alla_P2
.....

I can olny supply confirmations. For example, I discovered the interview of Cossiga with the Jewish newspaper the same day I sent the related message , just 'instigated' by Craig's posts. Recently (another confirmation!) I discovered that Francis Cossiga is.... a noble!! Yes, he is count/earl!!! (from a discussion in Wikipedia among experts). At the moment I don't know to what house he is belonging - maybe to a fake house/bloodline, as Ratzinger aka Mr Nobody with a Nobody-coat-of-arms.

Further details on Woodcock:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/John_Woodcock_(magistrate)

QUOTE

John Woodcock (magistrate)
From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
Jump to: navigation, search

Henry John Woodcock (born 1967 in Taunton, England), is an Italian citizen of British descent and a prosecutor in Potenza, Italy

Henry John Woodcock is the son of a teacher of the Naval Academy of Livorno, his mother is from Naples. He became a prosecutor in 1996 and has become famous for his investigations in high profile scandals including the Italian "Vip-Gate" in 2003, and the Italian "Somali-Gate" in 2006.[1]

He is a colleague magistrate of Luigi De Magistris, and they cooperate in anti-mafia investigations.

On June 16, 2006, Woodcock asked for, and obtained from the Giudice delle Indagini preliminari an arrest warrant against Vittorio Emanuele of Savoy in Varenna accusing him of participating in corruption, forgery, and organization of prostitution in relation to an investigation of the Casino of CAMPIONE D'ITALIA. The arrest was made after wire taps had been intercepted between Vittorio Emanuele and other suspects during a two year investigation. Thirteen of 24 people investigated were arrested. Seven of these were jailed, while six were placed under house arrest. Among the other suspects are Salvatore Sottile, the spokesman of former foreign minister Gianfranco Fini, casino managers from Messina, Sicily. Italian television also indicated that Vittorio's cousin Simeon II of Bulgaria, the last Tsar and former premier of Bulgaria, is under investigation.

I mentioned Woodcock in the thread "Low Intensity Carabineers etc....", obviously not relating it to Borgo Santo Spirito, only to Italian inner Jesuit-Vatican Black government operations. In the Italian page there are more details about the father of Woodcock - see if they could be interesting for the matter:

Italienisch:

http://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Henry_John_Woodcock

QUOTE

.....Henry John Woodcock è nato a Taunton, nella contea di Somerset, in Inghilterra. Il papà George, discendente di una famiglia aristocratica inglese, insegnò lingue all'Accademia navale di Livorno. La mamma Gloria è italiana.
Molti lo conoscono come "il pm inglese dall'accento napoletano". In Inghilterra ha vissuto pochissimo: quando aveva un anno i genitori si sono separati e la madre lo ha portato con sé a Napoli.....

That is: ".....Henry John Woodcock is born in Taunton, in the Somerset county, in England.*
The father George, descending from an aristocratic English family, teached languages at the Naval Academy of Livorno (= Tuscany). The mother Gloria is Italian. Many people know him as "the English judicial prosecutor with a neapolitan accent". He lived just for a short time in England: when he was one year old the relatives divorced and the mother brought him to Neaple....".*

Worth to be noted, the Woodcock investigation of the Casino of Campione d'Italia, an investigation that started the s.c. "Savoygate", the indictment of Victor Emanuel.

What is CAMPIONE D'ITALIA?

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Campione_d%27Italia

QUOTE

.....Campione d'Italia is an ITALIAN comune (municipality) of the Province of Como in the LOMBARDY region, occupying an enclave within the Swiss canton of Ticino, separated from the rest of Italy by Lake Lugano and mountains. The enclave is less than 1 kilometre (1,100 yd) as the crow flies from the rest of Italy, but the hilly terrain requires a journey by road of over 14 kilometres (8.7 mi) to reach the nearest Italian town, Lanzo d'Intelvi, and over 28 kilometres (17 mi) to reach the city of Como. .....

.....

Campione has a considerable amount of economic and administrative integration with Switzerland. Because of its particular status, legal tender in the town is the Swiss Franc[3] but the Euro is widely accepted; Italian citizens residing in Campione must abide by Swiss law regarding customs duties. Currently, car plates are not Italian, but Swiss; similarly, the telephone system is almost entirely operated by Swisscom, meaning that .....

.....

Like the Italian town of Livigno, it is exempt from the EU VAT. Campione takes advantage of its status by operating a famous casino, the Casinò di Campione, as gambling laws are less strict than in both Italy and Switzerland (also a legacy of the pre-World War II era).

.....

"....Campione d'Italia is an ITALIAN comune (municipality) of the Province of Como in the LOMBARDY region..." and it is of some interest to see, afther the province of COMO, also the "Lake of COMO"/"Lago di COMO". I am alluding to this poor guy, to the map and the related thread - what did Craig tell to us?

To the west of COMO lake there's the "Lake of LUGANO"/"Lago di LUGANO", and CAMPIONE D'ITALIA at the east coast of the lake (go just under the inscription "Lugano" and you'll find "Campione d'Italia"/"Champion of Italy"), a sort of 'extraterritorial' Italian-Swiss zone, "half Switzerland --- half Italy" if you want, where the intelligence agency Information and Interior Security Agency - AISI - of Jesuit trained Giovanni de Gennaro gets its (bloody) money:

And all that recalls to me the dirty business of Opus Dei Constantinian order Jesuit supported (through Jesuit trained mafioso Marcello dell'Utri), the actual Italian PRIME MINISTER Silvio Berlusconi, business linked also with Lugano:

http://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Berlusconi#Edilizia

QUOTE

.....Nel 1963 fonda la Edilnord Sas, in cui è socio d'opera accomandatario, mentre Carlo Rasini e il commercialista svizzero Carlo Rezzonico sono soci accomandanti. In quest'azienda, Carlo Rezzonico fornisce i capitali attraverso la finanziaria Finanzierungsgesellschaft für Residenzen AG di Lugano.[14] Gli anonimi capitali della finanziaria svizzera vengono in parte depositati presso l'International Bank di Zurigo e pervengono alla Edilnord attraverso la Banca Rasini.....

".....In 1963 he founded the Edilnord Sas (civil engineering society to build apartments - avles), in which he is ordinary member, meanwhile Carlo Rasini and the Swiss business consultant Carlo Rezzonico are too members (another kind of member - avles). In this enterprise, Carlo Rezzonico supplies the capitals through the financial society Finanzierungsgesellschaft für Residenzen AG of LUGANO. The anonymous capitals of the Swiss financial society are partially stored in the International Bank of Zurig to flow then into the Edilnord passing towards the Rasini Bank....."

See Lugano in the above map. If I am not wrong, the Berlusconi's father was clerk in the Rasini Bank.

THE ULTRA POWERFUL MAXIMUS FAMILY, [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...topic=6944&st=0

(Note: these are banal observations for a 'Catholander' like me, simply I am accustomed with the geography of these zones of Europe!)

Let me recall to you the symbol of Berlusconi's societies:

You surely encoutered it in the Saturnalia section - The Unhived Mind. It is the symbol of ALfa Romeo car trade mark, of the Berlusconi's society and of the CITY OF MILAN, capital of the same Lombardy region where Frederick Barbarossa went defeated --> symbol of Berlusconi's society:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Fininvest

Please, don't ask to me to deepen the investigative cases and scandals etc. involving John "Naples" Woodcock! I should write (translating) at least till tomorrow. Only a short example. Do you remember the papal Bolshevik Michele Santoro, whose pictures (alone and with Granbassi) are in the post above? Well, in Autumn 2007, the papal Marxist anchorman Santoro gave large space in his program to a friend and colleague of Woodcock, the prosecutor Luigi de Magistris (magistrate). A very important tv-pogram, a political reality show, for the political destiny of the country. De Magistris was an important key to make explode scandals that helped the announcement by the Italian

President of new elections in April 2008. President Giorgio NAPOLItano (= President George Neapolitan) is friend of the daughter of Ulrich Von Hassell (see Jesuits controlled "Kreisauer Kreis"). And De Magistris is friend of Magistrate Clementina Forleo, also implied in the "Low Intensity Carabineers coupe" aka Restoration of Pontifical reign. And Magistrate Clementina Forleo, a right wing oriented woman, is friend of left wing oriented Magistrate Ferdinando Imposimato. Magistrate Ferdinando Imposimato wrote a book about the lies of Bush that helped the invasion of Iraq, obviously filling it with the papal lies of the "War for Oil" (the oil was only the salary for the servants), papal lies underlined by a servile licking of Imposimato to the figure of Wojtyla. And the Magistrate Clementina Forleo wrote the introduction to the book. And the Magistrate Clememntina Forleo was present with Magistrate Luigi de Magistris in those famous and critical political reality show of papal Bolshevik Santoro in Autumn 2007. And Magistrate Clementina Forleo, a right wing oriented woman, was criticized to be "too much soft with the arrested Muslims in Italy suspected to be Al Qaeda members" meanwhile his party was raging against Al Qaeda. And Magistrate Ferdinando Imposimato spread the lies of the "Communist STASI and KGB" as the true minds behind the kidnapping of Vatican citizen Emmanuela Orlandi the 22nd June 1983. And Emmanuela ORlandi kidnapping is linked with Magliana gang (see Enrico de Pedis mafioso buried in Romanist church among popes) which is linked with Marcinkus, Sindona, Calvi, Gelli, which.... which....

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

Maximiliano - February 1, 2010 12:43 PM (GMT)

Some interesting facts about Borgo.

Wikipedia tells this:

""The territory of the Borgo during the Roman age was part of the fourteenth Regio, Transtiberim, and was named Ager Vaticanus,[1] after the auguries (vaticinii), which were taken there by the Etruscan Augures. Since it lay outside the Pomerium, and was plagued by malaria, this territory was used as a burial place. Some tombs reached notable proportions: among them, the so called Terebinthus Neronis, which was a round tomb surmounted by a narrow tower;[2] while the Meta Romuli (a pyramid similar to that still standing near Porta San Paolo), was demolished only in 1499.""

So, in Borgo was the "Meta Romuli" which means de tomb of Romulo, of which came the name of Rome; and his tomb was a pyramid similar to that still standing near Porta San Paolo

This a picture of the META ROMULI

And that Pyramid was in this place of Rome

user posted image

SO THE CHURCH IN BORGO SANCTO SPIRITO IS JUST NEAR TO THE PLACE WHERE THE META ROMULI WAS. iM NOPT SURE BUT ITS SEEMS T ME TAHT THE DISTANCE OF THAT PLACE AND THE CURCH IS 666 FEETS.

Also note this statue near to the Hospital of Borgo Sancto Spirito

Maximiliano - February 1, 2010 01:22 PM (GMT)

Other picture of the META ROMULI PYRAMID

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: ROMAN BLOODLINES

Title: ROMAN BLOODLINES
Description: OTHER SOURCES, OTHER INFO

soulinspiration - May 18, 2010 05:11 AM (GMT)

http://lifeonchildreninthemix.com/

QUOTE

So why is it essential we study such information? Well, this behaviour has been going on since the great empire of Sumer, famous for Babylon, Nimrod, and perhaps not so well known the Talmud. Here we go…he is attacking the Jews?? Let us be if anything, balanced and open minded if we are to make any sense out of this whole nonsense. The Talmud is the doctrine, in part, from the purest of all Satanic doctrines, the Sumer – Akkadian mystery school, which when one digs deep enough heralds from beyond the deluge to the time known as Atlantis.

Such information is important in understanding why all this behaviour is more prevalent at the top of society, and thus protected by same.

...

I have mentioned the Babylon connection because we have to understand why these people do what they do, for the answer we have to fully understand the Talmud but more importantly to understand the Talmud is not a Jewish doctrine it is a Satanic doctrine, carried forth into modern day Judaism not by the peoples from the Bible, but from a race of people who have their root in Sumer who finally built an empire around the Stepps of Russia known as Khazaria, and hence the peoples of that race became known as the Khazars. The Khazars are best known, although they have been erased from history from the times of the Carolingian Charles Martel and his grandson Charlemagne, when the Khazars fought against the Moslems, were victorious, and saved Europe from invasion. This then created another problem for the Khazars in that they were vulnerable from absorption by either the Christian's or the Moslems, to counteract this King Bulan the Khazar King in 739-40 decreed the whole empire convert to Judaism, this they did but with a difference…the Khazars were blood rite pagans who sacrificed children and humans in general, and so the Babylonian Talmud and the Jews of today have become synonymous.

But there is yet more to be known in relation to the influence of the Khazar race which takes us back to Attila the Hun, heralded to be the hero of his people which could well said to have prophesied correctly, because the Roman bloodlines ensured they took his seed when he was a guest in the court of the scheming empress and her general, and with no further use for him he was slain. This is the bloodline of the elite of the Zionists yet controlled by the Roman Imperial bloodlines. The Khazar race are a mix of the Hun and the Magyar, and with the events surrounding Attila, it is pretty clear why the Khazars fought to protect their blood kin, the Imperial Roman bloodlines against the Moslems…

the bloodlines controlled the Khazar race.

So the actual beginnings to what is said to be a Jewish doctrine the Talmud, goes way beyond even the Khazars, which it would, given the elite bloodlines of Rome can be traced back to Troy and again to Babylon.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Aldobrandinis/papal elite families on facebook

Title: The Aldobrandinis/papal elite families on facebook

Gangrenous Khan - May 16, 2010 05:34 AM (GMT)

(i copied this from another thread since i decided this topic expands into other families, not just the aldobrandis after a little research)

So out of boredom i a search of aldobrandini's on facebook. I was surprised to find that there were only 42 results yielded, and was equally surprised to find that these people are all super rich models or aristrocrats. This is definently a well contained family name... Some of them carried the surname, 'del Drago' which, if i am not mistaken, means "of the dragon", which i thought was interesting...

there was a whole strain of aldobrandinis that did not even show their profiles. there were some kids on there and just by looking at their pics you can tell they were loaded. i noticed some papal influenced names as well.

And by the way, the aldobrandini villa in rome, is INSANE. I have never seen an estate look like that.... it is just enormous... no wonder these little bastards are so well off....

I am pretty sure these kids are the real deal. One of the aldobrandinis i was looking at had a friend named rod borghese (a papal power family). And guess what i found? this same guy was promoting a facebook page celebrating his family's papal power, as well as displaying his family's satanic illumninist coat of arms: http://www.facebook.com/pages/Borghese-fam...62524479?v=desc

Guess what is at the bottom of the coat of arms? a dragon. remember earlier in this thread i mentioned the surname "del drago"? yeah...

Its amazing the connections you can find on facebook....

Gangrenous Khan - May 16, 2010 05:56 AM (GMT)

i made a chart, this is getting crazy:

Clemente (http://www.facebook.com/aldobrandini) and giulia aldobrandini (http://www.facebook.com/profile.php?id=1510443261)

>>friends with>>

Rod Borghese(http://www.facebook.com/pages/Borghese-family/108398162524479?v=desc#!/borgheses)

>>friends with>>

Alistair Rothschild (http://www.facebook.com/davidjrrockefeller#!/RothschildAlistair)

>>friends with>>

David Rockefeller (http://www.facebook.com/RothschildAlistair#!/davidjrrockefeller?v=wall)

>>friends with>>

Massimo Cavalli (http://www.facebook.com/profile.php?id=1011811410) (LOOK AT THAT PROFILE PIC)

I have to stop there because this is going on and on...

Krusty - May 16, 2010 06:44 AM (GMT)

Very interesting post. Did you see anything on the profiles that would suggest they may not be who they say they are?

Not that i'm doubting anything you say, but i found it a little strange looking at David Rockefeller's wall that he had people sending his kisses and junk. That and he graduated from Harvard in '79, and went to high school in '70.

Eboard10 - May 16, 2010 10:26 AM (GMT)

You should check out a profile called "Angel Illuminati"; you will find a lot of interesting characters as friends.

Gangrenous Khan - May 16, 2010 11:36 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (Krusty @ May 16 2010, 06:44 AM)
>
> Very interesting post. Did you see anything on the profiles that would suggest they may not be who they say they are?
>
> Not that i'm doubting anything you say, but i found it a little strange looking at David Rockefeller's wall that he had people sending his kisses and junk. That and he graduated from Harvard in '79, and went to high school in '70.

I have to admit, when i saw rockefeller's wall i pretty much lost it.

I dont know about his profile, if it is real, it was probrably set up by his younger relatives.

The other ones however i think are more likely to be legit. It would be pretty difficult to friend and create profiles of all these people with photos, etc. and be networked in all of these specific groups, only to be some practical joke, that would be lost on most people's minds (and wouldnt be practical at all).

Honestly, who the hell besides us knows what an aldobrandini is? sure they may be aware of rockefeller (which is why among other reasons, his profile is the most suspect), but the others seem to be younger kids so they probably dont mind flaunting themselves on facebook (although there are a lot of aldobrandinis on there who dont even show their face)

Krusty - May 16, 2010 12:36 PM (GMT)

I tend to agree that it would be a pretty complex practical joke for little to no result. David Rockefella would be one of the more well known people, and so i could accept that one could be faked but the others not so much.

There is another theory i was thinking of that could also be equally valid. Perhaps the people really did make the profiles, but as a joke on us, as opposed to some random person faking all the names etc.

The reason i think this is because they would have to know that Facebook is heavily monitored, and that any personal communication is in fact not very personal. Facebook profiles are also easily hackable and they must also know that.

Either way, it's a pretty interesting find, and could lead to something useful.

map - May 16, 2010 08:58 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (Gangrenous Khan @ May 16 2010, 05:56 AM)

i made a chart, this is getting crazy:

Clemente (http://www.facebook.com/aldobrandini) and giulia aldobrandini (http://www.facebook.com/profile.php?id=1510443261)

>>friends with>>

Rod Borghese(http://www.facebook.com/pages/Borghese-family/108398162524479?v=desc#!/borgheses)

>>friends with>>

Alistair Rothschild (http://www.facebook.com/davidjrrockefeller#!/RothschildAlistair)

>>friends with>>

David Rockefeller (http://www.facebook.com/RothschildAlistair#!/davidjrrockefeller?v=wall)

>>friends with>>

Massimo Cavalli (http://www.facebook.com/profile.php?id=1011811410) (LOOK AT THAT PROFILE PIC)

I have to stop there because this is going on and on...

nice one

Maximiliano - May 16, 2010 11:29 PM (GMT)

A-MAI-ZING... THE PAGE WAS ERASED...

map - May 16, 2010 11:42 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (Maximiliano @ May 16 2010, 11:29 PM)

A-MAI-ZING... THE PAGE WAS ERASED...

http://www.facebook.com/aldobrandini

soulinspiration - May 17, 2010 11:22 PM (GMT)

I hate to be the one to burst this particular bubble, but I didn't find those pages linked to above to be of even minor revelatory nature. If any particularly spectacular "finds" were to be discovered at that dunghouse "Shite-Book" then you can bet your bottom brass razoo that they would have been cooked up at one counterintelligence clearing house or another. To have the time of investigative posters at this forum wasted by any means possible certainly would be worth someone's while. Not blaming anyone around here, just saying be awares people!

Over & out ...

soulinspiration - May 17, 2010 11:28 PM (GMT)

In fact you'd be better off digging around somewhere like here:

http://heirsofeurope.blogspot.com/2010/01/del-drago.html

or here:

http://heirsofeurope.blogspot.com/2010/01/aldobrandini.html

or even here:

http://heirsofeurope.blogspot.com/2010/01/...i-daragona.html

soulinspiration - May 17, 2010 11:43 PM (GMT)

You'd even be better sniffing around here:

http://www.theroyalforums.com/forums/f81/i...007-a-2776.html

& here:

http://www.theroyalforums.com/forums/f81/i...07-a-13326.html

Good luck though, your boredom threshold would have to be much higher than mine!

soulinspiration - May 17, 2010 11:51 PM (GMT)

Has anyone posted this link before?:

http://www.romeartlover.it/Families.html

Nice little screenshot too here:

THE ROMAN ARISTOCRACY SINCE 1870

http://www3.interscience.wiley.com/journal...900551/abstract

Insurgent - May 18, 2010 02:03 AM (GMT)

The Farnese dedicated a large part of their revenue to the decoration of the palace. One of the finest rooms is Sala del Mappamondo (mappamondo = map of the two hemispheres) where the walls are painted with maps of the four continents, Palestine and Italy and with a large map of the world. The map shows a large continent where now we know there is the Antarctic Continent. The Red Sea, in line with the tradition of the early cartographers, is painted in a reddish colour. At the same time (second half of the XVIth century) Pope Gregorius XIII (1572-85) decorated the walls of the corridors of Palazzo Vaticano with the maps of Italy.

Is this the map that Vittorio was talking about?

soulinspiration - May 18, 2010 02:58 AM (GMT)

Interesting painting. Feel free to post any links to pieces discussing the snow-free Antarctic.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: SMOM & PAPAL NOBLE CHRISTOPHER LEE

Title: SMOM & PAPAL NOBLE CHRISTOPHER LEE Description: ACTOR WITH THE MOST OCCULT TITLES EVER

map - May 8, 2010 08:23 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ May 7 2010, 04:05 PM)
>
> Papal bloodlines family members of the ten HAVE many times married out of the family but they are banished from the ritual due to impurities. People like Actor and Knight of Malta, Christopher Lee have papal blood, but they WOULD NEVER be able to re-enter the rite or be on the future councils. They are forever impure, and their ranks are also reduced. You can see that Lee himself did have the chance to become a famous third-rank actor. So they will get positions but NEVER can they be readmitted to the rite and their rank will always be below others whose purities are finer. Its all about pedigree!
>
> -Count Vittorio

Have you seen the SUPER OCCULT films Mr. Lee has been in?

GOOD LORD! I DON'T THINK ANYONE ELSE HAS DONE SO MANY OCCULT FILMS!

http://www.imdb.com/name/nm0000489/

To name a few...

The Wicker Tree (2010) (post-production) .... Lord Summerisle
Season of the Witch (2010) (completed) .... CARDINAL D'Ambroise
The Colour of Magic (2008) (TV) (voice) .... Death
Pope John Paul II (2005) (TV) .... CARDINAL Stefan Wyszynski

HERE'S A FUNNY ONE...
Moses (1995) (TV) .... Ramses

OLDER ONES...
Curse III: Blood Sacrifice (1991) .... Doctor Pearson
The Satanic Rites of Dracula (1973) .... Count Dracula
Poor Devil (1973) (TV) .... Lucifer

...That's just to name a few.

MY FAVE THAT I'VE WATCHED ARE...
To the Devil a Daughter (1976) .... Father Michael Rayner
... aka "Child of Satan" - USA (video title)
... aka "To the Devil... a Daughter" - USA (poster title)

LEE PLAYED A PRIEST WHICH WAS EX-COMMUNICATED FOR PRACTICING WITCHCRAFT!
WHAT A JESUIT!

The Devil Rides Out (1968) .... Duc de Richleau
... aka "The Devil's Bride" - USA

LEE PLAYED THE "GOOD GUY" FIGHTING THE DEVIL (LOL)

Christopher Lee
Charles Gray
Nikè Arrighi
Leon Greene

Note the 666 hexagram instead of the inverted pentagram

Note the "CATHOLIC" PX aka STAFF OF OSIRIS and skull & bones (Jupiter)

Lucifer in the 666 hexagram

Satan manifesting as a black man?

Satan was above sabbatical goat and scared away by crucifix (lol)

Mr. Lee with the occult 'Osiris Risen' pose lol... Even Papal Knight of St. Gregory Rupert Murdoch has to get in on the wickedly evil fun... just like he does with the Satanic NIV Bible and SATANIC BIBLE which he owns the copyrights to!

Here's the UPCOMING Chris Lee film "Season of the Witch" which also stars SATURN FILMS OWNER Nicolas Cage...

NICOLAS CAGE
SEASON OF THE WITCH
NOT ALL SOULS CAN BE SAVED.
IN THEATERS MARCH 19
LIONSGATE

Lee playing another CARDINAL role

Reminds me of (Aldobrandini) Eyes Wide Shut

... with all this displayed and said I must say this: I BELIEVE YOU COUNT VITTORIO.

Eboard10 - May 8, 2010 11:00 AM (GMT)

Great post map! Btw, can you trace him to any of the bloodline families?

soulinspiration - May 8, 2010 12:52 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE
>
> Even Papal Knight of St. Gregory Rupert Murdoch has to get in on the wickedly evil fun...

Murdoch may be benefitting financially now (albeit not by much I'd suggest) from digital reissues of whatever film that Fox credit was from, however he only took control of Fox in 1986 & that flick looks decidedly '70's. More interesting to me in that shot (fourth from the bottom of the series that you post above) is the very Papal looking key.

Note though that FOX = 666:

F = 6
O = 15 (1 5 <=> 1+5 = 6)

X = 24 (2 4 <=> 2+4 = 6)

These films have a seeming authenticity to the evocation of these rituals & suggest that there are a number of relatively very small, very occult Western initiatic societies that are very much under the radar. Much of this truth is most likely to only be revealed in fictional terms. Anton Lavey's (now Peter Gilmore's) Church of Satan & Michael Aquino's Temple of Set would be in turns quite mainstream, quaint, comical & profane in comparison.

I would be interested to see Lee's family tree & to know which Papal Family he supposedly has ancestral roots within.

Very well selected group of shots. Were these taken from an online study of Lee & his occultic works? It would be interesting to read an insightful study of these films significance.

Eboard10 - May 8, 2010 02:21 PM (GMT)

Prince of darkness: A rare audience with Sir Christopher Lee

While he is looking around for a piece of wood to touch, I seize my chance to get a word in edgeways, asking Lee to tell me more about his parents. His mother was Contessa Estelle Marie Carandini di Sarzano, a celebrated Edwardian beauty. His father was Lieutenant-Colonel Geoffrey Trollope Lee. They separated when he was four years old, but it is perhaps no wonder that their only son should have had a life of distinction.

"On the Italian side we can trace the family back 2,000 years," he says. "I have a cousin in Rome, a famous archaeologist, Count Andrea Carandini, who was in Lombardy and came across some pottery with the original name of the family, Carandinus, painted on it. Andrea has found many of our ancestors, who were cardinals and heaven only knows what else, but 2,000 years ago they made chariots for the Roman army."

And what of his father's side?

"My father's family can we traced back to 1400. I've been told by gypsies that there is unmistakeably gypsy blood in me. Lee is a gypsy name, you know."

Carandini Family Wikipedia

The Carandini (originally Risi) family rose to political prominence in Modena in the 15th century. One or more members of the family became political fugitives in the 19th century and fled to England or Australia; some of the persons listed below are their descendants. Another family member, Filippo Cardinal Carandini, was Prefect of the Congregation for the Clergy and a participant in the 1800 papal conclave.

soulinspiration - May 8, 2010 02:37 PM (GMT)

Very interesting.

As interesting as this from the same Independent article (emphases in bold mine):

http://www.independent.co.uk/news/people/p...ee-1727293.html

> QUOTE
>
> I start by asking him if he agrees that he is probably the world's most prolific screen actor. He says: "I don't know where people find these things out. On the internet, I suppose. Yes, I have been told that I have made more films than anyone alive today, and that might very well be true."
>
> Can he remember the first? "Oh yes. Corridor of Mirrors, directed by Terence Young. We made it in Paris. But the first thing I did in front of a camera was television, at the end of 1946, and that was a disaster. I'd only been demobbed a few months. I spent five years in the war, and managed to stay on my feet most of the time. I was in the North African desert, then Malta, then Sicily, then Italy."
>
> I have heard it rumoured, I say, that he was in the Special Operations Executive, part of an elite "secret army" charged with encouraging sabotage behind enemy lines.
>
> Lee raises one rather beetling eyebrow. "I don't go into that. If I had any deadly secrets I wouldn't still be alive. I remember being on Terry Wogan's programme once, with John Gardner, who was the first man to get permission to write new Bond novels. Ian Fleming was my cousin, you know. He was in naval intelligence. And my sister worked for Ultra [the top secret code-breaking enterprise based at Bletchley Park] in the war. I didn't know until years later. Anyway, Terry Wogan said, 'Of course, you were a spy, weren't you?' I said, 'Terry, do you mind if I stand up?' I stood up. And I said, 'Do you consider that I would blend inconspicuously into a crowd?' A spy?" (Lee makes the word "spy" last several seconds, using all his actorly prowess to convey the absurdity of the suggestion.) "I wasn't a spy. I'd have been spotted in five seconds. Yes, I was in intelligence, but that covered a multitude of things."

& this:

> QUOTE
>
> No, my father was in the 60th King's Own Rifles. He fought in the Boer War, where he was recommended for a Victoria Cross. In the First World War he was the first British officer to be put in charge of Australian troops, and he took them to the Somme, where they seized a village, Posieres, that nobody else had taken. My father was decorated with a Croix de Guerre by Marshal Foch, and later he got the Order of the Nile from the Egyptians. I never found out how. He said he got it for playing chess with King Fuad. But he died very young, at 62 years of age, of double pneumonia and pleurisy. It was 1941, and they didn't have the drugs."

Eboard10 - May 8, 2010 03:04 PM (GMT)

Regarding Fleming, from the same article:

> QUOTE
>
> As for the family ties with Ian Fleming, they weren't exactly cousins. After his parents' divorce, his mother, the Contessa, married a banker, Harcourt Rose, whose sister was Fleming's mother. He and Fleming became friends. "I used to play golf with him, and I remember him asking me on the links if I wanted to play Dr No, which was about to go into production. But by the time he got round to mentioning it to [Bond producers] Cubby Broccoli and Harry Saltzman, they'd cast another actor."

The good, the bad and the Christopher Lee

Christopher Lee revealing his dark side

This Saturday he will be introducing a film - 1972's Nothing But The Night - which was never released "The only film I have ever been involved in producing, never again. It wasn't an easy story, about old, brilliant people who don't want to die so they transfer their brains into very young children. Although not in a vat, like some schlock film," he adds.

...

Despite their outward differences, however, one could argue Dracula and Saruman are spiritual cousins; both intelligent, complex men who have turned to the dark side. Certainly, Lee admits to being fascinated by the nature of evil. "There is something sad about malevolence, to be wicked," he says. "I have always tried to make that come across in the villains I have played. 'Good' people can a virtue of being persistently noble which can become rather uninteresting. There is a dark side in all of us. And for us 'bad' people the bad side dominates. I think there is a great sadness in villains, and I have tried to out that across. We cannot stop ourselves doing what we are doing."

Christopher Lee takes a long puff on his vast cigar, grins his lupine grin and silently dares me to argue back. Perhaps fortunately, I don't get the chance. His wife is on the phone wondering where on earth he has got to, and he really must be on his way. I can't blame him. It's his birthday after all.

craig-oxley - May 8, 2010 05:06 PM (GMT)

The Wicker Tree (2010) (post-production) .... Lord Summerisle
The Resident (2010) (post-production) .... August Monstermania! (2010) (post-production) (voice) .... Mr. Price
Season of the Witch (2010) (completed) .... Cardinal D'Ambroise
Alice in Wonderland (2010) (voice) .... Jabberwocky
... aka "Alice in Wonderland: An IMAX 3D Experience" - USA (IMAX version) Kingudamu hâtsu: Bâsu bai surîpu (2010) (VG) (voice: English version) .... Ansem the Wise
... aka "Kingdom Hearts: Birth by Sleep" - International (English title)
The Heavy (2010) .... Mr. Mason
Glorious 39 (2009) .... Walter Keyes
Triage (2009) .... Joaquín Morales
Boogie Woogie (2009/I) .... Alfred Rhinegold
Kingdom Hearts 358/2 Days (2009) (VG) (voice: English version) .... DiZ
Star Wars: The Clone Wars (2008) (voice) .... Count Dooku
The Colour of Magic (2008) (TV) (voice) .... Death
... aka "Terry Pratchett's The Colour of Magic" - International (English title) (complete title)
... aka "The Color of Magic" - USA (new title)
... aka "Amazing World" - Japan (English title)
The Golden Compass (2007) .... First High Councilor
Lord of the Rings: Battle for Middle Earth II - Rise of the Witch King (2006) (VG) (voice) .... Saruman the White
Kingdom Hearts II (2005) (VG) (voice: English version) .... DiZ / Ansem the Wise
Pope John Paul II (2005) (TV) .... Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski
Corpse Bride (2005) (voice) .... Pastor Galswells
... aka "Tim Burton's Corpse Bride" - Singapore (English title), USA (complete title)
Charlie and the Chocolate Factory (2005) .... Dr. Wonka
... aka "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory: The IMAX Experience" - USA (IMAX version)
Star Wars: Episode III - Revenge of the Sith (2005) .... Count Dooku
... aka "Revenge of the Sith" - USA (short title)

... aka "Star Wars III: Revenge of the Sith" - USA (DVD box title)
... aka "Star Wars: Revenge of the Sith" - USA (promotional title)
Greyfriars Bobby (2005) .... The Lord Provost
The Lord of the Rings: The Battle for Middle-Earth (2004) (VG) (voice) .... Saruman
The Lord of the Rings: The Third Age (2004) (VG) (voice) .... Saruman the White GoldenEye: Rogue Agent (2004) (VG) (voice) .... Francisco Scaramanga
... aka "GoldenEye: Dark Agent" - Japan (English title)
EverQuest II (2004) (VG) (voice) .... Lucan D'Lere
Les rivières pourpres II - Les anges de l'apocalypse (2004) .... Heinrich von Garten
... aka "Crimson Rivers 2: Angels of the Apocalypse" - International (English title)
... aka "Crimson Rivers: Angels of the Apocalypse" - USA (DVD title)
The Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King (2003) .... Saruman (extended edition)
... aka "The Return of the King" - USA (short title)
Freelancer (2003) (VG) (voice)
The Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers (2002) .... Saruman the White
... aka "The Two Towers" - USA (short title)
Star Wars: Episode II - Attack of the Clones (2002) .... Count Dooku / Darth Tyranus
... aka "Attack of the Clones" - USA (short title)
... aka "Attack of the Clones: The IMAX Experience" - USA (IMAX version (promotional title))
... aka "Star Wars II" - USA (promotional abbreviation)
... aka "Star Wars II: Attack of the Clones" - USA (video box title)
The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring (2001) .... Saruman
... aka "The Fellowship of the Ring" - USA (short title)
... aka "The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring: The Motion Picture" - USA (promotional title)
... aka "Lord of the Rings" - Japan (English title)
Conquest: Frontier Wars (2001) (VG) (voice) .... Anvil/Headquarters
"Les redoutables" .... La mort (1 episode, 2001)
- Confession (2001) TV episode .... La mort
"Ghost Stories for Christmas" (2000) TV mini-series (voice) .... M.R James
In the Beginning (2000) (TV) .... Rameses I
"Gormenghast" .... Flay (4 episodes, 2000)
- Episode #1.4 (2000) TV episode .... Flay
- Episode #1.3 (2000) TV episode .... Flay
- Episode #1.2 (2000) TV episode .... Flay
- Episode #1.1 (2000) TV episode .... Flay

Sleepy Hollow (1999) .... Burgomaster
The Rocky Interactive Horror Show (1999) (VG) .... Narrator
"The New Adventures of Robin Hood" .... Olwyn (6 episodes, 1997-1998)
- The Auction (1998) TV episode .... Olwyn
- The Sceptre (1997) TV episode .... Olwyn
- Nightmare of the Magic Castle (1997) TV episode .... Olwyn
- The Legend of Olwyn (1997) TV episode .... Olwyn

- A Race Against Death (1997) TV episode .... Olwyn
(1 more)
Jinnah (1998) .... Mohammed Ali Jinnah
... aka "Mohammed Ali Jinnah" - Pakistan (English title)
Tale of the Mummy (1998) .... Sir Richard Turkel
... aka "Talos the Mummy" - Europe (English title), UK (video title), USA (working title)
... aka "Russell Mulcahy's Tale of the Mummy" - USA (complete title)
The Odyssey (1997) (TV) .... Tiresias
"Wyrd Sisters" (1997) TV mini-series .... Death (unknown episodes)
"Soul Music" (1997) TV series (voice) .... Death
"Ivanhoe" (1997) TV mini-series .... Lucas de Beaumanoir
The Stupids (1996) .... Evil Sender
Sorellina e il principe del sogno (1996) (TV) .... Azaret
Welcome to the Discworld (1996) .... Death
Moses (1995) (TV) .... Ramses
A Feast at Midnight (1995) .... V. E. Longfellow, aka Raptor
"The Tomorrow People" .... Rameses (5 episodes, 1995)
- The Rameses Connection: Part 5 (1995) TV episode .... Rameses
- The Rameses Connection: Part 4 (1995) TV episode .... Rameses
- The Rameses Connection: Part 3 (1995) TV episode .... Rameses
- The Rameses Connection: Part 2 (1995) TV episode .... Rameses
- The Rameses Connection: Part 1 (1995) TV episode .... Rameses
"Tales of Mystery and Imagination" .... The Host (4 episodes)
... aka "Edgar Allan Poe's Tales of Mystery and Imagination" - USA (complete title)
- Berenice (????) TV episode .... The Host
- The Black Cat (????) TV episode .... The Host
- The Fall of the House of Usher (????) TV episode .... The Host
- The Oval Portrait (????) TV episode .... The Host
Police Academy: Mission to Moscow (1994) .... Cmndt. Alexandrei Nikolaivich Rakov
... aka "Police Academy 7: Mission to Moscow" - USA (alternative title)
Funny Man (1994) .... Callum Chance
Ghosts (1994) (VG) .... Dr. Marcus Grimalkin/Himself
Death Train (1993) (TV) .... General Konstantin Benin
... aka "Alistair MacLean's Death Train" - USA (complete title)
Jackpot (1992) .... Cedric
... aka "Cyber Eden" - USA
Double Vision (1992) (TV) .... Mr. Bernard
"The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles" .... Count Ottokar Graf Czerin (1 episode, 1992)
- Austria, March 1917 (1992) TV episode .... Count Ottokar Graf Czerin
Incident at Victoria Falls (1992) (TV) .... Sherlock Holmes
Sherlock Holmes and the Leading Lady (1991) (TV) .... Sherlock Holmes
Curse III: Blood Sacrifice (1991) .... Doctor Pearson

Kabuto (1991) .... King Philip
... aka "Shogun Warrior" - Japan (English title), UK
... aka "Journey of Honor" - USA
The Rainbow Thief (1990) .... Uncle Rudolf
The Care of Time (1990) (TV) .... Karlis Zander
Gremlins 2: The New Batch (1990) .... Doctor Catheter
L'avaro (1990) .... Cardinale Spinosi
Honeymoon Academy (1990) .... Lazos
Treasure Island (1990) (TV) .... Blind Pew

Murder Story (1989) .... Willard Hope
La révolution française (1989) .... Sanson (segment "Années Terribles, Les")
The Return of the Musketeers (1989) .... Rochefort "Around the World in 80 Days" (1989/I) TV mini-series .... Stuart La chute des aigles (1989) .... Walter Strauss
... aka "Fall of the Eagles" - International (English title)
Dark Mission (Operación cocaína) (1988) .... Luis Morel
... aka "Columbian Connection" - International (English title)
... aka "Dark Mission: Evil Flowers" - USA
... aka "Flowers of Evil" - USA (video title)
Mio min Mio (1987) .... Kato
Shaka Zulu (1987) .... Lord Bathurst
Un métier du seigneur (1986) (TV) .... Fog
"Shaka Zulu" (1986) TV mini-series .... Lord Bathurst
Jocks (1986) .... President White
... aka "Physical Lesson" - Philippines (English title)
... aka "Road Trip" - USA (alternative title)
The Disputation (1986) (TV) .... King James of Aragon
The Girl (1986) .... Peter Storm
Howling II: Stirba - Werewolf Bitch (1985) .... Stefan Crosscoe
... aka "Howling II" - Philippines (English title)
... aka "Howling II: ... Your Sister Is a Werewolf" - USA
... aka "Howling II: It's Not Over Yet" - USA (poster title)
Mask of Murder (1985) .... Chief Supt. Jonathan Rich
The Rosebud Beach Hotel (1984) .... Mr. Clifford King
"Faerie Tale Theatre" .... King Vladimir V (1 episode, 1984)
... aka "Shelley Duvall's Faerie Tale Theatre" - USA (alternative title)
- The Boy Who Left Home to Find Out About the Shivers (1984) TV episode .... King Vladimir V
"The Far Pavilions" .... Kaka-ji Rao (3 episodes, 1984)
- Part One: Return to India (1984) TV episode .... Kaka-ji Rao
- Part Three: 'Wally and Anjuli' (1984) TV episode .... Kaka-ji Rao
- Part Two: The Journey to Bhithor (1984) TV episode .... Kaka-ji Rao
House of the Long Shadows (1983) .... Corrigan

The Return of Captain Invincible (1983) .... Mr. Midnight
New Magic (1983) .... Mr. Kellar
The Last Unicorn (1982) (voice) .... King Haggard (also in german language version)
Charles & Diana: A Royal Love Story (1982) (TV) .... Prince Philip Massarati and the Brain (1982) (TV) .... Victor Leopold
Safari 3000 (1982) .... Count Borgia
Goliath Awaits (1981) (TV) .... John McKenzie
An Eye for an Eye (1981) .... Morgan Canfield
Desperate Moves (1981) .... Dr. Carl Boxer
... aka "Steigler and Steigler" - USA
Evil Stalks This House (1981) (TV) .... Host
... aka "Tales of the Haunted" - USA
The Salamander (1981) .... Prince Baldasar, the Director of Counterintelligence
"Charlie's Angels" .... Dale Woodman (1 episode, 1980)
- Angel in Hiding (1980) TV episode .... Dale Woodman
Once Upon a Spy (1980) (TV) .... Marcus Valorium
Serial (1980) .... Luckman Skull

1941 (1979) .... Capt. Wolfgang von Kleinschmidt
Bear Island (1979) .... Lechinski
Captain America II: Death Too Soon (1979) (TV) .... Miguel
Jaguar Lives! (1979) .... Adam Caine
Nutcracker Fantasy (1979) (voice) .... Uncle Drosselmeyer / Street Singer / Watchmaker
Arabian Adventure (1979) .... Alquazar
The Passage (1979) .... Gypsy
The Pirate (1978) (TV) .... Samir Al Fay
... aka "Harold Robbins' The Pirate" - USA (complete title)
Caravans (1978) .... Sardar Khan
Circle of Iron (1978) .... Zetan
Return from Witch Mountain (1978) .... Victor
"How the West Was Won" (1978) TV mini-series .... The Grand Duke (unknown episodes)
Starship Invasions (1977) .... Captain Rameses
End of the World (1977) .... Father Pergado/Zindar
Meatcleaver Massacre (1977) .... On-screen narrator Airport '77 (1977) .... Martin Wallace
... aka "Airport 1977" - International (English title) (informal title)
Dracula père et fils (1976) .... Dracula père / Le prince des Ténèbres / Prince of Darkness
... aka "Dracula and Son" - USA
Albino (1976) .... Bill
... aka "Night of the Askari" - USA (promotional title)
... aka "The Night of the Askari" - USA
To the Devil a Daughter (1976) .... Father Michael Rayner
... aka "Child of Satan" - USA (video title)

... aka "To the Devil... a Daughter" - USA (poster title)
"Space: 1999" .... Captain Zandor (1 episode, 1976)
- Earthbound (1976) TV episode .... Captain Zandor
Killer Force (1976) .... Major Chilton
The Keeper (1976) .... The Keeper
Le boucher, la star et l'orpheline (1975) .... Satanus/Van Krig
... aka "The Butcher, the Star and the Orphan" - International (English title)
... aka "The Star, the Orphan, and the Butcher" - International (English title)
Diagnosis: Murder (1975) .... Dr. Stephen Hayward
The Man with the Golden Gun (1974) .... Francisco Scaramanga
... aka "Ian Fleming's The Man with the Golden Gun" - UK (complete title), USA (complete title)
... aka "The Golden Gun" - International (English title) (informal short title)
The Four Musketeers (1974) .... Rochefort
... aka "The Four Musketeers: Milady's Revenge" - USA
The Wicker Man (1973) .... Lord Summerisle
The Three Musketeers (1973) .... Rochefort
... aka "The Three Musketeers: The Queen's Diamonds" - UK (complete title), USA
The Satanic Rites of Dracula (1973) .... Count Dracula
... aka "Count Dracula and His Vampire Bride" - USA
"Great Mysteries" .... Arnaud (1 episode, 1973)
- The Leather Funnel (1973) TV episode .... Arnaud
Poor Devil (1973) (TV) .... Lucifer
The Creeping Flesh (1973) .... James Hildern
Nothing But the Night (1973) .... Col. Charles Bingham
... aka "The Resurrection Syndicate" - USA (reissue title)
Dark Places (1973) .... Dr. Mandeville
Horror Express (1972) (as Cristopher Lee) .... Prof. Sir Alexander Saxton
... aka "Panic in the Trans-Siberian Train" - International (English title)
Dracula A.D. 1972 (1972) .... Count Dracula
... aka "Dracula 1972" - International (English title) (informal title)
... aka "Dracula 1972 D.C." - International (English title) (poster title)
Death Line (1972) .... Stratton-Villiers, MI5
... aka "Raw Meat" - USA
Hannie Caulder (1971) .... Bailey
I, Monster (1971) .... Dr. Charles Marlowe / Edward Blake
The House That Dripped Blood (1971) .... John Reid (segment "Sweets to the Sweet") Scars of Dracula (1970) .... Dracula
The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes (1970) .... Mycroft Holmes
Julius Caesar (1970) .... Artemidorus
One More Time (1970/I) (uncredited) .... Dracula
Taste the Blood of Dracula (1970) .... Dracula
Nachts, wenn Dracula erwacht (1970) .... Count Dracula

... aka "Count Dracula" - UK, USA
Eugenie (1970) .... Dolmance
... aka "Eugenie... the Story of Her Journey Into Perversion" - International (English title), USA
... aka "The Story of Her Journey Into Perversion" - International (English title)
Il trono di fuoco (1970) .... Lord George Jeffreys
... aka "Night of the Blood Monster" - USA
... aka "Throne of the Blood Monster" - USA
... aka "Trial of the Witches" - USA
... aka "Witch Killer of Broadmoor" - USA
... aka "Witches' Trial" - USA
Umbracle (1970) .... The Man
Scream and Scream Again (1970) .... Fremont

The Magic Christian (1969) .... Ship's vampire
The Oblong Box (1969) .... Dr. J. Neuhartt
The Castle of Fu Manchu (1969) .... Fu Manchu
... aka "Sax Rohmer's The Castle of Fu Manchu" - UK, USA
"The Avengers" .... Colonel Mannering / ... (2 episodes, 1967-1969)
- The Interrogators (1969) TV episode .... Colonel Mannering
- Never, Never Say Die (1967) TV episode .... Professor Frank N.Stone Curse of the Crimson Altar (1968) .... Morley
... aka "The Crimson Altar" - USA (poster title)
... aka "The Crimson Cult" - USA
Dracula Has Risen from the Grave (1968) .... Dracula
The Blood of Fu Manchu (1968) .... Fu Manchu
... aka "Against All Odds" - USA (video title)
... aka "Fu Manchu's Kiss of Death" - International (English title) (literal title)
... aka "Kiss and Kill" - USA
... aka "Kiss of Death" - USA (video title)
The Face of Eve (1968) .... Colonel Stuart
... aka "Eve" - Canada (English title), USA
The Devil Rides Out (1968) .... Duc de Richleau
... aka "The Devil's Bride" - USA
Die Schlangengrube und das Pendel (1967) .... Count Frederic Regula, Graf von Andomai
... aka "Blood of the Virgins" - USA (reissue title)
... aka "The Blood Demon" - USA
... aka "The Torture Chamber of Dr. Sadism" - USA (TV title)
... aka "Torture Chamber" - USA (DVD title)
Five Golden Dragons (1967) .... Dragon #4
Theatre of Death (1967) .... Philippe Darvas
... aka "Blood Fiend" - USA
Night of the Big Heat (1967) .... Godfrey Hanson
... aka "Island of the Burning Damned" - USA

... aka "Island of the Burning Doomed" - USA (TV title)
The Vengeance of Fu Manchu (1967) .... Dr. Fu Manchu
The Brides of Fu Manchu (1966) .... Fu Manchu
Circus of Fear (1966) .... Gregor
... aka "Psycho-Circus" - USA
Rasputin: The Mad Monk (1966) .... Grigori Rasputin
Dracula: Prince of Darkness (1966) .... Dracula
The Face of Fu Manchu (1965) .... Fu Manchu
Ten Little Indians (1965) (uncredited) .... Voice of 'Mr. Owen'
... aka "Agatha Christie's 'Ten Little Indians'" - UK (alternative title), USA
The Skull (1965) .... Sir Matthew Phillips
She (1965/I) .... Billali
Dr. Terror's House of Horrors (1965) .... Franklyn Marsh (segment "Disembodied Hand")
The Gorgon (1964) .... Prof. Karl Meister
Il castello dei morti vivi (1964) .... Count Drago
... aka "Castle of the Living Dead" - USA
The Devil-Ship Pirates (1964) .... Captain Robeles
La cripta e l'incubo (1964) .... Count Ludwig Karnstein
... aka "Crypt of the Vampire" - USA
"The Alfred Hitchcock Hour" .... Karl Jorla (1 episode, 1964)
... aka "Hitchcock Hour" - Japan (English title)
- The Sign of Satan (1964) TV episode .... Karl Jorla
La frusta e il corpo (1963) .... Kurt Menliff
... aka "The Whip and the Flesh" - International (English title)
... aka "What" - USA
La vergine di Norimberga (1963) (as Cristopher Lee) .... Erich
... aka "Horror Castle" - USA
... aka "The Virgin of Nuremberg" - International (English title) (literal title)
Katarsis (1963) .... Mephistoles
Sherlock Holmes und das Halsband des Todes (1962) .... Sherlock Holmes
... aka "Sherlock Holmes and the Deadly Necklace" - USA
The Devil's Agent (1962) .... Baron von Staub
The Pirates of Blood River (1962) .... Captain LaRoche
Das Rätsel der roten Orchidee (1962) .... Captain Allerman
... aka "The Puzzle of the Red Orchid" - USA
Stranglehold (1962)
Ercole al centro della terra (1961) .... King Lico (Licos)
... aka "Hercules at the Center of the Earth" - International (English title) (literal title)
... aka "Hercules in the Center of the Earth" - International (English title)
... aka "Hercules in the Haunted World" - USA
Das Geheimnis der gelben Narzissen (1961) .... Ling Chu
... aka "The Devil's Daffodil" - UK, USA

... aka "Daffodil Killer" - USA (reissue title)
"Alcoa Presents: One Step Beyond" .... Wilhelm Reitlinger (1 episode, 1961)
... aka "Alcoa Presents" - USA (alternative title)
... aka "One Step Beyond" - USA (syndication title)
- The Sorcerer (1961) TV episode .... Wilhelm Reitlinger
Taste of Fear (1961) .... Doctor Pierre Gerrard
... aka "Scream of Fear" - USA
The Terror of the Tongs (1961) .... Chung King
... aka "Terror of the Hatchet Men" - USA
The Hands of Orlac (1960) .... Nero the magician
The Two Faces of Dr. Jekyll (1960) .... Paul Allen
... aka "House of Fright" - USA
The City of the Dead (1960) .... Prof. Alan Driscoll
... aka "Horror Hotel" - USA
Too Hot to Handle (1960) .... Novak
... aka "Playgirl After Dark" - USA
"Tales of the Vikings" .... Norman Knight (1 episode, 1960)
- The Bull (1960) TV episode .... Norman Knight

Beat Girl (1959) .... Kenny King
... aka "Wild for Kicks" - USA
Tempi duri per i vampiri (1959) .... Baron Roderico da Frankurten
The Mummy (1959) .... Kharis, the Mummy
The Treasure of San Teresa (1959) .... Jaeger
... aka "Hot Money Girl" - UK, USA
... aka "Long Distance" - USA
The Man Who Could Cheat Death (1959) .... Dr. Pierre Gerard
The Hound of the Baskervilles (1959) .... Sir Henry
"William Tell" .... Prince Erik (1 episode, 1959)
- Manhunt (1959) TV episode .... Prince Erik Corridors of Blood (1958) .... Resurrection Joe Battle of the V-1 (1958) .... Brunner - Labor Camp Captain
... aka "Missiles from Hell" - USA
... aka "Missiles from Hell: The Story of the V-1" - USA
Dracula (1958) .... Count Dracula
... aka "Dracula 1958" - USA
... aka "Horror of Dracula" - USA
"White Hunter" .... Mark Caldwell (1 episode, 1958)
- This Hungry Hell (1958) TV episode .... Mark Caldwell
A Tale of Two Cities (1958) .... Marquis St. Evremonde
"Ivanhoe" .... Sir Otto from the Rhine (1 episode, 1958)
- The German Knight (1958) TV episode .... Sir Otto from the Rhine
"O.S.S." .... Dessinger (1 episode, 1958)

- Operation Firefly (1958) TV episode .... Dessinger
The Truth About Women (1957) .... François
Bitter Victory (1957) .... Sgt. Barney
"The Gay Cavalier" .... Colonel Jeffries (1 episode, 1957)
- The Lady's Dilemma (1957) TV episode .... Colonel Jeffries
Manuela (1957) (uncredited) .... Voice
... aka "Stowaway Girl" - USA
The Curse of Frankenstein (1957) .... Creature
The Traitor (1957) .... Dr. Neumann
... aka "The Accursed" - USA
Fortune Is a Woman (1957) .... Charles Highbury
... aka "She Played with Fire" - USA
Ill Met by Moonlight (1957) .... German officer at dentists
... aka "Night Ambush" - USA
"Assignment Foreign Legion" .... El Abba / ... (2 episodes, 1956-1957)
- As We Forgive (1957) TV episode .... Rodin the Gardener
- The Anaya (1956) TV episode .... El Abba
"The Errol Flynn Theatre" .... Compte de Merret / ... (4 episodes, 1956-1957)
... aka "Mystery Adventure: The Errol Flynn Theatre" - USA (syndication title)
- Evil Thoughts (1957) TV episode .... The Visitant
- Love Token (1957) TV episode .... Compte de Merret
- The Model (1957) TV episode .... Maurice Gabet
- Fortunes of War (1956) TV episode .... Count Henri de Dairval
"Sailor of Fortune" .... Carnot / ... (2 episodes, 1956)
- The Desert Hostages (1956) TV episode .... Yusif
- Stranger in Danger (1956) TV episode .... Carnot
"The Adventures of Aggie" .... Inspector John Hollis (1 episode, 1956)
- Cut Glass (1956) TV episode .... Inspector John Hollis
The Battle of the River Plate (1956) .... Manolo
... aka "Pursuit of the Graf Spee" - USA
"Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Presents" .... Antonio / ... (15 episodes, 1953-1956)
... aka "Rheingold Theatre" - USA
- Crown of the Andes (1956) TV episode .... Felipe Nagy
- The Man Who Wouldn't Escape (1956) TV episode .... Luis
- The Immigrant (1955) TV episode .... Marenko
- Border Incident (1955) TV episode .... Official
- The Last Knife (1954) TV episode .... Tolsen
(10 more)
Beyond Mombasa (1956) .... Gil Rossi
Port Afrique (1956) .... Franz Vermes
"Colonel March of Scotland Yard" .... Jean-Pierre (1 episode, 1956)
- At Night All Cats Are Grey (1956) TV episode .... Jean-Pierre

"The Scarlet Pimpernel" .... Louis (1 episode, 1956)
- The Elusive Chauvelin (1956) TV episode (uncredited) .... Louis Private's Progress (1956) (uncredited) .... Major Schultz
"Chevron Hall of Stars" .... Governor (1 episode, 1956)
- Captain Kidd (1956) TV episode .... Governor
Storm Over the Nile (1955) .... Karaga Pasha
Alias John Preston (1955) .... John Preston
The Cockleshell Heroes (1955) .... Submarine Commander Grieves
... aka "Cockle Shell Heroes" - Australia (video box title), International (English title) (alternative spelling)
"Tales of Hans Anderson" .... Olle (2 episodes, 1955)
- The Cripple Boy (1955) TV episode .... Olle
- Wee Willie Winkie (1955) TV episode
"The Vise" .... Edgar Brookes / ... (3 episodes, 1955)
... aka "Detective's Diary" - USA (rerun title)
... aka "The Vise: Mark Saber" - USA (third and fourth season title)
- Stranglehold (1955) TV episode .... Edgar Brookes
- Price of Vanity (1955) TV episode .... Martell
- The Final Column (1955) TV episode .... Larry Spence
Police Dog (1955) .... Johnny, a constable
The Dark Avenger (1955) (uncredited) .... French Patrol Captain at Tavern
... aka "The Warriors" - USA (alternative title)
That Lady (1955) .... Captain
Moby Dick Rehearsed (1955) (TV) .... A Stage Manager / Flask
Crossroads (1955) .... The Ghost
Destination Milan (1954) .... Svenson
Innocents in Paris (1953) (uncredited) .... Lieutenant Whitlock
Les vacances de Monsieur Hulot (1953) (voice: English version) (uncredited) .... Voices
... aka "Mr. Hulot's Holiday" - USA
Moulin Rouge (1952) (uncredited) .... Georges Seurat
Babes in Bagdad (1952) .... Slave dealer
Paul Temple Returns (1952) .... Sir Felix Raybourne
... aka "Bombay Waterfront" - USA
Top Secret (1952) (uncredited) .... Russian Agent
... aka "Mr. Potts Goes to Moscow" - USA
The Crimson Pirate (1952) .... Joseph (attache)
Valley of Eagles (1951) .... Det. Holt
... aka "Valley of the Eagles" - USA
Captain Horatio Hornblower R.N. (1951) .... Spanish captain
... aka "Captain Horatio Hornblower" - USA (alternative title)
Prelude to Fame (1950) .... Newsman
They Were Not Divided (1950) .... Chris Lewis

Trottie True (1949) .... Hon. Bongo Icklesham

... aka "The Gay Lady" - USA
Scott of the Antarctic (1948) .... Bernard Day
Saraband for Dead Lovers (1948) (uncredited) .... Bit part
... aka "Saraband" - USA
My Brother's Keeper (1948) (scenes deleted) .... Second Constable
Penny and the Pownall Case (1948) .... Jonathan Blair
A Song for Tomorrow (1948) .... Auguste
Hamlet (1948) (uncredited) .... Spear carrier
One Night with You (1948) .... Pirelli's Assistant Corridor of Mirrors (1948) .... Charles

craig-oxley - May 8, 2010 05:07 PM (GMT)

How can anyone forget that Christopher Lee was in Star Wars the biggest Knights Templar occult movie of all time. I always thought Lee was some kind of blue blood of sorts. Personally I much preferred Peter Cushing.

soulinspiration - May 8, 2010 05:19 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (Eboard10 @ May 8 2010, 03:04 PM)

Regarding Fleming, from the same article:

QUOTE

As for the family ties with Ian Fleming, they weren't exactly cousins. After his parents' divorce, his mother, the Contessa, married a banker, Harcourt Rose, whose sister was Fleming's mother. He and Fleming became friends. "I used to play golf with him, and I remember him asking me on the links if I wanted to play Dr No, which was about to go into production. But by the time he got round to mentioning it to [Bond producers] Cubby Broccoli and Harry Saltzman, they'd cast another actor."

The good, the bad and the Christopher Lee

Christopher Lee revealing his dark side

...

"... There is a dark side in all of us. And for us 'bad' people the bad side dominates. I think there is a great sadness in villains, and I have tried to out that across. We cannot stop ourselves doing what we are doing."

Thanks for the correction on Fleming & Lee's connection. That should teach me for skim reading...

Interesting use of "us" that Lee uses when referring to people who he describes as "malevolent", "bad" & "wicked".

Staggering number of films that he's been in even for a man that was born in 1922.

LurkingDawn - May 8, 2010 05:50 PM (GMT)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Christopher_Lee#Personal_life

Count Dracula , Count Dooku,.... yup he's noble.

> QUOTE
>
> The Carandinis, Lee's maternal ancestors, were given the right to bear the coat of arms of the Holy Roman Empire by the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa. Cinemareview cites: "Cardinal Consalvi was Papal Secretary of State at the time of Napoleon and is buried at the Pantheon in Rome next to the painter Raphael. His painting, by Lawrence, hangs in Windsor Castle".[18][31]
>
> Through the Carandinis, Lee claims to be a descendant of Charlemagne.[32]
>
> Lee is a step-cousin of Ian Fleming, author of the James Bond spy novels. He has been married to the Danish model Birgit "Gitte" Kroencke Lee since 1961. They have a daughter named Christina Erika Carandini Lee (b. 23 November 1963).[31] He is also the uncle of the British actress Harriet Walter.[18]
>
> Lee has a longstanding personal interest in the occult, maintaining a library of over 12,000 books which is largely devoted to the topic. This is discussed in his autobiography, Tall, Dark and Gruesome.
>
> Lee is a supporter of the British Conservative Party.[33]
>
> At his peak height of 6' 5" (1.96 m), he and Vince Vaughn share the record as the all time tallest leading actor. In 1999, Lee confirmed he has lost an inch in height and is now 6' 4" (1.93 m)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Christopher_Lee#Honours

> QUOTE
>
> In 2001, Lee was appointed Commander of the Order of the British Empire (CBE) by Queen Elizabeth II[26] and was knighted in the Queen's Birthday Honours in 2009.[27][28][29] Lee was named 2005's 'most marketable star in the world' in a USA Today newspaper poll, after three of the films he appeared in grossed US$640 million.[30]

The dark wizard Sauroman, who battles with Gandalf the white wizard of light...

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Castel_Gandolfo

Castel Gandolfo is the summer home of the pope, and a Jesuit astronomical observatory... Gandalf the white wizard is the Pope. Aragorn is the messiah (The return of the king) and the eye of the dark lord Sauron....well you guess.

map - May 8, 2010 06:11 PM (GMT)

> QUOTE (craig-oxley @ May 8 2010, 05:07 PM)
>
> How can anyone forget that Christopher Lee was in Star Wars the biggest Knights Templar occult movie of all time. I always thought Lee was some kind of blue blood of sorts. Personally I much preferred Peter Cushing.

you have the top knights templar film with "the force" of star wars and then you have the top witch film by golden dawn tolkin being the lord of the rings.

LurkingDawn - May 8, 2010 06:27 PM (GMT)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Nicol%C3%B2_Carandini

user posted image

QUOTE

Count Nicolò Carandini (December 6, 1896, Como - March 18, 1972) was the first Italian ambassador to Britain after World War II. His political career started in the 1920s when he got involved in the Italian democratic veterans movement, but he retired from political life after the rise of the fascist regime. In 1926 he married Elena Albertini, daughter of Luigi Albertini, who in 1925 had been removed by the fascists from his position as Director of the newspaper Corriere della Sera. Carandini then became chief administrator of the Torre in Pietra estate near Rome, transforming it into a modern agricultural enterprise. During the years of fascism he came into closer contact with democratic opposition groups around liberal philosopher Benedetto Croce and developed ideas of a modern reformatory liberalism, based on the principle of social justice.

QUOTE

From 1948 to 1968 he served as president of the airline Alitalia. He was also a leading member of the Movimento Federalista Europeo, founded in 1943 on the base of the 1942 Ventotene Manifesto by Altiero Spinelli and Ernesto Rossi.

Born in Como (Lombardy), Carandini was second cousin once removed of the British actor Christopher Lee. One of his sons is the renowned Roman archaeologist Andrea Carandini. One of his grandsons is the neuroscientist Matteo Carandini.

The Carandini family was given the right to bear the coat of arms of the Holy Roman Empire by the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa. The title of Conte (Count) was obtained by a Carandini following the Battle of Lepanto (1571).

LurkingDawn - May 9, 2010 03:59 AM (GMT)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Ercole_Consalvi

QUOTE

Ercole Consalvi (June 8, 1757 – January 24, 1824) was a cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church.
[edit] Biography

He was born in Rome, and died there also. His mother was Claudia Carandini, a noblewoman. He was educated at the seminary founded in Frascati by Henry Benedict, Cardinal Duke of York, "Cardinal York", the Stuart pretender to the throne of Great Britain. He became a favorite of the Cardinal's and was helped by him to obtain high office in the Roman Curia while still a young man.

After the Revolutionary French invaded Italy in 1798, Consalvi was jailed, but he later escaped and joined Pope Pius VII in exile. An able diplomat, he was nominated secretary of the conclave that met in Venice to elect Pope Pius VII, the successor of Pius VI.

QUOTE

The new pope named him Cardinal Secretary of State, and in this capacity he negotiated the Concordat of 1801 with Napoleon, which reaffirmed the Roman Catholic Church as the established church of France and restored some of its civil status. He also reformed the administration of Rome and to some extent modernized the city.

After the fall of Napoleon, he represented the Pope at the Congress of Vienna and was able to convince the victorious powers to restore the Papal States almost entirely (although the Papacy had been forced to accept the French annexation of Avignon). For the remainder of the pontificate of Pius VII, Consalvi was the virtual ruler of Rome, and his government was characterized by good sense, moderation and concern for the poor. He concluded another Concordat with France in 1817 and retired when Pius died in 1823. Yet he still headed the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith at the time of his death the following year, 1824. Although a consummate diplomat and man of the world, Consalvi was both honest and pious and has been called "one of the purest glories of the Church of Rome" (Schaeffer).

http://www.newadvent.org/cathen/04262a.htm

QUOTE

Family

His ancestors belonged to the noble family of the Brunacci in Pisa, one of whom settled in the town of Toscanella in the Papal States about the middle of the seventeenth century. The grandfather of the cardinal, Gregorio Brunacci, inherited from Ercole Consalvi of Rome a large fortune on condition of taking the name and arms of the Consalvi family. In this way Gregorio Brunacci became Marchese Gregorio Consalvi, with residence in Rome.

QUOTE

Retirement and death (1823-1824)

The career of Consalvi came to an end with the death of Pius VII (20 August, 1823). After his retirement his thoughts were devoted to the erection of a monument at St. Peter's in honour of his former master; only a few months afterwards he was carried himself to his tomb in San Lorenzo, while his heart was taken to the Pantheon. Appropriate monuments were erected to his memory in both places.

LurkingDawn - May 9, 2010 04:25 AM (GMT)

soulinspiration - May 18, 2010 12:23 AM (GMT)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/RAF_Intellige...AF_Intelligence

QUOTE

Notable former members of RAF Intelligence

Pam Ayres, poet
Michael Bentine, comedian and actor
...
Christopher Lee, actor

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Great Video on the Papal Bloodlines

Title: Great Video on the Papal Bloodlines

AntiSionist - December 22, 2009 12:09 AM (GMT)

Puppet Masters - The Papal bloodlines / The Jesuit Order / Vatican & Rome

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HIWL9P3VytM

This video is really just a ramble, in the hope that the viewers will look into the information presented here.

I'm a little frustrated with the outcome of this video. Initially the background to this video was supposed to be of the sky in time-lapse and filtered red to give the video a more professional appearance.
But every time I tried to render the video like that my software wouldnt allow it. So, I eventually just gave up trying and accepted the video as you now see it.
So, I apologise for the way this video looks.
-- -

"Why would the Jesuits use their implacable enemy, the Jews, to further their designs for world dominion? The Jesuits never do anything out in the open where they can be exposed. If they are recognized as the culprits, they will be blamed and suffer the consequences, but if they can use someone else as the cause of the worlds problems, especially an enemy they can destroy in the process, then they have simultaneously accomplished two of their objectives. The Jewish people are the perfect scapegoat. Since the Rothschilds are Jesuit agents operating under a Jewish cover, using them [i. e., the Rothschilds] in forming the Illuminati back in 1776 effectively throws the onus of this conspiracy on the Jews. The Rothschilds are certainly not the only Jesuit agents that operate under a Jewish front."

- The following sources [Ed. Note: Bill Hughes lists a number of books in later paragraphs] indicate that [Jesuit] Adam Weishaupt and the Rothschilds were the brains and the wealth behind the French Revolution.

~ Bill Hughes (From his book The Enemy Unmasked)
- - - - - - -

http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...dex.php?act=idx

http://www.spirituallysmart.com/

http://www.vaticanassassins.org/

http://www.arcticbeacon.com/greg/

Please research these families:

-The Farnese family
-The Aldobrandini family
-The Orsini family
-The Breakspear family
-The Medici family
-The Borgia family

Chris Whites YouTube channel = http://www.youtube.com/user/Knowwheretorun1984

Extra Tags = news Iran nwo russia georgia fema camps coffins illuminati david icke alex jones Athletics Communications Language Humanities Health Engineering Economics Computer Science Media Maths Visual Arts Medicine Physical Social Election november who will win selected elected president presidency obama news latest mccain mcain george bush china georgia russia russian pakistan india conflict iran nuclear alex jones david icke A one world government rfid technology implant chips for the whole entire global population people alex jones david icke news vid video clips book radio show syndicated talk show host infowars info wars talk speech great amazing brilliant chat 911 9-11 9/11 september the 11th 2001 terrorist terrorism attacks bin laden al Qaeda osama bin laden usama tim osman cia asset george bush george w w. bush adolf Hitler same shit different asshole resistag event attack history repeats when nufffrespect thealexjoneschannel givemenolies earthslasthope earthlasthope youtube you tube mass censorship clones reptilian reptilians proof evidence facts coincidences staged terror attack event the vaticans heaven hell Christianity religion jews jewish rothschilds run the world the planet amero euro north American union world global governance government one world government lies lie liar liars the Rockefellers david Rockefeller global warming hoax scam bullshit bull shit economy climatologist climatologists environmentalists structural engineers scholar scholars architects architect building builder bombs planted inside implanted truth truther loose change final cut zeitgeist zeitgeist addendum peter Joseph venus project annunkai sumer Sumerians sumeria Egypt alien aliens ufo footage police state brutality liberty aaron russo freedom to fascism facism movie documentary income tax no law liberties rights removal removed taken away barak obama president elected selected rig rigged puppet white house Clinton hillary bill thieves liars shape shifters chemtrail chemtrails facts shapeshifting shapeshifters shape shifting exposed now new world order skull and bones skull & bones boheamian grove Jesuit kgb mocking bird mockingbird war wars world war III WWIII city

craig-oxley - December 22, 2009 11:52 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]<object width="560" height="340"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/HIWL9P3VytM&hl=en_GB&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/HIWL9P3VytM&hl=en_GB&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="560" height="340"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

GMNL - December 25, 2009 01:31 PM (GMT)

That's a pretty damn good video! B)

Mark - May 7, 2010 10:12 AM (GMT)

Can someone repost this video or make it available for download?

kalongi - May 7, 2010 10:33 AM (GMT)

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=78l98tq59fQ

[dohtml]<object width="640" height="385"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/78l98tq59fQ&hl=pt_BR&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/78l98tq59fQ&hl=pt_BR&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="640" height="385"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: ULTRA POWERFUL BREAKSPEAR FAMILY

Title: ULTRA POWERFUL BREAKSPEAR FAMILY
Description: [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]

craig-oxley - December 27, 2008 04:48 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

THE BREAKSPEAR FAMILY

By CRAIG OXLEY

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

So folks why haven't you heard of this family? Maybe someone wants to keep it quiet for some reason? But you know of Rothschild's right? Why is this exactly? Take a look at this powerful Luciferian family. Whats their connection to the Jesuits? Do the math! I don't remember bloodline crazy intelligensia, David Icke speaking about them do you? This folks is the Breakspear family.

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]

[dohtml] [/dohtml]HOWS ABOUT

POPE HADRIAN IV

(NICHOLAS BREAKSPEAR)

NICHOLAS BREAKSPEAR
Catholic School

http://www.nicholasbreakspearschool.co.uk/default.jsp

QUOTE

Pope Adrian IV

http://www.newadvent.org/cathen/01156c.htm

Born 1100 (?); died 1 September, 1159. Very little is known about the birthplace, parentage, or boyhood of Adrian. Yet, as is usual in such cases, very various, and sometimes very circumstantial, accounts have reached us about him.

Our only reliable information we owe to two writers, Cardinal Boso and John of Salisbury. The former wrote a life of Adrian, which is included in the collection of Nicolas Roselli, made Cardinal of Aragon in 1356 during the pontificate of Innocent VI. Boso's life, published by Muratori (SS. Rer. Ital. III, I 441-446) and reprinted in Migne (P.L., CLXXXVIII, 135-160), also edited by Watterich (Vitae Pontificum II, 323- 374), and now to be read in Duchesne's edition of the Liber Pontificalis (II, 388-397; cf. proleg XXXVII-XLV), states that Boso, the author of it; was created cardinal-deacon of the title of Sts. Cosmas and Damian, was chamberlain to Adrian and in constant and familiar attendance upon him from the commencement of his apostolate. [Ciacconius says that Boso was the nephew of Adrian, but Watterich observes (op. cit. prolegomena) that he finds no proof of this.]

Boso tells us that Adrian was born in England in or near the burg of St. Albans, and that he left his country and his relations in his boyhood to complete his studies, and went to Arles in France. During the vacation he visited the monastery of Sts. Rufus near Avignon, where he took the vows and habit of an Austin canon. After some time he was elected abbot and, going to Rome on important business connected with the monastery, was retained there by Pope Eugenius III, and made a cardinal and Bishop of Albano (1146). Matthew Paris agrees in some measure with this, for he tells us that on Adrian's applying to the abbot of St. Alban's to be received as a monk, the abbot, after examining him, found him deficient and said to him kindly: "Have patience, my son, and stay at school yet a while till you are better fitted for the position you desire." He states further that he was "a native of some hamlet under the abbey, perhaps Langley," and I may add that it is now tolerably certain that he was born at Abbot's Langley in Hertfordshire, about the year 1100; that his father was Robert Brekespear, a man of humble means, though of a decent stock; and that Adrian went abroad as a poor wandering scholar, like John of Salisbury and many others at that time. However, William of Newburgh, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, an Austin canon and a historian of high repute (1136-98?), gives a very different account, which he probably had from the neighbouring Cistercian houses of Rievaulx and Byland. "Eugenius III", he tells us, was succeeded by Nicolas, Bishop of Albano, who, changing his name with his fortune, called himself Adrian. Of this man it may be well to relate how he was raised as it were from the dust to sit in the midst of princes and to occupy the throne of apostolic glory. He was born in England, and his father was a clerk of slender means who, abandoning his youthful son, became a monk at St. Albans. As the boy grew up, seeing that through want he could not afford the time to go to school, he attended the monastery for a daily pittance. His father was ashamed of this, taunted him with bitter words for his idleness, and, highly indignant, drove him away disconsolate. The boy, left to himself, and compelled to do something by hard necessity, ingenuously ashamed either to dig or beg, crossed over to France.

He then states that after Adrian was elected Abbot of Sts. Rufus the canons repented of their choice and came to hate him, and appealed to the Pope on two occasions, bringing divers charges against him (II, vi). This narrative is not only contrary to Boso's but to what Adrian himself told John of Salisbury.

"The office of Pope, he assured me, was a thorny one, beset on all sides with sharp pricks. He wished indeed that he had never left England, his native land, or at least had lived his life quietly in the cloister of Sts. Rufus rather than have entered on such difficult paths, but he dared not refuse, since it was the Lord's bidding" (Polycraticus, Bk. IV, xxviii).

How could he have looked back with regret to quiet and happy days if he had encountered parental cruelty at St. Albans and monastic insubordination at Sts. Rufus?

In 1152 Adrian was sent on a delicate and important mission to Scandinavia, as papal legate, in which he acquitted himself to the satisfaction of everybody. He established an independent archiepiscopal see for Norway at Trondhjem, which he selected chiefly in honour of St. Olaf, whose relics reposed in its church. He reformed the abuses that had crept into the usages of the clergy, and even aided in bettering the civil institutions of the country. Snorro relates that no foreigner ever came to Norway who gained so much public honour and deference among the people as Nicholas Brekespear. He was prevented for the time from establishing an archiepiscopal see in Sweden by the rivalry between Sweden and Gothland, the one party claiming the honour for Upsala, the other for Skara. But he reformed abuses there also, and established the contribution known as Peter's pence.

On his return to Rome he was hailed as the Apostle of the North, and, the death of Anastasius IV occurring at that time (2 December, 1154), he was on the following day unanimously elected the successor of St. Peter; but the office was not a bed of roses. King William of Sicily was in open hostility, and the professed friendship of Frederick Barbarossa was even more dangerous. The barons in the Campagna fought with each other and with the Pope and, issuing from their castles, raided the country in every direction, and even robbed the pilgrims on their way to the tombs of the Apostles. The turbulent and fickle populace of Rome was in open revolt under the leadership of Arnold of Brescia. Cardinal Gerardus was mortally wounded in broad daylight, as he was walking along the Via Sacra.

Adrian, a determined man, at once laid the city under an interdict and retired to Viterbo. He forbade the observance of any sacred service until the Wednesday of Holy Week. "Then were the senators impelled by the voice of the clergy and laity alike to prostrate themselves before His Holiness." Submission was made, and the ban removed. The Pope returned to Rome, and Arnold escaped and was taken under the protection of some of the bandit barons of the northern Campagna. He was subsequently delivered up and executed. Meanwhile Barbarossa was advancing through Lombardy, and after receiving the Iron Crown at Pavia had approached the confines of the papal territory, intending to receive the imperial crown in Rome at the hands of the Pope.

After some negotiations a famous meeting took place at Sutri, about 30 miles north of Rome, on the 9th of June, 1155, between Frederick of Hohenstauffen, then the most powerful ruler in Europe, and the humble canon of Sts. Rufus, now the most powerful spiritual ruler in the world. As the Pope approached, the Emperor advanced to meet him, but did not hold the Pope's stirrup, which was part of the customary ceremony of homage. The Pope said nothing then, but dismounted, and the Emperor led him to a chair and kissed his slipper. Custom required that the Pope should then give the kiss of peace. He refused to do so, and told Frederick that until full homage had been paid he would withhold it. This implied that he would not crown him. Frederick had to submit, and on the 11th of June another meeting was arranged at Nepi, when Frederick advanced on foot and held the Pope's stirrup, and the incident was closed.

Frederick was afterwards duly crowned at St. Peter's, and took the solemn oaths prescribed by ancient custom. During the ceremonies a guard of imperial troops had been placed on or near the bridge of St. Angelo to protect that suburb, then known as the Leonine City. The bridge was stormed by the republican troops from the city proper, and a fierce battle ensued between the imperial army and the Romans. Fighting lasted through the hot summer's day and far on into the evening. Finally the Romans were routed. Over 200 fell as prisoners into Frederick's hands, including most of the leaders, and more than 1,000 were killed or drowned in the Tiber. The citizens, however, held the city and refused to give the Emperor provisions; the latter, now that he was crowned, made no serious effort either to help the Pope against the Normans or to reduce the city to subjection. Malaria appeared among his troops. "He was obliged to turn", says Gregorovius, in his in History of the City of Rome, "and, not without some painful self-reproach, to abandon the Pope to his fate." He took leave of him at Tivoli, and, marching north by way of Farfa, reduced to ashes on his route the ancient and celebrated city of Spoleto.

William I succeeded his father on the throne of Sicily in February, 1154. Adrian refused to recognize him as king, and addressed him merely as Dominus (Lord). Hostilities followed. The Sicilians laid siege to Beneventum without result, and afterwards ravaged the southern Campagna and retired. Adrian excommunicated William. After the departure of Frederick, Adrian collected his vassals and mercenaries and marched south to Beneventum, a papal possession, where he remained until June, 1156. It was during this time that John of Salisbury spent three months with him, and obtained from him the famous Donation of Ireland (see page 158). The fortune of war favoured William. He captured Brundusium, with an immense store of provisions and munitions of war, and five thousand pounds' weight of gold that the Greek Emperor, Manuel I, intended for his ally the Pope. He also took captive many wealthy Greeks, whom he sent to Palermo, some for ransom, but the greater number to be sold into slavery. This practically determined the issue of the war. Peace was made in June, 1153, and a treaty concluded. The Pope agreed to invest William with the crowns of Sicily and Apulia, the territories and states of Naples, Salerno, and Amalfi, the March of Ancona, and all the other cities which the King then possessed. William on his part took the feudal oath and became the liegeman of the Pope, and promised to pay a yearly tribute, and to defend the papal possessions (Watterich, op. cit., II, 352). After this, the Pope went to Viterbo, where he came to an agreement with the Romans, and in the beginning of 1157 returned to the City. The Emperor deeply resented the act of the Pope in investing William with territories which he claimed as part of his dominions, and for this and other causes a conflict broke out between them. (See ALEXANDER III, FREDERICK I, INVESTITURES.) Adrian died at Anagni, in open strife with the Emperor, and in league with the Lombards against him. Alexander III carried out the intentions of Adrian, and shortly afterwards excommunicated the Emperor.

The donation of Ireland
It was during the Pope's stay at Beneventum (1156), as we have stated, that John of Salisbury visited him. "I recollect", he writes, "a journey I once made into Apulia for the purpose of visiting his Holiness, Pope Adrian IV. I stayed with him at Beneventum for nearly three months" (Polycraticus, VI, 24; P.L. CXCIX, 623). In another work, the Metalogicus, this writer says:

At my solicitation [ad preces meas] he gave and granted Hibernia to Henry II, the illustrious King of England, to hold by hereditary right as his letter [which is extant] to this day testifies. For all islands of ancient right, according to the Donation of Constantine, are said to belong to the Roman Church, which he founded. He sent also by me a ring of gold, with the best of emeralds set therein, wherewith the investiture might be made for his governorship of Ireland, and that same ring was ordered to be and is still in the public treasury of the King.

It will be observed that he says, "at my solicitation", and not at the request of Henry, and that he went "for the purpose of visiting" (causâ visitandi), not on an official mission. The suggestion that because he was born in England Adrian made Ireland over to the Angevin monarch, who was no relation of his does not merit serious attention. The Metalogicus was written in the autumn of 1159 or early in 1160, and the passage quoted occurs in the last chapter (IV, xlii; P.L., vol. cit., col. 945). It is found in all manuscripts of the work, one of which was written possibly as early as 1175, and certainly before 1200. Nobody questions the truthfulness of John of Salisbury, and the only objection raised to the statement is that it may be an interpolation. If it is not an interpolation, it constitutes a complete proof of the Donation, the investiture by the ring being legally sufficient, and in fact the mode used in the case of the Isle of Man, as Boichorst points out. Adrian's Letter, however, creates a difficulty. His Bull, usually called Laudabiliter, does not purport to confer Hibernia "by hereditary right", but the letter referred to was not Laudabiliter, but a formal letter of investiture, such as was used in the case of Robert Guiscard in Italy, e.g. "I Gregory, Pope, invest you, Duke Robert, with the land of", etc. (Ego Gregorius Papa investio te, Roberte Dux, de terra, etc.; Mansi, Coll. Conc., XX, 313). The question of the genuineness of the passage in the Metalogicus, impugned by Cardinal Moran, W.B. Morris, and others, must be kept quite separate from the question of the genuineness of Laudabiliter, and it is mainly by mixing both together that the passage in the Metalogicus is assailed as a forgery. Boichorst (Mittheilungen des Instituts für österreichische Geschichtsforschung IV, supplementary vol., 1893, p. 101) regards the Donation as indisputable, while rejecting Laudabiliter as a forgery. Liebermann (Deutsche Zeitschrift für Geschichtswissenschaft 1892, I, 58) holds the same view. Thatcher, in Studies Concerning Adrian IV; I. The Offer of Ireland to Henry II, printed in the fourth volume of the Decennial Publications for the University of Chicago (Series I, Chicago, 1903), reproduces the arguments of Boichorst. Bishop Creighton held John of Salisbury to be unanswerable (Tarleton, p. 180). The overwhelming weight of authority is therefore in favour of the genuineness of the passage in Metalogicus. The Bull Laudabiliter stands on a different footing. Opinions have hitherto been sharply divided as to its genuineness, as will be seen by a reference to the end of this article; but these opinions have been formed without a knowledge of the text of the Laudabiliter in the Book of Leinster, except in the case of Boichorst, who refers to it casually in a note which has been recently published for the first time by the writer (New Ireland Review March, 1906; cf. his History of Ireland, xxvi, Dublin, 1906). To the text of the Bull are prefixed the following headings: "Ah! men of the faith of the world, how beautiful [so far Gaelic] when over the cold sea in ships Zephyrus wafts glad tidings" [Latin] a Bull granted to the King of the English on the collation, i.e. grant, of Hibernia, in which nothing is derogated from the rights of the Irish, as appears by the words of the text. This was almost certainly written, and probably by his old tutor Aedh McCrimthainn, during the lifetime of Diarmaid MacMurchada, who was banished in 1157, and died in 1171. The text of the Bull was therefore no medieval scholastic exercise. Assuming the statements in the Metalogicus to be correct, the texts relating to the Donation of Adrian may be conjecturally arranged as follows: (1) The Letter of Investiture referred to by John of Salisbury, 1156; (2) Laudabiliter, prepared probably in 1156, and issued in 1159(?); (3) A Confirmation of the Letter of Investiture by Alexander III in 1159 (?); (4) Three Letters of Alexander III, 20 September, 1172, in substance a confirmation of Laudabiliter. The Bull was not sent forward in 1156 because the offer of Adrian was not then acted on, though the investiture was accepted. Robert of Torrigny (d. 1186 or 1184) tells us that at a Council held at Winchester, 29 September, 1156, the question of subduing Ireland and giving it to William, Henry's brother, was considered; "but because it was not pleasing to the Empress, Henry's mother, the expedition was put off to another time" [intermissa est ad tempus illa expedite]. This clearly implies an acceptance of the investiture and supports the genuineness of the passage in the Metalogicus. Henry, then twenty-two, had his hands full of domestic troubles with the refractory barons in England, with the Welsh, and with the discordant elements in his French dominions, and could not undertake a great military operation like the invasion of Ireland. And not having done so in the lifetime of Adrian, he would certainly require a confirmation of the Donation by Alexander before leading an army into a territory the overlordship of which belonged to the latter. The Letter of Confirmation is found only in Giraldus Cambrensis, first in the De Expugnatione Hiberniae (II, v, in Rolls Series V, 31t5), and again in the De Instructione Principis (II, c. xix, in Rolls Series VIII, 197), where the text states that the genuineness of the confirmation was denied by some. This, however, may be a later interpolation, as some maintain. The three letters of 20 September, 1172, do not contain any direct confirmation of the Donation of Adrian. They are addressed to Henry II, the bishops, and the kings and chieftains of Ireland respectively. The letter addressed to Henry congratulates him on his success, and exhorts him to protect and extend the rights of the Church, and to offer the first fruits of his victory to God. A point is made that there is no grant of Ireland contained in the letter, nor any confirmation of a previous grant, but how could we expect a second confirmation if Adrian's grant had in fact been already confirmed according to the text in Giraldus? There is no question as to the genuineness of the three letters of the 20th of September. They are found in the Liber Scaccarii, and are printed in Migne (P.L. CC, col. 882).

The Donation of Adrian was subsequently recognized in many official writings, and the Pope for more than four centuries claimed the overlordship of Ireland In 1318 (1317?) Domhnall O'Neill and other kings and chieftains, and the whole laity of Ireland, forwarded to Pope John XXII a letter of appeal and protest. They state in the letter that Pope Adrian, induced by false representations, granted Ireland to Henry II, and enclose a copy of the Bull which the context shows was Laudabiliter. On 30 May, 1318, the Pope wrote from Avignon a letter of paternal advice to Edward II, urging him to redress the grievances of the Irish, and enclosed O'Neill's letters and "a copy of the grant which Pope Adrian is said to have made to Henry II." Edward II did not deny that he held under that grant. By an Act of the Irish Parliament (Parliament Roll, 7th Edward IV, Ann. 1467), after reciting that "as our Holy Father Adrian, Pope of Rome, was possessed of all sovereignty of Ireland in his demesne as of fee in the right of his Church of Rome, and with the intent that vice should be subdued had alienated the said land to the King of England . . . by which grant the said subjects of Ireland owe their allegiance to the King of England as their sovereign Lord", it was enacted "that all archbishops and bishops shall excommunicate all disobedient Irish subjects, and if they neglect to do so they shall forfeit £100." In 1555, by a consistorial decree followed by a Bull, Paul IV, on the humble supplication of Philip and Mary, erected into a kingdom the Island of Hibernia, of which, from the time that the kings of England obtained the dominion of it through the Apostolic See, they had merely called themselves Lords (Domini), without prejudice to the rights of the Roman Church and of any other person claiming to have right in it or to it. [Bull. Rom (ed. Turin.) VI, 489, 490.] In 1570 the Irish had offered or were about to offer the kingship of Ireland to Philip of Spain. The Archbishop of Cashel acted as their envoy. The project was communicated to the Pope through Cardinal Alciato, who wrote to the Archbishop of Cashel (9 June, 1570):

His Holiness was astonished that anything of the kind should be attempted without his authority since it was easy to remember that the kingdom of Ireland belonged to the dominion of the Church, was held as a fief under it, and could not therefore, unless by the Pope, be subjected to any new ruler. And the Pope, that the right of the Church may be preserved as it should be, says he will not give the letters you ask for the King of Spain. But if the King of Spain himself were to ask for the fief of that Kingdom in my opinion the Pope would not refuse. (Spicil. Ossor., ed. Card. Moran, I, 69).

In conclusion there is not in my judgment any controverted matter in history about which the evidence preponderates in favour of one view so decisively as about the Donation of Adrian.

Sources

The principal authorities for the life of Adrian are collected in WATTERICH S Vitae Pontificum Romanorum (saec. IX-XIII) adjectis suis cuique et annalibus et documentis gravioribus (Leipzig, 1862), II. He gives the Life of Adrian by BOSO, and extracts from the annals of WILLIAM OF NEWBURGH, WILLIAM OF TYRE, ROMUALD OF SALERNO, OTTO OF FREISING, RADEWIN, and GODFREY OF COLOGNE, as well as several letters (II, 323). There is also a valuable chapter (v) of Prolegomena (I, LXXI). TO Watterich may be added JOHN OF SALISBURY and GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS, already mentioned, RABY, Pope Adrian the Fourth, an Historical Sketch, 1849; ALFRED TARLETON, Nicholas Breakspear (Adrian IV), Englishman and Pope (London, 1906). As to the genuineness of Laudabiliter, the literature is very voluminous. The following names may be mentioned: against it, JOHN LYNCH, Cambrensis Eversus (1662), STEPHEN WHITE (d. before 1650), CARDINAL MORAN, DOM GASQUET, W.B. MORRIS, the writer in Analecta Juris Pontificii (1882), A. BELLESHEIM PFLUGK- HARTUNG, GINNELL, HERGENRÖTHER, DAMBERGER, SCHEFFER-BOICHORST, F. LIEBERMANN, and O. THATCHER; in favour of it: LINGARD, LANIGAN, J. DIMOCK (editor of GIRALDUS in Rolls Series, V, 316 he says that it is indisputably genuine), J.C. O'CALLAGHAN S. MALONE, O. P.L., KATE NORGATE, A. TARLETON, L. CASARTELLI. None of these writers, except Scheffer-Boichorst, refer to the text of Laudabiliter in the Book of Leinster, which is by far the most important piece of evidence bearing on the question. An extensive bibliography of the subject is given in CHEVALIER, Rep. des sources hist. du moyen âge (Bio.-bibl., 2d ed., Paris 905), 56, 57. Cf. also O. J. THATCHER op. cit., 154.

About this page

APA citation. Ua Clerigh, A. (1907). Pope Adrian IV. In The Catholic Encyclopedia. New York: Robert Appleton Company. Retrieved December 27, 2008 from New Advent: http://www.newadvent.org/cathen/01156c.htm

MLA citation. Ua Clerigh, Arthur. "Pope Adrian IV." The Catholic Encyclopedia. Vol. 1. New York: Robert Appleton Company, 1907. 27 Dec. 2008 <http://www.newadvent.org/cathen/01156c.htm>.

Ecclesiastical approbation. Nihil Obstat. March 1, 1907. Remy Lafort, S.T.D., Censor. Imprimatur. +John Cardinal Farley, Archbishop of New York.

Contact information. The editor of New Advent is Kevin Knight. My email address is feedback732 at newadvent.org. (To help fight spam, this address might change occasionally.) Regrettably, I can't reply to every letter, but I greatly appreciate your feedback — especially notifications about typographical errors and inappropriate ads.

[dohtml] <hr>[/dohtml]

[dohtml] [/dohtml]NOW WHOS BEHIND

THE DA VINCI CODE?

WHY IT'S

MARK BREAKSPEAR'S

[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]
[dohtml] [/dohtml]IT SEEMS

MICHAEL BREAKSPEAR

LIKES TO CONTROL THE MIND

Reminds me of BRITney SPEARS
Wonder if Michael knows of Springmeier
[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]
[dohtml] [/dohtml]WHY LOOK WE EVEN HAVE A

CINDY BREAKSPEAR

GETTING WITH NEGRO BOB MARLEY
[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]
[dohtml] [/dohtml]WOOO LOOK HOW LUCIFERIAN IS THAT?

THE SERPANT OF REJUVENATION

THE BROTHERHOOD OF THE SNAKE

BRITNEY = BRITAIN = BRITTANY

BREAKSPEAR'S

CONTROLLED

QUOTE

Plenty of Reflection/Mirror Images of Mind Control -Craig

Britney Spears - Break The Ice

http://uk.youtube.com/watch?v=4DdCFczrodc

[dohtml]
<hr>
[/dohtml]

It's a secret Occult family, who have had some members live to ripe ages of 500 years old. Their one of the unknown historic elite families on Earth. They are Pharoahs!

Breakspear is a riddle when it is translated into Latin, because it translates to BREAK SPEAR = Lance Rotto = Lancia Rotta = Lancia Lotta = Lancelot

Lancelot is the first Knight to king Arthur.

Pope Adrian IV, killer of Arnold(The Reformist), is Lancelot! His name was anglized and retranslated to hide its origins. One of the evilest Popes ever to have lived. Bloodthirsty! And now the whole world is worshipping Sir Lancelot as a hero, when his origins are of a mass-murderer Breakspear is Lancelot, no manner what the masses say.

It was the 'Breakspear' family that destroyed your country of England

Even Shakespear was a Breakspear

Theres an ancient ritual going back even to the sumerian times called "The breaking of spears." There is the "Spear of Destiny"

We're talking about the only family that controls Britain, from the Shadows. The whole Royal family are nonsense. They are the veils. The Breakspear's are Jesuits. Their the high priests. They practice ritual black magic and of course human blood sacrifices. They have intercourse with the dead as well. Usually a female which comes back to life for a few minutes and dies again.

-Anonymous[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml][dohtml]
[/dohtml]Reference:

Dragon 'Cosmos' symbol
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

soulinspiration - December 27, 2008 05:45 AM (GMT)

NICHOLAS BREAKSPEAR/POPE ADRIAN IV, FREDERICK I BARBAROSSA, FREDERICK II, THE GUELPHS, THE MARCHESA DE GREGORIO & LEO LYON ZAGAMI.

> QUOTE
>
> So why do we know all about these pion Rothschilds yet NOTHING about the BREAKSPEAR'S I ask. Yet another obvious reason why. Look especially folks to the Breakspear's of England.

[dohtml]<img src="http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/4/4a/PopeAdrianIVCameo.jpg" height="533" width="419">[/dohtml]

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Adrian_IV

QUOTE

Pope Adrian IV

Pope Adrian IV(c. 1100 AD–1 September, 1159 AD)[1], born Nicholas Breakspear or Breakspeare, was Pope from 1154 to 1159 AD.

Adrian IV is the only Englishman who has occupied the papal chair. It is generally believed that Nicholas Breakspear was born at Breakspear Farm in the parish of Abbots Langley in Hertfordshire and received his early education at the Abbey School, St Albans (St Albans School).

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Adrian_I...th_of_Adrian_IV

QUOTE

Barbarossa and the death of Adrian IV

At the diet of Besançon in October 1157 AD, the legates presented to Barbarossa a letter from Adrian IV which alluded to the beneficia or "benefits" conferred upon the Emperor, and the German chancellor translated this beneficia in the feudal sense of the presentation of property from a lord to a vassal (benefice). Barbarossa was infuriated by the suggestion that he was dependent on the Pope, and in the storm which ensued the legates were glad to escape with their lives, and the incident at length closed with a letter from the Pope, declaring that by beneficium he meant merely bonum factum or "a good deed," the coronation. The breach subsequently became wider, and Adrian IV was about to excommunicate the Emperor when he (Adrian) died at Anagni on September 1, 1159 AD, reputedly choking on a fly in his wine, but probably of quinsy.

His biography was first written by Cardinal Boso (who served as Adrian's Cardinal Nephew) in his extension to the Liber Pontificalis.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Frederick_I,_Holy_Roman_Emperor

QUOTE

Frederick I, Holy Roman Emperor

Frederick I Barbarossa (1122 – 10 June 1190) was elected King of Germany at Frankfurt on 4 March 1152 and crowned in Aachen on 9 March, crowned King of Italy at Pavia in 1154, and finally crowned Holy Roman Emperor by Pope Adrian IV on 18 June 1155. He was crowned King of Burgundy at Arles on 30 June 1178.

Before his royal election, he was by inheritance Duke of Swabia (1147–1152, as Frederick III). He was the son of Duke Frederick II of the Hohenstaufen dynasty. His mother was Judith, daughter of Henry IX, Duke of Bavaria, from the rival House of Welf, and Frederick therefore descended from Germany's two leading families, making him an acceptable choice for the Empire's prince-electors.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Frederick_I,_...d_wars_in_Italy

Reign and wars in Italy

Frederick undertook six expeditions into Italy. In the first he was crowned Holy Roman Emperor in Rome by Pope Adrian IV, following the suppression by Imperial forces of the republican city commune led by Arnold of Brescia. He left Italy in the autumn of 1155 to prepare for a new and more formidable campaign.

[dohtml]<img src="http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/0/07/Friedrich-barbarossa-und-soehne-welfenchronik_1-1000x1540.jpg" height="770" width="500">[/dohtml]

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Frederick_II,_Duke_of_Swabia

QUOTE

Frederick II, Duke of Swabia

Frederick II (1090 – 6 April 1147), called the One-Eyed, was the second Hohenstaufen duke of Swabia from 1105. He was the eldest son of Frederick I and Agnes.

He succeeded his father in 1105. In 1121 he married Judith of Bavaria, a member of the powerful House of Guelph. On the death of Emperor Henry V, his uncle, Frederick stood for election as King of the Romans with the support of his younger brother Conrad, duke of Franconia and several houses. However, he lost this election of 1125 to Lothar III, crowned Emperor later in 1133.

A conflict erupted between Frederick and his supporters, and Lothar. Encouraged by Albert, Archbishop of Mainz, who loathed the supporters of the late Emperor Henry V, Lothar besieged Nuremberg in 1127. Frederick relieved the siege of Nuremberg in 1127 and occupied Speyer in 1128. The attempt of Henry the Proud, duke of Bavaria, to capture Frederick during negotiations failed (1129). However, afterwards supporters of Lothar won a number of victories both in Germany and in Italy. Speyer (1129), Nuremberg (1130) and Ulm (1134) were captured and in October 1134 Frederick submitted to the emperor. In 1135 both Frederick and Conrad were finally reconciled with Lothar. After Lothar's death (1137) and election of Conrad as King of the Romans (1138) Frederick supported his brother in the struggle with Guelphs. According to Otto of Freising, Frederick was "so faithful a knight to his sovereign and so helpful a friend to his uncle that by valor he supported the tottering honor of the realm, fighting manfully against its foes..."

Frederick's second wife, Agnes, was the niece of his old enemy Albert of Mainz.

http://leozagami.wordpress.com/2008/04/28/...pt-oct-18-2006/

QUOTE

My name is Leo Lyon Zagami, but my grandmother from my father's side is Marchesa de Gregorio, basically. The family de Gregorio goes back to Frederick II of the second Roman empire. Frederick II 'Barbarossa' as we know him in Sicily [Frederick II of Hohenstaufen]. And basically, as you will know, Frederic II was part of that nobility from the Holy Roman Empire that actually posed quite a threat to the temporal power of the pope himself. And they were the ones in charge from, they left from Germany where they still, you can see in the cathedral of Koln, on the floor of the cathedral the symbol of my family. And they went to Sicily to protect and bring up, as tutors, this great emperor that after actually waged war against Rome, and was only stopped in "Tagliacozzo," So he nearly united Europe, but not quite. From there on, the family stayed there in Sicily, and obviously had posts of importance in all the various orders of knighthood, including the Knights of Malta.

https://en.xiandos.info/Leo_Zagami#Family_and_private_life

QUOTE

Leo's paternal grandfather is the Sicilian senator Leopoldo Zagami, and his paternal grandmother is the Marquisa di Gregorio. The Di Gregorio family can trace origins back to Cologne and Frederick II of Hohenstaufen (1090 – 1147), keepers of the Sicilian "Knights of Malta" (which control all other freemasonry globally). When Leo's father married a woman from the English aristocracy, he was the first in a long sequence of Sicilian aristocrats to marry outside of Sicilian aristocracy. Leo inherits the title Marqui di Gregorio from his father.

https://en.xiandos.info/Leo_Zagami#References

↑ Phone interview with Hesham Tillawi on Current Issues (Google video – 55 min)

↑ This reference may be erroneous. In the Current Issues interview Leo states emphatically that he descends from Frederik Barbarossa of Sicilia. This Frederik is referenced with the ordinals "the second" and "the third" (Frederik II/III) and lived 1272 – 1337

↑ It remains unclear what exactly is meant by the term keepers in this context

craig-oxley - December 29, 2008 06:20 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

I don't discount that it's possible - even at a stretch the longevity business (although on that it would be more than unlikely to be any publicly-known figures as those posted above). However, I would like a lot more info & solid evidence about the Breakspears of today before agreeing with "We're talking about the only family that controls Britain, from the Shadows."

I wold like to hear what Zagami has to say on them, as he has also referred to Count St Germain's reputed extreme longevity (& perhaps that attributed to his "successor" Count Cagliostro. However I would state that it would be demonic "guests" using host bodies & not the original individual per se that would "live" this long in bodily form.

-TS

QUOTE

I can fully support Craig on his position here, having learned deeper connections tonight from speaking with this same source than I have ever learned elsewhere. This was a fortuitous accidental turn of events where an email questioning me turned into a phonecall. I'll also add that I have no doubt that this info is accurate. I have certain points of disagreement in relation to other matters (of a spiritually philosophical & personal nature) that I have expressed, but acknowledge that this source's bloodlines info is the missing link. I shall not reveal the source of this new info that Craig has posted either, as I would not wish to be responsible for helping initiate some "Boston Brakes" scenario or similar. Thus I urge Craig to remain discrete about who has graciously started to make such info available. I do not know what else has been precisely revealed to you, but what I heard was bombshell stuff. Back everything up safely that you get!

That's all I shall say for now, but I plan to follow up much of the names & connections revealed, but there was way too much & way too deep, rapid & scholarly answers given in response to my questions, stuff that largely hasn't come out of published books. Tsarion should reveal the sources of his own bloodlines info. What a hypocrite.

Tsarion has always left telltale clues about his dislike for Eric Phelps via always spelling or saying his name incorrectly, e. g. Eric Jon Helps(!), despite getting most of his Vatican info from Eric's "Vatican Assassins" & then following up on Eric's historical sources like Manhattan, so that he can namedrop him in preference.

Michael "Theosophist" Tsarion is David Icke meets Jordan Maxwell with a taste of real truth like Eric Phelps & a distorted version of the Egyptian bloodlines info (in fact Roman-Greek-Egyptian-Sumerian bloodlines) who's actual facts have much underlying truth in contrast to the covered up with bull versions of Gardner, Maxwell, Icke & Tsarion, et al.

Perhaps Tsarion's running scared that his masters may soon be revealed.

Keep trickling out that info, Craig - good work! That message from Tsarion is just added confirmation - as if you needed it - that you have some majorly legit revelations & that you have only released a taste of it.

Smoking info indeed.

- TS

QUOTE

The English Pope

by George F. Tull
http://www.churchinhistory.org/pages/leafl...englishpope.htm

Probably few people realise that in an English Cathedral lie the mortal remains of the father of a Pope. Br. Robert de Camera (of the Chamber), father of Nicholas Breakspear, with the consent of his wife, became a monk of St Alban's Abbey at a mature age. Having "ended his days in edifying holiness" (c.1154), he was buried in the Chapter House. In 1978 he was reburied with eleven abbots and three other monks in the chancel of the Abbey, now Cathedral, a place of honour.

His son Nicholas Breakspear was born c.1100 in what was then the hamlet of Bedmond, in the parish of Abbots Langley and the Cashio Hundred of Hertfordshire. An historic farmhouse perpetu-ates the name Breakspear, a surname which has survived in the county. We cannot see the font where he was baptised. since the present Church at Abbots Langley dates from a later century. Not much is known of the early part of his life: no stories of youthful pieties or mystical presentiments to single him out from his fellows, indeed nothing to suggest that he was other than an ordinary down to earth countryman with no special skills. Poverty was no stranger to the Breakspear household. The man who was to rise to the high-est position in the Church, the only English Pope, began life as a servitor and whilst a boy begged his bread at the gate of St Alban's Abbey, not many miles from his home; which makes his later progress seem all the more remarkable. He did not become a monk there, but was destined to find his vocation elsewhere and not as a Benedictine. William of Newburgh (1136-1208) told how Nicholas "was lifted, as it were, from the dust, to sit in the midst of princes and to occupy the throne of apostolical glory". The circumstances which led to this providential change of fortune might have embit-tered a lesser man; but throughout his life adversities strengthened his character and sharpened his resolve.

The world-weary Robert, having settled into the ordered monas-tic life, had hoped that his son might join him at the Abbey, but this hope was not fulfilled. William of Newburgh wrote that. "when grown, the son, being too poor to pay for his education, frequented this monastery for his daily subsistence". Whether this referred to some work done for the monks in return for his food is not clear, but it seems likely. When the time came for a decision to be made with regard to his future, paternal influence was no help. The Abbot did not accept Nicholas as a postulant. but bade him have patience and continue his education until he was better prepared to be a monk. This decision annoyed Robert who, evidently feeling disgraced by his son, upbraided him for laziness and drove him from the Abbey. We know nothing of the mother's feelings in the matter. “Left to himself and urged by hard necessity to attempt something", he decided to travel for purposes of study.

This was the turning point in his life, since here he had achieved nothing. Had he been allowed to follow in his father's footsteps he would probably have spent the rest of his life as a monk undistinguished. one among many, perhaps overshadowed by his father, and in all probability we should have known nothing of him, unless he had become an outstanding Abbot. From our knowledge of his character, he would not have sought any higher position.

The untravelled young man crossed the Channel and studied in France under a celebrated Irish professor, Marianus, for whom he conceived a great affection. Like many another, Nicholas lived for some time as a wandering scholar, acquiring knowledge and devel-oping his character, before entering the Canons Regular at their monastery of St Rufus, near Avignon. After a period as a lay brother, he was ordained priest and later elected Prior and in 1137 Abbot of the community. William of Newburgh gives us a positive and favourable picture: "As he was elegant in person, pleasant in countenance, prudent in speech and of ready obedience, he gained the favour of all and for many years was the most exact observer of regular discipline. As he was of excellent abilities and fluent in speech, he attained by frequent and unremitted study, to great science (knowledge) and eloquence. . .” All excellent qualities for the leader of a religious community, which should have prospered. At St Rufus all was not smooth going however. The Englishman's zeal for strict discipline eventually led to revolt among the brethren and an attempt to defame his character. Abbot Nicholas had to appear before Pope Eugenius III in Rome. This second rejection, far from being a setback, was yet another important step in his life for he not only cleared himself, but won the esteem of the Pope, who retained him in Rome and in 1146 appointed him to the prestigious post of Cardinal Bishop of Albano, a small diocese in the Alban Hills south of Rome. Now in his forties, he was being prepared for other, far ranging work. outside the cloister; the work of an apostle.

Cardinal Breakspear was sent by Pope Eugenius as his legate to Scandinavia, to negotiate an ecclesiastical reorganisation of the three kingdoms of Denmark, Norway and Sweden, no light matter in those troubled times. As the conversion of Norway and Sweden had been largely due to missionaries from England (including such unfamiliar names at St Siegfried, his relative St Eskil and St Ulfrid), the Pope felt that Nicholas as an Englishman would be welcome there. Accordingly the Cardinal left Rome about March 1152 and on the way northward, returned to his native land, this time to be received with honour as a special visitor. There is reason to believe that both his parents were still living, so it may be presumed that he saw them during his visit. From England he sailed across to Norway, where he found the whole country in a state of confusion. Much careful diplomacy was needed. "There never came a foreigner to Norway whom all men respected so highly, or who could govern the people so well as he did", wrote the Icelandic historian Snorri Sturleson.

His mission took about two years to complete and was so successful that he was hailed as "the Apostle of the North". He founded the Episcopal see of Drontheim (now Trondheim) in Norway and consecrated several bishops for those countries. When he eventually went back to Rome, he left behind him "peace for kingdoms, laws for barbarians, quiet for monaster-ies, order for churches, discipline for the clergy and a people acceptable to God doers of good works" (Boso).

Within a few months of the Cardinal's return, Pope Anastasius IV (the successor to Eugenius) died and in consequence, Nicholas sat in conclave with his fellow Cardinals in St Peter's on 4th December 1154, to elect a new Pope. Here once again the unex-pected happened, inaugurating the final phase of his life. Not by the usual process of election, but by unanimous acclamation, he was made Pope (against his will), choosing to take the name Adrian IV. His Coronation took place on the following day, Sunday 5th December. Anastasius IV, during his less than five months rule as Pope, had gained for himself the title of "Father of the Poor"; Adrian was no less beloved by the people. Six months later, on 18th June 1155, Pope Adrian crowned Frederick I, nicknamed Barbarossa as Emperor, an action he must have deeply regretted when Frederick showed himself a ruthless despot. There was soon to be much trouble between Pope and Emperor, a not unusual state of affairs. Life would certainly have been more secure for the Pope and those around him if Frederick had been less ambitious and over-reaching.

Humanly very conscious of the heavy burden laid upon him. Pope Adrian confided to his close friend John of Salisbury (c.1115-80) that thorny was the throne of Peter and so full of the sharpest spikes was his mantle that it would lacerate the stoutest shoulders. Further, that from the time he had left the cloister, and had reluctantly mounted the ladder which brought him to the papacy, he had never found that a higher position had added the smallest degree of peace and happiness to that which he had in the lower position. His words are memorable: "The Lord has long since placed me between the hammer and the anvil, and now He must Himself support the burden He has placed upon me, for I cannot carry it". However reluctant his acceptance, he had accepted as his particular duty and would see it through with courage and dedication.

Writers agree that his character was without reproach. Famous as a preacher. renowned for his fine voice, Adrian seems to have been a worthy Pope with a resolute character. The noted Church historian Fr Philip Hughes called him "a solemn, austere figure, a simple--minded reformer who had already made a name as the second founder of Norway's Christianity". His nephew, Boso Breakspear (died c.1178) was his secretary and Governor of the Castel Sant Angelo in Rome. In the reticence of Boso as his biographer writing directly of what he saw and heard, we have proof of the forgiving nature of the Pope. who seemingly never spoke of the unkind treat-ment he had received either from his father in England, or from the Canons in Provence: but having become Pope, thought only of granting favours to his former monastic brethren. He was well disposed to the Orders of the Knights Templar and the Hospitallers. In two Roman churches, San Silvestro in Capite and the Lateran Basilica, Pope Adrian reorganised the Guild of Doorkeepers, who took care of the church buildings.

With patience and at constant risk to his own safety, he attempted to restore law and order to various parts of Italy torn by internecine strife. We need not dwell on all these peacemaking efforts. The historical scene is somewhat confusing. He did not revisit England as Pope; he hardly had time, nor would it have been advisable to absent himself then. Yet in the midst of many tribulations, he did not forget St Alban's and the increasing importance of the Abbey. Although the relics of St Alban the Martyr had been translated into a new Shrine on 2nd August 1129, the canopy over it was not completely finished until c.1166. thus the work was in progress intermittently throughout the rest of Pope Adrian's life. The chronicle of the monastery described him as "a religious man and born in the territory of St Alban's". Certainly he had reason to be interested in the Abbey he had always known and was now in a position to be generous to it. The opportu-nity arose when Robert of Gorham. the 18th Abbot of St Alban's, visited the Pope in 1155. It is recorded that his gifts to the Abbey included some relics of the Martyrs of the Theban Legion, a beauti-ful silk cloth sent to him by the Emperor, valuable sandals and a ring and a goblet for refectory use (according to the Abbey chronicler, Matthew Paris, reporting what he had been told). An annual procession was ordered to be made to St Alban's by clergy and laymen of the county; the Abbey and its dependent cells were declared exempt from the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Lincoln whose vast diocese then stretched this far; the Abbot was not only authorised to wear a mitre and other pontifical ornaments, but ranked first among the mitred abbots in Parliament. These dona-tions and privileges bear witness to his devotion and his gentle forgiving nature since they were made "chiefly in memory of his father".

Pope Adrian died suddenly, reputedly of quinsy — or some say angina, at a summer residence of the Popes in Anagni, in the country, away from the heat of Rome on the evening of 1st September 1159. After less than five years in the Chair of Peter, he was still not an old man by our reckoning. Brought back to Rome, he was buried on 4th September in the Crypt of St Peter's in a third century sarcophagus of red granite, with a plain inscription added: HADRIANUS PAPA IIII. There his body still rests, far from his native county. After his death, his widowed mother's old age was spent in pain and want, perhaps somewhat consoled by the memory of that illustrious son.

Reproduced from 'The Ransomer', 31 Southdown Road, SW20 8QJ, England.

QUOTE

POPE ADRIAN IV
NICHOLAS BREAKSPEAR (c1100 – 1159)

http://www.stalbanscathedral.org.uk/societies/adrian-iv.htm

Brother Clement, SC

An abbreviated version of this article appears in the Alban Link, issue 61, Autumn 2004

As ecumenical chaplain or guide at the Abbey I have often been asked: "What is the figure of a Roman Catholic Pope doing on the great Wallingford Screen of the Anglican Cathedral Church of St Albans?" The full answer could be as follows.

The mythical tale of Dick Whittington, romantic though it may be, can seem quite common when compared with the true story of another wandering beggar-lad. By virtue of his own abilities, Nicholas rose from the extreme poverty of a vagrant scholar through the various states of Augustinian Canon, Abbot, Bishop, Papal Legate and Cardinal to the exalted position of Supreme Pontiff. He became a very good and great Pope who, despite the shortness of his reign, made his mark over the whole of western civilisation. We are not half proud enough of our countryman whose success was in large measure due to his eminently British characteristics. This article does not pretend to any novelty of research, but simply aims to present a connected narrative of the life and main events in the history of Nicholas Breakspear, Pope Adrian IV

.

SOURCES

Unfortunately very little is known about his early life and historians argue about the facts. Probably the best sources and most reliable information come from three writers; Cardinal Boso, John Salisbury, and William Newburgh. Boso wrote a book on the life of Adrian which was later found in a collection owned by a mid-fourteenth Spanish bishop of Aragon called Roselli. It is believer that Boso was a nephew of this Pope. Some have brought up the accusation that this might have been an example of nepotism. The second source was a close personal friend of the Pope called John of Salisbury, a fellow student in Paris very early on in his career. Adrian had him called to Rome as a companion and personal secretary. The third, William Newburgh was an Augustinian monk from the Newburgh Priory in Yorkshire who wrote between 1136 and 1198. Highly esteemed for his works, he was called the father of historical criticism.

BIRTHPLACE AND EARLY LIFE

Nicholas Breakspear was born very early in the 12th century, perhaps in 1100 exactly. His name is given as Briselance in French and in Latin as Hastafragus (broken lance). This name could have found its roots from some mishap in the troubled times of assimilation between the Saxons and the Normans. After all, this was only 34 years after the Conquest. The heraldry of the popes indicates his coat of arms as a broken spear.

It is held on good authority (though there are some who have disputed it) that he was bom in an earlier house that stood on the site of the farmhouse still called "Breakespeare" in Bedmond, close to Abbots Langley and within the estates of St Albans Monastery. The house has now been demolished, according to recent inquiries made in Abbots Langley.

Adrian's Road, Pope's Road, and Breakspeare Road remind us of his presence in the immediate area of his birthplace. Breakspeare Avenue, Hadrian's Close, Nicholas' Close and Nicholas Breakspeare School all attest to him in St Albans. There is a noted painting of Adrian IV in County Hall in Hertford.

History tells us that he hoped to join his father, Robert, who became a monk at St Albans Abbey when a widower. The poor boy could not afford the time to go to school but he attended the monastery for a daily pittance. When his application to join the monastery was turned down for lack of education, his father sharply reprimanded him for his supposed idleness.

Matthew Paris, our own historian who wrote about one hundred years later, gave another interpretation for Nicholas's refusal at the Abbey by reporting that Abbot Richard d'Albini, after examination, found him deficient in knowledge and said to him not unkindly "Have patience, my son, and stay at school yet a while till you are better fitted for the position you desire."

Nicholas's father was later given the post of Chamberlain at the Abbey, in charge of hospitality. He was eventually given the privilege, possibly out of respect for his famous son, of being buried in the Chapter House. This was usually reserved for deceased celebrated Abbots or very prominent personages. It is believed that he died during his son's reign as pope. He must have been well into old age by that time, which explains why there seems to be no record of his attending the coronation of Nicholas in Rome in 1154. He now rests in the Presbytery in front of our High Altar in the shadow of his illustrious son who proudly stands in the top row of our Wallingford Screen.

A STUDENT ABROAD

Nicholas, left to himself and compelled to do something by hard necessity, crossed over to France and began his long and arduous journey to greatness. He went to France, where we find him as a student of the Paris University making his mark and very possibly working at 'Ie petit bistro du coin' to keep body and soul together while paying his way for books and fees to tutors. He made friendships there that lasted him well into his time of triumph of papal dignity.

ST RUFUS, AVIGNON: CANON AND ABBOT

In the year 1130 we find him at the Monastery of St Rufus, an order of Augustinian Canons, near Avignon. Here he quickly impressed the members of the Order and was reported to be 'elegant in person, pleasant in countenance, prudent in speech …. a regular obedience always an exact observer of regular discipline.' It was here that he was ordained and in 1137 having been prior for two years, was chosen Abbot upon the death of the incumbent. Nicholas set about bringing in reforms resulting in complaints from rather lax religious, to the extent that the Canons petitioned Pope Eugenius III for his deposition. The Pope required both sides to make personal representations and after lending a sympathetic ear and being highly impressed with virtues and qualities of the Abbot Nicholas, transferred him from Avignon and kept him in Rome as a special advisor to the papal court.

BISHOP-CARDINAL AT ALBANO

He was soon appointee to Albano as Bishop-Cardinal. It is a coincidence that Albano should have become his see. As a personal note, a few years ago I had the wonderful opportunity to explore this city which is about 25 miles south-west of Rome. Some sections of the ancient Cathedral date back to the 12th century. A cantankerous sacristan upon being approached for information in my stumbling Italian told me: ' We have 264 popes to look after around here. Do you think we have time to bother about your English Pope?' He mellowed somewhat and eventually we had a cappucino, at my expense, at a nearby cafe. Unfortunately, I left not much the wiser in my quest.

LEGATE TO SCANDINAVIA

So well were his talents appreciated by Eugenius that he was chosen as legate to the Scandinavian countries in 1152 in order to organise proper structural dioceses and withdraw them from the domination of the German hierarchy which had been a grave handicap to the development of their own national churches. This he achieved with great tact and diplomacy, first calming internal strife and instigating laws that brought about peace and equity. He was particularly successful in Norway and to this day the Norwegian people, although in great majority Protestant, look to Nicholas with great veneration as founder of their own Christian tradition. A plaque to that effect has been erected next to his tomb in the sub-church of St Peter's in Rome. Tarleton in his book "Nicholas Breakspear, Englishman and Pope" (1887) writes: "He is considered among the greatest in Norwegian history and included among the national saints."

After two years as the special envoy in Scandinavia, he returned to Albano. Meanwhile his patron, Eugenius had died and had been replaced by Anastasius IV who had an equally high regard for Nicholas' talents. At Anastasius' death Nicholas was unanimously elected the 169th successor of Peter, taking the name of Adrian. This surprised the whole papal court who expected him to become Eugenius IV. It might be somewhat contentious to think that he had chosen this name in memory of Adrian I, the Pope who sanctioned the foundation of our Abbey of St Albans under the Benedictines in 793. But it is an intriguing thought.

VISIT FROM THE ABBOT OF ST ALBANS

As soon as Adrian's election become known in England, it is reported that Henry II who himself had recently gainer the throne, sent a congratulatory delegation to Rome headed by the Abbot of St Albans, Robert de Gorham. They were said to have brought rich gifts, among them finely embroidered slippers made by Christina of Markyate. His Holiness received the group with every expression of goodwill, and showed them signal honour. According to Lumbye in "The Hertfordshire Pope" (1905), he remarked good humouredly to the delegation: "I refuse to accept your gifts, since when I once fled to the shelter of your religious house, and begged to be invested with the monk's hood, you refused to accept me." The Abbot was said to have replied : " My Lord, we could never have taken you in, for God willed it otherwise and had set apart your life for a more exalted position." The Pope, highly amused, let him know that the once Bishop of Albano could refuse nothing to the now Abbot of St Albans.

In fact, the monastery obtained exemption from the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Lincoln which, had been an anomaly and a matter of contention for many years. It was from then on that Abbots of St Albans were mitred. From then on, the Abbots of St Albans took precedence over all other Abbots in the country dislodging even the Abbot of Westminster, often creating unseemly scenes curing important ceremonies. It is also believed that it was at this time that the controversy with the Ely monks over the possession of the authentic remains of our Saint was finally resolved and that St Albans' claims were vindicated with papal approbation. Ely was even made to apologise.

ROMAN AND PAPAL POLITICS

In mid-12th century the headship of the Church was no sinecure. Both of Adrian's predecessors in office bequeathed a state of serious turmoil. The sacred college needed a strong ruler and found one in this well-tried Anglo-Saxon. They thrust him into a post of honour which was fraught with dangers. History records that Adrian was elected strongly against his will.

In Rome under some semblance of a regime mimicking the pro-consulates of ancient republicanism, the new pope had to confront a self-elected champion in the person of Arnaldo of Brescia who fomented a spirit of discontent among feuding senators. There were disorders and riots everywhere attacking the rule of law as well as the spiritual and temporal papal sovereignty. Adrian moved promptly and decisively placing Rome under interdict. The senators took fright and banished Arnaldo who was later executed. It may be doubted whether the pope instigated this outcome.

External pressure came from William of Sicily who encroached on papal territories from the west, and from Frederick Barbarossa, Holy Roman Emperor, from the north. The latter's aspirations was to return to the Imperial control of Western Europe, going back to the Holy Roman Empire under Charlemagne, and to undertake the conquest of all Italian city states. The Pope first made a temporary alliance with Frederick who was seeking to be crowned as Holy Roman Emperor and then to subjugate the papacy to his whims and fancies. Pope Adrian distrusted him and the famous meeting at Nepi set the scene for history. The Emperor was made to submit to the customary ceremony of homage of holding the pope's stirrup as the pope alighted from his horse. Frederick soon betrayed his sacred promises to honour the papal rights and to safeguard the freedom of the Church throughout the Empire.

With reference to England, a black shadow has long hovered over the matter of the Papal Bull Laudabiliter (1155) by which Adrian responded to a request from Henry II to extend English domination of Ireland. This document has been the source of controversy for nearly nine centuries. The Pope acceded to the king’s request but set strict boundaries of evangelisation which were quickly and blatantly ignored.

DEATH

There are a number of theories surrounding Adrian's death. The majority of historians concur that he died of quinsy, an inflammation of the throat which would be diagnosed today as tonsillitis. This gave rise to the interpretation that he might have been poisoned or that he had choked on some insect while drinking. He was approximately 59 years old. He died in Agnagni on 1st September 1159.

His body was taken to Rome and buried in a red marble sarcophagus in the nave of the old basilica of St Peter's. In 1607 it was placed in the crypt of the present St Peter's where it can be seen with deer skulls representing Hertfordshire and two roses representing England. No English pilgrim to Rome should neglect to pay it due respect. It has the simple inscription: Hadrianus Papa IIII. On the occasion of the translation, the body was exhumed and was found in full pontificals and to be incorrupt.

Notwithstanding the incessant conflicts of his short career, he yet found time to improve and decorate Rome. To this end he projected and carried out various new buildings and restorations including the Lateran Palace and the portacles of the Church of St John and St Paul.

CONCLUSION

Adrian steered the papacy safely though a very difficult period; his pontificate begins the steep ascent of the papacy to the heights of Innocent III. I end with a quotation from Lumbye in the "Hertfordshire Pope" (1905): "This true and honest man died at his post, a glorious representative of the Church militant, face to the foe, upholding the standard of his Master, faithful to his principles, staunch to his supporters, and above all true to himself."

FURTHER READING: MAJOR WORKS

Almedingen E, The English Pope, 1925

Darras, Histoire de L'Eglise jusqu'au XII siecle, 1880

Foreville et Rousset, Histoire de 1'Eglise, 1953

Lumbye F, The Hertfordshire Pope, 1905

Mackie D, Pope Adrian IV, 1907

Macquin, Histoire du pape Adrian IV, 1854

Mann H, The Only English Pope, 1914

Tarleton A, Nicholas Breakespear, 1896

Trollope E, Memoir of the Life of Adrian the Fourth, 1856

Warren W, Henry II and Adrian IV, 1973

QUOTE

The Bull of Pope Adrian IV Empowering Henry II to Conquer Ireland. A.D. 1155

(Lyttleton's "Life of Henry II.," vol. v. p. 371.)

Bishop Adrian, servant of the servants of God, sends to his dearest son in Christ, the illustrious king of the English, greeting and apostolic benediction. Laudably and profitably enough thy magnificence thinks of extending thy glorious name on earth, and of heaping up rewards of eternal felicity in Heaven, inasmuch as, like a good catholic prince, thou dost endeavour to enlarge the bounds of the church, to declare the truth of the Christian faith to ignorant and barbarous nations, and to extirpate the plants of evil from the field of the Lord. And, in order the better to perform this, thou dost ask the advice and favour of the apostolic see. In which work, the more lofty the counsel and the better the guidance by which thou dost proceed, so much more do we trust that, by God's help, thou wilt progress favourably in the same; for the reason that those things which have taken their rise from ardour of faith and love of religion are accustomed always to come to a good end and termination.

There is indeed no doubt, as thy Highness doth also acknowledge, that Ireland and all other islands which Christ the Sun of Righteousness has illumined, and which have received the doctrines of the Christian faith, belong to the jurisdiction of St. Peter and of the holy Roman Church. Wherefore, so much the more willingly do we grant to them that the right faith and the seed grateful to God may be planted in them, the more we perceive, by examining more strictly our conscience, that this will be required of us.

Thou hast signified to us, indeed, most beloved son in Christ, that thou dost desire to enter into the island of Ireland, in order to subject the people to the laws and to extirpate the vices that have there taken root, and that thou art willing to pay an annual pension to St. Peter of one penny from every house, and to preserve the rights of the churches in that land inviolate and entire. We, therefore, seconding with the favour it deserves thy pious and laudable desire, and granting a benignant assent to thy petition, are well pleased that, for the enlargement of the bounds of the church. for the restraint of vice, for the correction of morals and the introduction of virtues, for the advancement of the Christian religion, thou shouldst enter that island, and carry out there the things that look to the honour of God and to its own salvation. And may the people of that land receive thee with honour, and venerate thee as their master; provided always that the rights of the churches remain inviolate and entire, and saving to St. Peter and the holy Roman Church the annual pension of one penny from each house. If, therefore, thou dost see fit to complete what thou hast conceived in thy mind, strive to imbue that people with good morals, and bring it to pass, as well through thyself as through those whom thou dost know from their faith, doctrine, and course of life to be fit for such a work, that the church may there be adorned, the Christian religion planted and made to grow, and the things which pertain to the honour of God and to salvation be so ordered that thou may'st merit to obtain an abundant and lasting reward from God, and on earth a name glorious throughout the ages.

Henderson's Note
The bull of pope Adrian IV., long has been, and still is, an apple of discord among scholars. Is it a genuine document or not ? The question is a weighty one, for the transaction it bears witness to was the first step towards the annexation of Ireland to England-an annexation which really took place, after a warlike expedition, sixteen years later. That a papal bull was dispatched to England about this time and concerning this matter is certain. That this was the actual bull sent is doubted by many-I myself am not among the number-from the fact that in form and wording it differs from other papal bulls of the time. The question is still being investigated, and we are promised a word from a certain Berlin professor whose authority is very great in such matters.

It is interesting to note that the claim of Adrian IV., here advanced, to jurisdiction over all islands was founded, as we learn from John of Salisbury, on the forged donation of Constantine (v. Book iii. No. iii.). Urban II. had disposed of Corsica under the same pretension. Lord Lyttleton in his still valuable History of Henry II. (vol. v. p. 67) speaks as follows concerning this whole transaction: "Upon the whole, therefore, this bull, like many before and many since, was the mere effect of a league between the papal and regal powers, to abet and assist each other's usurpations; nor is it easy to say whether more disturbance to the world, and more iniquity, have arisen from their acting conjointly, or from the opposition which the former has made to the latter! In this instance the best, or indeed the sole excuse for the proceedings of either, was the savage state of the Irish, to whom it might be beneficial to be conquered, and broken thereby to the salutary discipline of civil order and good laws."

Source:
Henderson, Ernest F.
Select Historical Documents of the Middle Ages
London : George Bell and Sons, 1896.

QUOTE

Breakspear Farm

Bedmond. Hertfordshire
England

craig-oxley - December 29, 2008 07:07 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Breakspear Medical Group Ltd.

QUOTE

Boso Breakspear

Third English Cardinal, date of birth uncertain, d. at Rome, about 1181. He was a Benedictine monk of St. Albans Abbey and the nephew of Adrian IV. Though this relationship was on the maternal side, Cardella states that Boso as well as Adrian IV bore the surname of Breakspear. He had a reputation not only for piety, but also for learning, and was esteemed by contemporary writers as among the most eminent theologians of his age. He compiled or wrote the lives of several eleventh and twelfth century popes, among them the life of his uncle, and indulged in the lighter accomplishment of versifying, examples of his poetic powers still existing in the Cotton MSS. in the British Museum, in the form of metrical lives of saints. He followed his uncle to Rome; and on the latter's elevation to the Papal Chair, was created by him Cardinal-Deacon of the title of Sts. Cosmas and Damian, in December, 1155, and was also appointed Camerlengo of the Holy See. Adrian sent Boso on a mission to Portugal; for what precise purpose does not transpire, but the fact is attested by the registers of Pope Innocent III. He also confided to him the governorship of the Castle of Sant' Angelo, being somewhat suspicious of the fidelity of the Roman populace. When Adrian IV died in 1159, dissensions arose in the conclave as to the choice of his successor, the result of which was the creation of a schism lasting seventeen years. Four cardinals in the imperial interest voted for Cardinal Octavian, who assumed the name of Victor IV, but he was acknowledged only by the Germans. On the very day of Adrian's burial in the Vatican basilica, 5 September, Cardinal Boso, who appears to have taken the lead, withdrew with the majority, twenty-three, of the cardinals within the fortress of Sant' Angelo to escape the vengeance of the antipope, and straightway elected as pope, Cardinal Rolando (Bandinelli) of Siena, who was consecrated under the name of Alexander III. The new pope was not unmindful of his obligations to Boso, and soon (1163) promoted him Cardinal-Priest of the title of St. Pudentiana. When Alexander made his memorable journey to Venice to receive the submission and allegiance of the Emperor Frederick, and to ratify the "Peace of Venice" (24 June, 1177) which closed the schism, he was accompanied by Boso. Alexander also entrusted Boso with a mission to Tuscany, an event attested by the registers of Alexander IV. Boso's name appears attached to many Bulls, both of Adrian IV and of Alexander III.

Dict. Nat. Biogr., V, 421; CARDELLA, Memorie Storiche de' Cardinali: EGGS, Purpura docta (Munich,1714-29); DUCHESNE, Liber Pontif., II, xxxix xliii, 351 446; WATTENBACH, Deutschlands Geschichtsquellen, 6th ed., II, 331; REUTER, Alexander III (1860-64) JAFFE, Regesta RR. PP., II, s. vv., Adrian 1V, Alexander III.

QUOTE

Whats this? Wheres the 'E' gone then? Is it because 'E' is the Luciferian feminine energy fifth letter and also within the English alphabet? Realise that this means the 'E' is silent coming from the five. Does this Remind you of the 5th Amendment? What about the sacred number for Lucifer being fifthteen giving us a 'O' of the feminine and silence maybe? Notice that bumblebee? Take a look at the quote below:

- CRAIG OXLEY

QUOTE

The Merovingian kings were noted sorcerors in the manner of the Samaritan Magi, and they firmly believed in the hidden powers of the honeycomb. Because a honeycomb is naturally made up of hexagonal prisms, it was considered by philosophers to be the manifestation of divine harmony in nature. Its construction was associated with insight and wisdom - as detailed in Proverbs 24:13-14: "My son, eat thou honey, because it is good… So shall the knowledge of wisdom be unto thy soul…"

To the Merovingians, the bee was a most hallowed creature. A sacred emblem of Egytian royalty, it became a symbol of Wisdom. Some 300 small golden bees were founded stitched to the cloak of Childeric I (son of Meroveus) when his grave was unearthed in 1653. Napoleon had these attached to his own coronation robe in 1804. He claimed this right by virtue of his descent from James de Rohan-Stuardo, the natural son (legitimized in 1667) of Charles II Stuart of Britain by Marguerite, Duchesse de Rohan. The Stuarts in turn were entitled to this distinction because they, and their related Counts of Brittany, were descended from Clodion's brother Fredemundus - thus (akin to the Merovingians) they were equally in descent from the Fisher Kings through Faramund. The Merovingian bee was adopted by the exiled Stuarts in Europe, and engraved bees are still to be seen on some Jacobite glassware."

From "Bloodline of the Holy Grail" by Laurence Gardner

QUOTE

FIFTH AMENDMENT [U.S. Constitution] - 'No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb, nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.'

The Fifth Amendment 'can be asserted in any proceeding, civil or criminal, administrative or judicial, investigatory or adjudicatory; and it protects against any disclosures which the witness reasonably believes could be used in a criminal prosecution or could lead to other evidence that might be so used.' Kastigar v. U.S., 406 U.S. 441, 44-45 ('72). A reasonable belief that information concerning income or assets might be used to establish criminal failure to file a tax return can support a claim of Fifth Amendment privilege. See U.S. v. Rendahl, 746 F.2d 553, 55-56 (9th Cir.'84).

The only way the Fifth Amendment can be asserted as to testimony is on a question-by-question basis. Rendahl, 746 F.2d at 555, citing with approval U.S. v. Bell, 448 F.2d 40, 42 (9th Cir.'71) (Fifth Amendment challenge premature on appeal from enforcement order; appellant must present himself for questioning after enforcement and as to each question elect to raise or not to raise the defense).

The appropriate device for compelling answers to incriminating questions is a government grant of use immunity. See Sharp, 920 F.2d at 1172.

QUOTE

You have to ask; how much blacker can it get? And the answer is 'none'

Francis Breakspear

http://occultebooks.com/articles/fb_howMuchBlacker.htm

Lemuel Johnstone said that "what some people call hypocrisy, I call freedom of spirit".

This is an adapted piece from my online free book [not available right now - Ed] and the title is borrowed from the movie Spinal Tap The article is a follow-on from my piece on Psychopaths and Evil, and covers a few thoughts about Satanists, 'Black magicians' and morality, and it is hoped that it will continue some interesting debate in the forums [comments welcome below].

"Just as religion is losing its hold on man, leaving us free from morality and god, so too will science lose its hold, leaving us free from the tyranny of truth- the 'new' god". However, by definition all Satanists are merely rather odd Xians. The concept of Satan stems from the Xian Bible; so without believing in the Xian God, no-one can be a Satanist in any shape or form. This reduces Satanism to something rather akin to an obscure and limited Xian sect (albeit a rebellious one) and not even that heretical. One argument for this area proposes that if the Xian God knows all, and created all things, he must have CREATED Satan for a damn good reason. So the Xian God NEEDS there to be devils… Which rather deflates a lot of the fundamentalist zeal for fighting Satan on all fronts…“Creeds and moralities are parasites and vampires that shrivel us, distort us and make us grotesque.” We NEED Satan, suckers!

However, once we get into the realms of trying to understand the reasoning of the Xian God, and one whose thought processes (based on behaviour manifested in the Bible) seems at times, well… pretty stoned really, we are into pretty shaky philosophical ground; i.e. trying to know the unknowable. Again, in former centuries it would have become very hot around the toes very quickly if one expressed such views openly; such heresy being an open invitation to the inquisition. I have no doubt that there are such entities as real Satanists, but I have yet to meet more than one who claimed to be, and whom I beleived.

What I have learned of real Satanists (admittedly based in a small sample of face-to-face meets), and not the wannabees, seems to confirm the view that they tend to be desperately trying to rebel against a staunch Xian upbringing in the most horrible way that they can think of. Their rigid, blinkered and confined Xian childhood leaves them only one way to not conform - by using the book that they have had forced upon them to the exclusion of most others; so they choose to worship the opposition to the heroes of their Xian Bible.

In the opinion of many, Satan and all the other Demons of the Bible (as well as good old Judas) are as precisely and totally necessary for the whole story of Xianity as is the archetypal black-hat, black-shirt wearing "baddie" in virtually every cowboy movie ever made. And about as ultimately scary; there are many more frightening things on and above the earth. Which brings me onto good and evil. Wise indeed is he or she who knows the difference; it is largely a matter of perspective and whether one benefits from it; for example it is for some reason held to be true that all wars are good and just, because "God is on our side" and the enemy are heretical unbelievers who deserve (at the very least) to go to hell, and/or they hold some evil philosophical beliefs, be they "godless communists" or whatever.

In my opinion the most evil thing EVER is that there exists some misty concept of "good and evil" which when manipulated in particular ways to the masses is translated into what everyone seems to think is unshakeable absolute truth. (It is an absolute truth that there ARE no absolutes; so never, ever use them. HoHo). In many contexts there seem to be that fabled beast "the lesser of two evils"; which implies a non-absolute measure for evil. Good and evil are primarily a matter of subjective opinion; my opinions are dotted all over the book, and articles elsewhere on occult e-books. Form your own opinions on everything that matters to you: “Morality that depends upon individual judgment is a vigorous living thing; but when morality becomes equated with a rigid code of law and dogma then it is no longer part of us, we are ‘distinct’ from it and can grow free. The church did mankind the favour of thus enslaving morality long, long ago.”

I do not doubt that a very few unfortunate children have suffered at the hands of people propounding themselves to be occultists, and indeed fewer still at the hands of those who actually are occultists. I do have the greatest empathy and sympathy for these children and their families, but perhaps somebody ought to come up with the statistics for child abuse in general, whereby it would show a very small percentage of occult child abuse as opposed to say a large proportion of Xian child abuse, or Jewish, or Moslem or any other Faith for that matter. Maybe someone should so a survey on atheist child abuse, and then hound atheists from pillar to post- as the numbers will surely be very high?

Which result is presumably more acceptable to the blinkered and bigoted followers of whichever comes out of these figures as the "most innocent" faith?

Statistics can play peculiar tricks in clever hands. In a previous job I was paid to deliberately slant specially selected statistics in such a way that a pre-ordained (and not necessarily "true") conclusion could be supported by the clever and subjective expression of a few numbers and "facts".

It is best to view all such statistical expressions with caution. For example, if data on road accidents were to show that (for example) 15% of accidents were caused by young people in high performance cars driving dangerously; this would be a cause for concern. However not as worrying as the mental jump to the alternative conclusion (easily supported by a clever new slant on the same statistic) that the other 85% of accidents could be seen to be due to older people in standard, averagely-powered cars driving "carefully!!!"

Examine the perspective before you decide whether any judgements can be made at all with the available data. Only then formulate a tentative opinion. You probably need more information before you can get anywhere towards a degree of truth.

Truth is an elusive animal; if not an endangered species.

If we have any Satanists out there; please do comment.
And anyone else too!

Yours in the dark work, FB

QUOTE

The Chaos Warrior

by Francis Breakspear

http://www.scribd.com/doc/3008168/The-Chaos-Warrior

QUOTE

Norway

This is Saint Olav who christianised Norway with the sword. Note the captive with the rope about his waist being trampled by the saint. As king of Norway (from 1015–1028), he had an army to help him in his holy works. With his troops waiting, he'd tell a local leader: "Either accept Christianity, or fight this very day". And he revealed a powerful source of his faith by adding : "The victory be to them to whom the God we worship gives it". [1] Christianity offered a king a new and powerful war god.

Although the Norwegians were unsurpassed in shipbuilding, the missionaries had introduced many techniques that were new to Norway, such as writing, winemaking and metalworking. [2] Christianity appeared to be one more of these: a magic technology for gaining victory in battle. The new faith was supposed to help a baptised monarch vanquish enemies who still relied on Thor, the pagan war god. And when two Christian kings did battle, the monks who wrote the histories explained the outcome as punishment for the "sins" of the vanquished, as when the Norman Conquest was ascribed to divine displeasure at King Harold's "perjury". [3] Thus the military effectiveness of Christianity amounted to an irrefutable theory.

Saint Olav and the other early kings turned the pagan assemblies, the things, into organs of Church control and made them the forerunners of the Inquisition. The things passed laws condemning whatever the Church disapproved of, set up a system of informers and meted out harsh sentences to anyone caught violating the myriad of complex religious rules controlling daily life. Through the thing the Church enforced rules on everything from fasting (and fast days made up almost a third of the year) and to rules on when married couples were allowed to have sex.

Even sitting outside could attract the attention of an informer and bring a charge of "waking up trolls". The picture shows the lava columns in Iceland which were, until recently, widely believed to be trolls who had been petrified by the first rays of dawn. (This, of course, is why trolls only go about at night.) Trolls were huge, dim-witted man-eaters, and worst of all, heathens. A Christian must not consort with them and the punishment for this was brutal: to be outlawed. [4]

At the local level, below the things, clerical control was exercised by a network of churches. By 1350 when the time the Black Death swept over Norway and brought construction to a halt, some 1000 wooden "stave churches" had been built and 28 of these remain today. They are raised on sills to keep them from rotting and have walls of vertical planks with load-bearing corner posts called "staves". Most were not village churches, but were built deep in the woods at former heathen offering places.

The oldest of these to have survived is the church at Urnes (c. 1130). The carving on its portal shows how missionaries used pagan parallels to ease the converts into Christianity. The scene is generally considered to portray Christ overcoming Satan. However, He is here depicted as a "lion" like the carvings on the Viking dragon ships and his adversary is a "snake" like the Midgard Serpent, the enemy of the old Norse gods. [5]

By 1152 Norway had enough churches and ecclesiastical organisation to split off from the general Scandinavian archbishopric in Lund and form a Norwegian Church directly under the pope.

This is when Thomas Breakspear, the papal legate, brought the required pallium from Rome. (For a picture of an early pallium see the fringed scarf displayed by the last Anglo-Saxon archbishop.) Centuries earlier Gregory I had begun to insist that an archbishop had to receive this badge of office from the pope before he could carry out his duties. The requirement of the pallium meant that the pope controlled the appointment of archbishops. However, once a king was granted an archbishopric in his land, the ruler tended to take over the Church organisation and appoint as bishops "king's men" who were loyal and obedient. [6]

Feudal bonds held mediaeval society together. The private agreements that formed the network of mutual services were called contracts of homage and fealty: "homage" because one of the contractants agreed to become the servant (homme, or "man" of the other, and fealty, because he promised to be "feal, faithful" to him). However, the system was inherently unstable because the feudal leaders began to treat governmental functions as private property that they could loan, give, away, or pass on to their children. In the case of a married priest, this could lead to the loss of Church property. This why in 1123 at the First Lateran Council marriages for priests had been forbidden. Before this, if a priest married, the marriage, though illicit and sinful, was valid. Now such a marriage was declared null and void. Married priests were to commanded to leave their wives.

The other danger to the Church from these competing feudal bonds was that a bishop might be chosen by the king, like any other feudal tenant. To prevent the king taking control of the national church, the pope always wanted to be able to name the bishops. This has was one of the stipulations in most concordats. Only the most powerful rulers like the Kings of Spain or France (including Napoleon) were able to insist on their right to appoint bishops.

Notes

The Treaty of Tonsberg, 1277 : The concordat of Magnus the Law-Mender
Magnus the Lawmender issues the first Western secular law code, but is forced by the concordat to let Church courts decide in any matter which they considered within their sphere.

tlthe5th - December 30, 2008 10:47 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Dec 27 2008, 04:48 AM)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

THE BREAKSPEAR FAMILY

[dohtml] [/dohtml]NOW WHOS BEHIND

THE DA VINCI CODE?

2-Disc Widescreen Special Edition
Tom Hanks
A Ron Howard Film
The Da Vinci Code DVD

WHY IT'S

MARK BREAKSPEAR'S

[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

Glad you connected this name to the Da Vinci Code because then i just found this,

"Freud (Matthew who is married to Rupert Murdoch's daughter Elisabeth) played a key role in getting Philip Anschutz access to government ministers, hosting a dinner at which the US billionaire met culture secretary Tessa Jowell. The agency is retained as "strategic consultants" to the Anschutz Entertainment Group, while one of Freud's former executives is special adviser to ... Tessa Jowell.

Other clients include Walkers, Nike, Pepsi and Nestlé. Not that it has entirely left TV and films behind - Freuds also looks after the Bafta awards and oversaw the launch of one of Sony Pictures' biggest releases of the year, The Da Vinci Code."

http://www.guardian.co.uk/media/2006/jul/1...iantop100200644

craig-oxley - December 31, 2008 06:54 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Britney Spears Breaks her Mind Control Conditioning

Short excerpt from "The Butterfly Effect" episode of the Esoteric Science Roundtable with Kory Kortis and guest host Freeman

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="350"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/oQCiSAeuhOE"></param><param name="wmode" value="transparent"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/oQCiSAeuhOE" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" wmode="transparent" width="425" height="350"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

http://www.youtube.com/v/oQCiSAeuhOE

QUOTE

Please note the powerful Jesuit, Leo O Donovan SJ is a director of Disney. -Craig

THE DISNEY BLOODLINE - The Skill of Lying and Deceit

http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...?showtopic=4408

QUOTE

Me smells Stanford Research Institute and Tavistock myself haha. -Craig

Terri Irwin offers Britney Spears a break Down Under

Britney Spears ... is reportedly suffering from multiple personalities that cause her to talk in a British accent.

January 19, 2008 06:52am
http://www.news.com.au/entertainment/story...9-10388,00.html

TERRI Irwin has offered troubled star Britney Spears the chance to escape Hollywood for the real wild life, according to onlne reports today. Have your say!

On websites such as PR-inside.com, Irwin has been quoted as admitting she and her family have been watching the madness surrounding Spears in recent months, and she believes the Toxic singer should head to Australia for a break with nature.

She says, "Bindi's the one who said, 'People who are having trouble should go in the (Australian) Bush with us when we do our crocodile research work.'

"If Britney and her family want to go in the Bush with us, we'd love to have them."

Split personality

If the Irwins do have Spears Down Under, they should prepare themsevles for her alleged split personality disorder.

Reports online in TMZ.com claim the troubled pop princess apparently flips between the British Girl, the Weepy Girl, the Diva and the Incoherent Girl.

Sources told the celebrity news website that after a British personality episode, the singer has no recollection of what she did during that time.

Britney, 26, has been heard talking to photographers and camera crews with an increasingly British accent in recent weeks.

The star seems to change between the Brit drawl and her more familiar southern US voice.

But according to TMZ.com, there is more to Britney's changing accents than meets the eye - or ear.

A source tells the website that the Baby One More Time singer has multiple personalities, and the British Girl is just one of them.

The singer reportedly became the British Girl on the day she failed to show up for her child custody battle deposition - and therefore has no recollection of it.

The state of Britney's mental health has been in the spotlight since cops were called to her home earlier this month.

Read about her recent suicide note, and her dark past involving her grandmother committing suicide here.

The pop star was taken to hospital in an ambulance after she locked herself in the bathroom with youngest son Jayden James and refused to hand him over to ex-hubby Kevin Federline.

See pics from the scene of Britney's dramatic hospitalisation here.

While some media reports claim Britney was under the influence of drugs, others say she is showing signs of bipolar disorder.

The songstress, who is dating paparazzo Adnan Ghalib, is currently banned from seeing her children.

QUOTE

Will Britney Spears Become Another Marilyn Monroe?

http://judicial-inc.biz/81britney_spears_become_anoth.htm

There Is Way Too Much Talk Of A Coming Overdose

Despite The Publicity, She Is Still A Young Naive Girl

She is a fabulous singer, and stunning stage presence, but she is still just a kid. The constant hounding by the Zionist press is not a good sign. It is similar to the way they portrayed JFK Jr. as an incompetent buffoon, after his death.

Spears Was A Superstar At 16

Spears has sold over 83 million records worldwide, and she ranks as the eighth best-selling female artist in American music history, having sold 31 million albums in the U.S. alone. Spears then went into film and television. She is most noted for her starring role in the 2002 movie, Crossroads.

Spears Is Very Wealthy

PepsiCo (manufacturer of Pepsi-Cola) gave Spears a multi-million dollar promotional deal, which included numerous television commercials, point-of-purchase promotions and Internet ties between Spears and the company. She has had four books published, including A Mother's Gift, and seven DVDs released, including her self-produced 2005 reality series Britney & Kevin: Chaotic. She has also went on seven tours, including "The Onyx Hotel Tour" in 2004. She has grossed over US$150 million from tour ticket sales, as well as over $45 million in merchandise from her tours.

Spears endorsed three perfumes, "Curious", "Midnight Fantasy", and "Believe", for which she has earned an estimated $30 million to date.

Spears Marries Kevin Federline

On the night of September 18, Spears married Federline in a surprise, non-denominational ceremony at a residence in Studio City, California. After the marriage, Spears announced her pregnancy seven months after the marriage writing, She announced her second pregnancy in May of 2006.

Federline Impregnates This Beauty

He has a relationship with actress Shar Jackson, who was eight months pregnant with his second child.

Spears Divorces Her husband

Spears filed for divorce from Federline on November 7, citing irreconcilable differences and asking for both physical and legal custody of their two children, with visitation rights for Federline. The following day, Federline filed a response to Spears's divorce petition, seeking physical and legal custody of their children.

Does This Look Like An Evil Mom?

Federline, and the Zionist media, have gone through great lengths to make her appear as an unfit mother, and a drug-addled slut.

Federline's Israeli Bodyguards

Her ex-husband uses Israelis bodyguards, and they were active in the divorce proceedings.

She Had A Confrontation With The Israelis

When she went to drop off her kids, she refused to hand them over to Federline's Jewish thugs. Rumors flew that there may have been threats and a physical confrontation

If She Suddenly Dies

If she dies, than all her money, royalties, and business interests will go to the children. All you need to do is think about the mysterious deaths of Anna Nicole and her son, to realize the depravity of these monsters.

QUOTE

Feb 1 2008 Craig:

YOU WILL BE RE-PROGRAMMED

WHERE OUR COUNTER MEASURES HAVE FAILED IN THE PAST THEY WILL NOT THIS TIME ROUND

PREPARE FOR THE NEW BRITNEY BACK ON STAGE AND NUMBER ONE AGAIN VERY SOON WITH HER LOVELY BLONDE HAIR!

SMELL THAT STANFORD RESEARCH INSTITUTE STENCH ALL THE WAY BACK TO THEIR HEADQUARTERS AT TAVISTOCK!

Britney rushed to hospital again: report

From correspondents in Los Angeles February 01, 2008 12:05am
http://www.news.com.au/entertainment/story...93-7484,00.html

TROUBLED pop princess Britney Spears was rushed to hospital in an ambulance for the second time this month for an involuntary mental health evaluation, US media reported. Spears was taken to the UCLA Medical Centre at about 8.30am (last night AEDT) and was to be placed on a 5150 hold, the involuntary confinement of a person deemed a danger to themselves or others, celebrity website TMZ.com said.

A psychiatrist treating the singer contacted Los Angeles police to set the events in motion, TMZ said, citing “law enforcement sources.”

A Los Angeles Fire Department ambulance transporting the 26-year-old singer was escorted by dozens of police on motorcycles, while a police helicopter hovered overhead, according to a Los Angeles Times account.

The operation appeared to have been “carefully planned over a period of time,” the Times said, with a motorcade the length of a football field surrounding the pop star and keeping photographers and onlookers at bay.

Spears was told of her impending confinement by her psychiatrist and did not resist when paramedics arrived and placed her on a gurney, TMZ said.

The doctor told police of concerns about her reckless driving and erratic behaviour, the website said.

Spears had not slept since Saturday, it said.

The troubled singer was stripped of access to her two young boys at the beginning of the month, after another hospital drama.

During that incident Spears was wheeled out of her home on a stretcher following a stand-off which began when she reportedly refused to release her two children - Sean Preston, 2, and Jayden James, 1 - to ex-husband Kevin Federline's bodyguard.

Spears was taken to the Cedars Sinai Medical Centre for mental evaluation before she discharged herself two days later.

The exact reasons for Spears's admission to hospital have not been revealed although speculation has raged that the singer is suffering from a long-standing psychological illness.

Spears, one of the most successful pop stars of her generation, has been locked in the custody feud with Federline since the couple separated in 2006.

A judge limited the pop star's access to her children in October after she failed to submit to random drug testing as demanded at an earlier hearing where the court ruled Spears was a “habitual and continuous drug user.”

Her latest attempt to regain visitation rights to her two sons was rejected last week after she failed to appear for a Los Angeles court hearing, officials said.

QUOTE

Britney Spears 'worth $120m to US economy'

By Jacqui Goddard in Miami
Last Updated: 4:39pm GMT 02/02/2008
http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/main.jhtml...wbritney302.xml

Her career appears to be fading, her home life is in ruins and fears are growing for her mental health following her committal to psychiatric hospital.

Yet even as she teeters on the brink of disaster, the troubled Britney Spears is doing more than most to prop up the equally faltering US economy.

The pop star, who was sectioned last week in Los Angeles, allegedly for her own safety, is an industrial powerhouse, pumping an estimated $120 million (£60 million) a year into the economy at least, and is indirectly responsible for even more.

The magazine Portfolio calculates that while Spears personally rakes in $9 million a year, what it calls the Britney Industrial Complex – all the associated economic activity that surrounds her – generates on average 13 times as much for those who feed off her.

A court has awarded her father, James, control of her affairs while she is in hospital.

“The Britney economy is the equivalent of a company that employs tens of thousands of people. She’s a goldmine,” said Portfolio writer Duff McDonald, a former investment banker with Goldman Sachs.

Among those who have cashed in are Elizabeth Arden, the cosmetics company, which has sold nearly $100 million worth of fragrances in Spears’s name, and Jive Records, which has made $400 million from the 83 million albums sold since she burst on to the scene in 1999.

Tour promoters and concert venues have pulled in $150 million from her various tours

. Spears, 26, can pocket up to $400,000 per appearance just to show her face at an event like a nightclub opening.

She has also fuelled an estimated boom of $75 million a year for the media, with celebrity magazines reporting sales increases of up to 33 per cent when they put her face on the cover.

The paparazzi who follow her every move – from shopping expeditions and trips to fast-food joints to more explosive public meltdowns – pocket a further $4 million from picture sales.

Last week journalists and photographers massed outside her home once again as she was whisked to hospital for psychiatric checks for the second time in a month.

Yahoo! reports that Spears, whose hit of last year, Piece of Me includes the lyrics, “I’m still an exceptional earner, You want a piece of me?”, has topped its internet search rankings for six of the last seven years. Searches of her name increased by 60 per cent last year.

“Whether she’s shaving her head or battling for custody of her children, Britney seems to grow more fascinating and, to some people, more lucrative every time she stumbles,” Mr McDonald said.

“As one leg of the Britney economy declines, say record sales, another increases, like her paparazzi value. She appears recession-proof.”

QUOTE

Has Britney Spears Flipped Because of Mind-Control?

Alex Constantine – Alex Constantine’s Blacklist February 6, 2008

The average American prole has a hard time facing the fact that the homeland has been ruled by Nazi collaborators and fascists who have engaged in unconscionable crimes for some 50 years - while the proles picked their noses, turned to religion or drugs or belly-button pop music for comfort, and learned to take their programming without a peep from cable perception management outlets. (So, if you fit this description, catch on or wallow in the inanities of the culture at large. Mind control is a prole problem, ultimately, and those who laugh at victims - eg. Britney Spears (right) possibly, or Patty Hearst, without a doubt - are, ironically, the most severely controlled. If you doubt this, consider the political moonshine that streams from a devotee of Fox News - that's mind control programming. The viewer doesn't realize it, but he's a tamed Good German pet on a leash with no more insight into reality than a trained seal. He's also somewhat amusing in his own right ...)

Another kind of mind control may have its hooks into a young performer perpetually in the public eye.

The New York Times, on February 1, laid out some of the serious issues beneath the guffaws of the TV commentators and proles:

"Don’t roll your eyes just yet. There are substantial issues to talk about in this episode, even though it involves a celebrity so many of us are just sick to blazes of hearing about. An article in The Los Angeles Times this morning explores them.

To start with, Ms. Spears did not sign herself in to the hospital, and the incident apparently can’t be chalked up to mere attention-seeking on her part: Family and friends seem to have been trying to force her to get help, and it was her psychiatrist who called the cops. So one issue that arises is involuntary commitment, a concept that sends shudders of dread or anger through many people. The L.A. Times article nutshells it this way:

"'Some believe that virtually any attempt to commit someone involuntarily is a step backward, a reminder of dark days of asylums, forced lobotomies and, more recently, the use of forced restraints and long periods of seclusion.'

"'Others call that wrongheaded and say that with enough protections in place, some people who suffer from mental illness but do not agree that they are sick can be helped by compelled treatment. Failing to compel treatment is akin to denying chemotherapy to a cancer patient, people on that side of the debate say.'

"An image from TMZ.com's video clip of the police motorcade escorting Britney Spears to the hospital in an ambulance early Thursday. The article also details the rather elaborate lengths the L.A.P.D. went to in getting her from her home to the hospital, not to mention the expense ($25,000):

"'Early Thursday morning, the plan was executed with about two dozen police officers, a helicopter and a special team that took Spears out through a gate in an ambulance with covered windows to prevent photographers from looking inside. Police blocked roads so she couldn't be followed.'

"That raises several questions about the role of the police, one of which is whether the police should be in the mental health business at all. ... "
http://thelede.blogs.nytimes.com/2008/02/0...britney-spears/

Now,

"Britney Spears was released back into the wild today after a week spent in captivity at the UCLA Medical Center mental health ward."
http://gawker.com/353509/britney-set-free

This would be the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute - former home of the CIA's Louis J. West, who coordinated all mind control activity for the Agency on the west coast. He was also the psychiatric "expert" who "examined" Jack Ruby (who had an "epileptic fit" that caused him to inadvertently shoot patsy Lee Oswald, supposedly) and Patty Hearst, a known multiple personality, during her trial:

CIA CULTS & ANTI-CULTS

By Alex Constantine – Posted January 1997

J.S.: Alex, do you have any information concerning Dr. Louis Jolyon West, Margaret Singer and CIA connections?

A.C.: From Virtual Government:

"CIA observers everywhere choked when CNN announced that a psychological trauma team, mustered by the American Psychological Association, would converge in Oklahoma City to treat survivors of the explosion and the victims' families -- led by none other than Dr. Louis Jolyon West of UCLA's Neuropsychiatric Institute, the breeding ground of some of the most necrotizing Dr. Strangeloves in the mind-control business. Alumni emeritus of the Institute include Dr. Ross Adey, a former NASA brain scientist with much experience working alongside Nazi doctors who resettled in the U.S. after the war....

"Dr. West is a sinister creation of the Agency's mind-control fraternity. Among other totalitarian projects, he has studied the use of drugs as "adjuncts to interpersonal manipulation or assault," and employed pioneers in the field of remote electronic brain experimentation at UCLA.

"West has recommended to federal officials that drugs be used to control "bothersome" political segments of the population:

"'This method, foreseen by Aldous Huxley [in Brave New World (1932)], has the governing element employing drugs selectively to manipulate the governed in various ways. In fact, it may be more convenient and perhaps even more economical to keep the growing numbers of chronic drug users (especially of the hallucinogens) fairly isolated and also out of the labor market, with its millions of unemployed.

"'To society, the communards with their hallucinogenic drugs are probably less bothersome -- and less expensive -- if they are living apart than if they are engaging in alternative modes of expressing their alienation, such as active, organized, vigorous political protest and dissent.'"

Another cite concerning the signally fascistic Dr. West:

"In 'Pseudo-Identity and the Treatment of Personality Change in Victims of Captivity and Cults' (1994), Dr. Louis 'Jolly' West examines the creation of "changelings," or dissociative personalities that enable the subject of mind-control conditioning to adapt to trauma. 'Prolonged environmental stress,' UCLA's own ranking CIA mind-control specialist observed (in a drastic departure from the public stance of the False Memory Syndrome Foundation, an organization he formerly directed as an advisory board member, on multiplicity), 'or life situations profoundly different from the usual, can disrupt the normally integrative functions of personality. Individuals subjected to such forces may adapt through dissociation by generating an altered persona, or pseudo-identity.'

"Patricia Hearst (examined by Dr. West for trial) hosted an alternate personality named 'Pearl,' he offers, a manifestation more distinct and individuated than 'Tania.' The newspaper heiress was subjected to a regimen of 'persuasive coercion' (a very personal form of harassment by an organized group, any form of intimidation short of violence) and trauma-induced programmimg (of a sort developed by CIA specialists like Dr. West) - 'violently abducted by members of the [CIA-mustered] Symbionese Liberation Army in February of 1974, brutalized, raped, tortured, and forced to participate in illegal acts beginning with the bank robbery for which she was later (in our view wrongly) convicted.

The traumatic kidnapping and subsequent 2 months of torture produced in her a state of emotional regression and fearful compliance with the demands and expectations of her captors. This was quickly followed by the coerced transformation of Patty into Tania and subsequently (less well known to the public) into Pearl, after additional trauma over a period of many months (Hearst & Moscow, 1988; The Trial of Patty Hearst, 1976).

Tania was a role coerced on pain of death; it was Pearl who later represented the pseudo-identity which was found on psychiatric examination by one of us (West) shortly after Hearst's arrest by the FBI. Chronic symptoms of PTSD were also prominent in this case.'"

J.S.: At the ISSD conference, the keynote speaker, Stephen Marmer, began his terrible talk with references to his mentors at UCLA. One of them was West. Then another person I know mentioned knowing Margaret Singer, and thinks she "doesn't understand the basis of mind control very well."

A.C.: She understands it with Panavision clarity. Singer, who worked with Jolly at the community-based Haight-Ashbury LSD culture lab, hails from the Fund for Human Ecology days when she worked on CIA "brainwashing" projects with Robert Jay Lifton, another "scholar," the author of _The Nazi Doctors_, which is short on names and long on the study of converting medical professionals into Nazi sadists. She has also been on the board of the American Family Foundation (AFF), another appendage of the CFF, a particularly oily, very "right-wing" CIA dummy front. Singer has been involved with the Theological Seminary in Berkeley; the university is the home of much mind-control chaos in California, ala Jim Jones.

J.S.: I had heard that she understands all too well, but from the wrong side. Anyway, I'm trying to sort out the truth from the rumor mill, which is quite a daunting task. Also, what do you know about the origins of Cult Awareness Network?

A.C.: CAN was as vile a coalition of mind-control types as you will find this side of the False Memory Syndrome Foundation. The Cult Awareness Network was founded in 1974, incorporated under the name Citizens Freedom Foundation (CFF). The CFF officially changed its name to CAN in 1986.

CAN's founder was Ted Patrick, a known crony of the sinister Ronald Reagan. The CAN network was run for a spell by Patricia Ryan, the daughter of Leo Ryan, a cruel irony considering the central role of the CIA in the Jones cult's formation and grotesque human ruins. Patrick was a three-time felon.

Cult "investigator" Steve Hassan, the national coordinator of FOCUS, a CAN affiliate group, is still an active spin doctor and "deprogrammer." You can find him on the Web.

In West Virginia, CAN leader John Overington, a state legislator, was an advocate of Oliver North and the Iran-Contra crowd. (He also sponsored a bill that would force all X-rated peep-show parlors to install bathrooms.) CAN president Rev. Michael Rokos was forced to step down after it leaked out that he'd been arrested for soliciting young male prostitutes. The arrest report, filed by police cadet Joseph Wyatt, 22, working undercover at the time of the arrest, mentions that Rokos told the officer, "I want you to go home with me. I want you to tie me up, put clothes pins on my nipples and make me suck your dk."

CAN Doctors West and Singer were both feted by the Cult Awareness Network when it was a going concern, a spin-off of the CFF, a known CIA appendage. Singer and CAN exploited the Branch Davidian stand-off in Waco to promote an alternate history of cult activity, one that excluded discussion of the intelligence services and the federal mind-control initiative. After the conflagration in Waco, Dr. West told reporters that the FBI's handling of the crisis was "terrific, outstanding."

Cynthia Kisser, the executive director of CAN, was once a topless dancer and defended pedophiles in Omaha, Nebraska. That was about the caliber of the organization's leadership. Over in CAN's security division, you found Larry Kahaner, a private investigator in Alexandria, Virginia, and Galen Kelley, who was close with the FBI, and once boasted that one of his responsibilities was to keep CAN members "in line."

J.S.: Do you think the takeover by Scientology was orchestrated, or a coincidence after the loss of the lawsuit?

A.C.: Certainly no coincidence on the part of Scientology. The church has long agitated against CAN and ostensibly ran the organization into the hole. But I think CAN members had to bail out because they were becoming notorious. Their reputations were catching up with them, and cult victims weren't buying the BS at CAN's end of the false dialectic designed to distract us from the fact that many cults and anti-cult cults are ultimately the creation of the intelligence sector.
http://aconstantineblacklist.blogspot.com/2008/02/britney-spears-multiplicity-ucla.html

QUOTE

SEEMS HER RE-PROGRAMMING HAS GONE WELL

WHILST WE'RE TOLD SHE'S IN HOSPITAL THEN

AT HOME RECOVERING WE FIND THIS FROM THE

AUSTRALIAN NEWS NETWORKS. I TOLD YOU

THEY WOULD SORT HER AND GET HER BACK TO

NUMBER ONE AGAIN. WATCH FOR THE HAIR

COLOR BACK TO BLONDE ME THINKZ.

Britney reaches out to fans with world tour plans

Britney to showcase new album
Tour due in "next few weeks"
Britney gives free dancing lessons

February 14, 2008 07:49am
http://www.news.com.au/entertainment/story...6-10388,00.html

BRITNEY Spears is rehearsing for a new world tour.

The troubled singer, who has been training hard at Los Angeles' Millennium Dance Complex, is planning to showcase her new album Blackout with a series of international shows.

A source close to the singer told the New York Post newspaper: "Britney will be leaving the country in the next few weeks, after training in privacy for a month. She is planning a global tour."

Britney is also putting her dancing skills to good use in another way - by teaching children.

The mother-of-two voluntarily taught a class of eight children, aged from four to nine, dances including 'the fish', 'the swim' and 'the choo-choo train' on Monday night.

A studio insider said: "When Britney first arrived she went up to each child and asked them their name and whether they liked Madonna, because that was the song they would be dancing to this evening."

Britney was accompanied by an assistant in the class, and after teaching them routines, she asked them to "freestyle" their own moves.

Maya Meek, whose eight-year-old son was in the class, told America's OK! magazine: "My son didn't really know who Britney was, though he dances to all of her music. So when I told him, 'This is the lady who makes all the songs you like,' he got very excited!"

This isn't the first time 26-year-old Britney had volunteered at the complex. She often pops in to lend her skills and advice to keen dancers.

QUOTE

Monday, March 17, 2008
http://peeringthrough.blogspot.com/

The familiar Pinkish hue of Valis bathes Madonna

I guess it's no secret that Madonna was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland, Ohio last week. In her acceptance speech she speaks of being filled with magic, and that after writing her VERY first song she was convinced that "it" had come from elsewhere...Valis confessional to be sure.

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="355"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/hiTwqjefrUw&hl=en"></param><param name="wmode" value="transparent"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/hiTwqjefrUw&hl=en" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" wmode="transparent" width="425" height="355"></embed></object>[/dohtml]
Justin Timberlake introduction of Madonna

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="355"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/enA4OUzR2XM&hl=en"></param><param name="wmode" value="transparent"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/enA4OUzR2XM&hl=en" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" wmode="transparent" width="425" height="355"></embed></object>[/dohtml]
Madonna induction speech Part I

In a related story former Madonna neophyte Britney Spears had her Kabbalah healing tattoo removed recently...I personally relate much of Brit's problems to her fallout with Madonna a few years ago. So, for Madonna to now bring Justin Timberlake into the fold marks yet another slap in the face. The two have produced her new album "Hard Candy" (I'm sure Jake Kotze readers are chomping at the bit for this one! I know I am...).

http://breakingnews.iol.ie/entertainment/s...156&p=z4944886z
http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/13105699/

"Madonna spent months teaching Britney the Kabbalah system and splashed out thousands on the ancient scripture for her," according to a source quoted by Virgin.net, which is further reporting that Madonna is demanding that Spears return the twelfth-century book on Kabbalah that she gave her as a wedding present.
Madonna's rep had no comment by press time, but the source said: "She feels she has wasted time, money and precious gifts on Brit."

Madonna Serpentum by artist John Meluch

from Philip K. Dick Fans.com :
The setting for the Madonna is the Chapel at Crac des Chevaliers which was given by the King of Jerusalem to the Knights Hospitallers - it dates back to the 12th century.
In creating the image of the Madonna Serpentum I am attempting to combine a number of different traditions surrounding the symbol of the serpent which has had almost nothing but evil attributed to it by Christianity. To begin, the snake or serpent is probably the most widely revered creature in world mythology. It is associated not only with the primal waters from which all life was created, but also with the Earth - which makes it the chthonic symbol par excellence. In fact, for many ancient civilizations, the serpent symbolized the underworld and the realm of the dead - hence, its "infernal" aspect.

The biblical serpent, the embodiment of Satan in the Garden of Eden, later becomes the "serpent of brass" in the Book of Moses. This is eventually interpreted in the Book of John as an archetype of the crucified Christ. Jungian psychology views the snake as a symbolic creature going back to the earliest stages of the Earth and the human race. It is an "image of exceptional primordial forces...it is a major symbol of psychic energy."

Moreover, in Asian philosophic systems the "Kundalini Serpent", coiled at the base of the spine (like the caduceus of Hermes and the wand of Asklepios), symbolizes the vital energy to be awakened through meditation.

The Minoan Goddess in the background seen clutching two snakes dates back to 1800 BC.

The serpent appears in many ancient icons, either as a companion of the goddess, or as an accoutrement - a wand, a belt or head-dress. The icon in the upper right corner is the Greek gorgon Medusa whose visage would turn men into stone....clearly a very negative attribute of this ambivalent symbol. Conversely, the "anguipede" - an early Ophite symbol exhibits goddess-like traits such as feet made of serpents (see icon in upper left corner). It appears on a great number of engraved stones called Gnostic or Basilidean Gems. They are the "Christos-Sophia" of the mystic gnostics....which symbolizes divine wisdom and intelligence. by John Meluch

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="355"><param name="movie" value="http://www.youtube.com/v/LrvkU0R8Rds&hl=en"></param><param name="wmode" value="transparent"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/LrvkU0R8Rds&hl=en" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" wmode="transparent" width="425" height="355"></embed></object>[/dohtml]
William Orbit's "Ray of Light" performed by Madonna...I'm such an ass.

QUOTE

Just as we said folks, she's been reprogrammed by her handlers which will be linked with the Stanford Research Institute the U.S Brance of London's Tavistock mind bending center incidentally who trained up SMOM Henry Kissinger for SMOM David Rockefeller. -Craig

Britney's cameo boosts US sitcom

Wednesday, 26 March 2008, 08:31 GMT
http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/entertainment/7314029.stm

Pop star Britney Spears' appearance on US TV comedy How I Met Your Mother has pulled in almost 3m extra viewers.

The CBS show attracted 10.6m people on Monday - its highest ratings this season, according to official figures.

The boost is likely to secure a fourth series, which has averaged 7.8m viewers during its current run.

Spears, whose assets are currently controlled by her father, was praised for her performance as a doctor's receptionist in the show.

Ditzy

The New York Daily News said: "Spears proved she can act every bit as well as she can sing."

"Brit looked slim, trim and gorgeous," added the New York Post.

Spears' father is in control of her affairs until 31 July

Alison Godges, a student at New York University who watched Monday night's show, said: "She looked like the Britney we used to know. Long blonde hair and great make-up. She was funny too."

The star's ditzy character had a crush on the comedy's main protagonist, Ted, and flirted with him badly.

Spears, who was admitted to a psychiatric ward and lost custody of her two sons earlier this year, said working on the show was "terrific".

Meanwhile, a legal challenge to her father's conservatorship of her affairs was dismissed by a California court.

A judge ruled that he did not possess sufficient powers to grant an appeal, lodged on the grounds that Spears had not been given enough notice that the order was being implemented.

craig-oxley - January 1, 2009 05:20 AM (GMT)

[DOHTML]<CENTER>[/DOHTML]

ATHENA

(SPEAR SHAKER)

REMIND YOU OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE?

WHOS REALLY SIR FRANCIS BACON

HE WAS ROSY CROSS

QUOTE

Minerva Britannia

Emblematic picture dedicated "To the most judicious, and learned, Sir Francis Bacon, Knight" is found in the 1612 book, Minerva Britannia. "The emblem shows Bacon's direct connection with the Knights of the Helmet from which Freemasonry evolved. The Knight is wearing a high hat which simulates the Knight's Helmet and the Mason's high hat, to indicate his order and invisibilty; and he has the staff in his right hand in the act of destroying the Serpent of Ignorance."--from Bacon Masonry by George Tudhope

QUOTE

KNIGHTS OF THE HELMET

This "invisible" Order, dedicated to Pallas Athene, seems to have started at Gray's Inn*. The names "William" and "Wilhelm" are derived from the word "Helmet". It seems that Francis Bacon was the acknowledge leader of a talented group, and that Ben Jonson eventually became his "My Man John". Anthony Bacon and Tobie Matthew were obviously trusted members and I am willing to believe that the Earls of Oxford, Southampton, Derby, Pembroke and Montgomery were also associated with this group.

But the real tower of strength behind it--philosophically, legally and academically--was the genius of Francis Bacon; of this I feel reasonably convinced. For four of the Folio plays I claim Baconian authorship unreservedly; for Love's Labour's Lost, which was one of the earliest, and for Julius Caesar, Coriolanus and The Tempest, which were among the last printed. I claim these plays for Bacon, firstly because he was the only great English writer who had been personally acquainted with the Court of Navarre during his younger days in France. Secondly because, later in life, he was the only English House of Commons man, courtier and social thinker capable of conceiving Coriolanus as a calculated deviation from Plutarch, and also because Coriolanus and Julius Caesar seem to me to be the plays of a great orator. Thirdly because The Tempest (like his own New Atlantis) was partly inspired by his personal and close association with the Virginia Company.

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]
The external evidence for Bacon is of a kind which is not available in the case of any other candidate. Not only are there contemporary manuscripts extant in Bacon's hand, but many parallels with the plays exist in his acknowledged writings.

Marlowe, educated at Canterbury and Cambridge, is a more difficult problem. Certainly the plays ascribed to him are the nearest approach to the Shakespearean drama in our literature. Although not to be compared with Shakespeare at his best, yet often it is the same voice that sings. The greatness of planning is also there (as Goethe remarked), but the more subtle delineation of character has not reached maturity. As a competent villain, Dr. Faustus is hardly a match for Iago or Richard III. Marlowe's plays strike one as the work of a younger man or perhaps even of the same man at an earlier stage. Did he really write them, or were they fathered on him after his untimely death? It is impossible to be certain about Marlowe; we know too little about him; and his literary reputation, as we have said, is entirely posthumous. Not a single play was credited to him while he lived.

Oxford, moving in Court circles, had a more likely background. Bacon, moving freely in Court and Commons as well, had an even more likely one; and for him we also have the vast evidence of his own writings. To those who cannot perceive these identities of thought, philosophy, diction and imagination, we can make no further appeal; for beyond the evidence we cannot go. To persuade you further by eloquence or art is not for us. Prospero has long since doffed his magic robe; the pageant is ended, and his last prayer, expressed in his epilogue, is for liberation through your understanding. Let your indulgence set him free.

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]
Versatility in style is a prerogative of great art. Let it not trouble us that the Bard may have been one of England's greatest lawyers. Is there not (as O'Connor pointed out) a vast difference between A Lawyer's Farewell to his Muse and the same Sir William Blackstone's Commentaries ? Is there not a difference in style between Sir Walter Raleigh's Cabinet Council and that ringing poem The Soul's Errand, or between Coleridge's Aids to Reflection and the unearthly Kubla Khan? Does the prose of Shelley's Defence of Poetry--however raised in style--compare with the wild loveliness of the Ode to the West Wind ?

Look once again at the title page of Bacon's De Augmentis opposite. Was the Dutch artist merely amusing himself, or did he express a hidden meaning? Assuredly he points to a restoration of the Mysteries. He suggests unmistakably that the ancient dramatic method of teaching had been reintroduced by Bacon as a parallel to the direct teachings of history and science. For, while pointing to the open text he calls us secretly to the Athenian Hill, through the medium of the tragic Muse; and at his foot is the symbol of the Jester. Surely it is the Shaker of the Spear--the Grand Master of the Knights of the Helmet himself--who sits in that chair. In this one careful engraving the artist reveals Bacon's dual literary purpose. Arts and Sciences, like Tragedies and Comedies, are made of one Alphabet

QUOTE

Troy:

OVERVIEWS & MORE INDEPTH LOOKS AT THE SHAKESPEARE AUTHORSHIP QUESTION & RELATED MATTERS (SUCH AS BACON'S ROSICRUCIAN/MASONIC CONNECTIONS) FROM THE DREADED WIKIPEDIA!:

* Shakespeare authorship question

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Shakespearean...orship_question

The Shakespeare authorship question is the ongoing debate, first recorded in the early 18th century, about whether the works attributed to William Shakespeare of Stratford-upon-Avon were actually written by another writer, or a group of writers. Among the numerous alternative candidates that have been proposed, major claimants have included Francis Bacon, Christopher Marlowe, and William Stanley (6th Earl of Derby). The most popular theory of the 20th century was that Shakespeare's works were written by Edward de Vere (17th Earl of Oxford).

* Edward de Vere, 17th Earl of Oxford: The Shakespearean authorship question

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Edward_de_Ver...orship_question

* Oxfordian theory

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Oxfordian_theory

* Francis Bacon: Bacon and Shakespeare

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Francis_Bacon...and_Shakespeare

* Baconian theory

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Baconian_theory

* Bacon's cipher

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bacon%27s_cipher

* Occult theories about Francis Bacon

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Occult_theori...t_Francis_Bacon

* Christopher Marlowe: Marlowe as Shakespeare

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Christopher_M..._as_Shakespeare

* Marlovian theory

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Marlovian_theory

* William Stanley, 6th Earl of Derby

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/William_Stanl...h_Earl_of_Derby

[DOHTML]<CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

Insurgent - January 1, 2009 05:43 AM (GMT)

Craig you don't believe that Shakespeare was Edward de Vere as Eric says? He wrote it in VAIII as well. He said that Jesuits wanted to erase everything to do with that man, they even stole his land etc.

craig-oxley - January 2, 2009 06:48 AM (GMT)

TREVOR RAVENSCROFT

The Spear of Destiny

THE OCCULT POWER BEHIND THE SPEAR WHICH PIERCED THE SIDE OF CHRIST

blood and water", and, in this moment of the miraculous flowing of the redemptive blood of the Saviour, the failing sight of Gaius Cassius was completely restored.

It is not known whether this veteran officer grasped the talisman of power from the hands of the Israelite Captain to perform this deed, or whether he carried out this spontaneous act of mercy with his own Spear. There is no historical proof to indicate with which weapon it was that he unwittingly fulfilled the prophecy of Ezekiel: "They shall look upon Him whom they have pierced."

In the Temple where Caiaphas and Annas awaited news of the mutilation of the body of the Messiah, the Veil of the Holy of Holies was rent from top to bottom to expose the Black Cube of the Old Covenant which now split along its edges to open out into the form of the Cross. The imageless cult of Jehovah was ended; the religion of the "Open Heavens" had begun.

The Spear, like a catalyst of revelation, furnished the living proof

Avles - January 2, 2009 02:13 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 1 2009, 05:20 AM)

QUOTE

HERE THE IMAGE OF ATHENA "SPEAR SHAKER" ---- moved down below

Minerva Britannia

Emblematic picture dedicated "To the most judicious, and learned, Sir Francis Bacon, Knight" is found in the 1612 book, Minerva Britannia. "The emblem shows Bacon's direct connection with the Knights of the Helmet from which Freemasonry evolved. The Knight is wearing a high hat which simulates the Knight's Helmet and the Mason's high hat, to indicate his order and invisibilty; and he has the staff in his right hand in the act of destroying the Serpent of Ignorance."--from Bacon Masonry by George Tudhope

QUOTE

KNIGHTS OF THE HELMET

This "invisible" Order, dedicated to Pallas Athene, seems to have started at Gray's Inn*. The names "William" and "Wilhelm" are derived from the word "Helmet". It seems that Francis Bacon was the acknowledge leader of a talented group, and that Ben Jonson eventually became his "My Man John". Anthony Bacon and Tobie Matthew were obviously trusted members and I am willing to believe that the Earls of Oxford, Southampton, Derby, Pembroke and Montgomery were also associated with this group.

But the real tower of strength behind it--philosophically, legally and academically--was the genius of Francis Bacon; of this I feel reasonably convinced. For four of the Folio plays I claim Baconian authorship unreservedly; for Love's Labour's Lost, which was one of the earliest, and for Julius Caesar, Coriolanus and The Tempest, which were among the last printed. I claim these plays for Bacon, firstly because he was the only great English writer who had been personally acquainted with the Court of Navarre during his younger days in France. Secondly because, later in life, he was the only English House of Commons man, courtier and social thinker capable of conceiving Coriolanus as a calculated deviation from Plutarch, and also because Coriolanus and Julius Caesar seem to me to be the plays of a great orator. Thirdly because The Tempest (like his own New Atlantis) was partly inspired by his personal and close association with the Virginia Company.
.....Etc.

(My bold underlined words).

Wilhelm >>> William >>> Helmet ("something 'hard', putted on the top of an head/peak".

Present also in the Italian words: William >>> Guglielmo >>> guglia (the highest and sharpy point of a vertical building, natural elevation. Helmet >>> Elmetto (It.)

Helmet shows his logic relationship with the word "Hill". What do the males have among their legs? I bet a sort of 'hill'….

(In Slovenian (= descending from ancient true Venetic language) a 'hill', a generic 'mountain' or natural elevation is termed: "hulm", "hum", etc.).

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 2 2009, 06:53 AM)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

REMIND YOU OF THIS?

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

But this remind me also of:

http://www.destination360.com/europe/greec...vittos-hill.php

QUOTE

Athens is truly a beautiful city, and perhaps no vantage point does the layout as much justice as Lykavittos Hill. Located in the center of the city and rising to a height of 910 feet, Lykavittos can be seen from virtually every corner of the capital city, and its views from the top encompass the city, the surrounding mountains, and the Athens coast. There are a number of ways to reach the top of Lykavittos hill, and no matter how you decide to get there, it is very much worth it in the end. Sure, walking up might be exhausting, but there are spots along the way to grab a bite, and after burning all those calories, dinner at the top of Lykavittos will be that much more enjoyable. Lykavittos Hill makes for a popular spot to visit among the Athens tourism scene, largely in part because of its central location and proximity to the Athens neighborhood of Kolonaki. The Athens hill Lykavittos has various spellings and pronunciations, the others being Lycabettus, Lycabettos and Lykabettos.
.....Etc.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mount_Lycabettus

QUOTE

Mount Lycabettus
From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
Jump to: navigation, search
Mount Lycabettus rising from urban Athens.

Mount Lycabettus (In Greek: Lykavittos, Λυκαβηττ•ς) is a Cretaceous limestone hill in Athens, Greece. At 277 meters above sea level, the hill (also known as Lycabettos or Lykabettos) is the highest point in the city that surrounds it. Pine trees cover its base, and at its peak are the 19th century Chapel of St. George, a theatre, and a restaurant.

The hill is a popular tourist destination and can be ascended by the Lycabettus Funicular, a funicular railway which climbs the hill from a lower terminus at Kolonaki. Lycabettus appears in various legends. Popular stories suggest it was once the refuge of wolves, possibly the origin of its name (which means "the one (the hill) that is walked by wolves"). Mythologically, Lycabettus is credited to Athena, who created it when she dropped a mountain she had been carrying from Pallene for the construction of the Acropolis after the box holding Erichthonius was opened.
Panoramic view of Athens from Mount Lycabettus.

The hill also has a large open-air theater at the top, which has housed many Greek and International concerts.

Erichthonius of Athens

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Erichthonius_of_Athens

QUOTE

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

King Erichthonius (also written Erichthonios, Ancient Greek: •ριχθ•νιος), an early ruler of Athens, was, according to some legends, autochthonous (born of the soil, or Earth) and raised by the goddess Athena. Early Greek histories do not distinguish between him and Erectheus, his grandson, but by the fourth century BCE during Classical times, they are entirely distinct figures.
.....Etc. etc.

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 1 2009, 05:20 AM)

[DOHTML]<CENTER>[/DOHTML]

ATHENA

(SPEAR SHAKER)

King Erichthonius

>>> ".....Henry is an English male given name and a surname, derived from Heinrich of Germanic origin. Equivalents in other languages are Henrik (Scandinavian), Eanruig (Scots Gaelic), Enrico (Italian), Henri (French), Enrique (Spanish), Henrik (Hungarian), Henryk (Polish), Henning (Swedish) and Henrique (Portuguese).....(http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Henry)".

or

>>> "The given name Eric is derived from the name Ei®ríkr, meaning "eternal ruler," compounded from the words ei® "eternal" (cognate to English aye meaning always and Latin aevum, among others) and ríkr,"ruler"

in Old Norse (cognate to -rix in Celtic names and the Latin noun rex, among others)....."

ATHEN = ATON as said by you, Craig - do you remember the old U. Mind thread? Maybe "Are we duped by the tribe of Levi?" or a similar one. Your observation hit me like a lightning. Ask yourself please, why you can encounter often on the top of a HILL/HULM/HUM/HELMET (or at least 'near' it, for example the ancient Roman theatre of Trieste, during Mussolini's reign putted at the light, at the feet of the central hill of Trieste - the hill of saint Just/Giusto (....) - and then Mussolini (the Jesuits) ordered to build near it/near the hill/etc. a "Casa del Fascio" (Fascist public house) with a inner THEATRE, a building today seat of the county station of State Police? See for example this:

".....The terrace that we stand on also forms the top of the disturbingly steep theater of Pergamon. The theater is built into the sheer hill and looks out with a spectacular view over the valley below. The theater is one of the most unique theaters that we see on the field trip. It is steeper and narrow than most others because it was constrained by the natural hillside into which it was built.....":

Arycanda's theatre:
user posted image

Saturnalia brootherhod, the Aton/Hyksos gang, Rome, the Black Jesuits, the threatre/drame, the manipulation of the world like a planetary stage, etc. are all linked. I ask myself, who does back the rising of the Mith of Troy in the XVIII and XIX century? Troy is the false image you see when you try to understand this world. Who really was Schliemann? Why the Saturnalia chose to put the origin of Troy in the Middle East meanwhile there'are evidencies that the events occured in the North Europe? :

http://www.amazon.com/Baltic-Origins-Homer...s/dp/1594770522

QUOTE

http://www.amazon.com/review/product/1594770522/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr_txt?_encoding=UTF8&showViewpoints=1

It is a curious fact that the geographical descriptions furnished in Homer's Iliad (the story of the siege of Troy) and Odyssey (the story of Odysseus's journey home after Troy's fall) do not easily match the assumed Mediterranean topography. Various prehistorians, historians, archeologists, and linguists have expressed their consternation about Homer's geographical details. It was Plutarch (46-120 A.D.), who in his essay "The face that appears in the lunar orb," unequivocally states that Goddess Calypso's island of Ogygia mentioned in the Odyssey was situated "five days' sail from Britain, toward the west."

Vinci, a nuclear engineer by profession and a passionate classicist by vocation, took Plutarch's statement as a serious clue to search for the geography of the Homeric epics in the North Atlantic rather than the Mediterranean. He has amassed a mountain of evidence in favor of the Baltic origins of both Greek epics. Similarities between the mythologies of the North and the Mediterranean have often been pointed out. Vinci argues that a deterioration in climate around 2000 B.C. caused some of the Scandinavian peoples to migrate south. As time went by, the epics were claimed by the Greeks for their own Mediterranean culture and environment.

What about Schliemann's Troy? Although this intrepid explorer undoubtedly discovered the Mycenean civilization, his claim to have unearthed the city of Troy has never been universally accepted. Already Strabo ( ) denied that the "ancient Ilium (Troy)" was to be found in Anatolia. A better candidate for the Homeric Troy than the Anatolian town of Hisarlik, excavated by Schliemann, is possibly the Finnish town of Toija, as suggested by Vinci.

Vinci's audacious rewriting of Homeric culture and mythology is a creative proposition, which deserves to be further investigated. He has my full vote of confidence.

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog:
http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY.
„Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

zenmodi - January 10, 2009 12:11 PM (GMT)

are the Vanderbilt´s related to the Breakspears?

when i researched a bit things about the Vanderbilt family i found their residence called "The Breakers mansion".

just a few images of how it looks like:

http://lh3.ggpht.com/_7VCDrgdXMYk/SFqycGfU...5Qs/Pic+383.jpg

http://2.bp.blogspot.com/_8z059MwoOjo/SLE3...-h/bpic+093.jpg

http://2.bp.blogspot.com/_8z059MwoOjo/SLEn...-h/bpic+076.jpg

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...d_lamp_post.JPG

The Breakers

When they aren´t related anyhow and this post doesn´t belong to here, just delete it.

craig-oxley - January 16, 2009 01:48 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The Alchemist

William A. Breakspeare
(1855/1856-1914/British)
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - January 16, 2009 01:49 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]
MITHRA MYSTERIES

HENRY BREAKSPEAR

BASED IN

MACAU

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

QUOTE

Move over, Vegas — how Macau became the world's no. 1 gaming spot

A colonial backwater just a decade ago, Macau is now the biggest gambling destination in the world.

Puttin' on the glitz: Macau's casinos are adding a little Las Vegas-style glamour. It's a game with multibillion-dollar stakes, featuring richly colorful players, wildly grandiose schemes and an exotic Asian backdrop.

The setting for this contest of corporate chance is Macau, a once-sleepy former Portuguese colony in southern China that is now the undisputed Las Vegas of the East. Within the space of a few short years, the tiny enclave has thrown up giant casinos at a pace that would make a croupier dizzy. Among the bright neon signs now flickering are Sands Macau, Wynn Macau and MGM Grand Macau. Official figures show that in 2006 Macau overtook Las Vegas as the biggest gambling city in the world, drawing in $6.87 billion, a whisker ahead of the $6.69 billion that crossed the tables in Vegas.

And, as the showmen of Nevada might say, you ain't seen nothing yet. All the major Strip players are taking advantage of Macau's decision to open its doors to foreign investment, ending the monopoly previously enjoyed by local tycoon Stanley Ho. The flamboyant Ho, 85, refused to accept the decision pliantly, embarking on a new venture of his own, the Grand Lisboa, a $300 million building so extravagant, gaudy and bombastic it would make a Vegas Strip architect blush. The five-story, glass-clad base is intended to resemble a giant Fabergé egg, while the walls of the interior are lined with almost 600,000 Swarovski crystals.

The object of such extravagance is not merely one-upmanship – rather, Ho and his rivals are aiming to secure a slice of the world's most lucrative gaming pie: the revenue from mainland Chinese gamblers.

The People's Republic of China has laws forbidding its 1.3 billion people from gambling. Macau, however – now a self-governing part of China – is easy for mainlanders to visit, and its casinos make sure visitors have a good time while gently relieving them of their yuan.

The mainland tourists are easy to spot – awkward-looking groups who are clearly awed by such Vegas staples as endless rows of slot machines, dancing girls, fabulous chandeliers and sumptuous buffets. As many as 40,000 gamblers a day visit the Sands casino alone, crowding the 740 tables and helping Chief Executive Sheldon Adelson recoup his company's $365 million investment in record time.

The Sands casino complex is merely the Macau base camp for Adelson, who is forging ahead with a mega-development, the Cotai Strip, which involves reclaiming land from the Pearl River. The $1.8 billion complex, due to open this summer, will have a 3,000-room Venetian hotel, restaurants galore, a giant convention hall, a 2,000-seat showroom, a concert hall and a gigantic shopping mall.

The arrival of such Vegas-style big thinking has brought big changes to Macau. As recently as the turn of the century, its casinos were charmless places – grubby, seedy, smoky and totally bereft of razzle-dazzle. Stanley Ho, the monopoly operator, had little incentive to change or invest, given that his nearest rivals were in South Korea and Malaysia. Macau was content to rely on gamers from next-door Hong Kong, where casino gambling is outlawed.

The catalyst for change was Edmund Ho (no relation to the gaming tycoon), who was appointed Chief Executive of Macau when the colony was handed back to China in 1999. His decision to open up the casino licenses to outsiders brought American investors running – and sent tourism figures surging. The revamped Macau attracts planeloads of enthusiastic, well-heeled punters from nearby Malaysia, Japan, Thailand and Indonesia. A record 22 million people visited last year, and the annual growth rate is in the double digits.

For Macau's permanent population of half a million people, the future looks megawatt bright, with the boom economy bringing jobs galore. But traditionalists mourn the loss of the old Macau, a place where the pace was languid, the lunches long and liquid, and the culture distinctly traditional. Sheldon Adelson and his Vegas cohorts can point out, with some justification, that Macau now has the best of both worlds, boasting the newest and snazziest casinos in the world and UNESCO World Heritage sites galore.

It is doubtful, though, that the Vegas tycoons, or the mainland Chinese tourists, spend much time admiring the architecture. The meeting of the two disparate groups is a match made in money heaven, as newly flush travelers who love to gamble meet big-thinking Americans who put on a heck of a show while pocketing the neophytes' cash.

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - January 16, 2009 07:03 AM (GMT)

Many of the high level Breakspear practice Breatharianism & entity ritual which aids in their extreme life spans of up to three hundred years old. Remember those tribal people who commit a suicide ritual in the masculines when their around two hundred and fifty years old. This kills off the masculines as their own depopulation agenda. The feminines die around one hundred and fifty due to the child birthing. This folks is the truth, theres occultish families tied in with Mithra Mysteries living up to 500 years old in some families such as the Aldobrandinis. This is the real illuminati not Rothschilds Hofjudens who love to try and marry into these lines. Like David Rothschild for instance. This World is controlled by the gentiles not Hofjuden Sabbatean Frankists.

QUOTE

Two types of breatharians

http://www.angelfire.com/stars3/breathe_light/types.html

A breatharian is a person who does not eat or drink and is nourished by pure energy. Some sources say that breatharians live of light, some say they live of prana, others say it is sunlight, or air. Trying to figure out what nourishes a breatharian, I found two categories in all of this.
For a closer description and comparison on each of these sources of nourishment, see this page.

Living on light

One of the two types of breatharians I found, are those who live on light.
Light: Light is the complete matter from which all matter originates and exists within. Light contains all colors, colors are the smallest auric aspects of any type of matter or atom, these in turn are everything that exists including nutrition and our body.

Requirement 1: For a person to live on light, there are a number or requirements. When a person is in denial of an aspect of themselves, their energy flow is blocked. Denial creates these blockages. A person who knows who they are, and accepts who they are, has no blockages or denials and gets an active energy flow (very rare). The person's aura becomes white. The white light is now flowing in the body. Being all of who one is, is a requirement.

Requirement 2: Consciousness of who one is makes the DNA active and magnetic. And so, when any part of the body, eg. blood cells or hair, needs to be built, and there is the need of body material, the DNA pulls from the light that now flows in the body, the colors which will manifest the required body material. There is instant manifestation of the body.

The breatharian: This kind of breatharian lives of life alone. The person does not eat, does not drink. There is never any hunger or thirst. Sleep is for only a few hours at night. This breatharian has never ending energy. Ageing is stopped and reversed. A breatharian with active DNA is immortal.

Living on Prana/Sunlight/Air

The second category of breatharians are the ones who do not live of light, but do not eat or drink. They live of other forms of energy.

Prana/Sunlight/Air: Whereas white light contains the source of all colors and wavelengths, which simply are other aspects of a type of material, prana, sunlight and air do not. White light is the strongest, purest and only complete energy.
Prana: Prana is an etheric substance, yellow white in color. It is a specific form of liquid energy which supports biological life. A person does not require an active energy flow or active DNA to live of prana. Eating food tends to block the effects of prana. Not eating makes the effects of prana stronger, this is because the little amount of prana we can find is often too 'quiet' comparing to the 'loud dense' energies of the foods we eat. We only require a small amount of dense food material for the 'voice' or 'wavelength' of prana to be too weak to have effect.

Sunlight: Sunlight contains various wavelengths which manifest their corresponding body material when they reach the body. Sunlight does not contain all wavelengths, and thus can not provide with all nutrients.

Air: This is a more chemical source of nutrition. Nitrogen for example combines with other already existing substances to form other nutrients.

Requirements: Prana requires first of all that the person eats less of the dense harmful foods. The toxins in our food destroy not only antioxidants and cells but also prana. And secondly, the inadequate amounts of prana in many areas of the world require that the person spends a few minutes every day consciously breathing in and accumulating prana into their body for prana to be a sufficient source of nutrition. As for living on sunlight, it may require a warmer climate, especially since warmth itself is a wavelength from the sun and there is less of it in winters. Living on air requires an excellent breathing technique, deep breathing. It can be difficult to learn, but is very effective. But air does not contain even close to many of the vital nutrients our body needs to function. And our air can not provide us with antioxidants, nutrients that guard our body from the harm of polluted air. People have added toxins to the air, but forgotten to add the neutralising antioxidants! ;)

The disadvantages: Living on prana alone provides with up to 80% of required nutrients, but does not give immortality or necessarily stop ageing. Sunlight is inadequate as a single source of nourishment. Sunlight combined with air, too, are not sufficient. Air alone won't work. Especially the skeleton will suffer if a person tries to live of air alone.

The breatharian: Skills are required to live on any combination of prana/sunlight/air. Such as meditating to accumulate prana, being out in the sun, and deep breathing. Nor is it completely 100% effective and the person may need to drink or eat a little now and then. I recommend that a person living on these is cautious. The wanting to 'stop eating' should, I think, not be top priority. Your health and well being should be what you find most valuable.

Three types of breatharians

Although I'd say there are two types of breatharianism that works, there are perhaps three ways, of which I am sceptic toward this third one.

People who are not in tune to prana or light may still try to find breatharianism, this by relying on living on sunlight and air. Sunlight and air are some of the things we can easily perceive of this world, they are dense enough. But if we try to live without the less dense nutrition - such as found in prana or light - our less dense aspects die off and we can't live without these. It may work to stay alive for a period of time, although it does not provide with enough wavelengths to keep the entire human body completely well, thriving or immortal. My guess is that a person can survive on sunlight and air, but will keep ageing and suffer from nutrient deficiencies.

This page is all according to my thoughts and conclusions. Based mainly on tuning in, in other words an intuition which doesn't seem to fail. It could also be proven in science, but that work is extensive and I'll deal with that part later in life.

craig-oxley - October 9, 2009 02:38 PM (GMT)

House Targaryen

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/House_Targary...elor_Breakspear

House Targaryen is a fictional family in George R. R. Martin's A Song of Ice and Fire. House Targaryen ruled as the Kings of Westeros for nearly 300 years. Their seats were the capital city of King's Landing and the island castle of Dragonstone. Their sigil is a three-headed dragon breathing flames, red on black, and their words are "Fire and Blood."

Baelor Breakspear

The first-born child of King Daeron the Good and Myriah Martell, Baelor first gained renown for leading the Dornishmen to the Redgrass Field to defeat Daemon Blackfyre. Baelor was Prince of Dragonstone and heir to the throne, and served as his father's Hand for the later part of his reign; he was the shining hope of the realm with the potential to be a great king. Baelor was accidentally slain by his brother Maekar, later king Maekar I, in a trial by combat brought about by Aerion Brightflame's bad behavior. His sons, Valarr and Matarys, and his father followed him to the grave during the Great Spring Sickness.

Dan81xd - March 18, 2010 09:07 AM (GMT)

Warstone Lane Cemetery, Birmingham
A to G
These pictures are from a day around Warstone Cemetery looking for my Ancestors.
I hope they help you in your research.
I do have SOME better images of the gravestone pictures if you would like them, just contact me
Click on a name to take you to the Gravestone Image

Annie Breakspear - 1921

Catherine Mary Breakspear - 1933

Emma Breakspear - 1891

John Breakspear - 1920

William Arthur Breakspear - 1920

A Family Breakspear in UK??

LINK:
http://warwickshire-info.pwp.blueyonder.co...gham_a_to_g.htm

craig-oxley - March 18, 2010 01:58 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (Dan81xd @ Mar 18 2010, 09:07 AM)

Warstone Lane Cemetery, Birmingham
A to G
These pictures are from a day around Warstone Cemetery looking for my Ancestors.
I hope they help you in your research.
I do have SOME better images of the gravestone pictures if you would like them, just contact me
Click on a name to take you to the Gravestone Image

Annie Breakspear - 1921

Catherine Mary Breakspear - 1933

Emma Breakspear - 1891

John Breakspear - 1920

William Arthur Breakspear - 1920

A Family Breakspear in UK??

LINK:
http://warwickshire-info.pwp.blueyonder.co...gham_a_to_g.htm

I've been right next to this cemetery many times these last few weeks! I must point out that this is slap bang within the rich pickings area of the Jewellery Quarter of Birmingham. Makes sense when you think about it. What I've noticed about the stores in this area is that they mostly have three steps into their entrances. This ties into the three lodges of basic Freemasonry leading to the blue Lodge. Its interesting when you look at the pub in Spencer Street called the Jewellers Arms and their logo. This is of a Jeweller holding a gemstone whilst throwing the 666 hand signal.

> QUOTE
>
> Warstone Lane Cemetery, (grid reference SP059877), also called Brookfields Cemetery, Church of England Cemetery, or Mint Cemetery, is a cemetery dating from 1847 in Birmingham, England. It is one of two cemeteries located in the city's Jewellery Quarter, in Hockley (the other being Key Hill Cemetery). It is no longer available for new burials.
>
> A notable feature is the two tiers of catacombs, whose unhealthy vapours led to the Birmingham Cemeteries Act which required that non-interred coffins should be sealed with lead or pitch.
>
> The foundation stone for the chapel (demolished 1954) was laid on 6 April 1847. The blue brick lodge gate (Hamilton & Medland 1848) building survives[1] and is grade II listed. The cemetery is itself grade II on the Register of Parks and Gardens of Special Historic Interest.
>
> Famous people buried there include:
> John Baskerville
> James Cooper VC
>
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Warstone_Lane_Cemetery

Dan81xd - March 19, 2010 02:56 AM (GMT)

http://therapists.psychologytoday.com/rms/...ashington_46359

Ms. Pippa Breakspear
Drug & Alcohol Counselor/Therapist, MEd, CDP Verified

Office
1118 Finnegan Way
Suite 103
Bellingham, Washington 98225
Show map
Contact Information
phone: (360) 961-3075
fax: (360) 733-9499
Email me
Send profile to friend
Visit my homepage

“Addiction treatment has made great strides in the last five years. There are now medications available that reduce cravings for addicts and alcoholics. I work directly with physicians who are well versed with these medications. I am familiar with the various funding options available for those without health insurance or other coverage, the outpatient and in-patient treatment facilites, and the variety of resources available in this community. For other client needs and issues, I help them identify goals and realistic solutions and provide support throughout the process. I make myself available to my clients by phone, inbetween sessions.

I work with families struggling with addiction, be it them, or another family member. Addiction is a family disease and everyone needs support. I also provide intervention services, motivational counseling, couples counseling, life coaching and address issues of codependency, grief and loss, trauma and PTSD.

I tend to work outside the box. When the situation demands I will meet families/clients outside the office and see clients at the weekend if that is the only option. I have jail access which allows me to visit clients who are incarcerated and advocate on their behalf."
Ms. Pippa Breakspear offers a free phone consultation
To arrange a time, send an email to Ms. Pippa Breakspear

GENERAL

* Gender: Female
* Years in Practice: 7 Years
* Avg Cost (per session): $90 - $100
* Accepts Insurance: No

CLIENT FOCUS

* Ethnicity: Any
* Gender: All
* Religious Orientation: Any
*

* Age: Adults, Elders

QUALIFICATIONS

* School: Western Washington University
* Year Graduated: 2004
* License No. and State: CP00004559 Washington

SPECIALTIES
(Strengths in green)

* Addiction or Substance Abuse
* Relationship Issues
* Life Coaching
* Depression
* Anxiety or Fears
* Divorce
* Domestic Abuse or Domestic Violence
* Loss or Grief
* Trauma and PTSD
* Codependency

TREATMENT PREFERENCES

* Orientation: Coaching
Cognitive Behavioral (CBT)
* Modality:
* Individuals
* Couples
* Family

EASY ACCESS

* Nearby Towns: Bellingham, WA, Ferndale, WA
* Nearby Counties: Whatcom
* Nearby Zips: 98225, 98226, 98248

Last Modified: 27 Feb 2010
---
http://www.whatcompjc.org/mediaconf/speakers.html

Pippa Breakspear is a film-maker, chemical dependency treatment counselor and an adult educator in Bellingham. She has worked in film production for 26 years and is the filmmaker of On the Rocks, a film about chemical and alcohol dependency.

http://surrender2sobriety.com/about.html

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: BLOODLINE-LED ROYAL CHIVALRIC ORDERS

Title: BLOODLINE-LED ROYAL CHIVALRIC ORDERS

soulinspiration - February 13, 2010 01:35 AM (GMT)

ORDER OF CHARLES II (GRAND MASTER: JUAN CARLOS I OF SPAIN)

Check the EU/Revelation woman with stars, Maltese cross & fleur-de-lys bloodline smorgasbord of symbolism here:

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm..._Carlos_III.svg

---

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Order_of_Charles_III

QUOTE

Order of Charles III

The Royal and Distinguished Spanish Order of Carlos III was established by the King of Spain Carlos III by means of the Royal Decree of 19 September 1771, with the motto Virtuti et mérito. Its objective is to reward people for their actions in benefit to Spain and the Crown. Since its creation, it has been the most distinguished civil award that can be granted in Spain, despite its categorisation as a military order. It was formally converted to a civil order in 1847.

The Order was later regulated in an Royal Decree of 1992[1] (in which was set the objective of "rewarding the citizens who, with their effort, initiative and work, have brought a distinguished and extraordinary service to the Nation") and by an Order of 8 May 2000.[2]

Today the Grand Master of the order is King Juan Carlos I of Spain.

The Grand Cross

The Grand Cross of the Order of Charles III is reserved for those who, having completed relevant service to Spain, having been Presidents of the Congress of Deputies, the Senate, the Constitutional Court of the Supreme Judicial Council, the Supreme Court, Ministers or other senior officials of the state. The maximum number of Grand Crosses are limited to one hundred, not counting those accorded to Ministers.

References

^ (Spanish) Royal Decree 1051/2002, 11 October, by which the Regulation of the Royal and Distinguished Spanish Order of Carlos III is passed ^ (Spanish) Order of 8 May 2000 by which the Regulation of the Royal and Very Distinguished Order of Carlos III is adapted to the current circumstances and conditions.
Wikimedia Commons has media related to: Order of Charles III

RELATED PIX:

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm..._Carlos_III.svg

http://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/Category..._of_Charles_III

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...al_Napoleon.jpg

http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/comm...II_IMG_3504.JPG

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: House of Savoy

Title: House of Savoy

craig-oxley - January 29, 2010 10:40 PM (GMT)

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/House_of_Savoy

House of Savoy

The House of Savoy (Italian: Casa Savoia) was formed in the early eleventh century in the historical Savoy region. Through gradual expansion, it grew from ruling a small county in that region to eventually rule the Kingdom of Italy until the end of World War II. Some argue, at the time that the title of king was abolished in 1946, the House of Savoy was the longest surviving royal house in the world.[1]

History

The House of Savoy emerged, along with the free communes of Switzerland, in what is now called Switzerland. The name derives from the historical region Savoy in what is now France. Over time the house expanded from that region to rule almost all of the Italian Peninsula. Yet their growth and survival over the centuries was not based on spectacular conquests, but on gradual territorial expansion through marriage and methodical and highly manipulative political acquisitions.
[edit]
Early history

The house descended from Humbert I, Count of Sabaudia (Umberto I "Biancamano"), (1003–1047 or 1048). Humbert's family are thought to have originated from near Magdeburg in Saxony, with the earliest recording of the family being two tenth century brothers, Amadeus and Humbert.[2] Though originally a poor county, later heirs to the throne were diplomatically skilled, and gained control over strategic mountain passes in the Alps. Two of Humbert's sons were bishops at the Abbey of Saint Maurice on the River Rhone east of Lake Geneva, and Saint Maurice is still the patron of the House of Savoy.

Humbert's son, Otto of Savoy ascended the throne in 1051 after the death of his elder brother Amedeo and married the Marchioness Adelaide of Turin, passing the Marquessate of Susa, with the towns of Turin and Pinerolo, into the House of Savoy's possession.[3] This diplomatic skill caused the great powers such as France, England, and Spain to take the dukes' opinions into account.

They once had claims on the modern canton of Vaud, where they occupied the Château of Chillon in Switzerland, but their access to it was cut by Geneva during the Protestant Reformation, after which it was conquered by Bern. Piedmont was later joined with Sabaudia, and the name evolved into "Savoy" (Italian "Savoia"). The people of Savoy were descended from the Celts and Romans.

Expansion, retreat and prosperity

By the time Amadeus VII came to power in the late fourteenth century, the House of Savoy had gone through a series of gradual territorial expansions and he was elevated by the Holy Roman Emperor Sigismund to the Duke of Savoy in 1416.

However, the years of the Renaissance in Europe witnessed the invasion and occupation of Piedmont by the French. When Charles VIII of France invaded Savoy, Piedmont, and Italy in 1494 and conquered Naples, the House of Savoy retreated and established its residence in Turin, where it remained until the unification of Italy.

When Emmanuel Philibert came to power in 1553 most of his family's territories were in French hands, so he offered to serve France's leading enemy the House of Habsburg, in the hope of recovering his lands. He served Philip II as Governor of the Netherlands from 1555 to 1559. In this capacity he led the Spanish invasion of northern France and won a victory at St. Quentin in 1557. He took advantage of various squabbles in Europe to slowly regain territory from both the French and the Spanish, including the city of Turin. He moved the capital of the duchy from Chambéry to Turin and replaced Latin as the duchy's official language with Italian.

The seventeenth century brought about economic development to the Turin area and the House of Savoy took part in and benefitted from that. Charles Emmanuel II developed the port of Nice and built a road through the Alps towards France. And through skillful political manoeuvres territorial expansion continued. In early eighteenth century in the War of the Spanish Succession Victor Amadeus switched sides to assist the Habsburgs and via the Treaty of Utrecht they rewarded him with large pieces of land in northeastern Italy, and a Crown in Sicily.
[edit]
The Kingdom of Italy

The crown of Sicily, the prestige of being kings at last, and the wealth of Palermo helped strengthen the House of Savoy further and they established themselves in the Kingdom of Sardinia. In 1792 Piedmont-Sardinia joined the First Coalition against the French First Republic, but was beaten in 1796 by Napoleon and forced to conclude the disadvantageous Treaty of Paris (1796), giving the French army free passage through Piedmont. In 1798 Joubert, occupied Turin and forced Charles Emmanuel IV to abdicate and leave for the island of Sardinia. Eventually, in 1814 the kingdom was restored and enlarged with the addition of the former Republic of Genoa by the Congress of Vienna.

In the meantime, nationalist figures such as Giuseppe Mazzini were influencing popular opinion. Mazzini believed that Italian unification could only be achieved through a popular uprising, but after the failure of the 1848 revolutions, the Italian nationalists began to look to the Kingdom of Sardinia and its prime minister Count Cavour as the leaders of the unification movement. In 1848 under the Statuto Albertino Charles Albert conceded a constitution to the Kingdom of Sardinia including the parts of north-western Italy, such as Piedmont. The Statuto Albertino remained at the basis of the Kingdom's legal system even after Italian unification was achieved and the Kingdom of Sardinia became the Kingdom of Italy in 1861.

The Kingdom of Italy was the first Italian state to include the Italian Peninsula since the fall of the Roman Empire. But when Victor Emmanuel was crowned King of Italy in 1861, his reign did not control Venetia and Lazio. Yet the House of Savoy continued to rule Italy for several decades through the Italian Independence wars as the Italian unification continued and even as the First World War raged on in the early 20th century.
[edit]
Controversies

Over the centuries, the House of Savoy had its share of controversies (including massacres of unarmed civilians including children and old people) on more than one occasion.

In April 1655, based on (perhaps false) reports of resistance by the Waldensians, a Protestant religious minority, to a plan to resettle them in remote mountain valleys, Charles Emmanuel II ordered their general massacre. The massacre was so brutal it aroused indignation throughout Europe. Oliver Cromwell, then ruler in England, began petitioning on behalf of the Waldensians, writing letters, raising contributions, calling a general fast in England and threatening to send military forces to the rescue. The massacre prompted John Milton's famous sonnet: On the Late Massacre in Piedmont.

In 1898 the Bava-Beccaris massacre in Milan involved the use of cannons against unarmed protesters (including women and old people) during riots in Milan over the rising price of bread. King Umberto I of the House of Savoy congratulated General Fiorenzo Bava-Beccaris for the massacre and decorated him with the medal of Great Official of Savoy Military Order, greatly outraging a large part of the public opinion. As a result Umberto I was assassinated in July 1900 in Monza by Gaetano Bresci, the brother of one of the women massacred in the crowd, who traveled back to Italy from the United States for the assassination.

[edit]
Fascism and end of monarchy

When the First World War ended, the Treaty of Versailles fell short of what had been promised in the London Pact to Italy. As the economic conditions in Italy worsened after the war, popular resentment and along with it the seeds of Italian fascism began to grow and resulted in the March on Rome by Benito Mussolini.

General Pietro Badoglio advised King Victor Emmanuel III that he could easily sweep Mussolini and his rag-tag Blackshirt army to one side, but Victor Emmanuel decided to tolerate Mussolini. Later, the King's failure, in the face of mounting evidence, to move against the Mussolini regime's abuses of power led to much criticism. Though the King claimed in his memoirs that it was the fear of a civil war that motivated his actions, it would seem that he received some 'alternative' advice, possibly from Antonio Salandra and possibly some pro-Fascist elements in his immediate family, including Margherita of Savoy, his mother. In retrospect, members of the House of Savoy and the moneyed class in Italy, felt that Mussolini and his regime offered a more stable and appealing option to the other alternative they perceived: socialism.

Eventually, the King's decision had dire future consequences for Italy and for the monarchy itself. On October 28, 1922, Victor Emmanuel III selected Mussolini to become Italian Prime Minister, allowing Mussolini and the Fascist Party to pursue their political ambitions as long as they supported the monarchy. As Mussolini and the axis powers failed in the Second World War in 1943 Victor Emmanuel removed Mussolini from office and named Pietro Badoglio as his replacement. However, he made a blunder when he negotiated a surrender to the Allies without ordering the army to defend Rome. Left without orders, the army virtually disintegrated. Victor Emmanuel and his government fled south to Brindisi. Victor Emmanuel transferred most of his powers to his son, Crown Prince Umberto, in April 1944. Within a year, public opinion forced a plebiscite to decide between retaining the monarchy or becoming a republic. In hopes of influencing the vote, Victor Emmanuel formally abdicated on May 9, 1946. It did not work; 54% of the voters favored declaring a republic in the referendum held less than a month later. The Savoy family was required to leave the country. Taking refuge in Egypt, Victor Emmanuel died in Alexandria in 1947 and was buried there.

The rule of the House of Savoy thus ended with the 1946 referendum by which Italians chose the republic as the form of state (see also birth of the Italian Republic). Under the Constitution of the Italian Republic, male descendants of the House of Savoy were forbidden from entering Italy. This provision was removed in 2002 but as part of the deal to be allowed back into Italy, Vittorio Emanuele the last claimant to the House of Savoy renounced all claims to the throne[4].
[edit]

House of Savoy today

The Residences of the Royal House of Savoy in Turin and the neighbourhood are protected as a World Heritage Site. Although the titles and distinctions of the Italian royal family have been legally abolished, the remaining members of the House of Savoy still insist on using various titles, including the Counts of Savoy, the Dukes of Savoy, the Kings of Sardinia, and the Kings of Italy.

Currently the leadership of the House of Savoy is contested by two cousins: Victor Emmanuel, Prince of Naples, who used to claim the title of King of Italy and Duke Amadeo of Savoy who still claims the title of the Duke of Savoy. Their rivalry has not always been peaceful - on May 21, 2004, following a dinner held by King Juan Carlos I of Spain on the eve of the wedding of his son Felipe, Prince of Asturias, Vittorio Emanuele punched Amadeo twice in the face.[5]

The remaining members of the House of Savoy have been engulfed in controversy in the twenty-first century. On June 16, 2006 Vittorio Emanuele was arrested in Varenna and imprisoned in Potenza on charges of corruption and recruitment of prostitutes for clients of the Casinò di Campione (casino) of Campione d'Italia.[6][7][8] After several days, Vittorio Emanuele was released and placed under house arrest instead.[9] He was released from house arrest on July 20, but he had to stay inside the Italian borders.

Vittorio Emanuele's son Emanuele Filiberto of Savoy works in Geneva as a hedge fund manager. In 2007, lawyers representing the father and son wrote to Italian President Giorgio Napolitano seeking damages for their years in exile.[10] During a television interview, Emanuele Filiberto also requested that Roman landmarks such as the Quirinale palace and Villa Ada should return to the Savoy family. The Italian prime minister’s office has released a statement stating that the Savoys are not owed any damages and suggesting that Italy may demand damages from the Savoys for their collusion with Benito Mussolini. The Italian constitution contains a clause stripping the Savoys of their wealth on exile.
[edit]
List of rulers
[edit]
Counts of Savoy
Main article: County of Savoy

Main Branch
Humbert I "Biancamano" ("White hand") : 1003–1047 or 1048
Amadeus I : 1048–1051 or 1056
Otto : 1051 or 1056–1060
Peter I : 1060–1078
Amadeus II : 1060–1080
Humbert II : 1080–1103

Amadeus III : 1103–1148
Humbert III : 1148–1189
Thomas I : 1189–1233
Amadeus IV : 1233–1253
Boniface : 1253–1263
Peter II : 1263–1268
Philip I : 1268–1285
Amadeus V : 1285–1323
Edward I : 1323–1329
Aimone : 1329–1343
Amadeus VI : 1343–1383
Amadeus VII : 1383–1391
Amadeus VIII : as Count of Savoy 1391–1416
[edit]
Dukes of Savoy
Main article: Duchy of Savoy
Amadeus VIII : as Duke of Savoy 1416–1440
Louis : 1440–1465
Amadeus IX : 1465–1472
Philibert I : 1472–1482
Charles I : 1482–1490
Charles (II) John Amadeus : 1490–1496
Philip II : 1496–1497
Philibert II : 1497–1504
Charles III : 1504–1553
Emmanuel Philibert : 1553–1580
Charles Emmanuel I : 1580–1630
Victor Amadeus I: 1630–1637
Francis Hyacinth : 1637–1638
Charles Emmanuel II : 1638–1675
Victor Amadeus II : 1675–1720, 1730–1732, as 1st king of Sardinia 1720–1730
[edit]
Kings of Sardinia
Main article: Kingdom of Sardinia
Victor Amadeus II : 1720–1730
Charles Emmanuel III : 1730–1773
Victor Amadeus III : 1773–1796
Charles Emmanuel IV : 1796–1802
Victor Emmanuel I : 1802–1821
Charles Felix : 1821–1831

Savoy-Carignano Branch
Charles Albert : 1831–1849

Victor Emmanuel II : 1849–1861
[edit]
Kings of Italy
Main article: Kingdom of Italy (1861–1946)
Victor Emmanuel II : 1861–1878
Humbert I : 1878–1900
Victor Emmanuel III : 1900–1946
Humbert II : 1946
[edit]
Rulers of other countries
King Amadeus I of Spain (son of Victor Emmanuel II of Italy) : 1871–1873
King Tomislav II (Prince Aimone, 4th Duke of Aosta) of Croatia (grandson of Amadeus I of Spain) : 1941–1943
[edit]
Heads of the House of Savoy since 1946
Umberto II : 1946–1983

As of July 7, 2006, the leadership of the House of Savoy is now contested by two cousins:
Crown Prince Vittorio Emanuele, Prince of Naples, son of the last king, Umberto II, claimant since father's death in 1983. Claim disputed due to unauthorized marriage in 1971, and renunciation of succession rights as a condition for returning from exile in 2002.
Prince Amedeo, Duke of Aosta,[11] who claims the title of the Duke of Savoy: July 7, 2006–present. Next in line of dynastic succession, claims position as head of royal family in place of Vittorio Emanuele house due to above conditions.

See also: Lists of incumbents, List of Presidents of the Italian Republic
[edit]
Name, motto, titles

Name of the dynasty: Reale Casa di Savoia

House of Savoy Coat of Arms on 1861 flag of Italy

Motto: FERT
The Motto is believed an acronym of "Foedere Et Religione Tenemur" (We will be kept together by the [constitutional] pact and by religion) but others suggest:
"Fortitudo Eius Rhodum Tenuit" (His strength preserved Rhodes). This refers to Duke Amadeo V "the Great" (1249–1323), who fought against the Saracens at the siege of Rhodes in 1310.
"Fortitudo Eius Rempublicam Tenet" (His bravery preserves the Republic)

"Fides Est Regni Tutela" (Faith is the protection of the kingdom)
The proposed origin from "Femina Erit Ruina Tua" (Woman will be your ruin) is obviously only a satire.
Another famous spurious satire is "Frappez, Entrez, Rompez Tout!", roughly translated from the French as "Knock, get in, then break everything!" It is supposedly a French witticism mocking the freebooting foreign policies of Duke Vittorio Amadeo II.
[edit]
Titles of the Crown of Sardinia

Kingdom of Sardinia map

VITTORIO AMEDEO III, per la grazia di Dio Re di Sardegna, Cipro, Gerusalemme e Armenia; Duca di Savoia, Monferrato, Chablais, Aosta e Genevese; Principe di Piemonte ed Oneglia; Marchese in Italia, di Saluzzo, Susa, Ivrea, Ceva, Maro, Oristano, Sezana; Conte di Moriana, Nizza, Tenda, Asti, Alessandria, Goceano; Barone di Vaud e di Faucigny; Signore di Vercelli, Pinerolo, Tarantasia, Lumellino, Val di Sesia; Principe e Vicario perpetuo del Sacro Romano Impero in Italia.

The English translation is: Victor Amadeus III, by the Grace of God, King of Sardinia, Cyprus, Jerusalem, Armenia, Duke of Savoy, Montferrat, Chablais, Aosta and Genevois, Prince of Piedmont and Oneglia, Marquis (of the Holy Roman Empire) in Italy, of Saluzzo, Susa, Ivrea, Ceva, Maro, Oristano, Sezana, Count of Maurienne, Nice, Tende, Asti, Alessandria, Goceano, Baron of Vaud and Faucigny, Lord of Vercelli, Pinerolo, Tarentaise, Lumellino, Val di Sesia, Prince and perpetual Vicar of the Holy Roman Empire in Italy.
[edit]
Titles of the Crown of Italy

Victor Emmanuel II, by the Grace of God and the Will of the Nation, King of Italy, King of Sardinia, Cyprus, Jerusalem, Armenia, Duke of Savoy, count of Maurienne, Marquis (of the Holy Roman Empire) in Italy; prince of Piedmont, Carignano, Oneglia, Poirino, Trino; Prince and Perpetual vicar of the Holy Roman Empire; prince of Carmagnola, Montmellian with Arbin and Francin, prince bailliff of the Duchy of Aosta, Prince of Chieri, Dronero, Crescentino, Riva di Chieri e Banna, Busca, Bene, Brà, Duke of Genoa, Monferrat, Aosta, Duke of Chablais, Genevois, Duke of Piacenza, Marquis of Saluzzo (Saluces), Ivrea, Susa, del Maro, Oristano, Cesana, Savona, Tarantasia, Borgomanero e Cureggio, Caselle, Rivoli, Pianezza, Govone, Salussola, Racconigi con Tegerone, Migliabruna e Motturone, Cavallermaggiore, Marene, Modane e Lanslebourg, Livorno Ferraris, Santhià Agliè, Centallo e Demonte, Desana, Ghemme, Vigone, Count of Barge, Villafranca, Ginevra, Nizza, Tenda, Romont, Asti, Alessandria, del Goceano, Novara, Tortona, Bobbio, Soissons, Sant'Antioco, Pollenzo, Roccabruna, Tricerro, Bairo, Ozegna, delle Apertole, Baron of Vaud e del Faucigni, Lord of Vercelli, Pinerolo, della Lomellina, della Valle Sesia, del marchesato di Ceva, Overlord of Monaco, Roccabruna and 11/12th of Menton, Noble patrician of Venice, patrician of Ferrara.

These titles were used during the unified Kingdom of Italy which lasted from 1860–1946. [1]
[edit]
Dynastic orders

The House of Savoy has held two dynastic orders since 1434, which were brought into the Kingdom of Italy as national orders. Although the Kingdom of Italy ceased to exist in 1946, King Umberto II did not abdicate his role as fons honorum over the two dynastic orders over which the family has long held sovereignty and grand mastership. The following are the dynastic orders of the Royal House of Savoy. Today, HRH Victor Emmanuel, Prince of Naples is hereditary Sovereign and Grand Master of these orders.
Ordine Supremo della SS. Annunziata (The Supreme Order of the Most Holy Annunciation)
Ordine dei Santi Maurizio e Lazzaro (The Order of Saints Maurice and Lazarus)

Recently, all three of Victor Emmanuel's sisters (HRH Princess Maria Pia of Bourbon-Parma, HRH Princess Maria Gabriella of Savoy, and HRH Princess Maria Beatrice of Savoy) resigned from both of these dynastic orders, alleging that memberships in the orders had been sold to unworthy candidates, a newfound practice they could not abide. [12]

In addition to these, the House of Savoy claims sovereignty over the Civil Order of Savoy and the Order of the Crown of Italy (since 1988, the Order of Merit of Savoy), which are merit orders of the Royal House.
[edit]
See also
Eugene of Savoy
Duke of Aosta
List of nicknames of European Royalty and Nobility Counts of Villafranca
[edit]
References
^ "In 1946, when the Kingdom of Italy came to an end, the House of Savoy was the world's oldest reigning dynasty," House of Savoy History ^ "Savoy". Catholic Encyclopedia. New York: Robert Appleton Company. 1913.
^ "Piedmont". Catholic Encyclopedia. New York: Robert Appleton Company. 1913.
^ Guardian Newspaper http://www.guardian.co.uk/spain/article/0,...1227375,00.html
^ Right royal punch-up at Spanish prince's wedding
^ Arrest and jail
^ Arrested Italy prince goes from palace to jail
^ The Prince and the prostitutes
^ House arrest

^ Savoy claim http://rome.wantedineurope.com/news/news.php?id_n=3846 ^ Ufficio storico araldico della Casa Reale d' Italia. Chiarificazioni sulla posizione dinastica del Duca d' Aosta e della sua discendenza, Retrieved 2009-10-27.
^ The Fall of the House of Savoy, The Guardian, June 23, 2006.
Spencer Di Scala, Italy: From Revolution to Republic ISBN 0813341760
Toby Osborne Dynasty and Diplomacy in the Court of Savoy ISBN 0521037913
Eugene Cox The Eagles of Savoy: The House of Savoy in Thirteenth-Century Europe 0691052166

craig-oxley - January 29, 2010 10:42 PM (GMT)

Vittorio Emanuele, Prince of Naples

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Vittorio_Eman...rince_of_Naples

Vittorio Emanuele, Prince of Naples (Vittorio Emanuele Alberto Carlo Teodoro Umberto Bonifacio Amedeo Damiano Bernardino Gennaro Maria di Savoia) (born 12 February 1937) was the last Crown Prince of Italy and, despite publicly having renounced any claims to the defunct Italian throne, is still considered by many to be a pretender. He is commonly known in Italy as Vittorio Emanuele di Savoia.

Although the titles and distinctions of the Italian royal family have not been legally recognised in Italy since 1946 he is often styled Prince of Naples out of courtesy, particularly by supporters of the former monarchy.

Vittorio Emanuele also uses the title Duke of Savoy and claims the headship of the House of Savoy. These claims are disputed by supporters of his third cousin, Amedeo, 5th Duke of Aosta. He is also a claimant to the title of King of Jerusalem. He is known to some Italian monarchists as Vittorio Emanuele IV. He has lived for most of his life in exile – following a tightly contested referendum in 1946 in which a majority of the Italian people voted for Italy to become a republic.

On several occasions he has been the centre of controversy in Italy and abroad due to a series of incidents, including remarks that were seen by some as anti-semitic. In France he was tried on a murder charge, of which he was cleared of unlawful killing but convicted of a firearms offence. More recently, Vittorio Emanuele was arrested on June 16, 2006, following an investigation started by Henry John Woodcock of the Public Prosecutor's Office in Potenza, Italy, on charges of criminal association, corruption and exploitation of prostitution.[1] A trial on these charges began in Potenza, Italy on December 21, 2009. He has been also listed among the members of the pseudo-Masonic illegal lodge called P2, accused by the magistrates to be a criminal organization.

Early life and family

| 200px

Vittorio Emanuele was born 12 February 1937 in Naples to Umberto, Prince of Piedmont, who would later become the last King of Italy, and Princess Marie-José of Belgium. When Umberto II left Italy after a referendum abolishing the monarchy in 1946 (see also birth of the Italian Republic), the Savoy family lived in exile, mostly in Switzerland and Portugal. Following the separation of the exiled ex-King and ex-Queen, Prince Vittorio Emanuele lived with his mother in an estate in Merlinge, Switzerland. Vittorio Emanuele and his family currently reside in Geneva.

After an 11-year engagement, Vittorio Emanuele married Swiss biscuit heiress and world-ranked water skier Marina Ricolfi-Doria in Tehran on 7 October 1971, at the occasion of the 2,500 year celebration of Iran's monarchy.

Vittorio Emanuele has worked as a banker and an aircraft salesman, and then an arms dealer.[2]

Vittorio Emanuele has one son, Emanuele Filiberto, Prince of Venice and Piedmont, born in Geneva, 22 June 1972.

Titles

Vittorio Emanuele and his family hold no official titles, nor do they have royal or governmental duties because Italy is now a republic. The Constitution of Italy, in Temporary Provision XIV, states that noble titles are no longer recognised in Italy. Nevertheless, their royal titles and honours are still used as courtesy titles by certain other European royals, and also by some monarchists in Italy and elsewhere.
[edit]
Grand Masterships

King Umberto II, the last king of Italy, did not abdicate his position as fons honorum (or Fount of honour). When he left Italy, he purported to take the hereditary Grand Masterships of the dynastic orders of his royal house with him. These orders were Ordine Supremo della SS. Annunziata (The Supreme Order of the Most Holy Annunciation) and Ordine dei Santi Maurizio e Lazzaro (The Order of Saints Maurice and Lazarus). Umberto II claimed to hold these until his death in 1983.
[edit]
Duke of Savoy

On 7 July 2006 Vittorio Emanuele's kinsman and dynastic rival, Amedeo, 5th Duke of Aosta declared himself to be the head of the House of Savoy and Duke of Savoy, claiming that Vittorio Emanuele had lost his dynastic rights when he married without the permission of King Umberto II in 1971. Amedeo has received the support of the President of the Council of the Senators of the Kingdom Aldo Alessandro Mola and of Vittorio Emanuele's sister Princess Maria Gabriella of Savoy.

Vittorio Emanuele and his son have applied for judicial intervention to forbid Amedeo from using the title "Duke of Savoy". An initial hearing was scheduled in the court of Arezzo, with a ruling expected by 6 June 2006.[3]
[edit]
Other honoursMonarchical styles of
Vittorio Emanuele, Prince of Naples

Reference style His Royal Highness
Spoken style Your Royal Highness
Alternative style Sir

Vittorio Emanuele is a Bailiff Grand Cross of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta and a Bailiff Grand Cross of Justice of the Constantinian Order of St George.

He also claims to hold several Russian dynastic orders, including the Order of Saint Andrew, Grand Cross of the Order of Saint Alexander Nevsky, the Order of the White Eagle, and the Order of Saint Anne. He is also a Knight of the Order of the Redeemer of Greece, and the Order of the Immaculate Conception of Vila Viçosa. He is the heir to the Savoy claim to the title of "King of Jerusalem".
[edit]
Exile from and return to Italy
[edit]
Reasons for exile

In line with certain other countries that were formerly monarchies, Italian law restricted the male line of the House of Savoy from entering Italy. This was enacted via a special constitutional "temporary disposition", in force from 1948.
[edit]
Requests for return

Vittorio Emanuele lobbied the Parliament of Italy over the years in which the law prohibiting his return was in force, to be allowed to return to his homeland after 56 years in exile. In 1999, he filed a case at the European Court of Human Rights, in which the prince charged that his lengthy exile violated his human rights. In September 2001, the court decided to hold a hearing on the case at a date later to be fixed.[4]

In order to achieve a return to his homeland, he renounced any claim to the throne and to Italy's crown jewels. He publicly assured the Italian government that the nation and the crown properties, confiscated by the State in 1946, "are no longer ours", referring to the House of Savoy. "For that matter we have no claim on the Crown jewels", he said. "We have nothing in Italy and we are not asking for anything". Vittorio Emanuele also dropped his case at the European Court of Human Rights.[citation needed] In February 2002, Vittorio Emanuele and his son Emanuele Filiberto wrote a signed letter, published through a law firm, in which they formally expressed their loyalty to the Constitution of Italy.[5] In line with the provisions of the Italian Constitution, in temporary disposition XIV (which deals with the abolition of titles of nobility) Vittorio Emanuele renounced his title of prince.[citation needed]

[edit]
Return to Italy

On 23 October 2002, the provision in the Constitution of Italy that prohibited Vittorio Emanuele's return to Italy was repealed, after he signed an agreement recognizing the Republic as the valid government of the state. Vittorio Emanuele was permitted to re-enter the country from 10 November 2002. On 23 December 2002, he made his first trip home in over half a century. On the one-day visit he, his wife and his son had a 20-minute audience with Pope John Paul II at the Vatican.[6]

Upon their first visit in 2003 to Naples, where Vittorio Emanuele was born, and from where his family sailed into exile in 1946, the reception of the Savoys was mixed; most people were indifferent to them, some hostile, few supportive. The media reported that many in Naples were not happy to see the return of the family, when hundreds of noisy demonstrators chanted negative slogans as they progressed through the city.[2] Demonstrations were staged by two traditionally opposing factions: anti-monarchists on one hand, and supporters of the Bourbon Kings of the Two Sicilies, whose family was deposed when Italy was united in 1861 under the House of Savoy.[7]
[edit]
Controversies
[edit]
Ethiopian Massacres at time of Birth (1937)

On the day of Vittorio Emanuele's birth, 12 February 1937, the Viceroy of Italian East Africa Rodolfo Graziani decided to celebrate the birth of the heir by handing out alms at the Palace in Addis Ababa. Graziani sat in the portico of the (built for the exiled Emperor Haile Selassie) with Ethiopian and Italian notables, when two Eritrean rebels tossed hand grenades at him. A deacon who served as an attendant for the Coptic Archbishop Kirilos was killed, and the Viceroy and several others were wounded. The Italians then launched a savage massacre in Addis Ababa in which hundreds were killed over the next week. Although the attempted assassins were later found to be Eritreans, the Italians targeted Amhara (specifically Shewan Amharas) for vengeance, and any Ethiopians who had a modern education. Many were burned alive in their homes. The fascist authorities also took the opportunity to burn the Orthodox Cathedral of St. George. A few weeks later, upon learning that the wives of the conspirators had taken refuge briefly at the Debre Libanos Monastery, the Italians went there on the feast day of St. Tekle Haimanot, the founder of the Monastery, and massacred all the monks and the pilgrims who had traveled there for the feast.

[edit]
Unilateral declaration of Kingship (1969)

Vittorio Emanuele unilaterally declared himself King of Italy on 15 December 1969.[8][9] He argued that by agreeing to submit to a referendum on his place as head of state, his father (Umberto II) had thereby abdicated. Vittorio Emanuele took this action after his father allegedly called for Amedeo, 5th Duke of Aosta to visit him in Portugal to name him his heir.[10] Under his self-assumed powers as King of Italy, Vittorio Emanuele conferred the title of Duchess of Sant'Anna di Valdieri on his then fiancee, Marina Doria.[11]
[edit]
Killing of Dirk Hamer (1978-1989)

In the night of 17 August or the morning of 18 August 1978, on the island of Cavallo (which lies off the south coast of Corsica), Vittorio Emanuele discovered his yacht's rubber dinghy had been taken and attached to another nearby yacht. Arming himself with a rifle, he attempted to board the yacht. He shot at a passenger he had awakened; the shot missed the passenger but mortally wounded Dirk Hamer (the nineteen-year-old son of Ryke Geerd Hamer), a passenger sleeping on the deck of another adjacent yacht. The prince admitted civil liability for the death in a letter dated 28 August 1978.[12] Dirk Hamer died of his wounds on 7 December 1978, and Vittorio Emanuele was arrested.

On 11 October 1989, Vittorio Emanuele was indicted on charges of fatal wounding and offensive-weapon possession. But on 18 November 1991, after thirteen years of legal proceedings, the Paris Assize Court acquitted him of the fatal wounding and unintentional homicide charges, finding him guilty only of unauthorised possession of an M1 Garand rifle.[12] He received a six month suspended prison sentence.[13]

When incarcerated in June 2006, on unconnected charges of corruption (see below, "Arrest and imprisonment"), Vittorio Emanuele was recorded admitting that "I was in the wrong, [...] but I must say I fooled them [the French judges]",[14] leading to a call from Dirk Hamer's sister for Vittorio Emanuele to be retried in Italy for killing her brother.[15] He also described, in a phone call, the magistrates investigating him as "penniless, envious turds whose wives are probably cuckolding them while they keep track of me."[16][17]
[edit]
Allegations of anti-semitism (2003)

Vittorio Emanuele also said in recent years that the anti-Semitic laws passed under Mussolini's regime were "not that terrible".[18][19] Other senior members of the House of Savoy have also in the past downplayed the significance of the anti-Jewish laws signed by Vittorio Emmanuele's grandfather[citation needed]. "I'm not saying it was he who signed the racial laws in 1938. But, as a Savoy heir, Victor Emmanuel has never distanced himself from them," the president of the Union of Italian Jewish Communities, Amos Luzzatto, said in an interview with Il Corriere della Sera newspaper.[20]

On 27 January 2005, in a letter published by Il Corriere della Sera, Vittorio Emanuele issued an apology to Italy's Jewish leadership asking forgiveness from the Italian Jewish community, and declaring that it was an error for the Italian Royal Family to have signed the racial laws of 1938 [21].
[edit]
Fight with Amedeo (2004)

On 21 May 2004, following a dinner held by King Juan Carlos I of Spain on the eve of the wedding of his son Felipe, Prince of Asturias, Vittorio Emanuele punched his third cousin and arch-rival Amedeo of Savoy, Duke of Aosta, twice in the face.[22] Part of the background to his behaviour during this incident is the support Duke Amedeo has received from monarchists as legitimate heir to the Italian throne, since Vittorio Emanuele officially had to recognise the Italian republic as the valid government of the country in order to return to Italy[citation needed].
[edit]
Arrest and imprisonment (2006)

On 16 June 2006 he was arrested in Varenna and imprisoned in Potenza on charges of corruption and recruitment of prostitutes for clients of the Casinò di Campione (casino) of Campione d'Italia.[23][24][25]

The enquiry was conducted by Italian magistrate John Woodcock, of British ancestry, famous for other VIPs' arrests.[26][27][28]

After several days, Vittorio Emanuele was released and placed under house arrest instead.[29] He was released from house arrest on 20 July 2006, but he had to stay inside the Italian borders. He is now free to leave Italy but he is still under investigation.

His son, Emanuele Filiberto, has distance himself from his father.[30]
[edit]
Seeking compensation from Italy (2007)

In 2007, Vittorio Emanuele and his son Emanuele Filiberto requested formally that the State of Italy pay financial damages of 260 million Euros and initiate full restitution of all properties and belongings that had been confiscated from the royal house after the abdication. The financial damages claim is based on having suffered moral injustice during the exile. The government of Italy has rejected the request and, in response, indicated that it may seek damages for historic grievances.[31]

References
^ Popham, Peter (2006-06-17). "Son of Italy's last king held over Mafia and prostitution claims". The Independent. Retrieved 2008-04-10. "The son of Italy's last king, Prince Victor Emmanuel, has been arrested in the north Italian town of Lecco as part of an investigation into charges he was involved with the Sicilian Mafia and a prostitution racket."

^ a b Popham, Peter (2006-06-22). "The prince and the prostitutes". The Independent. Retrieved 2008-04-10. "Selling helicopters to his high and mighty friends was one of the prince's successful projects, from which he went on to become an arms dealer."
^ Vincent Meylan (2008-05-21). "Duc d'Aoste ou Duc de Savoie?". Point de Vue: 79.
^ Victor Emmanuel de Savoie v. Italy, 656 to hold a hearing on the merits of the admissible complaints on a date to be fixed subsequently (European Court of Human Rights 2001-09-21).
^ "Vittorio Emanuele di Savoia: "Fedeltà alla Costituzione"" (in Italian). La Repubblica. February 2, 2002. Retrieved 2008-04-10.
^ Willan, Philip (2002-12-24). "Exiled Italian royals go home". The Guardian. Retrieved 2008-04-10.
^ Johnston, Bruce (2008-01-08). "Italy's exiled royal family shunned as they return". Telegraph.co.uk. Retrieved 2008-04-24.
^ Royal Decree No. 1
^ Pro Veritate analysis n.1 by Prof. Edoardo Adami
^ Gigi Speroni, Umberto II, Milan, Riscoli Libri
^ Pro Veritate analysis n.2 by Prof. Edoardo Adami
^ a b HAMER v. FRANCE - 19953/92 [1996] ECHR 30 (7 August 1996)
^ Summary of trial proceedings concerned the killing of Dirk Hamer
^ (Italian) Vittorio Emanuele, cimici in cella "Ho fregato i giudici francesi"
^ Prince's braggadocio spurs call for justice
^ Italian royal taped boasting he got away with murder
^ Prince: I beat rap for killing
^ "Italy's Jews wait for royal apology" (The Observer (UK), 18 May 2003). "It was a rocky start for what was intended as a romantic trip down memory lane for Italy's exiled royal family, the Savoys, who returned to Rome last week to meet government officials, only to be greeted by angry Italian Jews still waiting for an apology for the royals' anti-Semitic leanings during the Second World War. Some five years ago, Victor Emmanuel made headlines when he said in an interview that the race laws were 'not so bad'".
^ The Royalist
^ "An Englishman in Auschwitz and other Holocaust articles", Tom Gross, 18 June 2003
^ Stephen Roth Institute: Antisemitism And Racism
^ Right royal punch-up at Spanish prince's wedding
^ Arrest and jail
^ Arrested Italy prince goes from palace to jail
^ The Prince and the prostitutes
^ VIP arrests by Woodstock
^ http://www.lastampa.it/redazione/cmsSezion.../6551girata.asp
^ http://www.repubblica.it/2006/09/sezioni/c...o-emanuele.html

^ House arrest
^ http://www.repubblica.it/2006/06/sezioni/c...i-dissocia.html
^ Phil Stewart, Reuters (2007-11-21). "Fallen savoy royals seek damages over Italy exile".

craig-oxley - January 29, 2010 10:45 PM (GMT)

Family Crest...

user posted image

craig-oxley - January 29, 2010 10:49 PM (GMT)

PICATRIX

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=iTtxeEUAQhg

[dohtml]<object width="425" height="344"><param name="movie" value="http://www.

youtube.com/v/iTtxeEUAQhg&hl=en_GB&fs=1&"></param><param name="allowFullScreen" value="true"></param><param name="allowscriptaccess" value="always"></param><embed src="http://www.youtube.com/v/iTtxeEUAQhg&hl=en_GB&fs=1&" type="application/x-shockwave-flash" allowscriptaccess="always" allowfullscreen="true" width="425" height="344"></embed></object>[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - January 29, 2010 11:01 PM (GMT)

Picatrix

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Picatrix refers to both the author and the Latin version of the Arabic grimoire, entitled •••• •••••• ••yat al-•ak•m or, "The Goal of the Wise." It is a composite work that synthsizes a survey of older works on magic and astrology. According to its prologue, Picatrix was translated into Spanish from the Arabic by order of Alphonso X of Castile in 1256. Later, Andalusian translators created a Latin version based on both the Arabic and Spanish manuscripts. It has been attributed to Maslama ibn Ahmad al-Majriti (an Andalusian mathematician), but many have called this attribution into question. Consequently, the author is sometimes listed as "Pseudo-Majriti."

One of the most influential interpretations suggests it is to be regarded as a "handbook of talismanic magic".[1] Another researcher summarizes it as "the most thorough exposition of celestial magic in Arabic", indicating the sources for the work as "Arabic texts on Hermeticism, Sabianism, Ismailism, astrology, alchemy and magic produced in the Near East in the ninth and tenth centuries A.D."[2] According to Eugenio Garin "In reality the Latin version of the Picatrix is as indispensable as the Corpus Hermeticum or the writings of Albumasar for understanding a conspicuous part of the production of the Renaissance, including the figurative arts."[3]

It has significantly influenced West European magical thinking from Marsilio Ficino in the 1400s, to Thomas Campanella in the 1600s. The manuscript in the British Library passed through several hands: Simon Forman, Richard Napier, Elias Ashmole and William Lilly.

The Spanish and Latin versions were the only ones known to western scholars until Wilhelm Printz discovered an Arabic version in or around 1920.[4]Contents [hide]

1 Content
2 Authorship and significance of title
3 Sources
4 Notes
5 Editions
6 See also

7 External links

[edit]
Content

The work is divided into four books, which exhibit a marked absence of systematic exposition. Jean Seznec observed "Picatrix prescribes propitious times and places and the attitude and gestures of the suppliant; he also indicates what terms must be used in petitioning the stars." As an example, Seznec then reproduces a prayer to Saturn from the work, noting that Fritz Saxl has pointed out that this invocation exhibits "the accent and even the very terms of a Greek astrological prayer to Kronos. This is one indication that the sources of Picatrix are in large part Hellenistic.":

O Master of sublime name and great power, supreme Master; O Master Saturn: Thou, the Cold, the Sterile, the Mournful, the Pernicious; Thou, whose life is sincere and whose word sure; Thou, the Sage and Solitary, the Impenetrable; Thou, whose promises are kept; Thou who art weak and weary; Thou who hast cares greater than any other, who knowest neither pleasure nor joy; Thou, the old and cunning, master of all artifice, deceitful, wise, and judicious; Thou who bringest prosperity or ruin, and makest men to be happy or unhappy! I conjure thee, O Supreme Father, by Thy great benevolence and Thy generous bounty, to do for me what I ask [...][5]

According to Garin:

The work's point of departure is the unity of reality divided into symmetrical and corresponding degrees, planes or worlds: a reality stretched between two poles: the original One, God the source of all existence, and man, the microcosm, who, with his science (scientia) brings the dispersion back to its origin, identifying and using their correspondences.[6]
[edit]
Authorship and significance of title

The Arab historian, Ibn Khaldun, ascribed authorship of Picatrix to the mathematician, al-Majriti, who died in between 1005CE and 1008CE. However, the author of the text places its origin about 50 years later. [7] Others have argued that Picatrix is an attribution to Hippocrates, via a transcription of the name Burqratis or Biqratis in the Arabic text. [8] The Latin text does translate the name Burqratis as Picatrix, however, this still does not establish the identity of Burqratis. Some have argued that this was a corruption of the name Hippocrates,[9] [10] but this explanation has fallen into disfavor because the text cites Hippocrates under the name Ypocras. [11] Another theory, perhaps more convincing, purports that Picatrix is a Latinized form of Maslama. According to this theory, the Latin root picare is a translation of the Arabic root of Maslama, m-s-l, meaning "to sting or bite like a serpent."[12] This makes a strong connection between Picatrix and the attributed author, Maslama al-Majriti, but the time between authorship of the text and al-Majriti's death still leaves this issue in question.

[edit]
Sources

According to the Prologue, the author researched over two hundred works in the creation of Picatrix. [13] However, there are three significant Near/Middle Eastern influences: Jabir Ibn Hayyan, the Ikhwan al-Safa, and a text called Nabataean Agriculture. The influence of Jabir Ibn Hayyan comes in the form of a cosmological background that removes magical practices from diabolical influences and reasserts these practices as having a divine origin. The author of Picatrix utilizes Neoplatonic theories of hypostasis that mirror the work of Jabir. [14]
[edit]
Notes
^ Frances Yates, Giordano Bruno and the Hermetic Tradition, Chicago, 1964; Frances Yates, The Art of Memory, Chicago, 1966
^ David Pingree, 'Some of the Sources of the Gh•yat al-hak•m', in Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes, Vol. 43, (1980), pp. 1-15
^ Eugenio Garin, Astrology in the Renaissance: The Zodiac of Life, Routledge, 1983, p47
^ Willy Hartner, 'Notes On Picatrix', in Isis, Vol. 56, No. 4, (Winter, 1965), pp. 438-440; the Arabic text was published for the first time by the Warburg Library in 1927.
^ Jean Seznec (Trans. Barbara F. Sessions), The Survival of the Pagan Gods: The Mythological Tradition and its Place in Renaissance Humanism and Art, Princeton University Press, 1995 (reprint), p53
^ Eugenio Garin, Astrology in the Renaissance: The Zodiac of Life, Routledge, 1983, p49
^ Bakhouche, Beatrice, Frederic Fauquier, and Brigitte Perez-Jean. Translators. 2003. Picatrix: Un traite de magie medieval. Turnhout: Brepols. p. 21.
^ Bakhouche. Picatrix. p. 22 and 141.
^ Ritter, Hellmut and Martin Plessner, translators. "Picatrix:" Das Ziel des Weisen von Pseudo-Magriti. London: Warburg Institute, 1962. p.XXII.
^ See also: Willy Hartner, 'Notes On Picatrix', in Isis, Vol. 56, No. 4, (Winter, 1965), pp. 438
^ Bakhouche. Picatrix. pp. 22, 193, 332.
^ Bakhouche. Picatrix. pp. 23-24. Also, see Thomann, J. "The Name Picatrix, Transcription or Translation." Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes. Vol. 53, 1990. p. 289-296.
^ Later in the text, the author specifies two hundred fifty works. Bakhouche. Picatrix. pp. 37 and 200.
^ Pingree, David, editor. The Latin Version of the Ghayat al-hakim, Studies of the Warburg Institute, University of London. 1986. p. 3. See also, Bakhouche. Picatrix. pp. 32-33.
[edit]

Editions
Picatrix: Das Ziel des Weisen von Pseudo-Magriti, aus dem Arabischen ins Deutsche übersetzt von Hellmut Ritter und Martin Plessner [Picatrix: The Goal of the Wise Man by Pseudo-Magriti, translated from Arabic into German by Ritter and Plessner]. London: Warburg Institute, 1962 (=Studies of the Warburg Institute 27).
David Pingree, The Latin Version of the Ghayat al-hakim, Studies of the Warburg Institute, University of London (1986), ISBN 0854810692 review: Brian Vickers, Isis, The History of Science Society, University of Chicago Press (1990). review: William R. Newman, The Journal of the American Oriental Society (1993).
Ouroboros Press has published the first English translation available in two volumes, Ouroborous Press (2002 Vol. 1 ASIN: B0006S6LAO) and (2008 Vol. 2) [1]
Béatrice Bakhouche, Frédéric Fauquier, Brigitte Pérez-Jean, Picatrix: Un Traite De Magie Medieval, Brepols Pub (2003), 388 p., ISBN 978-2-503-51068-2.
Picatrix Books I & II, Renaissance Astrology Press {2009}, 140 p., ISBN 0557128994, English translation from Pingree's Latin critical edition by John Michael Greer & Christopher Warnock.
[edit]
See also
Alchemy and chemistry in Islam
Islamic astrology

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: BASILICA SANCTAE CRUCIS IN HIERUSALEM

Title: BASILICA SANCTAE CRUCIS IN HIERUSALEM
Description: [THE COMING TOGETHER OF THE PAPAL LINES]

craig-oxley - January 25, 2010 02:29 PM (GMT)

[DOHTML]
<CENTER>[/DOHTML]

WHERE THE SACRED ROMAN EMPIRE BLOODLINES MEET

BASILICA SANCTAE CRUCIS IN HIERUSALEM

CONTROLLED BY

RED CARDINAL MILOSLAV VIK

[DOHTML]
</CENTER>[/DOHTML]

map - January 25, 2010 03:00 PM (GMT)

how often do they meet there and for what purpose?

looks pretty open to the public

craig-oxley - January 25, 2010 03:11 PM (GMT)

The Roman aristocracy corrupted the Cistercesian Order and is there in the Church of Santa Croce in Gerusalemme that all the powerful bloodlines you mentioned meet up. Since ancient times all the Roman families meet there. Even popstar, Madonna went there last year!

-Anonymous #2

map - January 25, 2010 03:25 PM (GMT)

im sure there is some crazy lay-line crap affiliated with that being a major point of meeting up.

craig-oxley - January 25, 2010 05:49 PM (GMT)

[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]

[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]

phillipJfry - January 26, 2010 05:48 AM (GMT)

so the meetings are basically from planned agendas to family gossips?

map - January 27, 2010 08:45 AM (GMT)

LOOK AT WHAT'S INSIDE THE BASILICA...

craig-oxley - January 27, 2010 01:59 PM (GMT)

Note the connection of the Brigida Order to Piazza FARNESE

MADRE M. TEKLA FAMIGLIETTI
ABBESS GENERAL
Ordine Del Santissimo Salvatore Di Santa Brigida

map - January 29, 2010 04:14 PM (GMT)

THE BIBLE IS ON-POINT WHEN IT STATES "MYSTERY BABYLON" "THE MOTHER OF ALL ABOMINATIONS ON THE EARTH"

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Was Eusebius the father of Title: Was Eusebius the father of Description: the Catholic Church Papel Bloodline?

14april2000 - December 20, 2009 10:23 AM (GMT)

Was Eusebius the father of the Catholic Church Papel Bloodline?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: CERRATO FAMILY & THE BLACK POPE

Title: CERRATO FAMILY & THE BLACK POPE

craig-oxley - July 28, 2009 02:51 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

The Cerrato family can trace its noble Origins to the Italian region of Tuscany. Although people were originally known only by a single name, it became necessary for people to adapt a second name to identify themselves as populations grew and travel became more frequent. The process of adopting fixed hereditary surnames was not complete until the modern era, but the use of hereditary family names in Italy began in the 10th and 11th centuries. Italian hereditary surnames were developed according to fairly general principles and they are characterized by a profusion of derivatives coined from given names. Although the most traditional type of family name found in the region of Tuscany is the patronymic surname, which is derived from the father's given name, local surnames are also found. Local names, which are the least frequent of the major types of surnames found in Italy, are derived from a place-name where the original bearer once resided or held land. Often Italian local surnames bore the prefix "di," which signifies emigration from one place to another, but does not necessarily denote nobility. The Cerrato family lived near a Turkey Oak tree. The surname Cerri is derived from the Italian word cerro, which means bitter or Turkey oak. Therefore, the initial bearer of the surname Cerri may have been someone who lived near a place or he owned land were the Turkey oak grew in abundance. Alternatively, the surname Cerri was a nickname, derived from the Italian word cerro or cirro which means hair or curl, for someone who had curly hair.

QUOTE

This Spanish surname of CERRATO was a topographic name for someone who lived by a hill or ridge. The name was derived from the Spanish word CERRO (from the Latin CIRRUS) bristle, hair. The transfer of meaning seems to be due to the fact that the Latin word was used in particular of the hairs along the spinal ridge of an animal. In the 8th century, Spain fell under the control of the Moors, and this influence, which lasted into the 12th century, has also left its mark on Hispanic surnames. A few names are based directly on Arabic personal names. The majority of Spanish occupational and nickname surnames, however, are based on ordinary Spanish derivatives. The name is also spelt CERRILLO, CERULLO, CERRI and CERA. In Spain identifying patronymics are to be found as early as the mid-9th century, but these changed with each generation, and hereditary surnames seem to have come in slightly later in Spain than in England and France. As well as the names of the traditional major saints of the Christian Church, many of the most common Spanish surnames are derived from personal names of Germanic origin. For the most part these names are characteristically Hispanic. They derive from the language of the Visigoths, who controlled Spain between the mid-5th and early 8th centuries. The origin of badges and emblems, are traced to the earliest times, although, Heraldry, in fact, cannot be traced later than the 12th century, or at furthest the 11th century. At first armorial bearings were probably like surnames and assumed by each warrior at his free will and pleasure, his object being to distinguish himself from others. It has long been a matter of doubt when bearing Coats of Arms first became hereditary. It is known that in the reign of Henry V (1413-1422), a proclamation was issued, prohibiting the use of heraldic ensigns to all who could not show an original and valid right, except those 'who had borne arms at Agincourt'. The College of Arms (founded in 1483) is the Royal corporation of heralds who record proved pedigrees and grant armorial bearings. The bulk of European surnames in countries such as England and France were formed in the 13th and 14th centuries. The process started earlier and continued in some places into the 19th century, but the norm is that in the 11th century people did not have surnames, whereas by the 15th century they did.

Villamuriel de Cerrato is a municipality located in the province of Palencia, Castile and León, Spain. According to the 2004 census (INE), the municipality has a population of 5,304 inhabitants.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
The new Superior General of the Society of Jesus, Fr Adolfo Nicolás was born in Villamuriel de Cerrato in 1936.

Villamuriel de Cerrato

Father Edoardo Cerrato, C.O., with Archbishop Vincent Nichols

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

craig-oxley - July 28, 2009 03:01 AM (GMT)

Portrait of Monsignor Antonio Cerri

craig-oxley - July 28, 2009 05:30 PM (GMT)

More ruling White Gentiles.

Brother Eric

Keith - July 28, 2009 08:52 PM (GMT)

cerrato...unscramble using backwards alphabet code to: ALIE CRT

ALIE C+R+T=ALIE 3+18+20=ALIE 41

41 is 14 reversed is N

alie 41=alie 14=alie n=alien more theme of the aliens' reuling things.

or unscramble to "GAEL C-IR" is gael seer spelled a coded way.

or unscrable to R GAELIC

14april2000 - December 19, 2009 03:25 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jul 28 2009, 04:51 AM)

QUOTE

The Cerrato family can trace its noble Origins to the Italian region of Tuscany. Although people were originally known only by a single name, it became necessary for people to adapt a second name to identify themselves as populations grew and travel became more frequent. The process of adopting fixed hereditary surnames was not complete until the modern era, but the use of hereditary family names in Italy began in the 10th and 11th centuries. Italian hereditary surnames were developed according to fairly general principles and they are characterized by a profusion of derivatives coined from given names. Although the most traditional type of family name found in the region of Tuscany is the patronymic surname, which is derived from the father's given name, local surnames are also found. Local names, which are the least frequent of the major types of surnames found in Italy, are derived from a place-name where the original bearer once resided or held land. Often Italian local surnames bore the prefix "di," which signifies emigration from one place to another, but does not necessarily denote nobility. The Cerrato family lived near a Turkey Oak tree. The surname Cerri is derived from the Italian word cerro, which means bitter or Turkey oak. Therefore, the initial bearer of the surname Cerri may have been someone who lived near a place or he owned land were the Turkey oak grew in abundance. Alternatively, the surname Cerri was a nickname, derived from the Italian word cerro or cirro which means hair or curl, for someone who had curly hair.

QUOTE

This Spanish surname of CERRATO was a topographic name for someone who lived by a hill or ridge. The name was derived from the Spanish word CERRO (from the Latin CIRRUS) bristle, hair. The transfer of meaning seems to be due to the fact that the Latin word was used in particular of the hairs along the spinal ridge of an animal. In the 8th century, Spain fell under the control of the Moors, and this influence, which lasted into the 12th century, has also left its mark on Hispanic surnames. A few names are based directly on Arabic personal names. The majority of Spanish occupational and nickname surnames, however, are based on ordinary Spanish derivatives. The name is also spelt CERRILLO, CERULLO, CERRI and CERA. In Spain identifying patronymics are to be found as early as the mid-9th century, but these changed with each generation, and hereditary surnames seem to have come in slightly later in Spain than in England and France. As well as the names of the traditional major saints of the Christian Church, many of the most common Spanish surnames are derived from personal names of Germanic origin. For the most part these names are characteristically Hispanic. They derive from the language of the Visigoths, who controlled Spain between the mid-5th and early 8th centuries. The origin of badges and emblems, are traced to the earliest times, although, Heraldry, in fact, cannot be traced later than the 12th century, or at furthest the 11th century. At first armorial bearings were probably like surnames and assumed by each warrior at his free will and pleasure, his object being to distinguish himself from others. It has long been a matter of doubt when bearing Coats of Arms first became hereditary. It is known that in the reign of Henry V (1413-1422), a proclamation was issued, prohibiting the use of heraldic ensigns to all who could not show an original and valid right, except those 'who had borne arms at Agincourt'. The College of Arms (founded in 1483) is the Royal corporation of heralds who record proved pedigrees and grant armorial bearings. The bulk of European surnames in countries such as England and France were formed in the 13th and 14th centuries. The process started earlier and continued in some places into the 19th century, but the norm is that in the 11th century people did not have surnames, whereas by the 15th century they did.

Villamuriel de Cerrato is a municipality located in the province of Palencia, Castile and León, Spain. According to the 2004 census (INE), the municipality has a population of 5,304 inhabitants.

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The new Superior General of the Society of Jesus, Fr Adolfo Nicolás was born in Villamuriel de Cerrato in 1936.

Villamuriel de Cerrato

Father Edoardo Cerrato, C.O., with Archbishop Vincent Nichols

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

It`s the Coat of Arms of Alba de Cerrato(Palencia, Spain)

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE ULTRA POWERFUL ESTE ESTENCE FAMILY

Title: THE ULTRA POWERFUL ESTE ESTENCE FAMILY
Description: [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]

craig-oxley - March 1, 2009 12:35 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Este

Este, Italian princely family, best known as the ruling dynasty of Renaissance Ferrara. Its founder, Alberto Azzo II (996-1097), was invested with the town of Este near Padua (Padova) by Holy Roman Emperor Henry III. Welf, or Guelph, IV, Alberto Azzo's son by his marriage to a German princess, became duke of Bavaria in 1070. Welf was the ancestor of the ruling dynasties of Brunswick (Braunschweig) and Hannover and, through them, of the sovereigns of Great Britain since 1714.

Alberto Azzo's Italian descendants became lords of Ferrara and Modena in the 13th century. Leonello d'Este (1407-50) made Ferrara a center of art and scholarship; his brother Borso (1413-71) was given the title duke of Ferrara by the pope in 1471. Duke Ercole I (1431-1505) strengthened his family's position by marrying his children into the principal ruling houses of Italy. His son Alfonso I (1486-1534), noted as an expert in artillery design, married Lucrezia Borgia, daughter of Pope Alexander VI, but later allied himself with France against the papacy. His sisters Beatrice d'Este (1475-97) and Isabella d'Este (1474-1539) were patrons of the painters Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, and Titian; his son Ippolito II Cardinal d'Este (1509-72) began construction of the Villa d'Este at Tivoli and was a patron of the composer Giovanni da Palestrina. The house of Este lost control of Ferrara in 1598, but continued to rule Modena until 1859.

QUOTE

The next princely society was founded in 1372, at a point when most of the first generation of both curial and true monarchical orders had already been established. In contrast to all of the earlier societies, it was founded in north-central Germany, in the past of the old Duchy of Saxony in which the hereditary lands of the successive ducal houses of Welf (or Guelph) and Este has been situated, and which had accordingly been erected into the new Duchy of Brunswick. Otto II d'Este-Welf-Gottingen-Gottingen, co-Duke of Brunswick at Gottingen (dom. 1367-94), certainly participated in the foundation of the 'Company of the Star' (Gesellschaft von den Sterren, mit dem Sterne), but the Company was placed under the captaincy of a Konig or 'King' who was not even a member of the ducal house. The Company had no known patron, but its badge was a silver star from one of whose points was suspended the arms of its King. Its basic form might have alluded to the Blessed Virgin, or alternatively to the popular German saint William, whose arms had a star as their sole charge.

QUOTE

The house of Este is a family originating in the town of Este, in Venezia, and whose genealogy goes back to Azzo II († 1097), marquis d' Este.

the elder branch (the Guelfes)
See also: Guelfes

Azzo II Maria initially with the heiress of the Guelfes of Souabe, giving rise to the elder branch, taking again the name of Welf, whose descendants reigned on many countries, in particular the Great Britain (of 1714 to 1901), the kingdom of Hanover (of 1814 to 1866), the duchy of Brunswick-Lunebourg (of 1913 to 1918)… and even temporarily on the Russia (of 1740 to 1741, with the emperor Ivan VI (1740-1764), two months old and détrôné after only one year of reign under the regency of his/her mother Anne de Mecklembourg).

In Italy the partisans of Welf accepted the name of Guelfes.

In 1070, Welf IV (Welf I of Bavaria) (1030/40 - † November 9th 1101), wire of Azzo II and nephew of Welf III becomes duke of Bavaria and breaks the alliance which linked it with Henri IV of the Holy roman Empire. At this point in time it adopts the papal cause in Italy.

His/her son Welf V (Welf II of Bavaria), (v. 1073 - † 24 septembrer 1120), Marie besides at that time with the countess Mathilde of Tuscany, but the union was unhappy and involved a conflict between Henri IV, assisted from its old allies, and the Italian family, which was victorious. The Mathilde countess died without child and bequeathed her possession to the Holy See: Toscane, Ferrare, Modena, Mantoue, Reggio, etc What gave place to the Querelle of the Nominations.
Henri the Black, duke of Bavaria of 1120 - 1126 is the first of the three Henri of the branch.

Henri Superb the, duke of Bavaria was also duke of Saxony, was the favorite of the imperial election vis-a-vis the candidate Hohenstaufen. Overcome with the imperial election it was dispossessed of its duchies.

Henri the Lion recovered the two duchies of his/her father (it recovers Bavaria in 1156). He was married in Mathilde of England. Dispossessed of its duchies after Legnano, 1176, it was exiled in England in 1180 and there died in 1195.

His/her Othon son of Brunswick was elected with the imperial throne under the name of Othon IV (death in 1218, king then emperor of the Romans of 1198 with 1218, elected in 1198, crowned by the pope Innocent III in 1209). By the play of the marriages, Welf had acquired many possessions, of which Saxony. This new power made the family able of it to defy Hohenstaufen then. It is at that time that the capacity of Welfs collapses.

Later, in 1692, Welfs of Hanover became voters of the Holy roman Empire, then kings de Grande-Bretagne and kings de Hanovre.

One also finds a descendant of Welf in Russia, in the person of the emperor Ivan VI Antonovitch (1740 - 1764), emperor and autocrat of all the Russia S of 1740 with 1741, which was détrôné by Elisabeth Pétrovna Romanova (1709 - 1762), the last of the Romanov.
Charles-Guillaume (1735 - 1806), duke of Brunswick-Lunebourg, which as a commander-in-chief of the armies united to restore the absolute monarchy in France, published the July 25th 1792 celebrates it Manifeste of Brunswick, “to return to the king XVI]] its freedom and to put it in a position to exert its authority legitimates”

It is with the advent of Victoria (1819 - 1901), queen of the the United Kingdom and empress of the India S which end takes the British period of the history of Welfs. Hanover will be lost in 1866 during the Guerre the Seven Week old. The refusal on behalf of Welf to recognize this defeat prevented them from inheriting Brunswick, which they will obtain a generation later with the marriage of Welf Ernest-Auguste III of Hanover and of the girl of the emperor Guillaume II of Germany. This reign will die out after the First World War.

the current chief of the house of Este, which belongs to the branch of Welfs (known as currently “house of Hanover”), is the prince Ernest-Auguste of Hanover (born in 1954), current husband of the princess Caroline of Monaco.

the branch junior (the Este of Modena)
From the second marriage of Azzo II, was born the branch junior, bearing the name of Este, which reigned on the Duché of Ferrare of 1471 to 1597 and the Duché of Modena of 1452 to 1797 and died out in 1803.
Ferrare became a significant center of culture under Nicolas III of Este (1384-1441) and its sons and successors, Lionel (1407-1450), Borso (1413-1471) and Hercules (1431-1505).

Borso was high under duke of Modena and Reggio by the emperor Frederic III in 1452, these duchies being imperial Fief S. In 1471 it accepted the duchy of Ferrare as a papal stronghold of the pope Paul II.
The brother of Borso, Hercules Ier d' Este had two girls: Béatrice (1475-1497) married Ludovic Sforza, duke of Milan and Isabelle (1474-1539) married François II Gonzague, marquis de Mantoue.
The successor of Hercules Ier was his son Alphonse I {{er}} (1476-1534), the third husband of Lucrèce Borgia. In the Bataille of Ravenne (1512) in with dimensions of the French against the Spaniards took part.
Hercules II of Este (1508-1559) wire of Alphonse married Renee, girl of Louis XII of France.
The legitimate line finishes in 1597 with the death of Alphonse II, wire of Hercules II.

The name of Este remained at Habsbourg (Maison of Lorraine). The house of Austria indeed inherited the duchy of Modena in 1814, Marie-Beatrice of Este-Modena, ultimate heiress of the house of Este, having married the archduke Ferdinand of Austria (brother of Marie-Antoinette).
Their son François IV (1779-1846) was sovereign duke of Modena and archduke of Austria-Este.

QUOTE

Este

http://www.infoplease.com/ce6/people/A0817733.html

Este (es't•) [key], Italian noble family, rulers of Ferrara (1240–1597) and of Modena (1288–1796) and celebrated patrons of the arts during the Renaissance. Probably of Lombard origin, they took their name from the castle of Este, near Padua. They succeeded to the house of the Guelphs when the original Guelph line died out.

Azzo d'Este II,. 996–1097, lord of Este and the founder of his family's greatness, was invested with Milan by the emperor. Azzo's son, Guelph d'Este IV. or Welf IV, d. 1101, was adopted by his maternal uncle, Guelph III, whom he succeeded as duke of Carinthia. In 1070 he was made duke of Bavaria. The grandfather of Henry the Proud of Bavaria and Saxony, Guelph IV was the founder of the German line of the Guelphs, from whom the British royal family is descended. He died on Cyprus while crusading.

Azzo d'Este II had another son, who continued the Italian line of the house; among that son's successors was Obizzo d'Este I,. d. 1193. Obizzo and his grandson played an important part in the struggle of the Guelphs against Holy Roman Emperor Frederick I (see Guelphs and Ghibellines). He married the heiress of one of the two families contending for supremacy in Ferrara. His grandson, Azzo d'Este VI,. 1170–1212, was podesta [chief magistrate] of Mantua and Verona and fought to obtain Ferrara, but it was left for his son, Azzo d'Este VII,. 1205–64, to succeed in becoming (1240) podesta of that city at the head of the triumphant Guelph party. Obizzo d'Este II,. d. 1293, was made perpetual lord of Ferrara in 1264, lord of Modena in 1288, and lord of Reggio (now Reggio nell' Emilia) in 1289.

Because Ferrara was held as a fief from the pope, the Este became papal vicars in 1332. Niccolò d'Este III,. 1384–1441, made Ferrara a center of arts and letters and increased the power of his house by playing his more powerful neighbors against each other. Under his successors the court of the Este became one of the most brilliant in Europe. Among them were his illegitimate sons Leonello d'Este,. 1407–50, an accomplished prince, and Borso d'Este,. 1413–71, who received the title duke of Modena and Reggio from Holy Roman Emperor Frederick III in 1452 and that of duke of Ferrara from Pope Paul II in 1471.

Niccolò's legitimate son Ercole d'Este I,. 1431–1505, lost some territory in wars against Venice. Ercole's beautiful and brilliant daughter, Beatrice d'Este,. 1475–97, married Ludovico Sforza, duke of Milan, one of the most lavish of all Renaissance princes. Her sister, Isabella d'Este,. 1474–1539, married Francesco Gonzaga, marquis of Mantua. Ariosto, Boiardo, and Berni were her friends, and Leonardo da Vinci and Titian painted portraits of her.

Ercole I was succeeded by his son, Alfonso d'Este I,. 1476–1534, second husband of Lucrezia Borgia. In the Italian Wars he entered the League of Cambrai against Venice and remained an ally of Louis XII of France even after Pope Julius II had made peace with Venice. The pope declared Alfonso's fiefs forfeited and excommunicated him (1510); Modena and Reggio were lost. However, in 1526–27 Alfonso participated in the expedition of Charles V, Holy Roman emperor and king of Spain, against Pope Clement VII, and in 1530 the pope again recognized him as possessor of those duchies. Ariosto lived at his court in Ferrara after a long employment by Alfonso's brother, Ippolito I, Cardinal d'Este,. 1479–1520, to whom Ariosto's Orlando Furioso is dedicated.

Alfonso's son and successor, Ercole d'Este II,. 1508–59, married Renée, daughter of Louis XII of France. He joined the pope and France against Spain in 1556, but made a separate peace in 1558. He also was a patron of the arts, as was his brother, Ippolito II, Cardinal d'Este,. 1509–72, an able diplomat who led the pro-French party at the papal court. Ippolito built the celebrated Villa d'Este at Tivoli.

With Ercole II's son, Alfonso d'Este II,. 1533–97, the direct male line of the house ended. He willed his titles to his cousin, Cesare d'Este,. 1533–1628, but Pope Clement VIII refused to recognize Cesare's rights, and Ferrara was incorporated into the Papal States in 1598. Holy Roman Emperor Rudolf II recognized Cesare's rights to Modena and Reggio, but without Ferrara the duchy lost political importance.

The last duke, Ercole d'Este III, was deposed in 1796 by the French and died in 1803. His daughter, Maria Beatrice, married Archduke Ferdinand of Austria, a son of Austrian Emperor Francis I, who founded the house of Austria-Este. After the restoration (1814) of the duchy of Modena their son and grandson, Francis IV and Francis V, ruled as dukes of Modena, Massa, and Carrara. Francis V was expelled in 1859, and his territories were annexed (1860) to the kingdom of Sardinia.

See W. L. Gundersheimer, Ferrara: The Style of a Renaissance Despotism (1973).

QUOTE

What became the ultra-reactionary family of Este-Welf, rose to a dominant position in the European feudal oligarchy during the Eleventh Century, and has been in the forefront of the leading reactionary, pro-chivalric, pro-feudalist movements of Europe and the Americas ever since. The British monarchy of the Welf dynasty, typified what Venice created, during the Sixteenth Century, as the northern, nominally Protestant branch of the Este-Welf family. What the same Sixteenth-Century Venice dominated, simultaneously, as the southern, nominally Catholic branch of the same family, is typified, during recent decades by the Este family's Principessa Pallavicini, a feudal figure who, in such matters, greatly outranks Britain's relatively picaresque currently reigning royal frump. The wars between the Welf League and Frederick II, which caused the mid-Fourteenth Century "New Dark Age," typify the purely evil role performed consistently, throughout Europe, by Venice and the Welf faction, from the Eleventh through the Nineteenth Centuries. Miguel Cervantes' Don Quixote is a relevant insight into the role of this enemy, neo-feudalist tradition in bringing about the self-induced economic and cultural collapse of Spain over the course of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries.

QUOTE

The PEDIGREE of Alberto Azzo (Azo) II (Marchese) of ESTE aka Ezzo II

Born: abt. 997 Died: 1097
HM George I's 19-Great Uncle. Poss. PM Churchill's 25-Great Grandfather. Poss. Geo Washington's 21-Great Grandfather. Louis XVII's 22-Great Uncle. Poss. Agnes Harris's 20-Great Grandfather.

Wives/Partners: Kunigunde von ALTDORF ; Vitalia ORSEOLO
Possible Children: Welf (Guelph) IV (crusader) d' ESTE ; Itte of ESTE Alternative Father of Possible Children: poss. Alberto Azzo (Azo) II (Marchese) of ESTE

_____ _____ _____ _____ _____ _____ _____ _____ ____ ___ ___
/ -- Gui (Guido) de LUCCA + ==&=> [205 ,C,pt,&]
/ | OR: Gui (Guido) de LUCCA + ====> [156 ,,x,&]
/ -- Adalbert III di LUCCA (Margrave) of TUSCANY
| \ | or: poss. Sigfredo di CANOSSA, q.v.
| | | OR: Adalberto II (I) d' ESTE + ==&=> [205 ,C,&]
/ \ -- Marozia (Maricucca Marozzia) of ROME + ====> [1]
/ -- Obert I (Marquis) of ITALY (912? - 975)
/ -- Oberto Obizzo (I; II; Marquis) of ITALY
/ \ -- Guilla di SPOLETO + ==&=> [205 ,C,&]

/ -- Alberto Azzo I of LIGURIA (970? - 1029?)
| \ / -- Wirprand (Wiprand Riprandi) (Count) of COMO + ====> [2]
| \ -- Railinda of COMO (950? - ?)
/ | or: Perengarda
- Alberto Azzo (Azo) II (Marchese) of ESTE
\ / -- Alberto
\ -- Adela (Adelaide Alvisa) (? - 1012+)
| or: Artopergue

http://freepages.genealogy.rootsweb.ancest...004/f035097.htm

QUOTE

Ferrara

Ferrara (f•r-rä'rä) [key], city (1991 pop. 138,015), capital of Ferrara prov., in Emilia-Romagna, N Italy. It is a rich industrial and agricultural center, located on a low-lying, marshy plain that has much reclaimed land. Manufactures include chemicals, machinery, food products, metals, and refined petroleum. In the early 13th cent. the Este family founded in Ferrara a powerful principality, and during the Renaissance commerce, learning, printing, and the arts flourished about the brilliant court. The 15th-century painters Cossa and Tura and the 16th-century writers Tosso and Ariosto lived in Ferrara, and the religious reformer Savonarola was born there (1452). The city was incorporated into the Papal States in 1558. Among Ferrara's many noteworthy buildings are Este castle (14th cent.), the cathedral (begun 1135), Schifanoia palace (14th–15th cent.), and the Palazzo del Diamanti (15th–16th cent.). The city has a university (founded 1391).

QUOTE

House of Este

:"Este" redirects here. For the city, see Este, Italy. For Tolkien's fictional character, see Estë."The House of Este is a European princely dynasty. It is split into two branches; the elder is known as the House of Welf-Este or House of Welf, the younger, as the House of Fulc-Este or later simply as the House of Este. Both are related in antiquity to the eight-hundred-year-old House of Wettin.

The elder branch of the House of Este, the House of Welf, produced dukes of Bavaria (1070–1139, 1156–1180), dukes of Saxony (1138–1139, 1142–1180), a German king (1198–1218), and most impactful upon history, the dukes of Brunswick and Lüneburg (1208–1918)—who were later styled the "Electors of Hanover", a more prestigious Holy Roman Empire title than Arch-duke or duke, when two branches of the family recombined in 1705.

After the peace ending the Napoleonic wars reshaped Europe ushering in the Modern era, the Electorate of Hanover (duchy of Brunswick and Lüneburg — held in a personal union by the king of Great Britain, George III) was dissolved by treaty acknowledged by all signatories and its lands were enlarged with the state promoted to the Hanover. The new kingdom existed from 1815–1866, but passed from being a personal union of the male British rulers in 1837 to an uncle under salic laws of inheritance (female rulers were anathema and forbidden) with the ascension of Victoria to the British throne). The House of Este hence gave England the "Hanoverian monarchs" of the United Kingdom (1714–1901; via George I—George IV, including Queen Victoria). In the strictest genetic (not the heraldic or salic law) sense, her successor, Edward VII of the United Kingdom of the House of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha was descended from the House of Este both through his father and mother as Prince Albert although of the House of Wettin had members of the House of Este among his ancestors.

The younger branch of the House of Este included rulers of Ferrara (1240–1597), and Modena and Reggio (1288–1796).

Origins

The origins of the family, probably of Frankish nobility, date back to the time of Charlemagne in the early 9th century when they settled in Lombardy. The first known member of the house was Margrave Adalbert of Mainz, known only as father of Oberto I, Count palatine of Italy, who died around 975. Oberto's grandson Albert Azzo II, Margrave of Milan, (996–1097) built a castle at Este, near Padua, and named himself after it. He had 3 sons from two marriages, two of whom became the ancestors of the two branches of the family:

* Welf IV, the eldest (d. 1101), was the son of Kunigunde (d. 1056), the last of the Elder Welfs. He inherited the property of his maternal uncle, Welf, Duke of Carinthia, became duke of Bavaria in 1070, and is the ancestor of the elder branch, the House of Welf.
*Hugh, issue of Azzo's second marriage to Garsend of Maine, inherited the County of Maine, his mother's dowry, but sold it one year later and died without heirs.
*Fulco I (d. about 1128/35), the third son, is the ancestor of the younger Italian line of Fulc-Este.

The two surviving branches, with Duke Henry the Lion of Saxony and Bavaria on the German side, concluded an agreement in 1154 which allocated the family's Italian possessions to the younger line, the Fulc-Este, who in the course of time acquired Ferrara, Modena and Reggio. Este itself was taken over in 1275 by Padua and in 1405 (together with Padua) by Venice.

Younger branch, the Margraves of Este

"All later generations of the Italian branch are descendants of Fulco d'Este." From 1171 on, his descendants were titled Margraves of Este.

Obizzo I (d. 1193), the first margrave, battled against Emperor Frederick I Barbarossa. His nephew Azzo d'Este VI (1170–1212) became podestà of Mantua and Verona. In 1146 with the last of the Adelardi Ferrara passed as the dowry of his niece "the Marchesella", to Azzo VI d'Este. Azzo VII "Novello" was nominated podestà for his lifetime in 1242.

The lordship of Ferrara was made hereditary by Obizzo II (d. 1293) who was proclaimed Lord of Ferrara in 1264, Lord of Modena 1288 and Lord of Reggio 1289. Ferrara being a papal fief, the Este family were given the position of hereditary papal vicars in 1332.

Ferrara became a significant center of culture under Niccolò d'Este III (1384–1441), who received several popes with great magnificence, especially Eugene IV, who held a Council here in 1438, later known as the Council of Florence.

His successors were Leonello (1407–1450) and Borso (1413–1471), who was elevated to Duke of Modena and Reggio by Emperor Frederick III in 1452 and in return received these duchies as imperial fiefs. In 1471 he received the duchy of Ferrara as papal fief from Pope Paul II, for which occasion splendid frescoes were executed at Palazzo Schifanoia.

Under Ercole(1431–1505), one of the most significant patrons of the arts in late 15th and early 16th century Italy, Ferrara grew into a cultural center, renowned especially for music; Josquin Des Prez worked for Duke Ercole, Jacob Obrecht came to Ferrara twice, and Antoine Brumel served as principal musician from 1505. Ercole's daughter Beatrice (1475–1497) married Ludovico Sforza, Duke of Milan, while his daughter Isabella (1474–1539) married Francesco Gonzaga, Marquess of Mantua.

Ercole I's successor was his son Alfonso I (1476–1534), third husband of the notorious Lucrezia Borgia and the patron of Ariosto.The age was rife with disease and sanitation measures all but unknown, so this next result can be seen throughout Europe in the period: Alfonso and Lucrezia Borgia's son Ercole d'Este II (1508–1559) married Renée of France, daughter of Louis XII of France. His son Alfonso II first married Lucrezia, daughter of grand-duke Cosimo I of Tuscany, then after becoming a widower, Barbara, the sister of Maximilian II, Holy Roman Emperor (1527–1576) and finally a third wife, Margherita Gonzaga, daughter of the duke of Mantua.

Though he raised the glory of Ferrara to its highest point, and was the patron of Torquato Tasso and Giovanni Battista Guarini, favouring the arts and sciences, as the princes of his house had always done, the legitimate line ended in 1597 with him. Emperor Rudolph II recognized as heir his first cousin Cesare d'Este (1533-1628), member of a cadet branch born out of wedlock, who continued to rule in the imperial duchies and carried on the family name. Ferrara, on the other hand, was annexed by force of arms in 1598 by Pope Clement VIII, on grounds of the heir's illegitimacy, and incorporated into the Papal States.

The last duke, Ercole III, was deposed in 1796 by the French and his two duchies became the Cispadane Republic which one year later was merged into the Cisalpine Republic and then into the Napoleonic Kingdom of Italy. Ercole was compensated in 1801 with the small principality of Breisgau in southwestern Germany, whose previous rulers, the Habsburgs, ceded it to him in anticipation of its eventual return to the Habsburgs, since Ercole's daughter Maria Beatrice Ricciarda d'Este was married to a cadet Habsburg, Archduke Ferdinand of Austria-Este. Ercole died in 1803 and Breisgau passed to his daughter and her husband, who then (1806) lost it during the Napoleonic reorganization of the western territories of the defunct Holy Roman Empire to the enlarged and elevated Grand Duchy of Baden.

Austria-Este

In 1814, when French rule in Italy ended (but after the death of Duke Ercole), Modena was returned to his daughter Mary Beatrice and her son, Archduke Francis of Austria-Este. The family thus ruled the duchy of Modena and Reggio again from 1814 to 1859, using the names Asburgo-Este (Habsburg-Este) and Austria-Este. In 1859 the duchy lost its independence to the new united Italy, and Francis V, Duke of Modena, was deposed.The family of Austria-Este became extinct in the male line with the death of Francis V in 1875. His blood-heiress was his niece, Archduchess Maria Theresia of Austria-Este (d. 1919); she and her husband, Prince Louis of Bavaria, later became Queen and King of Bavaria. The present head of this branch of the family is Franz, Duke of Bavaria.

However, Francis V had decided to retain the Este name in the Habsburg family and willed his inheritance to the line of Archduke Charles Louis, younger brother of Emperor Francis Joseph, on condition that the heir use the name Austria-Este. The first "adoptee" was Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria (b. 1863, not descended from Maria Beatrice Ricciarda d'Este), who took the name Austria-Este and in 1896 became the heir presumptive of the Habsburg Empire, but was murdered on 28 June 1914 in Sarajevo.

Since his own children were born in morganatic marriage (Sophie, Duchess of Hohenberg), the Habsburgs designated his soon-to-be born great-nephew Robert (b. 8 February 1915), second son of the future emperor Charles, as the next "adopted Austria-Este". Through his mother Zita of Bourbon-Parma (a great-granddaughter of Maria Teresa of Savoy, Duchess of Lucca and Parma, who was a daughter of Maria Teresa of Austria-Este, Queen of Sardinia, who in turn was a daughter of Maria Beatrice Ricciarda d'Este and Archduke Ferdinand of Austria-Este, Duchess and Duke of Breisgau and Modena), Robert was a descendant of Ercole III d'Este, and the blood of last Este dukes thus joined again with the name Austria-Este.

Today, the bearer of this tradition is the eldest son of Archduke Robert of Austria-Este (d. 1996), Lorenz Otto Charles of Austria-Este (b. 1955), who is married to Princess Astrid of Belgium, the only daughter of King Albert II. In 1995, Lorenz received the additional title of Prince of Belgium. Since 1991 the couple's children are titled Archduke (Archduchess) of Austria-Este, Princes(ss) of Belgium, Prince(ss) Imperial of Austria, Prince(ss) Royal of Hungary and Bohemia. Eldest of these is Prince Amedeo, Archduke of Austria-Este (b. 1986).

see also

*Ivan VI of Russia
*List of Dukes of Ferrara and of Modena
*Duchy of Reggio
*Duchy of Modena and Reggio
*Duchy of Massa and Carrara
*Ferrara
*Modena
*Reggio Emilia
*Romagna
*List of descendants of the House of Este
*Castello Estense

craig-oxley - March 1, 2009 12:40 AM (GMT)

ESTE, FERRARA, MODENA

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION. 1

Chapter 1. MARCHESI d'ESTE. 2
Chapter 2. MARCHESI d'ESTE, SIGNORI di FERRARA. 5
Chapter 3. SIGNORI di FERRARA, SIGNORI di MODENA, SIGNORI di REGGIO. 8

INTRODUCTION

The Este family, having owned land throughout north and central Italy from the 10th century, established their residence at Este in the Padovano in the second half of the 12th century. The family took over the interests of the Adelardi in Ferrara on the extinction of the latter. They acquired Modena and Reggio in Emilia. By 1500, its lands in Este itself had been surrendered to Venice[1]. The primary sources which confirm the parentage and marriages of the members of this family have not yet been identified, unless otherwise stated below.

Chapter 1. MARCHESI d'ESTE

ALBERTO AZZO [II], son of ALBERTO Azzo [I] Conte di Luni & his wife --- ([996]-Vangadizza monastery 1097). He succeeded his father as Conte di Luni. Marchese. The Annalista Saxo calls him "Azoni marchioni de Langobardia de castris Calun et Estin"[2]. The Genealogia Welforum calls him "marchio Etius cum curte Elisina"[3]. The Chronicon of Bernold records the death in 1097 of "Azzo marchio de Longobardia, pater Welfonis ducis de Baiowaria" commenting that he was "iam maior centenario"[4].

m firstly ([1035]) KUNIGUNDE von Altdorf, daughter of WELF [II] Graf von Altdorf & his wife Irmtrud im Moselgau [Wigeriche] ([1020]-31 Mar before 1055, bur Vangadizza monastery). The Genealogia Welforum names "Cunizam" as daughter of Welf and his wife Imiza, specifying that she married "marchio Etius cum curte Elisina"[5]. The Annalista Saxo names "Cunizam" daughter of Welf, and her husband "Azoni marchioni de Langobardia de castris Calun et Estin"[6].

m secondly ([1049/51]) as her second husband, GERSENDE du Maine, repudiated wife of THIBAUT [III] Comte de Blois, daughter of HERBERT [I] "Eveille-Chien" Comte du Maine & his wife ---([1025/35]-). The Actus pontificum Cenomannis records that "Atho marchisius" left Maine in the hands of "Gaufridi de Meduana", also naming "uxor eiusdem marchisii Garcendis…filia Herberti Cenomannorum…comitis…Evigila Canem" and specifying that she had married firstly "Theobaldo duci Campanie" and that he had repudiated her[7]. Her second marriage is also mentioned by Orderic Vitalis, who incorrectly says that she was the daughter of Comte Hugues IV[8].

Mistress (1): MATILDA, sister of GUGLIELMO Vescovo, from Padua and Vedova.

Alberto Azzo [II] & his first wife had one child:

1. WELF [IV] ([1030/40]-Paphos Cyprus 9 Nov 1101, bur Weingarten, near Lake Constance). The Annalista Saxo names "Welfum seniorum" son of "Azoni marchioni de Langobardia de castris Calun et Estin" & his wife "Cunizam"[9]. He was installed in 1070 as WELF [I] Duke of Bavaria by Heinrich [IV] King of Germany.

- DUKES of BAVARIA.

Alberto Azzo [II] & his second wife had two children:

2. FOLCO [I] d'Este (-before 1146). His parentage is stated by Orderic Vitalis, who says that he was older than his brother Ugo[10]. "Heinricus…rex" confirmed "nostri dilecti cancellarii Ugoni et Fulconi germanis Azonis marchionis filiis" in all their possessions "in comitatu Gauolli, Rodigum, Cederniano, Sarzano, Maretiniago…in comitatu [Pata]uiensi Este" by undated charter placed in the compilation with other charters dated 1077[11]. At Ferrara, Monselice and Montagnana. After his father's death in 1097, the succession of Folco and his brother Ugo in Italy was disputed by their older half-brother Welf [I] Duke of Bavaria who undertook an expedition to Italy to assert his position[12].

- see below.

3. UGO d'Este (-1131). His parentage is stated by Orderic Vitalis, who states that he was younger than his [half] brother Falco[13]. He succeeded in 1070 as HUGUES [V] Comte du Maine. "Heinricus…rex" confirmed "nostri dilecti cancellarii Ugoni et Fulconi germanis Azonis marchionis filiis" in all their possessions "in comitatu Gauolli, Rodigum, Cederniano, Sarzano, Maretiniago…in comitatu [Pata]uiensi Este" by undated charter placed in the compilation with other charters dated 1077[14]. He and his brother made no attempt to claim the inheritance in Maine but in 1090 were contacted in Italy by the men of Maine who had rebelled against the Normans. Hugues arrived in Maine and was helped by Geoffrey de Mayenne to recover his maternal inheritance. According to Orderic Vitalis, when "the men of Maine discovered that their new count had neither riches nor judgment and courage to commend him, the hotheads began to regret their action"[15]. He betrayed Matilda Ctss of Tuscany (married to his half-brother's son) in early 1091, frustrating her plan to capture Emperor Heinrich [IV] during the latter's journey to Italy[16]. He sold the County of Maine to his cousin, Hélie de la Flèche in [1093] for 10,000 shilllings[17]. m (1078, repudiated) [ERIA] of Apulia, daughter of ROBERT "Guiscard/Weasel" Duke of Apulia & his second wife Sichelgaita di Salerno. Orderic Vitalis states that the wife of Ugo was daughter of Robert Guiscard (without naming her) and that he repudiated her "without cause" for which he was excommunicated by Pope Urban[18]. Her father's insistance that his principal vassals meet the cost of her wedding caused considerable resentment, triggering the revolt against Robert Guiscard in autumn 1078. Amatus records the marriage of Duke Robert's (unnamed) daughter, endowed "with a very fine dowry", and the (unnamed) son of Marquis Azzo[19]. The primary source which confirms her name has not yet been identified.

Alberto Azzo [II] had one illegitimate child by Mistress (1):

4. ADELASIA . m GUGLIELMO [I] Adelardi . 1070/1140.

FOLCO [I] d'Este, son of son of ALBERTO AZZO II Conte di Luni [Este] & his second wife Gersende du Maine (-before 1146). His parentage is stated by Orderic Vitalis, who says that he was older than his brother Ugo[20]. "Heinricus…rex" confirmed "nostri dilecti cancellarii Ugoni et Fulconi germanis Azonis marchionis filiis" in all their possessions "in comitatu Gauolli, Rodigum, Cederniano, Sarzano, Maretiniago…in comitatu [Pata]uiensi Este" by undated charter placed in the compilation with other charters dated 1077[21]. At Ferrara, Monselice and Montagnana. After his father's death in 1097, the succession of Folco and his brother Ugo in Italy was disputed by their older half-brother Welf [I] Duke of Bavaria who undertook an expedition to Italy to assert his position[22].

m ---. The name of Folco's wife is not known.

Folco & his wife had six children:

1. OBIZZO [I] d'Este (-[25 Dec 1193]). Marchese 1154. Marchese d'Este 1173. Created Marchese of Genoa and Milan 1184 by the Emperor. Podestà of Padua 1177/1180-1181. Lord of Ferrara 1187, where he was granted the possessions of the Adelardi family. Vogt of San Romano at Ferrara 1188. Lord of Rovigo 1191.

- see below, LORDS of FERRARA.

2. BONIFAZIO [I] d'Este (-1163). He and his brother Folco reached a settlement with their cousin Heinrich "der Löwe" Duke of Saxony near Verona in Oct 1154 regarding the disputed inheritance of the Este lands in Italy, under which all the brothers recognised the duke's right to Este and neighbouring places but were enfeoffed by him with all these places for themselves and their descendants in the male and female line. Duke Welf VI concluded a similar agreement with the brothers in 1160[23]. Marchese 1154. m ---. The name of Bonifazio's wife is not known.

3. FOLCO [II] d'Este (-before 1172). Marchese 1154. Marchese d'Este 1173. m ---. The name of Folco's wife is not known. Folco [II] & his wife had one child:

a) BONIFAZIO [II] d'Este (-1190).

4. ALBERTO d'Este (-1184). Marchese 1154. Marchese d'Este 1173. m ---. The name of Alberto's wife is not known. Alberto & his wife had two children:

a) ADELASIA d'Este . 1191. .

B) AUREMPLASIA d'Este . 1191.

5. AZZO [IV] d'Este . 1154.

6. BEATRICE d’Este .

Chapter 2. MARCHESI d'ESTE, SIGNORI di FERRARA

OBIZZO [I] d'Este, son of FOLCO [I] d'Este & his wife --- (-[25 Dec 1193]). Marchese 1154. Marchese d'Este 1173. Created Marchese di Genoa & Milan 1184 by the Emperor. Podestà of Padua 1177/1180-1181. Lord of Ferrara 1187, where he was granted the possessions of the Adelardi family. Vogt of San Romano at Ferrara 1188. Lord of Rovigo 1191.

m firstly ---. The name of Obizzo's first wife is not known.

m secondly SOPHIA da Landinara, daughter of ---.

Obizzo [I] & his first wife had one child:

1. AZZO [V] d'Este ([1130]-[1190]). m ---. The name of Azzo's wife is not known. Azzo [V] & his wife had two children:

a) AZZO [VI] "Azzolino" d'Este ([1170]-Nov 1212, bur Vangadizza monastery). In Castillo di Ariano 1195. Podestà of Ferrara 1196, 1205 and 1208. Podestà of Padua 1199. Podestà of Verona 1206/07. Podestà of Mantua 1207/08 and 1210/11. Created Marchese di Ancona e Conte di Loreto by the Emperor 20 Jan 1210. Created Marchese di Ancona by the Pope 10 May 1212. m firstly ---, daughter of Conte ALDOBRANDINO. m secondly (before 1192) SOPHIE [Eléonore] de Maurienne, daughter of HUMBERT [III] Comte de Maurienne et de Savoie & his third wife Klementia von Zähringen [Baden] ([1167/72]-3 Dec 1202). Her family origin is given on the epitaph of her daughter Beatrice, on which she is called Eleonore[24]. The primary source which confirms her name as Sophie has not yet been identified. m thirdly (22 Feb 1204) ALIX de Châtillon, daughter of RENAUD de Châtillon ex-Prince of Antioch & his second wife Stephanie de Milly (-1235 or after). The Chronicle of Alberic de Trois-Fontaines names "Aleydem [uxor] marchionis Eystensis in Italia" as third of the three daughters of "Raynaldus de Castellione uxor…relictam principis Raymundi"[25], but it appears chronologically unlikely that Alix could have been the daughter of Renaud by his first wife who died [1163/67]. "Domini Azoni Estensis Marchionis" donated property to the monastery of Santa Maria at Carceres, with the consent of "Domina Adelice sua matre", by charter dated 1235[26]. Azzo [VI] & his first wife had one child:

i) ALDOBRANDINO [I] d'Este ([1190]-1215). Podestà of Ferrara 1212. Podestà of Mantua and Verona 1212/13. He succeeded his father in 1212 as Marchese di Ancona. m ---. The name of Aldobrandino's wife is not known. Aldobrandino [I] & his wife had one child:

(a) BEATRICE d'Este (1215-1245 before 8 May, bur Gemmola). Her origin is deduced from the Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam which refers to "domnus Stephanus filius regis Hungarie" as "nepos marchionis Hestensis"[27]. The primary source which confirms her name and parentage has not so far been identified. She returned to Italy after her husband's death in 1235[28]. m (Székesfehérvár 14 May 1234) as his third wife, ANDRÁS II King of Hungary, son of BÉLA III King of Hungary & his first wife Agnès [Anna] de Châtillon-sur-Loing (1176-21 Sep 1235, bur Egrecz Abbey).

Azzo [VI] & his second wife had one child:

ii) BEATRICE d'Este (1192-Gemmola 10 May 1226, bur Padua, Santa Sofia, transferred 1256 to Este Santa Tecla). Nun at Gemmola 1221.

Azzo [VI] & his third wife had one child:

iii) AZZO [VII] d'Este ([1205]-17 Feb 1264, bur Ferrara San Francesco). Marchese d'Este. Signore di Ferrara 1240.

- see below.

B) AGNESE d'Este . The Cronica Alberti de Bezanis states that "Ezelino secundo" had two wives in his boyhood, firstly "dominam Agnetam sororem domini Azonis primi marchionis Estensis" who after her divorce married "domino Dulcemanino…de Padua"[29]. m firstly (divorced) as his first wife, EZZELINO [II] "il Monaco" da Romano, son of EZZELINO [I] "Balbo" da Romano & his wife Honoria --- ([1150]-1235). m secondly DULCEMANINO di Padua .

Obizzo [I] & his second wife had five children:

2. BONIFAZIO d'Este (-7 Jun 1228).

3. GERSENDA d'Este . 1193.

4. FORA d'Este . 1193.

5. ADELAIDA d'Este . 1193.

6. TOMMASINA d'Este . 1193.

AZZO [VII] d'Este, son of AZZO [VI] "Azzolino" d'Este Marchese di Ancona & his third wife Alix de Châtillon ([1205]-17 Feb 1264, bur Ferrara San Francesco). Marchese d'Este. Lord of the March of Ancona 1217. Vogt of San Antonio at Ferrara 1229. Podestà of Vicenza 1236. "Domini Azoni Estensis Marchionis" donated property to the monastery of Santa Maria at Carceres, with the consent of "Domina Adelice sua matre", by charter dated 1235[30]. Azzo expelled Salinguerra Torelli from Ferrara in 1240 as became Signore di Ferrara. Podestà of Mantua 1247/53.

m firstly ([1221]) GIOVANNA, daughter of --- (-1233).

m secondly (1238) AMABILIA Pallavicini, daughter of GUIDO Marchese Pallavicini & his wife --- [de Bourgogne] (-Feb 1264). The Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam names "Mabilia [filia domnus Markesopolus Pellavicini]" & his wife "de Burgundia" as the wife of "domno Açoni marchioni Hestensi"[31].

Azzo [VII] & his first wife had four children:

1. RINALDO [I] d'Este (shortly after 1221-Apulia [1251]). The Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam names "Rainaldo principe, quondam filio Açonis marchionis Estensis et Ferraria"[32]. Hostage of Emperor Friedrich [II] 1238 to 1251. m ([1233]) ADELASIA da Romano, daughter of ALBERIGO da Romano & his wife --- (-1251). Hostage of Emperor Friedrich [II] 1238 to 1251. Rinaldo [I] had three illegitimate children by an unknown mistress or mistresses:

a) OBIZZO [II] d'Este ([1247]-Ferrara 20 Feb 1293). Legitimated 1252 by the Pope. He succeeded his grandfather in 1264 as Signore di Ferrara, Marchese d'Este.

- see below.

B) CONSTANZA d'Este . m GUIDO di Maltraversi da Lozzo.

c) PIETRO d'Este (-1304). Abbot.

2. BEATRICE d'Este (-18 Jan 1262). Nun in Ferrara 1254. Founded the convent of San Antonio on the Island in the River Po at Polesine in 1256.

3. COSTANZA d'Este (-Ferrara after 1315). The Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam names "domina Constantia filia Açonis marchioni Hestensis" as wife of "domni Guilielmus primogenitus…domni Pallavicin"[33]. Nun at Ferrara San Antonio, after her second husband died. m firstly UMBERTO Conte di Maremma (-1264). m secondly GUGLIELMO Pallavicini Marchese di Scipioni (-Cremona 28 Dec 1284, bur Cremona cathedral).

4. CUBITOSA d'Este . m ISNARDO di Malaspina .

Chapter 3. SIGNORI di FERRARA, SIGNORI di MODENA, SIGNORI di REGGIO

OBIZZO [II] d'Este, illegitimate son of RINALDO [I] d'Este & his mistress --- ([1247]-Ferrara 20 Feb 1293). The Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam names "[filius] natus ex quadam nobile muliere de Neapoli…Opiçonem" and "Rainaldo principe, quondam filio Açonis marchionis Estensis et Ferraria", records that he was expelled from Ferrara and lived in Ravenna before being recalled by his grandfather, and after his mother was drowned in the Adriatic[34]. Legitimated 1252 by the Pope. He succeeded his grandfather in 1264 as Marchese d'Este, and elected to succeed as hereditary Signore di Ferrara "gubernator et rector et generalis et perpetuus dominus"[35]. The nobles of the city of Modena (the Rangoni, Boschetti and Guidoni) delivered Modena into the hands of Obizzo [II] in 1288, whereby he became Signore di Modena 1289. Podestà of Reggio 1290, Signore di Reggio.

m firstly (1263) GIACOMINA Fieschi, daughter of NICCOLÒ Fieschi di Lavagna & his wife Leonora --- (-Dec 1287). The Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam refers to the wife of "Opiçonem" as "papa Adrianus…propinquam"[36].

m secondly (1289) as her first husband, COSTANZA della Scala, daughter of ALBERTO [I] della Scala Signore e Capitane di Verona & his wife --- (-Mantua 1306). She married secondly (1299) Guido Bonaccolai Signore di Mantua.

Obizzo [II] & his first wife had five children:

1. AZZO [VIII] d'Este (after 1263-Este 31 Jan 1308). The Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam refers to the 3 sons and 4 daughters of "Opiçonem" & his wife "papa Adrianus…propinquam", of whom "primogenitus Aço"[37]. He succeeded his father in 1293 as Signore di Ferrara, Modena e Reggio. m firstly (Ferrara 1282) GIOVANNA Orsini, niece of Pope Nicholas III, daughter of BERTOLDO Orsini & his wife --- (-[1302/04]). The Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam refers to the wife of "primogenitus Aço" as

"parentela papa Nicholai tertii natione Romani"[38]. m secondly (Apr 1305) as her first husband, BEATRICE of Sicily, daughter of CHARLES [II] King of Sicily [Anjou] & his wife Maria of Hungary (1295-Andria 1335[39], bur Andria). She married secondly (before 24 Jan 1309) Bertrand des Baux Seigneur de Berre Conte d'Andria. Azzo [VIII] & his first wife had three children:

a) RICCARDO d'Este .

B) PIETRO d'Este . Abbot.

c) CONSTANZA d'Este . m [UMBERTO/LAMBERTINO] Caccianemici .

Azzo [VIII] had one illegitimate child by an unknown mistress:

d) FRESCO d'Este (-Venice 1312). He succeeded his father in 1308 as Signore di Ferrara, deposed Oct 1308. m PELLEGRINA Caccianemici, daughter of CACCIANEMICO Caccianemici & his wife ---. Fresco & his wife had [three or more] children:

i) FOLCO d'Este (-after 10 Oct 1308). His grandfather attempted to transfer his lands and lordships to Folco but this provoked a rebellion by the latter's great-uncles. Folco sought support from Venice whose forces occupied by Ferrara but were obliged to surrender to the papal siege in 1310[40].

ii) children. 1300.

2. BEATRICE d'Este (-1 Sep 1334). m firstly UGOLINO [Nino] Visconti Judge of Gallura (-Lucca 2 or 9 Jan 1298). m secondly (24 Jun 1300) GALEAZZO [I] Visconti Signore di Piacenza e Milano (1277-6 Aug 1328).

3. MADDALENA d'Este . m firstly ALDOBRANDINO Turchi, from Ferrara. m secondly RANIERO di Canossa .

4. ALDOBRANDINO [II] d'Este (-1326). He succeeded his father in 1293 as Signore di Modena, Lendinara, Rovigo e d'Este.

- see below.

5. FRANCESCO d'Este (-killed in battle Ferrara 23 Aug 1312). Signore di Reggio. He and his brothers opposed the succession of their great-nephew Folco in 1308 and turned to Padua and the papacy for support. Papal troops besieged Ferrara, which surrendered in 1310 whereupon direct papal rule was established. Francesco was killed in the ensuing disorders[41]. m ORSINA Orsini, niece of Pope Nicholas III, daughter of BERTOLDO Orsini & his wife ---. Francesco & his wife had four children:

a) AZZO [IX] d'Este (-1318). He and his brother, together with their cousins, were restored as Signori di Ferrara in 1317 following a pro-Este revolt in their favour against the papal administration[42]. e Ariano 1317. m RICCIARDA di Gucellone da Camino.

B) BERTOLDO d'Este (-21 Jul 1343). He and his brother were restored as Signori di Ferrara in 1317 following a pro-Este revolt in their favour against the papal administration40. m firstly (1324) DOMENICA Pio, daughter of ---. m secondly (Ferrara Jul 1339) CATERINA da Camino, daughter of RICCARDO da Camino & his wife ---. m thirdly (Ferrara Jun 1342) CATERINA Visconti, daughter of LUCCHINO Visconti Signore di Milano & his wife ---. Bertoldo & his first wife had one child:

i) FRANCESCO d'Este (1325-Este 13 Dec 1384). He opposed the succession of his cousin Aldobrandino [III] as Signore di Ferrara in 1352, and sought support from the Visconti, Malatesta, Gonzaga and Carrara families, but renounced his claim in 1354 [43]. Governor of Parma 1344. m TADDEA di Barbiano, daughter of GIOVANNI Conte di Barbiano & his wife ---. 1393. Francesco & his wife had three children:

(a) GIACOMO d'Este (-Ferrara 28 Oct 1392). Governor of Parma. Capitano of the Visconti. m ---. The name of Giacomo's wife is not known. Giacomo & his wife had one child:

(1) OBIZZO d'Este . Canon.

(B) AZZO [X] d'Este (1344-Este [1/29] Jan 1415). He challenged the succession of Niccolò [III] as Signore di Ferrara in 1393. Azzo X was finally defeated and captured in 1395. He was held in custody first by Astorgio Manfredi, Signore di Faenza, and later by Venice who used him as their puppet leader when they attacked Ferrara in 1405[44]. m firstly TOMMASINA Guarnioni, daughter of ---. m secondly RICCARDA, daughter of GUACELLO di Canino. m thirdly AMABILIA, daughter of RAMBOLDO di Collalto. Azzo [X] & his [first/second/third] wife had three children:

(1) TADDEO d'Este (-near Brescia 21 Jun 1448, bur Este San Francesco). Venetian Governor General in Friulia 1421. Captain General, Condotierre 1437. m firstly (Sep 1420) MADDALENA Arcelli, daughter of FILIPPO Arcelli [Venetian Governor General in Friulia]. m secondly (1442) MARGHERITA Pico, daughter of MARCO Pico. Taddeo & his first wife had two children:

a. ELENA d'Este . m LODOVICO Conte Torriani [Thurn], from Udine.

b. BERTOLDO d'Este (May 1434-killed in battle Corinth 4 Nov 1463, bur Este San Francesco). He was appointed commander-in-chief of the Venetian forces which landed in Nauplia in response to Ottoman attacks on Lepanto and around Modon in 1462. They recaptured Argos and several fortresses before restoring the Hexamilion and besieging Akrocorinth. Bertoldo was struck on the head by a stone during the siege and died from the wound, while the Turks destroyed the Hexamilion again and forced a retreat to Nauplia[45]. Governor General of Morea 1463. m as her first husband, GIACOPA da Leonessa, daughter of GENTILE da Leonessa. She married secondly Pietro Valier. Taddeo had one illegitimate child by an unknown mistress:

c. COSTANZA d'Este . m ANTONIO Benzoni .

(2) FRANCESCO d'Este (-after May 1424).

(3) ORSINA d'Este . m FEDERICO Conte di Porcia .

© ORSINA d'Este . m FEDERICO Savorgnani Signor di Udine .

c) GIACOPINA d'Este . m ENRICO Scrofegni .

d) GIOVANNA d'Este . m SIMONE GUIDO Conte di Battifolle .

ALDOBRANDINO [II] d'Este, son of (-1326). He succeeded his father in 1293 as Signore di Modena, Lendinara, Rovigo e d'Este. He lost Este to Padua[46].

m (1289) ALDA Rangoni, daughter of TOBIA Rangoni & his wife --- (-Sep 1321). This marriage was arranged as part of the agreement under which her future father-in-law became Signore di Modena[47].

Aldobrandino [II] & his wife had four children:

1. RINALDO [II] d'Este (-Ferrara 31 Dec 1335). He and his brothers, together with their cousins, were restored as Signori di Ferrara in 1317 following a pro-Este revolt in their favour against the papal administration[48]. He secured the town of Comacchio, near the coast, in 1325, previously disputed with the Polenta lords of Ravenna. The pope granted him a papal vicariate over Ferrara for 10 years in 1329[49]. m LUCREZIA di Barbiano, daughter of NICCOLÒ Conte di Barbiano & his wife ---. Rinaldo [II] & his wife had one child:

a) BEATRICE d'Este (-10 Feb 1339). By charter dated 18 Dec 1338, "Conte Aymone di Savoia" appointed "Umberto di Vileta Signore di Chevron ed Aimone di Verdon" as proxies to confirm all obligations agreed by "Giacomo di Savoia Principe d'Acaia" relating to the dowry of "Beatrice figlia Rainaudo Marchese di Ferrara"[50]. An agreement dated 22 Jan 1339 between "Beatrice figlia del fu Marchese Renaldo d'Este" and "Obizione e Nicolao Marchesi d'Este" relates to the payment of dowry to "Giacomo di Savoia Principe d'Acaia"[51]. Although the wording of these documents do not confirm that this marriage ever took place (and the evident problems relating to the dowry suggest difficult negotiations), the 16 May 1366 testament of Prince Jacques names "…Principessa Sibilla di Beaux sua Seconda Consorte…" and therefore indicates that he was married before[52]. m (by proxy 18 Dec 1338, 22 Jan 1339[53]) as his first wife, JACQUES de Savoie Signore di Piemonte titular Prince of Achaia, son of PHILIPPE de Savoie Prince of Achaia & his second wife Catherine de Viennois ([6/16] Jan 1315-Pinerolo 14 May 1367). No issue.

Rinaldo [II] had four illegitimate children by FURLANA (-7 or 13 Nov 1362) or ORSOLINA Macaruffi, daughter of MACARUFFO Macaruffi Signore di Padua:

B) OBIZZO d'Este . 1344. Vicar of Ferrara.

i) [OBIZZO (1347-after 1 Apr 1396). Nepos of Bishop Aldobrandino. Canon at Modena 1359-1395.]

c) ALDOBRANDINO d'Este (Ferrara 1325-30 Oct 1381, bur Ferrara cathedral). Legitimated at Ferrara 30 May 1344. Bishop of Adria 1349. Bishop of Modena 1352-1378. Bishop of Ferrara 1379-1381.

d) GIACOMA . m ZAMBROSINO Boccadelli .

e) AZZO d'Este ([1332]-7 Mar 1371, bur Ferrara, Franciscan church). Legitimated at Ferrara 30 May 1344. Podestà of Modena 1352. m TOMMASINA de Garamontibus, daughter of DUXIUS de Garamontibus.

2. NICCOLÒ [I] d'Este (-Ferrara 1344). He and his brothers, together with their cousins, were restored as Signori di Ferrara in 1317 following a pro-Este revolt in their favour against the papal administration46. Citizen of Venice 1331. Vicar of Ferrara 1343. m (Ferrara 21 Jan 1335) BEATRICE Gonzaga, daughter of GUIDO Gonzaga & his wife ---. Niccolò [I] & his wife had one child:

a) RINALDO [III] d'Este (1336-1369).

3. OBIZZO [III] d'Este (14 Jul 1294-Ferrara 20 Mar 1352). He and his brothers, together with their cousins, were restored as Signori di Ferrara in 1317 following a pro-Este revolt in their favour against the papal administration.

- see below.

4. ALISIA d'Este (-1329). m (1325) RINALDO Passerino Bonacolsi Signore di Mantua (-killed in battle 1330).

OBIZZO [III] d'Este, son of ALDOBRANDINO [II d'Este Signor di Modena & his wife Alda Rangoni (14 Jul 1294-Ferrara 20 Mar 1352). He and his brothers, together with their cousins, were restored as Signori di Ferrara in 1317 following a pro-Este revolt in their favour against the papal administration46. He recovered the town of Modena in 1336, followed by Argenta and San Felice in 1346[54]. Vicar of Ferrara 1343. Vogt of Pomposa monastery. A number of noble families in Parma invited Obizzo [III] to become Signore di Parma in 1344[55].

m firstly (May 1317) GIACOMA Pepoli, daughter of ROMO Pepoli, from Bologna.

m secondly (1347) LIPPA Ariosto, daughter of nobile GIACOMO Ariosto, from Bologna (-27 Nov 1347). She had been his mistress.

Obizzo [III] & his second wife had eight children (born before their parents' marriage, legitimated in 1346 by the Pope):

1. ALDA d'Este (1333-1381). m (1356) LODOVICO [II] Gonzaga Marchese di Mantua (1334-1382).

2. ALISIA d'Este . According to Europäische Stammtafeln[56], Alisia married firstly (Ferrara 1321) Rainaldo Bonaccolsi (-1328), but this is chronologically impossible. Presumably there is confusion with her aunt of the same first name. m (Ferrara 12 Jul 1349) GUIDO di Polenta Signore di Ravenna.

3. RINALDO d'Este .

4. ALDOBRANDINO [III] d'Este (14 Sep 1335-Ferrara 2/3 Nov 1361). Vicar of Ferrara 1352. He succeeded in 1354 as Signore di Modena. m (1351) BEATRICE da Camino, daughter of RICCIARDO da Camino Signore di Treviso & his wife Verde della Scala (-beheaded 1388). Aldobrandino [III] & his wife had three children:

a) NICCOLÒ d'Este (-young).

B) VERDE d'Este (27 Apr 1354-20 Aug 1400, bur Mindelheim). m (1377) KONRAD von Teck, son of FRIEDRICH [III] Herzog von Teck & his wife Anna von Helfenstein (-killed in battle [29 Oct 1385/10 Jul 1386], bur Ferrara).

c) OBIZZO [IV] d'Este (1356-beheaded 1388).

5. NICCOLÒ [II] "lo Zoppo" d'Este (Ferrara 17 May 1338-Ferrara 26 Mar 1388). He succeeded his brother in 1361 as Signore di Ferrara. He captured Reggio from Feltrino Gonzaga in 1371 but immediately lost it to Bernabò Visconti[57]. m (Feb 1363) VERDE della Scala, daughter of MASTINO [II] della Scala Signore di Verona e Vicenza (-1393 or after). Niccolò [II] & his wife had two children:

a) TADDEA d'Este (1365-Padua 23 Nov 1404, bur Padua cathedral). m (Padua 31 May 1377) FRANCESCO [II] "il Giovane" da Carrara (-1406). Signore di Padua 1392.

B) RINALDO d'Este (1371-).

6. AZZO d'Este . 1340/49.

7. UGO d'Este (Ferrara 18 Oct 1344-[2 Aug 1370], bur Ferrara San Francesco). m (1363) COSTANZA Malatesta, daughter of MALATESTA [III] Malatesta "l'Ungharo" Signore di Rimini (-1378).

8. BEATRICE d'Este (-1387). m (1365) as his second wife, WOLDEMAR I Graf von Anhalt, son of ALBRECHT I Graf von Anhalt in Köthen und Zerbst & his second wife Agnes von Brandenburg [Askanier] (-after 7 Jan 1368).

Obizzo [III] had four illegitimate children by an unknown mistress or mistresses:

9. ALBERTO d'Este (Ferrara 1347-Ferrara 30 Jul 1393). He succeeded his half-brother in 1388 as Signore di Ferrara. Co-signore di Ferrara 1385. He succeeded his half-brother 1388 as Signore di Ferrara. He briefly recovered the town of Este in 1389[58]. Founded the University of Ferrara 1391. m (1388) GIOVANNA de' Roberti, daughter of CABRINO de' Roberti, from Reggio. 1425. Alberto had one illegitimate child by ISOTTA Albaresani, daughter of --- (-after 1425):

a) NICCOLÒ [III] d'Este (Ferrara 9 Nov 1383-poisoned Milan 26 Dec 1441, bur Ferrara Santa Maria degli Angeli). Legitimated 1391 by the Pope. He succeeded his father in 1393 as Signore di Ferrara, Modena, Adria, Comacchio e Rovigo.

- see below.

10. COSTANZA (1343-1392). m (2 Feb 1362) MALATESTA [III] Malatesta "l'Ungharo" Signore di Rimini Under-Lord of Pesaro (1327-1372).

11. FOLCO .

12. GIOVANNI (-1388).

NICCOLÒ [III] d'Este, son of ALBERTO d'Este Signor di Ferrara & his mistress Isotta Albaresani (Ferrara 9 Nov 1383-poisoned Milan 26 Dec 1441, bur Ferrara Santa Maria degli Angeli). Legitimated 1391 by the Pope. He succeeded his father in 1393 as Signore di Ferrara, Modena, Adria, Comacchio e Rovigo, minor until 1402. His succession was challenged by Azzo [X], who was finally defeated and captured in 1395 [59]. His forces temporarily occupied Reggio in 1404, and attacked Piacenza in 1405. In 1404, he helped Francesco da Carrara to defend Padua against attack by Venice, which in 1405 attacked Ferrara and forced commercial concessions from Niccolò[60]. Signore di Reggio e Parma 1409. He was forced to relinquish Parma to Filippo Maria Visconti in 1421[61]. Signore di Lugo 1437. He recovered the Polesine from Veince in 1438, and bought Bagnacavallo and Massalombarda in the Romagna in 1440[62].

m firstly (Jun 1397) GIGLIOLA da Carrara, daughter of FRANCESCO [II] "il Giovane" da Carrara & his wife Taddea d'Este ([1382]-of the plague 1416).

m secondly (1418) PARISINA Malatesta, daughter of ANDREA Malatesta Signore di Cosena (1404-beheaded Ferrara 21 May 1425). She committed adultery with her husband's illegitimate son Ugo and was beheaded[63].

m thirdly ([1429/31]) RICCIARDA di Saluzzo, daughter of TOMASO III Marchese di Saluzzo & his wife Marguerite de Roucy (-Ferrara 16 Aug 1474, bur Ferrara Santa Maria degli Angeli). "Marchese Nicolao d'Este fù Alberto" issued a proxy dated 2 Dec 1430 for the negotiation of his marriage to "Rizarda figlia del fù Marchese di Saluzzo"[64].

Niccolò [III] & his second wife had three children:

1. GINEVRA d'Este (24 Mar 1419-). Twin with Luzia. m (12 Oct 1440) SIGISMONDO PANDOLFO Malatesta Signore di Rimini .

2. LUCIA d'Este (24 Mar 1419-28 Jun 1437). Twin with Ginevra. m (1437) CARLO Gonzaga Marchese di Mantua (-21 Dec 1456).

3. ALBERTO CARLO d'Este (1421-aged 21 days).

Niccolò [III] & his third wife had two children:

4. ERCOLE d'Este (26 Oct 1431-25 Jan 1505, bur Ferrara Santa Maria degli Angeli). Governor of Modena 1463. He succeeded his half-brother in 1471 as ERCOLE I Duke of Ferrara, Modena and Reggio.

- DUKES of FERRARA, MODENA and REGGIO.

5. SIGISMONDO d'Este (1433-Ferrara 1 Apr 1507). Signore di San Martino di Rio 11 May 1501.

- SIGNORI di SAN MARTINO.

Niccolò [III] had three illegitimate children by STELLA dei Tolomei dell´Assassino, daughter of --- (bur Ferrara San Francesco).

6. UGO d'Este (1405-beheaded Ferrara 21 May 1425). He committed adultery with his father's second wife and was beheaded[65].

7. LEONELLO d'Este (Ferrara 21 Sep 1407-Palazzo di Belriguardo 1 Oct 1450, bur Ferrara Santa Maria degli Angeli). Legitimated by the Pope 1429. He succeeded his father in 1441 as Signore di Ferrara, Modena e Reggio. m firstly (Jan 1435) MARGHERITA Gonzaga, daughter of GIANFRANCESCO Gonzaga Marchese di Mantua (-3 Jul 1439). m secondly (20 May 1444) MARIA d'Aragona, illegitimate daughter of ALFONSO V King of Aragon and Naples & his mistress Giraldona Carlino (-9 Dec 1449, bur Ferrara Santa Maria degli Angeli). Leonello & his first wife had one child:

a) NICCOLÒ d'Este (Ferrara 20 Jul 1438-beheaded Ferrara 4 Sep 1476, bur Ferrara San Francesco).

Leonello had one illegitimate child by an unknown mistress:

B) FRANCESCO d'Este (1444-after 1471).

8. BORSO d'Este (1413-Ferrara 19 Aug 1471, bur Certosa). He succeeded his brother 1450 as Signore di Ferrara, Modena e Reggio. Created Duke of Modena and Reggio by the Emperor 1452. Created Duke of Ferrara by the Pope 14 Apr 1471.

Niccolò [III] had one illegitimate child by CATERINA del Medici, daughter of ---.

9. MELIADUSE d'Este (1406-1452). Abbot of Pomposa and Ferrara, resigned 1425. Meliaduse had six illegitimate children by unknown mistresses:

a) SCIPIONE d'Este . Scipione had one illegitimate child by an unknown mistress:

i) MELIADUSE d'Este (-after 1522). Bishop of Comacchio 1497-1506. Canon at Ferrara 1519. Meliaduse had two illegitimate children by unknown mistresses:

(a) ERCOLE d'Este . 1501.

(B) SCIPIONE d'Este (Ferrara 1498-Casale Monferrato 15 Jul 1567, bur Casale cathedral). Bishop of Casale. Scipione had one illegitimate child by an unknown mistress:

(1) PAOLO d'Este .

B) POLISSENA d'Este . m firstly GIOVANNI Romei . m secondly SCARMACCIO Visconti .

c) 2 sons.

d) 2 daughters.

Niccolò [III] had two illegitimate children by FILIPPA della Tavola .

10. GURONE Maria d'Este (-1484). Canon at Ferrara. Apostolic protonotary. Abbot of Nonantola Santa Maria di Gavello e Campagnola. Gurone had one illegitimate child by an unknown mistress:

a) NICCOLÒ MARIA d'Este (-Ferrara 5 Aug 1507, bur Ferrara cathedral). Provost at Bondeno and Commendatario-Abbot of Santa Maria di Gavello 1483. Bishop of Adria 1487-1502. Governor of Viterbo 1502-1503. Niccolò had three illegitimate children by unknown mistresses:

i) NICCOLÒ .

ii) GURONE .

iii) ERCOLE .

11. ALBERTO d'Este (1415-8 Apr 1502). Signore di Polesine di Rovigo 1471/74. Alberto had four illegitimate children by BIANCA Mezzarili, wife of FRANCESCO Petrati, daughter of ---.

a) daughter . m (1490) FEBO Gonzaga dei Signori di Sabbioneta.

B) AGOSTINO .

c) BORSO .

d) FRANCESCO MARIA .

Niccolò [III] had three illegitimate children by CATERINA, daughter of TADDEO ---.

12. ISOTTA d'Este (1425-1456). m firstly ODDANTONIO da Montefeltro Conte d'Urbino . m secondly (1446) STEFANO Frangipani Conte di Segni (-1481).

13. CAMILLA d'Este . m (1448) RODOLFO Varano di Camerino (-1464).

14. BEATRICE d'Este (1427-before 29 Nov 1497). m (1448) NICCOLÒ di Correggio .

Niccolò [III] had one illegitimate child by an unknown mistress:

15. RINALDO d'Este ([1435]-8 Apr 1503). m (11 Jun 1472) as her second husband, LUCREZIA, widow of GIAMBARTOLOMEO Marchese di Carretto, illegitimate daughter of GUGLIELMO XI Marchese di Monferrato & his mistress --- (-after 1481). Rinaldo & his wife had one child:

a) NICCOLÒ . 1511/12. m LEONORA Caleagnini, daughter of ---.

Niccolò [III] had one illegitimate child by ANNA de' Roberti, daughter of ---:

16. BIANCA MARIA d'Este (18 Dec 1440-Mirandola 12 Jan 1506, bur Mirandola San Francesco). m (1468) GALEOTTO [I] Pico Signor della Mirandola (-7 Apr 1499, bur Mirandola San Francesco).

---

[1] Dean, T. (1988) Land and Power in Late Medieval Ferrara: The Rule of the Este 1350-1450 (Cambridge University Press), pp. 13-14.

[2] Annalista Saxo 1126.

[3] Genealogia Welforum 8, MGH SS XIII, p. 734.

[4] Bernoldi Chronicon 1097, MGH SS V, p. 465.

[5] Genealogia Welforum 8, MGH SS XIII, p. 734.

[6] Annalista Saxo 1126.

[7] Busson, G. and Ledru, A. (eds.) (1902) Actus Pontificum Cenomannis in urbe degentium (Le Mans) ("Actus pontificum Cenomannis"), 377.

[8] Orderic Vitalis, Vol. II, Book IV, p. 305.

[9] Annalista Saxo 1126.

[10] Chibnall, M. (ed. and trans.) The Ecclesiastical History of Orderic Vitalis (Oxford Medieval Texts, 1969-80), Vol. IV, Book VIII, p. 195.

[11] D H IV 289, p. 377.

[12] Jordan, K., trans. Falla, P. S. (1986) Henry the Lion: a Biography (Clarendon Press, Oxford), p. 6.

[13] Orderic Vitalis, Vol. IV, Book VIII, p. 195.

[14] D H IV 289, p. 377.

[15] Orderic Vitalis, Vol. IV, Book VIII, p. 193.

[16] Poull, G. (1994) La Maison souveraine et ducale de Bar (Presses Universitaires de Nancy), p. 57.

[17] Orderic Vitalis, Vol. IV, Book VIII, p. 199.

[18] Orderic Vitalis, Vol. IV, Book VIII, p. 195.

[19] P. N. Dunbar (trans.) G. A. Loud (rev.) (2004) Amatus of Montecassino, The History of the Normans (Boydell) ("Amatus") VIII.34, p. 204.

[20] Orderic Vitalis, Vol. IV, Book VIII, p. 195.

[21] D H IV 289, p. 377.

[22] Jordan (1986), p. 6.

[23] Jordan (1986), p. 47.

[24] Muratori, Ludovico Antonio (1717-1740) Delle antichità Estensi ed Italiane 2 Vols (Modena), Vol I, cited by Peter Stewart, GEN-MEDIEVAL-L@rootsweb.com, 6 Jan 2005.

[25] Chronica Albrici Monachi Trium Fontium 1167, MGH SS XXIII, p. 850.

[26] Muratori, L. A. (1773) Antiquitates Italicæ Medii ævi, Tome I, p. 754.

[27] Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam, Ordinis Minorem, MGH SS XXXII, pp. 166-67.

[28] Macartney, C. A. (1962) Hungary: A Short History (Edinburgh University Press), Chapter 2, consulted at Corvinus Library of Hungarian History, <http://www.hungary.com/corvinus/lib/> (20 Jul 2003).

[29] Cronica Alberti de Bezanis, MGH SS rerum Germanicarum in usum Scholarum II (Hannover, 1908), p. 46.

[30] Muratori, L. A. (1773) Antiquitates Italicæ Medii ævi, Tome I, p. 754.

[31] Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam, Ordinis Minorem, MGH SS XXXII, p. 377.

[32] Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam, Ordinis Minorem, MGH SS XXXII, p. 167.

[33] Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam, Ordinis Minorem, MGH SS XXXII, p. 376.

[34] Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam, Ordinis Minorem, MGH SS XXXII, pp. 167-8.

[35] Dean (1988), p. 15.

[36] Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam, Ordinis Minorem, MGH SS XXXII, p. 168.

[37] Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam, Ordinis Minorem, MGH SS XXXII, p. 168.

[38] Cronica Fratris Salimbene de Adam, Ordinis Minorem, MGH SS XXXII, p. 168.

[39] Kerrebrouck, P. Van (2000) Les Capétiens 987-1328 (Villeneuve d'Asq), p. 256. According to ES III 750, she died [1320/21], which is consistent with her second husband's second marriage in 1324.

[40] Dean (1988), p. 18.

[41] Dean (1988), p. 18.

[42] Dean (1988), p. 18.

[43] Dean (1988), pp. 19-20.

[44] Dean (1988), pp. 23-4.

[45] Miller, W. (1908) The Latins in the Levant. A History of Frankish Greece (1204-1566) (Cambridge and New York), pp. 465-7.

[46] Dean (1988), p. 21.

[47] Dean (1988), p. 17.

[48] Dean (1988), p. 18.

[49] Dean (1988), p. 19.

[50] Inventory of the State Archives of Turin ("State Archives"), volume 102, page 53, fascicule 1, consulted at <http://ww2.multix.it/asto/asp/inventari.asp> (14 Nov 2003).

[51] State Archives, volume 102, page 53, fascicule 2.

[52] State Archives, volume 104, page 59, fascicule 13.1.1.

[53] State Archives, volume 102, pages 53, fascicule 1 and 2, respectively.

[54] Dean (1988), p. 19.

[55] Dean (1988), p. 19.

[56] ES I.1 32.

[57] Dean (1988), p. 20.

[58] Dean (1988), p. 21.

[59] Dean (1988), pp. 23-4.

[60] Dean (1988), p. 25.

[61] Dean (1988), p. 26.

[62] Dean (1988), p. 26.

[63] Dean (1988), p. 27.

[64] State Archives, volume 25, page 18, fascicule 21.

[65] Dean (1988), p. 27.

craig-oxley - March 1, 2009 01:13 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]
 [/dohtml]

Coat of Arms of Este 1239-1431 - Ercole I d'Este

Leonello d'Este - Isabella d'Este - Ercole III

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - March 1, 2009 01:42 AM (GMT)

Anyone got any pictures of her:

Principessa Maria Camilla Pallavicini

QUOTE

What became the ultra-reactionary family of Este-Welf, rose to a dominant position in the European feudal oligarchy during the Eleventh Century, and has been in the forefront of the leading reactionary, pro-chivalric, pro-feudalist movements of Europe and the Americas ever since. The British monarchy of the Welf dynasty, typified what Venice created, during the Sixteenth Century, as the northern, nominally Protestant branch of the Este-Welf family. What the same Sixteenth-Century Venice dominated, simultaneously, as the southern, nominally Catholic branch of the same family, is typified, during recent decades by the Este family's Principessa Pallavicini, a feudal figure who, in such matters, greatly outranks Britain's relatively picaresque currently reigning royal frump. The wars between the Welf League and Frederick II, which caused the mid-Fourteenth Century "New Dark Age," typify the purely evil role performed consistently, throughout Europe, by Venice and the Welf faction, from the Eleventh through the Nineteenth Centuries. Miguel Cervantes' Don Quixote is a relevant insight into the role of this enemy, neo-feudalist tradition in bringing about the self-induced economic and cultural collapse of Spain over the course of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries.

craig-oxley - March 1, 2009 01:46 AM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Mar 1 2009, 01:42 AM)

Anyone got any pictures of her:

Principessa Maria Camilla Pallavicini

REMEMBER I MENTIONED THE PALLIVICINI IN THE PAST:

QUOTE

[dohtml] VATICAN WOODWORM

BY CRAIG OXLEY
September 26th 2008 - 51 Mins
Tony Blair's conversion to Catholism
Groomed puppets of the Maltese Knights
Maltese Cliveden Set control
Jesuit control of the Cecil family
Traitorous Rowan Williams
Common Purpose destruction of the Constitution
Catholic overt influence
Inquisitional FBI raid on Tony Alamo Ministries

Temporal Coadjutor Jeff Rense disinfo
Gordon Brown's treason
The phony bank crisis "credit crunch"
Black Pope Masonic Gang signaling
N.W.O Subliminals in New York based Wrestling
MP3 FORMAT LINKS:
http://www.mediafire.com/?kunz2t4guyy
OR
http://www.megaupload.com/?d=WFDVG2W5
OR
http://www.filefactory.com/file/ec5827/n/VATICANWOODWORM26SEP2K8_mp3 [/dohtml]

[dohtml]<embed id="VideoPlayback" src="http://video.google.com/googleplayer.swf?docid=1817949198432514866&hl=en&fs=true" style="width:400px;height:326px" allowFullScreen="true" allowScriptAccess="always" type="application/x-shockwave-flash"> </embed>[/dohtml]

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=18...432514866&hl=en

[DOHTML]<CENTER>[/DOHTML]

THE PALLIVICINI FAMILY

ARE

JESUITS

[DOHTML]</CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

craig-oxley - March 1, 2009 01:54 AM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Mar 1 2009, 01:42 AM)

Anyone got any pictures of her:

Principessa Maria Camilla Pallavicini

QUOTE

What became the ultra-reactionary family of Este-Welf, rose to a dominant position in the European feudal oligarchy during the Eleventh Century, and has been in the forefront of the leading reactionary, pro-chivalric, pro-feudalist movements of Europe and the Americas ever since. The British monarchy of the Welf dynasty, typified what Venice created, during the Sixteenth Century, as the northern, nominally Protestant branch of the Este-Welf family. What the same Sixteenth-Century Venice dominated, simultaneously, as the southern, nominally Catholic branch of the same family, is typified, during recent decades by the Este family's Principessa Pallavicini, a feudal figure who, in such matters, greatly outranks Britain's relatively picaresque currently reigning royal frump. The wars between the Welf League and Frederick II, which caused the mid-Fourteenth Century "New Dark Age," typify the purely evil role performed consistently, throughout Europe, by Venice and the Welf faction, from the Eleventh through the Nineteenth Centuries. Miguel Cervantes' Don Quixote is a relevant insight into the role of this enemy, neo-feudalist tradition in bringing about the self-induced economic and cultural collapse of Spain over the course of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries.

Remember how it was the Pallavicini family who controlled the Cecil family.

Avles - March 2, 2009 02:50 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Mar 1 2009, 12:40 AM)

ESTE, FERRARA, MODENA

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION. 1

Chapter 1. MARCHESI d'ESTE. 2
Chapter 2. MARCHESI d'ESTE, SIGNORI di FERRARA. 5
Chapter 3. SIGNORI di FERRARA, SIGNORI di MODENA, SIGNORI di REGGIO. 8

FERRARA, MODENA, ...

It would be of interest now to see finally emerge a link between those Guelph/Este and the restoration of the Pontifical reign in italy:

From a post of Jun 22 2007, 07:08 PM, "Low intensity Carabineers coupe...etc.":

http://z13.invisionfree.com/THE_UNHIVED_MI...showtopic=27169

QUOTE

"…It is an Italian shield (= the coat of arms of Constantine order CARABINEERS ARMY) of mixed shape, red, divided in four sectors by a diminished silver crux with at its head a sky blue background. The red means the courage, the daring and the sacrifice; the sky blue means the value, the fidelity, the homeland. In the first and fourth sector a cutted off silver hand with a green snake, with the head and the tail turned to the right, black characterised. The snake is referred to the prudence and the good government. In the second and the third sector there is a gold grenade in flames. The grenade is also the only symbol present on the uniforms (on the hat and on the arm and is always a symbol of modern military orders; in fact it was applied for the first time as symbol by the nobility of Brugioni who had, with this title, leaded the artillery of the Estensi against the papal army....
.....

.....
....The crown has Guelph-style merlons, with black walls, with an inner red circle, with two wall cordons sustaining eight towers of whom five are visible and two are in the corner. The tower are rectangular with twelve merlons with four merlons visible and two at the corner, closed and with black windows, and the rest of the crown has fortyeight merlons of whom twentyfour visible and six merlons among two towers…."" (translated from the Italian page of Wikipedia about Carabineers coat of arms)

At those times, I searched for "Brugioni" but I found nothing of interesting (at least considering the knoweledge I had two years ago about the matter "Italian papal bloodline").

Anyway, the first posts of that thread were dealing with the murders of the (papal) gang of the FIAT UNO Bianca (=White), built up with agents of the other Italian police corp, the 'civil' State Police. I found interesting allusive links, in the murders of the UNO BIANCA gang, with the reactionary papal movements which moved the Cental Apennine peninsula against the Napoleone invasion. The preferred Highway touched by the bloody actions of the White Uno gang, was the A14 Higway. Another reference to the Osiris' n. 14 (....O-s-i-r-i-s ---> O-r-s-i-(n)-i-(s)???, is there a link, an allusion, a Saturnalia metaphor??) . I found interesting numerological links with the numbers of the Highways and the Italian cities of the North. For example, as regards the A14 Highway you have to.....

> QUOTE
>
> http://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Autostrada_A14
>
> .....Note: the A14 Highway start South of Verona, starts in Bologna, and goes along the peninsula till Taranto (so North-South direction). Along Verona, East-West direction from Trieste to Turin, it passes the A4 Highway. From Bologna to Milano, East- West direction with inclination about ¾ π, it passess the A1 Highway and from Verona to Modena (Ferrari home), a town near Bologna less than 30 kilometres, you have the Higway….guess why? You have the Highway A22.
> ..... ("Low Intensity Carabineers coupe etc.")

Verona, Bologna, Milano, MODENA.....

Well, Modena is the seat/headquarter/industryy of:

.....probably the most famous supercar trade mark of the world.

But from where did the "Little Horse" - logo of Ferrari supercar - come? At least this is the official version: The mother of the Italian airplane fighter champion during first WW (the starting of II Thirty Years war in Europe), Francesco Baracca, a man incensed by the disgusting Italian poet Gabriele D'Annunzio, was a woman frequenting the car race society (.....), so she gave, in the memory of her son, as a present, the same symbol his son was carrying on the fuselage of the plane with which was fighting the occult Counter Reformation crusade against the 'barbarian German central empires':

It could be of some interest to know that the mother of Francis Baracca (= literally, translated in English: "barrack"), was the ".....contessa Paolina Biancoli...":

http://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Enzo_Ferrari#Biografia

"...Correndo a Ravenna, nel 1923, la madre di Francesco Baracca, contessa Paolina Biancoli*, gli consegnò il simbolo che il leggendario aviatore portava sulla carlinga: un cavallino rampante e gli disse: «Ferrari, metta sulle sue macchine il cavallino rampante del mio figliolo. Le porterà fortuna»...."*

(I.e.: in 1923 the countess consigned the symbol which the mythical fighter pilot was carrying on his plane: a rampant little horse and said him: "Ferrari, put on your cars the rampant little horse of my son. It will ship to you lucky...".)

I found till now nothing of particular about her 'noble' family, but a Biancoli bloodline linked with the Este, it seems that it exists just in the common region to which Modena and Ferrara belongs....

http://www.rionemadonnadellestuoie.it/docu...ia_biancoli.htm

QUOTE

".....During the government of the Este's dukes the province of Ferrara (Romandiola) was governed by a Podestà or Vicarious helped by illustrious inhabitants members of the Council of the 72. Four magistrates were ruling this council.... .."

(among them the noble family Biancoli...the "Famiglia Biancoli" of the title, of which the author of the page is asking further information from the readers: "Se siete in possesso....".)

Coat of arms of Biancoli - It seems to see a climbing horse, or better: a rampant horse.....like the one on the Francis Barrack Counter Reformation fighter plane fuselage:

And here the usual Vatican Clowns - aka "Middle Age revival festival" - just to brainwash you with the litany "Oh! How much beautyful was the (before Luther - against Luther) Middle Age!!"):

So I was damn right, near two years ago, when I continued to post in the "Low Intensity Carabineers etc." many other arguments related to the Carabineers coupe d'etat in the peninsula (= military sub-section of the biggest coupe d'etat that sees the restoration of the Pontifical reign). Among the Fiat Uno White gang of Modena/Bologna (remember the presence of a White Fiat Uno car in the scene of Diana's sacrificial murder!!!), among the Massacre of Ustica (then linked with the Massacre of Ramstein '88!!!!!!), passing through the various traumatic psy-ops in North Italy (Italian Unabomber etc.) and the Italian Telecom corporation as disguise for the Vatican crusade in the Balkans, I discovered many other Counter Reformation allusions hidden in the Italian car industry, that after the death of the Black nobility exponent Gianni Agnellli, is represented today by Jesuit trained (even if he didn't finish the Jesuit Massimiliano Institute) and with the most probability Este controlled Luca Cordero di Montezemolo.

Do you remember something when i say "Gianni de Gennaro" (actual head of Italian civil inteeligence), "Mario Draghi" (actual Italian central bank boss and member of Swiss based BIS)? Both men + Luca Cordero de Montezemlo were classmates at the Massimilianno Massimo JESUIT Institute (very prestigious!) of Rome:

Wednesday, July 16, 2008
THE MIDDLE AGE IS COMING BACK

.....THE MIDDLE AGE BEFORE MARTIN LUTHER.

http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...13_archive.html

(Who is talking is the Italian (Jesuit trained) journalist/showman Giancarlo Magalli interviewed by Paolo Conti)

> QUOTE
>
> http://www.corriere.it/Primo_Piano/Cronache/2005/12_Dicembre/30/conti.shtml
> ".....The Massimo Institute of those years produced a bunch of sections full of future very important persons. Till the fifth classroom gymnasium Draghi studied in the same class with Luca Cordero di Montezemolo and Cristiano Rattazzi: "Then Luca and Cristiano transferred to the Morosini Instituite of Venice. Luca didn't resist very much, I suspect it was due to the discipline. We remained always in contact. Expecially after. With Mario and Luca there's always a formidabile link", is telling us Paolo Vigevano, founder of the Radio Radicale (the radio of Radical party) and now head of the institutional relations of Cos-Finsiel, with a classic diploma gained in 1966 (Draghi gained it in the 1965). Still Vigevano: "Another link was the basket team of the Institute. There played Mario, I and Giovanni de Gennaro, today head of the State Police, who was my classroom comrade. Mario had a well throw, his model was Bill Bradley, great champion and then U.S. senator". ....."....

(for Mario Draghi see my old post in the old Craig's VATICAN PLOT TO DESTROY ITALIAN GOVERNMENT)

And who is today the president of FIAT and of FERRARI supercar corporation? But Luca Cordero de Montezemolo. Again an excerpt - Jul 14 2007, 07:04 PM - from "Carabineers coupe etc.":

> QUOTE
>
> VATICAN AND BLACK NOBILITY, UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF THE JESUITS, CELEBRATED ALSO IN ITALY THE 4th JULY OF 2007.
>
> So this 4th July 2007 two important event, with world significance, happened. The first is the presentation in Turin of the Italian Counter Reformation car, the remake of the old FIAT 500. For the occasion the Italian premier Romano Prodi, together with the leader of Confindustria (Italian Industrial association) Luca Cordero de Montezemolo. Luca de Montezemolo is belonging to an aristocratic family, but more on it after the sequent article.
>
> The car, three white Fiat 500, were presented on the roof of Lingotto. At the 17 the Premier Prodi land with an helicopter on the roof, together with the Job Ministry Cesare Damiano. He is on the way to go to Lisbona for a bilateral summit UE-Brasil. To receive Prodi there are the highest leaders of Fiat, Luca Cordero di Montezemolo, Marchionne and John Elkann. .....

Today Confindustria has another one leader. But Luca Cordero remained at the head of Ferrari and Fiat - two Counter Reformation car corporations.

It is of some interest to see hat the uncle (if i am not wrong) of Luca, did draw the coat of arms of Benedict XVI (since 800 years ago, every pope has the possibility to adopt a coat of arm, maybe to confuse the true coat of arms of the true papal bloodlines with the faked plastic coats of arms of the Mr Nobody....). The man is (still from the same post - quote from Wikipedia):

> QUOTE
>
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Andrea_Corder..._di_Montezemolo
>
> “…..Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo
>
> From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
>
> >>> Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo, JCD (born August 27, 1925) is an Italian cardinal of the Roman Catholic church and the former Titular Archbishop of Tuscania and Apostolic Nuncio Emeritus to Italy for the Holy See.
> Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo was born in Turin, Italy of a noble family. He studied in Turin and Rome and fought in World War II.
>
> (…….)
>
> >>> In 2005 he designed the coat of arms of Pope Benedict XVI and shortly thereafter was named Archpriest of the Basilica of Saint Paul Outside the Walls. Although he is over eighty years of age, and therefore ineligible to vote in a conclave, Pope Benedict XVI announced on February 22, 2006, that Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo would be made a cardinal in the consistory of March 24, becoming the Cardinal Deacon of Santa Maria in Portico.
> Andrea Cordero di Montezemolo's father was among the victims of the massacre of the Fosse Ardeatine, carried out on the outskirts of Nazi-occupied Rome in 1944. He and his sister Adriana have, on several occasions, been conspicuous for their forgiveness of the perpetrators, notably Erich Priebke.
> He is related to Luca di Montezemolo, president of Ferrari and chairman of FIAT…..”

And now, ladies and gentlemen, we are arriving to the papal bloodlines. I wanted to post some informations about papal orders and papal blodlines in the Maximus family thread, but as the information were not strictly linked with the argument "Orsini", I decided to keep the news for better times. It seems they are arrived:

…….I didn't find yet links with the Orso/Orsini family. Probably a direct link doesn't exist. Anyway an allusion could lay in the fact that one of the last popes of the Orsini bloody-line (I continue to read from Wiki page) was Benedict XIII (+ 1730). The actual Benedict XIII + III could represent a sort of ideal continuity in the management of the holy seat of the Beast. I think a pope doesn't take a name in a casual way -- a name represents a strategical view, a period of time, a secret goal, the repetition of names with sequential numberplates. But a deeper research is requested.

Anyway the bear on the coat of arms (drawed by cardinal Andrea) represents officially the animal encountered by the first bishop of Freising on the road to Rome. That bishop was the 'saint Francis' of Germany, as he tamed the poor bear and used him as a horse to carry the baggage till Rome (they don't tell you if at the end of the travel the bear was blessed and canonized or appointed bishop or sold to a circus).

The noble house Marchesi di Montezemolo comes from the Piedmont region (capital: Turin), the same region of Savoy king Victor Emanuel I the anti-Jewish and anti-Protestant founder of the Carabineers army (13 Jul 1814). A nephew of the cardinal Andrea is Luca Cordero di Montezemolo, today president of Ferrari corp. --- Fiat corp. . And suspected to be the illegitimate son of Gianni Agnelli - -- Agnelli = Corderos as stated in a blog:

http://www.macchianera.net/2004/06/07/goog...di-montezemolo/

QUOTE

Leggo da Selvaggia che Montezemolo pare essere il figlio segreto di Gianni Agnelli. E fin qui.
Da totale incompetente di gossip quale sono, noto che in effetti Luca Cordero di Montezemolo e il miliardario defunto si assomigliano. E da una rapida ricerca su Google viene fuori quanto segue:
1) Luca Cordero Montezemolo dovrebbe essere figlio del sig. Massimo Cordero Montezemolo, agricoltore et marchese, e di tale Clotilde Neri. (Neri?)
2) Su Google non si trova alcun altro sito dove Luca e il suo sedicente papà sig. Massimo Cordero siano associati (strano, no?)
3) Esiste un Massimo Cordero di Montezemolo presidente di una oscura società agricola.
4) E' quanto meno curioso che Montezemolo a soli 27 anni e a soli due anni da una laurea in giurisprudenza sia diventato direttamente Assistente di Enzo Ferrari, presidente e fondatore della celebre casa automobilistica di lusso. Il sito ufficiale della Ferrari conferma le date.
5) Due anni prima la Fiat aveva acquisito il controllo finanziario della Ferrari. (ibidem).
6) Corderos in spagnolo significa Agnelli.

Google non è onniscente e l'unica persona al mondo che sappia con certezza come sono andate le cose è la signora Clotilde, classe 1922. Se è viva.

Short resumee:

".....From Selvaggia I came to the knowledge that Montezemolo seems to be the secret son of Agnelli.....
*....They are like similar (faces).....It is difficult to find the least link among Luca and his official father (Massimo Cordero di Montezemolo) .....It is strange that at the age of 27 with only two years of experience after a graduation in law at the university (But the Morosini is a navy institute!!! - note of avles) he became the assistant of Enzo Ferrari.....two years before the Fiat of Gianni acquired the financial control of Ferrari....."corderos" is the Spanish word standing for the Italian "agnelli" (like Gianni Agnelli) i.e. "lambs" (plural), and is present in the Luca's name "Cordero de Montezemolo"……"

And in fact in the page

http://www.armorial-register.com/arms-it/m...rdero-arms.html

you clearly read:

> QUOTE
>
> ……Family History: Tradition would have the family descend from Dux Franciscus Corderius, described as ob cognitam militarem virtutem dux fuit constitutus Hispanis legionibus quibus cum multa laude praefuit; and who is said to have fought in the siege of Antioch with Bohemund of Taranto. On his return home to Spain from the First Crusade, he supposedly settled in what later became the city of Mondovì in Piedmont……

AGNELLI family and CORDERO de Montezemolo family are strictly linked and originate both from the CORDERIUS Hispanic crusader family. It will be not strange to find another crusader in the AGNELLI/CORDERO DE MONTEZMOLO family…. Just see below.

The Montezemolo's nobility of PIedmont were (are) since generations at the service of the Savoy family (the one of Victor Emanuel I the 'carabineer'):

http://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Luca_Cordero_di_Montezemolo

> QUOTE
>
> ..... Luca di Montezemolo appartiene ad un'antica famiglia piemontese per generazioni al servizio di Casa Savoia"..from generations at the service of the House Savoy")* della quale è altro illustre rappresentante il cardinale Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo.
> .....

Reading from the same source I see that Cardinal Andrea, the relative of the Ferrari and Fiat president, and the designer of the Ratzinger's (papal) coat of arms, was appointed cardinal on the 24th March 2006 by Benedict the 16th. The bear Bruno was killed two months later, and was the first bear appearing officialy in Bavaria after centuries (---> see Maximus powerful family thread). Andrea Cordero di Montezemolo belongs to the Order of the Holy Sepulchre chivalry order, a well known order.....

...and is a Grand Cross knight of the Order of Saint Stephen, a "...Tuscan dynastic-military order founded in 1561." The chieftain is: "...Archduke Sigismund, Grand Duke of Tuscany, ...current head of the Tuscan branch of the House of Habsburg-Lorraine", whose current head is the eternal Otto von Habsburg-Lothringen:

http://www.chivalricorders.org/royalty/hab...ny/stefmems.htm

Priests who are "Grand Cross knight":

> QUOTE
>
> Cavalieri Gran Croce Sacerdoti
>
> S.Em.za Rev.ma il Cardinale Silvano Piovanelli, Arcivescovo Emerito di Firenze, 15/03/1997;
> S.Em.za Rev.ma il CardinalePaul Augustin Mayer, OSB, Prefetto emerito della Congregazione per il Culto Divino e la Disciplina dei Sacramenti, 10/11/2002;
> S. Em.za Rev.ma il Cardinale Ennio Antonelli, Arcivescovo di Firenze, 21/10/04
> S.Em.za Rev.ma il Cardinale Andrea Cordero Lanza di Montezemolo, Arcivescovo titolare di Tuscania, Nunzio Apostolico, 15/03/1999
> S.E. Rev.ma Mons. Alessandro Plotti, Arcivescovo di Pisa, 1993.

I imagine that this is just only the peak of this occult Vatican-Jesuit-Este-Aldobrandini-etc.-berg.....I only did a quick research as I don't have much time at disposition (please note the Tuscany of Andrea Cordero Montezemolo and the Tuscany of the thread on Vivaldi - and obviously the Tuscany of Italian NATO Air Base of Grosseto, involved in the big Massacres of Ustica & Ramstein.....)

Best regards from a North Adriatic Anti-roman-catholic and Anti-islamic isolationist

avles

VOTE DAILY FOR THE UNHIVED MIND (see push-button above) and visit this great blog: http://continuingcounterreformation.blogspot.com/

---

THE RIGHT WORDS AT THEIR RIGHT PLACE. THIS IS ALSO TRUE CHRISTIANITY. „Kein im christlichen Glauben stehender Deutscher kann, ohne der guten und sauberen Sache des Freiheitskampfes der deutschen Nation gegen den jesuitischen antichristlichen Weltbolschewismus untreu zu werden, die staatlichen Maßnahmen gegen die Jesuiten im Reich, insbesonder die Einziehung jesuitischer Vermögenswerte bejammern. Und den maßgebenden Vertretern von Kirche und Christentum im Auslande müssen wir ernstlich zu bedenken geben, daß der Weg zur jesuitischen Weltherrschaft stets über grauenvolle Leichenfelder führt."

[B][/B]

[I][/I]

craig-oxley - March 13, 2009 04:21 AM (GMT)

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

Principessa Maria Camilla Pallavicini

In 1968 Maria Camilla married Armando Diaz della Vittoria, nephew of General Diaz, and two sons, Sigieri and Moroello, were born of this marriage.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Sigieri Diaz della Vittoria Pallavicini
Maria Camilla Pallavicini
Moroello Diaz della Vittoria Pallavicini
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - March 19, 2009 04:52 PM (GMT)

Be a little bit cautious of this information for a little while at least. My source is a 10th cousin of the Pallavicini family. -Craig

QUOTE

Why would the Jesuits use the Pallavicini's to control Q.E.II ? Hundreds of S.J. members have been knighted by the Queen herself. You are chasing the wrong people. Pallavicini were musical composers of Italy. They were a Genovese noble family who actually suffered Jesuit pressures. In the past they were allied with Venice against the Jesuits.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Carlo_Pallavicino http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Benedetto_Pallavicino
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Stefano_Benedetto_Pallavicino

Consider this: In a world of Lions, its better to be friends of the other Lions so that they don't spoil your interests or kill you economically or physically. For me, the Pallavinici QEII friendship is one of mutual benefit. May be then are just good friends and enjoy each other's company? Pallavicini DON'T RULE NOTHING! They WISH they could.

Remember that it is a wasted effort chasing the puppets. We have to chase the Puppet masters instead. QEII is an obevious HOAX, as she have no power. We have seen this clearing with Leo. She can give Leo money, but not power to get his son back. She is a HOAX! Jesuits rule Great Britain.

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

Avles - March 31, 2009 11:59 AM (GMT)

QUOTE (Avles @ Mar 2 2009, 02:50 PM)

Do you remember something when i say "Gianni de Gennaro" (actual head of Italian civil inteeligence), "Mario Draghi" (actual Italian central bank boss and member of Swiss based BIS)? Both men + Luca Cordero de Montezemlo were classmates at the Massimilianno Massimo JESUIT Institute (very prestigious!) of Rome:

(.....)

And who is today the president of FIAT and of FERRARI supercar corporation? But Luca Cordero de Montezemolo. Again an excerpt - Jul 14 2007, 07:04 PM - from "Carabineers coupe etc.":

(.....)

The noble house Marchesi di Montezemolo comes from the Piedmont region (capital: Turin), the same region of Savoy king Victor Emanuel I the anti-Jewish and anti-Protestant founder of the Carabineers army (13 Jul 1814). A nephew of the cardinal Andrea is Luca Cordero di Montezemolo, today president of Ferrari corp. --- Fiat corp. . And suspected to be the illegitimate son of Gianni Agnelli - -- Agnelli = Corderos as stated in a blog:

OBAMA & FIAT :

http://www.mercurynews.com/economic-crisis...?nclick_check=1

> QUOTE
>
> [/B]Government gives automaker 30 days to finalize alliance with Fiat
>
> By Mike Ramsey and Marco Bertacche
>
> Bloomberg News
> Posted: 03/30/2009 09:26:36 PM PDT[B]

See a resumee of my posts on "Low Intensity Carabineers' etc." about FIAT-Obama-Montezemolo-Counter Reformation war etc. connection:

Tuesday, March 31, 2009
The Antichrist is coming on a F.I.A.T.'s car

http://avlesbeluskesexposed.blogspot.com/2...-fiats-car.html

Best regards etc.

anton - December 6, 2009 11:46 AM (GMT)

http://www.isgp.eu/organisations/introduct...absburg_bio.htm

Franco initially invited Otto von Habsburg to become the new king of spain, but Otto refused and recommended Juan Carlos. Franco, Juan Carlos, and Otto von Habsburg all were Knights of Malta. When Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi died in 1972, Otto followed him up as provisional president of the Internationale Paneuropa-Union.

GMNL - December 6, 2009 05:32 PM (GMT)

ESTE FAMILY IN AUSTRIA

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Austria-Este

user posted image

The Archduchess of Austria-Este

http://madhattery.royalroundup.com/?cat=120

Villa d'Este

QUOTE

The Villa d'Este was commissioned by Cardinal Ippolito II d'Este, son of Alfonso I d'Este and Lucrezia Borgia and grandson of Pope Alexander VI.

Archduke Martin of Austria-Este

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE COLONNA FAMILY

Title: THE COLONNA FAMILY

craig-oxley - July 28, 2009 03:06 AM (GMT)

Colonna family

The Colonna family was a powerful noble family in medieval and Renaissance Rome, supplying one Pope and many other leaders. Their family is notable for their bitter feud with the Orsini family over influence in Rome until it was stopped by Papal Bull in 1511; in 1571 the Chiefs of both families married the nieces of Pope Sixtus V.

Oddone Colonna ended the Western Schism as Pope Martin V.

According to tradition, the Colonna are a branch of the Counts of Tusculum — by Peter (1099-1151) son of Gregory III, called Peter "de Columpna" from his property, the Columna Castle, in Colonna, Alban Hills.

The first cardinal from the family was appointed in 1206 when Giovanni Colonna di Carbognano was made Cardinal Deacon of SS. Cosma e Damiano[1].

In 1297, Cardinal Jacopo disinherited his brothers Ottone, Matteo, and Landolfo of their lands. The latter three appealed to Pope Boniface VIII, who ordered Jacopo to return the land, and furthermore hand over the family's strongholds of Colonna, Palestrina, and other towns to the Papacy. Jacopo refused; in May, Boniface removed him from the College of Cardinals and excommunicated him and his followers for four generations. The Colonna family (aside from the three brothers allied with the Pope) declared that Boniface had been elected illegally after the unprecedented abdication of Pope Celestine V three years previously. The dispute lead to open warfare, and in September Boniface appointed Landolfo to the command of his army, to put down the revolt of Landolfo's own relatives. This he did, and by the end of 1298 Colonna, Palestrina, and other towns had been captured and razed to the ground. The family's lands were distributed among Landolfo and his loyal brothers; the rest of the family fled Italy.

In the 1300s, the family sponsored the decoration of the Church of San Giovanni, most notably the floor mosaics.

In 1728, the family added the name Barberini to its family name when Giulio Cesare Colonna di Sciarra married Cornelia Barberini, daughter of the last male Barberini to hold the name, Taddeo Barberini.

The Colonna family have been Prince Assistants to the Papal Throne since 1710, though their papal princely title only dates from 1854.

The family residence in Rome, the Palazzo Colonna, is open to the public.

craig-oxley - July 28, 2009 03:35 AM (GMT)

The Colonna Family

Clemente Domenico Rospigliosi and Giustina Borrowmeo were the ancesters of Guilio Cesare Rospigliosi (1781=1859), fourth Prince Rospigliosi and Duke of Zagarolo, who married Margherita (b. 1786), daughter of flippo Colonna (1760-1818) and his wife Princess Caterina (1762-1823), daughter of Luigi Vittorio of the House of Savoy-Carignano. The Savoy-Carignano family gave Italy its four kings in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Caterina was the sister of Leopolda, wife of Giovanni Andrea Doria-Pamfili-Landi. This branch of the Colonna family also used the name Gioeni to distinguish it from other branches. Filippo Colonna (1760-1818) was the great-grandson of another Flippo Colonna (1667-1714) whose wife was Olimpia Pamfili, great-grandnieve of Pope Innocent X. This latter Filippo's daughter Agnese (d. 1780) had married Prince Camillo Borghese. The same Filippo's grandfather Marcantonio Colonna (D 1659) had married the heiress Isabella Gioeni, daughter of Lorenzo Prince of Castiglione. Their great-great-great-great-grandson Filippo (1760-1818) has no sons, but on of his daughters, Margherita (1786-1864), assumed the surname Colonna-Gioeni in order to permit her to inherit the Gioeni wealth. Giulio Cesare Rospigliosi and Margherita Colonna-Gioeni had two sons, Clemente and Francesco-Cesare. From the eldest Clemente is descended the family of Rospigliosi-Colonna-Gioeni and from the second Francesco, the branch of Prince Pallavicini Rospigliosi. BOth branches are still in existance. Clemente Rospigliosi-Colonna-Gioeni (1823-97), Duke of Zagarolo, Prince of Castiglione, a title inherited from his mother, was the father of Prince Guiseppe (1848-1913), who begot Geronimo, Prince Rospigliosi-Colonna-Gioeni, born in 1907. Prince Guiseppe's brother Camillo (b. 1850), who served as commander of the papal guard, was the father of a son Giulio (b. 1907). Since there are male cousins, the future of the Rospiglios-Gioeni dynasty sems to be assured. Giulio Cesare Rospigliosi and Margherita's second son, Francesco-Cesare (1828-87), assumed the name Rospigliosi-Pallavicini, being descended from Giovan Battista Rospigliosi (1646-1722) and the heiress MARIA-CAMILLA-PALLAVICINI. She bought to the House of Rospigliosi the principality of Gallicano. Francesco-Cesare's son Uberto (b. 1858) Prince Rospigliosi-Pallavicini, Prince of Gallicano, married Carolina Boncompagni-Ludovisi (1834-1910). They had four children, the youngest of whom as a son, Giulio-Cesare (1871-1941). Prince of Gallicano and marchese of Colonna. To insure that the Rospigliosi-Pallavicini branch (now listed as Pallavicini in Libre d'Ore) would continue, Giulio-Cesare adopted Guglielmo, who took the name Pallavicini in 1987. Guglielmo was the son of Armando, son of Pierre de Bernis, Marchese of Courtavel. Adoption was yet another way of assuring that a noble italian papal family's name would survive. It permitted the continuation of the Rospigliosi-Pallavicini family.

craig-oxley - July 29, 2009 12:34 PM (GMT)

REMEMBER I MENTIONED THE PALLIVICINI IN THE PAST:

QUOTE

[dohtml] VATICAN WOODWORM

BY CRAIG OXLEY
September 26th 2008 - 51 Mins
Tony Blair's conversion to Catholism
Groomed puppets of the Maltese Knights
Maltese Cliveden Set control
Jesuit control of the Cecil family
Traitorous Rowan Williams
Common Purpose destruction of the Constitution
Catholic overt influence
Inquisitional FBI raid on Tony Alamo Ministries
Temporal Coadjutor Jeff Rense disinfo
Gordon Brown's treason
The phony bank crisis "credit crunch"
Black Pope Masonic Gang signaling

N.W.O Subliminals in New York based Wrestling
MP3 FORMAT LINKS:
http://www.mediafire.com/?kunz2t4guyy
OR
http://www.megaupload.com/?d=WFDVG2W5
OR
http://www.filefactory.com/file/ec5827/n/VATICANWOODWORM26SEP2K8_mp3 [/dohtml]

[dohtml]<embed id="VideoPlayback" src="http://video.google.com/googleplayer.swf?docid=1817949198432514866&hl=en&fs=true" style="width:400px;height:326px" allowFullScreen="true" allowScriptAccess="always" type="application/x-shockwave-flash"> </embed>[/dohtml]

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=18...432514866&hl=en

[DOHTML]<CENTER>[/DOHTML]

THE PALLIVICINI FAMILY

ARE

JESUITS

QUOTE

What became the ultra-reactionary family of Este-Welf, rose to a dominant position in the European feudal oligarchy during the Eleventh Century, and has been in the forefront of the leading reactionary, pro-chivalric, pro-feudalist movements of Europe and the Americas ever since. The British monarchy of the Welf dynasty, typified what Venice created, during the Sixteenth Century, as the northern, nominally Protestant branch of the Este-Welf family. What the same Sixteenth-Century Venice dominated, simultaneously, as the southern, nominally Catholic branch of the same family, is typified, during recent decades by the Este family's Principessa Pallavicini, a feudal figure who, in such matters, greatly outranks Britain's relatively picaresque currently reigning royal frump. The wars between the Welf League and Frederick II, which caused the mid-Fourteenth Century "New Dark Age," typify the purely evil role performed consistently, throughout Europe, by Venice and the Welf faction, from the Eleventh through the Nineteenth Centuries. Miguel Cervantes' Don Quixote is a relevant insight into the role of this enemy, neo-feudalist tradition in bringing about the self-induced economic and cultural collapse of Spain over the course of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries.

QUOTE

Remember how it was the Pallavicini family who controlled the Cecil family.

Principessa Maria Camilla Pallavicini

In 1968 Maria Camilla married Armando Diaz della Vittoria, nephew of General Diaz, and two sons, Sigieri and Moroello, were born of this marriage.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Sigieri Diaz della Vittoria Pallavicini
Maria Camilla Pallavicini
Moroello Diaz della Vittoria Pallavicini

[DOHTML]</CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

GMNL - November 16, 2009 05:36 PM (GMT)

BOZZ-CORSO COLONNA

http://images.google.co.uk/imgres?imgurl=h...sa%3DN%26um%3D1

user posted image

MIRTA BARBERINI COLONNA (60's)

PRINCESS COLONNA [Still trying to discover forename]

user posted image

CATHERINE COLONNA [French minister of European Affairs]

DON MARCANTONIO COLONNA (1920's)

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE POWERFUL VENETIAN CASANOVA FAMILY!

Title: THE POWERFUL VENETIAN CASANOVA FAMILY!
Description: [CONTROLLERS OF SWITZERLAND +]

craig-oxley - March 16, 2009 11:58 PM (GMT)

THE CASANOVA FAMILY!

QUOTE

Giacomo Casanova

Giacomo Girolamo Casanova de Seingalt (April 2, 1725 – June 4, 1798) was a Venetian adventurer and author. His main book Histoire de ma vie (Story of My Life), part autobiography and part memoir, is regarded as one of the most authentic sources of the customs and norms of European social life during the 18th century.

So famous a womanizer was he that his name remains synonymous with the art of seduction and he is sometimes called "the world's greatest lover". He enjoyed the company of European royalty, popes and cardinals, along with men such as Voltaire, Goethe and Mozart; but if he had not been obliged to spend some years as a librarian in the household of Count Waldstein of Bohemia (where he relieved his boredom by writing the story of his life), he would probably be forgotten today.

Biography

[edit] Youth
Giacomo Girolamo Casanova was born in Venice in 1725 to actress Zanetta Farussi, wife of actor and dancer Gaetano Giuseppe Casanova. Giacomo was the first of six children, being followed by Giovanni (1730–1795), Faustina Maddalena (1731–1736), Maria Maddalena Antonia Stella (1732–1800), Gaetano Alvise (1734–1783), and Francesco (1737–1803).[1] Because of his mother's profession, it is suspected that some or all of these were fathered by men other than her husband. Casanova himself suspected his biological father to have been Michele Grimani, a member of the patrician family that owned the San Samuele theatre where Zanetta and Gaetano had worked.[2] Lending support to this, Grimani's brother Abbé Alvise Grimani, became Casanova's guardian.[3] In his memoirs, however, Casanova provides an elaborate paternal genealogy to explain his birth, beginning in Spain in 1428.[4]

The Republic of Venice during Casanova's time was past its peak as a naval and commercial power. Instead Venice thrived as the pleasure capital of Europe, ruled by political and religious conservatives who tolerated social vices and encouraged tourism. It was a required stop on the Grand Tour, traveled by young men coming of age, especially Englishmen. The famed Carnival, gambling houses, and beautiful courtesans were powerful drawing cards. This was the milieu that bred Casanova and made him its most famous and representative citizen.[5]

Casanova was cared for by his grandmother Marzia Baldissera while his mother toured about Europe in the theater. His father died when he was eight. As a child, Casanova suffered nosebleeds, and his grandmother sought help from a witch: "Leaving the gondola, we enter a hovel, where we find an old woman sitting on a pallet, with a black cat in her arms and five or six others around her."[6] Though the unguent applied was ineffective, Casanova was fascinated by the incantation.[7] Perhaps to remedy the nosebleeds (a physician blamed the density of Venice's air), Casanova, on his ninth birthday, was sent to a boarding house on the mainland in Padua. For Casanova, the neglect by his parents was a bitter memory. "So they got rid of me," he proclaimed flatly.[8]

Conditions at the boarding house were appalling so he appealed to be placed under the care of Abbé Gozzi, his primary instructor, who tutored him in academic subjects as well as the violin. Casanova moved in with the priest and his family and lived there through most of his teenage years.[9] It was also in the Gozzi household that Casanova first came into contact with the opposite sex, when Gozzi's younger sister Bettina fondled him at the age of eleven. Bettina was "pretty, lighthearted, and a great reader of romances. … The girl pleased me at once, though I had no idea why. It was she who little by little kindled in my heart the first sparks of a feeling which later became my ruling passion."[10] Although she subsequently married, Casanova maintained a life-long attachment to Bettina and the Gozzi family.[11]

Early on, Casanova demonstrated a quick wit, an intense appetite for knowledge, and a perpetually inquisitive mind. He entered the University of Padua at twelve and graduated at seventeen, in 1742, with a degree in law ("for which I felt an unconquerable aversion").[12] It was his guardian's hope that he would become an ecclesiastical lawyer.[13] Casanova had also studied moral philosophy, chemistry, and mathematics, and was keenly interested in medicine. ("I should have been allowed to do as I wished and become a physician, in which profession quackery is even more effective than it is in legal practice."[14]) He frequently prescribed his own treatments for himself and friends.[15] While attending the university, Casanova began to gamble and quickly got into debt, causing his recall to Venice by his grandmother, but the gambling habit became firmly established.

Back in Venice, Casanova started his clerical law career and was admitted as an abbé after being conferred minor orders by the Patriarch of Venice. He shuttled back and forth to Padua to continue his university studies. By now, he had become something of a dandy—tall and dark, his long hair powdered, scented, and elaborately curled. He quickly ingratiated himself with a patron (something he was to do all his life), 76-year-old Venetian senator Alvise Gasparo Malipiero, the owner of Palazzo Malipiero, close to Casanova's home in Venice.[16] Malipiero moved in the best circles and taught young Casanova a great deal about good food and wine, and how to behave in society. When Casanova was caught dallying with Malipero's intended object of seduction, actress Teresa Imer, however, the senator drove both of them from his house.[17] Casanova's growing curiosity about women led to his first complete sexual experience, with two sisters Nanetta and Maria Savorgnan, then fourteen and sixteen, who were distant relatives of the Grimanis. Casanova proclaimed that his life avocation was firmly established by this encounter.[18]

[edit] Early careers in Italy and abroad

Scandals tainted Casanova's short church career. After his grandmother's death, Casanova entered a seminary for a short while, but soon his indebtedness landed him in prison for the first time. An attempt by his mother to secure him a position with bishop Bernardo de Bernardis was rejected by Casanova.[19] Instead, he found employment as a scribe with the powerful Cardinal Acquaviva in Rome. On meeting the Pope, Casanova boldly asked for a dispensation to read the "forbidden books" and from eating fish (which he claimed inflamed his eyes). He also composed love letters for another cardinal. But when Casanova became the scapegoat for a scandal involving a local pair of star-crossed lovers, Cardinal Acquaviva dismissed Casanova, thanking him for his sacrifice, but effectively ending his church career.[20]

In search of a new profession, Casanova bought a commission to become a military officer for the Republic of Venice. His first step was to look the part:

Reflecting that there was now little likelihood of my achieving fortune in my ecclesiastical career, I decided to dress as a soldier … I inquire for a good tailor … he brings me everything I need to impersonate a follower of Mars. … My uniform was white, with a blue vest, a shoulder knot of silver and gold… I bought a long sword, and with my handsome cane in hand, a trim hat with a black cockade, with my hair cut in side whiskers and a long false pigtail, I set forth to impress the whole city.[21]

He went to Corfu, after which he was stationed for a short period in Constantinople.[22] He found his advancement too slow and his duty boring, and he managed to lose most of his pay playing faro. Casanova soon abandoned his military career and returned to Venice.

At the age of 21, he set out to become a professional gambler but losing all his remaining money from the sale of his commission, he turned to his old benefactor Alvise Grimani for a job. Casanova thus began his third career, as a violinist in the San Samuele theater, "a menial journeyman of a sublime art in which, if he who excels is admired, the mediocrity is rightly despised. ... My profession was not a noble one, but I did not care. Calling everything prejudice, I soon acquired all the habits of my degraded fellow musicians."[23] He and some of his fellows, "often spent our nights roaming through different quarters of the city, thinking up the most scandalous practical jokes and putting them into execution ... we amused ourselves by untying the gondolas moored before private homes, which then drifted with the current". They also sent midwives and physicians on false calls.[24]

Unhappy with his lot as a musician, good fortune came to the rescue when Casanova saved the life of a Venetian nobleman of the Bragadin family, who had a stroke while riding with Casanova in a gondola after a wedding ball. They immediately stopped to have the senator bled. Then, at the senator's palace, a physician bled the senator again and applied an ointment of mercury to the senator's chest (mercury was an all-purpose but toxic remedy of the time). The mercury raised his temperature and induced a massive fever, and Bragadin appeared to be choking on his own swollen windpipe. A priest was called as death seemed to be approaching. Casanova, however, took charge and taking responsibility for a change in treatment, under protest from the attending physician, ordered the removal of the ointment and the washing of the senator's chest with cool water. The senator recovered from his illness with rest and a sensible diet.[25] Because of his youth and his facile recitation of medical knowledge, the senator and his two bachelor friends thought Casanova wise beyond his years, and concluded that he must be in possession of occult knowledge. Being cabalists themselves, the senator invited Casanova into his household and he became a life-long patron.[26]

Casanova stated in his memoirs:

I took the most creditable, the noblest, and the only natural course. I decided to put myself in a position where I need no longer go without the necessities of life: and what those necessities were for me no one could judge better than me.... No one in Venice could understand how an intimacy could exist between myself and three men of their character, they all heaven and I all earth; they most severe in their morals, and I addicted to every kind of dissolute living.[27]

For the next three years under the senator's patronage, working nominally as a legal assistant, Casanova led the life of a nobleman, dressed magnificently, and as was natural to him, spending most of his time gambling and engaging in amorous pursuits.[28] His patron was exceedingly tolerant, but he warned Casanova that some day he would pay the price; "I made a joke of his dire Prophecies and went my way." However, not much later, Casanova was forced to leave Venice, due to further scandals. Casanova had dug up a freshly buried corpse in order to play a practical joke on an enemy and exact revenge—but the victim went into a paralysis, never to recover. And in another scandal, a young girl who had duped him accused him of rape and went to the officials.[29] Casanova was later acquitted of this crime for lack of evidence, but by this time he had already fled out of Venice.

Portrait of Casanova by Alessandro LonghiEscaping to Parma, Casanova entered into a three-month affair with a Frenchwoman he named "Henriette", perhaps the deepest love he ever experienced—a woman who combined beauty, intelligence, and culture. In his words, "They who believe that a woman is incapable of making a man equally happy all the twenty-four hours of the day have never known an Henriette. The joy which flooded my soul was far greater when I conversed with her during the day than when I held her in my arms at night. Having read a great deal and having natural taste, Henriette judged rightly of everything."[30] She also judged Casanova astutely. As noted Casanovist J. Rives Childs wrote:

Perhaps no woman so captivated Casanova as Henriette; few women obtained so deep an understanding of him. She penetrated his outward shell early in their relationship, resisting the temptation to unite her destiny with his. She came to discern his volatile nature, his lack of social background, and the precariousness of his finances. Before leaving, she slipped into his pocket five hundred louis, mark of her evaluation of him.[31]

[edit] The Grand Tour

Crestfallen and despondent, Casanova returned to Venice, and after a good gambling streak, he recovered and set off on a Grand Tour, reaching Paris in 1750.[32] Along the way, from one town to another, he got into sexual escapades resembling operatic plots.[33] In Lyon, he entered the society of Freemasonry, which appealed to his interest in secret rites and which, for the most part, attracted men of intellect and influence who proved useful in his life, providing valuable contacts and uncensored knowledge. Many famous 18th Century men were Masons including Mozart and George Washington. Casanova was also attracted to Rosicrucianism.[34]

Casanova stayed in Paris for two years, learned the language, spent much time at the theater, and introduced himself to notables. Soon, however, his numerous liaisons were noted by the Paris police, as they were in nearly every city he visited.[35]

He moved on to Dresden in 1752 and encountered his mother. He wrote a well-received play La Moluccheide, now lost.[36] He then visited Prague, and Vienna, where the tighter moral atmosphere was not to his liking. He finally returned to Venice in 1753.[37] In Venice, Casanova resumed his wicked escapades, picking up many enemies, and gaining the greater attention of the Venetian inquisitors. His police record became a lengthening list of reported blasphemies, seductions, fights, and public controversy.[38] A state spy, Giovanni Manucci, was employed to draw out Casanova's knowledge of cabalism and Freemasonry, and to examine his library for forbidden books. Senator Bragadin, in total seriousness this time (being formerly an inquisitor himself), advised his "son" to leave immediately or face the stiffest consequences.

[edit] Imprisonment and escape

The following day, at age thirty, Casanova was arrested: "The Tribunal, having taken cognizance of the grave faults committed by G. Casanova primarily in public outrages against the holy religion, their Excellencies have caused him to be arrested and imprisoned under the Leads."[39] "The Leads" was the famous prison attached to the Doge's palace, across the Bridge of Sighs, named for the thick lead plates on the roof. Without a trial, Casanova was sentenced to five years in the "unescapable" prison.[40]

At first, he was placed in solitary confinement. Over months, he was given reading matter, better food, and even an armchair, all provided by his patron. During walks he was granted in the prison attic, he found pieces of marble and an iron bar which he secreted back to his cell and hid in his chair. When he was absent temporary cell-mates, he turned the bar into a spike through a month of sharpening. Then he began to dig in the floor, realizing that his cell was just above the Inquisitor's chamber.[41] Just three days before his intended escape during a festival (when no one would be in the chamber below), Casanova was moved to a "better" cell (with a view), despite his protests that he was perfectly happy where he was. In his new cell, "I sat in my armchair like a man in a stupor; motionless as a statue, I saw that I had wasted all the efforts I had made, and I could not repent of them. I felt that I had nothing to hope for, and the only relief left to me was not to think of the future."[42]

Overcoming his inertia, Casanova set upon another escape plan. He solicited the help of the prisoner in the adjacent cell, Father Balbi, a renegade priest. The spike was passed to the priest in a folio Bible carried under a heaping plate of pasta by the hoodwinked jailer. The priest made a hole in his ceiling then climbed across and made a hole in the ceiling of Casanova's cell. To neutralize his new cell-mate, who was a spy, Casanova played on his superstitions and terrorized him into silence.[43] When Balbi broke through to Casanova's cell, Casanova lifted himself through the ceiling. He left behind a note with the motto "I shall not die, but live, and declare the works of the Lord".[44]

The spy remained behind, too frightened of the consequences if he would be caught escaping with the others. Casanova and Balbi pried their way through the lead plates and onto the sloping roof of the Doge's Palace, with a heavy fog swirling. The drop to the nearby canal being too great, Casanova pried open the grate over a dormer window, and broke the window to gain entry. They found a long ladder on the roof, and with the additional use of ropes, lowered themselves into the room whose floor was twenty-five feet below. They rested until morning, changed clothes, then broke a small lock on an exit door and passed into a palace corridor, through galleries and chambers, down stairs, and out a final door. It was six in the morning and they escaped by gondola. Eventually, Casanova reached Paris, where he arrived on the same day (January 5, 1757) that Robert-François Damiens made an attempt on the life of Louis XV.[45]

Skeptics contend that Casanova's tale of escape is implausible, and that he simply bribed his way to freedom with the help of his patron. However, some physical evidence does exist in the state records, including repairs to the cell ceilings. Thirty years later in 1787, Casanova wrote Story of My Flight, which was very popular and was reprinted in many languages, and he repeated the tale a little later in his memoirs.[46]

[edit] Return to Paris

He knew his stay in Paris might be a long one and he proceeded accordingly: "I saw that to accomplish anything I must bring all my physical and moral faculties in play, make the acquaintance of the great and the powerful, exercise strict self-control, and play the chameleon."[47] Casanova had matured, and this time in Paris, though still depending at times on quick thinking and decisive action, he was more calculating and deliberate. His first task was to find a new patron. He reconnected with old friend de Bernis, now the Foreign Minister of France. Casanova was advised by his patron to find a means of raising funds for the state as a way to gain instant favor. Casanova promptly became one of the trustees of the first state lottery, and one of its best ticket salesmen. The enterprise earned him a large fortune quickly.[48] With money in hand, he traveled in high circles and undertook new seductions. He duped many socialites with his occultism, particularly the Marquess Jeanne d'Urfé, using his excellent memory which made him appear to have a sorcerer's power of numerology. In Casanova's view, "deceiving a fool is an exploit worthy of an intelligent man".[49]

Casanova claimed to be a Rosicrucian and an alchemist, aptitudes which made him popular with some of the most prominent figures of the era, among them Madame de Pompadour, Count de Saint-Germain, d'Alembert and Jean-Jacques Rousseau. So popular was alchemy among the nobles, particularly the search for the "philosopher's stone", that Casanova was highly sought after for his supposed knowledge, and he profited handsomely.[50] He met his match, however, in the Count de Saint-Germain: "This very singular man, born to be the most barefaced of all imposters, declared with impunity, with a casual air, that he was three hundred years old, that he possessed the universal medicine, that he made anything he liked from nature, that he created diamonds."[51]

De Bernis decided to send Casanova to Dunkirk on his first spying mission. Casanova was paid well for his quick work and this experience prompted one of his few remarks against the ancien régime and the class he was dependent on. He remarked in hindsight, "All the French ministers are the same. They lavished money which came out of the other people's pockets to enrich their creatures, and they were absolute: The down-trodden people counted for nothing, and, through this, the indebtedness of the State and the confusion of finances were the inevitable results. A Revolution was necessary."[52]

As the Seven Years War began, Casanova was again called to help increase the state treasury. He was entrusted with a mission of selling state bonds in Amsterdam, Holland being the financial center of Europe at the time.[53] He succeeded to sell the bonds at only an 8% discount, and the following year was rich enough to found a silk manufactory with his earnings. The French government even offered him a title and a pension if he would become a French citizen and work on behalf of the Finance Ministry, but he declined, perhaps because it would impede his wanderlust.[54] Casanova had reached his peak of fortune but could not sustain it. He ran the business poorly, borrowed heavily trying to save it, and spent much of his wealth on constant liaisons with his female workers who were his "harem".[55]

For his debts, Casanova was imprisoned again, this time at Fort-l'Éveque, but was liberated four days afterwards, upon the insistence of the Marquess d'Urfé. Unfortunately, though he was released, his patron de Bernis was dismissed by Louis XV at that time and Casanova's enemies closed in on him. He sold the rest of his belongings and acquired another mission to Holland to distance himself from his troubles.[56]

[edit] On the run

This time, however, his mission failed and he fled to Cologne, then Stuttgart in the spring of 1760, where he lost the rest of his fortune. He was yet again arrested for his debts, but managed to escape to Switzerland. Weary of his wanton life, Casanova visited the monastery of Einsiedeln and considered the simple, scholarly life of a monk. He returned to his hotel to think on the decision only to encounter a new object of desire, and reverting to his old instincts, all thoughts of a monk's life were quickly forgotten.[57] Moving on, he visited Albrecht von Haller and Voltaire, and arrived in Marseille, then Genoa, Florence, Rome, Naples, Modena, and Turin, moving from one sexual romp to another.[58]

In 1760, Casanova started styling himself the Chevalier de Seingalt, a name he would increasingly use for the rest of his life. On occasion, he would also call himself Count de Farussi (using his mother's maiden name) and when Pope Clement XIII presented Casanova with the Papal Order of the Éperon

d'Òr, he had an impressive cross and ribbon to display on his chest.[59]

Back in Paris, he set about one of his most outrageous schemes—convincing his old dupe the Marquess d'Urfé that he could turn her into a young man through occult means. The plan did not yield Casanova the big payoff he had hoped for, and the Marquess d'Urfé finally lost faith in him.[60]

Casanova traveled to England in 1763, hoping to sell his idea of a state lottery to English officials. He wrote of the English, “the people have a special character, common to the whole nation, which makes them think they are superior to everyone else. It is a belief shared by all nations, each thinking itself the best. And they are all right.”[61] Through his connections, he worked his way up to an audience with King George III, using most of the valuables he had stolen from the Marquess d'Urfé. While working the political angles, he also spent much time in the bedroom, as was his habit. As a means to find females for his pleasure, not being able to speak English, he put an advertisement in the newspaper to let an apartment to the “right” person. He interviewed many young women, choosing one “Mistress Pauline” who suited him well. Soon, he established himself in her apartment and seduced her. These and other liaisons, however, left him weak with venereal disease and he left England broke and ill.[62]

He went on to Belgium, recovered, and then for the next three years,travelled all over Europe, covering about 4,500 miles by coach over rough roads, and going as far as Moscow (the average daily coach trip being about 30 miles in a day). Again, his principal goal was to sell his lottery scheme to other governments and repeat the great success he had with the French government. But a meeting with Frederick the Great bore no fruit and in the surrounding German lands, the same result. Not lacking either connections or confidence, Casanova went to Russia and met with Catherine the Great but she flatly turned down the lottery idea.[63]

In 1766, he was expelled from Warsaw following a pistol duel with Count Colonel Franciszek Ksawery Branicki over an Italian actress, a lady friend of theirs. Both duelists were wounded, Casanova on the left hand. The hand recovered on its own, after Casanova refused the recommendation of doctors that it be amputated.[64] Other stops failed to gain any takers for the lottery. He returned to Paris for several months in 1767 and hit the gambling salons, only to be expelled from France by order of Louis XV himself, primarily for Casanova’s scam involving the Marquess d'Urfé.[65] Now known across Europe for his reckless behavior, Casanova would have difficulty overcoming his notoriety and gaining any fortune. So he headed for Spain, where he was not as well known. He tried his usual approach, leaning on well-placed contacts (often Freemasons), wining and dining with nobles of influence, and finally arranging an audience with the local monarch, in this case Charles III. But when no doors opened for him, however, he could only roam across Spain, with little to show for it. In Barcelona, he escaped assassination and landed in jail for six weeks. His Spanish adventure a failure, he returned to France briefly, then to Italy.[66]

[edit] Return to Venice

In Rome, Casanova had to prepare a way for his return to Venice. While waiting for supporters to gain him legal entry into Venice, Casanova began his modern Tuscan-Italian translation of the Iliad, his History of the Troubles in Poland, and a comic play. To ingratiate himself with the Venetian authorities, Casanova did some commercial spying for them. After months without a recall, however, he wrote a letter of appeal directly to the Inquisitors. At last, he received his long sought permission and burst into tears upon reading “We, Inquisitors of State, for reasons known to us, give Giacomo Casanova a free safe-conduct ... empowering him to come, go, stop, and return, hold communication wheresoever he pleases without let or hindrance. So is our will.” Casanova was permitted to return to Venice in September 1774 after eighteen years of exile.[67]

At first, his return to Venice was a cordial one and he was a celebrity. Even the Inquisitors wanted to hear how he had escaped from their prison. Of his three bachelor patrons, however, only Dandolo was still alive and Casanova was invited back to live with him. He received a small stipend from Dandolo and hoped to live from his writings, but that was not enough. He reluctantly became a spy again for Venice, paid by piece work, reporting on religion, morals, and commerce, most of it based on gossip and rumor he picked up from social contacts.[68] He was disappointed. No financial opportunities of interest came about and few doors opened for him in society as in the past.

At age 49, the years of reckless living and the thousands of miles of travel had taken its toll. Casanova's smallpox scars, sunken cheeks, and hook nose became all the more noticeable. His easy going manner was now more guarded. Prince Charles de Ligne, a friend (and uncle of his future employer), described him around 1784:

He would be a good-looking man if he were not ugly; he is tall and built like Hercules, but of an African tint; eyes full of life and fire, but touchy, wary, rancorous—and this gives him a ferocious air. It is easier to put him in a rage than to make him gay. He laughs little, but makes other laugh. ... He has a manner of saying things which reminds me of Harlequin or Figaro, and which makes them sound witty.[69]

Venice had changed for him. Casanova now had little money for gambling, few willing females worth pursuing, and few acquaintances to enliven his dull days. He heard of the death of his mother and more paining, he went to the bedside of Bettina Gozzi, who had first introduced him to sex, and she died in his arms. His Iliad was published in three volumes, but to limited subscribers and yielding little money. He got into a published dispute with Voltaire over religion. When he asked, "Suppose that you succeed in destroying superstition. With what will you replace it?" Voltaire shot back, "I like that. When I deliver humanity from a ferocious beast which devours it, can I be asked what I shall put in its place." From Casanova's point of view, if Voltaire had "been a proper philosopher, he would have kept silent on that subject ... the people need to live in ignorance for the general peace of the nation".[70]

In 1779, Casanova found Francesca, an uneducated seamstress, who became his live-in lover and housekeeper, and who loved him devotedly.[71] Later that year, the Inquisitors put him on the payroll and sent him to investigate commerce between the Papal states and Venice. Other publishing and theater ventures failed, primarily from lack of capital. In a downward spiral, Casanova was expelled again from Venice in 1783, after writing a vicious satire poking fun at Venetian nobility. In it he made his only public statement that Grimani was his true father.[72]

Forced to resume his travels again, Casanova arrived in Paris, and in November 1783 met Benjamin Franklin while attending a presentation on aeronautics and the future of balloon transport.[73] For a while, Casanova served as secretary and pamphleteer to Sebastian Foscarini, Venetian ambassador in Vienna. He also became acquainted with Lorenzo Da Ponte, Mozart's librettist, who noted about Casanova, "This singular man never liked to be in the wrong."[74] Notes by Casanova indicate that he may have made suggestions to Da Ponte concerning the libretto for Mozart's Don Giovanni.[75]

[edit] Final years in Bohemia

In 1785, after Foscarini died, Casanova began searching for another position. A few months later, he became the librarian to Count Joseph Karl von Waldstein, a chamberlain of the emperor, in the Castle of Dux, Bohemia (Duchcov Castle, Czech Republic). The Count—himself a Freemason, cabalist, and frequent traveler—had taken to Casanova when they had met a year earlier at Foscarini's residence. Although the job offered security and good pay, Casanova describes his last years as boring and frustrating, even though it was the most productive time for writing.[76] His health had deteriorated dramatically and he found life among peasants to be less than stimulating. He was only able to make occasional visits to Vienna and Dresden for relief. Although Casanova got on well with the Count, his employer was a much younger man with his own eccentricities. The Count often ignored him at meals and failed to introduce him to important visiting guests. Moreover, Casanova, the testy outsider, was thoroughly disliked by most of the other inhabitants of the Castle of Dux. Casanova's only friends seemed to be his fox terriers. In despair, Casanova considered suicide, but instead decided that he must live on to record his memoirs, which he did until his death.[77]

In 1797, word arrived that the Republic of Venice had ceased to exist and Napoleon Bonaparte had seized Casanova's home city. It was too late to return home. Casanova died on June 4, 1798 at age 73. His last words are said to have been "I have lived as a philosopher and I die as a Christian".[78]

[edit] The memoirs
The isolation and boredom of Casanova's last years enabled him to focus without distractions on his Histoire de ma vie, without which his fame would have been considerably diminished, if not blotted out entirely. He began to think about writing his memoirs around 1780 and began in earnest by 1789, as "the only remedy to keep from going mad or dying of grief". The first draft was completed by July 1792, and he spent the next six years revising it. He puts a happy face on his days of loneliness, writing in his work, "I can find no pleasanter pastime than to converse with myself about my own affairs and to provide a most worthy subject for laughter to my well-bred audience."[79] His recollections only go up to the summer of 1774.[80] His memoirs were still being compiled at the time of his death. A letter by him in 1792 states that he was reconsidering his decision to publish them believing his story was despicable and he would make enemies by writing the truth about his affairs. But he decided to proceed and to use initials instead of actual names, and to tone down its strongest passages.[81] He wrote in French instead of Italian because "the French language is more widely known than mine".[82]

The memoirs open with:

I begin by declaring to my reader that, by everything good or bad that I have done throughout my life, I am sure that I have earned merit or incurred guilt, and that hence I must consider myself a free agent... Despite an excellent moral foundation, the inevitable fruit of the divine principles which were rooted in my heart, I was all my life the victim of my senses; I have delighted in going astray and I have constantly lived in error ... my follies are the follies of youth. You will see that I laugh at them, and if you are kind you will laugh at them with me. You will laugh when you discover that I often had no scruples about deceiving nitwits and scoundrels and fools when I found it necessary. As for women, this sort of reciprocal deceit cancels itself out, for when love enters in, both parties are usually dupes.[83]

Casanova is clear about the purpose of his book:

I expect the friendship, the esteem, and the gratitude of my readers. Their gratitude, if reading my memoirs will have given instruction and pleasure. Their esteem if, doing me justice, they will have found that I have more virtues than faults; and their friendship as soon as they come to find me deserving of it by the frankness and good faith with which I submit myself to their judgment without in any way disguising what I am.[84]

He also advises his readers that they "will not find all my adventures. I have left out those which would have offended the people who played a part in them, for they would cut a sorry figure in them. Even so, there are those who will sometimes think me too indiscreet; I am sorry for it."[85] And in the final words, Casanova hints at adventures unrecorded: "The next morning at the appointed hour I see her in the carriage. I pay her a brief compliment; I sit down beside her, and we set off."[86]

Uncut, the memoirs ran to twelve volumes, and the standard editions to nearly 1200 pages. Though his chronology is at times confusing and inaccurate, and many of his tales exaggerated, much of his narrative and many details are corroborated by contemporary writings. He has a good ear for dialogue and writes at length about all classes of society.[87] Casanova, for the most part, is honest about his faults, intentions, and motivations, and shares his successes and failures with good humor.[88] The confession is largely devoid of repentance or remorse. He celebrates the senses with his readers, especially regarding music, food, and women. "I have always liked highly seasoned food. ... As for women, I have always found that the one I was in love with smelled good, and the more copious her sweat the sweeter I found it."[89] He mentions over 120 adventures with women and girls, with several veiled references to male lovers as well.[90][91] He describes his duels and conflicts with scoundrels and officials, his entrapments and his escapes, his schemes and plots, his anguish and his sighs of pleasure. He demonstrates convincingly, "I can say vixi ('I have lived')."[92]

The manuscript of Casanova's memoirs was held by his relatives until it was sold to F. A. Brockhaus publishers, and first published in heavily abridged versions in German around 1822, then in French.

During World War II, the manuscript survived the allied bombing of Leipzig. The memoirs were heavily pirated through the ages and have been translated into some twenty languages. But not until 1960 was the entire text published in its original language of French.[93]

[edit] The art of seduction

For Casanova, as well as his fellow sybarites of the upper class, love and sex were more casual and less endowed with the seriousness later bestowed by the Romantic movement during the 19th century.[94] Flirtations, bedroom games, and short-term liaisons were common among nobles who married for social connections rather than love. For Casanova, it was an open field of sexual opportunities (and disease).

Although multi-faceted and complex, Casanova's personality was dominated by his sensual urges: “Cultivating whatever gave pleasure to my senses was always the chief business of my life; I never found any occupation more important. Feeling that I was born for the sex opposite of mine, I have always loved it and done all that I could to make myself loved by it.”[95] He was the archetype of Don Juanism.

Casanova’s ideal liaison had elements beyond sex, including complicated plots, heroes and villains, and gallant outcomes. In a pattern he often repeated, he would discover an attractive woman in trouble with a brutish or jealous lover (Act I); he would ameliorate her difficulty (Act II); she would show her gratitude; he would seduce her; a short exciting affair would ensue (Act III); feeling a loss of ardor or boredom setting in, he would plead his unworthiness and arrange for her marriage or pairing with a worthy man, then exit the scene (Act IV).[96] As William Bolitho points out in Twelve Against the Gods, the secret of Casanova's success with women “had nothing more esoteric in it than [offering] what every woman who respects herself must demand: all that he had, all that he was, with (to set off the lack of legality) the dazzling attraction of the lump sum over what is more regularly doled out in a lifetime of installments.”[97]

He advises, “there is no honest woman with an uncorrupted heart whom a man is not sure of conquering by dint of gratitude. It is one of the surest and shortest means.”[98] Alcohol and violence, for him, were not proper tools of seduction.[99] Instead, attentiveness and small favors should be employed to soften a woman’s heart, but “a man who makes known his love by words is a fool”. Verbal communication is essential; “without speech, the pleasure of love is diminished by at least two-thirds”, but words of love must be implied not boldly proclaimed.[100]

Mutual consent is important, according to Casanova, but he avoided easy conquests or overly difficult situations as not suitable for his purposes.[101] He strove to be the ideal escort in the first act—witty, charming, confidential, helpful—before moving into the bedroom in the third act. Casanova claims not to be predatory (“my guiding principle has been never to direct my attack against novices or those whose prejudices were likely to prove an obstacle”); however, his conquests did tend to be insecure or emotionally exposed women.[102]

Casanova valued intelligence in a woman: “After all, a beautiful woman without a mind of her own leaves her lover with no resource after he had physically enjoyed her charms.” His attitude towards educated women, however, was typical for his time: “In a woman learning is out of place; it compromises the essential qualities of her sex ... no scientific discoveries have been made by women ... (which) requires a vigor which the female sex cannot have. But in simple reasoning and in delicacy of feeling we must yield to women.”[103]

[edit] Casanova and gambling

As recorded, gambling played a large role in the high society that Casanova traveled in. It helped gain him women to seduce and men to scheme with and against. In his memoirs, he discusses many forms of 18th century gambling—including lotteries, faro, basset, piquet, biribi, primero, quinze, and whist—and the passion for it among the nobility and the high clergy.[104] Cheaters (known as “correctors of fortune”) were somewhat more tolerated then than today in the casinos, and seldom caused affront.

Most gamblers were on guard against cheaters and their tricks. Scams of all sorts were also common, and Casanova delighted in them.[105]

Throughout his life, Casanova would gamble for recreation and as an occasional means of living, winning and losing large sums. He was tutored by professionals, and he was “instructed in those wise maxims without which games of chance ruin those who participate in them”. He was not above occasionally cheating. At times, he even teamed up with professionals. Casanova claims that he was “relaxed and smiling when I lost, and I won without covetousness”. However, when outrageously duped himself, he could act violently, sometimes calling for a duel.[106] Casanova admits that he was not disciplined enough to be a professional gambler: “I had neither prudence enough to leave off when fortune was adverse, nor sufficient control over myself when I had won.”[107] Nor did he like being considered as a professional gambler: “Nothing could ever be adduced by professional gamblers that I was of their infernal clique.”[108] For Casanova, gambling was primarily a means for flirting, making connections, acting gallantly, and proving himself a gentleman among his social superiors.

[edit] Casanova's fame and influence

Although best known for his prowess in seduction for more than two hundred years since his death, Casanova was also recognized by his contemporaries as an extraordinary person, a man of far-ranging intellect and curiosity. Casanova was one of the foremost chroniclers of his age. He was a true adventurer, traveling across Europe from end-to-end in search of fortune, seeking out the most prominent people of his time to help his cause. He was a man of contradictory traits—generous and mean, honest and deceptive, fawning and aloof, skeptical and gullible, superstitious and rational. He was a servant of the establishment and equally decadent as his times, but also a participant in secret societies and a seeker of answers beyond the conventional. He was religious, a devout Catholic, and believed in prayer: “Despair kills, prayer dissipates it; and after man trusts and acts.” But he also believed in free will and reason and clearly did not subscribe to the notion that pleasure-seeking would keep him from heaven, if heaven did indeed exist.[109]

He was, by vocation and avocation, a lawyer, clergyman, military officer, violinist, con man, pimp, gourmand, dancer, businessman, diplomat, spy, politician, mathematician, social philosopher, cabalist, playwright, and writer. He wrote over twenty works, including plays and essays, and many letters. His novel Icosameron is an early work of science fiction.[110]

Born of actors, he had a passion for the theater and for an improvised, theatrical life. But with all his talents, he frequently succumbed to the quest for pleasure and sex, often avoiding sustained work and established plans, and got himself into trouble when prudent action would have served him better. His true occupation was living largely on his quick wits, steely nerves, luck, social charm, and the money given to him in gratitude and by trickery.[111]

Prince Charles de Ligne, who understood Casanova well, and who knew most of the prominent individuals of the age, thought Casanova the most interesting man he had ever met: “there is nothing in the world of which he is not capable.” Rounding out the portrait, the Prince also stated:

The only things about which he knows nothing are those which he believes himself to be expert: the rules of the dance, the French language, good taste, the way of the world, savoir vivre. It is only his comedies which are not funny, only his philosophical works which lack philosophy—all the rest are filled with it; there is always something weighty, new, piquant, profound. He is a well of knowledge, but he quotes Homer and Horace ad nauseam. His wit and his sallies are like Attic salt. He is sensitive and generous, but displease him in the slightest and he is unpleasant, vindictive, and detestable. He believes in nothing except what is most incredible, being superstitious about everything. He loves and lusts after everything. ... He is proud because he is nothing. ... Never tell him you have heard the story he is going to tell you. ... Never omit to greet him in passing, for the merest trifle will make him your enemy.[112]

“Casanova”, like “Don Juan”, is a long established term in the English language. According to Merriam Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, 11th ed., the noun Casanova means "Lover; esp: a man who is a promiscuous and unscrupulous lover". The first usage of the term in written English was around 1852. References in culture to Casanova are numerous—in books, films, theater, and music.

Quotations
"I am writing My Life to laugh at myself, and I am succeeding."[113]

Works

1752 - Zoroastro, tragedia tradotta dal Francese, da rappresentarsi nel Regio Elettoral Teatro di Dresda, dalla compagnia de' comici italiani in attuale servizio di Sua Maestà nel carnevale dell'anno MDCCLII. Dresda.
1753 - La Moluccheide, o sia i gemelli rivali. Dresda 1769 - Confutazione della Storia del Governo Veneto d'Amelot de la Houssaie, Amsterdam (Lugano).
1772 - Lana caprina. Epistola di un licantropo. Bologna.
1774 - Istoria delle turbolenze della Polonia. Gorizia.
1775 - Dell'Iliade di Omero tradotta in ottava rima. Venezia.
1779 - Scrutinio del libro "Eloges de M. de Voltaire par différents auteurs". Venezia.
1780 - Opuscoli miscellanei - Il duello - Lettere della nobil donna Silvia Belegno alla nobildonzella Laura Gussoni. Venezia.
1781 - Le messager de Thalie. Venezia.
1782 - Di aneddoti viniziani militari ed amorosi del secolo decimoquarto sotto i dogadi di Giovanni Gradenigo e di Giovanni Dolfin. Venezia.
1782 - Né amori né donne ovvero la stalla ripulita. Venezia.
1786 - Soliloque d'un penseur, Prague chez Jean Ferdinande noble de Shonfeld imprimeur et libraire.
1787 - Histoire de ma fuite des prisons de la République de Venise qu'on appelle les Plombs. Ecrite a Dux en Boheme l'année 1787, Leipzig chez le noble de Shonfeld.
1788 - Icosaméron ou Histoire d'Edouard, et d'Elisabeth qui passèrent quatre vingts un ans chez les Mégamicres, habitans aborigènes du Protocosme dans l'intérieur de notre globe, traduite de l'anglois par Jacques Casanova de Seingalt Vénitien Docteur ès loix Bibliothécaire de Monsieur le comte de Waldstein seigneur de Dux Chambellan de S.M.J.R.A. A Prague à l'imprimerie de l'école normale.
1790 - Solution du probleme deliaque démontrée par Jacques Casanova de Seingalt, Bibliothécaire de Monsieur le Comte de Waldstein, seigneur de Dux en Boheme e c., Dresden, De l'imprimerie de C.C. Meinhold.
1790 - Corollaire à la duplication de l'Hexaèdre donné à Dux en Bohème, par Jacques Casanova de Seingalt, Dresden.
1790 - Démonstration géometrique de la duplication du cube. Corollaire second, Dresden.
1794 - Histoire de ma vie, first fully published by F.A. Brockhaus, Wiesbaden and Plon, Paris. 1960
1797 - A Leonard Snetlage, Docteur en droit de l'Université de Gottingue, Jacques Casanova, docteur en droit de l'Universitè de Padoue.

[edit] In popular culture

[edit] Written works
Casanova's Heimfahrt (1918) by Arthur Schnitzler.
The Venetian Glass Nephew (1925) by Elinor Wylie, in which Casanova appears as a major character under the transparent pseudonym "Chevalier de Chastelneuf".
Casanova in Bolzano, a 1940 novel by Sándor Márai.
Le Bonheur ou le Pouvoir (1980) by Pierre Kast.
Casanova (1998) by Andrew Miller (novelist).
Casanova, Dernier Amour published in 2000 by French author Pascal Lainé.
Casanova in Bohemia, a sympathetic and gently ribald novel about Casanova's last years at Dux, Bohemia; by Andrei Codrescu (2002; Free Press, Simon & Schuster).
A Dutch book by Arthur Japin titled Een Schitterend Gebrek or in English "In Lucia's Eyes" about Lucia, the love of his life

[edit] Performance works
Casanova, a 1918 Hungarian film featuring Béla Lugosi
Casanova, an operetta by Johann Strauss Jr.
Casanova, a 1971 BBC Television serial, written by Dennis Potter
Fellini's Casanova, a 1976 feature film by Federico Fellini starring Donald Sutherland
La Nuit de Varennes, a 1982 film featuring Marcello Mastroianni.
Casanova, a 1987 TV movie starring Richard Chamberlain and Marina Baker.[114]
Casanova, a 1989 play by Constance Congdon, the premiere of which featured Ethan Hawke as young Casanova.
Casanova, a 2005 BBC Television serial featuring David Tennant as young Casanova and Peter O'Toole as the older Casanova.
Casanova, a 2005 feature film featuring Heath Ledger, Sienna Miller and Charlie Cox.
Casanova, a 2007 play by Carol Ann Duffy and Told By An Idiot theatre company as produced at the Lyric Hammersmith in London, starring Hayley Carmichael as a female Casanova.
Casanova, a 2008 musical by Philip Godfrey showing between 16 May and 8 June at the Greenwich Playhouse in London, describing the life of Casanova with a small cast.

[edit] Music
Casanova, a piece for cello and winds by Johan de Meij
Casanova, a The Divine Comedy album
Casanova in Hell, a song by UK group Pet Shop Boys, from their 2006 album Fundamental
The Dutch girl group Luv' scored a Top 10 hit in several European countries with its single "Casanova" in 1979.
The R&B music group Levert had a number one single in 1987 titled "Casanova".
The song "Orchestra of Wolves", on the album Orchestra of Wolves by Gallows (band), seems to be based loosely on Casanova.
A song titled "My Casanova", by the European pop group Smile.dk
A song titled "Casanova", sung by Spanish singer Gisela, at the 2008 Eurovision Song Contest, representing Andorra.
A song titled "Casanova", by the band Roxy Music on their 1974 album Country Life
A song titled "It's Over Casanova", by the Canadian singer Lights
A song titled "Casanova", by Ultimate Kaos
A line in the Bob Dylan song "Desolation Row" is "They're spoonfeeding Casanova/To get him to feel more assured/Then they'll kill him with self-confidence/After poisoning him with words"
Ugly Casanova, a band created by Isaac Brock
The song "Casanova", on the album The Teaches of Peaches by Peaches (musician)

[edit] Other
Chris "Casa Nova" Ostreicher, a character from the 1999 film American Pie.
In the Kurt Vonnegut novel Mother Night, the main character writes a book titled "The Monogamous Casanova", referring to his own Casanovic relationship with a single woman.
Giamo Casanunda is a dwarfish character appearing in several of the Discworld novels by fantasy writer and satirist Terry Pratchett.
An abductor and killer of young women who calls himself 'Casanova' appears the 1997 feature film Kiss the Girls, based on the book by James Patterson.
In an episode of Relic Hunter, Sydney and Nigel search for a book which apparently contains the secrets of Casanova's sexual charm.
In an episode of That '70s Show, after Eric Forman is caught masturbating in a bathroom, his father remarks, "Well, if it isn't Casanova- the man who seduced himself.
In the webcomic KISS 4K, the spirit of the Starchild enhabits the body of Giacomo Casanova until he dies. It gives him the power of empathy, bending people to his will, which supplies an explanation of his many sexual conquests.
An aging Casanova is a character in the Tennessee Williams play Camino Real.
A Ty Beanie Baby bear was released in December 2006 named Casanova

The film Mystery Men contains a supervillain by the name of Casanova Frankenstein
In the book The Black Swan, by Nassim Nicholas Taleb, the story of Casanova is referred to as a case of illusion of stability in silent evidence.
In The Screwtape Letters, by C.S. Lewis, the demon, Screwtape says he ate Casanova's soul.

Corina Casanova

(born 4 January 1956) is the Federal Chancellor of Switzerland.

Born 1956 in Ilanz, Casanova worked as a lawyer in the practice of the former President of the Swiss Federal Supreme Court, Giusep Nay, as well as a Red Cross delegate in South Africa, Angola, Nicaragua and El Salvador. She also was a federal parliamentary official and advisor to Federal Councillors Flavio Cotti and Joseph Deiss. In August 2005, she was elected to the office of Vice-Chancellor by the Swiss Federal Assembly. In December 2007, that assembly elected her to the office of Chancellor in the course of the 2007 Swiss Federal Council election. In March 2008 she was designated by the Swiss Federal Council member of the directional committee for electronic government in Switzerland.

Casanova, a member of the Christian Democratic People's Party of Switzerland, speaks seven languages: Romansh, German, French, Italian, English, Spanish and Swiss German.

craig-oxley - March 17, 2009 12:00 AM (GMT)

According to the Order of the Golden Fleece, the most powerful Italy family that controls the Thrones of many countries, and POLITICALLY, are the Venetian 'Casanova's'. I am also related in some way to them.

Casanova was a Spy, Freemason, Nobleman, Price, and 100s of other things.

The Casanova family ALWAYS controlled Switzerland! And take a look at who they have as Chancellor: CORINA CASANOVA

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Corina_Casanova

Check out this link:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Archduchess_Monika_of_Austria

Now it is true that the Casanova's have been HISTORICALLY OPPOSED to the Jesuit Order. But why are they so powerful? Its the only family within the Golden Fleece to have any influence.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Giacomo_Casanova

craig-oxley - March 19, 2009 01:18 AM (GMT)

Well Craig, you are either a Guelph or a Ghibelline or Republican, and yes this still exists today. Most people are Guelphs but they don't know that they are!

Its a political game. Pope, King, or Republic. I myself am a Republican Monarchist, because I believe in Liberty for ALL. BUT, I support HRH Price Filiberto Emanuele di Savoia, Prince of Venice. The Casanova's are also Republicans.

The Guelph-Ghibelline tribulation is sponsored by the Jesuit Order. The Jesuits want a world where you have no freedom. Their utopia is Orwell's '1984', Or even the Dark Ages!

Here's The Venetian-Jesuit Pope Who destroyed Venice:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pope_Clement_XIII

I live very close to his home in Venice:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Ca%27_Rezzonico

The Venetian Republic was the first type of free society ever to exist in Europe, and it was destroyed by the Jesuits. The Jesuits ruined by homeland. Sometimes I cry when I walk through Venice. We were a superpower! Everybody came to Venice to escape exetremists and dictators and tyrannts.

Venice was like America.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: THE POWERFUL SOMAGLIA FAMILY

Title: THE POWERFUL SOMAGLIA FAMILY
Description: [THE REAL SATURNALIAN ILLUMINATI]

craig-oxley - January 16, 2009 12:41 PM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The Somaglia Family!

[dohtml]<hr>[/dohtml]
Somalia was colonised by Italy, NO WONDER THE JESUITS AND MAFIA ARE ROBBING PEOPLE AT HIGH SEAs!
[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]

QUOTE

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Giulio_Maria_della_Somaglia

Giulio Maria della Somaglia (July 29, 1744 – April 2, 1830) was an Italian cardinal. He was — at least in his later life — a staunch zelante cardinal who, as Secretary of State under Pope Leo XII, helped enforce an authoritarian regime in the crumbling Papal States.

Born in Piacenza into a noble family, della Somaglia was sent to Rome at the young age of twelve and at the Collegio Nazzareno and La Sapienza University acquired degrees in both canon and civil law. In 1769 he became domestic prelate of Pope Clement XIV and under Pope Pius VI he was secretary to numerous curial congregations between 1773 and 1787. Although he was only ordained to the priesthood in 1787, he became titular Patriarch of Antioch the following year and on June 1, 1795 became a cardinal.

In his years as a cardinal della Somaglia played an important role as a negotiator with the revolutionary regime in France. Although he undoubtedly agreed with Pius VI's 1791 condemnation of the French Revolution and was expelled from Rome when Napoleon's army invaded in 1808, he was charged with the examination of the concordat with France several years later and this role actually served to taint della Somaglia's reputation in the eyes of fellow zelanti cardinals. From 1814 he was Secretary of the Inquisition and Dean of the College of Cardinals in 1820.

In the 1823 conclave, della Somaglia was considered papabile. In 1826 he resigned the post of Secretary of State but continued as Secretary of the Inquisition until his death in 1830. When he died, della Somaglia was the last cardinal still alive elevated by Pius VI.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]

See Antioch
Enthroned June 1, 1795
Ended Predecessor
Ordination 1787
Created Cardinal June 1, 1795
Rank Dean of the College of Cardinals
Other Secretary of the Inquisition
Born July 29, 1744(1744-07-29)
Piacenza, Italy
Died April 2, 1830 (aged 85)

QUOTE

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The Cardinals of the Holy Roman Church

http://www.fiu.edu/~mirandas/bios1795#Somaglia.htm

Biographical Dictionary
Pope Pius VI (1775-1799)
Consistory of June 1, 1795 (XXIII)

(73) 1. DELLA SOMAGLIA, Giulio Maria (1744-1830)
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
Birth. July 29, 1744, Piacenza. The family was inscribed in the patriciates of Piacenza and Milan; it was related to the Capece family of Naples and was an ally of the family of Pope Sixtus V. Son of Carlo Maria Capece Anguillara, baron Della Somaglia, and Countess Marianna Fenaroli. Baptized by Cardinal Giulio Alberoni and named after him. When he was twelve years old, he was sent to Rome and destined to the ecclesiastical state.

Education. Collegio Nazzareno, Rome, 1756-1764; La Sapienza University (doctorate in utroque iure, both canon and civil law).

Early life. Privy chamberlain of Pope Clement XIV in 1769. Entered the Roman prelature as domestic prelate of His Holiness and referendary of the Tribunals of the Apostolic Signature of Justice and of Grace on March 20, 1773. Pope Pius VI named him successively voter of the Tribunal of the Apostolic Sgnature of Grace, protonotary apostolic non participantium, and prelate of the S.C. of the Tridentine Council. Secretary of the S.C. of Indulgences and Sacred Relics, March 25, 1775. Secretary of the S.C. of Rites, 1784. Secretary of the S.C. of Bishops and Regulars, 1787 until his promotion to the cardinalate. Prelate adjunct of the S.C. of the Tridentine Council. Secretary of the S.C. of Rites, 1784.

Priesthood. Ordained, June 2, 1787. Examiner of the professors newly promoted to academic chairs.

Episcopate. Elected titular patriarch of Antioch, December 15, 1788. Consecrated, December 21, 1788, in the church of S. Carlo ai Catinari, Rome, by Cardinal Hyacinthe-Sigismond Gerdil, B., assisted by Nicola Buschi, titular archbishop of Efeso, and by Pierluigi Galletti, titular bishop of Cirene.

Cardinalate. Created cardinal priest in the consistory of June 1, 1795; received the red hat and the title of S. Sabina, September 22, 1795. On September 22, 1795, he was named vicar general of Rome, occupying the post until 1818; also, prefect of the S.C. of the Residence of Bishops and prefect of the Collegio e Seminario Romano. Archpriest of the patriarchal Lateran basilica. Camerlengo of the Sacred College of Cardinals, July 24, 1797 until January 29, 1798. In February 1798, he was sent by Pope Pius VI in a mission to General Berthier to try to stop his advance with a French army toward Rome; realized that the attempt was useless and on his return alerted Cardinals Romoaldo Braschi Onesti and Giuseppe Albani of the danger of being arrested; they both fled to safety but he was arrested and imprisoned in the Monastery of Convertite, and later expelled from Rome by the French authorities. Participated in the conclave of 1799-1800, celebrated in Venice, which elected Pope Pius VII. Confirmed by the new Pope Pius VII as vicar of Rome before April 2, 1800. He was sent by the pope as his legate a latere to Rome together with two other cardinals to take possession of the government of the city; he arrived on June 7, 1800 and prepared the solemn entrance of the pope in his freed capital on July 3, 1800. He was charged with the examination of the concordat with France. Prefect of the S.C. of Rites, October 30, 1800. Opted for the title of S. Maria sopra Minerva, July 20, 1801. Named protector of the Order Cistercense before July 24, 1824. He was one of the fourteen cardinals expelled from Rome by the French authorities on March 23, 1808. Called to Paris by Napoléon, he was exiled to Charleville; refused to attend Napoléon's wedding to Archduchess Maria-Louise of Austria, celebrated on April 2, 1810; he was one of the thirteen "black cardinals", prohibited by Napoleon to wear the red cardinalitial habit. He was relegated to Mézières together with Cardinal Giovanni Filippo Scotti Gallaratti until he was recalled after the signature of the concordat of Fontainebleau by Pope Pius VII on January 25, 1813. He was reunited with the pope and then exiled again to Draguignan on January 27, 1814. An order of the provisional government freed him on April 2, 1814 and he went to Rome. After the restoration of the papal government, he was named by Pope Pius VII secretary of the Supreme S.C. of the Universal and Roman Inquisition on May 20, 1814; he occupied the post until his death. Confirmed as archpriest of the patriarchal Lateran basilica before August 3, 1814. Opted for the order of bishops and the suburbicarian see of Frascati, September 26, 1814. During the trip of the pope to Genoa, March 22 to June 7, 1815, he governed Rome as president of the Giunta di Stato. Vice-chancellor of the Holy Roman Church, commendatario of S. Lorenzo in Damaso, and Sommista of the Apostolic Letters, October 2, 1818 until his death. Opted for the suburbicarian see of Porto e Santa Rufina, December 21, 1818. Sub-dean of the Sacred College of Cardinals. Dean of the Sacred College of Cardinals and prefect of the S.C. Ceremonial May 10, 1820. Opted for the suburbicarian see of Ostia e Velletri, May 29, 1820. Participated in the conclave of 1823, which elected Pope Leo XII. Secretary of State, September 28, 1823 to January 17, 1828. Pro-prefect of the S.C. of Propaganda Fide, January 23, 1824 until October 1, 1826. Librarian of the Holy Roman Church, October 1, 1826 until his death. Participated in the conclave of 1829, which elected Pope Pius VIII.

Death. April 2, 1830, Rome. Exposed in the church of S. Lorenzo in Damaso, where the funeral took place; buried in the church of S. Maria sopra Minerva. Last surviving cardinal of Pope Pius VI.

Bibliography. Boutry, Philippe. Souverain et Pontife : recherches prosopographiques sur la curie romaine à l'âge de la restauration, 1814-1846. Rome : École française de Rome, 2002, pp. 363-365; Ritzler, Remigium, and Pirminum Sefrin. Hierarchia Catholica Medii et Recentioris Aevi. Volumen VI (1730-1799). Patavii : Typis et Sumptibus Domus Editorialis "Il Messaggero di S. Antonio" apud Basilicam S. Antonii, 1968, pp. 38, 49, 56 and 87; Ritzler, Remigium, and Pirminum Sefrin. Hierarchia Catholica Medii et Recentioris Aevi. Volumen VII (1800-1846). Patavii : Typis et Sumptibus Domus Editorialis "Il Messaggero di S. Antonio" apud Basilicam S. Antonii, 1968, pp. 37, 38, 39, 41 and 43.

Links. Biography, in Italian; his episcopal lineage, in English; and his portrait by Vincenzo Milione, Museo di Roma, Rome.

[dohtml] <hr>[/dohtml]

Chiesa Somaglia Italia

[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]

"Remember how Antioch was the fourth power of Rome after Constantinople and Alexandria." -CRAIG OXLEY

[dohtml]
<hr>[/dohtml]

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

2573a

PLEASE MOVE OVER TO THE NEW SITE:

http://z15.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mind_III/

18 JULY 2011 .. GOLD HITS NEW HIGH OF $1604 AS SILVER RAISES TO $40.38 PER OUNCE. THE OVERT DEPRESSION IS ON, ALL READY FOR THE COMING COLLAPSE BETWEEN OCT 2011 - OCT 2012! THE LIKES OF WHICH HAS NEVER BEEN WITNESSED BEFORE WORLDWIDE, ARE YOU READY? MENTALLY? YOU SURE? GET HARDENED NOW AND PREPARE ASAP.....

Old UHM archive site Past UHM Truth Banners Past UHM Scrolltexts Vote for the UHM

KING 'FARNESE' CARLOS
World War III
The Unhived Mind

THE KNIGHTS OF MALTA
DEUTSCHE VERTEIDIGUNGS DIENST
HOMELAND
DEPARTMENT
CARPATHIA HOSTINGS INC CYBERNAZIS

CARDINAL RATZINGER
And his Oslo Accords
UHM

C.I.A (D.V.D) PREPARE TO
TESLA ATTACK U.K
EXERCISE ORION
SEPTEMBER 2010
UHM

WTC nuclear demolition
Dimitri Khalezov

WATCH OUT MIDDLE EAST
KING JUAN CARLOS IS
IN RUSSIA 24/25 FEB

LATEST INFO

The Unhived Mind Ii->WORLD CONTROL->The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)

Pages: (20) [1] 2 3 ... Last »

NEW TOPIC NEW POLL

The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)

		Topic Title	Topic Starter	Replies	Views	Last Action
		Important Topics
		Online documents (Pages 1 2)	TheUnhivedMind	19	4,374	12th July 2011 - 10:30 AM Last Post by: Mark
		BEWARE of FIDEL CASTRO & HUGO CHAVEZ (Pages 1 2 3 ...4) [Jesuit Controlled Opposition]	TheUnhivedMind	46	7,280	5th July 2011 - 12:00 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		The Secret History of the Jesuits, by Edmond Paris	TheUnhivedMind	12	1,812	23rd March 2011 - 05:18 AM Last Post by: Phazon
		The Black Popes scenario for WW3 and destruction (Pages 1 2)	TheUnhivedMind	26	7,580	20th March 2011 - 01:55 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

		The Two Babylons by Rev. Alexander Hislop (Pages 1 2 3)	TheUnhivedMind	42	3,128	31st January 2011 - 11:55 PM Last Post by: Narrow_Is_The_Way
		SMOM COUNCIL - Know thy ENEMY (Pages 1 2 3 ...4)	TheUnhivedMind	56	11,777	21st October 2010 - 12:16 PM Last Post by: Mundaca
		JESUIT Power Structure of the United States (Pages 1 2 3)	TheUnhivedMind	38	8,709	15th October 2010 - 08:19 PM Last Post by: 14april2000
		THE SECRET TERRORISTS by Bill Hughes	TheUnhivedMind	6	1,065	20th September 2010 - 09:47 PM Last Post by: ROMAisoppositeAMOR
		THE JESUITS "King Solomans Temple III", Pics	TheUnhivedMind	6	2,959	15th September 2010 - 07:33 PM Last Post by: map
		WHO SUNK THE TITANIC?	TheUnhivedMind	5	2,722	3rd July 2010 - 11:04 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Jesuit General Pedro Arrupe & THE NEW WORLD ORDER [VIDEO - ERIC PHELPS VINDICATED!!]]	TheUnhivedMind	10	2,493	17th April 2010 - 07:31 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		ROME'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE ASSASSINATION OF ABRHAM LINCOLN	TheUnhivedMind	6	1,169	25th February 2010 - 10:21 PM Last Post by: Insurgent
		THE CURIA GENERALIZIA - JESUIT WORLD HQ	TheUnhivedMind	1	2,553	17th December 2009 - 06:33 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE RULES TODAY DVD #3	kalongi	1	1,538	25th November 2009 - 01:49 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Eric Jon Phelps 2009 Interview	TheUnhivedMind	1	2,114	9th April 2009 - 12:29 AM Last Post by: Keith
		The History of the Jesuits - James Arrabito	Cold	4	1,809	22nd February 2009 - 04:08 PM Last Post by: Jens Odin
		The Inroads of Spiritualism with James Arrabito	Cold	0	759	18th February 2009 - 04:28 PM Last Post by: Cold
		The BANNING of VATICAN ASSASSINS	TheUnhivedMind	4	2,010	7th January 2009 - 11:54 PM Last Post by: 14april2000
		Dr. Alberto Rivera at Tony Alamo Ministries [VID]	TheUnhivedMind	3	1,401	21st October 2008 - 03:07 AM Last Post by: tlthe5th
		Tasting the cup of the Borgia	TheUnhivedMind	1	916	16th October 2008 - 10:45 PM Last Post by: soulinspiration
8		MASSIVE ARCHIVE OF JESUIT INFORMATION	TheUnhivedMind	0	1,354	13th September 2008 - 11:40 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		`FOREIGN CONSPIRACY' AGAINST THE LIBERTIES OF THE U.S BY SAMUEL F.B. MORSE	TheUnhivedMind	12	656	13th September 2008 - 04:09 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		The REAL Controllers of the USA	TheUnhivedMind	3	1,767	13th September 2008 - 04:02 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

		BALANCED VIEW OF POPES	TheUnhivedMind	0	767	13th September 2008 - 03:57 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		SECRET TREATY OF VERONA	TheUnhivedMind	0	863	13th September 2008 - 03:56 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Secret Instructions of the Jesuits  Now all 17 chapters 	TheUnhivedMind	0	1,075	13th September 2008 - 03:52 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		INDUCTION AND EXTREME OATH OF THE JESUITS	TheUnhivedMind	2	870	13th September 2008 - 03:17 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Cardinal O'connor & his master Michael Holman SJ [114 MOUNT STREET JESUIT UK HQ!]	TheUnhivedMind	0	637	13th September 2008 - 03:11 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		The Enemy Unmasked by Bill Hughes	TheUnhivedMind	4	1,066	13th September 2008 - 03:03 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Rome is the enemy of United States	TheUnhivedMind	0	1,100	13th September 2008 - 02:25 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		The British Legal System of Mixed Common & Roman Law has been used to Enslave US(A)	TheUnhivedMind	9	936	13th September 2008 - 02:08 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		THE NEW VATICAN ASSASSINS SEMINAR W/ PHELPS [VID]	TheUnhivedMind	0	3,105	13th September 2008 - 01:56 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		JESUIT, SMOM & OPUS DEI Membership lists Updated 4TH SEP 2008 	TheUnhivedMind	10	2,706	13th September 2008 - 02:12 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Forum Topics
		EXPECT TROUBLE IN BAHRAIN, THE HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR HAS BEEN ON THE PHONE!	TheUnhivedMind	12	519	21st July 2011 - 04:08 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Irish PM in unprecedented attack on Vatican [ALL AIDING THE COMING WORLD RELIGION]	TheUnhivedMind	0	41	21st July 2011 - 12:43 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		TEMPLAR MEXICO CARTEL	TheUnhivedMind	0	116	20th July 2011 - 11:59 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		The 32 flames and the Degree of the Scottish Rite	TheUnhivedMind	3	196	20th July 2011 - 09:15 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Obama to Israel: Give back seized land (Pages 1 2) [WORLD WAR III ON ITS WAY]	TheUnhivedMind	17	912	20th July 2011 - 03:45 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Malaysia establishes ties with Vatican Malaysia establishes ties with Vatican	TheUnhivedMind	0	36	19th July 2011 - 03:57 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Consecration of the youth of the world to the Sacred Heart	TheUnhivedMind	0	28	18th July 2011 - 04:37 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Vatican II: Calling ambassadors for Christ	TheUnhivedMind	0	34	18th July 2011 - 04:34 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Video: Religious orders to refuse meeting over cash shortfall	TheUnhivedMind	0	15	18th July 2011 - 04:33 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

		Pope's envoy to visit Nigeria	TheUnhivedMind	0	17	18th July 2011 - 04:33 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Habsburg-Requiem: deep symbolism and historical references	TheUnhivedMind	0	28	18th July 2011 - 04:27 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		JESUIT TRAINED HERMAN VAN ROMPUT MEETS THE HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR LIKE A GOOD PUPPET	TheUnhivedMind	1	192	18th July 2011 - 04:42 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		THE MEETING WITH THE PRESIDENT OF THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT JERZY BUZEK	TheUnhivedMind	0	51	18th July 2011 - 04:22 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		German priest arrested for child abuse	TheUnhivedMind	0	16	18th July 2011 - 03:29 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		THE JESUIT ORDER PREPARES THE SHIPS OF KITIM! IHS/SMOM/UN/EU NAVAL INVATION TO US!!	Maximiliano	8	564	18th July 2011 - 02:05 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		Is the Archbishops about to meet in Rome for some other reason in October?	TheUnhivedMind	1	57	17th July 2011 - 11:45 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR PICKS A NEW GENERAL SECRETARY FOR THE UNION FOR THE MEDITERRANEAN	TheUnhivedMind	2	57	17th July 2011 - 09:26 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Vatican excommunicates bishop ordained by Chinese state	TheUnhivedMind	0	57	17th July 2011 - 02:10 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		THE JESUITS BEHIND THE MODERN PLEIADIAN MYTH New Age => Luciferian Religion	Maximiliano	8	420	16th July 2011 - 02:36 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		James Murdoch paid £100,000 to meet Pope	TheUnhivedMind	0	36	16th July 2011 - 01:35 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Jesuits Teaching Nearly 4,000 Afghan Youths	TheUnhivedMind	0	62	15th July 2011 - 06:23 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Vatican approach to child abuse in Ireland absolut disgraceful says PM	TheUnhivedMind	0	65	15th July 2011 - 03:06 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		THE FOUNDER OF THE ADVENTISTS WAS A 33º FREEMASON (Pages 1 2) WILLIAM MILLER	Maximiliano	16	668	14th July 2011 - 01:59 PM Last Post by: golden_oil
		Cloyne report: Church failed to report all abuse cases	TheUnhivedMind	0	41	13th July 2011 - 06:15 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		SMOM Tony "Catholic" Blair (Pages 1 2 3 ...12)	TheUnhivedMind	169	11,363	13th July 2011 - 02:32 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Joy has accompanied Archbishop Prendergast's 50 years as a Jesuit	TheUnhivedMind	0	34	12th July 2011 - 10:11 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Roman Catholic mental health torture shelter	TheUnhivedMind	0	83	12th July 2011 - 07:00 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Peter Turkson... The Next & FINAL Pope SLAIN AS 7TH KING & RISEN AS 8TH	map	4	174	12th July 2011 - 05:09 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

		Debate: Should Rupert Murdoch's papal knighthood be rescinded?	TheUnhivedMind	1	52	12th July 2011 - 04:51 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Kristine Marcy trained by GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY	TheUnhivedMind	2	322	12th July 2011 - 07:20 AM Last Post by: Phazon
		Jesuits & Hugo Chavez in Cuba at the same time!!! Fidel Castro S.J.	Maximiliano	1	117	11th July 2011 - 03:40 AM Last Post by: emergingtruth
		LADY GAGA WAS EDUCATED BY THE JESUITS	Maximiliano	8	925	10th July 2011 - 10:31 PM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		U.S.A Jesuit chaplain of US House of Representats	Maximiliano	1	58	10th July 2011 - 09:00 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		Jesuits in Syria Call for National Unity	Maximiliano	0	35	10th July 2011 - 08:57 AM Last Post by: Maximiliano
		SUSPECT ARRESTED FOR PLAN TO ASSASSINATE THE HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR, KING JUAN CARLOS	TheUnhivedMind	0	68	10th July 2011 - 03:39 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Frank O'Collins & UCADIA - The Vatican & Canon Law [Vd]	TheUnhivedMind	0	107	9th July 2011 - 12:22 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Church of England faces being wiped out, report warns (JESUITS STAND A CHEER)	TheUnhivedMind	0	47	8th July 2011 - 11:00 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		John Paul II and Opus Dei	TheUnhivedMind	0	129	6th July 2011 - 10:58 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Pope Benedict's War on the Church	TheUnhivedMind	0	69	6th July 2011 - 10:57 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		CARDINAL ANGELO SCOLA TO HEAD MILAN CHURCH	TheUnhivedMind	6	193	6th July 2011 - 10:43 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		French woman sues Opus Dei, claims brainwashing	TheUnhivedMind	0	114	6th July 2011 - 10:32 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		New Equestrian Knights	TheUnhivedMind	0	48	6th July 2011 - 10:32 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Sepulchre Lady Seaman	TheUnhivedMind	0	37	6th July 2011 - 10:30 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Malaysian PM to meet pope, eyes ties with Vatican	TheUnhivedMind	0	29	6th July 2011 - 10:27 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Three most famous chivalric orders	TheUnhivedMind	0	48	6th July 2011 - 10:25 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Knights of Malta and Fronton	TheUnhivedMind	0	48	6th July 2011 - 10:22 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR IS HONORED BY RUSSIA	TheUnhivedMind	0	47	6th July 2011 - 10:19 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

		HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR SPEAKS W/ ALEXANDER LUKASHENKO OF BELARUS	TheUnhivedMind	0	38	6th July 2011 - 10:17 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		VATICAN REVEALS SECRET ARCHIVE	TheUnhivedMind	0	121	6th July 2011 - 06:24 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		GEORGE WASHINGTON WAS NOT A FREEMASON OR A CATHOLI [Vd]	TheUnhivedMind	2	318	6th July 2011 - 04:32 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		The Knights of Malta's pivotal role in the American Revolutionary War	TheUnhivedMind	2	157	6th July 2011 - 06:08 AM Last Post by: Phazon
		WILL ROMAN CATHOLIC CUOMO PUPPET OF DOLAN REPLACE ROMAN CATHOLIC JOE BIDEN?	TheUnhivedMind	1	111	6th July 2011 - 03:45 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		EJP Replies to Questions of Producer Chris Pinto Concerning George Washington	TheUnhivedMind	8	440	6th July 2011 - 01:53 AM Last Post by: Phazon
		GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY VERMIN ATTACK U.S. CONSTITUTION [JESUIT SWINES] [Vd]	TheUnhivedMind	0	134	4th July 2011 - 06:22 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		THE ROTHSCHILD'S ARE BLOOD UNITING WITH THE VERY POWERFUL PERCY FAMILY OF ENGLAND	TheUnhivedMind	8	861	3rd July 2011 - 01:14 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Vatican budget emerges from the red [TRUE VATICAN WEALTH EXCEEDS ALL HAHA]	TheUnhivedMind	0	157	2nd July 2011 - 06:01 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Episcopal Church in Maryland to Convert to Catholicism	TheUnhivedMind	0	51	2nd July 2011 - 03:51 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		PAPAL BULL ORIGINALS ARE CREATED ON HUMAN SKIN	TheUnhivedMind	2	321	30th June 2011 - 09:59 PM Last Post by: Dan81xd
		the new oficial vatican news portal	CommanderKeen	0	138	29th June 2011 - 05:36 PM Last Post by: CommanderKeen
		MICROSOFT JOINS FORCES WITH CROWN AGENTS	TheUnhivedMind	1	134	29th June 2011 - 02:00 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Pope meets with Grand Master Fra' Matthew Festing from the Order of Malta [Vd]	TheUnhivedMind	2	143	28th June 2011 - 07:47 AM Last Post by: Phazon
		[vid] The Pope is in love with islam but not Jesus Great Falling away in progress?	kalongi	1	95	28th June 2011 - 06:12 AM Last Post by: map
		Hollywood whore Ang Jolie & negroes all for africans flooding europe	Ken Ardel	0	78	28th June 2011 - 12:14 AM Last Post by: Ken Ardel
		Path to Priesthood: The Priestly Ordination of Radmar Jao [Vd]	TheUnhivedMind	0	63	25th June 2011 - 03:51 PM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		Holy Crop! Vatican Blesses GMOs	TheUnhivedMind	0	61	25th June 2011 - 02:44 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

		KNIGHT OF MALTA MICHAEL BLOOMBERG AT THE CFR AIDS THE BULL OF BORGIA OVER AMERICA [Vd]	TheUnhivedMind	0	49	25th June 2011 - 02:37 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind
		'Open Europe'	TheUnhivedMind	0	148	23rd June 2011 - 01:57 AM Last Post by: TheUnhivedMind

Showing 100 of 1987 topics sorted by last post date in descending order from the beginning Go!

Pages: (20) [1] 2 3 ... Last »

NEW TOPIC NEW POLL

Open Topic (new replies)

Open Topic (no new replies)

Hot Topic (new replies)

Hot Topic (no new replies)

Poll (new votes)

Poll (no new votes)

Locked Topic

Moved Topic

Search this forum: Enter Keywords Go

- The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars) Go

Mark this forum as read

Hosted for free by InvisionFree (Terms of Use: Updated 2/10/2010) | Powered by Invision Power Board v1.3 Final © 2003 IPS, Inc.
Page creation time: 0.0603 seconds | Archive

The Orsini Skin by Bunthius Zeta Board mods

0

View Full Version: The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)

51. Vatican excommunicates bishop ordained by Chinese
52. THE JESUITS BEHIND THE MODERN PLEIADIAN MYTH
53. James Murdoch paid £100,000 to meet Pope
54. Jesuits Teaching Nearly 4,000 Afghan Youths
55. Vatican approach to child abuse in Ireland absolut
56. THE FOUNDER OF THE ADVENTISTS WAS A 33º FREEMASON
57. Cloyne report: Church failed to report all abuse
58. SMOM Tony "Catholic" Blair
59. Joy has accompanied Archbishop Prendergast's 50
60. Roman Catholic mental health torture shelter
61. Peter Turkson... The Next & FINAL Pope
62. Debate: Should Rupert Murdoch's papal knighthood
63. Kristine Marcy trained by GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY
64. Jesuits & Hugo Chavez in Cuba at the same time!!!
65. LADY GAGA WAS EDUCATED BY THE JESUITS
66. U.S.A Jesuit chaplain of US House of Representats
67. Jesuits in Syria Call for National Unity
68. SUSPECT ARRESTED FOR PLAN TO ASSASSINATE THE HOLY
69. Frank O'Collins & UCADIA - The Vatican & Canon Law
70. Church of England faces being wiped out, report
71. John Paul II and Opus Dei
72. Pope Benedict's War on the Church
73. CARDINAL ANGELO SCOLA TO HEAD MILAN CHURCH
74. French woman sues Opus Dei, claims brainwashing
75. New Equestrian Knights
76. Sepulchre Lady Seaman
77. Malaysian PM to meet pope, eyes ties with Vatican
78. Three most famous chivalric orders
79. Knights of Malta and Fronton
80. HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR IS HONORED BY RUSSIA

81. HOLY ROMAN EMPEROR SPEAKS W/ ALEXANDER LUKASHENKO
82. VATICAN REVEALS SECRET ARCHIVE
83. GEORGE WASHINGTON WAS NOT A FREEMASON OR A CATHOLI
84. The Knights of Malta’s pivotal role in the
85. WILL ROMAN CATHOLIC CUOMO PUPPET OF DOLAN REPLACE
86. EJP Replies to Questions of Producer Chris Pinto
87. GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY VERMIN ATTACK U.S.
88. THE ROTHSCHILD'S ARE BLOOD UNITING WITH THE VERY
89. Vatican budget emerges from the red
90. Episcopal Church in Maryland to Convert to
91. PAPAL BULL ORIGINALS ARE CREATED ON HUMAN SKIN
92. the new oficial vatican news portal
93. MICROSOFT JOINS FORCES WITH CROWN AGENTS
94. Pope meets with Grand Master Fra' Matthew Festing
95. [vid] The Pope is in love with islam but not Jesus
96. Hollywood whore Ang Jolie & negroes
97. Path to Priesthood: The Priestly Ordination of
98. Holy Crop! Vatican Blesses GMOs
99. KNIGHT OF MALTA MICHAEL BLOOMBERG AT THE CFR AIDS
100. 'Open Europe'

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)

101. QUEEN AND POPE SUMMONED OVER CHILD TRAFFICKING AND
102. Southern Baptists Reject Updated NIV Bible
103. Jesuit Priest Charles Coughlin audios of his
104. DR MAX D. YOUNCE - HOMOSEXUAL PRIESTS [Vd]
105. KNIGHT OF MALTA PETER G. PETERSON IS OUT TO TAKE
106. THE POWER BRITISH PERCY FAMILY
107. REJOICE THE WICKED FARNESE CONTINUUM IS DYING BUT
108. FINALLY A NEW GRANDMASTER OF THE SEPULCHRE IS
109. SWISS BISHOP TAKES UP TOP VATICAN POST
110. KING JUAN CARLOS IS IN SWITZERLAND FOR 2 DAYS
111. Lady Gaga and Catholicism
112. CHRIS PINTO - ROME'S MASS MURDERING [Vd]
113. Site of Republican debate is college run by
114. VATICAN VACCINE(vid)
115. The Real Power Behind the NWO is the Whore of Baby
116. DR MAX D. YOUNCE - THE CATHOLIC CHURCH OPPOSES THE
117. The Amalfi are on your Iphone note the Cross
118. The King James I Authorised Bible The Most
119. Defeating Atheists with Science
120. Jesuit Gulen controlled schools hit Texas
121. Catholic school PE teacher 'attacked pupil at
122. WATCH OUT, A KNIGHT OF MALTA CRUSADER, SANTORUM IS
123. Newt Gingrich to Convert to Catholism
124. Pope meets with Joe Biden, Vice President of the
125. Pope Benedict to make first Croatia visit
126. SHIMON PERES IN IS VENICE!
127. Belgian child sex abuse victims sue Catholic
128. BARRY CHAMISH - GO AGAINST OSLO & GET WHACKED!
129. Malta votes yes to legalising divorce
130. St Patrick's Catholic church in Soho to reopen

131. One catholic replaces another as a Chairman of the
132. Cliff Richard is a SMOM member
133. Red Cross and Vatican 'helped thousands of Nazi
134. The mindset of the Jesuits [video]
135. ISLAMIC & CATHOLIC ESCHATOLOGY BY MARCO PONCE [Vd]
136. HERES THE TRUTH ABOUT ROWAN WILLIAMS THE SUCK UP
137. EQUESTRIAN ORDER OF THE HOLY SEPULCHRE OF JERUSALE
138. Pope to talk to Astronauts on Saturn's day at
139. Dutch Catholic Church launches investigation after
140. Paedophile priest expelled from Catholic Church
141. US Catholic Church study blames 1960s permissivene
142. JESUITISM DESTROYS THE COE FURTHER W/ FREEMASONRY
143. The Catholic Universal Postal Union
144. Vatican sex abuse guidelines 'leave bishops behind
145. Short Robe Hawkings at it again this time
146. POPE WELCOMES B'NAI B'RITH IN VATICAN
147. SPAINISH KING WAS ON PRIVATE VISIT TO MOROCCO
148. EVOLUTION THEORY DECLARED BANKRUPT
149. Knight of Malta Mark Hayball and the U.S.
150. THE POPE GOES TO VENICE SHORTLY!

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)

151. Boehner to nominate Jesuit priest as House chaplai
152. vatican world domination and oppression [Vd]
153. nwo osama bin laden disinformation [Vd]
154. one world goverment the black pope [Vd]
155. More Jesuit created chaos in the COE
156. PRINCE CHARLES WAS DOWN AT GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY
157. Jesuit cardinal want christians to pray for Osama
158. new world order black pope [Vd]
159. Ben Fulford info on Black Pope
160. Has Ali Abdullah Saleh help highlight JUAN CARLOS?
161. Australian bishop quits over Vatican row
162. John Paul II's blood to be shown at beatification
163. Spanish king supports Colombia in battle with
164. Mugabe in Rome for Pope John Paul II beatification
165. U.K. MASTER OF THE HORSE; SAMUEL VESTEY IS A
166. adolf hitler and george w bush catholic jesuits [V
167. I wonder if the Jesuits will be mentioned in this
168. THE UNHIVED MIND VERBALS 4 POLICE OFFICERS
169. THE PHARAOH SHOW - KNIGHTS TEMPLAR SWISS [Vd]
170. JESUIT PRIESTs BLESSING RIFLES
171. HERES A PICTURE FINALLY OF KRISTINE MARCY THE
172. new world order creation of the vatican
173. A CATHOLIC PRIEST SAYS "BECOME A FREEMASON"
174. German Adviser Andreas Gives His Views on the
175. Email from Brother Hans Concerning his Visit with 176. Harry Connick, Sr.: Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor in 177. Jesuits, not the Rothschilds, Openly Display
178. Satan’s Voltaire Related to Teilhard de Chardin, 179. Vatican police clash with gipsies on steps of
180. Pope Benedict appears in TV question-and-answer

181. babylonian brotherhood worship music [Vd]
182. CNN claims atheists die first in survival situatio
183. Catholic defectors will leave Anglicans breathing
184. Vatican - A Secret Revealed [Vd]
185. EX-JESUIT BOYD BARRETT BOOKS
186. Vatican newspaper goes online – but readers will
187. Thousands of priests 'in illicit relationships
188. The 1st Council of Nicea 325 A.D.: The Council
189. NICK CLEGG PREPARING FOR CATHOLIC U.K. QUEEN SOON
190. KNIGHT OF MALTA, RICK SANTORUM SAYS THE CRUSADES
191. new world order the black pope [Vd]
192. Catholic Church criticises 'Christ' advert
193. BARRY CHAMISH - JESUIT DESTRUCTION OF ISRAEL [Vd]
194. Father Louis Gigante is Vincent the Chin Gingante'
195. new world order vaticans crusades [Vd]
196. The All Seeing Eye, the god of the Jesuits [Vid]
197. The London Conference on Libya
198. Karl Rove Recently Spoke at Fordham University
199. Belgian ex-bishop denies paedophilia despite
200. new world order for dummies vatican connection

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)

201. BARRY CHAMISH - WLODIMIR LEDOCHOWSKI & THE SOCIETY
202. JESUIT GENERAL COMING TO THE U.K IN APRIL
203. PRINCE OF SPAIN IN JERUSALEM!
204. El Ojo Que Todo Lo Vé el dios de los Jesuitas [Vd]
205. VERVS JESVITARVM LIBELLVS MAGICVS
206. pope antichrist equestrian order third jewish temp
207. [vid] Jesuit Satanic Ritual Abuse
208. pope of rome will be satans antichrist [Vd]
209. the pope is the antichrist protestant reformers
210. new world order constantinian order black pope [Vd
211. new world order the black popes power structure
212. The Foreign Policy Centre Think Thank
213. Military and Hospitaller Order of St Lazarus
214. CONSTANTINIAN ORDER INTER-RELIGIOUS FOUNDATIONS
215. PRINCE FELIPE OF SPAIN TO VISIT ISRAEL
216. Melkite priests to be beatified this year
217. EOHSJ KNIGHTS OF PERU CRUCIFY EFFIGY OF JESUS!!!
218. Sovereign and Military Order of the Knights of
219. new world order knights of columbus [Vd]
220. new world order equestrian order [Vd]
221. JESUITS ANNOUNCE A NEW BRITISH PROVINCIAL
222. Church demands reforms to Cuban health-care system
223. Defense Minister of Argentina kicked out of the
224. President Obama Tells Georgetown Audience of Goal
225. Interesting Pics from Adolfo's Middle East Visit
226. THE REASON WHY THE KNIGHTS OF MALTA BOUGHT ABOUT
227. Mayann Elizabeth Francis meets MATTHEW FESTING
228. Charles Tannock MEP adores MATTHEW FESTING
229. Catholic Priest Exposes New World Order [Vd]
230. THE POPE'S ASSASSIN

231. Vatican "Porn" Collection to go Online
232. A JESUIT WAS A FOUNDER OF LEBANESE AMAL MOVEMENT
233. JESUIT TRAINED PRINCE OF SANSEVERO & THE ALCHEMICA
234. Satanic Priest symbolism [IMG]
235. Carter in Cuba for meetings with Raúl, Ortega
236. Newt Gingrich: Prince Consort of the Knights of 237. Spanish Crown Prince stirs Gibraltar controversy
238. The Piedmontese War: Calvinists Resisting Rome
239. Satan and His Jesuit Superior General in Rome Make
240. El Ojo del Antichristo [Vd]
241. Jesuit power is all around us and controls all
242. Medal of the Order of St. George, 2nd class
243. JOE BIDEN MEETING WITH JESUITS DURING MARCH 11
244. Geert Wilders at MAGNA CARTA foundation in ROME
245. 2011's SMOM AND BILDERBERG MEETINGS IN SWITZERLAND
246. Tony Blair's priest fixed papal knighthoods for
247. THE WHISTLEBLOWER IN MADOFF FRAUD WAS A JESUIT
248. US Jesuits agree £103 million abuse payout
249. KING JUAN CARLOS MEETING THE PRESIDENT OF IRELAND
250. Indian Jesuit Urges Government to Stop Nuclear

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Knights of the Virgin Mary IHS (Revived Templars)

1951. Knight of Malta King George V (1865-1936)
1952. Kaiser Wilhelm II
1953. Roman Catholic SS Major Josef Mengele
1954. Fritz - SMOM made up of 50% BLACK NOBILITY
1955. 25 Most Evil People of the 20th century: Stalin
1956. Egyptian Intelligence and Rome
1957. Castro invites Mahmoud Ahmadinejad to Cuba
1958. Carl Jung: Psychologist or Sorcerer?
1959. Jesuit Control of our Military
1960. Catholics allowed on throne in massive reform
1961. KOSOVO Vatican Tyranny
1962. Jesuits in Latin America
1963. Japan Elects Catholic Conservative as Prime Minist 1964. Pagan Catholics wont use their death tools on 1965. New Law Requires Roman Catholicism Classes n Spain
1966. Pope Defends WWII Pontiff's Role
1967. Another Catholic Jesus Phallic in plain sight
1968. 'Creationism' biologist quits job
1969. Catholics will no longer address God as ‘Yahweh’
1970. Pictures of New Grandmaster of SMOM with Pope
1971. ILLUMINATI WEISHAUPT WAS “A JESUIT IN DISGUISE”
1972. THE ORDER OF THE HOLY SEPULCHRE
1973. Actress may face 5 year prison sentence for saying 1974. Hypocrite Anti-Christos Dragon Pope again
1975. Thousands to turn out to see Pope at Lourdes but 1976. Jesuit Connection to Jim Jones and Jonestown 1977. Full Text of President Bush Address At National 1978. Pope Benedict in front of JESUIT HIERACHY
1979. Catholic Burning Rising Phoenix [PIC]
1980. Constantine Order - PRE 1960 SPLIT

1981. REIGNING & NON-REIGNING EUROPEAN ROYAL HOUSES
1982. Catholic chivalric orders
1983. ASSOCIATION OF PAPAL ORDERS OF PIUS IX, ST. GREGOR
1984. NEW LATIN PATRIARCH & ARCHBISHOP OF JERUSALEM
1985. THE VATICAN'S OPEN BUT FALSE POLICY ON MASONRY &

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: Online documents

Title: Online documents

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 03:48 PM (GMT)

Online documents

Life inside the church of Rome (1889)

by Mary Frances CUSACK (1829-1899) A.K.A. "The nun of Kenmare"

Popery in its Social Aspect being a Complete Exposure of the Immorality and Intolerance of Romanism

by Rev. R. P. Blakeney, D.D., LL.D

Manual of Romish controversy being a complete refutation of the creed of pope Pius IV

by Rev. R. P. Blakeney, D.D., LL.D

Is it Mary or Lady of the Jesuits?

by Justin D. Fulton

Forty years in the church of Christ

by Charles Chiniquy

http://www.timeforchrist.ca/Time%20for%20A...e_documents.htm

tlthe5th - October 20, 2008 04:05 PM (GMT)

http://www.archive.org/details/powerandsecretof008970mbp

"In Georgetown, now a suburb of the city of Washington, the federal capital, they established a seminary, the first Catholic educational institution in United States territory ; from there, they extended their activities to Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Indeed, it is to a certain degree due to their activities that the newly formed united States included in its Constitution the principles of religious freedom.

In those days, one of Benjamin Franklin's friends was a Jesuit ; this was John Carroll, who had been brought up in Maryland, and who later, on Franklin's special recommendation, was appointed prefect apostolic and afterwards became the first Catholic Bishop of the United States."

THE POWER AND SECRET OF THE JESUITS
Rene Fulop - Miller (1930)
page 273 (download whole book at above link)

tlthe5th - October 20, 2008 04:53 PM (GMT)

A Candid History Of The Jesuits (1913)

http://www.archive.org/details/candidhistoryoft025078mbp

I guess we can decide if it's really "Candid" or not. :ph43r:

craig-oxley - October 20, 2008 10:27 PM (GMT)

Many Jesuit books

http://www.archive.org/search.php?query=Je...niversallibrary

Cold - October 27, 2008 01:29 PM (GMT)

Swarms of Locusts: The Jesuit attack on the Faith

By Michael Bunker

http://wikicompany.org/books/swarms_of_locusts.pdf

Hitler's Pope
By John Cornwell

http://www.megaupload.com/nl/?d=SUNHJGS7

Cold - November 3, 2008 11:22 AM (GMT)

A History of the Jesuits
By John Poynder

Volume 1
http://www.archive.org/download/historyofj...suits01poyn.pdf

Volume 2
http://www.archive.org/download/historyofj...suits02poyn.pdf

Fourteen Years a Jesuit
By Count Paul von Hoensbroech

Volume 1
http://www.archive.org/download/fourteenye...rsjes01hoen.pdf

Volume 2
http://www.archive.org/download/fourteenye...rsjes02hoen.pdf

EDITED POST:

The Lies And Fallacies Of The Encyclopedia Britanica: How Powerful And Shameless Clerical Forces Castrated A Famous Work Of Reference
By Joseph McCabe

http://www.infidels.org/library/historical...britannica.html
(http://www.reformation.org/lies-of-encyclo...britannica.html)

The Encyclopaedia Britannica - Ninth Edition

NOTE: This is the US version published by Charles Scribner's Sons in New York

Volume 1
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t01newyrich.pdf

Volume 2
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t02newyrich.pdf

Volume 3
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t03newyrich.pdf

Volume 4
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t04newyrich.pdf

Volume 5
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t05newyrich.pdf

Volume 6
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t06newyrich.pdf

Volume 7
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t07newyrich.pdf

Volume 8
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t08newyrich.pdf

Volume 9
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t09newyrich.pdf

Volume 10
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t10newyrich.pdf

Volume 11
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t11newyrich.pdf

Volume 12
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t12newyrich.pdf

Volume 13
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t13newyrich.pdf

Volume 14
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t14newyrich.pdf

Volume 15
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t15newyrich.pdf

Volume 16

http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t16newyrich.pdf

Volume 17
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t17newyrich.pdf

Volume 18
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t18newyrich.pdf

Volume 19
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t19newyrich.pdf

Volume 20
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t20newyrich.pdf

Volume 21
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t21newyrich.pdf

Volume 22
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t22newyrich.pdf

Volume 23
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t23newyrich.pdf

Volume 24
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t24newyrich.pdf

Volume 25
http://www.archive.org/download/encycloped...t25newyrich.pdf

gneiss - November 6, 2008 08:28 AM (GMT)

The Shattering Denial Library of Online Books (PDF Format)

http://www.shatteringdenial.com/library.html

Arctic Beacon Online Books:

Vatican / Jesuits etc.:

http://arcticbeacon.com/books/

More Online Books: Vatican / Jesuits etc.:

http://wikicompany.org/wiki/911:Literature

Downloadable Jesuit Books on Scribd.com:
http://www.scribd.com/search?page=1&query=Jesuits&x=21&y=16

---

tlthe5th - November 27, 2008 05:34 PM (GMT)

i would download all these just in case they disappear. seriously, with all this knowledge that's made available through the internet. no one has any excuse.

Alberto Rivera Comics on PDF

Alberto
http://www.scribd.com/doc/6016302/Alberto

Double-Cross
http://www.scribd.com/doc/6083654/Double-Cross

The-Godfathers
http://www.scribd.com/doc/6019378/The-Godfathers

The-Prophet
http://www.scribd.com/doc/6017945/The-Prophet

The-Force
http://www.scribd.com/doc/6083692/THe-Force

Also:

Rome in America
http://www.scribd.com/doc/7817463/Rome-in-America

A Foreign Threat, Jesuit Terrorist http://www.scribd.com/doc/6175832/A-Foreig...esuit-Terrorist Protestant Jesuitism, 1836 (???)

http://www.scribd.com/doc/7690721/Protestant-Jesuitism-1836

The Gunpowder-Treason, 1679
http://www.scribd.com/doc/7671461/The-GunpowderTreason-1679

Secret Instructions of the Society of Jesus http://www.scribd.com/doc/7671209/Secret-I...ociety-of-Jesus

A History of the Gunpowder Plot, The Conspiracy and its Agents by Philip Sidney 1904
http://www.scribd.com/doc/7671026/A-Histor...lip-Sidney-1904

History of the Progress and Suppression of the Reformation in Spain in the 16th Century by Thomas M' http://www.scribd.com/doc/7711393/History-...omas-MCrie-1829

Where Are the Millions That Mother Teresa Collected http://www.scribd.com/doc/7886632/Where-Ar...eresa-Collected

JESUITS in the History of INDIA (might be pro jesuit) http://www.scribd.com/doc/7611354/JESUITS-...istory-of-INDIA

The History of Protestantism - Rev. J. Wylie, 1878
http://www.scribd.com/doc/6083310/The-Hist...ev-J-Wylie-1878

History of the Jesuits; Their Origin, Progress, Doctrines, and Designs by Giovanni Battista Nicolini
http://www.scribd.com/doc/7497790/History-...a-Nicolini-1889

Why Priests Should Wed by Justin Fulton
http://www.scribd.com/doc/8124472/Why-Prie...y-Justin-Fulton

Marie Monk, A Nun Tells All (Awful Disclosures)
http://www.scribd.com/doc/8131301/Marie-Mo...lls-All-Slavery

Romanism in the Light of History
http://www.scribd.com/doc/8136187/Romanism...ight-of-History

Identity of the Festivals of Rome and Babylon http://www.scribd.com/doc/8274009/Identity...ome-and-Babylon

The Fight With Rome
http://www.scribd.com/doc/8370970/The-Fight-With-Rome

WASHINGTON IN THE LAP OF ROME, JESUITS STEALING LIBERTY THEN AND NOW http://www.scribd.com/doc/7816382/WASHINGT...TY-THEN-AND-NOW

ABC Library of Foreign Conspiracy, The Jesuits
http://www.scribd.com/doc/6175732/ABC-Libr...acy-The-Jesuits

Dealings with the Inquisition; or, Papal Rome, Her Priests, and Her Jesuits, with important disclosures
http://www.scribd.com/doc/7497526/Dealings...to-Achilli-1851

tlthe5th - December 1, 2008 10:29 PM (GMT)

Here's a book that is downloadable that shows the connection between the dominicans and the jesuits.

"Dealings with the Inquisition or Papal Rome Her Priests and Her Jesuits with important disclosures by Rev Giacinto Achilli 1851"

http://www.scribd.com/doc/7497526/Dealings...to-Achilli-1851

very interesting...

gneiss - February 10, 2009 06:20 AM (GMT)

Proof of Rome's Political Meddling in America (1927)

This is The Fellowship Forum's amazing book "Proof of Rome's Political Meddling in America" (1927) which presents evidence that the Roman Catholic Church in the United States was (and still is) actively working to "make America Catholic" and demolish its traditional Protestant faith.

It uses papal documents, a conference report from the National Catholic Welfare Council, a map of catholic institutions strategically located around Washington D.C. and documents from other church agencies to make its case of a Catholic conspiracy to takeover the United States.

Included are photographs, illustrations, and a pull-out organizational chart of the National Catholic Welfare Council. It asserts that the "central agency of this campaign" is located in Washington and is known as the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Some Americans have noticed that there is a significant number of Catholic institutions located right inside Washington DC. Among the most known is certainly Georgetown University where former US president Bill Clinton was schooled.

Proof of Rome's Political Meddling in America shows that Roman Catholic Church in the US is indeed deeply involved in politics with a view to making all Americans turn Catholic. Its claims are irrefutable mainly because they are based almost wholly from Roman Catholic sources, that the Roman Catholic church in the United States, in its effort to 'make America Catholic,' is in quest of temporal power, and that it is 'in politics' as a means to that end.

115 pages, some pictures. A must read for everyone.

DOWNLOAD:
PDF Format, 2.91 MB
http://www.megaupload.com/?d=YHWUKGXR

Outline of the District of Columbia, with black spaces showing the strategic location of important Roman Catholic Institutions with reference to their accessibility to the Capitol, the White House and the Government Departments. The heavy black space at the top is the site of important Roman Catholic institutions with reference to their accessibility to the Capitol, the White House and the Government Departments. The heavy black space at the top is the site of Georgetown University. That at the right is the site of the Catholic University of America and the Franciscan monastery. All the black marks not otherwise indicated are sites of important Roman Catholic activities, and their strategic location quickly strikes the observer, as they almost surround all of the important Government buildings.

One of the central buildings of Georgetown University, Catholic, maintained at Washington, D. C., which thousands of Protestant youths are encouraged to attend. It is of interest to note that one of the courses emphasized at this institution is one of training for

One of the central buildings of Georgetown University, Catholic, maintained at Washington, D. C., which thousands of Protestant youths are encouraged to attend. It is of interest to note that one of the courses emphasized at this institution is one of training for the diplomatic service of the United States. It can be safely assumed that youths trained at this school who enter the American diplomatic service will not be likely to be unfriendly to the world campaign or the pope as they may find it waged in the foreign capitals to which they are sent, supposedly to exclusively represent the interests of their Government.

Quintessenz - February 18, 2009 12:37 PM (GMT)

This is a bit older, but seems to be rare. It has lots of interesting pictures in it. I saw Tony Alamo making a reference to this document on his website.

Genocide in Croatia 1941-1945

http://www.scribd.com/doc/3198551/genocide-in-croatia

Published by: Serbian National Defense Council of Canada, Serbian National Defense Council of America

CommanderKeen - February 18, 2009 01:11 PM (GMT)

btw

http://web.ukonline.co.uk/pbrooke/p&t/Balk...tement/part%203

"In Croatia this was achieved through the close ties of the Catholic church with the Pavic's Independent State of Croatia whose minister of education, Mile Budak, stated in Gospic,

> QUOTE
>
> "A part of the Serbs we will destroy, another part we will expel, the others will be converted to Catholicism and turned into Croats. In this way, we will eradicate their traces and what will be left will be just a bad memory of them."

"

Heres also an interesting article from former Byzantine Blog,appeared last week, where Croatian Ex-Minister admits Croatia wanted and started the war in the 90s
http://de-construct.net/e-zine/?p=4869

this diplomat Peter Galbraith the article is refering to attended just like Clinton both at Oxford University, this RIIA CFR Round Table Group recruitng center and also at Jesuit Georgetown University.

So not only in WW2 but also in the 90s the key players still are Vatican/Jesuit agents. Nothing changed.

Cold - February 23, 2009 10:31 PM (GMT)

CATHOLICS IN THE WITNESS BOX

http://av1611reformation.com/catholics-in-the-witness-box/

Posted by: Nelson Turner in Uncategorized

A none copyrighted work compiled in 1936 with citations from church men, speakers, politicians, and others from both inside and outside the Catholic Church. An amazing compendium of quotes that can be printed out in 44 pages. Must read for those truly interested and concerned with the present state of things in the world!

Download Here

Quintessenz - February 25, 2009 03:30 PM (GMT)

Nino Lo Bello – The Vatican Empire

The Authoritative Report that Reveals the Vatican as a Nerve Center of High Finance and Penetrates the Secret of Papal Wealth

This is Nino Lo Bello's monumental book „The Vatican Empire - The Authoritative Report that Reveals the Vatican as a Nerve Center of High Finance and Penetrates the Secret of Papal Wealth" (1968) which clearly exposes the Vatican as one of the world's largest shareholders, with a stock portfolio that can be conservatively estimated in the billions of dollars. The extent of papal wealth has traditionally been cloaked in secrecy. Even within the Vatican's own walls there is no individual who has an overall view of its infinitely ramified financial operations. In The Vatican Empire, Nino Lo Bello, a former Rome correspondent for Business Week, presents the first comprehensive and authoritative report on the Vatican as a nerve center of high finance. The picture that emerges is one of awesome fiscal power. Bello describes in fascinating detail Vatican investments in real estate - one third of Rome is owned by the Holy See - electronics, plastics, airlines, and chemical and engineering firms. He also gives evidence that the Vatican is heavily involved in Italian banking and that it has huge deposits in foreign banks. Many of these are in Switzerland, since the Vatican financiers prefer numbered Swiss accounts where annonymity is maintained and where they can gain control of foreign corporations far from the public eye. Although written in the objective, non-sensational style of the newsman, this is a book that finally demonstrates the depth of the Vatican's commitment to the world of big business. 180 pages. A must read for everyone.

http://rapidshare.com/files/202405295/The_Vatican_Empire.zip

Excerpt:

QUOTE

In the course of his career, Nogara had become a specialist in gold. Thus for a considerable period after he took over the Special Administration, he engaged in the trading of gold bullion for gold coins and gold coins for gold bullion in deals that, without precise details, defy understanding of anything but the fact that most of them were profitable. His confidence in the precious metal virtually unshakable, the canny Nogara spent $26.8 million to buy gold from the United States at the official rate of $35 per fine troy ounce, plus 0.25 percent for handling charges. In later years, rumors cropped up that the Vatican had obtained this gold at a special price of $34 an ounce, but when the rumors were printed in—and given some credence by—a United Nations publication, the U.S. Treasury Department dismissed the matter once and for all in April 1953, by stating that the Vatican had made the purchase at the same price as anybody else. In fact, $5 million of the Vatican-acquired gold was sold back to the United States, leaving a net sale of $21.8 million. The Vatican gold, which is in the shape of ingots, is on deposit with the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank.

Cold - February 27, 2009 11:51 AM (GMT)

La Monarchie des Solipses (The Monarchy of the Solipsists)

(This book is in French. I know Phelps is having it translated into English. This is for those who speak French fluently.)

A satire against the Jesuits, ascribed by some to G.C. Scotti and by others to M. Inchofer, originally published in Latin at Venice in 1645 under the pseudonym Lucius Cornelius Europaeus.

LINK

Alexandra - May 13, 2009 05:17 PM (GMT)

Facts and Evidence, by Brian David Andersen

http://www.scribd.com/doc/4726548/Facts-and-Evidence

Cold - April 7, 2010 01:40 PM (GMT)

The History of the Popes: From the Foundation of the See of Rome to A.D. 1758

By Archibald Bower

(Right click, save as...)

Volume 1
http://www.archive.org/download/historyofp...pesfr01bowe.pdf

Volume 2
http://www.archive.org/download/historyofp...pesfr02bowe.pdf

Volume 3
http://www.archive.org/download/historyofp...pesfr03bowe.pdf

Cold - April 7, 2010 05:41 PM (GMT)

Finally found an illustrated edition, download!

The History of Protestantism
By James A. Wylie

(Right click, save as...)

Volume 1
http://www.archive.org/download/historyofp...otest01wyli.pdf

Volume 2
http://www.archive.org/download/historyofp...otest02wyli.pdf

Volume 3
http://www.archive.org/download/historyofp...otest03wyli.pdf

Cold - April 12, 2010 07:53 AM (GMT)

Vicars of Christ: The Dark Side of the Papacy
By Peter de Rosa

http://dl.s1.superhosting-cdn.p.uloz.to/Ps...&c=425678744&De

Mark - July 12, 2011 10:30 AM (GMT)

What happened to the ShatteringDenial library?

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: BEWARE of FIDEL CASTRO & HUGO CHAVEZ

Title: BEWARE of FIDEL CASTRO & HUGO CHAVEZ
Description: [Jesuit Controlled Opposition]

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:14 AM (GMT)

BEWARE of FIDEL CASTRO & HUGO CHAVEZ

"ITS KNOWN AS CONTROLLED OPPOSITION"

BY 2TUFF
AUGUST 25TH 2006
Original Article

 Temporal Hugo Chavez meets his Roman Catholic MASTER Pope Benedisct XVI
 Jesuit Fidel Castro meets the SMOM Grandmaster Andrew Willoughby Ninian Bertie

When you rule and enslave people and you know that a certain percentage of your herd will rebel and awaken. You do not let an individual come along who may guide these people to the truth and possibly then become a threat to yourself. You get in there first and plant agitators and people who give the illusion of opposition (Temporal Coadjutors). This is exactly how the Society of Jesus works and this is why they've been veiled so well for so long whilst disinformation was spread to divert the herds attention.

Above & below are some nice examples of how Roman Catholic 4th Vow Jesuit & 33rd Degree Freemason Fidel Castro and his buddy Roman Catholic Hugo Chavez are simply controlled opposition. Castro is a high end Jesuit himself where as Hugo chavez is a Temporal Coadjutor. Both work to create the illusion of opposition to American imperialism.

Remember on that for a start off its not America doing any crimes but its the corporation created in 1868 called the United States which is commiting the crimes. We could also argue that the purposely incorrect military patch U.S flag on right shoulders of Soldiers is enough to claim the U.S has no involvement in a war crime tribunal, remember flags are very important to this day. The real criminals come out of the Council on Foreign Relations who were the creators of the United Nations in order to hand over government power across the globe to the United Nations. United Nations operates covertly within the U.S via FINCEN known to many as the secret black helicopters etc. Who controls the Council on Foreign Relations? The all powerful Sovereign Military of Malta headed by the Queen of England's cousin, the 78th Grandmaster and Prince Cardinal Andrew Willoughby Ninian Bertie. Now remember on that the SMOM in the Americas is headed by the Archbishop of New York known as Cardinal Edward Egan and his Maltese Knights of the Round Table in New York. Egan is then controlled by the Jesuit Order out of Fordham and ultimately Georgetown University in Washington D.C. Now please go check out why Brussels is so important to the European Union by looking into Jesuit history and it will all become clear. The United States is nothing more than the `New Holy Roman Empire' thanks to the 14th Amendment. Once the Jesuit Order have used their bully boy army of the U.S they will then discard this corporation as used rubbish just like they did with Nazi Germany and Americans will suffer dearly. Notice how the United Nations will rule the U.S via 10 sections and no more 50 States. Now go and notice how the Jesuit Order have always ruled the U.S via 10 Provinces and each one having a Provincial who then report to a Jesuit assistant who then reports to the Superior `Black Pope' General at the pinacle of World control.

Like they say "All Roads Lead To ROME"

QUOTE

QUOTE

Mr Chavez, on a two-day trip to the UK, called for a socialist new world order and said nations were cowards for not standing up to the "American empire".

Now folks remember how I've exposed to you that Chavez is yet another Jesuit pawn just like his 4th Vow Jesuit and 33rd degree Mason friend Castro. They're both Roman Catholics subordinate to the Pope -2tuff

Chavez warns US over Iran policy

Sunday, 14 May 2006, 20:57 GMT 21:57 UK
http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/americas/4771229.stm

Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez has warned the US that any attack on Iran will have devastating consequences and send oil prices soaring.

Mr Chavez, on a two-day trip to the UK, called for a socialist new world order and said nations were cowards for not standing up to the "American empire".

The US has not ruled out military action against Iran over its nuclear programme but is pursuing diplomacy.

Hundreds of supporters gave Mr Chavez a rapturous welcome in north London.

Packed ballroom

The president told the meeting in Camden, hosted by Mayor of London Ken Livingstone, that a US military attack on Iran would lead to Tehran cutting off its oil supply.

"If the United States attacks Iran... oil could reach $100 (£52) a barrel or more," he said.

"Moreover, Iran has said it would attack Israel, and I know they have the wherewithal to do so.

"This would be a terrible escalation and I do not know where it would end and I do not know who would get out the first nuclear bomb or how many people would die. No-one would be safe from this madness."

Mr Chavez said the US "doesn't know what to do" in Iraq, which he called "the Vietnam of the 21st Century".

Jubilant supporters cheered him, many clad in Venezuela's red, blue and yellow and banging drums, while hundreds more were left outside the packed ballroom.

Mr Chavez said capitalism was a "destructive" system and that "socialism is the way forward".

Mr Chavez called unrestricted free trade "a trap by the world's most powerful so they can keep the weakest in slavery".

Britain and a number of other countries have criticised Mr Chavez's moves to exert greater control over his country's oil reserves - the world's fifth largest.

On Friday Prime Minister Tony Blair urged Venezuela to use its energy resources responsibly.

The president's trip has been described as a private one - he has made no request to see Mr Blair or any government officials.

On Monday Mr Chavez will have lunch with Mr Livingstone, and will deliver a lecture in the evening.

BBC Americas editor James Painter says Mr Chavez's strategy for this trip is similar to the one he used when visiting the US in September last year. He does not meet government officials but rather appeals over their heads to appear as a man of the people.

Our correspondent says Mr Chavez does not want a "European flank" opening that would support the critical comments made of his regime by the US.

QUOTE

I found this article from the Scottish Rite Journal (formerly The New Age Magazine) http://www.srmason-sj.org/web/journal-file...oct03/elias.htm
Quote: "During his visit to Cuba in March 2002, Ill. Akram R. Elias, 33°, visited with His Eminence Jose Siro Gonzales Bacallal, Catholic Bishop of Pinar de Rio in Cuba, and put a Masonic pin of the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia on the Bishop's shirt."
There are many Masonic lodges worldwide with the name Cuba. If this Catholic bishop is a Freemason then you can safely assume that the Archbishop of Havana which would explain why he doesn't care or complain that Professed Fourth Vow Jesuit Fidel Castro is a 33rd Degree Freemason.
Nicholas Rivera

QUOTE

Roman Catholic Hugo Chavez is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor as is Roman Catholic Fidel Castro in Cuba. Chavez is leading the anti-American agitation in South America due to the oppressive and murderous policies of the Order's CIA for the last fifty years. The CIA murder of Allende in 1972 and his being replaced with fascist Knight of Malta Pinochet---the protector of scores of ex-Nazis resident in Chile and whose secretary was Opus Dei---is one such example. Again, we American people are being blamed for the crimes of the Pope's CFR/CIA-controlled US government committed in our name.
-Eric Jon Phelps

QUOTE

The white pope is irrelevant since the Superior General took over Vatican control for the Society of Jesus. Remember how we're constantly being hoodwinked! I used to adore Hugo Chavez but since I've found hes Roman Catholic and obviously the friend of 4TH VOW JESUIT Castro (and 33rd degree Mason), not no more. Hes just another Jesuit pawn in the soup! -2tuff

TWO OTHER EXAMPLES OF CONTROLLED OPPOSITON

"ONE MORE OBVIOUS THAN THE OTHER"

Mainstream TV Temporal Coadjutors

 Michael Moore, probably eating an old Domino's Pizza when owned by SMOM creator.
 Alex Jones

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:14 AM (GMT)

HUGO CHAVEZ

Pure WORSHIP and SUBORDINANCE

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:16 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

http://www.cbsnews.com/stories/2006/10/02/...D8KG8PL80.shtml

Chavez Says He Has White House Informant

Venezuela leader Chavez says White House informant has warned him about plots against him
CARACAS, Venezuela, Oct. 2, 2006
By CHRISTOPHER TOOTHAKER Associated Press Writer

(AP) Venezuela President Hugo Chavez said Sunday he has received warnings from within the White House that the Bush administration is plotting to assassinate him or topple his left-leaning government.

Citing what he said were warnings from an alleged White House informant, Chavez told thousands of supporters at a campaign rally that President Bush has ordered him to be killed before he leaves office in 2008.

Bush "has said that before he goes, Hugo Chavez shouldn't be the president of Venezuela," Chavez told the crowd. "The president of the United States has said it, especially in recent days. What he doesn't know is that I have friends in the White House."

The Venezuelan leader has claimed before that the U.S. government is out to kill him _ allegations that U.S. officials deny.

The latest accusation came a day after he alleged that there had been a recent attempt to assassinate him and said those responsible had since fled to neighboring Colombia.

Chavez appeared to link the alleged plot to his main rival in upcoming presidential elections, Gov. Manuel Rosales of Zulia state, claiming that he is in constant danger from opponents seeking to get rid of him.

He said a sniper had waited with a long-range gun and planned to shoot him after he debarked a helicopter, he said. He did not elaborate further on the alleged plot.

Chavez vowed to win the Dec. 3 vote and continue governing this South American nation until 2021. "Fourteen more years, that's what's coming," Chavez said.

Venezuela's Constitution allows a president to be re-elected only once in immediate succession. If Chavez wins a second six-year term in December, he wouldn't be able to run again in 2012 _ without a legal change.

Chavez has floated the possibility of changing Venezuela's constitution to allow indefinite re-election.

link to original article: http://www.cbsnews.com/stories/2006/10/02/...D8KG8PL80.shtml

QUOTE

Dear Boris,

It makes sense to me.

You are understanding the Order's International Banking Community that finances the Order's Saudi based Oil Cartel and Military Industrial Complexes of the US, Russia and China. All the Papal Knights at the top work their deals under the advice of the Jesuits for the benefit of the Papacy while destroying the peoples of those nations via war and paper-created credit/debt.

You are thinking like a high-level Jesuit---and doing quite well. And this is one of the purposes of the email list so that you have the ability to ultimately agree or correct me on any given point---for the benefit of us all.

Sincerely in Faith,

Brother Eric

So what is happening there?

Their puppet Chavez is buying the Soviet equipment with his newley socialized oil money so that they can use it as an argument to provoke another fake cold war, because he got support from Russia and Iran?

Shouldn't he use those 3 billion to the benefit of his country if he wanted to do anything different then the US President he tells us all about how he hates him?

Oh - wait - no he wouldn't - why not earn them money trice first:

- Get money for oil from the US (the US borrows from the Federal Reserve / private banking)

- Give that private banking money to Russia (pay the military industry / owners private banking)

- Don't use it for the people (instead for that purpose borrow new money from the Venezuelan Central Bank [owners private banking])

This picture makes sense, doesn't it?

So Putin met Bush on his dad's ranch because Carlyle maybe brought money to his country?

And Bush/Carlyle might even make profits from the Russian sales to Venezuela?
http://www.globalsecurity.org/military/industry/carlyle.htm

At least Carlyle still is the US 9th biggest defence contractor, while also being active in Russia:

http://www.govexec.com/features/0806-15/0806-15s3s1.htm
http://www.thecarlylegroup.com/eng/fund/l5fundnews-2751.html

WbR,
Boris

My friends you must realise that Michael Moore's agent is Ari Emmanuel the brother of RAHM EMMANUEL who controls the North American MOSSAD.

-Craig Oxley

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:16 AM (GMT)

QUOTE (CRAIG-OXLEY @ Aug 25 2006, 04:03 PM)

> QUOTE
>
> Roman Catholic Hugo Chavez is a Jesuit Temporal Coadjutor as is Roman Catholic Fidel Castro in Cuba. Chavez is leading the anti-American agitation in South America due to the oppressive and murderous policies of the Order's CIA for the last fifty years. The CIA murder of Allende in 1972 and his being replaced with fascist Knight of Malta Pinochet---the protector of scores of ex-Nazis resident in Chile and whose secretary was Opus Dei---is one such example. Again, we American people are being blamed for the crimes of the Pope's CFR/CIA-controlled US government committed in our name.
> -Eric Jon Phelps

What they need to do is make him out to be the ultimate anti-U.S. hero!
To take over where Castro is leaving off.

April 11, 2002...
Chavez is overthrown by suspicious elite buisness elements in a [CIA] military coup.
BUT...! Chavez' soldiers are too loyal in the end and subvert the plot within 48 hours! They're simply too loyal to their beloved 'great defender of freedom and socialism'. Just shows how Chavez is a 'true man of the people' and after this whole show his power is now firmly solidified. And he has established himself as a great enemy of the 'evil U.S. Government' for many years to come now, kinda like Castro after the Bay of Pigs fiasco.

And to make sure this myth and controlled opposition is well-established, they document the whole thing with a camera crew for a widespread psy-ops making a great hero out of him.
The Revolution Will Not Be Televised [GOOGLE VIDEO]

Is this documentary a set-up plot as part of the built-up for Chavez as the new stronghold of Vatican-controlled opposition in Latin America?
Without a doubt, thats how it worked out. Coincidence?

Milking it! [GOOGLE VIDEO]

Then:

Now:

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:17 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE (CRAIG-OXLEY @ Jul 4 2007, 11:57 PM)
>
> Oh - wait - no he wouldn't - why not earn them money trice first:
>
> - Get money for oil from the US (the US borrows from the Federal Reserve / private banking)
>
> - Give that private banking money to Russia (pay the military industry / owners private banking)
>
> - Don't use it for the people (instead for that purpose borrow new money from the Venezuelan Central Bank [owners private banking])
>
> This picture makes sense, doesn't it?

As this was from Erics email list I will add the picture I did send around with it to accompany the possible money flow.

Like Eric already mentioned this is not the complete picture as there are more people and organisations above this structure.

WbR,
Boris

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:18 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Venezuela is controlled by Jesuit Provincial, Fr. Jesús Orbegoso, S.J commanded by the North Latin America Assistancy directly commanded by the Superior General Peter Hans Kolvenbach in Rome. Do not forget the next level down in control, being the Sovereign Military Order of Malta through Cardinal Edward Egan's power over the region of the Americas.

QUOTE

Covert 4th Vow Jesuit, Fidel Castro wearing his suit signifying his subordination to the system with the tie being his toe rope and controller. Notice the Venusian aircraft? Remind you of Islam? I wonder why!

QUOTE

Vatican No. 2 hopes to meet Cuba's Raul Castro

January 5, 2008
http://www.tehrantimes.com/Index_view.asp?code=160687

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) -- The most senior official in the Vatican after the Pope said he hopes to meet Cuba's acting president Raul Castro during a February visit to this island.

Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone, the Vatican secretary of state, said his trip was at least partly related to commemorations of the 10th anniversary of late Pope John Paul II's landmark trip to Cuba in 1998.

""I am preparing a trip to Cuba in the month of February. I hope to meet the brother of Fidel Castro, who now leads the country,"" Bertone told the prominent Italian Catholic magazine, Famiglia Cristiana.

His interview was released to media before publication in the January 6 edition.

Bertone did not say if he also hoped to speak with Fidel, who has not been seen in public since handing power to his brother Raul after undergoing surgery more than 17 months ago.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:19 AM (GMT)

Diplomatic Mishaps. Tower of Babylon Reigns Between Cuba and Rome

Sepe, Agnes and Sodano send the Vatican´s famous diplomacy into tilt. To Fidel Castro´s full advantage

by Sandro Magister

ROMA - Israeli Ambassador Yosef Neville Lamdan is not the only Vatican observer to judge recent church diplomacy as disorganized and confused (look at the article of May 6, 2003, on this website). Another emblematic case of confusion took place over Cuba.

Here´s how the weekly Italian news magazine "L´espresso" (No. 20, May 9-15, 2003) described it:

_____

Mario Agnes has run "L´Osservatore Romano," the pope´s newspaper, for almost 20 years. But in the last couple of weeks he´s risked losing his job over an incident centered in Cuba.

On March 8, "L´Osservatore" opened the floodgates on a series of articles on the island - seven full pages in four days - with three central characters: Fidel Castro, Cardinal Crescenzio Sepe and an abbess named Tekla Famiglietti. In a centerpiece photograph, the three appear in a joyous embrace against a background photo showing Castro and John Paul II embracing five years ago during the pontiff´s visit to the island.

Sepe and Sister Tekla are from the same Italian region as Agnes - Campania - and are lifelong acquaintances. But their closeness is more than geographical. If Agnes is today director of "L´Osservatore Romano," he owes it precisely to Sepe, now cardinal prefect of the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples, but who at the time of the appointment was the director of the information office of the Vatican´s secretariat of state.

So, what did the cardinal go to Cuba to do? To inaugurate in Havana a Brigittine convent that was given by Castro to Sister Tekla, who is the Brigittine´s worldwide abbess. Agnes sent his top journalist, Giampaolo Mattei, whose dispatches told of a growing affection between the nun, the cardinal and the bearded dictator: the nun and Fidel "walking hand-in-hand," the former giving the latter the "Saint Brigitte" award; and the cardinal telling Castro of his and the pope's gratitude for "the generous opening and fraternal aid."

But at the inauguration ceremony, there was one marked absence: the archbishop of Havana, Cardinal Jaime Lucas Ortega y Alamino. The cardinal had reasons for not being there. He knew that Castro, even while the Cuban leader was charming his guests from Rome and broadcasting their mutual embraces, had handcuffs ready for about 80 opposition figures, mostly Catholics, whom he had arrested a few days later and in April had condemned to a total of more than 1,500 years in prison.

And the Vatican had been informed of it, but did nothing to put the brakes on Sepe, Agnes or Sister Tekla: That was enough to infuriate Cardinal Ortega and the other Cuban bishops. First, Ortega telephoned in protest to Cardinal Angelo Sodano, Vatican secretary of state. Then he flew to Rome. He saw the pope March 21. He also made a beeline to Cardinal Camillo Ruini to tell him that the aid the Italian bishops´ conference gave to Cuba was being played with by the regime.

Cardinal Sodano chastened Agnes and hinted at the loss of his confidence. But to no effect. When Castro´s roundup of opposition figures was reported publicly, "L ´Osservatore" noted it in skinny little columns on inside pages. It wasn´t until April 27 that the paper put on the front page a two-week-old papal appeal that had been secret until then.

And Sepe? He used the pope to defend himself, saying April 29 through his spokesman Luca De Mata: "We hoped that ´El Máximo´ would have had the courage to open Cuba to democracy, but we were wrong." As if to say that John Paul II made the first mistake, thus absolving all who followed him.

The skies opened. Sodano got angry again and, to contradict Sepe, stated April 31 that neither he nor the pope "have at all repented from placing trust in Castro" and, in fact, continued to hope that "he leads his people towards new democratic goals."

And so, coming full circle, the secretary of state ended up by siding with "L´Osservatore Romano." On the same thing for which he had rebuked it.

_____

To find out more

Here´s the Vatican link to the pope´s appeal to Fidel Castro, which was written April 13 but made public by the Vatican April 26:

> Letter of Cardinal Angelo Sodano to the president of Cuba

_____

Here´s the complete text of Luca De Mata´s April 29 statement (De Mata is director of "Fides," the news agency of the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples, headed by Cardinal Crescenzio Sepe):

CUBA. THE FIST OF ´EL MÁXIMO´

VATICAN CITY - We have to say that we hoped for change, that we hoped that El Máximo would have had the courage to open Cuba to democracy... We drew our hope from some of his openings, some of his acts, welcoming the Holy Father, authorization for the building of a new convent for the Brigittine sisters.

We hoped, even if the reports reaching us did not lend to hope. We hoped and we were wrong, holding our breath for something to happen. In this way perhaps we gave the regime the impression that its leader was covered by our silence. But we weren´t covering him; it was only charity, it was giving him a chance even to begin moving toward the rediscovery of his dignity.

But Fidel is using the fist of his salute against those demanding justice for the people, for the most elementary expression of democracy such as dissent.

The closed fist of Fidel, full of the flies of rhetorical populism whose buzzing filled the gulags with cadavers, continues to strike defenseless people.

_____

Here are Cardinal Angelo Sodano´s April 30 remarks that were carried the following day by the Italian daily "Corriere della Sera":

SODANO: "THE POPE HOPES THAT CASTRO WILL BE ABLE TO LEAD THE PEOPLE TOWARD NEW DEMOCRATIC GOALS"

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy - The pope "has not at all repented from placing trust in Fidel Castro" and the Vatican will continue to "dialogue" with Cuba, despite its "delusion" following the executions and recent renewal of repression, said Cardinal Angelo Sodano, secretary of state.

Asked if the pope had repented placing trust in Fidel after Castro´s conviction of dissidents, the cardinal replied: "No! It is necessary in life to give everyone golden bridges to enable them to get out of the worlds in which they are imprisoned."

The Holy See is still convinced that a Cuban transition can take place that does not lose what good came from the Castro revolution: "Now the great hope the pope nourishes - and I personally nourish - is that Fidel Castro will be able to lead his people toward new democratic goals, with respect for the advances that have been made in recent decades."

The reports of the convictions and the three executions "were certainly a delusion for the pope and for many free people in the world" and "afterward the Holy Father expressed his own surprise and distress, and asked that the imprisoned be shown at least some gesture of clemency."

The Vatican will continue to push Castro toward democracy: "We - through the excellent nuncio we have in Cuba, Archbishop Robles, and through the bishops, especially Cardinal Ortega, archbishop of Havana - will continue this dialogue. The dialogue will never be broken, because in every person there is something on which conversation can be founded."

The cardinal explained that the John Paul II is conducting his dialogue with Cuba using the same "method" and "direction" that Paul VI used in dealing "with the heads of Eastern Europe, even when it seemed to be a dialogue without hope."

_____

See this link for previous articles on Cuba:

> Cuba. Fidel Castro Increasingly Fearful of Catholics (11.4.2003)

> A Regime Change for Havana, Too. The Peaceful Way of the Cuban Church (10.3.2003)

> Gadhafi, Castro, Champions of Liberty: Rewarded by the U.N., Rejected by a Cardinal (16.1.2003)

> Fidel Castro proclama il dogma dell´intoccabilità (13.6.2002)

> Cuba. Un referendum per la democrazia. Su questi cinque punti (12.6.2002)

> Solidarnosc in salsa cubana (17.5.2002)

> Don Sturzo sbarca a Cuba (19.2.2002)

_____

For more on Cardinal Crescenzio Sepe:

> Carriere di cardinali. Martini lascia, avanza Sepe (11.9.2002)

_____

Go to the home page of > www.chiesa.espressonline.it/english/, to access the latest 30 articles and links to other resources.

For previous articles click here: > Search

Sandro Magister´s e-mail address is s.magister@espressoedit.it

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:21 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Arctic Editor's Note: If you think both Bush and Hugo Chavez of Venezuela aren't on the same team, think again. Chavez has kissed the ring of the Pope on visits to the Vatican and one of Chavez's better-known defenders in Venezuela is a Jesuit, Fr. Jesús Gazo. Chavez, says Fr. Gazo, has "a very strong theological formation."

QUOTE

Former President Jimmy Carter in Havana, Cuba, with communist dictator Fidel Castro. Castro gives a sign showing he is a member of the Odd Fellows, a Masonic affliated secret order popular in Cuba. Meanwhile, Carter presents the Dueguard of the Fellow Craft (2°).
(Photo: USA Today newspaper, May 16, 2002, p. 11A)

QUOTE

Sounds all very Sovereign Military Order of Malta of him doesn't it. Remember folks the price of oil just before THEIR sept 11 2001 was only around $21-23 now it's a 100! Ridiculous. -Craig

Venezuela's Chavez calls $100 fair price for oil

Fri Feb 22, 2008 4:12pm EST Email | Print | Share| Reprints | Single Page| http://www.reuters.com/article/hotStocksNe...261380920080222

CARACAS (Reuters) - Oil prices at $100 a barrel are fair and Venezuela will do all it can within OPEC to keep prices high, President Hugo Chavez said on Friday.

Chavez said he expected crude to stay at its present levels in the medium term.

"This is not a situation that is a peak that then falls," he said in a televised speech. "We are sure of this and will do everything we can in OPEC to keep supporting the price of our oil."

U.S. light crude for April delivery was trading just below $99 on Friday, after a record rally over the last two weeks supported by an escalating legal battle between Venezuela and U.S. oil giant Exxon Mobil (XOM.N: Quote, Profile, Research) over nationalized assets.

Venezuela, the fourth-largest exporter of oil to the United States, has been a consistent OPEC price hawk.

(Reporting by Brian Ellsworth; Editing by David Gregorio)

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:21 AM (GMT)

Francisco Javier Arias Cárdenas,born on November 20, 1950 is a Venezuelan politician and career military officer. He is currently Venezuelan Ambassador to the United Nations.

here shown with Hugo Chavez

QUOTE

He graduated from the Venezuelan Academy of Military Sciences in Caracas, the Universidad de Los Andes in Mérida, and the Pontifical Xavierian University in Bogotá, Colombia.

Together with Hugo Chávez, Arias led a coup attempt against the government of Carlos Andrés Pérez on February 4, 1992. Arias was in charge of the battalion that took over the city of Maracaibo. Despite the success of Arias' battalion, the coup failed when Chávez surrendered to the government. Arias was detained and imprisoned until 1994, when he was pardoned by Rafael Caldera.

source wiki

The Pontificia Universidad Javeriana is a Jesuit university in Bogotá, founded in 1623 and later reestablished in 1930.

Rafael Caldera.
user posted image
Orphaned at a young age and adopted into a wealthy Roman Catholic family,

> QUOTE
>
> Caldera studied elementary school in San Felipe 1921 - 1922, enters at San Ignacio school of the Society of Jesus in Caracas 1923 - 1925, in 1926 returns to Yaracuy studying at Padre Delgado school, and secondary education again in Caracas (San Ignacio school) 1927 - 1931, made his superior studies in this city, at the Central University of Venezuela (UCV) 1931 - 1938, obtaining a doctorate in the Faculty of Right and Political Sciences, later was professor of sociology and law in several universities including the UCV, was a student leader, which took him to the political world.

pardoned -fellow Jesuit educated- Francisco Arias after the latter had been held safely and accounted for in prison.

This sounds very jesuitical much like when Castro was arrested upon landing in Cuba, they protect their asset until the coast is clear before backing them to power.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:22 AM (GMT)

HERES NEW WORLD ORDER OPPOSAME CHAVEZ

AND HIS SNEAKY BUNKUM!

> QUOTE
>
> Chavez: $100 a barrel oil just right
>
> Wed, 26 Mar 2008 16:11:09
> http://www.presstv.com/detail.aspx?id=4902...ionid=351020704
>
> Venezuelan President, Hugo Chavez, has reiterated that the upward spiral of oil prices to about $100 per barrel was "just right."
>
> Chavez noted that oil is a nonrenewable resource and should be priced accordingly.
>
> The Venezuelan president's remarks followed his decision to increase taxes on foreign and domestic petroleum companies, saying their soaring profits were not "a product of any extraordinary effort."
>
> According to the Oil and Gas Journal (OGJ), Venezuela had 77.2 gigabarrels of proven conventional oil reserves as of 2007. The country has South America's largest oil reserves.

> QUOTE

Chavez blames U.S. invasion of Iraq for soaring oil prices

www.chinaview.cn 2008-03-28 10:09:51 Print
http://news.xinhuanet.com/english/2008-03/...ent_7873769.htm

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 27 (Xinhua) -- Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez said on Thursday that the U.S. invasion of Iraq is partly to blame for rising oil prices.

Oil producing countries are not to be held responsible for the surge in oil prices, but the United States is "partially to blame" for it, Chavez told a press conference during a visit to Recife in northeastern Brazil.

During this visit, Chavez met his Brazilian counterpart Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva and the two countries' state-owned oil and gas companies, Petrobras and PDVSA, signed a cooperation agreement.

Chavez said as a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), Venezuela favors the fixing-price system that has worked well for three years, but the U.S. invasion of Iraq has brought instability to the market.

Venezuela is not interested in oil price hikes, and on the contrary, it hopes to see prices stabilize and that the U.S. economic crisis does not worsen.

"May they leave that situation quickly, but they will obviously have to revise their economic policies, which have affected the whole world so much," he said.

Chavez also pointed out that Venezuela and Brazil have not been harmed by the financial crisis, thanks to the diversification of their exports.

The two countries should seek more common ground and further promote their ties, the Venezuelan president added.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:22 AM (GMT)

WHILST YOUR LED TO BELIEVE THEIR OPPOSITES

YES FOLKS THERE YOU HAVE IT

HUGO CHAVEZ

THE STOOGE OF SMOM AMERICAS NAVIGATOR

ARCHBISHOP OF NY, CARDINAL EDWARD EGAN

WHOS THAT WITH CHAVEZ?

OH ITS HIS OTHER SUPERIOR

THE SMOM MIDDLE EAST NAVIGATOR

KING DON JUAN CARLOS OF SPAIN

WHO DOES HE DEAL WITH?

ENOUGH SAID!

REMEMBER EVEN DON JUAN CARLOS OF SPAIN IS MERELY A STOOGE HIMSELF OF THE ANTI-CHRISTOS

PAPACY SYSTEM OF ROME. HE'S SUBORDINATE TO

GRANDMASTER MATTHEW FESTING

ITS ALL KNOWN AS THE SYSTEM OF THE

DIVINE DRAGON OF LUCIFER

BASED IN SATURNIA

QUOTE

[dohtml]<img src="http://i247.photobucket.com/albums/gg145/2tuff2006/SMOMRUSSIAJUN2008.jpg" border="0" alt="THE POWERFUL SMOM NAVIGATOR OF THE MIDDLE EAST OVER IN RUSSIA JUST AFTER SMOM PAPAL KNIGHT KISSINGER. WHATS GOING DOWN? IRAN COMING?">[/dohtml]

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:23 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Dear Craig,

Please point out that the third man in that picture with Chavez and Carlos is none other than the President of the Board of Directors of Rupert Murdoch's NEWS CORPERATION, Jose' Maria Aznar who is a Roman catholic Fascist, Graduate of Georgetown's Edmund Walsh school for foreign service and is the former Prime Minister of Spain.

-Thomas

http://www.spirituallysmart.com/pics.htm

Rupert Murdoch

QUOTE

04/03/08 Murdoch defends News Corp The Georgetown Voice - Washington,DC,USA by John Cooke Rupert Murdoch's News Corporation is just like the Jesuits, he told a mostly-full Gaston Hall yesterday, "except we don't insist on vows of ...

(Chairman & Chief Executive Officer of News Corporation) Papal Knight of St. Gregory. Rupert Murdoch was born Catholic. His mother's maiden name was

"Greene" In 1998 Rupert was made a Knight of the Order of St. Gregory the great. Another Knight of the Order of St Gregory the Great was John J Raskob who was married to another "Greene" (Helena).

Greene is not of Jewish origin. You can see the roots of the Greene name here.

Later some Jews took the name "Green (e)" but it's highly unlikely and is not proven that Rupert's mother was Jewish or that Raskob's wife was Jewish.

Interesting point, The powerful and controversial Roman Catholic, José María Aznar is President of the Board of Directors of Rupert Murdoch's News Corporation

Re: NewsCorp

Dear friends,

http://www.newscorp.com/corp_gov/bod.html
Here's good tidbit of information. Viet Dihn, main architect of the U.S. Patriot Act is also on the board of directors of the powerful News Corporation owned by Rupert Murdoch.

Viet Dinh Professor of Law Georgetown University

And the powerful Roman catholic, Fascist, former president of Spain, and personal friend of King Juan Carlos of Spain, José María Aznar is current President (of the board of directors). He is the one Hugo Chavez called a Fascist and King Juan Carlos told Hugo to "shut up".

To the left Chavez calls Aznar a "Fascist" and above you see they are all really allies.

(Mr. Aznar has been a Distinguished Scholar at the Edmund A. Walsh School of Georgetown University since 2004 ~Link

Aznar in 1999 had urged President Clinton to bomb Serbian radio and television
Aznar's government, along with the Bush administration, openly backed the April 2002 military coup against Chavez (Which probably had several psychological functions on the nations involved because Hugo Chavez is one of them as far as I know. See pics on this page.)
Aznar actively participated in the “illegal” and brutal invasion of Iraq, on the basis of false assertions about weapons of mass destruction.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:24 AM (GMT)

QUOTE

Issuance of ID cards funded by Venezuela investigated in Bolivia http://english.eluniversal.com/2008/07/09/...9A1782359.shtml

Bolivia's National Electoral Court (CNE) requested the Attorney General Office to investigate alleged irregularities in the issuance of free ID cards, a program supported by the Venezuelan government.

The court reported in a communiqué that submitted to the prosecutor "the claims and backup documents" provided by opposition deputy Ninoska Lazarte, the principal petitioner.

Lazarte told AP that since the program started in 2006, "to get the card has been fairly easy." The program is intended to provide indigenous peoples and poor peasants with ID cards.

"There are people holding several ID cards; there are cloned numbers and other irregularities that have contaminated the electoral roll," said Lazarte.

The Venezuelan government donated an information technology system and cash to finance the program.

QUOTE

Chavez offers to hug Spain's king

Monday, 21 July 2008 02:25 UK
http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/americas/7516566.stm

Venezuelan leader Hugo Chavez has offered a hug to King Juan Carlos of Spain - who famously told him to "shut up" during a row last year.

The left-wing president, who will visit Spain later this week, said he had already "turned the page" on the spat.

"I'd like to give the king a hug, but you know, Juan Carlos, that I am not going to shut up," Mr Chavez said.

The incident made global headlines last November - inspiring jokes, songs and even mobile phone ringtones.

The king was provoked after Mr Chavez had called former Spanish Prime Minister Jose Maria Aznar a "fascist" at the Ibero-American summit in Chile.

Mr Chavez went on to interrupt a speech by Spanish Prime Minister Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero, prompting the king to shout: "Why don't you shut up?"

But the Venezuelan leader - famous for his lengthy speeches - referred to King Juan Carlos as an "old friend" during his weekly TV address.

He said the king had invited him to his summer house on the island of Mallorca on 25 July.

QUOTE

How very New World Order of him, Sidney & Beatrix Webb would be proud. -Craig

Chavez Says He Will Speed Socialism After November Election

By Steven Bodzin
http://www.bloomberg.com/apps/news?pid=206...r=latin_america

Aug. 3 (Bloomberg) -- Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez said he will ``accelerate the socialist revolution'' after his party's candidates win regional elections Nov. 23.

Some of his ideas, which he calls ``21st century socialism,'' were rejected in a referendum last December. That was because conditions weren't yet ``ripe,'' as they will be later this year, Chavez said late yesterday in a televised address.

``Nov. 23 will kick off the new period of the Bolivarian revolution,'' Chavez said at the campaign event for his United Socialist Party of Venezuela. ``Transition to socialism in a much more precise, planned, accelerated, exact, scientific manner.''

To contact the reporter on this story: Steven Bodzin in Caracas at sbodzin@bloomberg.net.

Last Updated: August 3, 2008 12:54 EDT

QUOTE

The South American Union and Hugo Chavez showing his true stripes

May 25, 2008
by Stefan Fobes
http://warofillusions.wordpress.com/2008/0...s-true-stripes/

Many have said over the years that Hugo Chavez is an Illuminati puppet, citng his capture during the Venezuela coup back in 2002 and his still being here with us among the living, but have not really gone into or been able to go with something of substance, really because he hasn't done anything blatantly NWO-like. Now, his real function has come into view.

Novinite.com reports that twelve South American nations have come together to form Unasur, a regional union. They are: Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Guyana, Paraguay, Peru, Suriname, Uruguay and Venezuela. They even plan to have their own president and elections. Just another step to making a world government with the continents as superstates controlled by it. David Rockefeller, Chase Manhattan Bankster, says in his book Memoirs on p. 405:

For more than a century, ideological extremists at either end of the political spectrum have seized upon well-publicized incidents such as my encounter with Castro to attack the Rockefeller family for the inordinate influence they claim we wield over American political and economic institutions. Some even believe we are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as 'internationalists' and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure - one world, if you will. If that is the charge, I stand guilty, and I am proud of it.

Back to Chavez. During the 2002 Venezuelan military coup, Hugo Chavez said that when he was captured and taken by the military high command to the Venezuelan island of Orchila, he saw a private plane with US markings on it ready to take him away to exile. Now I won't take just his word for it, but given the fact that those carrying out the coup said that they did it because they blamed him for the killing of 11 anti-government demonstrators, I think that there might be something to this statement. What is possibility turns into certainty after eyeing this New York Times piece:

Senior members of the Bush administration met several times in recent months with leaders of a coalition that ousted the Venezuelan president, Hugo Chávez, for two days last weekend, and agreed with them that he should be removed from office, administration officials said today.

Of course the government spun it, saying that the opposition leaders came to them and the government agreed with them that he should be removed from office. Well, if the Venezuelan military guys were doing it on their on dime and time, why would they need to go to the US for anything?

Still, critics say, there were several signs that the administration was too quick to rally around the businessman Pedro Carmona Estanga as Mr. Chávez's successor.

One Democratic foreign policy aide complained that the administration, in phone calls to Congress on Friday, reported that Mr. Chávez had resigned, even though officials now concede that they had no evidence of that.

And on Saturday, the administration supported an O.A.S. resolution condemning "the alteration of constitutional order in Venezuela" only after learning that Mr. Chávez had regained control, Latin American diplomats said.

How would they know that Chavez resigned when he hadn't? With past circumstances similar to this, such as running the Pinochet and other military coups across the world, why should we believe that the same was not the case here?

Before the coup, Chavez had brought the country's inflation rate down from 40-12%, an awesome feat for any nation, and upped primary school enrollment by 1 million.

Maybe the mass protest that got Chavez back in was instigated by the Illuminati, maybe not, but whatever the case, he is in now. The Illuminati are masters of deception and long-term planning. Staged incidents, fake opposition, and good cop/bad cop scenarios are their bread and butter. Another favorite of theirs is the two steps forward, one step back technique. They knew that a superstate of the Americas, both North and South America was way too big a job, so they used him to kill the Free Trade Area of the Americas, wait things out a couple of years, and then roll this out. What they have done here is use him, under a sort of neo-socialist track, to get the people on his side. The Venezuelan people know from hard experience that the European and US powers wish to control and exploit them, and so the anti evil US empire banner is used in combination with this to build strong rapport with him and thus keep him, or someone else with the same rhetoric, in power until the final world government trap can be sprung. Out of the BBC:

Prior to the Brasilia summit, Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez described the "empire" of the United States as Unasur's "number one enemy".

The Brazilian president boasted that this showed that South America was "becoming a global player". You wish, bud. You wish.

But…perhaps Hugo Chavez is just a guy who is just looking out for his fellow Venezuelans, and just sees this as a way to counter out of control US imperialism. Ok. However, It is admitted by the Freemasons themselves that many US presidents, bankers, media barons, businessman, and other famous people have held high places in their ranks. Secret handshakes and signs too, they also admit they have. Here's one of them, displayed on a proud "e-Mason" site.

Seinfeld star Michael Richards, and 33rd degree Freemason.

And compare to this photo of Chavez, dressed in the much beloved ritual Illuminati color red. This one would fit so well in Texe Marrs' Codex Magica. Knowing that these secret society initiates have these handsigns, and that they often can be found in positions of leadership and influence, it is impossible to a fully functional logical mind to just dismiss this straight off. Have you ever seen anyone you know, other than gang members, (bigger gangs such as the Crips and Bloods do have intelligence agency liasons and connections by the way) put their hands in anything resembling these positions?

Is he or isn't he? Is he really saying, I love your nice hair? You decide

QUOTE

Ken Livingstone is new transport adviser for Hugo Chávez

TimesAugust 29, 2008
http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/poli...icle4629644.ece
Fiona Hamilton, London Correspondent

Ken Livingstone was back in the political spotlight yesterday, igniting controversy by deciding to act as an adviser to President Chávez of Venezuela.

The move will be seen as his latest attempt to undermine Boris Johnson, who had cancelled a deal with Venezuela reached by Mr Livingstone when he was Mayor of London.

In a visit to Caracas, Mr Livingstone announced that he would be a consultant on the capital's policing, transport and other issues. As Mayor, Mr Livingstone brokered a deal under which the Greater London Authority and Transport for London provided advice to Venezuela in exchange for cheap fuel to help with bus subsidies.

Mr Livingstone said yesterday that he was determined to keep his end of the agreement, which Mr Johnson cancelled at a cost of £7 million.

He said that his association with Mr Chávez, whom he describes as a friend, was not controversial "unless you believe American propaganda". He said: "It's a democratic regime with a better respect for human rights than ours."

A spokesman for Mr Johnson said that the mayor did not want to be on the payroll of Mr Chávez and did not believe that a poor South American country should be subsidising London.

craig-oxley - September 29, 2008 01:35 AM (GMT)

Take note how Cuba and Venezuela are both controlled by Fr' Marcos Recolons.

craig-oxley - October 6, 2008 05:23 PM (GMT)

The Jesuits and Rome will be proud. Their Cliveden Set SOCIALIST clique will be happy. Oh how Sidney Webb would be proud. -Craig

Fidel Castro: Cuba will remain socialist

Mon, 06 Oct 2008 14:39:06 GMT
http://www.presstv.com/detail.aspx?id=7143...ionid=351020702

Former Cuban leader Fidel Castro says the Caribbean Island will remain socialist amid calls by the West to ratchet up its reform process.

Fidel blasted the West on Sunday for the ongoing world financial crisis.

"We are not a developed capitalist country in crisis, whose leaders are going crazy today looking for solutions amid depression, inflation, the lack of markets and unemployment; we are and should remain socialists," the 82-year-old former president said in a published commentary, EFE news agency reported on Monday.

"The production and distribution of food and construction materials, I reiterate, have an absolute priority at this time," Castro said, referring to the recent damage that the island sustained from two hurricanes.

Recent comments by some Western experts suggest that Cuba is going to suffer further from the global financial crisis following two devastating hurricanes that left thousands of people homeless and inflicted a minimum of $5 billion on the Island, according to the government statistics. This, expert said, would speed up the pace of reforms in the country.

"Plans to strengthen the economy suffered a serious setback (from the storms), but the situation may force the government to open up further to individual initiative and foreign investment," a Cuban economist said on condition of anonymity.

Promising reforms, Fidel's younger brother, Raul, officially took over the island's leadership in February.

Raul instituted several early reforms, such as freeing up the sale of computers and cell phones, but the promise of change was swiftly replaced by austerity measures as the rising costs of fuel and food imports depleted foreign reserves.

Now, with many people living in roofless homes, Raul Castro may no longer have the luxury of time to implement change. "This is a before and after situation that will impact everyone and policy," said another Cuban economist.

craig-oxley - January 27, 2009 02:00 AM (GMT)

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

The daughter of the new CIA director

[dohtml] [/dohtml]

Linda Panetta the daughter of Leon Panetta, who was recently named by Barack Obama to be the new CIA director. Linda is a supporter of all the anti-American regimes in this Hemisphere. Here she is with Hugo Chavez and Daniel Ortega, two sworn enemies of the United States.

She is a radical anti-American activist who wants to close the School of the Americas, considers that American soldiers are criminals and is against any aid to the government of Colombia, our main ally in the region.

I wonder if any of her activities will come up during her father's confirmation hearings.
[dohtml] [/dohtml]
See some of her websites:

http://www.soawne.org/

http://www.soaw.org/presente/index.php?opt...id=26&Itemid=56
[dohtml]
[/dohtml]

mvltiversal - January 28, 2009 01:55 PM (GMT)

Hi Craig,
Note that or Wikipedia and Linda's colleagues are wrong or you are wrong Craig...

Quote from Wikipedia:

QUOTE

"Panetta married Sylvia Marie Varni,[20] who administered his home district offices during his terms in Congress.

Currently, he lives on his family's twelve acre (49,000 m²) walnut farm in Carmel Valley, California with his wife. They have three grown sons: Christopher, Carmelo, and James, and five grandchildren[21].

Leon Panetta in Wikipedia "

(Big farm has the man...)

Quote from ¡Presente!:

QUOTE

The "Panetta Controversy"
written by The "Panetta Controversy", January 26, 2009
Completely embarrassing itself, the right-wing blogsphere pandered in January 2009 the false information that Linda Panetta is the daughter of Leon Panetta, the newly appointed head of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

As the made-up story started spreading, other right-wing blogs saw themselves forced to print retractions to avert the increasing discreditation of right-wing "journalism" on the internet:

e.g. "Accuracy in Media" writes about their fellow bloggers: "In a frantic search for the obscure and hidden left-wing connections of members of the new Obama Administration, some leading conservative blogs and websites have made an embarrassing error by claiming without evidence that Leon Panetta, the former Clinton chief of staff and incoming CIA director, has a radical daughter named Linda who associates with Hugo Chavez and other Latin American revolutionaries."
Panetta Controversy "

Just for a minimal research...

Is Wikipedia a disinfo-platform?

craig-oxley - March 6, 2009 12:14 AM (GMT)

Dear Mr. xxxxxx,

Thank you for contacting me.

Your email brought tears to my eyes.

I will send you a cd-ebook of Vatican Assassins III if you will share the info with your Cuban brethren in South Florida. Until then I will tell you this:

Fidel Castro was trained by Jesuits for seven years. His Jesuit advisor and right hand was Jesuit Father Armando Llorente. Castro was groomed in New York City as I have a picture of him in Central Park before the revolution in a nice, three-piece suit. And why was he in New York City? He was there to take his orders in person from the Archbishop of New York, Francis Cardinal Spellman, later the mastermind behind the JFK assassination.

At this time in 1959 just prior to Castro being given Cuba, it had been decided that Cuba must be isolated from the American Empire, the Empire under the command of the Archbishop of New York and directed by the Jesuits at Fordham and Georgetown Universities. (Jesuit Georgetown University is the capital bringing its national and foreign policies into the White House West Wing. The Capitol buliding is not the capital.) Cuba was and is intended to be a staging base for the coming Sino-Soviet-Moslem invasion of America. To make this possible, the pope's international press must be given a reason to be shut out of Cuba via the justification of "communism." Remember, communism was perfected by the Jesuits from 1609-1759 on their 59 communist reductions in Paraguay. Therefore, the Black Pope Pedro Arrupe gave the order to foment the Cuban revolution in 1959 using his CFR-controlled Press to paint Batista as a horrible, brutal tyrant thus enabling certain press lords like Ed Sullivan, a New York Roman Catholic Knight of Columbus, to back Castro. CIA director Allen Dulles, a Knight of Malta and Nazi-protector, backed Castro calling him "the Abraham Lincoln of Cuba" creating more sympathy in the hearts of the deceived and ignorant American people for "the liberator, Fidel Castro." The CIA gave Castro guns and millions of dollars during and after the revolution knowing full well that he was a tool of the Jesuits---the very Jesuits who ruled the CIA via Knight of Malta Allen Dulles and later Knight of Malta John McCone who oversaw JFK's assassination in 1963. The revolution would never have succeeded had not the Jesuit-ruled CFR-controlled US government backed Castro in every way possible---just as it had backed Jesuit-trained Joseph Stalin during Lend-Lease and after the world war giving the Soviets all of America's high technology, be it aircraft or naval or electronic, while also giving the KGB supremacy over the CIA.

During the revolution, Castro's headquarters was Havana's Hilton Hotel, remembering that Knight of Malta Barron Hilton owned that hotel. Pope Paul VI, with his Black Pope Pedro Arrupe, was the power behind Castro for which reason we understand why Castro was openly backed by the CIA and openly opposed by the KGB before the revolution. (The USSR had been controlled by the Black Pope since the success of the Bolshevik Revolution in 1920, aided by President Warren Harding for the tune of $60 million worth of food and other supplies. Rome pretended to oppose Soviet Communism so as to deceive the anti-communist West while the intelligence agencies "on both sides" secretly worked together.) After the revolution, the KGB openly backed Castro while the CIA secretly backed him, yet both the CIA and KGB worked together during the entire Cold War, another hoax put upon the peoples of the West. To FURTHER ENTRENCH CASTRO IN POWER BY ELIMINATING TRUE CUBAN NATIONALISTIC PATRIOTS, the Bay of Pigs invasion was planned for 1961. President Eisenhower, Cardinal Spellman's Knight of Malta and Crusader during WWII, had planned the FAILURE OF THE INVASION with his brother Knight of Malta Allen Dulles of the CIA.

At the time the invasion was to begin, President Kennedy gave his consent and permission for the operation to proceed the day before the attack. JFK was fully behind the plan to eliminate Jesuit and Freemason Fidel Castro because JFK refused to take his orders from the pope of Rome as he had declared at a meeting of Protestant and Baptist ministers in Houston, Texas, late in 1960. Thus, JFK did not cancel the air support. According to Colonel L. Fletcher Prouty in his book JFK, it was Skull and Bonesman McGeorge Bundy, JFK's National Security Advisor, who canceled that air cover. Bundy even admitted it seventeen years later, as Prouty proves in his book. Kennedy was furious! He fired CIA Director Allen Dulles and CIA Deputy Director Charles Cabell as well as CIA Director for Plans Richard Bissell. JFK made plans for another invasion of Cuba: the date; December 1, 1963. This fact can be verified in the book Ultimate Sacrifice authored by Lamar Waldron and Thom Hartman. To prevent that invasion, he was killed nine days before on November 22, 1963.

The assassination of Kennedy sealed Cuba's fate. No longer would the pope's CIA pretend to attempt to overthrow Castro. With his most dangerous enemies eliminated thanks to Bonesman Bundy and the KOMs Dulles'/McCone's CIA, Castro could now proceed to kill every Cuban patriot and reduce that once prosperous and beautiful island to poverty, crime and tyranny. The CFR-controlled US government even gave Castro $60 million in food and medical supplies "in exchange" for Cubans captured and tortured after the failed invasion. This blessing to Castro further removed his enemies from Cuba while he received aid to benefit his Jesuit-ruled government. During the Cold War, Castro would secretly work with the CIA via Cuba's DGI, both agencies being arms of Rome's secret "Holy Office of the Inquisition." All the military supplies necessary for arming arriving Chinese and Moslem invaders from Africa would be stored awaiting the day of invasion. Arms would secretly be brought into Guantanamo Naval Base for years by the US Navy under the protection of the CIA/NSA. Ultimately Gitmo, with its precious deep water port, would be given back to Cuba---which event is now in the making. Further, there is an underground tunnel from Cuba to Miami with a mag-lev, high-speed train that will be used to transport invading, front line troops into Florida to kill the second largest Jewish population in North America resident on "the Gold Coast." Meanwhile, China's huge shipping company, COSCO, will deploy its ships to transport Moslem and Chinese invaders into Miami for its invasion of the once White Protestant and Baptist Old South. The Russian Navy will escort the invasion from Venezuela now being put in place.

This is why Jesuit Castro was put in power. This is why thousands of your people risked shark-infested waters to escape Castro. This is why thousands of Cuban nationalists were tortured and murdered in Inquisitor Castro's underground prisons. This is why Cuba will never be free. And JFK tried to stop this plan of the Black Pope for which he was adjudged "a tyrant and a usurper" and "extirpated" according to Jesuit-directed Canon Law. He was murdered by the CIA, the Secret Service, the Mafia, the FBI along with Army and Naval Intelligence---all working together.

I trust this helps Brian, although it is a most bitter and sorrowful story, for both my people and yours.

Sincerely in faith,

Brother Eric

craig-oxley - March 16, 2009 02:02 AM (GMT)

Castro, Jesuits and U.S. All On Same Vatican-led New World Order Team

Kennedy assassination sealed Cuba's fate, reducing it poverty, tyranny and revolution

By Greg Szymanski, JD
Mar. 15 2009

http://www.arcticbeacon.com/greg/

The people of Cuba have been run over the coals just like people in every other country the Vatican-led New World Order sets its evil sights on.

Who would have thought the Jesuits controlled Fidel Castro?

But 40 years ago, who would have thought the Jesuits controlled U.S. foreign and domestic policy?

A recent poll taken in the U.S., based on obvious sentiment and apathy, showed 99.9 per cent of Americans could care less about Cuba, Castro and really who controlled their own country, saying they would accept a fascist dictator as long as the Super Bowl wasn't interrupted by the upcoming World War III.

However, if anyone is interested how a real live Cuban citizen, not a video game replica, feels about Castro and the hidden agenda of the Jesuits, here is a recent letter received by author of Vatican Assassins, Eric Jon Phelps, from Brian Munoz of Cuba.

In the letter, Munoz reveals how the Cuban people have been hoodwinked, just like the American people, regarding how the Jesuit Order pulls the strings of all the major leaders of the world in order to foment wars and revolutions in their quest for a one world government and one world religion under a Luciferian doctrine.

Here is Munoz's letter and Phelps response dated Mar. 3:

Mr. Phelps: I have been wanting to contact you for some time now. I think you may be the only person that can help me clear up some things about Castro, the Jesuits and JFK. Your input may help bring closure to a 50 year old bitter feeling from most Cubans towards John F Kennedy for pulling the plug in the Bay of Pigs Invasion at the last minute.

Cubans have always blamed JFK for our failure to overthrow Castro. After having seen your videos among others and getting a broader picture of the behind the scene things that have gone on in U.S. government, I am not so sure JFK was the culprit.

Also, I know that Castro studied in a Jesuit school as a young adult. I would not be surprised if he had help from the Illuminati or Jesuits.

We Cubans have always wondered why the U.S. gets involved in playing world police, taking down and putting up leaders, but Castro has remained the untouchable. No one wants to touch him with ten foot pole.

Mr. Munoz: Thank you for contacting me.

Your email brought tears to my eyes.

I will send you a cd-ebook of Vatican Assassins III if you will share the info with your Cuban brethren in South Florida. Until then I will tell you this:

Fidel Castro was trained by Jesuits for seven years. His Jesuit advisor and right hand was Jesuit Father Armando Llorente. Castro was groomed in New York City as I have a picture of him in Central Park before the revolution in a nice, three-piece suit. And why was he in New York City? He was there to take his orders in person from the Archbishop of New York, Francis Cardinal Spellman, later the mastermind behind the JFK assassination.

At this time in 1959 just prior to Castro being given Cuba, it had been decided that Cuba must be isolated from the American Empire, the Empire under the command of the Archbishop of New York and directed by the Jesuits at Fordham and Georgetown Universities. (Jesuit Georgetown University is the capital bringing its national and foreign policies into the White House West Wing. The Capitol buliding is not the capital.) Cuba was and is intended to be a staging base for the coming Sino-Soviet-Moslem invasion of America. To make this possible, the pope's international press must be given a reason to be shut out of Cuba via the justification of "communism." Remember, communism was perfected by the Jesuits from 1609-1759 on their 59 communist reductions in Paraguay. Therefore, the Black Pope Pedro Arrupe gave the order to foment the Cuban revolution in 1959 using his CFR-controlled Press to paint Batista as a horrible, brutal tyrant thus enabling certain press lords like Ed Sullivan, a New York Roman Catholic Knight of Columbus, to back Castro. CIA director Allen Dulles, a Knight of Malta and Nazi-protector, backed Castro calling him "the Abraham Lincoln of Cuba" creating more sympathy in the hearts of the deceived and ignorant American people for "the liberator, Fidel Castro." The CIA gave Castro guns and millions of dollars during and after the revolution knowing full well that he was a tool of the Jesuits—the very Jesuits who ruled the CIA via Knight of Malta Allen Dulles and later Knight of Malta John McCone who oversaw JFK's assassination in 1963. The revolution would never have succeeded had not the Jesuit-ruled CFR-controlled US government backed Castro in every way possible—just as it had backed Jesuit-trained Joseph Stalin during Lend-Lease and after the world war giving the Soviets all of America's high technology, be it aircraft or naval or electronic, while also giving the KGB supremacy over the CIA.

During the revolution, Castro's headquarters was Havana's Hilton Hotel, remembering that Knight of Malta Barron Hilton owned that hotel. Pope Paul VI, with his Black Pope Pedro Arrupe, was the power behind Castro for which reason we understand why Castro was openly backed by the CIA and openly opposed by the KGB before the revolution. (The USSR had been controlled by the Black Pope since the success of the Bolshevik Revolution in 1920, aided by President Warren Harding for the tune of $60 million worth of food and other supplies. Rome pretended to oppose Soviet Communism so as to deceive the anti-communist West while the intelligence agencies "on both sides" secretly worked together.) After the revolution, the KGB openly backed Castro while the CIA secretly backed him, yet both the CIA and KGB worked together during the entire Cold War, another hoax put upon the peoples of the West. To FURTHER ENTRENCH CASTRO IN POWER BY ELIMINATING TRUE CUBAN NATIONALISTIC PATRIOTS, the Bay of Pigs invasion was planned for 1961. President Eisenhower, Cardinal Spellman's Knight of Malta and Crusader during WWII, had planned the FAILURE OF THE INVASION with his brother Knight of Malta Allen Dulles of the CIA.

At the time the invasion was to begin, President Kennedy gave his consent and permission for the operation to proceed the day before the attack. JFK was fully behind the plan to eliminate Jesuit and Freemason Fidel Castro because JFK refused to take his orders from the pope of Rome as he had declared at a meeting of Protestant and Baptist ministers in Houston, Texas, late in 1960. Thus, JFK did not cancel the air support. According to Colonel L. Fletcher Prouty in his book JFK, it was Skull and Bonesman McGeorge Bundy, JFK's National Security Advisor, who canceled that air cover. Bundy even admitted it seventeen years later, as Prouty proves in his book. Kennedy was furious! He fired CIA Director Allen Dulles and CIA Deputy Director Charles Cabell as well as CIA Director for Plans Richard Bissell. JFK made plans for another invasion of Cuba: the date; December 1, 1963. This fact can be verified in the book Ultimate Sacrifice authored by Lamar Waldron and Thom Hartman. To prevent that invasion, he was killed nine days before on November 22, 1963.

The assassination of Kennedy sealed Cuba's fate. No longer would the pope's CIA pretend to attempt to overthrow Castro. With his most dangerous enemies eliminated thanks to Bonesman Bundy and the KOMs Dulles'/McCone's CIA, Castro could now proceed to kill every Cuban patriot and reduce that once prosperous and beautiful island to poverty, crime and tyranny. The CFR-controlled US government even gave Castro $60 million in food and medical supplies "in exchange" for Cubans captured and tortured after the failed invasion. This blessing to Castro further removed his enemies from Cuba while he received aid to benefit his Jesuit-ruled government. During the Cold War, Castro would secretly work with the CIA via Cuba's DGI, both agencies being arms of Rome's secret "Holy Office of the Inquisition." All the military supplies necessary for arming arriving Chinese and Moslem invaders from Africa would be stored awaiting the day of invasion. Arms would secretly be brought into Guantanamo Naval Base for years by the US Navy under the protection of the CIA/NSA. Ultimately Gitmo, with its precious deep water port, would be given back to Cuba—which event is now in the making. Further, there is an underground tunnel from Cuba to Miami with a mag-lev, high-speed train that will be used to transport invading, front line troops into Florida to kill the second largest Jewish population in North America resident on "the Gold Coast." Meanwhile, China's huge shipping company, COSCO, will deploy its ships to transport Moslem and Chinese invaders into Miami for its invasion of the once White Protestant and Baptist Old South. The Russian Navy will escort the invasion from Venezuela now being put in place.

This is why Jesuit Castro was put in power. This is why thousands of your people risked shark-infested waters to escape Castro. This is why thousands of Cuban nationalists were tortured and murdered in Inquisitor Castro's underground prisons. This is why Cuba will never be free. And JFK tried to stop this plan of the Black Pope for which he was adjudged "a tyrant and a usurper" and "extirpated" according to Jesuit-directed Canon Law. He was murdered by the CIA, the Secret Service, the Mafia, the FBI along with Army and Naval Intelligence—all working together.

I trust this helps Brian, although it is a most bitter and sorrowful story, for both my people and yours.

zenmodi - March 16, 2009 10:56 AM (GMT)

wow, very good and precisely eric. if people just would get this ties between the vatican and the secret services. its so clear, all they need to do is to aks themselves wtf does the churchs knights search in all those secret services... what is also important regarding the jfk assassination are two things.
the first one regards south vietnam and its catholic dictator (i dont remember for sure, but it might be that he even has been a jesuit) that kennedy has killed through operations. but its another theme.

the other is that jfk was no pure muppet of his that times advisor john mccone. john maccone was the one who instructed kennedy to not overthrow castro and to not kill him in any way. in the very end of jfk s life, mccone made a short journey about two weeks, into european or south american cia bases, i think it were european ones but its not important. what important is, is that jfk in this short time period decided to go against castro and overthrow him. when mccone came back from his journey and heard what kennedy decided to do, he was totally shocked. this shows that mccone was the hand directing kennedys actions or at least keeping them on an acceptable level for his order. 2 weeks after kennedy has made this try to kill castro and killed the south american dictator, he was assassinated. i believe this two events were the real reasons kennedy was shot, along with the reason eric shows here, that jfk wanted to try again to take castro out. the thing is, castro is a vatican-mafia-worker who does a good job and kennedy was just the president of the united states, not part of this vatican-mafia, thats why he had no chance as he stepped against this seemingly small countries first man castro. castro belongs to the most powerful and brutal mafia-force on this planet, while kennedy did not (people must get this and step totally back from that fake official image about the president of the united states is also the most powerfull man on earth... rofl...sleep babies :))

another interesting fact about castro is, that he fought for the so called revolution yet before he became first statesmen and he was trapped and should get a death penalty, where roman catholic bishops of cuba helped him to come out of that trouble. they simply saved his life...

just connect the dots, people.

craig-oxley - May 20, 2009 02:01 AM (GMT)

Notice Chavez is all for New World Order socialism a creation of the Jesuit Order and their Cliveden Set. -Craig

Chavez's National Assembly Looks to Cut Venezuela Private Property Rights

According to José Vicente Haro, a lawyer specializing in Constitutional issues, this new Social Property Law would reduce the right to private property to “its minimum expression.”

By Jeremy Morgan
Latin American Herald Tribune staff
http://www.laht.com/article.asp?ArticleId=...ategoryId=10717

CARACAS – The impression that President Hugo Chávez’s commitment to the right to own private property is less than total has gained weight with developments at the National Assembly that wouldn’t be happening if he didn’t approve.

Private property rights were enshrined and endorsed in the Bolivarian Constitution adopted by a referendum called by Chávez in 1999. Ten years later, a string of expropriations and his recent remark to the effect that private land didn’t exist in Venezuela have people thinking that he’s out to reduce that commitment to an absolute minimum.

That said, Chávez isn’t helping clarify matters by appearing to be blowing alternatively hot and cold on the issue of state takeovers. In Argentina earlier this week, he was reported to have said there wouldn’t be any more expropriations in the banking sector “for now.”

Chávez has also said that the state takeover of Banco de Venezuela from Spanish group Santander could be completed on May 22. Banco Industrial de Venezuela was intervened by the government on May 14 after stacking up the equivalent of $88 million in losses during the preceding 22 months -- all the while in government hands.

That said, were it the case that Chávez has changed his mind about private property – and there are those who suspect he never really believed in any such the right but threw it into his new constitution for fear of scaring the horses during his early days in power – it wouldn’t be for the first time.

Time was when Chávez was an enthusiast for collective enterprises, seeing them as a new model for running businesses in the interests of employees rather than the “neoliberal” capitalism he so ostentatiously despises.

But he’s said to have grown wary of the cooperative principle a couple of years back, disillusioned after a string of experiments bellied up and went bust despite considerable injections of state cash.

Whether or not the same thing is happening or has already happened with presidential attitudes towards private property today, members of the citizen participation committee at the legislature are labouring over ways to set limits on who might be able to own what in future.

They are working to a new set of guidelines for a new Social Property Law. The basis of this is said to be the notion that private property would be “recognized” in terms of individuals’ possessions (ie, homes), consumption (food), enjoyment (video machines) and “means of production” (factories, farms) that were “legitimately acquired.”

The upshot of all this, it’s said, is that anybody wanting to keep or buy private property would have to demonstrate they had a legitimate right to do so. Apparently, they would also be required to prove that the property in question was being put to proper use. Otherwise, it could be taken over by the state.

Once again, Chávez stands accused of resurrecting an idea that has already been rejected once by the voters. The proposed new law is said to look very much like a plan that he threw into the referendum which he lost in December 2006 in his first, failed bid to lift a ban on successive re-election.

Be that as it may, in effect he’s deemed to be taking on the Constitution of his own creation. To whit: Article 115 of the Constitution declares that the “right to property is guaranteed.” The draft legislation at which the committee is looking restricts this to recognition of some goods only – and then, apparently, within set limits.

To José Vicente Haro, a lawyer specializing in constitutional issues who was quoted by the conservative newspaper El Universal earlier this week, this would reduce the right to private property to “its minimum expression.” Recognition would be conditioned on the purpose to which the property was being put, he argued.

According to another interpretation of the framework now in front of the committee, people would buy homes to live in rather than to sell at a profit. Anybody wanting to sell their home would have to demonstrate that it had been in continual, uninterrupted use before they could put it on the market. So much, it would seem, for second homes.

Similarly, it’s suggested that these same people would have to convince officials that they had been the owners of the property for a period of time deemed suitable by officials who’d probably come under the auspices of the National Lands Institute (INTI).

No such restrictions or conditions are included in the Constitution as it stands at present. Opponents claim that the draft legislation clearly violates the basic law of the land even before it goes to debate.

The National Assembly is already seen as a no-hoper in terms of blocking the planned new law. The chamber is all but totally dominated by Chávez’s ruling United Socialist Party of Venezuela (PSUV) and its minor allies, notably three deputies who represent indigenous communities.

The stance on this issue of the social democratic party, Podemos, which once backed Chávez but went into opposition during his first attempt at successive re-election, remains unclear. The rest of the Opposition isn’t represented in the legislature after boycotting the last parliamentary elections in 2005.

Haro said the thing to do would be to challenge the guidelines at the Constitutional Chamber at the Supreme Justice Tribunal. But he didn’t hold out much hope of making progress there. All of the judges were also appointed by Chavez.

In the meantime, moves are afoot to make it a bit more difficult to get rid of a sitting tenant. At present, the law stipulates that a landlord can move to evict if their tenant is two months behind on the rent. The proposal under discussion is to extend this to three months.

The defence committee has meanwhile turned its attention to the burning issue of crime. At first sight, this might look a bit odd, given that crime would naturally seem to be the bailiwick of the interior policy, justice, human rights and constitutional guarantees committee.

However, the defence committee's remit also includes security. Deputy Juan José Mendoza, the head of the committee, says that he and his colleagues are looking at three proposals for legislation on explosives, disarming the public and protecting air space.

If the fact that it is the defence rather than the interior committee that is handling this prompts thoughts about soldiers being ordered on to the streets to combat crime, the reality is that they're already there. The National Guard was deployed in public spaces after muggings and other street crime shot through the roof a few years back, and they've been there ever since.

craig-oxley - May 30, 2009 05:22 AM (GMT)

kalongi - September 8, 2009 09:08 PM (GMT)

U.N. declares Castro a "World Hero of Solidarity"

By Michelle Malkin • September 5, 2009 01:33 PM http://michellemalkin.com/2009/09/05/u-n-d...social-justice/

Yes, it's true.

The United Nations has declared misery-inducing, freedom-strangling Cuban dictator Fidel Castro a "World Hero of Solidarity."

Via David Kopel at Volokh Conspiracy, h/t Hans Bader at OpenMarket.org, who writes:

> QUOTE
>
> The award was presented to Castro by the President of the UN General Assembly, Miguel D'Escoto Brockmann. Brockmann also successfully lobbied the Obama Administration to demand that Honduras allow the return to power of its ex-president and would-be dictator, Manuel Zelaya. (Two months ago, soldiers acting on orders of Honduras's Supreme Court arrested Zelaya after he systematically abused his powers. After the Court quite legally declared that Zelaya was no longer president, he was duly replaced by Honduras's Congress with a civilian, the Congressional Speaker). The Obama Administration recently decided to impose sanctions on Honduras, and indicated it will not recognize future democratic elections in Honduras unless Honduras first lets ex-president Zelaya return to power.
>
> Marxism seems to be back in fashion in Washington these days.

Rep. Diane Watson, the New York Times book review section, and Van Jones and Valerie Jarrett approve!

craig-oxley - September 25, 2009 04:49 PM (GMT)

Chavez in Friendly Chat with King Who Once Told Him to 'Shut Up'

By VOA News
11 September 2009
http://www.voanews.com/english/2009-09-11-voa40.cfm

Spain's King Juan Carlos (l) greets Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez at the Zarzuela Palace on the outskirts of Madrid, Spain, 11 Sep 2009

Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez joked with Spanish King Juan Carlos during a meeting in Madrid Friday, saying the monarch's new beard reminded him of Fidel Castro.

In a good-humored reply, Juan Carlos said he grew his beard recently in order to change his appearance. He did not offer his opinion of the comparison between him and Cuban revolutionary leader Castro.

The atmosphere during the meeting at the Zarzuela Palace was easier than during an encounter between the two men two years ago, when the king told Mr. Chavez to "shut up" and stop interrupting a speech by Spain's prime minister.

The exchange between Juan Carlos and the Venezuelan leader took place at an Ibero-American summit in Santiago Chile in November 2007.

Mr. Chavez's visit to Madrid was the last stop on a nine-country tour. He also met Friday with Spanish Prime Minister Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero for talks on economic issues and other topics.

Mr. Zapatero was not Spain's government chief at the time of the 2007 summit that led to the king's angry comment. Juan Carlos and Mr. Chavez patched up their differences during another meeting in 2008.

Mr. Chavez arrived in Madrid from Moscow, where he met with top Russian leaders. In comments to reporters there, he accused Spain and other Western governments of distorting facts according to what he called "right-wing" interpretations that portray those who fight for democracy as tyrants, and actual tyrants as democrats.

In addition to his stop in Russia, the Venezuelan leader also visited Algeria, Belarus, Libya, Italy, Iran, Syria and Turkmenistan.

BEWARE CHAVEZ
http://z10.invisionfree.com/The_Unhived_Mi...owtopic=12&st=0

craig-oxley - November 1, 2009 05:39 PM (GMT)

Castro's Sister Worked For The CIA

Published on 10-26-2009 Email To Friend Print Version http://www.reuters.com/article/mediaNews/i...0091026?sp=true

Using the codename "Donna," the younger sister of Fidel and Raul Castro worked undercover for the CIA in Cuba in the early 1960s, helping opponents of their communist rule escape execution and imprisonment, she said in memoirs published in exile on Monday.

Revealing what the publishers called a closely guarded secret kept hidden for four decades, Juanita Castro described in the book how she was recruited by the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency in Havana two years after the 1959 Revolution led by her brothers, which she initially supported.

There was no immediate reaction to her revelation from the U.S. authorities or the Cuban government, which routinely dismisses critics as "mercenaries" in the pay of Washington.

Juanita Castro, 76, broke publicly with the Cuban government led by her brother Fidel Castro in 1964 after leaving Cuba for Mexico. She went into exile in Miami and has remained a strong critic of communist rule in Cuba.

In the memoirs entitled "Fidel and Raul, My Brothers, the Secret History," told to Mexican journalist Maria Antonieta Collins, she says she quickly became disenchanted with Fidel Castro's rule over the Caribbean's largest island because he increasingly persecuted opponents and turned to communism.

She says Fidel Castro "betrayed" her and other Cubans by abandoning the nationalist democratic revolution he had promised and imposing a one-party Marxist state on Cuba.

Juanita Castro wrote she was recruited to be a clandestine CIA operative by her friend Virginia Leitao da Cunha, the wife of the Brazilian ambassador to Cuba, who in 1958 sheltered her and other revolutionary followers of Castro during the armed struggle to topple dictator Fulgencio Batista.

She said that at a meeting with an American CIA officer "Enrique" in a Mexico City hotel in 1961, she was given the codename "Donna" and codebooks to use in Cuba with a short-wave radio to receive instructions from her CIA handlers.

Former leader Fidel Castro, 83, who last year handed over the presidency of Cuba to his younger brother Raul, 78, for health reasons, has long considered the CIA his arch-enemy. He says the U.S. spy agency was behind most of the 600 or so assassination plots against on his life.

In her memoirs, Juanita Castro wrote she agreed to work for the CIA under the noses of her brothers on the condition that she was not asked to participate in any violent acts against them or any other member of their government.

"Did I feel remorse about betraying Fidel by agreeing to meet with his enemies?. No, for one simple reason: I didn't betray him. He betrayed me," she writes in the 432-page book published in Spanish by Grupo Santillana.

"NEED FOR POWER"

"He betrayed the thousands of us who suffered and fought for the revolution that he had offered, one that was generous and just and would bring peace and democracy to Cuba, and which, as he himself had promised, would be as 'Cuban as palm trees,'" she said.

She described in the book how, following CIA instructions often secretly picked up at isolated roadside drop points in Cuba, she helped people persecuted by Fidel Castro's secret police to escape capture, imprisonment and possible execution.

Some were sheltered at the house where she lived with her mother, Lina Ruz Gonzalez, who was also the mother of Fidel and Raul Castro. Lina Ruz, who also helped some friends escape persecution, died in 1963, Juanita Castro said.

She recalled her own shock when Fidel Castro, who had denied publicly that he was a communist, declared on Dec. 2, 1961, that he was a Marxist-Leninist and that he would remain one for the rest of his life.

"Fidel's radical change to communism was not out of political conviction, but simply out of the need to hold power, which is what has always been important to him," she wrote.

"I have no other explanation: he turned to the Soviet Union to perpetuate himself in power."

The collapse in 1991 of the Soviet Union, Cuba's main ally and economic benefactor for years, plunged the island into economic crisis. But despite the economic problems, both Fidel and Raul Castro have ruled out any shift to capitalism.

In response to a call for a "new beginning" in U.S.-Cuban ties made by U.S. President Barack Obama, the Cuban leadership has started talks with Washington on issues like migration and postal service ties, but it demands that Obama completely end the 47-year-old U.S. trade embargo against Cuba.

Obama says he wants to see Havana free jailed dissidents and improve human rights.

Juanita Castro first revealed her secret role with the CIA in Cuba in a broadcast late on Sunday by the Spanish-language TV network Univision-Noticias 23. She says she has not spoken to Fidel or Raul Castro since she left Cuba in 1964.

AntiSionist - November 2, 2009 06:35 AM (GMT)

> QUOTE
>
> Castro's Sister Worked For The CIA

Maltese CIA connection to Castro. Now we know why any plot to assassinate or dethrone him would never work. It would simply never be allowed to work.

craig-oxley - January 14, 2010 01:50 PM (GMT)

One of George H. W. Bush Sr.'s drug-trafficking allies has been President Chavez of Venezuela, whose geopolitical stance for gullible international public consumption, is anti-American and neo-Communist. But in reality, this is a cover, as Chavez is an 'asset' of George Bush Sr., engaged inter alia in drug-running for and in collaboration with the Bush networks and DVD, Dachau. Venezuelan drug shipments have been traced via the Dominican Republic into South Africa, where President Mbeke is reported to take his cut, before the shipments are forwarded to the corrupt oil state of Equatorial Guinea, for onward shipment into Europe and Britain.

-CS

craig-oxley - February 23, 2010 05:40 PM (GMT)

QUOTE (craig-oxley @ Jan 14 2010, 01:50 PM)

One of George H. W. Bush Sr.'s drug-trafficking allies has been President Chavez of Venezuela, whose geopolitical stance for gullible international public consumption, is anti-American and neo-Communist. But in reality, this is a cover, as Chavez is an 'asset' of George Bush Sr., engaged inter alia in drug-running for and in collaboration with the Bush networks and DVD, Dachau. Venezuelan drug shipments have been traced via the Dominican Republic into South Africa, where President Mbeke is reported to take his cut, before the shipments are forwarded to the corrupt oil state of Equatorial Guinea, for onward shipment into Europe and Britain.

-CS

CHRISTIANS IN ACTION

QUOTE

http://www.abn.info.ve/noticia.php?articulo=221487&lee=4

Venezuelan agencies seize 116 kilos of cocaine in Malta Ship

Caracas, Feb. 22. ABN .- The Anti-Drug Command of the Bolivarian National Guard (GNB) and the National Anti-Drug Office (ONA) go through an operation in Zulia state in which it seized 116 kilos of cocaine which were hidden in a tanker with acronyms and flag of the Republic of Malta.

The national director of the ONA, Colonel Nestor Reverol, said the 23 people on board the vessel in custody and the ship remains at anchor in Lake Maracaibo while more research.

"This type of boat is no exception to the provisions of Articles 66 and 67 of the Organic Law Against Illicit Traffic and Consumption of Narcotic and Psychotropic Substances (Locticsep)," added Reverol referring to the secured property, seized and confiscated the drug trafficking.

He stressed that Petroleos de Venezuela (PDVSA) will increase the controls to prevent such incidents.

"The idea is to heighten the supervisions, including divers, and all relevant control measures," he said.

So far this year, the State security forces have seized more than a thousand 500 kilos of various drugs in Venezuela and arrested 654 people for crimes relating to trafficking in illicit substances.

Maximiliano - February 24, 2010 08:54 AM (GMT)

Ileana Ros-Lehtinen continues to probe Swiss bank UBS for possible money laundering http://havanajournal.com/politics/entry/il...sible_money_la/

October 10, 2005

A House subcommittee will investigate Cuba and Iran's dealings with the Swiss banking giant UBS in search of possible money laundering, Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen said Friday.

The Cuban-American Republican made the announcement after a meeting Thursday with UBS Vice President Phil Gramm, a former Texas senator, produced no new information on the bank's deals with Cuba.

"It was more of the same, more delays, more unkept promises," she said.
Ros-Lehtinen said the investigation will be carried out by the House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, which has the power to subpoena bank documents. The subcommittee is part of the House International Relations Committee.

UBS was already fined $100 million in May of 2004 for violating an agreement with the U.S. Federal Reserve that allowed UBS clients - except countries under U.S. sanctions - to swap old dollar bills for new ones. Cuba funneled $3.9 billion through UBS between 1996 and 2003.

UBS spokeswoman Christina Walton said the Fed has "never suggested or charged UBS with any actions ... that had anything to do with money laundering.'' Cuba says the money was legitimately obtained, mostly through the tourism industry.

Walton said UBS no longer conducts any business with Cuban officials or residents in Cuba. "We conduct our business in the U.S. in strict adherence to local laws, and in the U.S., UBS follows U.S. laws as they relate to Cuba.''

However, she added that UBS was a global institution that facilitated "simple, third-party payment transactions on behalf of non-U.S. residents in Cuba. That is the business we are exiting.'' This includes remittances sent to the island by Cubans outside the United States, or payments to foreign businesses operating on the island.

The subcommittee also will look into the origins of $762 million in U.S. cash that American troops in Iraq found in hide-outs linked to Saddam Hussein. The cash was traced to UBS and several other foreign banks.

SO THE FEDERAL RESERVE FINANCED THE COMMUNIST CUBA WHIT U$S 3,900,000,000 !!

kalongi - February 25, 2010 03:32 PM (GMT)

Stronger Fidel Castro meets with Brazil president

By WILL WEISSERT, Associated Press Writer Will Weissert, Associated Press Writer – Thu Feb 25, 5:39 am ET http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20100225/ap_on_...m9uZ2VyZmlkZQ--

HAVANA – Wearing his now-trademark track suit, Fidel Castro smiles happily and appears to vigorously embrace his longtime friend, the president of Brazil.

The image, one of numerous photographs released Wednesday, shows the 83-year-old former Cuban leader looking healthier and stronger than at many points since he took ill with an undisclosed ailment 3 1/2 years ago.

Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva, who met with Castro behind closed doors Wednesday, described him as being "exceptionally well," Brazil's private Agencia Estado news agency reported, citing unidentified Silva aides.

Silva spent more than an hour discussing various topics with Castro, who ceded power to his younger brother Raul — first temporarily, then permanently — after undergoing emergency intestinal surgery in July 2006.

The meeting was closed to international news media based in Havana, but information about it was carried by Agencia Estado and Cuban state media.

Recent photographs released by Cuba's government have also shown a healthier-looking Fidel Castro.

Wednesday's images show a beaming Castro chatting with Silva and mugging for the camera with the Brazilian president's communications minister while Silva himself takes a photo.

The gray-bearded revolutionary was thought to be in far graver health — in fact, rumors of his imminent death were frequent — the last time Silva came to see him in January 2008.

This time, Silva felt Castro looked "much different" and improved, Agencia Estado reported.

Cuba's state television led its evening newscast with a report on the meeting, though it didn't broadcast any images of Castro until the 30-minute show's closing, when it displayed several still photographs of the former leader.

The report said Castro and Silva discussed several matters, including the U.N. climate conference in Copenhagen. After that conference, Castro released a string of essays strongly criticizing President Barack Obama for Washington's brokering of an accord that urges — but does not require — major polluters to make deeper emissions cuts.

Also visiting Cuba was socialist Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez, another close friend and confidant of Fidel Castro. Silva, Chavez and Raul Castro had all been in the Mexican Caribbean city of Playa del Carmen on Tuesday for a Latin American and Caribbean "unity" summit.

There was no word on whether Fidel Castro met with Chavez, a frequent visitor to Cuba.

Before their meeting with Fidel Castro, Silva and Raul Castro donned guayabera dress shirts and traveled to the port city of Mariel, about 30 miles (50 kilometers) west of Havana, where Brazil's government is helping build a new port designed to handle full-size container ships.

The $600 million renovation is being split equally between Silva's government and Cuba. Brazil is Cuba's fourth-largest commercial partner, with nearly $700 million in trade between the two countries in 2008, the most current figures available.

Raul Castro became provisional president on July 31, 2006, and took over permanently two years ago Wednesday. But he played down the anniversary in comments to the news media.

Silva's comments were not the first recent indication Fidel Castro has turned the corner on his health.

During a visit to Havana in October, the director of the World Health Organization, Margaret Chan, met with him for more than two hours and said he was "wonderful" and "very dynamic."

Chan said at the time that Castro had more endurance than she did.

"I'm younger than him and I felt tired when he wasn't," she said.

craig-oxley - March 25, 2010 03:01 PM (GMT)

[DOHTML]<CENTER>
[/DOHTML]
 THE TRUE MASTERS OF VENEZUELA **

MARCO RECOLONS S.J
(Based at the Curia Generalizia)

ARTURO SOSA S.J

[DOHTML]<CENTER>
[/DOHTML]

craig-oxley - March 27, 2010 06:07 PM (GMT)

Fidel Castro Endorses Obamacare

Posted on 26 March 2010 by | Author: Rudi Stettner |
http://indyposted.com/14820/fidel-castro-endorses-obamacare/

President Obama has received a ringing endorsement of the new health care bill that he has succeeded in passing and signing into law. President Fidel Castro has lauded President Obama's legislative coup as a miraculous victory. Associated Press reports as follows.

"Cuban revolutionary leader Fidel Castro on Thursday declared passage of American health care reform "a miracle" and a major victory for Obama's presidency, but couldn't help chide the United States for taking so long to enact what communist Cuba achieved decades ago."

President Obama can now add the endorsement of Fidel Castro to that of other luminaries such as Jimmy Carter and Reverend Jeremiah Wright. Obama's health care bill passed by a slim margin through a heatedly divided Congress that reflected the misgivings of an equally divided electorate. It remains to be seen whether Fidel Castro's contribution to the national dialogue on health care will win over the skeptics.

craig-oxley - April 21, 2010 03:34 PM (GMT)

Former allies of Hugo Chavez blow the whistle on 'corrupt' dynasty

A former ally of Hugo Chávez has turned on the Venezuelan president, claiming that his administration is more corrupt that the ruling class that it usurped.

Published: 7:00AM BST 19 Apr 2010
http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/...pt-dynasty.html

Wilmer Azuaje joined Mr Chávez's revolution a decade ago and worked with the president's family to turn their home state of Barinas into a hotbed of political change.

He is now the Chávez family's most outspoken foe. "They turned out to be the most corrupt ever. They betrayed us," he told the Guardian.

Mr Azuaje claims that in Barinas farms, businesses, banks and government contracts have been taken over by the president's parents and five brothers.

The Chavez dynasty certainly has a tight hold over the region. Mr Chávez's father ruled as governor of Barinas, a showcase of the revolution, for a decade until handing over to the president's brother, Adán, in an election marred by fraud allegations.

Other brothers are also doing well. One is mayor of nearby Sabaneta; one is a senior banker, one is planning his own election campaign. Meanwhile the family travel in convoys of 4x4s and president's once-matronly mother, Elena, has undergone plastic surgery and now sports designer clothes and expensive jewellery.

The allegations of nepotism and corruption come amid growing concern that the revolutionary socialist movement has been hijacked by money-driven opportunists inside, or close to, the government, the paper reports.

Nationalisations, new state enterprises and new price and currency controls have generated a host of well-connected millionaires.

Venezuela is now 162nd, alongside Angola and Congo, out of 180 countries in Transparency International's corruption perceptions index.

Mr Chávez seems to have acknowledged that his popularity has suffered as a result of the corruption claims. "This party has to tighten the moral belt," he said in December last year.

craig-oxley - April 21, 2010 06:01 PM (GMT)

Chavez rallies armed youths to defend socialism

By Anthony Boadle
Tuesday, April 13, 2010; 9:04 PM
http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/conte...0041304569.html

CARACAS (Reuters) - Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez called on 35,000 armed militias on Tuesday to defend his socialist revolution with their lives if necessary as he faces a test of its popularity in elections in September.

Young militias raised assault rifles and clenched fists in the air when Chavez entered the parade area in Caracas in an open military jeep for a rally marking the anniversary of an abortive coup that ousted him briefly in 2002.

"You should be ready to take up arms at any moment and give your lives if necessary for our nation's independence and the socialist revolution," Chavez said, unsheathing the sword of Venezuelan independence hero Simon Bolivar.

The show of force by the government-organized militia -- whose number is thought to be several hundred thousand nationwide -- appeared aimed at defending his 11-year government from what Chavez and his supporters perceive as the threat of another coup attempt or an attack from abroad.

A fierce critic of what he calls U.S. imperialism, Chavez accuses Washington of backing efforts by Venezuela's upper classes to oust him and arming neighboring Colombia for an invasion of his oil-exporting nation.

Tension between the two countries has risen since Colombia announced that the U.S. military will have access to its bases, and Venezuela ramped up purchases of weaponry from Russia.

U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates, who will visit Colombia this week, said on Tuesday he did not see Venezuela as a military threat, adding that it had serious economic problems.

Electricity shortages caused by a severe drought and prolonged economic recession have dented Chavez's popularity ahead of elections for the National Assembly, a prelude to a crucial 2012 presidential vote.

Chavez, a former paratrooper turned socialist revolutionary, said the drop in water levels at the country's largest hydroelectric dam, the Guri, had slowed following recent rain and vowed that the electricity crisis would end this year.

"We cannot allow the bourgeoise to occupy seats in the National Assembly," Chavez, dressed in green military fatigues and a red beret, told his supporters. "We cannot allow them to undo the revolutionary laws."

Three years after he was elected president, his opponents organized massive demonstrations triggering a coup that briefly ousted Chavez on April 11, 2002. The military restored him two days later after his supporters took to the streets.

In a move that will anger its opponents and further polarize Venezuela, Chavez's government decreed April 13 a holiday to be known as the "Day of National Jubilation."

(Editing by Andrew Cawthorne)

craig-oxley - June 18, 2010 11:27 AM (GMT)

Vatican official may meet with Raul Castro

http://www.catholicnewsagency.com/news/vat...A+Daily+News%29

Havana, Cuba, Jun 16, 2010 / 04:07 pm (CNA).- The AFP news agency reported this week that Church officials in Cuba have not ruled out a possible meeting between Cuban president Raul Castro and the Vatican's Secretary for Relations with States, Archbishop Dominique Mamberti, who is currently visiting Cuba.

Archbishop Mamberti arrived in Cuba to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the diplomatic relations between Cuban and the Holy See and to participate in the Catholic Social Week. He is also expected to discuss the current situation facing the Church as well as the pastoral needs of the country's bishops.

Regarding the actions of the Church in Cuba, Bishop Jorge Serpa of Pinar del Rio said everything "is on the table for discussion. (Archbishop Mamberti will meet with government officials and express his point of view. Even though it may not seem so, whenever there is dialogue, progress is made and things can get aired out)."

Speaking about the transfer of 12 prisoners to facilities near their hometowns and the release of Ariel Sigler, Bishop Serpa said, "We look upon this entire process with hope, as a positive step, although we are cautious. We want to achieve the results that everyone wants and as soon as possible. We are working for this happen."

craig-oxley - June 21, 2010 05:40 PM (GMT)

craig-oxley - June 30, 2010 05:00 PM (GMT)

Also, at least in both South and Central America, the Order used CFR/CIA America to back fascist military leaders who were then used to crush all movements of true nationalism. This is the story of Allende being murdered by the CIA in 1971, then tto be replaced with Knight of Malta Augusto Pinochet aided by Opus Dei. The only exception to this rule is Roman Catholic, race-mixed Cuba, the CIA imposing Jesuit-trained Socialist Communist Fidel Castro in 1960, the US then giving him 60 million dollars in medical supplies and food after the deliberately failed Bay of Pigs fiasco.

And why is Cuba the exception to the rule of using CIA assassins to murder true Central American and South American nationalist leaders under the guise of "fighting communism?" In other words, why has not the CIA eliminated Castro? Because Cuba is to be under a press blackout from the US while it is being prepared as a staging base of attack into the US, even as the Canary Islands off the coast of Africa were used as a staging base for the Muslims fighting alongside of General Franco to overthrow "the communists" of the Spanish republic set up in 1931.

It appears the Order uses its "communist" KGB/SVR intelligence apparatus to suppress all nationalist movements in the East (Hungary, 1956; Czechoslovakia, 1968, etc.), and uses the "fascist-capitalist" CIA/MI6 apparatus in the West to suppress all nationalist movements in the West. And at the top both intelligence communites are in fact One United Intelligence Community controlled by Vatican Knights.

Lord Bless,

Brother Eric

Maximiliano - June 30, 2010 05:48 PM (GMT)

Don't forget that Pinochet and Allende was both freemasons working together.

kalongi - July 12, 2010 08:36 PM (GMT)

Fidel Castro Scheduled to Make Rare TV Appearance

Updated: 1 hour 17 minutes ago
http://www.aolnews.com/article/fidel-castr...arance/19550689

(July 12) -- Cuban leader Fidel Castro is scheduled to appear on television today to discuss what he sees as dangerous developments in the Middle East.

Reuters, citing the online Communist Party newsletter Granma, reported that the 83-year-old Castro will discuss what he considers risky actions on the international front that could spark a nuclear war.

Castro, who fell ill in 2006 and later handed over the government to his brother Raul, has made a point in recent Granma postings of discussing the dangers of a nuclear war breaking out in the Middle East.

In a July 5 entry in his regular "Reflections" opinion column, after discussing the U.S., Israel and Iran, Castro declares "there is no alternative other than to confront the consequences of the catastrophic nuclear war which will erupt in a very short time."

In a reference to the U.S., he also says, "The empire is at the point of committing an inestimable error without anybody being able to prevent it. It is advancing inexorably toward a disastrous fate."

Castro's appearance will be his second since Saturday, when three photographs of him posted on the Internet showed the usually reclusive leader smiling as he greeted workers at a scientific think tank.

The photos were said to have been taken the previous Wednesday in Havana.

Although still leader of Cuba's Communist Party, Castro seems to have made a point of staying out of public view since he underwent emergency intestinal surgery in July 2006.

But through his writings for Granma, he has continued to make his views clear, although they have seldom attracted much attention either in Cuba or internationally, Reuters reported.

His appearance on television later today, which will also be carried by Cuban radio stations, comes a week after Havana agreed to release 52 political activists after talks between Raul Castro, Cardinal Jaime Ortega of Cuba's Roman Catholic Church and Spanish Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Moratinos.

That development was seen as a positive step in Cuba's relations with the outside world, with Moratinos calling on the European Union to normalize its relations with Havana and saying there was now "no excuse" for Washington not to improve its ties.

kalongi - July 13, 2010 01:41 AM (GMT)

Fidel Castro back in view on Cuban TV

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
07/13/2010 03:02
http://www.jpost.com/Headlines/Article.aspx?id=181237

HAVANA - Fidel Castro appeared relaxed and lucid in his most prominent television interview in years Monday, though he spoke slowly and with a raspy voice in an appearance that thrust him back in the limelight after a long time spent out of public view.

It was not immediately clear if the broadcast was live, but Castro referred to a July 5 article as having been published six days ago, which would mean the show was taped on Sunday.

Castro spent the early moments of the interview reading from writings by US linguist Noam Chomsky and others, explaining why he thinks tension in Korea could ultimately trigger a world war.

Hosted for free by InvisionFree

View Full Version: The Secret History of the Jesuits, by Edmond Paris

Title: The Secret History of the Jesuits, by Edmond Paris

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:30 PM (GMT)

The Secret History of the Jesuits, by Edmond Paris

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword by Edmond Paris. 7

PartI The Founding of the Jesuit Order
1. Ignatius of Loyola. 15
2. The Spiritual Exercises. 20
3. The Founding of the Company. 23
4. The Spirit of the Order. 25
5. The Privileges of the Company. 28

Part II The Jesuits in Europe during the 16th and 17th Centuries.
1. Italy, Portugal, Spain. 31

2. Germany. 34
3. Switzerland. 38
4. Poland and Russia. 40
5. Sweden and England. 42
6. France. 45

Part III
Foreign Missions
1. India, Japan, China. 50
2. The Americas: The Jesuit State of Paraguay. 55

Part IV The Jesuits in the European Society
1. The teaching of the Jesuits. 59
2. The morals of the Jesuits. 63
3. The Eclipse of the Company. 67
4. Rebirth of the Society of Jesus during the 19th Century. 73
5. The Second Empire and the Falloux Law — The War of 1870. 76
6. The Jesuits in Rome — The Syllabus. 82
7. The Jesuits in France from 1870 until 1885. 88
8. The Jesuits and General Boulanger. 95
The Jesuits and the Dreyfus Affair.
9. The Years before the War — 1900-1914. 110
P art V The Infernal Cycle
1. The First World War. 116
2. Preparations for the Second World War. 123
3. German Aggression and the Jesuits. Austria - Poland - 139
Czechoslovakia - Yugoslavia.
4. The Jesuit movement in France before and during 155
the 1939-1945 War.
5. The Gestapo and the Society of Jesus. 163
6. The Death Camps and the Anti-Semitic Crusade. 172
7. The Jesuits and the Colleqium Russicum. 177
8. Pope John XXIII removes the mask. 183

Conclusion 191

Bibliography 199

Publisher's Introduction

There is no other person more qualified to introduce Edmond Paris' book, "The Secret History of the Jesuits," than Dr. Alberto Rivera, a former Jesuit priest under the extreme oath and induction, who was trained in the Vatican and briefed on the history of the Jesuits. The information in this book is factual and fully documented, and it should be read by every Bible-believing Christian in the United States and Canada. The Bible says, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." (Hosea 4:6)

J.T.C

Dr. Rivera's Introduction

The most dangerous of men are those who appear very religious, especially when they are organized and in a position of authority. They have the deep respect of the people who are ignorant of their ungodly push for power behind the scenes.

These religious men, who pretend to love God, will resort to murder, incite revolution and wars if necessary to help their cause. They are crafty, intelligent, smooth religious politicians who live in a shadowy world of secrets, intrigue, and phony holiness. This pattern, seen in "The Secret History of the Jesuits," spiritually speaking can be seen in the Scribes, Pharisees and Sadducees at the time of Jesus Christ. This same evil spirit directed the Roman emperors to issue the ten murderous decrees to persecute the early Christian church.

The "Early Fathers" observed most of the ancient Babylonian system plus Jewish theology and Greek philosophy. They all perverted most of the teachings of Christ and His apostles. They paved the way for the Roman Catholic machine that was to come into existence. Piously, they attacked, perverted, added to and took away from the Bible. This religious antichrist spirit working through them is seen again when Ignatius de Loyola created the Jesuits to secretly accomplish two major goals for the Roman Catholic Institution: 1) universal political power, and 2) a universal church, in fulfillment of the prophecies of Revelation 6, 13, 17 and 18.

By the time Ignatius de Loyola arrived on the scene, the Protestant Reformation had seriously damaged the Roman Catholic system. Ignatius de Loyola came to the conclusion that the only way his "church" could survive was by enforcing the canons and doctrines on the temporal power of the pope and the Roman Catholic institution; not by just destroying the physical life of the people alone as the Dominican priests were doing through the Inquisition, but by infiltration and penetration into every sector of life. Protestantism must be conquered and used for the benefit of the popes. That was Ignatius de Loyola's personal proposal, among others, to Pope Paul III. Jesuits immediately went to work secretly infiltrating ALL the Protestant groups including their families, places of work, hospitals, schools, colleges, etc. Today, the Jesuits have almost completed that mission.

The Bible puts the power of a local church into the hands of a Godly pastor. But the cunning Jesuits successfully managed over the years to remove that power into the hands of denomination headquarters, and have now pushed almost all of the Protestant denominations into the arms of the Vatican. This is exactly what Ignatius de Loyola set out to accomplish: a universal church and the end of Protestantism.

As you read "The Secret History of the Jesuits," you will see there is a parallel between the religious and political sectors. The author, Mr. Paris, reveals the penetration and infiltration of the Jesuits into the governments and nations of the world to manipulate the course of history by setting up dictatorships, and weakening democracies such as the United States of America, by paving the way for social, political, moral, military, educational and religious anarchy.

The man, Edmond Paris
In the prophetical works of the Book of Revelation, Edmond Paris became a martyr for Jesus. In exposing such a conspiracy, he put his life at stake for truth of the prophetical signs to be known. Edmond Paris never knew me, but I knew him without meeting him personally when I, with other Jesuits under the extreme oath and induction, was being briefed on the names of institutions and individuals in Europe who were dangerous to the goals of the Roman Catholic Institution. His name was given to us.

Foreword
A last century writer, Adolphe Michel, recalled that Voltaire estimated the number of works published over the years, on the Jesuits, to be about six thousand. "What number have we reached a century later?", asked Adolphe Michel, only to conclude immediately: "No matter. As long as there are Jesuits, books will have to be written against them. There is nothing new left to be said on their account, but new generations of readers come every day... Will these readers search old books?"(1)

The reason just mentioned would be enough to justify us taking up again this oft-told subject. In fact, most early books retracing the history of the Jesuits cannot be found any more. Only in public libraries can they still be consulted, which makes them out of reach for most readers. With the aim of succinctly informing the public at large in mind, a summary of these works seemed necessary.

There is another reason, as good as the one just mentioned. At the same time as new generations of readers come, new generations of Jesuits come to light. And these work today with the same tortuous and tenacious methods, which so often in the past set to work the defensive reflexes of nations and governments. The sons of Loyola are today—and may we say more than ever—the leading wing of the Roman Church. As well if not better disguised than of old, they remain the most eminent "ultramontanes", the discreet but efficacious agents of the Holy See throughout the world, the camouflaged champions of its politics, the "secret army of the Papacy". For this reason, the subject of the Jesuits will never be exhausted and, even though the literature concerning them is so plentiful, every epoch will have the duty to add a few pages to it, to mark the continuity of this occult system started four centuries ago "for the great glory of God", but in fact

(1) Adolphe Michel: "Les Jesuites" (Sandoz et Fischbacher, Paris 1879).

8

for the glory of the pope. In spite of the general move towards an ever increasing "laicization", in spite of the ineluctable progress of rationalism which reduces a little more every day the domain of "dogma", the Roman Church couldn't give up the great purpose which has been her goal from the beginning: to gather under her crozier all the nations of the universe. This monumental "mission" must go on, whatever happens, amongst "pagans" as well as amongst "separated Christians". The secular clergy having, in particular, the duty to hold the acquired positions (which is quite arduous nowadays), it is up to certain regular orders to increase the flock of the faithful by converting the "heretics" and "pagans", a work even more arduous. The duty is to preserve or acquire, to defend or attack, and at the front of the battle there is that mobile force of the "Society of Jesus"—the Jesuits. Properly speaking, this society is not secular, nor regular in terms of its Constitution, but a kind of subtle company intervening where and when it is convenient, in the church and outside the church, in short "the agent most skilful, most persevering, most fearless, most convinced of the papal authority...", as wrote one of its best historians.(2)

We will see how this body of "janissaries" was formed, what service without price it rendered the papacy. We will see also how so much effectual zeal was to make it indispensable to the institution it served, exerting such an influence over it that its General was named with good reason the "black pope", as it became more and more difficult to distinguish, in the government of the church, the authority of the white pope and that of its powerful coadjutor.

It is then at the same time a retrospective and a bringing up to date of the history of "Jesuitism" which is found in this book. As the majority of works regarding the Jesuits do not refer to the paramount part they took in the events which have subverted the world during the past fifty years, we thought it was time to fill up the gap or, more precisely, to start with our modest contribution a deeper study into the subject, and do this without concealing the obstacles which will be met by the non-apologist authors wanting to make public writings on this burning subject.

Of all the factors which have played a part in the international life of a century full of confusion and upheavals, one of the most decisive—nevertheless best recognized—resides in the ambition of the Roman Church. Her secular desire to extend her influence towards the East made her the "spiritual" ally of Pan-Germanism and its accomplice in the attempt to gain supreme power which twice, in 1914 and 1939, brought death and ruin to the peoples of Europe.(2a)

(2) A. Michel, op.cit.
(2a) See Edmond Paris: Le Vatican contre l'Europe (Fischbacher, Paris), (also P.T.S., London), and L. Duca "L'Or du Vatican" (Laffront, Paris).

9

The public is practically unaware of the overwhelming responsibility carried by the Vatican and its Jesuits in the start of the two world wars—a situation which may be explained in part by the gigantic finances at the disposition of the Vatican and its Jesuits, giving them power in so many spheres, especially since the last conflict.

In fact, the part they took in those tragic events has hardly been mentioned until the present time, except by apologists eager to disguise it. It is with the aim of rectifying this and establishing the true facts that we present in this and other books the political activity of the Vatican during the contemporary epoch—activity which mutually concerns the Jesuits. This study is based on irrefutable archive documents, publications from well-known political personalities, diplomats, ambassadors and eminent writers, most of whom are Catholics, even attested by the imprimatur.

These documents bring to light the secret actions of the Vatican and its perfidious actions in creating conflicts between nations when it served its interests. With the help of conclusive articles, we show the part played by the "church" in the rise of totalitarian regimes in Europe.

These testimonies and documents constitute a crushing indictment and, so far, no apologist has tried to disprove them.

On the first of May 1938, the "Mercure de France" reminded us of what had been said four years earlier:

"The Mercure de France of the 15th of January 1934 said—and nobody contradicted it—that it was Pius XII who 'made' Hitler. He came to power, not so much through legal means, but because the pope influenced the Centrum (german catholic party)... Does the Vatican think it made a political error in opening the way to power to Hitler? It doesn't seem so..."

It didn't seem so when that was written, which was on the day following the "Anschluss' when Austria was united to the third Reich—nor later when Nazi aggressions multiplied—nor during the whole of the Second World War. In fact, on the 24th of July 1959 the successor of Pius XII, John XXIII, conferred on his personal friend Franz Von Papen the honorary title of secret chamberlain. This man had been a spy in the United States during the first world war and one of those responsible for the Hitler's dictatorship and the Anschluss. One must suffer from a peculiar kind of blindness not to see such plain facts.

Mr. Joseph Rovan, Catholic writer, comments on the diplomatic agreement between the Vatican and the nazi Reich on the 8th of July 1933:

"The Concordat brought to the national-socialist government, considered nearly everywhere to be made up of usurpers, if not brigands, the seal of an agreement with the oldest international power (the Vatican). In a way, it was the equivalent of a diploma of international honorability". (Le catholicisme politique en Allemagne, Paris 1956, p.231, Ed. du Seuil).

Thus the Pope, not satisfied with giving his "personal" support to Hitler, granted in this way the moral support of the Vatican to the nazi Reich! At the same time as the terror was beginning to reign on the other side of the Rhine and was tacitly accepted and approved, the so-called "Brown shirts" had already put 40,000 persons into concentration camps. The pogroms were multiplying to the accents of this nazi march: "When the Jewish blood streams from the knife, we feel better again." (Horst-Wessel-Lied).

10

In the following years, Pius XII saw even worse without being stirred. It is not surprising that the catholic heads of Germany vied with each other in their servility towards the nazi regime, encouraged as they were by their Roman "Master". One must read the dishevelled ravings and verbal acrobatics of opportunist theologians such as Michael Schmaus. He was later made a "prince of the church" by Pius XII, and described as "the great theologian of Munich" by the publication "La Croix" on the 2nd of September 1954— or again a certain book entitled Katholisch-Konservatives Erbgut, of which someone wrote:

"This anthology brings together texts from the main Catholic theorists of Germany, from Gorres to Vogelsang; it makes us believe that nationalsocialism was born purely and simply out of Catholic ideas." (Gunther Buxbaum, "Mercure de France", 15th of January 1939).
The bishops, made to take an oath of allegiance to Hitler by the Concordat, always tried to excel each other in their "devotion": "Under the nazi regime, we constantly find the fervent support of the bishops in all the correspondence and declarations from ecclesiastical dignitaries". (Joseph Rovan, op.cit. p.214).

In spite of the obvious difference between Catholic universalism and hitlerian racism, these two doctrines had been "harmoniously reconciled)), according to Franz Von Papen; the reason for this scandalous accord was because "Nazism is a Christian reaction against the spirit of 1789".
Let us come back to Michael Schmaus, professor at the Faculty of Theology in Munich, who wrote:

"Empire and church is a series of writings which should help the building up of the third Reich as it unites a national-socialist State to Catholicchristianity... "Entirely German and entirely Catholic, these writings explore and favour relations and meetings between the Catholic Church and nationalsocialism; they open the way for a fruitful cooperation, as outlined in the Concordat... "The national-socialist movement is the most vigorous and massive protest against the spirit of the 19th and 20th centuries... The idea of a people of one blood is the focal point of its teachings and all Catholics who obey the instructions of the German bishops will have to admit that this is so... The laws of national-socialism and those of the Catholic Church have the same aim..." (Begegnungen zwischen Katholischem Christentum und nazional-sozialistischer Weltanschauung Aschendorff, Munster 1933).

11

This document proves the primordial part played by the Catholic Church in the rise to power of Hitler; in fact, it was a pre-established arrangement. It illustrates fully the kind of monstrous agreement between Catholicism and nazism. The hatred of liberalism, which is the key to everything, comes out very clearly.

In his book "Catholiques d'Allemagne", Mr Robert d'Harcourt of the French Academy writes:

"The most vulnerable point, in all the episcopal declarations which followed the triumphant elections of the 5th of March 1933, is found in the first official document from the church containing the signatures of all the German bishops. We are referring to the pastoral letter of the 3rd of June 1933, in which the whole of the German episcopate is involved.
"What form does this document take?" How does it start? On a note of optimism and with this cheerful declaration: 'The men at the head of this new government have, to our great joy, given us the assurance that they place themselves and their work on Christian ground. A declaration of such deep sincerity deserves the gratitude of all Catholics'. " (Paris, Plon, 1938, p. 10 .
Since the start of the first world war, several popes have come and gone, but their attitude has been invariably the same towards the two factions which confronted each other in Europe.

Many Catholic authors couldn't hide their surprise—and grief—when writing about the inhuman indifference shown by Pius XII in the face of the worst kind of atrocities committed by those in his favour. Amongst many testimonies, we will quote one of the most moderate in its wording, brought against the Vatican by Mr. Jean d'Hospital, correspondant of "Monde":

"The memory of Pius XII is surrounded with misgiving. First of all, there is this burning question asked by observers from every nation, and even within the walls of the Vatican: Did he know of certain atrocities committed during this war, started and led by Hitler?
"Having at his disposition at all times, and from every quarter, the regular reports from the bishops... could he ignore what the german military heads could never pretend to: the tragedy of the concentration camps—the civilians condemned to deportation—the cold-blooded massacres of those who 'stood in the way'—the terror of the gas chambers where, for administrative reasons, millions of Jews were exterminated? And if he knew about it why didn't he, as trustee and first chorister of the Gospel, come out dressed in white, arms extended in the shape of the cross, to denounce a crime without precedent, to shout: No!?...
"Pious souls will search in vain encyclical letters, speeches and addresses of the late pope; there is no trace of any condemnation of this 'religion of blood' instituted by Hitler, this Antichrist... they will not find the condemnation of racism, which is an obvious contradiction to the Catholic dogma". "Rome en confidence" (Grasset, Paris 1962, pp.91 ss).

12

In his book "Le silence de Pie XII" published by du Rocher, Monaco 1965, the author Carlo Falconi writes in particular:

"The existence of such monstrosities (exterminations en masse of ethnic minorities, prisoners and deported civilians) overthrows every standard of good and evil. They defy the dignity of their individual being and society in general to such an extent that we are compelled to denounce those who could have influenced public opinion, be they ordinary civilians or Heads of States.

"To keep quiet in the face of such outrages would amount in fact to downright collaboration. It would stimulate the villainy of the criminals, stirring up their cruelty and vanity. But, if every man has the moral duty to react when confronted with such crimes, it is doubly so of the religious societies and their heads, and above all the head of the Catholic Church.
"Pius XII never expressed a direct and explicit condemnation of the war of aggression, even less about the unspeakable crimes commited by the Germans or their accomplices during that war.

"Pius XII did not keep quiet because he did not know what was happening: he knew of the gravity of the situation from the start, maybe even better than any other head of state in the world..." (pp.12 ss).
There is better still! The Vatican gave a helping hand to the carrying out of these crimes by "lending" some of its prelates to be made into pro-nazi agents; these were Messeigneurs Hlinka and Tiso. It also sent to Croatia its own legate—R.P. Marcone—who, with the help of Monseigneur Stepinac, had to keep an eye on the "work" of Ante Pavelitch and his oustachis.

Wherever we look, the same "edifying" spectacle presents itself.
As we have already shown, it is not only this monstrous partiality and complacency that we object to. The Vatican's unpardonable crime lies in the decisive part played in the bringing about of two world wars.(3)
Listen to what Mr. Alfred Grosser, professor at the Institute of political studies of Paris University, says:

"The very concise book of Guenter Lewy "The Catholic Church and nazi Germany" (New York McGrawhill-1964) says that all the documents agree to show the Catholic Church cooperating with the Hitler regime...
"In July 1933, when the Concordat forced the bishops to swear an oath of allegiance to the nazi government, the concentration camps were already open... the reading of quotations compiled by Guenter Lewy proves this overwhelmingly. We find in them some crushing evidence from

(3) E. Paris, "The Vatican against Europe" (P.T.S. London)

13

personalities such as Cardinal Faulhaber and the Jesuit Gustav Gundlach."(4)

Only empty words can be found to oppose this stack of evidence which proves the culpability of the Vatican and its Jesuits. Their help was the main force behind the lightning rise of Hitler who, together with Mussolini and Franco, who in spite of appearances were but war pawns manipulated by the Vatican and its Jesuits.

The thurifers of the Vatican must bow their heads in shame when an Italian member of parliament cries out: "The pope's hands are dripping with blood". (Speech by Laura Diaz, member of parliament for Livourne, delivered at Ortona on the 15th of April 1946), or when the students of Cardiff University College choose as the theme for a conference: "Should the pope be brought to trial as a war criminal?" ("La Croix", 2nd of April 1946).
* * *
Here is how pope John XXIII expressed himself when referring to the Jesuits: "Persevere, dear sons, in the activities which have already brought you well-known merits.. In that way, you will gladden the Church and will grow with untiring ardour: the path of the just is as the light of dawn... "May that light grow and illuminate the moulding of the adolescents... In that way, you will help to carry out our spiritual wishes and concerns... "We give our Apostolic Blessing with all our heart to your Superior General, to you and your coadjutors, and to all the members of the Society of Jesus". And from pope Paul VI 5).

"From the time of its restoration, this religious family enjoys the sweet help of God, and has enriched herself very quickly with great progress... the members of the Society have accomplished many important deeds, all to the glory of God and for the benefit of the Catholic religion... the church needs soldiers of Christ with valour, armed with a dauntless faith, ready to confront difficulties... that is why we have great hope in the help your activity will bring... may the new era find the Society on the same honorable path it trod in the past...
"Given in Rome, near St. Peter, on the 20th of August 1964, during his second year as pope".(6)
• • •
On the 29th of October 1965, "l'Osservatore Romano" announced: "The Very Reverend Father Arrupe, General of the Jesuits, celebrated Holy Mass for the Ecumenical Council on the 16th of October 1965".

(4) Saul Friedlander: "Pie XII et le IIIe Reich", (Ed. du Seuil, Paris 1964)
(5) L'Osservatore Romano, 20th of October 1961.
(6) L'Osservatore Romano, 18th of September 1964.

14

Here is the apotheosis of "Papal ethics": the simultaneous announcement of a project to beatify Pius XII and John XXIII. "To strengthen ourselves in our striving for a spiritual renewal, we have decided to start the canonical proceedings for the beatification of these two great and godly pontiffs who are so dear to us".(7)

Pope Paul VI * * ♦
May this book reveal to all those who read it the true nature of this Roman Master, whose words are as "mellifluous" as his secret actions are ferocious.

(7) L'Osservatore Romano, 26th of November 1965.

Section I
The Founding of the Jesuit Order
Chapter 1
Ignatius of Loyola
The founder of the Society of Jesus, the Spanish Basque don Inigo Lopez de Recalde, was born at the castle of Loyola, in the province of Guipuzcoa, in 1491. He was one of the strangest types of monk-soldier ever engendered by the Catholic world; of all the founders of religious orders, he may be the one whose personality has left the strongest mark on the mind and behaviour of his disciples and successors. This may be the reason for that "familiar look" or "trade-mark", a fact which goes as far as physical resemblance. Mr. Folliet disputes this fact (1), but many documents prove the permanence of a "Jesuit" type through the ages. The most amusing of these testimonies is found at the Guimet museum; on the golden background of a 16th century screen, a Japanese artist portrayed, with all the humour of his race, the landing of the Portuguese, and of the sons of Loyola in particular, on the Nipponese islands. The amazement of this lover of nature and bright colours is obvious in the way he depicted those long, black shadows with their mournful faces on which is congealed all the arrogance of the fanatic ruler. The likeness between the work of the oriental artist of the 16th century and our Daumier of 1830 is there for all to see.

Like many other saints, Inigo—who later Romanised his name and became Ignatius—looked far from being the one predestined to enlighten his contemporaries (2). His stormy youth was filled with mistakes and even "heinous crimes". A police report said he was "treacherous, brutal, vindictive". All his biographers admit that he yielded to none of his boon companions regarding the violence of the instincts, then a common thing.

"An unruly and conceited soldier", said one of his confidants—"he led a disorderly life as far as women, gambling and duels were concerned",

(1) "La Croix", 31 st of July 1956.
(2) Like Saint Augustine, Saint Francis of Assisi and many others.

16

added his secretary Polanco (3). All this is related to us by one of his spiritual sons, R.P. Rouquette, who tried somewhat to explain and excuse this hot temper which was eventually turned "ad majorem Dei gloriam". (To the greater glory of God).

As is the case for many heroes of the Roman Catholic Church, a violent physical blow was necessary to change his personality. He had been pageboy to the treasurer of Castille until his master's disgrace. Then he became a gentleman in the service of the Viceroy of Navarre; having lived the life of a courtier until then, the young man started the life of a soldier by defending Pampeluna against the French commanded by the Count de Foix. The wound which decided his future life was inflicted during that siege. A leg broken by a bullet, he was taken by the victorious French to his brother Martin Garcia, at the castle of Loyola. Now starts the martyrdom of surgery without anaesthesia, through which he had to go a second time as the work had not been done properly. His leg was broken again and reset. In spite of all this, Ignatius was left with a limp. One can understand that he only needed an experience such as this to cause him a nervous breakdown. The "gift of tears" which was then bestowed on him "in abundance"—and in which his pious biographers see a favour from on high—is maybe only the result of his highly emotional nature, henceforth to affect him more and more.

His sole entertainment, while lying wounded and in pain, was the reading of the "Life of Christ" and the "Life of the Saints", the only books found in the castle.

As he was practically uneducated and still affected by that terrible shock, the anguish of Christ's passion and the martyrdom of the saints had an indelible impact on him; this obsession led the crippled warrior on to the road of apostolate.

"He put the books to one side and day-dreamed. A clear case of the wakeful dream, this was a continuation into the adult years of the imaginary game of the child... if we let it invade the psychic realm, the result is neurosis and surrender of the will; that which is real takes second place!..."(4)

At first sight, this diagnosis seems hardly to apply to the founder of such an active order, nor to other "great mystics" and creators of religious societies, all of whom had apparently great capacities for organization. But we find that all of them are unable to resist their over-active imaginations and, for them, the impossible becomes possible.

Here is what the same author says on this subject: "I want to point out the

(3) R.P. Jesuit Robert Rouquette, "Saint Ignace de Loyola" (Ed. Albin Michel, Paris 1944, p.6).
(4) R.P. Jesuit Robert Rouquette, op.cit., p.9.

17

obvious outcome of the practice of mysticism by someone possessing a brilliant intelligence. The weak mind indulging in mysticism is on dangerous ground, but the intelligent mystic presents a far greater danger, us his intellect works in a wider and deeper way... When the myth takes over from the reality in an active intelligence, it becomes mere fanaticism; an infection of the will which suffers from a partial enlargement or distortion".(5)

Ignatius of Loyola was a first-class example of that "active mysticism" and "distortion of the will". Nevertheless, the transformation of the gentlemenwarrior into the "general" of the most militant order in the Roman Church was very slow; there were many faltering steps before he found his true vocation. It is not our intention to follow him through all those different stages. Let us recall the main points: in the spring of 1522, he left the ancestral castle, with his mind made up to become a saint similar to those whose edifying exploits he had been reading about in that big "gothic" volume. Besides, did not the Madona herself appear to him one night, holding in her arms the child Jesus? After a thorough confession at the monastry of Montserrat, he was planning to go to Jerusalem. The plague was rife in Barcelona and, as all maritime traffic had stopped, he had to stay at Manresa for nearly a year. There, he spent his time in prayers, orisons, long fasts, flagellating himself, practicing all the forms of maceration, and never failing to appear before the "tribunal for penance", even though his confession at Montserrat had apparently lasted three whole days; such a thorough confession would have been sufficient to a less scrupulous sinner. All this depicts quite clearly the mental and nervous state of the man. At last delivered from that obsession of sin by deciding it was only a trick of Satan, he devoted himself entirely to the varied and plentiful visions which were haunting his feverish mind.

"It is because of a vision", says H. Boehmer, "that he started eating meat again; it is a whole series of visions that revealed to him the mysteries of the Catholic dogma and helped him to truly live it: in that way, he meditates upon the Trinity under the shape of a musical instrument with three cords; the mystery of the creation of the world through "something" hazy and light coming out of a ray of sunshine; the miraculous descent of Christ into the Eucharist as flashes of light entering the consecrated water, when the priest held it up while praying; the human nature of Christ and the holy Virgin under the form of a dazzling white body; and finally Satan as a serpentine and shimmering shape similar to a multitude of sparkling and mysterious eyes (6)." Is not this the start of the well-known Jesuitic image-making?

(5) Dr Legrain, "Le Mysticisme et la folie" (Ed. de l'ldee Libre, Herblay (S.-et-O.) 1931, pp. 14-16).

18

Mr. Boehmer adds that the deep meaning of the dogmas was revealed to him, as a special favour from on-high, through transcendental intuitions. "Many mysteries of Faith and science became suddenly clear to him and later he pretended to have learned more in those short moments than during the whole of his studies; however, he was never able to explain what these mysteries were which suddenly became clear to him. There was only a hazy recollection left, a feeling of something miraculous as if, at that moment, he had become "another man with another intelligence".(7)

All this may be the result of a nervious disorder and can be identified with what happens to smokers of opium and eaters of hashish: that enlargement or extension of the ego, that illusion of soaring up beyond what is real, a flashing sensation leaving only a dazed recollection.
Blissful visions and illuminations were constant companions of this mystic throughout his life.

"He never doubted the reality of these revelations. He chased Satan with a stick as he would have done a mad dog; he talked to the Holy Spirit as one does to another person actually; he asked for the approval of God, the Trinity and the Madonna on all his projects and would burst into tears of joy when they appeared to him. On those occasions, he had a foretaste of celestial bliss; the heavens were open to him, and the Godhead was visible and perceptible to him.(8)

Is not this the perfect case of an hallucinated person? It will be this same perceptible and visible Godhead that the spiritual sons of Loyola will constantly offer to the world—not only for political reasons, leaning on and flattering the deep-rooted inclination in the heart of man for idolatry— but also by conviction, having been well and truly indoctrinated. From the start, mediaeval mysticism has prevailed in the Society of Jesus; it is still the great animator, in spite of its readily assumed worldly, intellectual and learned aspects. Its basic axiom is: "All things to all men". The arts, literature, science and even philosophy have been mere means or nets to catch souls, like the easy indulgences granted by its casuists and for which laxity they were so often reproved. To this Order, there is not a realm where human weakness cannot be worked upon, to incite the spirit and will to surrender and go back to a more childish and restful devotion. So they work for the bringing about of the "kingdom of God" according to their own ideal: a great flock under the Holy Father's crozier. That learned men could have such an anachronic ideal seems very strange, yet it is undeniably so and the confirmation of an oft-disregarded fact: the pre-eminence of the emotions in the life of the spirit. Besides, Kant said that every philosophy is

(6) and (7) H. Boehmer, professor at the University of Bonn, "Les Jesuites" (Armand Colin, Paris 1910, pp. 12-13).
(8) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p. 14.

19

but the expression of the philosopher's temperament or character.
Apart from individual methods, the Jesuitic "temperament" seems more or less uniform amongst them. "A mixture of piety and diplomacy, asceticism and worldly wisdom, mysticism and cold calculation; as was Loyola's character, so is the trade-mark of this Order".(9).

In the first place, every Jesuit chose this particular Order because of his natural dispositions; but he really becomes a "son" of Loyola after rigorous tests and systematic training lasting no less than fourteen years.

In that way, the paradox of this Order has continued for four hundred years: an Order which endeavours to be "intellectual" but, simultaneously, has always been, within the Roman Church and society, the champion of the strictest disposition.

(9) J. Huber, professor of catholic theology in Munich, "Les Jesuites" (Sandoz et Fischbacher, Paris 1875, p. 127).

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:31 PM (GMT)

20 Section I
Chapter 2
The Spiritual Exercises

When the time came at last for Ignatius to leave Monresa, he couldn't foresee his destiny, but the anxiety concerning his own salvation was not his main concern any more; it is as a missionary, and not as a mere pilgrim, that he left for the Holy Land in March 1523. He arrived in Jerusalem on the 1st of September, after many adventures, only to leave again soon after, on the orders of the Franciscan's provincial who was not desirious to see the precarious peace between Christians and Turks endangered by an untimely proselytism.

The disappointed missionary passed through Venice, Genoa, and Barcelona on his way to the University of Alcala where he started theological studies; it is there also that his "cure of souls" amongst voluntary listeners began."In these conventicles, the most common manifestations of piety amongst the fair sex were fainting fits; by that, we realise how hard he applied his religious methods, and how such a fervent propaganda would soon arouse the curiosity and then the suspicion of the inquisitors... "In April 1527, the Inquisition put Ignatius in prison to try him on the grounds of heresy. The inquiry examined those peculiar incidents amongst his devotees, the strange assertions of the accused concerning the wonderful power his chastity conferred on him, and his bizarre theories on the difference between mortal and venial sins; these theories had striking affinities with those of Jesuit casuists of the subsequent epoch.(10)

Released but forbidden to hold meetings, Ignatius left for Salamanque and soon started the same activities. Similar suspicions amongst the inquisitors led to imprisonment again. Release was only on condition of desisting from such conduct. Thus it was, he journeyed to Paris to continue his studies at the college of Montaigu. His efforts to endoctrinate his fellow-students according to his peculiar methods brought him into trouble again with the Inquisition. Becoming more prudent, he met withjust six of his college friends, two of which will become highly esteemed recruits: Salmeron and Lainez.

(10) H. Boehmer, op.cit. pp.20-21, 25.

21

What did he have in himself that so powerfully attracted young people to an old student? It was his ideal and a little charm he carried on himself: a small book, in fact a very minute book which is, in spite of its smallness, amongst those which have influenced the fate of humanity. This volume has been printed so many times that the number of copies is unknown; it was also the object of more than 400 commentaries. It is the textbook of the Jesuits and at the same time the resume of the long inner development of their master: the "Spiritual Exercises".(11)

Mr Boehmer says later:

"Ignatius understood more clearly than any other leader of men who preceded him that the best way to raise a man to a certain ideal is to become master of his imagination. We "imbue into him spiritual forces which he would find very difficult to eliminate later", forces more lasting than all the best principles and doctrines; these forces can come up again to the surface, sometimes after years of not even mentioning them, and become so imperative that the will finds itself unable to oppose any obstacle, and has to follow their irresistible impulse".(12)

Thus all the "truths" of the Catholic dogma will have to be, not only meditated, but lived and felt by the one who devotes himself to these "Exercises", with the help of a "director". In other words, he will have to see and relive the mystery with the greatest possible intensity. The candidate's sensitiveness becomes impregnated with these forces whose persistence in his memory, and even more so in his subconscious, will be as strong as the effort he made to evoke and assimilate them. Beside sight, the other senses such as hearing, smell, taste and touch will play their part. In short, it is mere controlled auto-suggestion. The angels' rebellion, Adam and Eve driven out of Paradise, God's tribunal, the evangelical scenes and phases of the Passion are, as one would say, relived in front of the candidate. Sweet and blissful scenes alternate with the most sombre ones at a skilfully arranged rythm. No need to say that Hell has the prominent part in that "magic lantern show", with its lake of fire into which the damned are thrown, the awful concert of screams, the atrocious strench of sulphur and burning flesh. Yet Christ is always there to sustain the visionary who doesn't know how to thank him for not having thrown him already into hell to pay for his past sins.

Here is what Edgar Quinet wrote:
"Not only visions are pre-arranged, but also sighs, inhalings, breathing

(11) and (12) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.25, 34-35.

22

are noted down; the pauses and intervals of silence are written down like on a music sheet. In case you do not believe me, I will quote: "The third way of praying, by measuring the words and periods of silence". This particular manner of praying consists of leaving out some words between every breath; and a little further: "Make sure to keep equal gaps between every breath and choking sob and word". (Et paria anhelituum ac vocum interstitia observet), which means that the man, being inspired or not, becomes just a machine which must sigh, sob, groan, cry, shout or catch one's breath at the exact moment and in the order which experience shows to be the most profitable". (12a)

It is understandable that after four weeks devoted to these intensive Exercises, with a director as his only companion, the candidate would be ripe for the subsequent training and breaking.

This is what Quinet has to say when referring to the creator of such an hallucinatory method:

"Do you know what distinguishes him from all the ascetics of the past? The fact that he could observe and analyse himself logically and coldly in that state of rapture, while for all the others even the idea of reflection was impossible.

Imposing on his disciples actions which, to him, were spontaneous, he needed just thirty days to break, with this method, the will and reasoning, in the manner in which a rider breaks his horse. He only needed thirty days "triginta dies", to subdue a soul. Note that Jesuitism expanded together with modern inquisition: while the inquisition dislocated the body, the spiritual Exercises broke up the thoughts under Loyola's machine".(12b)

In any case, one could not examine his "spiritual" life too deeply, even without the honour of being a Jesuit; Loyola's methods are to be recommended to the faithful and ecclesiastics in particular, as we are reminded by commentators such as R.P. Pinard de la Boullaye, author of "Mental prayer for all"; inspired by saint Ignatius, this very valuable aid for the soul would, we think, be more explicit if the title read "alienation" instead of "prayer".

(12a) Michelet et Guinet: "Des Jesuites", (Hachette, Paulin, Paris 1845, pp.185-187). (12b) Michelet et Guinet: "Des Jesuites", (Hachette, Paulin, Paris, 1845, pp.185-187).

23

Section 1
Chapter 3
The founding of the Company
"The Society of Jesus" was constituted on Assumption Day in 1534, in the chapel of Notre-Dame de Montmartre.

Ignatius was then forty-four years old. After communion, the animator and his companions vowed to go to the Holy Land, as soon as their studies were finished, to convert the infidels. But the following year found them in Rome where the pope, who was then organising a crusade against the lurks with the German Emperor and the Republic of Venice, showed them how impossible their project was because of it. So Ignatius and his companions dedicated themselves to missionary work in Christian lands; in Venice, his apostolate roused again the suspicions of the Inquisition. The Constitution of the Company of Jesus was at last drafted and approved in Rome, by Paul III, in 1540, and the Jesuits put themselves at the disposition of the pope, promising him unconditional obedience, Teaching, confession, preaching and charitable work were the field of action for this new Order, but foreign missions were not excluded as, in 1541, Francis Xavier and two companions left Lisbon to go and evangelise the Far East. In 1546, the political side of their career was launched, when the pope chose Lainez and Salmeron to represent him at the Council of Trent in the capacity of "pontifical theologians".

Mr Boehmer writes:

"Then, the Order was employed by the pope only on a temporary basis. But it performed its functions with so much promptitude and zeal that, already under Paul III, it had implanted itself very firmly into all chosen kinds of activities and won the confidence of the Curia for all time".(12d)

This confidence was fully justified; the Jesuits, and Lainez in particular, together with their devoted friend Cardinal Morone, became the cunning and untiring champions of pontifical authority and intangibility of the (12d) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.47-48.

24

dogma, during the three sessions of that Council ending in 1562. By their clever manoeuvres and dialectics, they succeeded in defeating the opposition and all "heretic" claims including marriage of priests, communion with the two elements, use of the vernacular in services and, especially, reform of the papacy. Only the reform of convents was retained on the agenda. Lainez himself, by a forceful counter-attack, upheld pontifical infallibility which was promulgated three centuries later by the Vatican Council. (13) The Holy See emerged strengthened from the crisis where it nearly foundered, thanks to the steadfast actions of the Jesuits. The terms chosen by Paul III to describe this new Order in his Bull of Authorisation were then amply justified: "Regimen Ecclesiae militantis".

The fighting spirit developed more and more as time went on as, beside foreign missions, the activities of Loyola's sons started to concentrate on the souls of men, especially amongst ruling classes. Politics are their main field of action, as all the efforts of these "directors" concentrate on one aim: the submission of the world to the papacy, and to attain this the "heads" must be conquered first. And to realise this ideal? Two very important weapons: to be the confessors of the mighty and those in high places and the education of their children. In that way, the present will be safe while the future is prepared.

The Holy See soon realised the strength this new Order would bring. At first, the number of its members had been limited to sixty, but this restriction was promptly lifted. When Ignatius died, in 1556, his sons were working amongst pagans in India, China, Japan, the New World, but also and especially in Europe: France, Southern and Western Germany, where they fought against the "heresy", in Spain, Portugal, Italy and even England, getting in by way of Ireland. Their history, full of vicissitudes, will be of a "Roman" network they will constantly try to spread over the world, whose links will be forever torn and mended.

25

Section I
Chapter 4
The Spirit of the Order

"Let us not forget, writes the Jesuit Rouquette, that, historically, "ultramontanism" has been the practical affirmation of "universalism"... This necessary universalism would be an empty word if it did not result in a practical cohesion or obedience of Christianity: this is why Ignatius wanted this team to be at the disposition of the pope... and be the champion of catholic unity, unity which can be assured only through an effective submission to Christ's vicar".(13a)

The Jesuits wanted to impose this monarchical absolutism on the Roman Church and they maintained it in civil society as they had to look upon the sovereigns as temporal representatives of the Holy Father, true head of Christianity; as long as those monarchs were entirely docile to their common lord, the Jesuits were their most faithful supporters. On the other hand, if these princes rebelled, they found in the Jesuits their worst enemies.

In Europe, wherever Rome's interests required the people to rise against their king, or if these temporal princes had taken decisions embarrassing for the Church, the Curia knew she would not find more able, cunning, or daring outside the Society of Jesus when it came to intrigue, propaganda or even open rebellion".(14)

We have seen, through the spirit of the "Exercises", how the founder of this Company was behind his time in his simplistic mysticism, ecclesiastic discipline and, generally speaking, his conception of subordination. The "Constitutions" and "Exercises", fundamentals to this system, leave us without any doubts on that subject. No matter what his disciples may say—especially today as modern ideas on this subject are totally different—

(13a) R.P. Jesuit Rouquette, op.cit. p.44.
(14) Rene Fulop-Muler: "Les Jesuites et le secret de leur puissance" (Librairie Plon, Paris 1933. p.61).

26

obedience has a very special place, in fact incontestably the first, in the summary of the Order's rules. Mr. Folliet may pretend to see in it nothing more than "religious obedience", necessary to any congregation; R.P. Rouquette writes boldly: "Far from being a diminution of man, this intelligent and willing obedience is the height of freedom... a liberation from oneself s bondage..."; one only has to read those texts to perceive the extreme, if not monstrous character of this submission of soul and spirit imposed to the Jesuits, making them always docile instruments in their superiors' hands, and even more from their very beginning the natural ennemies of any kind of liberty.

The famous "perinde ac cadaver" (as a corpse in the undertaker's hands), can be found in all "spiritual literature", according to Mr. Folliet, and even in the East, in the Haschichins' Constitution; the Jesuits are to be in the hands of their superiors "as a staff obeying every impulse; as a ball of wax which can be shaped and stretched in any direction; as a small crucifix being lifted and moved at will"; these pleasant formulas are none the less very enlightening. Remarks and explanations from the creator of this Order leave us without any doubt as to their true meaning. Besides, amongst the Jesuits, not only the will, but also reasoning and even moral scruple, must be sacrificed to the primordial virtue of obedience which is, according to Borgia, "the strongest rampart of Society".

"Let us be convinced that all is well and right when the superior commands it", wrote Loyola. And again: "Even if God gave you an animal without sense for master, you will not hesitate to obey him, as master and guide, because God ordained it to be so."

And something even better: the Jesuit must see in his superior not a fallible man, but Christ Himself. J. Huber, professor of Catholic theology in Munich and author of one of the most important works on the Jesuits, wrote: "Here is a proven fact: the "Constitutions" repeat five hundred times that one must see Christ in the person of the General".(15)

The discipline of the Order, assimilated so often to that of the army, is then nothing compared to the reality. "Military obedience is not the equivalent of Jesuitic obedience; the latter is more extensive as it gets hold of the whole man and is not satisfied like the other, with an exterior act, but requires the sacrifice of the will and laying aside of one's own judgment".(16)

Ignatius himself wrote in his letter to the Portuguese Jesuits: "We must see black as white, if the Church says so".

Such is this "height of freedom" and "liberation from one's own bondage", praised earlier on by R.P. Rouquette. Indeed, the Jesuit is truly (15) J. Huber. "Les Jesuites" (Sandoz et Fischbacher, Paris 1875, pp. 71 & 73).

(16) J. Huber: "Les Jesuites" (Sandoz et Fischbacher, Paris 1875, pp. 71 & 73).

27 liberated from himself as he is totally subjected to his masters; any doubt or scruple would be imputed to him as sin.

Mr. Boehmer writes:

"In the additions to the "Constitutions", the superiors are advised to command the novices, as God did with Abraham, things apparently criminal, to prove them; but they must proportion these temptations to each one's strength. It is not difficult to imagine what could be the results of such an education".(17)

The Order's life of ups and downs—there is not one country from which it wasn't expelled—testifies that these dangers were recognised by all governments, even the most Catholic. By introducing men so blindly devoted to their cause to teaching among the higher classes, the Company—champion of universalism, therefore ultra-montanism—was inevitably recognised as a threat to civil authority, as the activity of the Order, by the mere fact of their vocation, turned more and more towards politics.

In a parallel way, what we call the Jesuitic spirit was developing amongst its members. Nevertheless, the founder, inspired mainly by the needs of foreign and home "missions", had not neglected skilfulness. He wrote in his "Sententiae asceticae": "A clever carefulness together with a mediocre purity is better than a greater holiness coupled with a less perfect skilfulness. A good shepherd of souls must know how to ignore many things and pretend not to understand them. Once he is master of the wills, he will be able wisely to lead his students wherever he may choose. People are entirely absorbed by passing interests, so we must not speak to them too pointedly about their souls: it would be throwing the hook without the bait".

Even the desired countenance of Loyola's sons was emphatically stated: "They must hold their heads slightly down, without bending it to the left or right; they must not look up, and when they speak to someone, they are not to look them straight in the eyes so as to see them only indirectly..."(1 Loyola's successors retained this lesson well in their memory, and applied it very extensively in the pursuit of their plans.

size-1 Gabriel Monod, in Introduction aux "Jesuites", de H. Boehmer, p. XVI (Armand Colin, Paris) (1 Pierre Dominique: "La politique des Jesuites" (Grasset, Paris 1955, p.37).</ span>

28

Section I
The privileges of the Company

After 1558, Lainez, the subtle tactician of the Council of Trent, was made general of the Congregation with the power to organise the Order as he was inspired. The "Declarations" which he himself composed with Salmeron, were added to the "Constitutions" to form a commentary; they accentuated even more the despotism of the general elected for life. An admonitor procurator and assistants, residing in Rome too, will help him generally to administer the Order divided then into five congregations: Italy, Germany France, Spain, England and America. These congregations were themselves divided into Provinces grouping the different establishments of the Order. Only the admonitor (or overseer) and assistants are nominated by the Congregation. The general appoints all other officials, promulgates the ordinances which are not to modify the Constitutions, administers the wealth of the Order according to his own wishes and directs its activities for which he is responsible to the pope only.

To this militia so tightly knit in the hand of its chief and which needs the greatest autonomy to make its actions effective, the pope concedes privileges which may seem exorbitant to other religious Orders.
By their Constitutions, the Jesuits were exempt from the cloistered rule which applied to monastic life in general. In fact, they are monks living "in the world" and, outwardly, nothing distinguishes them from the secular clergy. But, contrary to this and other religious congregations, they are not subjected to the bishop's authority. As early as 1545, a bull of Paul II enabled them to preach, hear confession, dispense the sacraments, and say mass; in short, exercise their ministry without having to refer to the bishop The solemnisation of marriages is the only thing they are not allowed to perform.

They have the power to give absolution, change vows for others which are easier to fulfil, or even cancel them.

Mr Gaston Bally writes:

29

"The general's power concerning absolution and dispensations is even wider. He can lift all punishment inflicted on the members of the Society before or after them entering the Order, absolve all their sins, even the sin of heresy and schism, the falsification of apostolic writings, etc...
"The general absolves, in person or through a delegate, all those who are under his obedience, of the unhappy state arising from excommunication, suspension or interdict, provided these censures were not inflicted for excesses so enormous that others, beside the papal tribunal, knew about them.
He also absolves the irregularity issuing, from bigamy, injuries done to others, murder, assassination... as long as these wicked deeds were not publicly known and the cause of a scandal".(19)

Finally, Gregory XIII bestowed on the Company the right to deal in commerce and banking, a right it made use of extensively later on.
These dispensations and unprecedented powers were fully guaranteed to them.

"The popes called even upon princes and kings to defend these privileges; they threatened with the great excommunication "latae sententiae" all those who would try to infringe them. In 1574, a bull of Pius V gave the general the right to restore these privileges to their original scope, against all tempts to alter or curtail them, even if such curtailments were authoritatively documented by papal revocation...
By granting the Jesuits such exorbitant privileges which run counter to the Church's antiquated constitution, the papacy wanted, not only to supply them with powerful weapons to fight the "Infidels", but especially use them as a bodyguard to defend her own unrestricted power in the Church and against the Church". "To preserve the spiritual and temporal supremacy they usurped during the middle ages, the popes sold the Church to the Order of Jesus and, in consequence, surrendered themselves into their hands... If the papacy was supported by the Jesuits, the whole existence of the Jesuits depended on the spiritual and temporal supremacy of the papacy. In that way, the interests of both parties were intimately bound together".(20)

But this select cohort needed secret auxiliaries to dominate civil society: this role fell on those affiliated to the Company called Jesuits. "Many important people were connected in that way with the Society: the emperors Ferdinand II and Ferdinand III, Sigismond III, king of Poland, who had officially belonged to the Company; Cardinal Infant, a duke of Savoy. And these were not the least useful".(21)

(19) Gaston Bally: "Les Jesuites" (Chambery, Imprimerie Nouvelle, 1902, pp.11-13).
(20)
Gaston Bally, op.cit., pp.9-10, 16-17.
(21) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.37.

30

It is the same today; the 33,000 official members of the Society operate all over the world in the capacity of her personnel, officers of a truly secret army containing in its ranks heads of political parties, high ranking officials, generals, magistrates, physicians, Faculty professors, etc., all of them striving to bring about, in their own sphere, "l'Opus Dei", God's work, in reality the plans of the papacy.

31

Section II
The Jesuits in Europe during the 16th and 17th centuries
Chapter 1

Italy, Portugal, Spain
"France", wrote Mr. Boehmer, "is the cradle of the Society of Jesus, but in Italy it received its programme and constitution. Therefore in Italy it first took root and from there it spread abroad".(1)

The author notes the increasing number of colleges and Jesuit academies (128 and 1680); "but", says he, "the history of Italian civilisation during the 16h and 17th centuries shows the results of it most strikingly. If a welllearned Italy thus embraced again the faith and ordinances of the Church, received a new zeal for asceticism and missions, composed again pious poems and hymns for the Church, dedicated conscientiously the painters' brushes and sculptors' chisels to exalt the religious ideal, is it not because the cultivated classes were instructed in Jesuits' colleges and confessionals?"(2)

Gone were "childish simplicity, joy, vivacity and the simple love of nature..."

The Jesuits' pupils are far too clerical, devout, absorbed to preserve these qualities. They are taken up with ecstatic visions and illuminations; they literally get drunk with the paintings of frightful mortifications and the martyrs' atrocious torments; they need the pomp, glittering and theatrical. From the end of the 16th century on, Italian art and literature reproduce faithfully this moral transformation... The restlessness, the ostentation, the shocking claim which characterise the creations of that period promote a feeling of repulsion instead of sympathy for the beliefs they are supposed to interpret and glorify".(3)

It is the mark sui generis of the Company. This love for the distorted, finicky, glittering, theatrical could seem strange amongst mystics formed by the "Spiritual Exercises" if we did not detect in it this essentially

(1) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p.82.
(2) and (3) Boehmer, op.cit., p.82-83.

32

Jesuitical aim to impress the mind. It is an application of the maxim: "The end justifies the means" applied with perseverance by the Jesuits in the arts, literature as well as politics and morals.

Italy had been hardly touched by the Reformation. Nevertheless, the Waldenses, who had survived since the middle ages in spite of persecutions and established themselves in the north and south of the peninsula, joined the Calvinist Church in 1532. On a report from the Jesuit Possevino, Emmanuel Philibert of Savoy launched another bloody persecution against his "heretic" subjects in 1561. The same thing happened in Calabria, at Casal di San Sisto and Guardia Fiscale. "The Jesuits were implicated in these massacres; they were busy converting the victims..."(4)

As for Father Possevino: "... he followed the Catholic army as their chaplain, and recommended the extermination by fire of the heretic pastors as a necessary and holy act".(5)

The Jesuits were all powerful in Parma, at the court of the Farnese, as well as in Naples during the 16th and 17th centuries. But in Venice, where they had been loaded with favours, they were banished on the 14th of May 1606, "as the most faithful servants and spokesmen of the pope..."

They were nevertheless allowed to return in 1656, but their influence in the Republic was to be from now on but a shadow of the one they had in the past.

Portugal was a choice country for the Order. "Already under John III (1521-1559), it was the most powerful religious community in the kingdom".(6) Its influence grew even more after the revolution of 1640 which put the Braganza on the throne. "Under the first king of the house of Braganza, Father Fernandez was a member of the government and, under the minority of Alphonse VI, the counsellor most heeded by the regent Queen Louise. Father de Ville was successful in overthrowing Alphonse VI in 1667, and Father Emmanuel Fernandez was made a deputy to the "Cortes" in 1667 by the new King Peter II... In spite of the fact that the Fathers were not fulfilling any public duty in the kingdom, they were more powerful in Portugal than in any other country. Not only were they spiritual advisers to all the royal family, but the king and his minister consulted them in all important circumstances. From one of their own testimonies, we know that not one place in the administration of the State and Church could be obtained without their consent; so much so that the clergy, the high classes and the people contended with each other to win their favours and approval. Foreign politics were also under their influence. Any sensible man would see that such a state of affairs was

(4) J. Huber, op.cit., p. 165.
(5) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p.89.
(6) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.85, 86, 87, 88.

33

unprofitable to the good of the kingdom".(7)

In fact, we can see the results by the decadent state into which this unfortunate land fell. All the energy and perspicacity of the marquess of Pombal, in the middle of the 18th century, were needed to tear Portugal out of the Order's deadly grip.

In Spain, the Order's penetration was slower. The higher clergy and the Dominicans opposed it for a long time. The sovereigns themselves, Charles V and Philip II, while accepting their services, distrusted these soldiers of the pope and feared encroachments on their authority. But, with much craftiness, the Order eventually defeated this resistance. "During the 17th century, they are all-powerful in Spain, among the high classes and at Court. Even Father Neidhart, former German cavalry officer, fully governed the kingdom as Counsellor of State, prime minister and Grand Inquisitor... In Spain as in Portugal, the kingdom's ruin coincided with the rise of the Order..."(8).

This is what Edgar Quinet had to say about it:

"Wherever a dynasty dies, I can see, rising up and standing behind her, a kind of bad genie, one of those dark figures that are the confessors, gently and paternally luring her towards death..."(9)

Indeed, one cannot impute Spain's decadence to this Order only. "Nevertheless, it is true that the Company of Jesus, together with the Church and other religious orders, hastened her fall; the richer the Order became, the poorer Spain was, so much so that when Charles II died, the State's coffers did not even contain the necessary amount to pay for 10,000 masses usually said for the salvation of a deceased monarch's soul."(10)

(7) and (8) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.85, 86, 87, 88.
(9) Michelet et Quinet, op.cit., p.259.
(10) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.85, 86, 87, 88.

34 Section II
Chapter 2
Germany

"It was not southern Europe, but central Europe: France, Holland, Germany, Poland, which were the site for that historical struggle between Catholicism and Protestantism. So these countries were the main fields of battle for the Society of Jesus." (11)

The situation was particularly grave in Germany. "Not only notorious pessimists, but also thinking and wise Catholics considered the old church's cause in all German lands as almost lost. In fact, even in Austria and Bohemia, the break with Rome was so general that the Protestants could reasonably hope to conquer Austria within a few decades. Then how is it this change did not take place and the country was divided into two sections instead? The Catholic party, at the close of the 16th century, had no hesitation in answering this question, for it always acknowledged that the Witelsbach, Habsburg and Jesuits were responsible for this happy turn of events."(12)

Rene Fulop-Miller wrote about the Jesuits' role in these events: "The Catholic cause could hope for a real success only if the Fathers were able to influence and guide the princes, at all times and in all circumstances. The confessionals offered the Jesuits the means to secure a lasting political influence, therefore an effectual action" .(13)

In Bavaria, the young duke Albert V, son of a zealous Catholic and educated at Ingolstadt, the old Catholic city, called on the Jesuits to combat effectively the heresy:

"On the 7th of July 1556, 8 Fathers and 12 Jesuit teachers entered Ingolstadt. It was the start of a new era for Bavaria... the State itself received a new Seal.... the Roman Catholic conceptions directed the politics of princes and the behaviour of the high classes. But this new spirit got hold (11) and (12) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.89, 104, ,112, 114. (13) Rene Fulop-Miller, op.cit., II, pp.98, 102.

35

of the higher classes only. It did not gain the hearts of ordinary people... Nevertheless, under the iron discipline of the State and the restored Church, they again became devout Catholics, docile, fanatic, and intolerant towards any heresy..."

"It may seem excessive to attribute such prodigious virtues and actions to a mere handful of strangers. Yet, in these circumstances, their force was in inverse ratio to their numbers and they were immediately effective as no obstacles were met. Loyola's emissaries won the country's heart and mind from the start... From the next generation on, Ingolstadt became the perfect type of the german Jesuit city".(14) One can judge the state of mind the Fathers introduced to this stronghold of faith by reading the following:

"The Jesuit Mayrhofer of Ingolstadt taught in his "Preacher's mirror": "We will not be judged if we demand the killing of Protestants, any more than we would by asking for the death penalty on thieves, murderers, counterfeiters and revolutionaries."(15)

The successors of Albert V, and especially Maximilian I (1597-1651), completed his work. But Albert V already was conscientious in his "duty" of assuring his subjects' "salvation".

"As soon as the Fathers arrived in Bavaria, his attitude towards Protestants and those favourable to them became more severe. From 1563 on, he pitilessly expelled all recalcitrants, and had no mercy for the anabaptists who had to suffer drownings, fire, prison and chains, all of which were praised by the Jesuit Agricola... In spite of all this, a whole generation of men had to disappear before the persecution was crowned a complete success. As late as 1586, the moravian anabaptists managed to hide 600 victims from the duke Guillaume. This one example proves that there were thousands and not hundreds who were driven out, an awful breach into a thinly populated country.

"But", said Albert V to the Munich City council, "God's honour and the salvation of souls must be placed above any temporal interests". 16)

Little by little, all teaching in Bavaria was placed in the Jesuits' hands, and that land became the base for their penetration in eastern, western and northern Germany.

"From 1585 on, the Fathers converted the part of Westphalia depending on Cologne; in 1586, they appear in Neuss and Bonn, one of Cologne's archbishop's residences; they open colleges at Hildesheim in 1587 and Munster in 1588. This particular one already had 1300 pupils in 1618... A large part of western Germany was reconquered in that way by Catholicism,

(14) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.89, 104, 112, 114.
(15)Rene Fulop-Miller, op.cit., II, pp.98, 102.
(16) H.Boehmer, op.cit., pp.89, 104, 112, 114.

36

thanks to the Wittelsbach and Jesuits.

"The alliance between the Wittelsbach and Jesuits was maybe even more important for the "Austrian lands" than for western Germany".(17)

The archduke Charles of Styrie, last son of emperor Ferdinand, married in 1571 a Bavarian princess "who brought into Gratz castle the narrow Catholic tendencies and the friendship for the Jesuits which prevailed at the Court of Munich". Under her influence, Charles worked hard to "extirpate the heresy" from his kingdom and when he died, in 1590, he made his son and successor, Ferdinand, swear that he would go on with this work. In any case, Ferdinand was well prepared for this. "For five years, he had been a pupil of the Jesuits at Ingolstadt; besides, he was so narrow-minded that, to him, there was no nobler task than the reestablishment of the Catholic Church in his hereditary States. That this task was advantageous or not to his lands was of no concern to Him. "I prefer", said he, "to reign over a country in ruins, than over one which is damned". (18)

In 1617, the archduke Ferdinand was crowned king of Bohemia by the emperor. "Influenced by his Jesuit confessor Viller, Ferdinand started at once to combat Protestantism in his new kingdom. This signalled the start of that bloody war of religion which, for the next thirty years, kept Europe in suspense. When, in 1618, the unhappy events in Prague gave the signal for open rebellion, the old emperor Mathias tried at first to compromise, but he did not have enough power to make his intentions prevail against king Ferdinand, who was dominated by his Jesuit confessor; so, the last hope to settle this conflict amicably was lost". "At the same time, the lands of Bohemia had taken special measures and solemnly decreed that all Jesuits should be expelled, as they saw in them promoters of civil war".(19)

Soon after, Moravia and Silesie followed this example, and Protestants of Hungary, where the Jesuit Pazmany ruled with a rod of iron, rebelled also. But the battle of the White Mountain (1620) was won by Ferdinand, who had been made emperor again after the death of Mathias.

"The Jesuits persuaded Ferdinand to inflict the most cruel punishment on the rebels; Protestantism was rooted out of the whole country by means too terrible for words... At the end of the war, the country's material ruin was complete".

"The Jesuit Balbinus, Bohemia's historian, wondered how there could still be some inhabitants left in that country. But moral ruin was even more terrible... The flourishing culture found amongst the nobles and middle classes, the rich national literature which could not be replaced: all this had been destroyed, and even nationality had been abolished. Bohemia was open to the Jesuits' activities and they burned Czech literature en-masse; under their influence, even the name of the nation's great saint: John Huss, gradually grew dimmer until it was extinct in the hearts of the people... "The height of the Jesuits' power", said Tomek, "coincided with the country's greatest decadence in her national culture; it is because of the influence that Order had, that this unfortunate land's awakening came about one century too late..."

(17) and (18) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.117, 120. (19) J. Huber, op.cit., pp. 180-183.

37

"When the Thirty Years War came to an end, and a peace was concluded assuring German Protestants the same political rights enjoyed by the Catholics, the Jesuits did their uttermost to continue the fighting; it was in vain".(20)

But they obtained from their student Leopold the First, then reigning emperor, the promise to persecute the Protestants in his own lands, and especially in Hungary. "Escorted by imperial dragoons, the Jesuits undertook this work of conversion in 1671. The Hungarians rose to action and started a war which was to last for nearly a whole generation... But that insurrection was victoroius, under the leadership of Francis Kakoczy. The victor wanted to drive the Jesuits out of all the countries which fell under his power; but influencial protectors of the Order managed to adjourn these measures, and the expulsion did not take place until 1707...
"Prince Eugene blamed, with a harsh frankness, the politics of the imperial house and the intrigues of the Jesuits in Hungary. He wrote: "Austria nearly lost Hungary because of their persecuting of the Protestants". One day, he bitterly exclaimed that the morals of the Turks were far superior to those of the Jesuits, in practice at least. "Not only do they want to dominate consciences, but also to have the right of life and death over men".

"Austria and Bavaria reaped the fruits of Jesuit domination in full: the compression of all progressive tendencies and the systematic stultification of the people".
"The deep misery which followed the war of religion, the powerless politics, the intellectual decadence, the moral corruption, a frightful decrease in the population and impoverishment of the whole of Germany: these were the results of the Order's actions".(21)

(20) Rene Fulop-Miller, op.cit., II, pp. 104-105.
(21) J. Huber, op.cit., pp.183-186.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:32 PM (GMT)

38 Section II
Chapter 3
Switzerland

It was only during the 17th century that the Jesuits succeeded in establishing themselves successfully in Switzerland, after having been called, then banished, by a few cities of the Confederation, during the second half of the 16th century.

The archbishop of Milan, Charles Borromee, who had favoured their installation at Lucerne in 1578, soon realised what the results of their actions would be, as we are reminded by J. Huber: "Charles Borromee wrote to his confessor that the Company of Jesus, governed by heads more political than religious, is becoming too powerful to preserve the necessary moderation and submission... She rules over kings and princes, and governs temporal and spiritual affairs; the pious institution has lost the spirit which animated her originally; we shall be compelled to abolish it".(22)

At the same time in France, the famous legal expert Etienne Pasquiet wrote: "Introduce this Order in our midst and, at the same time, you will introduce dissension, chaos and confusion".(23)

Is it not this identical complaint heard over and over again, and in all countries, against the Company? It was the same in Switzerland, when the evidence of her evil deeds broke through the flattering appearances with which she excelled in covering herself.

"Wherever the Jesuits managed to take root, they seduced great and small, young and old. Very soon, the authorities would start consulting them in important circumstances; their donations started flowing in, and it was not long before they occupied all the schools, the pulpits of most churches, the confessionals of all high ranking and influential people

(22) J. Huber op.cit., p.131.
(23) Cite by H. Fulop-Miller: "Les Jesuites et le secret de leur puissance" (Plon, Paris 1933 p.57)

39

Confessors looking after the education of all classes of Society, counsellors and intimate friends of members of the Council, their influence grew day after day, and they did not wait long before exercising it in public affairs. Lucerne and Fribourg were their main centres; from there, they conducted the exterior politics of most Catholic cantons...

"Any plan forged in Rome, or by other foreign powers, against Protestantism in Switzerland was assured of the Jesuits' full support...
"In 1620, they were successful in making the Catholic population of the Veltlin rise against the Protestants and they slaughtered six hundred. The pope gave indulgence to all those who took part in that horrible deed.
"In 1656, they kindled civil war between members of the various confessions... Later again a new war of religion was started by the Jesuits.
"In 1712, peace was being discussed in Aarau; Lucerne and Uri had just accepted it when the Jesuits, on an order from Rome, did all they could to reverse things. They refused absolution to all those who would hesitate to take up arms. They proclaimed loudly from their pulpits that one was not obliged to keep his word, when it was given to heretics; they made moderate councillors to suspect, tried to remove them from their posts and provoked, in Lucerne, such a threatening uprising of the people against the government that the supreme authority resigned herself to break the peace. The Catholics were defeated in the fight which followed and signed an ponerous peace.

Since that time, the Order's influence in Switzerland became smaller and smaller".(24)

Today, article 51 of the Swiss constitution forbids the Society of Jesus to hold any cultural or educative activity on the territory of the Confederation, and efforts made to abolish this rule have always been defeated.

(24) J. Huber, op.cit., pp.188 ss.

40

Section II
Chapter 4
Poland and Russia

Jesuit domination was nowhere as deadly as it was in Poland. This is proved by H. Boehmer, a moderate historian who does not bear any systematic hostility towards the Society.

"The Jesuits were entirely responsible for Poland's annihilation. The accusation so worded is excessive. The decadence of the Polish State had started before they came on the scene. But they undoubtedly hastened the kingdom's decomposition. Of all the States, Poland, who had millions of orthodox Christians in her midst, should have had religious tolerance as one of the most essential principles of her interior politics. The Jesuits did not allow that. They did worse: they put Poland's exterior politics at the service of Catholic interests in a fatal manner".(25)

This was written at the end of the last century; it is very similar to what Colonel Beck, former Polish Foreign-Affairs minister from 1932 to 1939 said after the 1939-1945 war:

"The Vatican is one of the main causes of the tragedy of my country. I realised too late that we had pursued our foreign politics just to serve the interests of the Catholic Church".(26)

So, with several centuries in-between, the same disastrous influence has made its mark once again on that unfortunate nation.

In 1581 already, Father Possevino, pontifical legate in Moscow, has done his best to bring together the Czar Ivan the Terrible and the Roman Church. Ivan was not strictly against it. Full of glad hopes, Possevino made himself, in 1584, the mediator of the peace of Kirewora Gora between Russia and Poland, a peace which saved Ivan from inextricable difficulties This is just what the crafty sovereign had hoped for. There was no more talk of converting the Russians. Possevino had to leave Russia without having

(25) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p.135.
(26) Declaration of the 6th of February 1940.

obtained anything. Two years later, an even better opportunity offered itself to the Fathers to get a hold on Russia: Grischka Ostrepjew, an unfrocked monk, revealed to a Jesuit that he actually was Dimitri, son of Czar Ivan, who had been assassinated; he declared himself ready to subdue Moscow for Rome if he was master of the Czars' throne. Without thinking it over first, the Jesuits took it into their hands to introduce Ostrepjew to the Palatine of Sandomir who gave him his daughter in marriage; they spoke on his behalf to King Sigismond III and the pope regarding his expectations, and succeeded in making the Polish army rise against the Czar Boris Godounov. As a reward for these services, the false Dimitri renounced the religion of his fathers at Crascovie, one of the Jesuits' houses, and promised the Order an establishment in Moscow, near the Kremlin, after his victory over Boris.

"But it was these favours from the catholics which unleashed the hatred of the Russian Orthodox Church against Dimitri. On the 27th of May 1606, he was massacred with several hundred Polish followers. Until then, one could hardly speak of a Russian national sentiment; but now, this feeling was very strong and took immediately the form of a fanatical hatred for the Roman Church and Poland.

"The alliance with Austria and the offensive politics of Sigismond III against the Turks, all of which were strongly encouraged by the Order, were just as disastrous for Poland. To put it briefly, no other State suffered as much as Poland did under the Jesuits' domination. And in no other country, apart from Portugal, was the Society so powerful. Not only did Poland have a 'king of the Jesuits', but also a Jesuit King, Jean-Casimir, a sovereign who had belonged to the Order before his accession to the throne in 1649...
"While Poland was heading fast towards ruin, the number of Jesuit establishments and schools was growing so fast that the General made Poland into a special congregation in 1751 ".(27)

(27) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p.135 ss.

42

Section II
Chapter 5
Sweden and England

"In the Scandinavian countries", wrote Mr. Pierre Dominique, "Lutheranism submerged everything else and, when the Jesuits made their counter-attack, they did not find what was found in Germany: a Catholic party already in the minority, but still strong".(28)

Their only hope then was in the conversion of the sovereign who was secretly in favour of Catholicism; also, this king, Jean III Wasa, had married in 1568 a Polish princess, Catherine, a Roman Catholic. In 1574, Father Nicolai and other Jesuits were brought to the recently established school of theology where they became fervent Roman proselytizers, while officially assuming Lutheranism. Then, the clever negotiator Possevino secured the conversion of Jean III and the care of educating his son Sigismond, the future Sigismond III, king of Poland. When the time came to submit Sweden to the Holy See, the king's conditions: marriage of priests, use of the vernacular in services and communion in both kinds, all of which had been rejected by the Roman Curia, brought the negotiations to a dead end. In any case, the king, who had lost his first wife, had remarried a Swedish Lutheran. The Jesuits had to leave the country.

"Fifty years later, the Order won another great victory in Sweden. Queen Christine, daughter of Gustave-Adolphe, the last of the Wasas, was converted under the teaching of two Jesuit professors, who had managed to reach Stockholm pretending to be travelling Italian noblemen. But, in order to change her religion without conflicts, she had to abdicate on the 24th of June 1654".(29)

In England, on the other hand, the situation seemed more faviourable to the Society and it could hope, for a while at least, to bring this country back under the Holy See's jurisdiction.

(28) Pierre Dominique, op.cit, p.76.
(29) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.137, 138, 139.

43

"When Elizabeth came to the throne in 1558, Ireland was still entirely Catholic and England 50 per cent so... In 1542 already, Salmeron and Broet had been sent by the pope to survey Ireland".(30)

Seminaries had been created under the Jesuits' direction in Douai, Pont-a-Mousson and Rome, with a view to train English, Irish and Scottish missionaries. In agreement with Philip II of Spain, the Roman Curia worked at overthrowing Elizabeth in favour of the Catholic Mary Stuart. An Irish uprising, provoked by Rome, had been crushed. But the Jesuits, who had arrived in England in 1580, took part in a large Catholic assembly at Southwark.

"Then, under diverse disguises, they spread from county to county, from country house to castle. In the evening, they would hear confession; in the morning, they would preach and give communion, then they would disappear as mysteriously as they had arrived. For, from the 15th of July, Elizabeth had proscribed them".(31)

They printed and distributed secretly virulent pamphlets against the Queen and the Anglican Church. One of them, Father Campion, was caught, condemned for high treason and hanged. They also plotted at Edinburgh to win to their cause King James of Scotland. The result of all these disturbances was the execution of Mary Stuart in 1587.

Then came the Spanish expedition, the invincible Armada, which made England tremble for a while and brought about the "sacred union" around Elizabeth's throne. But the Company pursued none the less her projects and was training English priests at Valladolid, Seville, Madrid and Lisbon, while her secret propaganda continued in England under the direction of Father Garnett. After the Gunpowder Plot against James I, successor of Elizabeth, this Father Garnett was condemned for complicity and hanged, like Father Campion.

Under Charles I, then in Cromwell's Commonwealth, other Jesuits paid for their intrigues with their lives. The Order thought it would triumph under Charles II who, together with Louis XIV, had concluded a secret treaty at Dover, pledging to restore Catholicism in the land.

"The nation was not fully informed of these circumstances, but the little that transpired was enough to create an unbelievable agitation. All England shuddered before Loyola's spectre and the Jesuits' conspiracies".(32)

A meeting of them in the palace itself brought popular fury to a head. "Charles II, who enjoyed the life of a king and did not want to go on another 'journey across the seas', hanged five Fathers for high treason at

(30) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.137-139.
(31) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.140-142.
(32) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.140, 142.

44

Tyburn... This did not abate the Jesuits.. However, Charles II was too prudent and too cynical for their liking, always ready to drop them. They thought victory was in sight when James II acceded to the throne. In fact, the king took up Mary Tudor's old game, but used softer means. He pretended to convert England and established for the Jesuits, at the palace of Savoy, a college where four hundred students immediately took residence. A downright camarilla of Jesuits took over the Palace...

"All these combinations were the main cause for the 1688 revolution. The Jesuits had to go against a stream too powerful. Then, England had twenty Protestants for each Catholic. The king was overthrown; all the members of the Company put in prison or banished. For some time, the Jesuits recommenced their work of secret agents, but it was nothing more than a futile agitation. They had lost the cause".(33)

(33) Pierre Dominique, op.cit, pp.101, 102.

45

Section II
Chapter 6
France

In 1551, the Order started to establish itself in France, which was seventeen years after its foundation in the chapel Saint-Denis at Montmartre.

Indeed, they presented themselves as effective adversaries of the Reformation which had won about one seventh of the French population, but people mistrusted these soldiers too devoted to the Holy See. So, their penetration on French soil was slow at first. As in all other countries where general opinion was not in their favour, they insinuated themselves first amongst people at Court, then, through them, into the upper classes. But in Paris, the Parliament, the University and even the clergy remained hostile. It came out clearly when they first attempted to open a college there. "The Faculty of Theology, whose mission is to safeguard the principles of religion in France, decreed on the 1 st of December 1554, that 'this society appears to be extremely dangerous regarding the faith, she is an enemy of the Church's peace, fatal to the monastic state and seems to have been born to bring ruin rather than edification' ".(34)

The Fathers were nevertheless allowed to settle at Billom, in a corner of Auvergne. From there, they organised a great action against the Reformation in the provinces of southern France. The famous Lainez, the man at the Council of Trent, distinguished himself in polemics, especially at the Colloquy of Poissy, in an unhappy attempt to conciliate the two doctrines (1561).

Thanks to the Queen-Mother Catherine of Medici, the Order opened its first Parisian establishment, the College of Clermont, which was in competition with the University. The opposition from this university, the clergy and the parliament was more or less pacified with concessions, verbal at least, made by the Company who promised to conform to the (34) Gaston Bally, op.cit., p.69.

46

common right; but the University had fought hard and long against the introduction of "men bribed at the expense of France to arm themselves against the King", according to Etienne Pasquier, and whose words were proved right not long after.

There is no need to ask if the Jesuits "consented" to the Saint Bartholomew Massacre (1572). Did they "prepare" it? Who knows?... The Company's politics, subtle and supple in their proceedings, have very clear aims; it is the popes' politics: "destray heresy". Everything must be subordinated to this major aim. "Catherine of Medici worked towards this aim and the Company could count on the Guises".(35)

But this major design, helped so much by that massacre on the night of the 24th of August 1572, provoked a terrible blaze of fratricidal hatred.
Three years later, it was the League, after the assassination of the duke de Guise, nicknamed "the king of Paris", and the appeal to His Most Christian Majesty to fight the Protestants.

"The shrewd Henry III did his best to avoid a war of religion. In agreement with Henry of Navarre, they gathered the Protestants and most of the moderate Catholics against Paris, the League and these partisans, mad Romans backed by Spain...

"The Jesuits, powerful in Paris, protested that the king of France had surrendered to heresy... The directing committee of the League deliberated at the Jesuits' house in the Street Saint-Antoine. Was Spain holding Paris? Hardly. The League? The League was only an instrument in skilful hands... "This Company of Jesus who had been fighting in the name of Rome for thirty years now... This was Paris's secret master".

"So, Henry III was assassinated. As the heir was a Protestant, the murder seemed at first glance to have been for other than political reasons; but is it not possible that those who planned it and persuaded the Jacobin Clement to carry it out were hoping for an uprising of Catholic France against the Huguenot heir? The fact is that a little later Clement was called an "angel" by the Jesuit Camelet, and Guignard, another Jesuit who was eventually hanged, gave his students as a means of moulding their opinions tyrannicidal texts as subjects for their latin exercises".(36)

Amongst other things, these school exercises contained this: "Jacques Clement has done a meritorious act inspired by the Holy Spirit... If we can make war against the king, then let us do it; if we cannot make war against him, then let us put him to death..." And this: "We made a big mistake at the Saint-Bartholomew; we should have bled the royal vein".(37)

In 1592, a certain Barriere who tried to assassinate Henry IV confessed that Father Varade, rector of the Jesuits in Paris, had persuaded him to do

(35) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.84.
(36) and (37) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., pp.85, 86, 89.

47

it. In 1594, another attempt was made by Jean Chatel, former pupil of the Jesuits who had heard his confession just before carrying it out. It was on that occasion that the previously mentioned school exercises were seized at the house of Father Guignard. "The Father was hanged at Greve while the king confirmed an edict of Parliament banishing the sons of Loyola from the kingdom, as "corrupters of youth, disturbers of public peace and enemies of the State and crown of France...".

The edict was not carried out fully and, in 1603, it was revoked by the king against the advice of Parliament. Aquaviva, the general of the Jesuits, had been clever in his manoeuvres and led king Henry IV to believe that the Order, reestablished in France, would loyally serve national interests. How could he, subtle as he was, believe that these fanatical Romans would indeed accept the Edict of Nantes (149 which determined the rights of Protestants in France, and, even worse, they would back up his projects against Spain and the Emperor? The fact is, Henry IV chose as his confessor and tutor for the Dauphin one of the most distinguished members of the Company, Father Cotton (38a). On the 16th of May 1610, on the eve of his campaign against Austria, he was murdered by Ravaillac who confessed having been inspired by the writings of Fathers Mariana and Suarez. These two sanctioned the murders of heretic "tyrants" or those insufficiently devoted to the papacy's interests. The duke of Epernon, who made the king read a letter while the assassin was lying in wait, was a notorious friend of the Jesuits, and Michelet proved that they knew of this attempt. "In fact, Ravaillac had confessed to the Jesuit Father d'Aubigny just before and, when the judges interrogated the priest, he merely replied that God had given him the gift to forget immediately what he heard in the confessional".(38)

Parliament, persuaded that Ravaillac had only been a tool for the Company, ordered the executioner to burn Mariana's book.

"Fortunately, Aquaviva was still there. Once again, this great general schemed well; he condemned most severely the legitimacy of tyrannicide. The Company always had authors who, in the silence of their studies, exposed the doctrine in all its rectitude; she also possessed great politicians who, when necessary, would put the right masks on it".(39)

Thanks to Father Cotton who took the situation in hand, the Society of Jesus came out of the storm unscathed. Her wealth, the number of her establishments and adherents grew rapidly. But when Louis XIII came to the throne, and Richelieu took the affairs of State in hand, there was a clash of wills.
The Cardinal would not let anyone oppose his politics. The Jesuit

(38a) His adversaries used to say that he had "cotton" in his ears! (38)
Henri Fulop-Miller, op.cit., p. 113. (39) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.95.

48

Caussin, confessor of the king, was able to find that out when he was put in prison at Rennes, on Richelieu's order, as a State criminal. This act produced the best results. In order to stay in France, the Order went as far as collaborating with the redoubtable Minister.

H. Boehmer wrote this about it: "The lack of consideration for the Church always shown by the French government, since Philippe le Bel, in the conflicts between national and ecclesiastic interests had been, once again, the best politics".(40)

The accession of Louis XIV marked the start of the most prosperous time for the Order. The "laxism" of Jesuit confessors, this clever leniency they used to attract sinners not very anxious to make penance, was employed extensively amongst ordinary people as well as at Court, especially with the king who was more a ladies' man than devout.

His Majesty had no intention of renouncing his amorous affairs, and his confessor was careful to keep off the subject, in spite of it being plain adultery. So, all the royal family was soon provided with Jesuit confessors only, and their influence grew more and more amongst the high society. The priests of Paris attacked in their "Writings" the loose morals of the famous Company's casuists, but to no avail. Pascal himself intervened, in vain, in favour of the Jansenists, during the great theological quarrel of that time; in his "Provincial letters", he exposed their too worldly opponents, the Jesuits, to eternal ridicule.

In spite of it, the secure place they held at Court assured them of victory, and those of Port-Royal succumbed. The Order was to win another great victory for Rome, whose consequences were against national interests. It goes without saying that they had only unwillingly accepted the religious peace assured through the Edict of Nantes, and had continued a secret war against the French Protestants. As Louis XIV was getting older, he turned more and more to bigotry under the influence of Madame de Maintenon and Father La Chaise, his confessor. In 1681, they persuaded him to restart the persecution against the Protestants. Finally, on the 17th of October 1685, he signed the "Revocation of the Edict of Nantes", making those of his subjects who refused to embrace the Catholic religion outlaws. Soon after, to accelerate the conversions, those famous "dragonnade" started; that sinister name became part of all subsequent attempts to proselytize by fire and chains. While the fanatics cheered, the Protestants fled from the kingdom en-masse. According to Marshal Vauban, France lost in that way 400,000 inhabitants and 60 million francs. Manufacturers, merchants, shipowners, skilful artisans went to other countries and brought them the benefit of their abilities.

"17th of October 1685 was a day of victory for the Jesuits, the final (40) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p. 100.

49

reward for a war which had gone on for one hundred and twenty-five years without respite. But the State paid the cost of the Jesuits' victory. "The depopulation, the reduction of national prosperity were the acute material consequences of their triumph, followed by a spiritual impoverishment which could not be cured, even by the best Jesuit school. This what France suffered and the Society of Jesus had to pay for very dearly later".(41)

During the century following, the sons of Loyola saw, not only France, but all the european countries reject them from their midst¡ªbut, once again, it was only for a while; these fanatical janissaries of the papacy had not finished to accumulate ruins in the pursuit of their impossible dream.

(41) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p.103.

50

Section III
Foreign missions
Chapter 1

India, Japan, China
The conversion of "pagans" had been the first objective of the Society of Jesus' founder. Even though the necessity to combat Protestantism in Europe involved its disciples more and more, and this political as well as religious action, of which we just gave a short summary, became their main task, they still pursued the evangelisation of distant lands.

Their theocratic ideal: to bring the world under the Holy See's authority, required that they should go into all the regions of the globe, in the conquest of souls.

Francis Xavier, one of Ignatius' first companions who, like him, was canonised by the Church, was the great promoter of Asia's evangelisation. In 1542, he disembarked at Goa and found there a bishop, a cathedral and a convent of Franciscans who, together with some Portuguese priests, had already tried to spread around them the religion of Christ. He gave that first attempt such a strong impetus that he was surnamed the "Apostle of India". Actually, he was more a pioneer and "exciter" than one who really accomplished something lasting. Fiery, enthusiastic, always on the look-out for new fields of action, he showed the way more than he cleared the ground. In the kingdom of Travancore, at Malacca, on the islands of Banda, Macassar and Ceylon, his personal charm, and his eloquent speeches did wonders and, as a result, 70,000 "idolaters" were converted especially amongst the low caste. To obtain this, he did not despise the political and even military support of the Portuguese. These results, more showy than solid, were bound to rouse interest for the missions in Europe as well as throwing a brilliant lustre over the Society of Jesus.
The untiring but little persevering apostle soon left India for Japan, then China, where he was about to enter when he died at Canton, in 1552.
His successor in India, Robert de Nobile, applied in that country the same methods the Jesuits used in Europe very successfully. He appealed to the higher classes. To the "untouchables", he gave the consecrated water only on the end of a stick.

51

He adopted the clothes, habits and way of living of the Brahmins, mixed their rites with Christian ones, all with the approval of Pope Gregory XV. Thanks to this ambiguity, he "converted", so he claimed, 250,000 Hindus. But, "about a century after his death, when the intransigent pope Benedict XIV forbade the observance of these Hindu rites, everthing collapsed and the 250,000 pseudo-catholics disappeared".(1)

In the north Indian territories ofthe Great Mogol Akbar, a tolerant man who even tried to introduce into his States a religious syncretism, the Jesuits were allowed to build an establishment at Lahore in 1575. Akbar's successors granted them the same favours. But Aureng-Zeb (1666-1707), and orthodox Moslem, put an end to this enterprise.

In 1549, Xavier embarked for Japan with two companions and a Japanese he had converted at Malacca called Yagiro. The beginnings were not very promising. "The Japanese have their own mortality and are rather reserved; their past has set them in paganism. The adults look at those strangers with amusement and the children follow them, jeering".(2) Yagiro, a native, managed to start a small community of one hundred adherents. But Francis Xavier, who did not speak Japanese very well, could not even obtain an audience from the Mikado. When he left that country, two Fathers stayed behind who eventually secured the conversion of the daimos of Arima and Bungo. When this particular one so decided in 1578, he had been considering the matter for 27 years. The following year, the Fathers settled at Nagasaki. They pretended to have converted 100,000 Japanese. In 1587, the internal situation of the land, torn apart by clan wars, changed entirely. "The Jesuits had taken advantage of that anarchy and their close relations with Portuguese merchants."(3) Hideyoshi, a man of low birth, had usurped power and taken the title of Taikosama. He distrusted the Jesuits' political influence, their association with the Portuguese and their connections with the great and wild vassals, the Samourai. In consequence, the young Japanese Church was violently persecuted, six Franciscans and three Jesuits were crucified; many converts were murdered and the Order was banished.

Nevertheless, the decree was not carried out. The Jesuits continued their apostolate in secret. But, in 1614, the first Shogun, Tokugawa Yagasu, became uneasy with their occult actions and the persecution started again. Besides, the Dutch had taken the place of the Portuguese at the business' counters and were closely watched by the government. A profound distrust of all foreigners, ecclesiastics or laymen inspired from then on the conduct of leaders and, in 1638, a rebellion of the Nagasaki Christians was drowned in blood. For the Jesuits, the Japanese adventure had come to an end, and was to remain so for a long time.

(1) "Les Jesuites", in "Le Crapouillot", Nr. 24, 1954, p.42. (2) "Le Crapouillot", op.cit., p.43. (3) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p.162.

We can read in the remarkable work of Lord Bertrand Russell "Science and Religion" the following racy passage about Francis Xavier the miracle worker: "He and his companions wrote many long letters which were kept; in them, they gave accounts of their labours, but none of those written in his lifetime made any mention of miraculous powers. Joseph Acosta, the Jesuit who was so much troubled by Peru's animals, expressly denied that these missionaries had been helped by miracles in their efforts to convert the pagans. But, soon after Xavier's death, stories of miracles started to abound. It was said that he had the gift of tongues, even though his letters were full of allusions to the difficulties he had to master the Japanese language or find good interpreters. "Stories were told of how, when his friends had felt thirsty at sea, he had changed salt water into fresh. When he dropped his crucifix into the sea, a crab brought it back to him. According to a later version, he had thrown the crucifix into the sea to still a tempest. When he was canonised in 1622, it was proved, to the satisfaction of the Vatican authorities, that he had accomplished miracles, as no one can become a saint without them. The pope gave his official guarantee to the gift of tongues and was particularly impressed by the fact that Xavier had made the lamps burn with holy water instead of oil.

"This same pope, Urban VIII, refused to believe Galileo's statements. The legend continued to improve: a biography by Father Bonhours, published in 1682, tells us that the saint had resuscitated fourteen persons during his lifetime. "Catholic authors still attribute to him the gift of miracles; in a biography published in 1872, Father Coleridge of the Society of Jesus restated that he had the gift of tongues".(4)

Judging by the exploits just mentioned, saint Francis Xavier well deserved his halo.

In China, the sons of Loyola had a long and favourable time with only a few expulsions in-between; they obtained this on condition they woud work there mainly as scientists and bow to the thousands of years old rite of this ancient civilisation.

"Meteorology was the main subject. Francis Xavier had already foud out that the Japanese did not know the earth was round and were very interested in what he taught them on that and other similar subjects. "In China, it became official and, as the Chinese were not fanatical, things developed peaceably." "An Italian, Father Ricci, was the initiator of it.

(4) Lord Bertrand Russell: "Science and religion" (Ed. Gallimard, Paris 1957, pp.84-85

53

Having made his way to Peking, he played the part of an astronomer before the Chinese scientists... Astronomy and mathematics were an important part of Chinese institutions. These sciences enabled the sovereign to date their various seasonal religious and civil ceremonies... Ricci brought information which made him indispensable and he used this opportunity to speak about Christianity... He sent for two Fathers who amended the traditional calendar, establishing the accord between the course of the stars and earthly events. Ricci helped with lesser tasks as well; for instance, he drew a mural map of the empire, where he carefully put China at the center of the universe..."(5)

This was the Jesuits' main work in that Celestial Empire; as for the religions side of their mission, the interest in it was minute. It is rather amusing to think that, in Peking, the Fathers were busy rectifying the astronomical mistakes of the Chinese, while, in Rome, the Holy See persistently condemned the Copernican system, and that until 1822!
In spite of the fact that the Chinese had very little inclination for mysticism, the first Catholic church opened at Peking in 1599. When Ricci died, he was replaced by a German, Father Shall von Bell, an astronomer who also published some remarkable tracts in the Chinese language; in 1644, he was given the title of "President of the mathematical Tribunal", which created jealousy amongst the mandarins. In the meantime, the Christian communities organised themselves. In 1617, the emperor must have foreseen the dangers of this pacific penetration when he decreed the banishment of all foreigners. The good Fathers were sent to the Portuguese at Macao in wooden cages. But, soon after, they were called back. They were such good astronomers!

In fact, they were just as good as missionaries with 41 residences in China ,159 churches and 257,000 baptised members. But a new reaction against them called for their banishment and Father Shall was condemned to death. No doubt he had not incurred this sentence merely for his work in mathematics! An earthquake and the burning of the imperial palace, cleverly presented as a sign of wrath from heaven, saved his life and he died peacefully two years later. But his companions had to leave China.
In spite of all, the esteem for the Jesuits was so great that emperor Kang-Hi felt obliged to call them back in 1669, and ordered solemn funerals for the remains of Iam Io Vam (Jean-Adam Shall). These unusual honours were only the start of exceptional favours".(6)

A Belgian Father, Verbiest, followed Shall at the head of the missions¡ª and also the Imperial mathematical Institute. He was the one who gave to Peking's Observatory those famous instruments whose mathematical

(5) "Le Crapouillot", op.cit. p.44. (6)
H. Boehmer, op.cit., p. 168.

precision is concealed by chimeras, dragons, etc. Kang-Hi, "the enlightened despot", who reigned for 61 years, appreciated the services of that scientist who gave him wise advice, accompanied him to war and even managed a foundry for cannons. But this profane and war-like activity was directed "ad majorem Dei gloriam", as the good Father reminded the emperor in a note he sent him before his death: "Sir, I die happy as I used nearly every moment of my life to serve Your Majesty. But I pray Him very humbly to remember, after my death, that my aim in all I did was to procure a protector for the most holy religion in the universe; and this protector was you, the greatest king in the East".(7)

However, in China as in Malabar, this religion could not survive without some artifice. The Jesuits had to bring the Roman doctrine to the chinese level, identify God with heaven (Tien) or the Chang-Ti (Emperor from onhigh), blend Catholic rites with Chinese rites, accept Confucian teachings, the cult of the ancestors, etc.

Pope Clement XI, who was told of it by rival Orders, condemned this doctrinal "laxism" and, as a result, all the missionary work of the Jesuits in the Celestial Empire collapsed.

The successors of Kang-Hi proscribed Christianity and the last Fathers left in China died there and were never replaced.

(7) "Correspondence" of Verbiest (Brussels 1931, p.551).

Section III
Chapter 2
The Americas: The Jesuit State of Paraguay

¡ö
The missionaries of the Society of Jesus found the New World much more favourable to their proselytism than Asia. There, they found no old and learned civilisations, no religions solidly established, nor any philosophical traditions, but only poor and barbarian tribes, unarmed spiritually as well as temporally before the white conquerors. Only Mexico and Peru, with the memory of Aztec and Inca gods still fresh in their minds, resisted this imported religion for quite a long time. Also, the Dominicans and Franciscans had already established themselves solidly. It was then amongst the wild tribes, nomadic hunters and fishermen, that the sons of Loyola exercised their devouring activity; the results they obtained varied according to the fierceness and opposition of the various populations.

In Canada, the Hurons, peaceful and docile, accepted easily their catechism, but their enemies, the Iroquois, attacked the stations created around Fort Sainte-Marie and massacred the inhabitants. The Hurons were practically exterminated within ten years and, in 1649, the Jesuits had to leave with about three hundred survivors.

They did not make a strong impression when they went through the territories which, today, make up the United States, and it was only during the 19th century that they started putting some roots down in that part of the continent.

In South America, the Jesuits' action met with some good and bad fortunes, In 1546, the Portuguese had called them to work in the territories they possessed in Brazil; while converting the natives, they encountered many conflicts with civil authority and other religious Orders. The same thing happened in New Granada. But Paraguay was the land for the great "experience" of Jesuitical colonisation; this country spread then from the Atlantic to the Andes and comprised territories which, today, belong to Brazil, Uruguay and

56

Argentina. The only means of access through the virgin jungle was on the Paraguay and Parana rivers. The population of that land was made up of nomadic and docile Indians, ready to bow to anyone's domination as long as they were supplied with enough food and a little tobacco.

The Jesuits could not find better conditions to establish, away from the corruption of whites and half-castes, the perfect type of colony, a city of God according to their heart's desire. At the start of the 17th century, Paraguay was made into a Province by the general of the Order who had been given all powers by the Court of Spain, and the "Jesuit State" developed and flourished.

These good savages were duly catechised and trained to live a sedentary life under a discipline as gentle as it was strong: "as an iron hand in a velvet glove". These patriarchal societies deliberately ignored liberties of any kind. "All that a Christian possesses, and uses, the hut in which he lives, the fields he cultivates, the livestock which provide his food and clothes, thie arms he carries, the tools he works with, even the only table knife given to every young couple when they set up home, is "Tupambac" God's property From the same conception, the "Christian" cannot dispose of his time and person freely. The suckling child is under his mother's protection. As soon as he can walk, he is in the Fathers' or their agents' power... When the child grows up, it learns, if it is a girl, to spin and weave, and if it is a boy, to read and write, but only in guarani; for Spanish is severely prohibited so as to prevent all trading with the corrupted Creoles... As soon as a girl is fourteen and a boy sixteen years of age, they are married, as the Fathers are anxious not to see them fall into some carnal sin... None of them can become priest monk, and even less Jesuit... They have practically no liberty left. But they are obviously very happy, materially speaking... In the morning, after mass, each gang of workers go to the fields one after another, singing and preceded by some holy image; in the evening, they come back to the village in the same manner, to hear the catechism or recite the rosary. The Fathers have also thought out some honest entertainments and recreations for the "christians" ...

"The Jesuits watch over them like fathers; and, like fathers also, they punish the smallest mistakes... The whip, fasting, prison, pillory on the public square, public penance in the church, these are the chastisements they use... So, the "red" children of Paraguay know no other authority than that of the good Fathers. They do not even vaguely suspect that the king of Spain is their sovereign".(8)

Is this not a picture somewhat caricatured the perfect picture of the ideal theocratic society?

But let us consider how it affected the intellectual and moral

(8) and (9) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp. 197 ss.

57 advancement of the beneficiaries of that system, these "poor innocents" as they were called by the marquess de Loreto: "The missions' high culture is nothing more than an artificial product from an hot-house, carrying in itself a seed of death. Because, in spite of all this breaking in and training, the Guarani remained deep down what he was: a lazy savage, narrow-minded, sensual, greedy and sordid. As the Fathers themselves say, he only works when he feels the overseer's goad behind him. As soon as they are left to themselves, they are indifferent to the fact that the harvest is rotting in the field, implements are deteriorating and the herds are scattered; if he is not watched when working in the fields, he can even suddenly unyoke an ox and butcher it on the spot, light a fire with the wood of the plough and, with his companions, start eating the half-cooked flesh until none of it is left. He knows that he will get 25 lashings of the whip for it, but also that the good Fathers would never let him starve to death".(9)

In a book recently published, we can read the following concerning the Jesuits' punishments: "The culprit, dressed in the clothes of a penitent, was escorted to church where he confessed his fault. Then he was whipped on the public square according to the penal code... The culprits always received this chastisement, not only without murmurs, but also with thanksgivings..." "The guilty one, having been punished and reconciled, kissed the hand of the one who struck him, saying: "May God reward you for freeing me, by this light punishment, from the eternal sorrows which threatened me".(10)

After reading this, we can understand Mr. H. Boehmer's conclusion: "The Guarani's moral life enriched itself very little under the Fathers' discipline. He became a devout and superstitious Catholic who sees miracles everywhere and seems to enjoy flagellating himself until blood appears; he learned to obey and was attached to the good Fathers, who cared so well for him, with a filial gratitude which, even though not very deep, was nevertheless very tenacious. This not very brilliant result proves that there was some important defect in the educative methods of the Fathers. What was that defect? The fact that they never tried to develop, in their "red" children, the inventive faculties, the need for activity, the feeling of responsibility; they themselves invented games and recreations for their christians, they thought for them instead of encouraging them to think for themselves; they merely submitted those who were under their care to a mechanical "breaking in" instead of educating them".(11)

How could it be otherwise when they themselves had gone through a "breaking in" lasting fourteen years? Were they going to teach the Guaranis and their white pupils to "think for themselves", when they were absolutely forbidden to do so?

(10) Clovis Lugon: "La Republique communiste chretienne des Guaranis" p.197. (11) H.Boehmer, op.cit. pp.204-205.

It is not a Jesuit of old, but a contemporary one who writes: "He (the Jesuit) will not forget that the characteristic virtue of the Company is total obedience of the action, the will, and even the judgement... All the superiors will be bound in the same way to higher ones and the Father General to the Holy Father... It was so arranged as to render the Holy See's authority universally efficacious, and saint Ignatius was sure that teaching and education would henceforth bring back to Catholic unity a Europe torn apart".

It is with the hope of "reforming the world", wrote Father Bonhours, "that he particularly embraced this means: the instruction of youth..." (12)
The education of Paraguay's natives was done on the same principles the Fathers used to apply, now apply and will apply on everyone and everywhere; their aim, deplored by Mr. Boehmer, but which is ideal to the eyes of those fanatics: the renouncement of all personal judgement, all initiative, a blind submission to the superiors. Is it not that "height of freedom", "the liberation from one's own bondage" praised by R.P. Rouquette and which we mentioned earlier on?

In fact, the good Guaranis had been "liberated" so well by the Jesuitical method for more than one hundred and fifty years that, when their masters left during the 18th century, they went back into their forests and returned to their ancient customs as if nothing had happened.

(12) F. Charmot, s.j.: "La Pedagogie des Jesuites" (Edit. Spes, Paris 1943, p.39).

Section IV
The Jesuits in the European Society
Chapter 1

The Teaching of the Jesuits
"The pedagogic method of the Company", wrote R.P. Charmot, S.J., "consists first of all of surrounding the pupils with a great network of prayers..."
Later, he quotes the Jesuit Father Tacchini: "May the Holy Spirit fill them as alabasters are filled with perfumes; may He penetrate them so much that, as time goes on, they will be able to breathe in more and more celestial fragrance and the perfume of Christ!"

Father Gandier also has a contribution: "Let us not forget that education, as seen by the Company, is the ministry most similar to that of angels". (1)

Later, Father Charmot has this to say: "Let us not be anxious as to where and how mysticism is inserted into education!..." "It is not done through a system or artificial technique, but by infiltration, by "endosmosis". The children's souls are impregnated because of their being in close "contact with masters who are literally saturated with it".(2)

From the same author, here is "the aim of the Jesuit professor": "Through his teaching, he aims to form, not an intellectual Christian elite, but elite christians".(3)

These few quotations tell us enough about the principal aim of these educators. Let us see now how they form these elite Christians, and what kind of mysticism is "inserted" (or inoculated), "infiltrated" or "pumped into" children submitted to their educational system.

At the front¡ªit is characteristic of this Order¡ªwe find the Virgin Mary. "Loyola had made the Virgin the most important thing in his life. The Worship of Mary was the base of his religious devotions and was handed down by him to his Order. This worship developed so much that it was often said, and with good reason, that it was the Jesuits' real religion".(4)

(1,2,3) F. Charmot, S.J. op.cit., pp.413, 415, 417, 442, 493..

60

This was not written by a Protestant, but by J. Huber, professor of Catholic theology.

Loyola himself was convinced that the Virgin had inspired him when he had drawn up his "Exercises". A Jesuit had a vision of Mary covering the Society with her mantle as a sign of her special protection. Another one, Rodrigue de Gois, was so enraptured with her inexpressible beauty that he was seen soaring into the air. A novice of this Order, who died in Rome in 1581, was sustained by the Virgin in his fight against the devil's temptations; to strengthen him, she gave him a taste of her Son's blood from time to time and "the comfort of her breasts".(5)

Duns Scot's doctrine of the Immaculate Conception" was enthusiastically adopted by the Order which was successful in having it made into a dogma by Pius IX in 1854.

"Erasmus satirically depicted the worship of Mary of his time. During the fourth century, the tale of Loretto's house had been invented; this house had apparently been brought from Palestine by angels. The Jesuits welcomed and defended this legend. Canisius went as far as producing letters from Mary herself and, thanks to the Order, great wealth started to pour in at Loretto (as at Lourdes, Fatima, etc..)

"The Jesuits brought forth all kinds of relics of the Mother of God. When they made their entrance into the church of Saint-Michael at Munich, they offered to the veneration of the faithful pieces of Mary's veil, several tufts of her hair and pieces of her comb; they instituted a special cult, consecrated to worship these objects..."

"This worship degenerated into licentious and sensual manifestations, in particular in the hymns dedicated to the Virgin by Father Jacques Pontanus. The poet knew of nothing more beautiful than Mary's breasts, nothing sweeter than her milk and nothing more delightful than her abdomen".(6)

One could multiply these citations endlessly. Ignatius wanted his disciples to have a "perceptible", or even sensual piety, similar to his own, and they obviously succeeded. No wonder they were so successful with the Guaranis; this erotic fetichism suited them perfectly. But the good Fathers always thought it would suit the "whites" just as well. As the foundation of their doctrine is an utter contempt for people as human beings, "whites" or "reds" were just the same, and both had to be treated as if they were children.

So they work relentlessly at propagating this spirit and these idolatrous practices; because of the influence they hold over the Holy See, which cannot do without them, they force them on the Roman Church, in spite of

(4) and (5) J. Huber, op.cit., pp.98-99.
(6) "Oeuvres completes" de Bucher (Munich 1819, II, p.477 ss.)

61

the resistance which has gradually decreased.
"Father Barri wrote a book entitled: "Paradise opens through one hundred devotions to the Mother of God". In it, he expounds the idea that the way by which we enter paradise is not important: the important thing is to enter. He enumerates exercises of exterior piety to Mary which open heaven's doors. Amongst other things, these exercises consist of giving to Mary morning and evening salutations; frequently charging the angles to greet her; expressing the desire to build her more churches than all those built by monarchs put together; carrying day and night a rosary as a bracelet, an image of Mary, etc...

"These practices are enough to assure our salvation and if the devil, when we are about to die, makes claims on our souls, we just have to remind him that Mary is responsible for us and he must sort things out with her".(7)

In his "Pietas quotidiana erga S.D. Mariam", Father Pemble recommends the following: "To beat or flagellate ourselves, and offer each blow as a sacrifice to God, through Mary to carve with a knife the holy name of Mary on our chest: to cover ourselves decently at night so as not to offend the chaste gaze of Mary; to tell the Virgin you would be willing to offer her your place in heaven if she didn't have her own; to wish you had never been born or go to hell if Mary had not been born; to never eat an apple, as Mary had been kept from the mistake of tasing of it".(8)

All this was written in 1764, but one only has to glance through similar works published today in great numbers, or just the Catholic press, to establish the fact that, for two hundred years, this wild idolatry had done nothing but grow and embellish. The late pope Pius XII distinguished himself as far as the ownership of Mary is concerned. Under his rule, a large part of the Roman Church followed suit.

Moreover, the sons of Loyola, who are always anxious to conform to the spirit of the age, try to today to accommodate these mediaeval puerilities, and there are several tracts published by some of these good Fathers under the grand auspices of the "Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique" (C.N.R.S.)

If we add to this the scapulars of various colours with their appropriate virtues, the worship of saints, images, relics, the apology of the "miracles", the adoration of the Sacred Heart, we will have some idea of the "mysticism" with which "the children's souls are impregnated" through their contact with masters "who are saturated with it"¡ªas R.P. Charmot wrote in 1943.

There is no other way to form "elite Christians".
Nevertheless, if they were to win their fight against the Universities, the Jesuit colleges had to expand their teaching and include secular subjects, as

(7) and (8) J. Huber, op.cit., 106-108.

62

the Renaissance had awakened a thirst for learning. We know that they gladly carried it out while taking all the necessary precautions to prevent this learning going against the aim of their teaching: maintaining the minds in complete obedience to the Church.

That is why their pupils are first of all "surrounded" by this "great web of prayers", which would not be sufficient if the learning imparted was not carefully purged from all heterodox spirit and ideas. So, Greek and Latin, (Latin is regarded very highly in these colleges), were studied for their literary value; but the "antique" orthodox thought was expounded just enough to establish the so-called superior scholastic philosophy. These "humanists" they were training were able to compose discourses and latin verses, but the only master of their thoughts was saint Thomas Aquinas, a monk of the 13th century

Listen to "Ratio Studiorum", fundamental treatise of Jesuit pedagogy, quoted by R.P. Charmot: "We will carefully discard secular subjects which do not favour good morals and piety. We will compose poems; but may our poets be Christians and not followers of pagans who invoke Muses, mountain nymphs, sea-nymphs, Calliope, Apollo, etc... or other gods and goddesses. What's more, if these are to be mentioned, may it be with the view to caricature them, as they are only demons..."(9)

So, all sciences¡ªand especially natural sciences¡ªwill be "interpreted" in like manner.

In fact, R.P. Charmot doesn't even try to hide it in what he said about the Jesuit professor in 1943: "He teaches sciences, not for themselves, but only with the view to bring about God's greatest glory. It is the rule laid down by Saint Ignatius in his "Constitutions". (10)

And again: "When we speak of a whole culture, we do not mean that we teach all subjects and sciences, but we give a literary and scientific education which is not purely secular and impermeable to the lights of Revelation".(11)

The instruction dispensed by the Jesuits was therefore bound to be more flashy than profound, or "formalistic" as it is often called. "They did not believe in liberty, which was fatal as far as teaching is concerned", wrote H. Boehmer.

"The truth is that the relative merits of the Jesuits' teaching diminished while science and the methods of education and instruction progressed and developed, on the basis of a wider and deeper conception of Humanity. Buckle said: "The more civilisation advanced, the more the Jesuits lost ground, not merely because of their own decadence, but because of all the modifications and changes in the minds of those around them... During the 16th century, the Jesuits were ahead, but during the 18th century, they were behind their time".(12)

(9,10,11) F. Charmot, S.J. op.cit., pp.318-319, 508-509, 494. (12) J. Huber, op.cit., II, p.177.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:32 PM (GMT)

63

Section IV
Chapter 2
The morals of the Jesuits

The conquering spirit of their Society, the burning desire to attract consciences and hold them under their exclusive influence, could only induce the Jesuits to be more lenient with the penitents than confessors of other Orders or the secular clergy. "We do not catch flies with vinegar", rightly says the proverb.

As we have already seen, Ignatius expressed the same idea in different terms and his sons drew their inspiration from it. "The extraordinary activity deployed by the Order in the field or moral theology already shows that this subtle science had, for him, a much greater practical importance than the other sciences".(13)

Mr. Boehmer, who wrote the phrase we just quoted, reminds us that confession was very rare during the Middle Ages and the faithful resorted to it only in the gravest cases. But the domineering character of the Roman Church made the practice of it spread and grow more and more. In fact, during the 16th century, confession had become a religious duty which had to be diligently observed. Ignatius considered it most important and recommended to his disciplies that as many of the faithful as possible should observe it regularly.

"The results of this method were extraordinary. The Jesuit confessors soon enjoyed everywhere the same consideration shown to the Jesuit professors, and the confessional was considered by all as the symbol of the Order's power and activity, as were the professorial chair and the latin grammar...

"If we read Ignatius' Instructions regarding confession and moral theology, we must admit that, from the beginning, the Order was prepared to treat the sinner kindly, that as time went on, it showed more and more indulgence until this kindness degenerated into slackness...

(13) and (14) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.244-246.

64

"We can understand easily why this clever leniency made them such successful confessors. This is how they won the favours of the nobles and high-ups of this world who always needed the condescension of their confessors more than the mass of ordinary sinners.

"The Courts of the Middle Ages never had any all-powerful confessors. This characteristic figure appeared in the life of the Courts only in modern times and it is the Jesuit Order which implanted it everywhere".(14)

Mr Boehmer wrote: "During the 17th century, these confessors not only obtained an appreciable political influence everywhere, but even accepted, and sometimes openly, political posts or functions. It is then that Father Neidhart took the direction of Spanish politics as 'prime minister and Grand Inquisitor'; Father Fernandez sat and was entitled to speak and vote in the Portuguese Council; Father La Chaise and his successor held the functions of ministers for Ecclesiastical Affairs at the Court of France. "Let us remember also the part played by the Fathers in general politics, even outside the confessional: Father Possevino as pontifical legate in Sweden, Poland and Russia; Father Petre, a Minister in England; Father Vota as intimate counsellor of Jean Sobieski of Poland, as 'maker of kings' in Poland, as mediator when Prussia was made into a kingdom; —one must admit that no other Order showed so much interest and talent for politics, and deployed so much activity in it than the Jesuit Order".(15)

"If the 'indulgence' of these confessors towards their august penitents helped greatly the interests of the Order and the Roman Curia, it was the same in the more modest spheres where the Fathers used similar convenient methods. With their meticulous, and even meddlesome spirit, which they inherited from their founder; the famous "casuists" such as Escobar, Mariana, Sanchez, Busenbaum, etc., applied themselves to studying each rule in particular and their applications to all the cases which could be presented at the tribunal of penance; their tracts on "moral theology" gave the Company a universal reputation as their subtlity to distort and pervert the most evident moral obligations was so apparent.

Here are some examples of these acrobatics: "The divine Law prescribes "You shall not bear false witness". "There is false witness only if the one who took the oath uses words which he knows will deceive the judge. The use of ambiguous terms is therefore allowed, and even the excuse of mental reservation in certain circumstances..." "If a husband asks his adulterous wife if she has broken the conjugal contract, she can say "no" without hesitation as that contract still exists. Once she has obtained absolution at the confessional, she can say: "I am without sin", if, while she says it, she thinks of that absolution which took the load of her sin. If her husband is still incredulous, she can reassure him by saying that she has not committed adultery, and if she adds (under her breath) adultery she is obliged to confess."

(15) and (16) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.247-248, 238 ss.

65

It is not hard to imagine that such a theory was successful with their beautiful penitent ladies!

In fact, their gallant escorts were treated just as well: "The Law of God commands: "You shall not kill". "But it doesn't mean that every man who kills sins against this precept. For example, if a nobleman is threatened with blows or beating, he can kill his aggressor; but of course this right is only for the nobleman and not the plebeian, as there is nothing dishonourable for a common man to receive a beating... "In the same way, a servant who helps his master seduce a young girl is not committing a mortal sin if he can fear serious disadvantages or bad treatment in case he refuses. If a young girl is pregnant, a miscarriage can be induced if her fault is the cause of dishonour for herself or a member of the clergy."(17) As for Father Benzi, he had his hour of fame when he declared: "it is only a slight offence to feel the breasts of a nun", and, because of it, the Jesuits were nicknamed the "mamillary theologians".

But, as far as that is concerned, the famous Casuist, Thomas Lanchz, deserves the prize for his tract "De Matrimonio", in which the pious author studies with outrageous details all the varieties of "carnal sin".

Also, let us study further these convenient maxims as far as politcs are concerned, especially those relative to the legitimacy of assassinating "tyrants" found guilty of lukewarmness towards the sacred interests of the Holy See. Mr. Boehmer has this to say: "As we have just seen, it is not difficult to guard against mortal sin. Depending on circumstances, we only have to use the excellent means permitted by the Fathers: "equivocation, mental reservation, the subtle theory of the direction of intentions," and we will be able to commit, without sin, acts which are considered criminal by the ignorant masses, but in which even the most severe Father will not be able to find an atom of mortal sin".(18)

Amongst the most criminal Jesuitic maxims, there is one which roused public indignation to the highest point and deserves to be examined; it is: "A monk or priest is allowed to kill those who are ready to slander him or his community."

So, the Order gives itself the right to eliminate its adversaries and even those of its members who, having come out of it, are too talkative. This pearl is found in the "Theology of Father L'Amy".

There is another case where this principle finds its application. For, this same Jesuit was cynical enough to write: "If a Father, yielding to temptation, abuses a woman and she publicises what has happened, and, because of it, dishonours him, this same Father can kill her to avoid disgrace!"

(17) and (18) H. Boehmer, op.cit., pp.238, 241.

66

Another son of Loyola, quoted by "Le grand flambeau" Caramuel, thinks that this maxim must be upheld and defended: "the Father can use it as an excuse to kill the woman and so preserve his honour".

This monstrous theory was used to cover many crimes committed by ecclesiastics and probably was, in 1956, the reason if not the cause for the lamentable affair of the priest of Uruffe.

67

Section IV
Chapter 3
The Eclipse of the Company

The successes the Society of Jesus obtained in Europe and far-off lands, even though interspersed by some misfortunes, assured it a preponderant situation for a long time. But, as we have already mentioned, time was not working in its favour. As ideas evolved and the progress of sciences tended to liberate the minds, ordinary people and monarchs found it more and more difficult to endure the ascendancy of these champions of "theocracy". Also, many abuses, born out of its successes, impaired the Society inwardly. Apart from politics in which it was deeply involved as one has seen, to the detriment of national interests, its devouring activity had soon made itself felt in the domain of economics.

"The Fathers became involved too much in affairs which had nothing to d o wi t h religion, in commerce, exchange, as liquidators of bankruptcies. The Roman College, which should have remained the intellectual and moral model of all Jesuit colleges had cloth made in huge quantities at Macerata and sold it in fairs at a low price. Their centres in India, Antilles, Mexico and Brazil soon started trading in colonial products. At Martinique, a procurator created vast plantations which were cultivated by negro slaves".(19)

This is the commercial side of Foreign Missions which is just the same today. The Roman Church never scorned at extracting a temporal profit from her "spiritual" conquests. As far as that is concerned, the Jesuits were just like all other religious Orders; they even surpassed them. In any case, we know that, recently, the White Fathers were amongst the richest landowners in North Africa.

The sons of Loyola were as intensely active at making the best of the "pagan's" labours as at winning their souls. "In Mexico, they had silver mines and sugar refineries; in Paraguay, tea and cacao plantations, carpet factories; they also reared cattle and exported 80,000 mules every year".(20)

(19) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., pp.190-191.

As we can see, the evangelisation of their "red children" was a good source of revenue. And to make an even bigger profit, the Fathers did not hesitate to defraud the state treasury, as seen in the well-known story of the so-called boxes of chocolate unloaded at Cadix which were full of gold powder.

Bishop Palafox, sent as apostolic visitor by Pope Innocent VIII, wrote to him in 1647 "All the wealth of South America is in the hands of the Jesuits". Financial affairs were just as advantageous. "In Rome, the coffers of the Order made payments to the Portuguese embassy in the name of the Portuguese government. When Auguste le Fort went to Poland, Vienna's Fathers opened a credit account for this needy monarch with the Jesuits of Varsovie. In China, the Fathers lent money to the merchants at 25, 50 and even 100% interest".(21)

The scandalous greediness of the Order, its loose morals, its ceaseless political intrigues and also its encroachings upon the prerogatives of the secular and regular clergy had stirred up mortal enmity and hatred everywhere. Amongst the higher classes, it had been brought into complete disrepute and, in France at any rate, its efforts to maintain the people in a formalist and superstitious piety gave way to the inevitable emancipation of the minds.

Nevertheless, the material prosperity enjoyed by the Society, the acquired positions at the Courts and especially the support of the Holy See which they thought immovable, maintained the Jesuits in their complete assurance, even on the eve of their ruin. Had they not already gone through several storms, suffered about thirty expulsions from the time of their foundation until the middle of the 18th century? Nearly every time, they had been back sooner or later to reoccupy their lost positions.

But this new eclipse threatening them was to be nearly total, this time, and last for more than forty years.

The strange thing is that the first assault against the powerful Society came from the very Catholic Portugal, one of their principal strongholds in Europe. The influence exercised over that country by England since the beginning of the century was prqbably one of the causes of this uprising. A treaty fixing the boundaries in America, concluded between Spain and Portugal in 1750, had given the Portuguese a vast territory east of the river

Uruguay where the Jesuits were working. In consequence, the Fathers had to retreat with their converts on this side of the new frontier, on Spanish territory. So they armed their Guaranis, led a long guerilla war and finally

(20) Andre Mater, quoted by Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.191.
(21) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.191.

69

remained masters of the land which was given back to Spain.
The marquess of Pombal, Portuguese prime minister, felt really insulted. besides, this former pupil of the Jesuits had not kept their "trade-mark" and drew his inspiration from French and English philosophers rather than from his old educators. In 1757, he drove out the Jesuit confessors of the Royal family and forbade the members of the Society to preach. After several quarrels with them, he issued pamphlets to the public—one of which was "Short account of the Jesuits' kingdom in Paraguay" which made a great noise—obtained an inquiry into their conduct by pope Benedict XIV and finally banished the Society from all his territories.
The affair caused a sensation in Europe, and especially in France where, soon after, the bankruptcy of Father La Valette broke out; he was a "businessman" handling huge transactions in sugar and coffee for the Company. Its refusal to pay the Father's debts was fatal. The Parliament, not content with a civil condemnation, examined its Constitutions, declared its establishment in France illegal and condemned twenty four works of its principal authors. On the 6th of April 1762, it issued a 'statement of arrest' (Indictment) in the following terms: "The said Institute is inadmissible in any civilised State, as its nature is hostile to all spiritual and temporal authority; it seeks to introduce into the Church and States, under the plausible veil of a religious Institute, not an Order truly desirous to spread evangelical perfection, but rather a political body working untiringly at usurping all authority, by all kinds of indirect, secret and devious means..."

In conclusion, the Jesuits' doctrine was described as follows:
"perverse, a destroyer of all religious and honest principles, insulting to Christian morals, pernicious to civil society, hostile to the rights of the nation, the royal power, and even the security of the sovereigns and obedience of their subjects; suitable to stir up the greatest disturbances in the States, conceive and maintain the worst kind of corruption in men's hearts". In France, the Society's properties were confiscated for the benefit of the Crown and none of its members was allowed to stay in the kingdom unless he enounced his vows and swore to submit to the general rules of France's clergy.
In Rome, the Jesuits' general, Ricci, obtained from Pope Clement XIII a bull confirming the Order's privileges and proclaiming its innocence. But it was too late. In Spain, the Bourbons suppressed all the establishments of the Society, the metropolitan ones as well as the colonial ones. So ended Paguay's Jesuit State. The governments of Naples, Parma, and even the Grand-Master of Malta also banished the sons of Loyola from their territories. The 6,000 who were in Spain had a strange experience after they had been thrown in prison: "King Charles III sent all the prisoners to the pope with a grand letter in which he said that he "put them under the wise and immediate control of Your Holiness". But, when the wretches were about to disembark at Civita-Vecchia, they were welcomed with the thunder of cannon shot on the order of their own general who already had to look after the Portuguese Jesuits and couldn't even feed them. They just managed to find them a wretched sanctuary in Corsica".(22)

70

"Clement XIII, elected on the 6th of July 1758, had resisted a long time the pressing requests of several nations demanding the Jesuits' suppression. He was about to yield and had already arranged a consistory for the 3rd of February 1769 at which he was to tell the cardinals about his resolution to comply with the wishes of these Courts; on the night before that particular day, he suddenly felt ill as he was going to bed and cried out: "I am dying...". It is a very dangerous thing to attack the Jesuits!"(23)

A conclave assembled and went on for three months. At last, cardinal Ganganelli put on the mitre and took the name of Clement XIV. The Courts which had banished the Jesuits kept on asking for the total suppression of the Society. But the papacy was in no hurry to abolish this primordial instrument for the carrying out of its politics, and four years passed before Clement XIV, constrained by the firm attitude of his opponents, who had occupied some of the pontifical States, at last signed the Brief of dissolution: "Dominus ac Redemptor" in 1773. Ricci, the Order's general, was even imprisoned at the castle of Saint-Ange where he died a few years later.

"The Jesuits only appeared to submit to this verdict which condemned them... They wrote innumerable pamphlets against the pope and to incite rebellion; they told lies and slanders without number concerning so-called atrocities committed when their properties in Rome were confiscated".(24) The death of Clement XIV, fourteen months later, was even attributed to them by a section of European opinion.

"The Jesuits, in principle at least, were no more; but Clement XIV knew very well that, by signing their death warrant, he was signing his own as well:

"This suppression is done at last", he exclaimed, "and I am not sorry about it.. I would do it again if it was not done already; but this suppression will kill me".(25)

Ganganelli was right; soon, posters started to appear on the palace walls which invariably displayed these five letters: I.S.S.S.V.,and everyone wondered what it meant. Clement understood immediately and boldly declared:

"It means "In Settembre, Sara Sede Vacante", (In September, the

(22) Pierre Doninique, op.cit., p.209.
(23) Baron de Ponnat, "Histoire des variations et des contradictions de l'Eglise romaine", p.215. t i l .
(24) J. Huber, op.cit., p.365.
(25) Caraccioli: "Vie du Pape Clement XIV" (Desant, Paris 1776, p.313).

71

See will be vacant', (that the Pope will be dead)".(26)

Here is another testimony: "Pope Ganganelli did not survive long after the Jesuits' suppression", said Scipion de Ricci. "The account of his illness and death, sent to the Court of Madrid by the Minister for Spain in Rome, proved that he had been poisoned; as far as we know, no inquiry was held concerning this event by the cardinals, nor the new pontiff. The perpetrator of that abominable deed was then able to escape the judgement of the world, but he will not be able to escape God's justice!"(27)

"We can positively affirm that, on the 22nd of September 1774, Pope Clement XIV died by poisoning".(28)

Meanwhile, the empress of Austria, Marie-Therese, had also banished the Jesuits from all her States. Only Frederik of Prussia and Catherine II, empress of Russia, welcomed them in their countries as educators. But, in Prussia, they only managed to stay for ten years, until 1786. Russia was favourable to them longer but, there also, and for the same reason, they eventually aroused the animosity of the government.

"... The suppression of the schism and the rallying of Russia to the pope attracted them like a lamp attracts a moth. They launched an active propaganda programme in the army and aristocracy and fought against the Bible Society created by the Czar. They won several successes and converted prince Galitzine, nephew of the Minister for Worship. So the Czar intervened and we have the Ukase of the 20th of December 1815".(29)

No need to say that the grounds for this Ukase, which banished the Jesuits from Saint-Petersburg and Moscow, were the same as in all the other countries. "We came to realise that they did not fulfill the duties expected of them... Instead of living as peaceful inhabitants in a foreign country, they disturbed the Greek religion which has been since ancient times, the predominant religion in our empire and on which rests the peace and happiness of the nations under our sceptre. They abused the confidence they obtained and turned the youth entrusted to them and inconsistent women away from our worship... We are not surprised that this religious Order was expelled from every country and that their actions were not tolerated anywhere".(29)

In 1820 at last, general measures were taken to drive them out of the whole of Russia.

But, because of political events favouring it, they had set foot again in western Europe when their Order was solemnly reestablished by Pope Pius VII in 1814.

(26) Baron de Ponnat, op.cit., p.223.
(27) Potter: "Vie de Scipion de Ricci", (Brussels 1825), I, p. 1 .
(28) Baron de Ponnat: "Histoire des variations et contradictions de l'Eglise romaine" (Charpentier, Paris 1882, II, p.224). (29) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.220.

72

The political significance of this decision is clearly expressed by M. Daniel-Rops, a great friend of the Jesuits. He wrote, concerning the "reappearance of the sons of Loyola": "It was impossible not to see in it an obvious act of counter-revolution".(30)

(30) Daniel-Rops, of the French Academy: "Le retablissement de la Compagnie de Jesus" (Etudes, September 1959).

73

Section IV
Chapter 4
Rebirth of the Society of Jesus during the 19th century

We mentioned that, when Clement XIV was constrained to suppress the Jesuit Order, he apparently said: "I have cut off my right hand".
The phrase seems plausible enough. The Holy See must certainly have found it hard to part with its most important instrument in the domination of the world. The Order's disgrace, a political measure imposed by circumstances, was gradually attenuated by the successors of Clement

XIV: Pius VI and Pius VII; and if the official eclipse of the Jesuits lasted forty years, it was because of the upheavals in Europe resulting from the French Revolution. In any case, that eclipse was never total.

"Most of the Jesuits had stayed in Austria, France, Spain, Italy, mingling with the clergy. They met with each other or gathered in large numbers as much as possible. In 1794, Jean de Tournely founded the Society of the Sacred Heart in Belgium as a teaching body. Many Jesuits joined it. Three years later, the Tyrolean Paccanari, who thought he was another Ignatius, founded the Society of the Brothers of Faith. In 1799, the two Societies merged with Father Clariviere as the head; he was the only surviving French Jesuit. In 1803, they joined the Russian Jesuits. Something coherent was coming back to life again, but the masses, and even most of the politicians, did not recognise it at first".(31)

The French Revolution, and then the Empire, gave the Company of Jesus an unexpected credibility again; it was a defensive reaction against new ideas springing up in the ancient monarchies.

Napoleon the First described the Society as "very dangerous; she will never be allowed in the Empire". But, when the Holy-Alliance triumphed, the new "monarchs" did not disdain the help of these absolutists in bringing back the people to a strict obedience.

(31) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.219—Here is, according to M. Daniel-Rops, the strange death of Paccacaci, founder of the Brothers of Faith: "He was brought before the Holy See, imprisoned at the castle of Saint-Ange and finally was "assassinated". (Etudes, September 1959).

But times had changed. All the skill of the good Fathers could only delay and not stop the propagation of liberal ideas and their efforts were more harmful than useful. In France, the Restoration experienced it in a bitter way. Louis XVIII, an unbeliever and clever politician, tried to contain the rise of "ultras" as much as he could. But under Charles X, narrow-minded and very devout, the Jesuits had it easy. The law which expelled them in 1764 was still being enforced. No matter. They enlivened the famous "Congregation", first kind of Opus Dei. This pious brotherhood, composed of ecclesiastics and laymen, was found everywhere, pretending to "purge" the army, the magistracy, the administration, the teaching profession; it held "missions" all over the country, planting commemorative crosses wherever it went; many of these are still there today; it stirred up the believers to fight the infidels and made itself so hateful that even the very catholic and very legitimist Montlosier exclaimed:

"Our missionaries have started fires everywhere. If something has to be sent to us, we would rather have Marseille's plague than more missionaries".
In 1828, Charles X withdrew the Order's right to teach, but it was too late. The dynasty collapsed in 1830.

Hated and covered with shame, the sons of Loyola nevertheless stayed in France, but disguised, as the Order was still officially abolished. Louis-Philippe and Napoleon III tolerated them. The Republic scattered them in 1880 only, under the administration of Jules Ferry. The closing of their establishments was effective only in 1901, under the law of separation. During the 19th century, the Company's history in America and half of Europe was equally full of ups and downs as in the past, while fighting the new ideas.

"Wherever liberal-minded people gained victories, the Jesuits were expelled. On the other hand, when the other side triumphed, they reestablished themselves to defend the throne and the altar. So, they were banished from Portugal in 1S34, Spain in 1820, 1835 and 1868, from Switzerland in 1848, Germany in 1872 and France in 1880 and 1901.

"In Italy, from 1859 on, all their colleges and establishments were gradually taken from them, so much so that they were forced to stop all the activities prescribed in their laws. The same thing happened in the republics of Latin America. The Order was suppressed in Guatemala in 1872, Mexico in 1873, Brazil in 1874, Equador and Colombia in 1875 and Costa-Rica in 1884.

"The only countries where the Jesuits lived in peace were the States where Protestantism was in the majority: England, Sweden, Denmark, the United States of America. It may seem surprising at first glance, but the explanation lies in the fact that, in these countries, the Fathers were never able to exercise a polticial influence. Without any doubt, they accepted the fact more by necessity than inclination. Otherwise, they would have taken every opportunity to influence legislation and administration, in a direct manner by manoeuvering the ruling classes, or indirectly by constantly stirring up the Catholic masses".(32)
REBIRTH OF THE SOCIETY OF JESUS DURING THE 19th CENTURY 75

To be truthful, this immunity of the Protestant countries towards Jesuitic ventures was far from complete.

"In the United States", wrote M. Fulop-Miller, "the Company has deployed a systematic and fruitful activity for a long time, as she is not hindered by any laws... "I am not happy about the rebirth of the Jesuits", wrote the former president of the John Adams Union to his successor Thomas Jefferson, in 1816. "Swarms of them will present themselves under more disguises ever taken by even a chief of the Bohemians, as printers, writers, publishers, school teachers, etc. If ever an association of people deserved eternal damnation, on this earth and in hell, it is this Society of Loyola. Yet, with our system of religious liberty, we can but offer them a refuge..." And Jefferson answered his predecessor: "Like you, I object to the Jesuits' reestablishment which makes light give way to darkness".(33)

The fears so expressed were to be proved right, one century later, as we shall see.

(32) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p.285.
(33) Rene Fulop-Miller, op.cit., pp. 149-150.

76

Section IV
Chapter 5
The Second Empire and the Falloux Law—The War of 1870

In the previous chapter, we mentioned the wide tolerance enjoyed by the Society of Jesus in France, under Napoleon III, even though it was officially prohibited. In any case, it could not be otherwise as that regime owed its existence—largely at least—to the Roman Church whose support never failed, as long as the regime lasted. But it was to be very costly for France.

The readers of the "Progres du Pas-de-Calais", a publication for which the future emperor wrote several articles in 1843 and 1844, could not then suspect him of leniency towards "ultramontanism", judging from the following:

"The clergy demands, under the cover of freedom of teaching, the right to instruct youth. The State, on the other hand, also demands the right to direct public instruction for her own interests. This struggle is the result of divergent opinions, ideas and feelings between government and Church. Both want to influence the new generations coming up in opposite directions and for their own benefit. We do not believe, as one well-known orator does, that all ties between the clergy and civil authority must be broken in order to stop this diversion. Unfortunately, France's ministers of religion are generally opposed to democratic interests; to allow them to build schools without control is to encourage them to teach the people the hatred of revolution and liberty".

And again: "The clergy will stop being ultramontane as soon as one compells them to be brought up, as formerly in an up-to-date manner and to mingle with the people gaining their education from the same sources as the general public."

Referring to the way in which German priests were trained, the author clarifies his thoughts in the following manner: "Instead of being shut away from the rest of the world, from childhood, and so be instilled in the seminaries with hatred for the society in which they must live, they would
THE SECOND EMPIRE AND THE FALLOUX LAW — THE WAR OF 1870 77
learn early to be citizens before being priests".(34)

This did not encourage political clericalism for the future sovereign, then a "Carbonari". But the ambition to sit on the throne soon made him more docile towards Rome. Did not Rome herself help him climb the first step?
"Having been made president of the Republic on the 10th of December 1848, Louis Napoleon Bonaparte gathers several ministers around himself, one of which is M. de Falloux. Who is this M. de Falloux? A tool of the Jesuits... On the 4th of January 1849, he institutes a commission whose job is to "prepare a big legislative reform of primary and secondary education"... In the course of the discussion, M. Cousin takes the liberty to remark that maybe the Church is wrong to tie her destiny to the Jesuits. Monseigneur Dupanloup defends energetically the Society... A law on teaching is being prepared which would "make amends" to the Jesuits. In the past, the State and the University had been protected against the Jesuits' invasions; we were wrong and unjust; we demanded that the government applied its laws against these agents from a foreign government and we ask their forgiveness for it. They are good citizens who were slandered and misjudged; what can we do to show them the respect and esteem which are due to them?

"Put in their hands the teaching of the young generations".
"This in fact is the aim of the law of the 15th of March 1850. This law appoints a superior council for Public Instruction in which the clergy dominates, (first art.); it makes the clergy masters of the schools, (art.44); it gives religious associations the right to create free schools, without having to explain about the non-authorised congregations (Jesuits), (art. 17,2); it said that the letters of obedience would be their diplomas, (art.49); M. Barthelemy Saint-Hilaire tries in vain to demonstrate that the aim of the authors of that project is to give the monopoly to the clergy, and that this law would be fatal to the University... Victor Hugo exclaims, also vainly:

"This law is a monopoly in the hands of those who try to make teaching come out of the sacristy and the government out of the confessional".(35)

But the Assembly ignores these protestations. It prefers listening to M. de Montalembert who exclaims: "We will be swallowed up if we don't stop immediately the current trend of rationalism and demagogy; what's more, it can be stopped only with the help of the Church".
"M. de Montalembert adds these words to make sure the significance of this law is well described: "To the demoralising and anarchical army of teachers, we must oppose the army of the clergy". The law was passed. Never before in France had the Jesuits won a more complete victory.
M. de Montalembert admitted it proudly... He said: "I am defending (34) "Oeuvres de Napoleon III" (Amyot et Plon, Paris 1856, II, pp.31 and 33). (35) Adolphe Michel, op.cit., pp.66 ss.

78

justice by backing as well as possible the government of the Republic, which has done so much to save order and maintain the union of the French people; it especially rendered more services to the Catholic Church than all the other governments in power during the last two centuries".(36)

All this happened more than one hundred years ago, but seems rather familiar today. But let us see how the "Republic", presided over by prince Louis-Napoleon, was acting internationally.

The revolution of 1848 had, amongst other repercussions in Europe, provoked the uprising of the Romans against Pope Pius IX, their temporal sovereign, who had fled to Gaete. The Roman Republic had been proclaimed. Through a scandalous paradox, it was the French Republic, in agreement with the Austrians and the king of Naples, who put back on the throne the undesirable sovereign.

"A French regiment besieged Rome, took it on the 2nd of June 1849 and restored pontifical power; it managed to maintain itself with the help of a French division of occupation which left Rome only after the first disasters in the Franco-German war of 1870".(37)

This beginning was very promising.

"The coup of the 2nd of December 1851 brought about the proclamation of the Empire. Louis-Napoleon, President of the Republic, had favoured the Jesuits in every way. Now emperor, he refused nothing to his accomplices and allies. The clergy poured out its blessings and "Te Deum" profusely on the massacres and proscriptions of the 2nd of December. The one responsible for this abominable ambush was looked upon as a providential saviour: "The archbishop of Paris, Monseigneur Sibour, who saw the massacres on the boulevard, exclaims:

"The man who was prepared by God has come; the finger of God was never more visible than in the events which produced these great results".
The bishop of Saint-Flour said from his pulpit: "God pointed out Louis-Napoleon; He already had elected him to be emperor. Yes, my dear brethren, God consecrated him beforehand through the blessing of His pontiffs and priests; He acclaimed him Himself; can we not recognise God's elect?"

The bishop of Nevers falsely saluted "Providence's visible instrument".
"These pitiable adulations, which could be multiplied still further, deserved a reward. This reward was a complete freedom given to the Jesuits as long as the Empire lasted. The Society of Jesus was literally master of France for eighteen years... she enriched herself, multiplied her establishments and spread her influence. Her action was felt in all the important events of that time, especially in the expedition to Mexico and the declaration of war in

(36) Adolphe Michel, op.cit. pp.55,66.
(37) Larousse, VII, p.371.

79

187O".(38)

"The Empire means peace", declared the new sovereign. But, barely two years after he acceeded to the throne, the first of all those wars which succeeded each other throughout his reign started; history could regard the motives which brought about these wars as unconnected if we didn't see what united them: the defence of the Roman Church's interests. The Crimean war, the first of these mad enterprises which weakened us and was not nationally profitable, is a characteristic example.

It was not someone anticlerical, but the Abbe Brugerette, who wrote:
"One must read the speeches the famous Theatine (Father Ventura) gave in the chapel of Les Tuileries during Lent in 1857. He presented the Empire's restorationas God's work... and praised Napoleon III for having defended the religion in Crimea and made the great days of the Crusades shine a second time in the East... The Crimean war was regarded as a compliment to the Roman expedition... It was praised by the whole clergy, full of admiration for the religious fervour of the troops besieging Sebastapol. Saint-Beuve movingly narrated how Napoleon III had sent an image of the Virgin to the French fleet".(39)

What was this expedition which aroused the enthusiasm of the clergy. M. Paul

Leon, member of the Institute, explains: "A quarrel between monks revives the question of the East: it was born out of rivalries between the Latin and Orthodox Churches regarding the protection of the Holy places (in Palestine). Who would watch over Bethlehem's churches, hold the keys, direct the work? How is it possible that such small matters could set two great empires against each other?... But, behind the Latin monks is France's Catholic party, provided with ancient privileges and supporter of the new regime; behind the growing demands of the Orthodox, who had grown in numbers, is the Russian influence".(40)

The Czar invokes the protection of the Orthodox Church which he has to assure and, to make it effective, asks that his fleet should use the Dardanelles passage; England, which is backed by France, refuses, and the war breaks out.

"France and England can reach the Czar only through the Black Sea and the Turkish alliance... From now on, the war of Russia becomes the Crimean war and is entirely centered on the siege of Sebastopol, a costly episode without issue. Bloody battles, deadly epidemics and inhuman sufferings cost France one hundred thousand dead".(41)

We must point out that these one hundred thousand dead were Christ's

(38) Adolphe Michel, op.cit., pp.71-72.
(39) Abbe J. Brugerette: "Le Pretre francais et la societe contemporaine" (Lethielleux, Paris 1933, I, pp.168 and 180).
(40) and (41) Paul Leon, of the Institute, "La guerre pour la Paix", (Ed. Fayard, Paris 1950 pp.321-323).

soldiers and glorious "martyrs of the faith", according to Monseigneur Sibour, Archbishop of Paris, who declared at that time: "The Crimean war, between France and Russia, is not a political war, but a holy war; it is not a State fighting another State, people fighting other people, but singularly a war of religion, a Crusade..."(42)

The admission is not ambiguous. Anyway, haven't we heard the same, not long ago, during the German occupation, expounded in identical terms by the prelates of His Holiness Pius XII and by Pierre Laval himself, president of the Council of Vichy?

In 1863, it is the expedition to Mexico. What is it about? To transform a layrepublic into an empire and offer it to Maximilien, archduke of Austria.

Austria is the papacy's number one pillar. The aim is also to erect a barrier which would contain the influence of the Protestant United States over the States of South America, strongholds of the Roman Church.

M. Albert Bayet wrote with sagacity: "The war's aim is to establish a Catholic empire in Mexico and curtail the peoples' right to self rule; as during the Syrian campaign and the two Chinese campaigns, it tends especially to serve catholic interests".(43)

We know how, in 1867, after the French army had re-embarked, Maximilien, the unfortunate champion of the Holy See, was made prisoner when Queretaro surrendered and was shot dead, making way for a republic of which the victor Juarez was president.

Nevertheless, the time was getting nearer when France was to pay, once again, much more dearly for the political support the Vatican assured the imperial throne. While the French army was spilling its blood in the four corners of the world, and getting weaker while defending interests which were not hers, Prussia, under the heavy hand of the future "iron chancellor", was busy expanding its military might in order to unite the German states in a single block." Austria was the first victim of its will and power. In agreement with Prussia which was to seize the Danish duchess of Schleswig and Holstein, Austria was cheated by her accomplice. The war which followed was soon won by Prussia at Sadowa on the 3rd of July 1866. It was a terrible blow for the ancient Hapsburg monarchy which was declining; the blow was just as hard for the Vatican, as Austria had been for so long its most faithful stronghold within the germanic lands. From novw on, Protestant Prussia will exercise her hegemony over them. Unless... the Roman Church finds a "secular arm" capable of stopping completely the expansion of the "heretic" power. But who can play this part in Europe apart from the French Empire? Napoleon III, "the man sent by Providence", will have the honour of avenging Sadowa. The French army is not ready. "The artillery is out of date. Our cannons are still loaded through the muzzle", wrote Rothan, French minister at Francfort who can see disaster coming. "Prussia knows of her superiority and our lack of preparation", he adds with many other observers. The war instigators are not concerned. The candidature of a Hohenzollern prince for the vacant Spanish throne is the excuse for that conflict; also, Bismark wants it. When he faked the dispatch of Ems, the advocates of war had the game in their hands and they aroused public opinion.

(42) Quoted by Monseigneur Journet: "Exigences chretiennes en politique"(Ed. L.V.F. Paris 1945, p.274).
(43) Albert Bayet: "Histoire de France" (Ed. du Sagittaire, Paris 1938, p.282).

France herself declared war. this "war of 1870 which was proved by history to be the work of the Jesuits", as M. Gaston Bally wrote.
The composition of the government which sent France to disaster is described as follows by the eminent catholic historian, Adrien Dansette: "Napoleon III started by sacrificing Victor Duruy, then resolved to appoint to his government men from the people's party (January 1870). The new ministers were nearly all sincere catholics, or ecclesiastics believing in social conservatism".(44)

It is easy to understand, now, what was inexplicable: the haste of this government to extract a "casus belli" from this faked dispatch, even before receiving a confirmation.

"The consequences were: the collapse of the Empire and the countercoup for the papal throne which followed... The imperial edifice and the papal edifice, crowned by the Jesuits, fell in the same mud, in spite of the Immaculate Conception and papal infallibility; but, alas! it was over the ashes of France".(45)

(44) Adrien Dansette: "Histoire religieuse de la France contemporaine" (Ed. Flammarion, Paris 1948, I, p.432)
(45) Gaston Bally, op.cit., pp.100, 101.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:33 PM (GMT)

Section IV
Chapter 6
The Jesuits in Rome—the Syllabus

One can read, in a book from the Abbe Brugerette, the following passage in the chapter entitled "The clergy under the Second Empire":

"Particular devotions, old or new, were honoured more and more at a time when romanticism still exalted the senses to the detriment of austere reason. The worship of saints and their relics, restrained for so long by the cold breath of rationalism, had taken a new vigour. The worship of the holy Virgin, thanks to apparitions at La Salette and Lourdes, acquired an extraordinary popularity. Pilgrimages to these places privileged by miracles multiplied. "The French Episcopate... favoured new devotions. It warmly and thankfully welcomed, in 1854, the encyclical letter of Pius IX proclaiming the dogma of the Immaculate Conception... It was also the episcopate, brought together in Paris, in 1856, for the baptism of the imperial Prince, who asked Pius IX that the feast of the Sacred-Heart... should be made into a solemn feast of the universal Church".(46)

These few lines clearly show the preponderant influence exercsied by the Jesuits under the Second Empire, in France as much as over the Holy See, As we saw earlier on, they were and remain the great propagators of these "particular devotions, old or new", this "perceptible" and almost sensual piety made the masses excessively scrupulous in religious matters, especially women. As far as that is concerned, we must admit that they were realists. The time had gone—already under Napoleon III—when the public as a whole, the learned and the ignorant, took a deep interest in theological questions. Intellectually, Catholicism had ended its career.

It is then more by necessity than because of their formation that the sons of Loyola endeavoured, during the 19th century and today, to awaken

(46) Abbe J. Brugerette: "Le pretre francais et la societe contemporaine", (Ed. Lethielleux Paris 1933, I, pp. 183-184).

83

superstitious religiosity, especially amongst women who make up most of the flock; this was to counter-balance "rationalism", For the secondary education of girls, the Order promoted the founding of several congregations of women. "The most famous and active was the "Congregation des Dames du Sacre-Coeur"; in 1830, it comprised 105 houses with 4,700 teachers and its influence over the higher classes was very important".(47)

As far as the worship of Mary is concerned, which was always so dear to the Jesuits, it was greatly helped, under the Second Empire, by the very opportune "apparitions" of the Virgin to a little shepherdess of Lourdes; this happened two years after Pius IX promulgated the dogma of the Immaculate Conception (1854), at the instigation of the Company of Jesus. The main acts of this pontificate were all victories for the Jesuits whose allpowerful influence over the Roman Curia affirmed itself more and more. In 1864, Pius IX published the encyclical letter "Quanta Cura", accompanied by the "Syllabus" which anathematized the best political principles of the contemporary societies.

"Anathema on all that is dear to modern France! Modern France wants the independance of the state; the 'Syllabus' teaches that the ecclesiastical power must exercise its "authority without the assent and permission of the civil power. Modern France wants the liberty of conscience and liberty of worship; the'Syllabus' teaches that the Roman Church has the right to use force and reinstate the Inquisition. Modern France acknowledges the existence of several types of worship; the 'Syllabus' declares that the Catholic religion must be considered as the only religion of the state and all others are excluded. Modern France proclaims that the people are sovereign; the 'Syllabus' condemns universal suffrage. Modern France professes that all French people are equal before the law; the 'Syllabus' affirms that ecclesiastics are exempt from ordinary civil and criminal tribunals."

"These are the doctrines taught by the Jesuits in their colleges. They are at the front of the army of counter-revolution... Their mission consists of bringing up the youth put in their care with a hatred for the principles on which French society rests, principles laid down by former generations at a great cost. By their teaching, they try to divide France into two and call into question all that has been done since 1789. We want harmony, they want strife; we want peace, they want war; we want France to be free, they want her enslaved; they are a combatant society receiving its orders from outside; they are fighting us, let us defend ourselves; they threaten us, let us disarm them".(48)

(47) H. Boehmer, op.cit., p.290.
(48) Adolphe Michel: "Les Jesuites" (Sandoz et Fischbacher, Paris 1879, pp.77 ss)

84

The Holy See's everlasting pretension to dominate civil society was then reaffirmed, as Renan had already said in 1848, in an article entiled "Clerical liberalism": "It demonstrated that the people's sovereignty, the liberty of conscience and all modern liberties were condemned by the Church. It presented the Inquisition as "the logical consequence of the whole orthodox system", as "the summary of the Church's spirit". It added: "When she will be able to, the Church will bring back the Inquisition; if she doesn't do it, it is because she cannot do it".(49)

The power of the Jesuits over the Vatican was shown even more strongly, a few years after the 'Syllabus', when the dogma of Pontifical Infallibility was promulgated; the Abbe Brugerette wrote that this dogma was to "throw over the tragic years of 1870-1871, which put France into mourning, the brightness of a great Christian hope".

The same author added: "One can say that, during the first half of the year 1870, the Church of France was not in France anymore; she was in Rome, passionately busy with the General Council which Pius IX had just called at the Vatican..." "According to Monseigneur Pie, this French clergy had completely "thrown off its own liveries, maxims and French or Gallic liberties". This bishop of Poitiers added that it was done as a sacrifice to the principle of authority, sound doctrine and common right; it placed all that under the feet of the sovereign pontiff, made a throne of it for him and sounded the trumpet, saying: "The pope is our king; not only is his will our command, but his wishes are our rules".(49a)

The resignation of the whole of a "national" clergy into the hands of the Roman Curia is clear enough and, because of it, the subjection of the French Catholics to the will of a foreign despot who, under the cover of dogma or morals, was going to impose on them his political directions without any opposition. The liberal Catholics protested in vain against the exorbitant pretention of the Holy See to dictate its laws in the name of the Holy Spirit. The Abbe Brugerette informs us, their head, M. de Montalembert, published in the Gazette de France an article in which he vehemently protested against those who "sacrifice justice and truth, reason and history, to the idol they set up at the Vatican".(50)

Several notorious bishops such as Fathers Hyacinthe Loyson and Gratry took the same line; the latter not without spirit; Father Gratry said: "He published successively his four Letters to Monseigneur Deschamps. In them, he did not merely discuss historical events, such as the condemnation of Pope Honorius, who, according to him, opposed the proclamation of pontifical infallibility; but, in a sharp and bitter manner, he denounced also the contempt of authoritative catholics for the truth, and scientific integrity. One of them, an ecclesiastical candidate for the Doctorate of (49), (49a) and (50) Abbe J. Brugerette, op.cit., pp.221, 223.

85

Theology, even dared to justify false decretals before the Faculty of Paris, declaring that "it was not an odious fraud". And Gratry added: "Even today it is being stated that Galileo's condemnation was opportune". "You, men of little faith, with miserable hearts and sordid souls! Your tricks are scandalous. On the day when the great science of nature was raised above the world, you condemned it."

"Do not be surprised if men, before forgiving you, expect from you confession, penance, deep contrition and amends for your faults".(51) No need to say that the Jesuits, inspiring agents of Pius IX and all-powerful over the Council, were not anxious about confession, penance, contrition or reparation, at a time when they almost reached the goal they had set themselves at the Council of Trent, in the middle of the 16th century. At that time Lainez already supported the idea of papal infallibility. It only meant consecrating as a dogma a pretention nearly as old as the papacy itself. No other Council until then had been willing to ratify it, but the time seemed just right, then; besides, the patient work of the Jesuits had prepared the national clergy for the surrender of their last liberties; the imminent collapse of the popes' temporal power—it happened before the Council voted—called for a reinforcement of his spiritual authority, according to the ultramontanes. The argument prevailed and the"dictatus papae" of Gregory VII, principles of the mediaeval theocracy, triumphed right in the middle of the 19th century.

What the new dogma especially consecrated was the omnipotence of the Company of Jesus in the Roman Church.
"Under the cover of the Jesuits, who have established themselves at the Vatican since the secular powers have rejected them from all free countries as an association of malefactors, the papacy has aspired to new ambitions. These evil men, who have made the Gospel into a Spectacle of tears and blood and remain the worst enemies of democracy and freedom of thought, dominate the Roman Curia; all their efforts concentrate on maintaining, in the Church, their pernicious preponderance and shameful doctrines."

"Dedicated to the cause of extreme centralisation, irreducible apostles of theocracy, they are the recognised masters of contemporary Catholicism and stamp their seal on its theology, its official piety and its crooked politics".
"True janissaries of the Vatican, they inspire everything, rule everthing, penetrate everwhere, set up "informing" as a system of government, faithful to a casuistry whose profound immorality has been revealed by history and inspired Pascal's immortal pages of sublime mockery. Through the 'Syllabus' of 1864 which they themselves drew up, Pius IX declared war on all free thought and sanctioned, a few years later, the dogma of infallibility which is a real historical anachronism and of which modern science could not care less".(52)

(51) Father Gratry, quoted by the Abbe J. Brugerette, op.cit., p.229.

86

For those who, against all probability, would persist to see a spiteful exaggeration and disparagement in the lines we just quoted, we cannot do better than present the confirmation itself of these facts, from the very orthodox pen of M. Daniel-Rops. This confirmation carries even more weight by the fact that it was published in 1959, under the title "The Reestablishment of the Company of Jesus", in the Jesuits' own publication "Etudes". It is then in a true speech for the defence that we read:
"For many reasons, this reorganisation of the Company of Jesus had a considerable historical importance. The Holy See rediscovered this faithful band, utterly devoted to its cause, and which was to be needed soon after.

Many Fathers were to exercise, during that century and until now, a discreet, but deep influence on certain dispositions taken by the Vatican; a kind of proverb was even heard in Rome: "The pope's penholders are Jesuits". Their influence was obvious in the development of the worship of the Sacred-Heart as well as in the proclamation of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception, in the editing of the 'Syllabus' as well as in the definition of 'Infallibility'.
The "Civilta Cattolica", founded by the Neapolitan Jesuit Carlo Curci, was supposed to reflect the pope's thought during most of Pius IX's pontificate".(53)

This confession is clear enough. We would only remind the departed spirit of this pious academician that, logically, and judging by all the previous context, it was rather the pope's thought which was reflected in the opinions of the "Civilta Cattolica".

No need to say that the Jesuits, all-powerful in Rome, as much because of their spirit as of their organisation, were going to engage the papacy in international politics more and more, as M. Louis Roguelin wrote: "Since she lost her temporal power, the Church of Rome took advantage of every opportunity to regain all the ground she was constrained to abandon, through a recrudescence of diplomatic activities; as her cleverly concealed scheme is to divide in order to reign, she tried to turn every conflict in her favour."
Boivent, 1927, pp.79 to 81).

(53) Daniel-Rops: "Le Retablissement de la Compagnie de Jesus" (Etudes, September 1959)

87

According to the plan of Loyola's subjects, the dogma of Papal infallibility greatly favoured this action of the Holy See, whose importance can be measured from the fact that most states have a diplomatic representative accredited to it. Under the cover of dogma and morals, subjects which in principle restrict the infallible word, the pope today disposes of an unlimited authority over the consciences of the faithful. So, during the 20th century, we see the Vatican actively engaged in the interior and exterior politics of countries, and even govern them thanks to Catholic parties. What's more, we will see it support "providential" men such as Mussolini and Hitler who, because of its help, will unleash the worst kind of catastrophes.

Christ's vicar acknowledged profusely the services of this famous society which worked so hard and well in his favour. These "sons of Satan" as some brave ecclesiastics qualified them, are all tarnished, but they can, in return, boast about the august testimonial of complete satisfaction accorded to them by the deceased pope S.S. Pius XII whose confessor, we know, was a German Jesuit.

In this text, published by "La Croix" on the 9th of August 1955, we can read: "The Church does not want auxiliaries of another type than those of this Company... may the sons of Loyola strive to follow the footprints of former ones..."

Today, like yesterday, they are doing just that, to the great evil of the nations.

88

Section IV
Chapter 7
The Jesuits in France from 1870 until 1885

The collapse of the Empire should, it seems, have brought about a reaction against the ultramontane spirit in France. But it was not so as Adolphe Michel shows:

"When the throne fell into the mud of Sedan on the 2nd of December, when France was definitely defeated, when the Assembly of 1871 met at Bordeaux, while waiting to come to Versailles, the clerical party was more audacious than ever. In all the disasters befalling the homeland, it spoke as master. Who wouldn't remember the Jesuits' presumptuous manifestations and their insolent threats during these past few years? Like a certain Father Marquigny announcing the civil burial of the principles of '89; or M. de Belcastel, on his own authority, dedicating France to the Sacred-Heart; the Jesuits erecting a church on the hill of Montmartre, in Paris, and so defying the Revolution; the bishops prompting France to declare war on Italy in order to reestablish the temporal power of the pope..."(54)

Gaston Bally explains very well the reason for that apparently paradoxical situation: "During that cataclysm, the Jesuits, as always, quickly went back into their hole, leaving the Republic to get herself out of the muddle as best she could. But when most of the work had been done, when our territory was delivered from the Prussian invasion, the black invasion started again and "pulled the chestnuts out of the fire". The land was just emerging from a kind of nightmare, a terrible dream, and it was just the right time to get hold of the panic-striken masses".(55)

But is it not the same after every war? It is an incontestable fact that the Roman Church has always benefited from the great public disasters; that death, misery and sufferings of every kind incite the masses to search for illusive consolations in pious practices. In that way, the power of those who

(54) Adolphe Michel: op.cit., pp.72, 73.
(55) (56) and (57) Gaston Bally, op.cit., pp. 101,107,108,109.

89

let loose these disasters is strengthened, if not increased, by the victims themselves. As far as that is concerned, the two world wars had the same consequences as the one of 1870.

Then, France was conquered; on the other hand, it was a brilliant victory for the Company of Jesus when, in 1873, a law was passed, allowing the building of a basilica of the Sacred-Heart on Montmartre Hill. This church, said to be a "National wish", by a cruel irony no doubt, was going to materialise in stone the triumph of Jesuitism, at the place where it commenced its life.

At first glance, this invocation to the Sacred-Heart of Jesus extolled by the Jesuits may seem, though basely idolatrous, quite innocent.
"To realise the danger", wrote Gaston Bally, "we must look behind the facade, witness the manipulation of souls and see the aim of their various associations: the Brotherhood of "Perpetual Adoration"; the Brotherhood of the "Guard of Honour", the Apostolate of Prayer, the Reparative Communion, etc, etc. The brotherhoods, associates, apostles, missionaries, worshipers, zealots, guards of honour, restorers, mediators and other federates of the Sacred-Heart seem to intend exclusively to, as Mademoiselle Alacoque invited them to, unite their homage to those of the nine choirs of Angels.

So, in reality, it is far from innocent. "The brotherhoods stated their aims many times. They couldn't accuse me of slandering them; I will but quote a few passages from their most clear declarations and gather up their confessions.

"Public opinion was shocked with the remarks of Father Olivier when the victims of the Bazaar of Charity were buried. The monk had seen in the catastrophe only another proof of divine clemency. God was saddened by our "mistakes" and was inviting us, gently, to make amends.
"This seemed monstrous. The building of the Basilica on Montmartre was a result of the same "thought", but this was forgotten".(56)
What was then the terrible sin France had to confess? The aforementioned author answers: "...THE REVOLUTION".

This is the abominable crime we must "expiate".
"And the Basilica of the Sacred-Heart symbolises France's repentance (Sacratissimo cordi Jesu Gallioe poenitens et devoter); it expresses also our firm intention to repair the wrong-doings. It is a monument of expiation and reparation..."(57)
"Save Rome and France in the name of the Sacred-Heart", became the anthem of the Moral Order.
"So we were able to hope against all hopes", wrote the Abbe Brugerette, "and expect from the "pacified heaven" some time or other the great event of the restoration of order and the salvation of the homeland."(58)
It seems though that "heaven", angered with the France of the rights of man, was not "pacified" enough by the erection of the famous basilica, the three candle snuffers, as the "restoration of order", or rather the monarchical restoration, was slow in coming. The same author explains it in the following manner:

90

"Even though the grandiose manifestations of the Catholic faith, during the years following the war of 1870, may seem impressive, it would be a lack of the sense of observation if French society of that epoch was judged only on the grounds of that exterior piety; we would also be lacking in psychological spirit and be outside the truth. We must wonder then if the religious sentiment was a direct answer, for the whole of that society, to the expression of faith revealed by the imposing pilgrimages organised by the bishops and the earnestness of the masses in the churches...

"Without wanting to attentuate in any way the importance of the religious move in France brought about by the two wars of 1870 and 1914, which also raised such high hopes, we must nevertheless admit that this revival of the faith had not the depth, nor the extent which a true religious renewal would have...

"For, even then, the Church of France was unfortunately comprised of not only thousands of unbelievers and adversaries, but also a very large number of those who were catholics only by name and not conviction. Religious practices were performed, not by conviction, but rather from habit...
"Soon after it was done, France seemed to regret the desperate move which made her send a Catholic majority to the National Assembly, for, five months later, she reversed her position at the complementary elections of the 2nd of July! On that day, the country was to elect 113 deputies. It was a complete defeat for the Catholics and victory for between 80 to 90

Republicans. All the elections following that consultation of universal suffrage had the same character of republican and anticlerical opposition. It would be childish to pretend that they were not the expression of society's sentiments and wishes".(59)

The Abbe Brugerette, speaking about the great pilgrimages organised at that time for the "uplifting of the country", admits that they were the cause of "some mistakes and excesses" which aroused the suspicions of the "Church's adversaries".

"The pilgrimages will be for them enterprises organised by the clergy for the restoration of monarchy in France and pontifical power in Rome. And the attitude taken by the clergy on these two aims will look like justifying this accusation from the irreligious press and will give, on that account, as we shall see later, a mighty impetus to anticlericalism. Without breaking away from its religious habits revived so much during the years after the war, French society will rebel against this "government of priests", as

(58) and (59) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, pp.10 to 14.

91

Gambetta stigmatized it. Deep down, the French people had kept an invincible instinct of resistance against anything which even vaguely resembled the Church's political domination. On the whole, this nation loved religion, but the spectre of "theocracy" revived by the opposition press frightened it. The eldest daughter of the Church did not want to forget that she was also the mother of Revolution".(60)

Yet, the clergy with the Jesuits at their head were making such efforts to persuade the French people to abjure the republican spirit!
"Since the Falloux law was enforced, the Jesuits, expanded freely their colleges where they brought up the children of the ruling middle-classes and they obviously did not teach them a great love for the Republic..."
"As for the "Assumptionists" created in 1845 by the intransigent Father d'Alzon, they wanted to give back to the people the faith it had lost..."(61)

But there were many other envious flourishing teaching congregations:

Oratorians, Eudistes, Dominicans of the Third-Order, Marianits, Marists, which Jules Simon called "the second volume" of the Jesuits bound in asses skin and the famous "Brothers of the Christian Schools", better known under the name of Ignorantins, who taught the "good doctrine" to the offsprings of the middle-classes as well as to more than one and a half million children of the ordinary people.

It is not surprising that this situation put the republican regime on the defensive. A law, proposed in 1879 by Jules Ferry, wanted to remove the clergy from the Councils for Public Instruction into which they had been introduced by the laws of 1850 and 1873, and give back to the state's faculties the exclusive right to grade the degrees of the teachers. Article 7 of this law also specified that "no one would be allowed to take part in public or free teaching if he belongs to an unauthorised religious congregation".

"The Jesuits are aimed at before anyone else in that famous article 7. The priests of the deanery of Moret (Seine-et-Marne) will declare then that "they are on the side of all religious communities, including the venerable Fathers of the Company of Jesus". "To strike them", they write, "is to strike ourselves"... The confession is explicit.
The Abbe Brugerette, who wrote that passage, describes the resistance put up by the Catholics against what he calls a "treacherous attack", but he adds:

"The clergy still ignore the immense progress of the laity; it has not understood yet that, because of its opposition to the principles of '89, it has lost all deep influence over the direction of public spirit in France".(62)

Article 7 is rejected by the Senate, but Jules Ferry invokes the existing laws concerning the congregations.

(60) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, pp.164, 165.
(61) Adrien Dansette, op.cit., p.29.
(62) (63) (64) and (65) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, pp.164, 165, 166, 167, 176, 185.

92

"In consequence, on the 29th of March 1880, the "Journal Officiel" contains two decrees compelling the Jesuits to break up, and all unauthorised congregations of men and women to "obtain recognition and approval for their regulations and legal status within three months..." Without any delay, a movement of opposition is organised; "The Church, deeply wounded, is aroused", according to M. Debidour. After the 11th of March, Leo XIII and his Nuncio express a grievous protestation... "Now it is the turn of all the bishops to defend energetically the religious Orders".(63)

The sons of Loyola were nevertheless expelled. But let us listen to what the Abbe Brugerette has to say on that subject: "In spite of all, the Jesuits, experts at re-entering through the windows when they have been thrown out through the door, had already been successful in putting their colleges into the control of laymen or secular ecclesiastics. Even though not residing in these colleges, they could be seen coming in at certain times of the day to perform duties of direction and supervision".(64)

But the deceit was discovered and the Jesuits' colleges finally closed.
In all, the decrees of 1879 were enforced on 32 congregations who refused to submit to the legal dispositions. In many places, the expulsion was carried out by the military arm "manu militari" against the opposition of the faithful aroused by the Fathers. These not only refused to ask for the legal authorisation, but also refused to sign a declaration disclaiming all idea of opposition to the republican regime; this would have been enough for M. de Freycinet, then president of the Council and favouring them, to still "tolerate" them. When the Orders decided to sign this formal declaration of loyalty, the manoeuvre had been made void and M. de Freycinet had to resign because he had tried to negotiate this accord against the wishes of parliament and his colleagues of the Cabinet.

The Abbe Brugerette comments on the declaration the religious Orders had to sign and found so repugnant:

"This declaration of respect for the institutions France gave herself freely... may seem very harmless and inoffensive, today, when compared with the solemn oath of loyalty demanded from the German bishops by the Concordat of the 20th of July 1933 between the Holy See and the Reich.
"Article 16.—"Before taking possession of their diocese, the bishops will take an oath of loyalty before the president of the Reich or a competent Reichsstatthalter in the following terms:

"Before God and on the Holy Scriptures, I swear and promise, as a bishop should, loyalty to the German Reich and the State. I swear and promise to respect and make my clergy respect the government established according to the constitutional laws. As is my duty, I will work for the good and in the interests of the German State; in the exercise of the holy ministry entrusted to me, I will try to stop everything which would be detrimental to it". (Concordat between the Holy See and the German Reich)(65).

93

The difference is certainly great between a mere promise of nonopposition to France's regime and this solemn pledge to uphold the nazi state. Just as great as the difference between the two regimes, one democratic and liberal, so hated by the Roman Church, the other totalitarian and brutally intolerent, wanted and set up by the united efforts of Franz von Papen, the pope's secret chamberlain, and Monseigneur Pacelli, nuncio in Berlin and future Pius XII.

It is again the Abbe Brugerette who, after having declared that the governnment's aim had been reached as far as the Company of Jesus was concerned, admits also:

"We could not speak of the destruction of the institution of congregations. The women's congregations had not been touched and the authorised ones, "as dangerous as the others for the lay spirit", were still standing. We knew also that nearly all the men's congregations, expelled from their houses because of the decrees of 1880, had quietly gone back to their monasteries".(66)

But this lull was short-lived. The intention of the state to collect taxes and rights of succession on the wealth of the ecclesiastical communities provoked a general outcry amongst them, as they had no intention to submit to the common law. "The organisation of resistance was the work of a committee directed by the PP. Bailly, "Assumptionist", Stanislas, a Capuchin, and Le Dore, superior of the Eudists... Father Bailly was reviving the great zeal of the clergy by writing: "Like Saint Laurent, the monks and nuns must go back to the rack or thumb-screws rather than surrender".(67)

As by accident, the main revivalist of that "great zeal", Bailly, was an "Assumptionist", or, in fact, a camouflaged Jesuit. As for the rack and the thumb-screws, we could have reminded the good Father that these instruments of torture are in the tradition of the Holy-See and not the one of the republican state.

Finally, the congregations paid—about half of what they owed—and the aforementioned Abbe admits that "the prosperity of their work was not impaired", as we can well imagine.

We cannot go into details concerning the laws of 1880 and 1886 which tended to assure the confessional neutrality of the state schools, this "secularisation"(67a) which is natural to all tolerant minds, but is rejected by the Roman Church as an abominable attempt at forcing consciences, something she has always claimed for herself. We could expect her to fight for this so-called right as violently as for her financial privileges.

(66) and (67) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., pp. 185,196,191.
(67a) See Jan Cotereau: "Anthologie des grands textes laiques" (Fischbacher, Paris)

94

In 1883, the Roman congregation of the Index, inspired by Jesuitism, enters the fight by the condemnation of certain school books on moral and civic teaching. Of course, the matter is grave: one of the authors, Paul Bert, dared to write that even the idea of miracles "must vanish before the critical mind!" So, more than fifty bishops promulgate the decree of the Index, with fulminating comments, and one of them, Monseigneur Isoard, declares in his pastoral letter of the 27th of February 1883 that the teachers, the parents and the children who refuse to destroy these books will be barred from the sacraments.(67b)

The laws of 1886, 1901 and 1904, declaring that no teaching post could be held by members of religious congregations, also started a flood of protestations from the Vatican and the "French" clergy. But, in fact, the teaching monks and nuns only had to "secularise" themselves. The only positive result of these legal dispositions was that the professors of the schools "so-called free" had from now on to produce adequate pedagogic qualifications, a good thing when we know that, before the last war, the catholic primary schools in France numbered 11, 655 with 824,595 pupils As for the "free" colleges, and especially the Jesuits', if their number is being reduced it is because of several factors which have nothing to do with the legal wrangles. The superiority of the university's teaching, acknowledged by the majority of parents, and, more recently, its being without change, are the main causes for its growing popularity. Besides, the Society of Jesus has voluntarily reduced the number of its schools.

(67b) See Jean Cornec: "Laicite" (Sudel, Paris).

95

Section IV
Chapter 8
The Jesuits and General Boulanger
The Jesuits and the Dreyfus Affair

The hostility of which the devout party pretended to be the victim, at the end of the 19th century, from the Republican state, would not have lacked justification, even though this hostility, or more accurately mistrust, had been even more positive. In fact, the clerical opposition to the regime which France gave herself freely showed itself at every opportunity, according to the Abbe Brugerette. In 1873, the attempt to restore monarchy with the Count of Chambord failed, even though strongly supported by the clergy, because the Pretender stubbornly refused to adopt the tricoloured flag, to him the emblem of Revolution.

"Such as it is, Catholicism seems bound to politics, or to a certain kind of politics... Loyalty to the Monarchy was transmitted from generation to generation in the old noble families as well as in the middle-classes and the common people, in the Catholic regions of the West and South. Their nostalgia of an ancient and idealised Regime, pictured in an epic Middle Age was coupled with the wishes of fervent Catholics whose main preoccupation was the salvation of the religion; they rallied, behind Veuillot, with the legitimate and devout royal family of Chambord, considered to be the form of government most favourable to the Church. Out of the union of these political and religious forces was born, in the strained situation after the war, a kind of reactionary mysticism, illustrated perfectly by Monseigneur Pie, bishop of Poitiers, and its best incarnation in the ecclesiastical world: "France, who awaits another chief and calls for a master..., will again receive from God "the sceptre of the Universe which fell from her hands for a while", on the day when she will have learned anew how to go down on her knees".(68)

This picture, described by a Catholic historian, is significant. It helps to understand the moves which followed, a few years later, the unsuccessful

(68) Adrien Dansette, op.cit., II, pp.37, 38.

96 restoration attempt of 1873.

The same Catholic historian describes in the following manner the political attitude of the clergy at that time:

"At election time, the presbyteries become centers for the reactionary candiates; the priests and officiating ministers make home-calls for the electoral propaganda, slander the Republic and its new laws on teaching they declare that those who vote for the free-thinkers, the present government or freemasons described as "bandits", "riffraffs" and "thieves", are guilty of mortal sin. One declares that an adulterous woman will be forgiven more easily than those who send their children to lay schools, another one: that it is better to strangle a child than give support to the regime, a third one: that he will refuse the last sacraments to those who vote for the regime's partisans. The threats are carried out: republican and anticlerical tradesmen are boycotted; destitute people are refused any help and workmen are dismissed".(69)

These excesses from a clergy affected more and more by Jesuitic ultramontanism are even less acceptable from the fact that they emanate "from ecclesiastics paid by the government, as the Concordat is still enforced".

Also, the majority of public opinion is not happy at all with this pressure on the consciences, as the aforementioned author writes:

"As we have seen, the French people, as a whole, is indifferent to religious matters, and we cannot mistake the hereditary observance of religious practices for a real faith... "The fact is that the political map of France is identical to her religious map... we can say that in the regions where faith is strong, the French people vote for Catholic candidates elsewhere, they consciously elect anticlerical deputies and senators... They do not want clericalism, which is ecclesiastical authority in the matter of politics and commonly called "the government of priests".

"For a large number of Catholics, the fact that the priest, this troublesome man, interferes through the sermon's instructions and the confessional's prescriptions in the behaviour of the faithful, checking thoughts, sentiments, acts, food and drink, and even the intimacies of married life, is enough; they intend, at least, to limit his empire by preserving their independence as citizens".(70)

We would like to see this spirit of independence as lively today.
But, even though the opinion of that "large number of Catholics" was such, the ultramontanes would not disarm and pursue, at every opportunity, the fight against the hated regime. They thought for a white that they had found the "providential man" in the person of General Boulanger, minister for War in 1886, who, having organised his personal propaganda extremely well, looked like being a future dictator.

(69) and (70) Adrien Dansette, op.cit., II, pp.46, 47, 48.

"A tacit agreement", wrote M. Adrien Dansette, "is established between the general and the Catholics, and becomes clear during the summer... He has also concluded a secret agreement with royalist members of parliament such as Baron de Mackau and Count de Mun, faithful defenders of the Church at the Assembly...

'The phlegmatic minister for the Interior, Constans, threatens to arrest him and, on the 1st of April, the dictator candidate escapes to Brussels, with his mistress.
"From now on, "Boulangism" declines rapidly. France has not been taken: she recovers... "Boulangism" is crushed at the polls on the 22nd of September and 6th of October 1889..."(71)

We can read, from the pen of the same historian, what the attitude of the pope of that time was regarding this adventurer; he was Leo XIII who, in 1878, had succeeded Pius IX, the pope of the Syllabus, and who pretended to advise the faithful of France to join the republican regime:

"In August (1889), the German ambassador to the Vatican pretends that the pope sees in the general (Boulanger) the man who will overthrow the French Republic and re-establish the throne; we can read an article in which the "Monitor of Rome" envisages that the dictatorial candidate will take over power and that the Church "could benefit greatly from it"... General Boulanger sent one of his former officers to Rome with a letter for Leo XIII in which he promises the pope "that on the day when he would hold in his hands the sword of France, he would do his uttermost to make the rights of the papacy acknowledged".(72)

Such was this Jesuit pontiff; the intransigent clerics objected to his supposed excess of "liberalism"!

The boulangist crisis revealed well enough the action led by the religious party against the lay Republic, under the cover of nationalism. But the colourless nature of the principal character, as well as the resistance of a majority of the nation, had defeated the attempt in spite of all this forced agitation. Nevertheless, these chauvinistic tactics had proved quite effective, especially in Paris, and they were to be used again at another, and better, opportunity. This came about—or was it provoked?—and the disciples of Loyola were, of course, at the head of this movement. "Their friends are here", wrote M. Pierre Dominique, "a bigoted nobility, a bourgeoisie which rejects Voltaire, and many military men. They will especially work on the army, and the result will be the famous alliance of "the sword and the sprinkler of Holy water".

"In 1890, it is not the king of France's conscience they rule any more, but the general-staff, or, at least, its chief; then, the "Dreyfus Affair" breaks out, a real civil war which divides France into two".(73)

(71) and (72) Adrien Dansette, op.cit., II, p p . 1 1 4 ss.

The Catholic historian, Adrien Dansette, sums up the beginning of the Affair as follows:

"On the 22nd of December 1894, the Captain of artillery Alfred Dreyfus is proved guilty of treason, condemend to deportation for life imprisonment and cashiering. Three months earlier, our Intelligence Service had discovered, at the German Embassy, a list of several documents to do with national defence; it established a resemblance between the writing of Captain Dreyfus and the one on that list Immediately, the general-staff cried out: "It's him; it's the Jew". They only had this presumption as the treason had no psychological explanation (Dreyfus had a good reputation, was rich and led an orderly life); the unfortunate man is neverthelsss imprisoned, condemned by a military tribunal after an inquiry so swift and partial that the judgement must have been preconceived. To make it worse, it will be learned later that a secret document was given to the judges, without the knowledge of the counsel for the accused...

"But there was more leakage at the general-staff after Dreyfus' arrest and commandant Picquart, chief of the Intelligence Service after July 1895, learns of a certain project called "petit bleu" (express letters), between the German military attache and the French commandant (of Hungarian origin) Esterhazy; he is a disreputable man who has nothing but hatred and contempt for his country of adoption. But an officer in the Intelligence Service, Commandant Henry, adds to the Dreyfus file,—as we shall see- a false document which would be crushing for the Jewish officer if it was genuine; he also erases and re-writes the name of Esterhazy on the "petit bleu" to give the impression that the document was faked. So Picquart is disgraced in November 1896".(74)

The disgrace of the chief of the Intelligence Service is easy to understand: his zeal to dissipate the accumulated darkness was too excessive.
The most trustworthy testimony is found in the "Carnets de Schwartzkoppen", published after his death, in 1930. It was from Esterhazy, and not Dreyfus, that the author, then first military attache at the German embassy in Paris, received secret documents of the French national defence.

"Already sometime before, in July, Picquart thought the time had come to warn by letter the chief of the general-staff, who was then in Vichy, about his suspicions concerning Esterhazy. The first meeting was on the 5th of August 1896. General de Boisdeffre approved of everything Picquart had done so far concerning this affair and gave him the permission to carry on

(73) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.239.
(74) and (7 Adrien Dansette, op.cit., II, pp.263, 264.

99

with his investigation. "The minister for War, General Billot, was equally informed from August about Picquart's suspicions; he also sanctioned the measures taken by Picquart. Esterhazy, whom I had dismissed, had tried, using his connections with the deputy Jules Roche, to be posted to the ministry for War. presumably to try to get in touch with me again, and had written several letters to the minister for War as well as to his aide-decamp. One of his letters was given to Picquart who, for the first time, realised that his writing was the same as the one on the "list"! He showed a photo of that letter to Du Paty and Bertillon, without telling them, of course, who wrote it... Bertillon said: "Oh, that's the writing on the list!"(75)

"Feeling his conviction of Dreyfus' culpability crumbling away, Picquart decided to consult the "small file" which had been given only to the Judges, The archivist Gribelin gave it to him. It was evening. Left alone in his office, Picquart opened Henry's unsealed envelope, on which was Henry's paraph written with a blue pencil... Great was his amazement when he realised the nullity of those pitiful documents, none of which could be applied to Dreyfus. For the first time, he knew that the condemned man on the "Ile du Diable" (Devils Island) was innocent. The following day, Picquart wrote a letter to General de Boisdeffre in which he exposed all the charges against Esterhazy and his recent discovery. When reading about that "secret file", the general jumped up, exclaiming: "Why was it not burned as agreed?"(76)

Von Schwartzkoppen wrote further: "My position became extremely uncomfortable. This question was before me: should I tell the whole truth and so repair the horrible mistake and liberate that poor innocent man? If I had been able to act as I wanted to, I would certainly have done just that! Looking at these things in detail, I came to the conclusion that I shouldn't get involved in that matter, for, as things were, nobody would have believed me; also, diplomatic considerations were standing in the way of such an action. Considering that the French government was able to take the necessary measures to clear the matter and make up for the injustice, I really made up my mind not to do anything".(77)

"We can see coming to life the tactics of the general-staff, notes Adrien Dansette: "If Esterhazy is guilty, the officers who provoked the illegal condemnation of Dreyfus, and most of all General Marcier, minister for War at that time, are guilty also. The interests of the army require the sacrifice of Dreyfus; we must not interfere with the sentence of 1894".(78)

We remain dumbfounded, today, at the thought that such an argument could be invoked to justify, if we dare express ourselves so, an iniquitious

(75) and (77) "Les Carnets de Schwartzkoppen" Rieder, Paris 1933, pp.147, 148, 162.
(76) Armand Charpentier, "Histoire de l'affaire Dreyfus" (Fasquelle, 1933, p.73).
(78) See earlier on.

condemnation. It was to be so all through the Affair which was then just beginning. Of course, we were then in an Anti-Semitic fever. The violent dissertations of Edouard Drumont, in the "Libre Parole", showed up every day the children of Israel as agents of national corruption and dissolution. The unfavourable prejudice so created incited a large section of public opinion to believe, "a priori", in Dreyfus' guilt. But, later, when the innocence of the accused became evident, the monstrous argument of the "infallibility" of the military tribunal was still upheld, and from now on with a perfect cynicism.

Was it the Holy Spirit inspiring these judges in uniform who could not make any mistake? It would be tempting to believe in that celestial intervention—so similar to the one which guarantees papal infallibility-when we read about Father du Lac, of the Company of Jesus, who had a lot to do with the Affair:

"He directed the college of the "Rue des Postes" where the Jesuits prepared the candidates for the larger Schools. He is a very intelligent man with important connections. He converted Drumont, is the confessor of de Mun and de Boisdeffre, chief of the Army's general-staff, whom he sees every day".(79)

The Abbe Brugerette also mentions the same facts quoted by Joseph Reinach: "Is it not this Father du Lac who converted Drumont and urged him to write "The Jewish France", who supplied the means to create the "Libre Parole"? Does not General de Boisdeffre see the famous Jesuit every day? The chief of the general-staff doesn't take any decision before consulting first his director".(80)

There, on Devil's Island, which deserves its name so well in that deadly climate, the victim of this atrocious plot was treated in an extremely cruel manner, as the Anti-Semitic press had spread the report that he had tried to escape. The minister for Colonies, Andre Lebon, gave orders accordingly. "On the Sunday morning, the 6th of September, the head warder, Lebar, informed his prisoner that he would not, from then on, be allowed to walk in the part of the island which had been reserved for him, and that he would be confined to his hut. In the evening, he was told that he would be chained at night. At the foot of his bed, made up of three planks, were rivetted two double iron shackles which encircled the convict's feet. When the nights were torrid, this punishment was especially painful."

"At dawn, the guards unfastened the prisoner who, when he got up, trembled on his feet. He was forbidden to leave his hut where he had to stay day and night. In the evening, he was shackled again, and this went on for forty nights. After a while, his ankles were covered with blood and they had

(79) Pierre Dominique, op.cit., p.240.
(80) (83) and (85) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, pp.454, 432, 467.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:33 PM (GMT)

101 to be bandaged; his guards, moved with compassion, secretly wrapped up his Icet before chaining them".(81)

Nevertheless, the convict still proclaimed his innocence; he wrote to his wife: "There must be somewhere, in this beautiful and generous land of France, an honest man who is couragous enough to search for, and discover, the truth".(82)

In fact, the truth was not in doubt any more. What was lacking was the will to let it burst forth. The Abbe Brugerette himself testifies of the fact: "The presumptions of innocence of the convict on Devil's Island multiply in vain; M. de Bulow's declarations at the Reichstag and those transmitted by M. de Munster, his ambassador, to the French government, also state the innocence of Dreyfus in vain; an innocence proclaimed also by Emperor Guillaume and confirmed when Schwarzkoppen (the German military attache) was recalled to Berlin as soon as Esterhazy was accused by Mathieu Dreyfus (brother of the convict). The general-staff remains opposed to any reexamination of the trial... Someone is busy covering up for Esterhazy. Secret documents are communicated to him for his defence, and even his writing is not allowed to be compared with that on the "list"...

"Shielded in that way, the villain Esterhazy is audacious enough to ask to appear before a Council of war. There, he is unanimously acquitted, on the 17th of January 1898, after a deliberation lasting three minutes".(83)

We must mention that, a few months later, when Colonel Henry was convicted of forgery, Esterhazy fled to England and, in the end, confessed that he was the author of the famous "list" attributed to Dreyfus.

We cannot cite all the many happenings in this drama, the forgeries added to more forgeries in an attempt to conceal an obvious truth, the dismissal of the chief of the general staff, the downfall of ministers, the suicide of Henry, detained at Mont Valerien, who slit his throat and so signed with his own blood the confession of his culpability.

In December 1898, this semi-official note was published by the German press: "The declarations of the imperial government have established that no German personality, high or low, had any kind of relations with Dreyfus. Then, from the German point of view, we see no inconvenience as to the unabridged publication of the secret file.(84)

At last, the inevitable re-examination is decided by the High-Court. Dreyfus has to appear again before the council of war at Rennes, on the 3rd of June 1899, and it is the start of another torture for him. "He could not suppose that he was to meet hatred more odious than when he left and that his former chiefs, conspiring to set him again on the road to Devil's Island, (81) Armand Charpentier, op.cit., p.75.

(82) "Lettres d'un innocent", January and February 1895.
(84) Maurice Paleologue: "Journal de l'Affaire Dreyfus" (Plon, Paris 1955, p. 149)

102

would have no pity for this wretch, this poor creature who thought he has endured all the suffering there is to endure".(85)

"So", wrote the Abbe Brugerette, "the council of war at Rennes will only add a new injustice to the iniquity of the 1894 trial. The illegality of this trial, the guilt of Esterhazy, the criminal manoeuvres of Henry will come out clearly during the twenty-nine sessions of that trial at Rennes. But the council of war... will judge Dreyfus on other spying charges which were never the cause of an accusation or report. All the previous leakages will be attributed to him and documents will be produced which had nothing to do with him... At last, and contrary to all our legal traditions, we will require that Dreyfus himself establish that such a document or paper was not handed over by him, as if it was not the task of the prosecution to prove the crime any more".(86)

The partiality of Dreyfus' accusers was so obvious that public opinion outside France was aroused. In Germany, the semi-official "Cologne Gazette" published, on the 16th and 29th of August, in the middle of the trial, two articles in which we read the following phrase: "If, after the declarations of the German government and the debates of the highest court of appeal in France, someone still believes Dreyfus guilty, we can only answer that person that he must be mentally ill or he conscious wants an innocent to be condemned".(87)

But the hatred, nonsense and fanaticism were not disarmed for all that Even new forgeries were used, replacing those which had lost all credit. To sum it all up, it was nothing more than sinister buffoonery. The end of it, for Dreyfus, was the condemnation to ten years' detention, with mitigating circumstances!

"This miserable trial provoked an indignant stupor all over the world France was despised. Who could have imagined such terrible sorrow?"(88) exclaimed Clemenceau at the reading of English and German newspapers. Mercy was indispensable. Dreyfus accepted it to "carry on", said he, "seeking the reversal of the awful military mistake of which he was the victim. "For this reversal, it was no use counting on the justice of the Councils of war. This justice had been seen at work! It came, once again, from the highest court of appeal which, after thorough investigations and long debates, annulled once and for all the verdict of Rennes. A few days later, the Assembly and Senate, by a solemn vote, reinstated Dreyfus in the army: Dreyfus, upon whom was conferred the Legion of Honour and who

(85) See earlier on
(86) and (89) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, pp.469, 471, 472.
(87) Maurice Paleologue, op.cit., p.237.
(88) "L'Aurore", 14th of September, 1899.

103

was publicly reinstated".(89)

This late reversal, obtained so laboriously, was due to "honest and couragous" men, such as those the innocent on Devil's Island wished to see coming forth. Their number grew more and more as truth came to light. After the swift acquittal of the traitor Esterhazy, by a Council of war in January 1898, Emile Zola published in the "Aurore", Clemenceau's publication, his famous open letter "I accuse". He wrote: "I accuse the first Council of war to have violated the law by condemning an accused person on the grounds of some document remaining secret, and I accuse the second Council of war to have covered up this illegality by committing also a judicial crime in knowingly acquitting a culprit".

But the "knights" of our famous Company were on the watch out to hush up anything which could have enlightened the public. A question from the Catholic deputy de Mun brought Zola before the Assize Court of the Seine, and the couragous writer was condemned to one year imprisonment, the maximum penalty, as a result of this iniquitous trial.

Public opinion had been deceived so well by the outcries of the "clericonationalists" that the elections of May 1898 were in their favour.

Nevertheless, the public revelation of forgeries, the dismissal of the chief of the general-staff, the evident criminal partiality of the judges opened the eyes of those sincerely seeking the truth more and more. But these came almost exclusively from the ranks of the Protestants, Jews and laymen.
"In France, the Catholics were few and far between, among who m few were prominent, who took sides with Dreyfus... The action of this handful of people made very little noise. The conspiracy of silence surrounded it..."(90)
"Most priests and bishops remain convinced of Dreyfus' culpability", wrote the Abbe Brugerette. Georges Sorel declares also: "While the Dreyfus affair brought division amongst all social groups, the Catholic world was absolutely united against a re-examination." Peguy himself admits that "all the political forces of the Church have always been against Dreyfus".
Must we recall the lists of subscriptions open by the "Libre Parole" and "La Croix", in favour of the widow of the forger Henry who committed suicide? The names of the subscribing priests were often accompanied by "comments not very evangelical", as we are told by M. Adrien Dansette who quotes these:

"A certain Abbe Cros asks for a bedside mat made of Jewish s k i n wh i c h h e would be able to stamp on morning and evening; a young priest would like to crush Reinach's nose with his heel; three priests would love to slap the filthy face of the Jew Reinach".(91)

(89) See earlier on.
(90) and (91) Adrien Dansette, op.cit., II, pp.275, 276.

104

Only the secular clergy is still somewhat reserved. In the Congregations, things are more virulent:

"On the 15th of July 1898, prize-giving day at the College of Arcueil, presided over by Generalissimo Jamont (vice-president of the Superior Council of War), Father Didon, rector of the School Albert-le-Grand, gave a violent speech in which he advocated using violence against the men whose crime had been the couragous denunciation of a military error...

"Must we", said the eloquent monk, "let the wicked go free? Certainly not! The enemy is: intellectualism pretending to despise force, and civilians wanting to subordinate the military. When persuasion has failed, when love(!) has been ineffectual, we must brandish the sword, spread terror, chop off heads, make war, strike..."

"This speech seemed to be a challenge thrown before all the sympathisers of that condemned wretch".(92)

But how many of them have we heard since then? These calls to bloody repressions, coming from gentle clerics, especially during the German occupation! As for the cry of hatred against intellectualism, we can find the perfect echo to it in this declaration from a certain general: "When someone speaks of intelligence, I draw my revolver".

To crush the thought by force is a principle of the Roman Church which has never altered.

The Abbe Brugerette wonders, however, about the fact that nothing disturbed the clergy's belief in the culpability of Dreyfus: "Such a great and dramatic event, coming like a clap of thunder in a blue sky and bringing to light the Department for forgeries operating at the general-staff, must have opened the eyes, even of those not wanting to find the truth. We are referring to the discovery of forgeries made by Henry...

"Had not the time come for the French clergy and the Catholics to repudiate a mistake which had gone on for too long... They, the priests and the faithful could have gone, en-masse, and at the eleventh hour like the workmen mentioned in the gospels, to increase the ranks of the defenders of justice and truth... But the most evident facts do not always shed their light on minds dominated by certain prejudices, as prejudices are opposed to examination and, by their nature, rebel against evidence".(93)

Anyway, what efforts are made to maintain Catholics in error! "Could they guess that they were scandalously deceived by a press stubbornly keeping covered all the proofs of innocence, all the testimonies favourable to the convict of Devil's Island, and also determined to impede the course of Justice by any means?"(94)

At the forefront of that press was "La Libre Parole", created, as we have

(92) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, p.451.
(93) (94) and (96) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, pp.443, 444, 448.

seen, with the help of the Jesuit Father du Lac, and "La Croix" of the "Assumptionist" Father Bailly. The Order of "Assumption" being a camouflaged branch of the Company of Jesus, we must then attribute to them the start and pursuit of the anti-Dreyfus campaign.

A not very suspicious witness, Father Lecanuet, writes boldly: "The Congregations and especially the Jesuits are denounced by the Affair's historians. And, this time, we must admit that the Jesuits took the first shot with a very thoughtless temerity".(95)

"The provincial Catholic newspapers, such as the "Nouvelliste" of Lyon, to informative and widely read, will nearly all take part in that dark plot against truth and justice. It seems that the watchword was passed around to stop light breaking through and to keep the public in the dark".(96)
In reality, one would need a peculiar blindness not to discern, behind the furor shown by the "Croix" in Paris and in the provinces, the "watchword" mentioned by the Abbe Brugerette. And one would also be very naive not to know the origin.(96a)

M. Adrien Dansette says this also: "It is the "Assumptionist" Order as a whole and with it the Church which are exposed by the campaign of "La Croix"... Father Bailly boasts that the 'Holy-Father' approved of him".(97)

In fact, there isn't any doubt concerning that approval! The Jesuits, to whom the " Assumptionists" lend their name, are they not, since the Order was founded, the pope's political instruments? We have to smile at the story cleverly spread around—which is echoed by apologist historians—that Leo XIII had apparently "advised moderation" to the directors of "La Croix". It is a classical trick, but still somewhat efficacious. Today, there are still some folk who believe in a kind of "independence" of the Holy-See's official voice!
Let us see now what was published in Rome itself by the "Civilta Cattolica", the Jesuits' official publication, under the title "Il caso Dreyfus":

"The Jews' emancipation has been the result of the so-called principles of 1789, whose yoke weighs heavily on all French people... The Jews hold the Republic in their hands, which is more Hebraic than French... The Jew has been created by God to be used as a spy wherever some treason is being prepared... It is not only in France, but also in Germany, Austria and Italy that the Jews must be excluded from the nation. Then, with the great harmony of former times re-established, nations will find again their lost happiness".(98)

(95) Father Lecanuet, "Les Signes avant-coureurs de la Separation", p. 179. (96a) The newspaper "La Croix" was then widely published. (Note of the author).

(97) Adrien Dansette, op.cit., p.277.
(98) The "Civilta Cattolica" of the 5th of February 1898.

...more to come.

craig-oxley - September 13, 2008 02:34 PM (GMT)

106

In the previous chapters, we gave a short summary of the "great harmony" and "happiness" enjoyed by the nations when the sons of Loyola heard the confessions and inspired the kings. As we have just seen, "harmony" was also reigning when they were the confessors and counsellors of the general-staffs chiefs.

According to the Abbe Brugerette, General de Boisdeffre, penitent of the Jesuit Father du Lac, tasted the same bitterness as many others before him who were equally deceived by these "directors of consciences". The confessions of the forger Henry put him under an obligation to resign. "Being a very honest man, he will himself proclaim that he was "Scandalously deceived", and those who knew him were aware that he felt very bitter about the "plot" of which he had been the victim".(99)

And the Abbe Brugerette adds that he stopped "all communications" with his former confessor "and even refused to see him again when dying". After reading all this, written and published in the "Civilta Cattolica", it would be superfluous to dwell even deeper on the Order's culpability and we can only agree with what Joseph Reinach wrote then: "You see, it is the Jesuits who contrived this dark affair. And, for them, Dreyfus is only a pretext. What they want, and they admit it, is to strangle the laity and a redirected French Revolution..., abolish foreign gods, the dogmas of 1789".

This is clear enough. But, as some still insist, against all evidence, that there was a possible disagreement between the pope and his secret army, between the intentions of one and the actions of the other, it is easy to show the emptiness of such a supposition. The case of Bailly is very enlightening in that aspect.

What can we read in "La Croix" of the 29th of May 1956? Nothing less than this: "As we have announced, His Eminence Cardinal Feltin ordered a research into Father Bailly's writings; he was the founder of our publication and the "Maison de la Bonne Press". Here is the text of that ordinance dated 15th of May 1956:

"We, Maurice Feltin, by the grace of God and of the apostolic Holy-See, cardinal-priest of the Holy Roman Church whose title is Holy-Mary-of-Peace, archbishop of Paris.

"In view of the plan submitted by the Congregation of the Assumption's Augustinians and approved by us, to introduce in Rome the cause of God's servant Vincent-de-Paul Bailly, founder of "La Croix" and "Bonne Press". "In view of the dispositions... and instructions of the Holy See regarding the act of beatification and research into the writings of God's servants: "We have ordered and order the following: "Anyone who knew this servant of God or who can tell us something special about his life must let us know about it... "Anyone who possesses writings of this servant of God must let us have them before the 30th of September 1956, be it printed books, handwritten notes, letters, memoranda... even instructions or advices not written by him, but which he dictated... "For all these communications, we designate Canon Dubois, secretary of our archbishopric, and promoter of faith for this cause".(100)

(99) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, pp.435, 454.

107

Here is a "servant of God" well on the way to receive the just reward for his loyal services in the form of a halo. And we dare say that, as far as his "writings" are concerned and which were so carefully searched for, the "promoter of faith" will have too much to choose from. As for the "printed" material, the collection of "La Croix", especially between 1895 and 1899, will supply the most edifying kind.

"Their attitude (of the Catholic newspapers), and especially the one of "La Croix", constitute at the moment for all "enlightened and upright minds", what M. Paul Violet, Catholic member of the Institute calls an "indescribable scandal"; and this scandal upholds, in the Dreyfus Affair, the most shocking mistakes, the lying and crime against truth, uprightness and justice. "The Court of Rome", he adds, "knows it, as all the Courts of Europe do".(101)

Indeed, the Court of Rome knew better than anyone else! As we have seen, in 1956, she had not forgotten the pious exploits of this "servant of God" as she was preparing his beatification.

No doubt, the promoter of faith credited our future "saint" with those famous lists of subscriptions in favour of the widow of the forger Henry, about which the Abbe Brugerette says: "Today, when we consider those calls for the Inquisition to be brought back, for the persecution of the Jews, for the murder of Dreyfus' defenders, it is like listening to the delirious imaginations of wild and grotesque fanatics. Nevertheless, these are presented to us by "La Croix" as a great, comforting and cheering spectacle".(102)

All those pious wishes concerning the Jews, Father Bailly did not have the joy to see them realised, in his lifetime, by these wild fanatics, under the swastika. He could only take delight in that "great, comforting and cheering spectacle" from heaven, even though, up there, spectacles of that sort are quite common, according to the "learned", and especially Saint Thomas d'Aquin, the Angel of the School:

"In order to help the saints enjoy their blessedness more, and increase their thanksgivings to God, they are allowed to contemplate in all its awfulness the torture of the godless... The saints will rejoice in the torments

(100) "La Croix" of the 29th of May 1956.
(101) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., p.443.
(102) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, p.450.

of the godless". (Sancti de poenis impiorum gaudebunt) (103).
As we can see, Father Bailly, Founder of "La Croix", had what it takes to make a saint: persecute the innocent, curse those who defend him, give them up to be murdered, uphold with all one's strength lying and iniquity, stir up discord and hatred; these are, to the eyes of the Roman Church, solid titles for glory, and we can understand her wish to bestow the halo on the author of these pious deeds.

However, this question is asked, "Is this 'servant of God' a wonderworker also? Because we know that, to deserve such a promotion, one must have accomplished miracles well and truly checked."

What were the miracles accomplished by the director-founder of "La Croix"? Was it the transmutation, for his readers, of black into white and white into black? To have presented a lie as the truth and the truth as a lie? Naturally, but a greater miracle was the fact that he persuaded members of the general-staff (and then the public) that, after having committed an initial mistake, and when this mistake was discovered, it was in their "honour" to deny the evidence, transforming in that way the mistake into abuse of power! "Errare humanum est, perseverare diabolicum". The "servant of God" was not taking much notice of that proverb. Instead of letting it inspire him, he hid it under his cassock. In fact, the"mea culpa" is for the simple faithful and not the ecclesiastics, nor—as we have just seen— for the military chiefs who have Jesuit confessors.

The result—searched for—was the exaltation of partisan passions and the division of the French people.

This is stated by the eminent historian Pierre Gaxotte: "The Dreyfus Affair was the decisive turning point... judged by officers, it involved the military institution... The Affair grew, became a political conflict, divided families, cut France into two. It had the effects of a war of religion... It created hatred against the officers corps... It started anti-militarism".(104)

When we think of Europe at that time, Germany over-equiped with arms and surrounded by her two allies, when we recollect the Vatican's responsibility in the start of the 1914 conflict, we cannot believe that the diminution of strength in our military potential was not premeditated.
How could we not notice that, in fact, the "Dreyfus Affair" started in 1894, the year of the Franco-Russian alliance. Then, the spokesmen of the Vatican were very outspoken about the accord with a "schismatic" power which, to their eyes, was a scandal. Even today, a "prelate of His Holiness", Monseigneur Cristiani, dares write:

"Through politics strangely blind and ill considered, our country seemed to take pleasure in provoking war-like inclinations in her formidable

(103) "Somme theologique", in Supple. XCIV, I, 3.
(104) Pierre Gazotte, de l'Academie Francaise, "Histoire de Francais" (Flammarion, Paris 1951, tome II, pp.516, 517.

109

neighbour (Germany)... In fact, the Franco-Russian alliance seemed to threaten Germany with encirclement".(105)

For the respectable prelate, the Triple Alliance (Germany, Italy, Austria-Hungary) was not a threat to anyone and France was wrong not to stay isolated before such a block. With three against one, the "coup" would have been easier and our Holy Father the pope would not have had to deplore, in 1918, the defeat of his champions.

(105) Mgr Cristiani, "Le Vatican politique" (Ed. du Centurion, Paris 1957, p. 102).

110

Section
IV
Chapter 9

The Years before the war—1900-1914

So, as wrote the Abbe Brugerette: "Under the image of Jesus crucified, divine symbol of the idea of justice, "La Croix" had passionately cooperated with the work of deception and of crime against truth, uprightness and justice".(106)

Justice had nevertheless triumphed in the end and the Abbe Fremont, who did not fear mentioning the sinister crusade led by Innocent III against the Albigenses when referring to the Affair, seemed to be a true prophet when he said:

"The Catholics are winning and they think they will overthrow the Republic because of the hatred for the Jews. But they will, I am afraid, only overthrow themselves".(107)

In fact, when opinion was enlightened, the reaction was fatal. Ranc had learned the lesson of the Affair when he exclaimed: "The Republic will break the power of the Congregations, or she will be strangled". In 1899, a ministry "of republican defence" was constituted; Father Picard, superior of the "Assumptionists", Father Bailly, director of "La Croix", and ten other members of that Order were brought to trial before the tribunal of the Seine for breach of the law on associations. The Congregation of the "Assumptionists" was dissolved.

Waldek-Rousseau, president of the Council, declared in a speech pronounced at Toulouse on the 28th of October 1900: "Dispersed, but not suppressed, the religious Orders formed themselves again, bigger in numbers and more militant; they cover the territory with the network of a political organisation whose links are innumerable and tightly knit, as we have seen through a recent trial".

At last, in 1901, a law is passed, ruling that no Congregation can be

(106) Abbe Brugerette, op.cit., II, p.478.
(107) Agnes Siegfried: "L'Abbe Fremont" (F. Alcan. Paris 1932, II, p.163).

formed without an authorisation, and that those who do not ask for it within the legal time will be automatically dissolved.

It will be these regulations, quite natural on the part of public authorities whose duty it is to check the associations found in their territory, which will be presented to the Catholics as an intolerable abuse. "A man's house is his castle", goes the saying; but the Church is not having any of it: the common law is not for her.

The resistance of the clerics to the application of the law would be enough to show how necessary it was. This resistance will only strengthen the government's attitude, especially under minister Combes; and Rome's intransigence, especially when Pius I succeeded to Leo XIII, will bring ubout the law of 1904, abolishing the teaching Orders.
After that, friction between the French government and the Holy See will be constant. Besides, the election of the new pope was done in significant circumstances.

"Leo XIII died on the 20th of July 1903. The conclave, meeting to designate his successor, gives, after several ballots, 29 votes for Cardinal Rampolla,—42 are needed to be elected—, when the Austrian Cardinal Puzyna stands up and declares that His Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, king of Hungary, is inspired officially to exclude the secretary of State to Leo XIII. We know that Cardinal Rampolla is pro-French".(108)
Cardinal Sarto is elected. Through the manoeuvre of Austria, which substituted itself for the Holy-Spirit to "inspire" the cardinals of the conclave, this election is a victory for the Jesuits. Indeed, the new pontiff, described as a mixture of "village priest and archangel with a fiery sword", is the perfect type of man wished for by the Order. This is what M. Adrien Dansette says about it:

